LABOR HEAD SCORES WAGE REDUCTIONS

Green Charges Steel Industry Broke Faith With President and Workers

Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—A charge of bad faith and unsound policy was raised against the wage-cutting steel corporations today by organized labor.

While President Hoover and his advisers remained silent but seriously intent, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, took the initiative with a public assertion that the steel industry had broken its two-year old pledge to the White House.

The labor head quoted a statement made by Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, that "there will be hell to pay throughout the United States in the event of a general wage reduction." This, Green said, was a logical and sound conclusion.

All federal economic experts, however, are not agreed as to the final outcome. From one side have come predictions that the wage reduction will strengthen business, increase employment. In the other camp are expressions of regret and forecasts of a decreased buying power on the eve of a business recovery.

President Hoover himself has indicated his chief concern focuses upon the maintenance of American living standards, almost certain to be affected by a general wage lowering.

The President anxiety to maintain the standard of living has been consistent and is unaltered. No mention was made of wages or of the specific reductions ordered in the steel and automotive industries.

It was to the President's action, in November, 1929, of securing anti-wage lowering pledges from industrial leaders that Green referred in his charge that the steel industry had violated its given word.

"No greater blow than this," Green said, "has yet been struck against the forces which have been and are now serving to bring about a return of prosperity."

The labor chieftain maintained that the wage reducing corporations were the beneficiaries of a high protective tariff. This protection, he said, was granted upon the theory that it was necessary to uphold the American wage standard.

"It seems reasonable," he concluded, "that since they accepted this favor and reduced wages, the tariff schedule should be reduced and the special favors accorded them by the American government withdrawn."

Green sided with some of the government economists. If, as stated, the 10 per cent reduction will save the United States Steel Corporation $25,000,000, he said, it will likewise mean the employees of this concern will spend that much less for goods.

"The United States Steel Corporation and those other corporations which have announced reductions in wages," he continued, "have subjected themselves to the charge that through the imposition of a reduction in wages upon their employees they have broken a solemn pledge which they made the President of the United States to maintain wages and by their action have contributed to the development of social unrest and industrial discontent."

In contrast, Green contended, labor has kept the pledge given at the same White House conference of industrial and labor leaders in 1929. The promise was that it would initiate no new moves for increases in wages.

Dry Law Violator Shot By Officer

Wilmington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Virgil Frederick, 45, negro, lay in a hospital here today with two bullet wounds in his back while Federal prohibition agents moved to charge him with violation of the liquor laws.

D. W. Phillips, federal agent, said he fired at Frederick four times when the negro stopped during a chase from a liquor still and aimed a shotgun at him and V. G. Spivey, another agent.

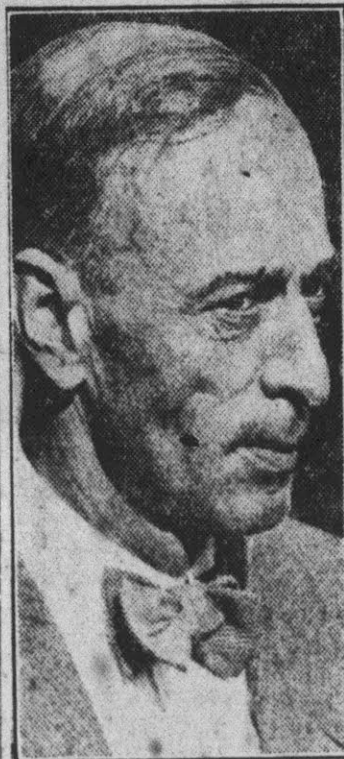

The gun, Phillips said, was not loaded. He said Frederick dropped a sack containing five gallons of liquor as he ran.

Two other negroes routed in the raid escaped, Phillips said, after dropping two sacks of liquor.

Announce Salary Cut Pittsburgh, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Coal Company, one of the largest producers of bituminous coal in this district, today announced a salary reduction of "about ten per cent to all officers and salaried employees of Pittsburgh Coal and subsidiary companies. The reduction is effective as of September 1.

TWO SUSPECTS HELD COLLINGS MURDER CASE

Wife of Murdered Man En Route to Mineola to Identify Assailants

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two suspects were held in the Nassau county jail at Mineola today for questioning in the killing of Benjamin P. Collings, who was bound hand and foot and thrown from his yacht into Long Island Sound two weeks ago.

Police said the men answered in a general way the description furnished by Mrs. Collings, who said she was taken off the yacht by her husband's assailants and subjected to mistreatment at the hands of one of them.

Inspector Harold R. King of the Suffolk county police said the men were not under arrest but had accompanied the officers voluntarily to the jail where they were permitted to sleep with deputy sheriffs nearby.

One of the men was Timothy Quinn, 40, a stevedore who was questioned at length at the Hunters Point police station before being taken to Mineola.

The other suspect, whose name was withheld, was described by police as a youth of 18, known as a friend of Quinn's and having a criminal record.

King said Mrs. Collings would be taken to Mineola today in an attempt to identify the two men.

Quinn was found at the home of his brother, a Queens physician, by Long Island City police who said he had been arrested three times on suspicion of murder and had escaped from several insane asylums, the last being the Central Island State Hospital, to which he was committed in 1929.

The police said Quinn was thoroughly familiar with the north shore of Long Island and had been seen in the vicinity several times during the last three weeks. They said he was an expert boatman and until recently owned a canoe. He was described as a man of great physical strength. The police took him to Hunter's Point police station and Blue questioned him there.

Importance was attached to the owner of a canoe because Mrs. Collings told authorities the men who boarded the Collings powerboat Penguin, bound her husband and threw him into the sound and took her off the boat in a canoe.

Blue has been proceeding on the theory that one of the assailants, described by Mrs. Collings as a middle-aged man, was a lunatic.

Chemical Kills Weeds

Clemson College, S. C.—(AP)—This is good news for the man with the hoe. Trials of a preparation of calcium chloride proved effective in 1930 in killing poison oak, Johnson grass, Bermuda grass, nut grass and other weeds. This spring, it was learned, the chemical also is effective in killing the roots of the weeds.

Senator Says Nations Heading for Greater Depths of Economic Misery

Moscow, Idaho, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the Senate Foreign relations committee, warned today that unless the world turns away from an "armaments race" among nations, "we will seek greater depths of economic misery than we have heretofore known."

He appealed for a revision of European post-war treaties which he said are "poisoning the whole life of Europe," with the result that "Europe arms and arms, and arms still further."

The Idaho senator addressed a gathering at the University of Idaho inaugurating the $50,000 "William E. Borah Foundation for the outlawry of war" established by Salmon O. Levinson, Chicago attorney.

Revision of the treaties, he said, must come before there can be an end to competition in armaments which "disarranges and demoralizes the economic systems of the nations until today some of the great nations are upon the verge of economic collapse and financial breakdown."

"The world is spending more money for armaments by far than at any time in its history, save in the midst of the world war," he stated, and taxpayers are "paying for this program with their blood."

"While much has been done for peace on paper, the spirit of suspicion on the one hand and hate on the other smoulder beneath the surface. Those things which move men to action, their fears and sense of injustice, the division of races and peoples, the breaking up of old boundaries, all these things make for armaments."

"I understand perfectly that it was not humanly possible to frame satisfactory treaties just at the close of the great war, it is time for frank discussion—and, still more important, it is time for action."

SLAYER OF TWO GIRLS IN JAIL

Girl Identifies Negro As the One Who Killed Her Sister and Companion

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A negro identified by Miss Nell Williams as the slayer of her sister and a girl friend on a lonely road near here August 4 was in Kilby prison at Montgomery for safe keeping today as officers investigated his denial of the charge.

The negro, who gave his name as Willie Peterson, was captured on the street here yesterday by Miss Williams and a friend, E. M. Streit. With Miss Williams' mother, they were on their way to visit the sisters' grave, when Miss Williams saw the negro passing by and identified him.

Streit covered the negro with a pistol while Miss Williams and her mother summoned officers to the scene.

Shortly after the negro was arrested on a charge of murder, county officers headed by Sheriff J. H. Hawkins placed him in an automobile and sped away for Kilby prison, reaching there three hours later.

Officers said the negro made no statement except that "I haven't done anything."

Solicitor George Lewis Bales said if Miss Williams' identification is positive he will ask that the county grand jury be reconvened immediately to begin an investigation.

Soon after the negro's transfer to Montgomery, a crowd of several hundred persons gathered near the county jail entrance here but officers said there was no demonstration or disorder.

Miss Nell Williams was shot in the arm and Mrs. Augusta Williams and Miss Jennie Wood were wounded fatally by a negro who held them captive for four hours after holding them up on a road and forcing them to drive in a nearby wooded section.

Government Begins Study Legalized Beer

Agriculture Department Seeks Effect Industry Will Have Upon Farmers

Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Another official inquiry into the possibilities of legalized beer, this time directed toward the effect on the farmer, is being undertaken by the Federal Government.

Secretary Hyde disclosed today that the Agriculture Department was seeking data how a resumption of legitimate brewing would be felt on the farm.

It will determine how many farmers might be employed in raising hops and barley and other grain for the vat.

Among those who want to see President Hoover come out for beer, and many in his party have urged him to do so, the news was received with hope that it meant at least an open mind toward their proposals.

Among those who want the administration and the Republican party to stay as dry as ever, and they are numerous, too, the result was just renewed speculation, to which there was no authoritative answer.

Those who questioned Mr. Hyde directly got little more information than that which came recently from Walter Newton, one of the president's secretaries, when he recently said he had asked, on behalf of an outside source, for Census Bureau figures on the number employed in breweries before prohibition.

The agriculture secretary said he had received many requests for information on the much debated point of beer as a measure of farm relief. None of the requests, he said, came from the White House. The president might learn of the result, he continued, but the returns would not go directly to him from the agriculture department.

About the political aspects of the consequences of the inquiry Mr. Hyde would not talk at all, except to concede to questioners that some such consequences might ensue.

Momentarily, the result of the disclosure of the investigation was to stir up one of Washington's most active nests of rumors. These reports always take a multitude of forms.

One, of course, is that Mr. Hoover under the urging of the modificationists, Labor leaders, and many other elements, will recommend a change to Congress.

Another is that he is collecting definite evidence on which to turn down the petitions who contend beer-making would increase employment and give relief to the farmer.

These rumors, on both sides, have become so numerous that the White House long since ceased to take any notice of them. Whatever Mr. Hoover may be thinking he has been saying nothing and no one has attempted to speak directly for him. It was Congress which set alcoholic content of legal drinks at

COLLEGE TO BEGIN TERM NEXT WEEK

Large Number of Men Enrolled As Students for the Coming Year

East Carolina Teachers College will begin its 23rd year of work during the week of September 28, with an enrollment that now promises to tax its maximum capacity.

While East Carolina Teachers College has been coeducational since its establishment in 1909, it has never enrolled a large number of men at any one time, but the number of men enrolled this year will probably be increased considerably. High school graduates from Greenville, Ayden, Kinston, Farmville and other towns will furnish several men this year. The number of men enrolling is sufficiently large that the men students applying for admission are already talking about athletic teams and schedules, though it is hardly likely that any athletic schedules will be carried on with other schools this year.

While the size of the faculty will remain practically the same as last year, there are several changes in the personnel.

Miss Lorraine Hunter takes the place of Miss Betty White in the science department; Miss Gertrude Rhodes takes the place of Miss Lucy Nulton in the Training School, while Miss Nulton has been transferred to the Educational department of the college. Miss Mary E. Winters takes the place of Miss Alma Browning in the fourth grade of the Training School. Miss Miss Frances Hudgens takes the place of Miss Cleo Rainwater in the fifth grade of the Training School. Miss Mamie L. Epps is an addition to the department of Education. Miss Wahl becomes principal of the Training School in place of Miss Rainwater who is on leave of absence for the year.

Mr. H. C. Haynes is on leave of absence doing graduate study in George Peabody College for Teachers.

Miss Dora Coates is on a year's leave of absence doing graduate study in Teachers College, Columbia University.

Miss Marie Peterson, of the Geography Department, is on leave of absence for the fall quarter to do graduate study.

Freshman registration will occupy the first two days, September 29 and 30, and all other students will be registered on October 1. Class work begins on October 2.

Students living in or near Greenville and other students who expect to attend college as day students should make application for admission at once on one of the regular college admission blanks, in order to facilitate registration. Information is sent to those who make application; without this information, the student is at some disadvantage in following the registration procedure.

Students who have attended other colleges must present a certificate of honorable dismissal from the college attended. Those who expect to graduate from East Carolina Teachers College must present also a transcript of college work done elsewhere.

Registration will be conducted in the main auditorium of the Social Religious Building (Campus Building) at the east end of the campus. The dormitories will be open to receive students taking part in Freshman Registration on Monday, September 28; the first meal will be served in the dining hall at lunch on that day.

Freshmen will assemble in the auditorium at 2:00 P. M. Tuesday, September 29, at which time all students, including day students, who do not have credit for more than two thirds of a year of college work should be present.

American Legion Wants Dry Question Submitted to People; Turn Down Request for Payment of Bonus

Detroit, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., young Warsaw, N. C., attorney, was elected National Commander of the American Legion on the first ballot taken today. Stevens, 35 years old, is the youngest man ever elected as head of the legion.

Stevens was elected by acclamation as all other candidates withdrew before the completion of a roll call.

Detroit, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The American Legion National Convention today rejected a resolution endorsing the immediate payment of bonus certificate at face value.

The vote was 902 to 507. The convention by acclamation then adopted a resolution calling upon every able bodied veteran to refrain from "unnecessary burden upon national, state or municipal governments."

Detroit, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The American Legion National Convention today asked Congress to submit repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws to the states with the request that each state submit the issue to its voters.

An effort to have the issue thrown off the floor under a ruling that it is political and outside of the Constitutional scope of the Legion's activities failed. Commander Ralph T. O'Neil declined to follow the precedent set last year by O. L. Bogenhamer.

The text of the resolution adopted by the Legion follows:

"Whereas, the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States has created a condition endangering respect for law and the security of American institutions, therefore be it resolved that the American Legion in this 13 annual convention assembled favors the submission by Congress of the repeal or modification of the present prohibition laws to the several states with a request that each state submit this question to the voters thereof."

Scott W. Lucas, of Havana, Ill., who resigned recently as national judge advocate of the Legion to become a candidate for United States Senator, speaking in favor of the prohibition referendum resolution, said:

"While we were engaged in the most deadly and costly conflict of civilization; while we were dedicated to the winning of the war, a frenzied, high financed group of individuals under strategic and astute leadership, caused to be enacted the most momentous change in constitutional government since the constitution was written.

"Obviously, the 18th amendment was passed for the primary purpose of eliminating the drunkard over the bar, the old time saloon and all of the so-called economic evils, and social ills.

"The 18th amendment has been characterized as an 'experiment, noble in motive,' yet it has proven to thousands upon thousands of American citizens in all walks of life to be an experience lamentable and loathsome in many of its details.

"After 13 years of prohibition we find business men, professional men, laboring men, men in high counsel of politics, young men, young girls openly and flagrantly violating and defying this amendment, if not in letter, at least in spirit, by consuming liquor in one form or another, and whenever and wherever they can get it.

"We are confronted with saved-off shotguns, machine guns, poison alcohol, gang murders, armed automobiles, high powered rifles and stills by the thousands, all of which were unknown before the 18th amendment.

"The time is fast approaching in America when decisive and definite action must be taken. In my humble judgment the great mass of people who devoutly believe that the American Legion is dedicated for God and country are looking for the Legion to lead them out of the pitiable morass of legal, moral and economic complications which have arisen under this amendment. They are asking some one to lead us out of the wilderness of mismanagement, hypocrisy and shame existing under this law."

Norman C. MacDonald, of Mass., who opened the debate for the majority resolution, declared that "American institutions are in danger" as a result of prohibition and

DEFENSE HAS ITS INNING IN SHELTON TRIAL

Church Trial of Suspended Washington Clergyman Nearing End At Alexandria

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Dr. William A. Shelton's side of the incidents which led to his suspension from the pastorate of a prominent Washington church was presented today to a church jury by defense witnesses.

The first defense witness to be brought before the jury behind closed doors was the Rev. H. R. Deal, assistant pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal church, south, who had worked with Dr. Shelton at that church.

The exact nature of the charges has not been disclosed, but Andrew Wilson, a member of the National Board of the anti-Saloon League, who is associated with the prosecution, said a photostatic copy of a letter alleged to have been written by Dr. Shelton to Miss Carrie A. Williams had been placed in the record. Miss Williams, Shelton's former secretary, instigated the charges against him.

The letter purported to be an apology from Dr. Shelton. Copies of it were received anonymously in several newspaper offices.

Jack Pickford Seriously Ill

Hollywood, Calif., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Jack Pickford, film actor and brother of Mary Pickford, is seriously ill at his home, his physician said today.

Pickford, who has been ill for several weeks, was said to have suffered a relapse and to be in a semi-conscious condition. The physician however, said he believed that two months rest would restore his patient's health. The illness began with a severe cold.

Mary Mulhern, former Polles actress, and wife of the actor has been in constant attendance at the bedside of her husband.

SAM

By Freeman Lincoln

SYNOPSIS: Sam Sherrill becomes engaged to Peak Abbott, attractive millionaire although she loves Freddy Munson, to relieve her family's poverty and to offset the social stigma of her half-brother Nelson's marriage to their maid. She suspects there is something wrong about the sudden success of her stepfather, Fourth Aldersea's invention.

Chapter 26
ACCUSATIONS AND REGRETS
Freddy Munson. There was the name in bold, clear type. Sam's hand trembled, holding the telegram. It was only by a distinct effort of will that she was able to read the message.

"Arriving in town early tomorrow," Freddy had wired. "Shall telephone you immediately. Must see you once more. Think you owe me at least that much."
Sam carefully refolded the yellow sheet of paper and put it back on the table. Then she nodded and got down on the couch.

What must she do? She had only a few short hours to decide. If the telegram had come a month ago, decision would have been easy. She would have ignored it and would have arranged to be out of the house when the telephone bell rang. A month ago her course of action had been sharply defined. She had cast her lot with Peak Abbott, and simultaneously had murdered Freddy Munson in her mind as finally as though she had stabbed him in the heart with a knife. The fact that the murder had been committed against her will and simply as the only solution to an otherwise hopeless problem, had nothing to do with the case. Freddy was dead. He no longer existed except as a bright memory that should never dim.

Yes, a month ago everything had seemed simple and uncomplicated. She had felt that what she had done was inevitable and right. She had thought that her course, if difficult, was honorable and fair to everybody concerned. Tonight she saw with startling clearness that she had been terribly wrong.

If she had loved Freddy, she told herself dispassionately, she should have married him regardless of material consequences. If she had felt nothing but friendship for Peak, she should have refused an offer of marriage. If there was a possibility of doubt? It seemed as though there might be. She had been happy recently, undeniably happy. She had found a growing pleasure in Peak Abbott's company. She had come to care for him more than she believed possible. She had kissed him that very night. Was she a person of no emotional stability, one who swayed by every breeze that blew? She was suddenly frightened and very deeply ashamed.

In her mood of self-condemnation, she found a wealth of unflattering subjective which applied unerringly to herself, and for a time she tortured herself by searching them out and parading them. At last, however, she shook her head impatiently, realizing that accusations and regrets could do no good. What had been done was done and could not be recalled. Only the events of the future lay somewhat under her control and she must decide immediately how she was to attempt to shape them.

First of all she must see Freddy. It was obvious that, to use his own words, she owed him at least that much. She also owed herself at least that much. She must see him and must make up her mind whether or not her feeling for him had remained unchanged. Beyond that, the path was clear. If she found that she still loved him, she would marry him. She would explain to Peak, and go away with Freddy to Kansas City or wherever he decreed. Explaining to Peak about to turn off the lamp on the table when the door from the kitchen opened and someone spoke her name.

"Miss Sherrill?" It was Mary, the maid. Mary was in nightgown and wrapper and her eyes were heavy with sleep. "I've been waiting up to tell you that Mr. Aldersea has been trying to get you on the telephone all evening. I didn't hear you when you came in. I must have dropped off for a minute."

"Thanks, Mary," said Sam automatically. "Mr. Aldersea? Do you mean my stepfather?"

"No," Mary shook her head and stifled a yawn. "It was young Mr. Aldersea. He seemed awfully anxious to talk to you. He called about six times."

"Really?" Sam frowned. "Did you tell him where I was?"

"I couldn't. You didn't tell me where you were going to be this evening."

"That's right, I forgot. Stupid of me. Well, thanks Mary, I'll call him right away."

Sam wondered idly, as she gave Nelson's number to the operator, what had happened. She hoped if there was news it was good. She could do with a little good news.

After a protracted interval central informed her disinterestedly that the number did not answer. Sam was immediately uneasy and vaguely alarmed.

Five minutes later she was in her little car on the way to town. She was able to drive swiftly, for the wind-blown streets were deserted. Most of the houses were dark, and even the big apartment house where Nelson and Martha lived showed no light except in the vestibule.

Sam rang Nelson's bell for a long time but there was no answer. It was evident that there was nobody at home. Where could she go? She was still standing, undecided, beside the long line of letter boxes, when the glass door from the street was suddenly pushed open and her half-brother came striding in.

"Nelson!" Sam needed no more than a glance to know that something was very wrong. Sonny Aldersea's face was pale and haggard and there was a wild light in his eyes. "Nelson! What is it? What has happened?"

Sonny stopped short in his tracks and stared, almost as though he did not recognize her. Then he licked his lips. "It's Martha," he said hoarsely. "It's Martha!"

"What about Martha?" Sam demanded sharply.

He gulped. "She's disappeared," he said slowly, as though trying to convince himself of something that could not be true. "I can't find her. She's gone away."

"Oh," said Sam. "What happened? Did you two have some kind of foolish quarrel?"

"They went up to Nelson's apartment, and on the way he gave her a broken, disjointed account of the affair."

It seemed that there had been no quarrel. To the contrary, since moving into the apartment their married life had been progressing much more smoothly. Nelson said that he had been happy. He had thought that Martha was happy too. She might have been a bit moody and quiet, these last few days, but not alarmingly so. Even their breakfast that very morning had been a normal meal. He had worked all day at the Express office and had come home at the usual time expecting to find Martha busy with the dinner.

"Instead, Martha was not there. No light had been turned on anywhere in the apartment and there was nothing cooking on the stove. On the little table between their beds he had finally found a letter. The letter said that Martha was going away and was not coming back."

"She said that I was too good for her—that she was dragging me down!" Nelson almost shouted the words. He pointed his finger at Sam as though somehow he must impress her with the utter folly of such a preposterous statement. "Met Can you imagine it? She said I was too good for her. Why—"

"Hush, Nelson," said Sam soothingly. "Suddenly Nelson's face was contorted, as though he were about to cry. 'I'm afraid,' he said chokingly. 'It's as if she's dead.'"

(Copyright, Freeman Lincoln)

Search for Martha begins in the next installment. Her letter hints at suicide. But Sam has an amazing explanation.

RALEIGH AND GOLDSBORO SINGERS TO BE IN CONTEST TOMORROW NIGHT

What promises to be one of the best entertainments this season is the singing contest to be held at Gorman's warehouse tomorrow evening at eight o'clock.

In this contest will be the Goldsboro quartet that sings over the radio at Raleigh each Sunday morning. Many will welcome the opportunity of hearing these colored singers in person. Besides this the Raleigh quartet is on the program.

These singers returned last week from a two weeks' tour of northern cities, and represent the best in harmony singing. The contest will include all the familiar and popular Southern Negro Spirituals by ten quartets from this section of the state. There will also be several numbers by a women's quartet from Washington. These singers are favorably known, too, as they sung at several entertainments here last year.

The contest is being sponsored by Circle No. 2 of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church.

FARMVILLE HIGH OPENED MONDAY; INCREASE IN ENROLLMENT SHOWN

Farmville, Sept. 23.—The Farmville High School opened on Monday with an enrollment of 644; 459 pupils being enrolled in the elementary school and 185 in the high school. This number is being increased each day.

All necessary arrangements for the opening had been completed by Supt. R. E. Boyd and his corps of workers, including the registration of high school students and pupils were able to adjust themselves to the proposed schedules and work was begun with little confusion.

Formal assemblies have not been held so far this week, the first chapel exercises being scheduled for Friday morning. No changes have been made in the program of these periods, Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays being assigned to the elementary grades and Fridays to the high school. Constructive programs will be continued and the large attendance of parents which is customary is expected.

The faculty is composed of 22 members as in previous years, and the system of engaging as many local teachers as possible which was established last year, was followed again this season.

A total enrollment of 763 made a record for attendance last year, as did the 21 graduates, being the largest class in the history of the school. Athletics which are supervised by R. H. Cason, have a prominent place in the school and plans are being made to make this season the best in years.

Farmer's Club Organized

Farmville, Sept. 24.—A number of enthusiastic farmers, outstanding and representative of the agricultural vocation in this community, met Wednesday evening in the municipal building here and perfected the organization of a Farmer's Club, which had been under discussion for some weeks.

John T. Thorne was elected president and J. W. Holmes vice-president. The club is to be congratulated at having these men serve as officers of the group, as they are not only planters of note but are financiers, substantial citizens and leaders in the various circles of community life and in state affairs as well; Mr. Thorne being president of the State Cotton Cooperative Association, and Mr. Holmes one of the outstanding legislators sent from Pitt county last year.

The president addressed the club, making a plea for further diversification of crops, and E. F. Arnold, county farm agent, spoke on the value of farmers' organizations and of the success of various clubs which had come under his observation in Tennessee and Western Carolina, giving as an example of profound interest the Mill River Club in Henderson county, which holds an attendance record of many years. Brief talks relative to the success of the club were given by members.

Next Saturday and Sunday will be our yearly meeting at Red Oak Church. On Saturday we are expecting Mr. Scarborough to preach for us at eleven o'clock and on Sunday morning we will have Sunday school at 10 o'clock and services again at eleven. All members are especially urged to be on hand Saturday at the eleven o'clock services as matters of great importance to the church will be discussed. The public is extended a cordial invitation to all these services.

Spirit of Bryan Hovers Over Meet At London Today

London, Sept. 24.—(AP)—William Jennings Bryan's old free silver battle cry, "Sixteen to one" echoed today in a proposal by Sir Hugh Cunliffe-Owen, president of the Board of Trade, for increasing and stabilizing the price of silver.

Speaking at a luncheon as chairman of the British-American Tobacco Company, he asserted that quick action along this line is necessary if the world depression is to be eased.

The shade of William Jennings Bryan hovers over the situation now, Sir Hugo said, and C. H. Minor of the International General Electric Company, agreed with him.

Bryan was right but ahead of his time, said Mr. Minor.

PETITIONS CONGRESS FOR REFERENDUM ON PROHIBITION ISSUE

that the Legion properly should assume leadership in efforts to improve conditions which he described as a serious menace.

"The government has been humble," he said "and has lost control of one of its greatest industries and has lost a great source of revenue."

Ed Neary, of New York, recalled that a year ago his delegation stood alone in behalf of a prohibition referendum and was ruled out of order by the then commander, O. L. Bodenhamer. He called on the delegates to avoid "quibbling and take a strong stand." He attributed recent New York killings, including the shooting of children, as direct results of prohibition.

Douglas Hudson, of Kansas, was the first speaker on the other side of the issue. He declared that a vote for the referendum would be misinterpreted as a vote for the return of beer. The Kansas delegation, he said, opposed the resolution because of this possible misinterpretation that the Legion has adopted a mug of beer as its symbol.

Phil Solon, of California, favored the referendum because of what he called the "unforeseen results" of prohibition. President Wilson, he said, was more far-seeing "than most of the rest of us" when he vetoed the enforcement act. This was received with a demonstration.

"We are pledged to make right master of night," he said. "How can we do that with gang rule getting the upper hand in our country?"

Jack Wicker, of Virginia, speaking in opposition to the referendum said that the question for the Legion to decide was not whether prohibition was a good thing or not but "after we decide it, are we going to stronger before the people looking out for our disabled comrades and carrying out their important objectives of the Legion?"

The commander put the resolution to a viva voce vote, in which the chorus was about equal on each side.

A roll call was demanded and the adjutant started calling the roll of states and departments with the result that the resolution was adopted, 1,008 to 394 amid a victorious demonstration.

THE MAN FOR GOVERNOR

If rumors hereabouts that Hon. Josephus Daniels at an early date will announce his candidacy for governor, materialize certainly the step will meet with the hearty approval of the masses of the people, especially in this section of the state. That Mr. Daniels is well qualified for this high position is without question and despite the fact that there are certain privileged interests in this state that would fight his election we believe that his efforts over a long period of years in behalf of the interests of the masses of the people of our state would prove of sufficient vote-getting power to assure his election.

Certainly we would welcome Mr. Daniels' entry in the campaign.

AN APPEAL TO PARENTS

There is one thing we would like to remind the parents of children in school this year. The teacher will have more pupils to look after and teach, which means she will have less time to devote to the individual child, hence the necessity for the parent to help the child at home. If the parents will do their duty the schools can be a success and satisfactory work done, but the parents must help.—(Roxboro Courier).

Battle-Marked Fort Laramie to Glean Anew

Fort Laramie, Wyo., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Old Fort Laramie, battle scarred and weather beaten, will gleam again in whitewashed splendor. Where once along the old Oregon trail the pioneers sought shelter from Indian arrows the motorist will come to marvel at mementos of the whiteman-redman struggle for an empire. Almost 100 years have passed since the first log was laid at Fort Laramie, first military outpost in Wyoming. But before the anniversary of that century in 1934 the state government probably will have acquired the site and what remains of the old buildings of the Indian outpost for a permanent memorial to western pioneers and a Fort Laramie museum.

First steps toward acquiring and restoring the property were taken when the Wyoming Historical Landmarks commission moved to buy the land.

The history of old Fort Laramie actually dates back to 1820 and before when Jacques La Ramie, the French-Canadian trapper, made his headquarters at the junction of what later were to be named the Platte and Laramie rivers.

Then in 1834 came Robert Campbell and Capt. William Sublette, who picked the site as an ideal one for a trading post.

After constructing several buildings and naming the place Fort William they sold out the next year to a syndicate of trappers headed by the famous Jim Bridger and Milton Sublette.

Next it passed into the hands of the American Fur Company, which rebuilt it in 1836.

The trading post soon became the control point for the Rocky Mountain region.

The post was purchased by the government in 1849 and remained a military post until 1890, when it was sold to private individuals.

WILL DECIDE ON POLICY OF TAX REVISION

Attitude of Administration Will Be Made Known in About Six Weeks

Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Whether the administration will recommend tax revision is expected to be decided within a month or six weeks.

This became evident in high treasury quarters today. Progress is being made on the study being conducted by the department's economic experts, but the stage has not yet been reached when the final verdict has evidenced itself.

If the decision turns out to be that revision will be recommended to Congress in December, the tax experts will have to draw the plan for submission to the treasury, the budget bureau and White House before the President could present it to Congress.

The administration has sought to avoid tax increases. Though some believe a revision of the tax system is unavoidable, others take the view that the government could meet its deficit this year as it did last through an increase of the public debt and delay tax revision for another year.

Treasury experts have for several months been canvassing possible sources of new revenue to replace or supplement income taxes, because of the tremendous drop in that source of revenue which has formed the backbone of the government's tax system.

Following a drop of $550,000,000 in income tax collections in the last fiscal year, the payments in the first quarter of the 1932 fiscal year—which ends September 30—has shown a drop already of $233,000,000, or nearly half as much in a quarter of the year as was shown in the entire preceding year.

At the close of business on September 22, income tax collections for the fiscal year since July 1 have amounted to $305,594,578, as compared with $538,353,914 in the same period of the previous year.

For the first 22 days of this month the collections have amounted to $259,015,112, as compared with $482,488,190 for the same number of days last year.

With the chief source of federal revenue dropping off at an amazing rate, it seemed to officials that the government would have to find some source to replace the loss. At the close of business September 22, it had a deficit of $384,258,237, having collected from all sources only $549,962,789 this fiscal year and having spent $914,221,026.

The hope that had been held out that an increase in business in the present calendar year might bring greater returns from income tax now seems forlorn because of the continued business depression.

Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills in the past have called attention to what they consider the inadequacy of the income tax law as a base of the tax system during a depression.

LINK TAMMANY WITH GAMBLING

Charge Professional Dice Games and Horse Race Pools in Three Clubs

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The testimony of a police captain that professional gamblers conducted dice games and horse race pools in three Tammany clubs was part of the record of the legislative investigation into municipal affairs today.

Questioned at a public hearing by Samuel Seabury, counsel for the legislative committee, Capt. Lewis J. Valentine testified gambling raids had been made upon the Thomas M. Farley Association of the fourteenth assembly district, of which Sheriff M. Farley of New York county is the leader; the Tammany Central Association of the twelfth assembly district, of which City Clerk Michael J. Cruise is leader, and the Harry C. Perry Association of which Perry, the chief clerk of the city court, was formerly leader.

Valentine was a deputy inspector and commanded a confidential squad under Police Commissioner George McLaughlin and the late Joseph A. Warren. He was reduced to captain and his squad broken up when Governor A. Whalen became commissioner.

Valentine said that in 1927 he had the Tammany Central Association Club under observation and at that time George McManus, who was tried and acquitted for the murder of Arnold Rothstein, was running a game there.

A game operated by a gambler named Billy Warren was moved to the Farley Club, Valentine testified, after Warren's arrest near Third avenue and 14th street was raided. Rothstein was one of Warren's associates, the police captain said.

No conviction resulted from raids on the political clubs. Valentine said his men had great difficulty in getting into the three clubs under suspicion although he had some of them join the clubs in an effort to form contacts with the gamblers. Some of the gambling rooms had doors like refrigerators to make entrance difficult.

as planks in the next Democratic national platform.

Shouse several days ago gave his views of what should be embodied in the next Democratic platform, including proposals for changes in prohibition.

If Shouse should give the subject further study, Mrs. Shaver said, "he may come to the correct conclusion that beer and wine would actually reduce employment by diverting vast sums from the purchase of commodities requiring more labor than the production of the liquor."

Mrs. Shaver said that "real Democrats" believe the people have registered their will against liquor and "will stand steadfastly by this decision."

Says Movement For Beer and Wine a Mistake

Washington, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Beer, wine and repeal of the 18th amendment, in the opinion of Mrs. Clemmet L. Shaver, vice-president of the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, will not "be acceptable to southern Democrats."

The wife of the former chairman of the Democratic National Committee said in a statement that J. P. Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, "miserably failed to catch the vision of the dry south when he proposed beer and wine and repeal of the 18th amendment

NEW SYSTEM IS IN EFFECT AT N. C. STATE

Raleigh, Sept. 24.—(AP)—If N. C. State were not handicapped by the installation of another new system of play, the Wolfpack football team this year would appear to be a powerful eleven on a par with many of Dixie's finest.

As it is, Coach Johnny "Clipper" Smith is molding an organization that will be no slouch in this grid-iron business. He and his assistants are working to install the well-known Rockne system of play and the 40-odd candidates, including 17 lettermen, are responding cheerfully.

In spite of his very excellent material, Smith will probably find out what he already knows, that it takes time to teach a squad a new method of doing things. The Wolfpack has had hard running for the last few years, the 1930 season being one of the poorest of all. Next year, or 1933, will probably see this outfit come into its own. It may also pack a few surprises before Thanksgiving Day. State's schedule is well balanced. The opening against Davidson at Greensboro Saturday night will give Smith and his chief assistant Frank Reese, their first opportunity to get a look at their team in action. The coaches conducted the pack's spring training but Smith has never had any actual experience with southern football.

North Carolina, Duke and South Carolina are probably the hardest blocks in the Pack's way and all of these opponents are met late in the season. Florida and Clemson come right after Davidson.

This team has plenty of weight, with a probable varsity line that will average 190 pounds. The backfield will probably bring the team's average weight to around 180 pounds. In this first string group there may be as many as four from five to seven sophomores but they will be husky chaps who know football.

Development of a pair of excellent ends, the vital spot in the Rockne system, is receiving considerable attention. Bob Greason and Sam Gurneau are the leading candidates for these positions, with Alan Nelms, veteran, standing the best chance of beating either of them out. George Beghen, Whitey Scholl, Bud Rose and Peter Sharnak form the reserve power for the flanks.

Captain Charlie Cobb and Arthur Wilson are best tackle beta, with Setts and Stroup next. Red Espey, the Hickory Husky, is a sure bet at center. LeFort and Duke appear to have the guard posts cinched, with Buchanan and Tull as their understudies.

Bob McQuage, quarter, Don Wilson and Dink Dillinger, halves, and Mope Cumiskey, fullback make up the first string backfield. McQuage and Wilson are sophomores. They beat out five men who played regularly in 1930 which gives a good idea of the potency of the ball carrying department.

The schedule: Davidson at Greensboro, Sept. 26 (night game); Florida at Raleigh, Oct. 3; Clemson at Charlotte, Oct. 10; Wake Forest at Raleigh, Oct. 15; Catholic University at Raleigh, Oct. 23; North Carolina at Raleigh, Oct. 31; Miss. A. and M. at Starkville, Nov. 7; Duke at Durham, Nov. 14; South Carolina at Columbia, Nov. 21.

GRID TEAMS PREPARE FOR OPENING TILT

Charlotte, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Like a bootblack giving a shiny shoe one last slap of the rag, North Carolina football coaches today gave their teams a few final polishing points.

For Wallace Wade, it was his last chance to instruct his Blue Devils before they entrain tonight for Columbia, S. C., where they meet the South Carolina Gamecocks Saturday. The Devils will take a light workout at the fair grounds in the South Carolina city tomorrow and then lie low until the whistle blows. Wade's final efforts were directed toward the perfection of blocking and tackling. He made one change in his tentative lineup, putting Don Hyatt, all-state end last year, back at the post he held down so capably. James, a sophomore whose ability as a wingman had almost forced Hyatt off the varsity, was relegated to the second team.

Everybody was happy at the University of North Carolina at the presence of Johnny Branch, untried over any scholastic difficulties in the Tar Heel backfield.

Branch's eligibility was cleared up officially yesterday and he immediately took his place at quarterback, replacing Johnny Peacock, his understudy. Peacock had been running the varsity for a week while Branch devoted the greater portion of his time to studying.

North Carolina State's varsity showed up well in a scrimmage in preparation for the Davidson game. The work of the line was a particular joy to Coach Clipper Smith while his backs gained at will thru a freshman outfit.

Coach Monk Younster continued to work with Davidson's reserves, using a second string backfield behind his varsity line in an effort to develop hidden ball-carrying possibilities which may prove useful against the Wolfpack in the game at Greensboro.

The result, however, was not exactly one over which to rejoice and the reserves will probably continue to receive attention.

Coach Pat Miller had one final rough workout in store for his Wake Forest charges. The last scrimmage before the North Carolina game will be against the freshman team. Punting, signal drills and tackling are also receiving considerable attention there.

BELIEVES L.A. TEAM BETTER THIS SEASON

By QUINCY EWING
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Baton Rouge, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Were it not for his membership in the silent coaches club, Russ Cohen of Louisiana State University, from practice field appearances, might reasonably be vocally optimistic over football prospects here this season.

As it is, he has cast aside his taciturnity to the extent of prophesying that L. S. U. "will show some improvement this year. His prediction is based on the work of 21 lettermen who returned from this year's team and a number of fine sophomore players.

The Tiger squad has poundage aplenty as well as charging power. The backs are all proved veterans. Evidence of the wealth of material is seen in Cohen's intention to use the Notre Dame two-team system for the first time.

If he wishes, he can put 10 veterans and a sophomore on the field as a first team, the sophomore being Jack Torrence, 266 pound six-foot-three tackle. At center, Cohen will have big and capable Jess McLain. Captain Ed Khoury, 225-pound boxer, and the team's best lineman last year, and Bob Powell, will take care of the guards.

Moore, hefty and fast, and Torrence are tackles capable of bothering any team. At end will be Roy Wilson and "Goat" Fleming, both fine flankmen.

A tentative backfield, composed of the veteran Ogden at quarter, Almokary and Bowman at halves and Tom Smith at fullback, will offer speed and power.

Cohen's squad opens the season Saturday against Texas Christian University.

The remainder of the schedule: October 3—Spring Hill at Baton Rouge; October 10—South Carolina at Baton Rouge; October 17—Mississippi A. & M. at Baton Rouge; October 24—Arkansas at Shreveport; October 31—Sewanee at Baton Rouge; November 7—Army at West Point; November 14—Mississippi at Jackson, Miss.; November 28—Tulane at New Orleans.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Cotton opened very steady today at an advance of 16 to 22 points on a continuation of the recent buying movement.

Trading was stimulated by the strength of the markets abroad, the large Liverpool spot sales and the presence of foreign buying orders in the local market.

There appeared to be enough realizing and southern selling to supply buyers around 6.85 for December or about 22 to 25 points above yesterday's closing quotations and prices at the end of the first half hour showed reactions of 10 or 12 points from the best.

Liverpool cables attributed the advance there to heavy general buying and extensive short covering on the weakness in exchange and reported a large turnover in cotton cloths and yarns. Spot sales in the English market today amounted to 45,000 bales of all kinds, including 18,000 bales of American. Egyptian cotton futures in Alexandria were reported at 154 to 245 points higher.

The early demand having been supplied by realizing and southern selling, the volume of business tapered off somewhat and prices sagged off from the best under further realizing. December reacted to 6.72 or within 10 points of yesterday's closing quotations with the market at net advances of 13 to 14 points on the more active positions.

Futures closed easy, 18 to 21 points lower; spot quiet; middling 6.35.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Stock market setbacks turned grain prices downward in the late dealings today.

Official announcement by Secretary Hyde that the Department of Agriculture was investigating possible economic effects of legalization of beer had no apparent market influence.

Deliveries on September corn contracts were again heavy, 596,000 bushels, but much smaller than was the case yesterday and the day previous.

Wheat closed nervous, 1-2-7-8 cents lower, corn 3-8-7-8 down, oats 1-4-3-4 off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to 27 cents again.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Sept. 24.—(AP)—This was a day of sober second thought on Wall Street.

Security prices were revised downward sharply, after yesterday's violent upswing which reflected the first violent burst of enthusiasm over the lifting of some of Wall Street's more oppressive worries.

Bonds continued to advance for a time, but share prices started to slip right after the opening, gathering momentum on the downward grade. Most of yesterday's advance was lost by midday, and by that time, bonds also were in reverse.

Rails fell almost as rapidly as they soared yesterday.

Among wider losses, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and North American lost 4 to 6. Similar losses appeared in U. S. Steel, Eastman, and Allied Chemical. Losses of 2 or more were numerous.

While the British crisis had been the most unsettling element of uncertainty hanging over the market possible repercussions in other countries began to have an unsettling influence today.

In the meantime, the added responsibilities upon New York as the world's chief money center were reflected in an abrupt stiffening of the money market, and widespread expectations that the New York Federal Reserve Bank will increase its rediscount rate from the extremely low level of 1-1/2 per cent, possibly to 2 per cent.

The rate for bankers acceptances, which pushed up 1-8 of one per cent yesterday gained another 1-4 of one per cent today.

The tightening of the money market brought heavy selling into the U. S. Government securities in the bond market, which have recently been sold at record low yields.

Of course, the reaction in stocks reflected to some degree profit tak-

URGES HALT TO CHINESE-JAP FIGHTING

American Government Lends Support to Demands of the League of Nations

Washington, Sept. 14.—(AP)—The weight of the American government has been thrown against further hostilities in Manchuria. Secretary Stimson not only has urged a cessation of fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops, but has asked withdrawal "from the present situation of danger."

This action of the government, presumably through the diplomatic representatives in Washington of the disputing nations, was made known in a note to the League of Nations expressing sympathy with its stand on the Manchurian situation.

The League, in a resolution, had called upon Japan to halt the advance of troops into the disputed territory. Asked that the United States take a similar position.

Replying yesterday to the resolution, the American secretary of state assured the League of this government's "wholehearted sympathy."

"I have already urged cessation of hostilities and withdrawal from the present situation of danger," he said, "and will continue earnestly to work for the restoration of peace."

The State Department has followed, closely developments in Manchuria since the outbreak of hostilities last week. While feeling that both the Kellogg-Briand pact to renounce war and the nine-power treaty of 1922 regarding principles and policies concerning China bear on the situation, it has not sought to invoke either.

How it would respond to a presidential recommendation is a matter of debate, although under normal conditions, the majority is conceded to be heavily against modification.

Whatever action the American Legion may take at its Detroit convention certainly will get the serious attention of the administration and the Congressional forces of both parties. The importance attached here to agitation on the bonus has far from obliterated the attention given also to prohibition.

An eminent scientist writes the head chemist in our Research Department:

"Chesterfield Cigarettes are just as pure as the water you drink"

THE WATER YOU DRINK is tested from time to time by expert chemists to make sure that it is free from all injurious substances—that it is pure.

So it is in the manufacture of CHESTERFIELD cigarettes. Expert chemists test all the materials that are used in any way in CHESTERFIELD'S manufacture, to make sure that everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is just right.

THE LEAF TOBACCO IS PURE. Long steel ovens—drying machines of the most modern type—scientifically "dry" and clean and purify the natural tobacco leaves by exact high-temperature treatment.

Then the shreds of cut tobacco, as you see them in your CHESTERFIELD, are again heated, cleaned and purified. From these pure tobaccos the cigarettes are made, and only the purest paper—the best that can be made—is used for CHESTERFIELD.

Cigarettes used to be made in an old-fashioned way, by hand. Now, no hand but yours touches CHESTERFIELD—another purity safeguard.

CHESTERFIELDS are made and packed in clean, sanitary factories where even the air is changed every four and one-half minutes—purity again.

ALL THIS CARE is taken to give you CHESTERFIELDS as nearly perfect as cigarettes can be made. Delivered in a moisture-proof, sealed package, they reach you just as good, just as pure as when they leave the factory. Good... they've got to be good—they're just as pure as the water you drink!
