

LADY with a PAST

By Harriet Henry

SYNOPSIS: Long struggle to learn the methods of social success convinces Venice Muir that she can gain popularity. Venice has copper-colored hair, a lovely Rosette face, and tall, slim grace. But her eyes reveal her unsureness of herself, and her mouth is immature and wistful. Venice has the additional asset of a mother who has won a firm place in New York society. Mrs. Muir tells Venice that plenty of friends and plenty of invitations form the essence of life, and that she must learn to be attractive. Venice is more interested in books than flirtation, and considers trying to write. At the Goadby's party, Venice sees once more she has neither lightness nor appeal, and the knowledge makes her nervous and dull. Lola Goadby, one of Venice's two real friends, comes to lunch the day after the party. Venice confesses her realization of her lack of success. "What makes one popular?" she asks Lola. There are various types of popularity, Lola tells her. "For instance?" Venice asks.

CUP CUSTARD LIFE
"Girls who are popular because they're naughty," Lola said. "They get invitations for everything except matrimony unless some one comes along who doesn't believe they are what they are. We would not want that brand. Girls who are popular because they're such very good company. No, think I'm one of them. You couldn't be that type, Venice. You're naturally grave and self-conscious. You couldn't let yourself be clubbiness. It you know what I mean."

"You are astute, Lola. I couldn't spill the clubbiness by watching all the time what the others were thinking about me. I can't help it. Isn't it queer? When I know myself what's wrong! The way I'm made I guess. After all, you can't get away from the way you're made. Go on. What other types?"

"The ones that have brains. That is your case. The bright ones. You can't be heavy about it and you have to be quick."

"There you are," sighed Venice. "I can't be quick. What other types?"

"I don't know. Sex appeal, I suppose. That's got to be born in you, I think. You can't either manufacture or cultivate it. If you do it's something horrid and obvious. You know, a vampire." Venice brooded.

WOMEN BRING PEACE PLEA TO PRESIDENT

"When you get right down to it," she finally said, as though thinking out loud, "popularity is a mixture for which the exact recipe has never been discovered. You can guess at the ingredients but you don't know the proportions."

"Pshaw! Good girl. Let's let the discussion rest on that brilliant note. You always do tax my feeble intellect sooner or later. But, Venice, dear, there really isn't any other game for girls except the society whirling. Don't fool yourself. Courses and jobs and charities are only balms for the unpopular."

Venice dully refused custard. Like her own life, cup custard. Uncompromising substitute for a richer desert.

The approach of the Yale-Princeton game, the autumn awakening of winter festivities, lent to Venice in the ensuing weeks a deepening depression and yearning for what she did not seem able to achieve. She moved in a meaningless eddy in which she was not able to catch at a single stabilizing plank. When she tried to withdraw her mother pushed her into the eddy again. One party after another saw her steal home unaccompanied at midnight. Cinderella parodied.

The one bright spot that lent her a feeling of warmth was her visit to Nolly Spalding. These visits were periodic, every three weeks or so. The Spaldings had originally come from Baltimore. Financial reverse had forced them to New York in the hope that Mr. Spalding would secure a better position. He never did. They sank into genteel poverty, living in a small apartment in West Ninety-sixth Street, slipping quietly and uncomplainingly from the ken of the society to which they rightfully belonged. Mrs. Spalding and Mrs. Muir had gone to boarding school together and a deep affection existed between them, three years older than Venice. Ill Nolly Spalding was twenty-six, health and infirmity made her seem much younger. She was very lame, dragging one under-developed little leg about with her in resigned and cheery indifference. The excitement in her life was Venice's visits and the accounts of her gaiety. The two girls were as fond of each other as their mothers were before them.

It was the year of Venice's debut that the game had started. Venice always thought of it like that—Nolly's game. Nolly had thoroughly expected and believed that her darling Venice was going to make a tremendous social success. It was at first purely the desire not to disappoint her that had caused Venice to brag of social triumphs which never existed. Later it became a habit that eased her own longing. She would lose herself in the tales of her own manufacture until she momentarily believed in them herself.

On this particular afternoon the two girls sat close to the gas gas, a bleak November rain tapping cheerlessly against the window pane and mocking the emptiness of their confidences. Nolly made herself comfortable on a cushion on the floor, the pathetic leg beneath her, her dark, wizened little face painted pink by the flames. It was a bright, eager face, elfin in its sharp, puckish contours and holding nothing of pathos. Oddly enough, Venice's expression was the graver, more wistful of the two. The firelight bringing out the copper of her hair accentuated the gravity of her grey eyes, the fragile whiteness of her skin, the sad, childlike droop to her small mouth. She was on the floor, too, hugging her up-drawn knees, her back against a chair.

"Tell me about Lola's party," Nolly demanded eagerly.

"Oh, lovely. Shaded lights and flowers and Leo Reisman's orchestra. They play at the Central Park Casino, you know."

"Did you get any new beaux?"

"Three."

"Oh, Venice, how exciting. What did they look like and what did they say to you?"

"One was tall and slim and dark; one fat; one a brilliant young-batonist. The dark one said I was beautiful, and the fat one said I was the most vivacious girl he'd ever met, and the batonist thought I had more than the average brains."

"How lovely. And I suppose you couldn't get around the room more than once without some one breaking in on you."

"Just about." Color, deeper than the firelight's painting, was creeping into Venice's cheeks. She saw herself this much sought after girl. She actually was having a better time now than at Lola's party, any party. She heard compliments in her ear, felt a touch on her arm. Another partner. Her eyes lost their limpidity, became bright and happy. She gave a little start at the sound of Nolly's urgent voice.

Party Wedding at the Vines House

The Vines House was the scene of a pretty wedding Thursday afternoon at four-thirty o'clock, when Miss Irena Godwin became the bride of Sherwood Holleman.

The draw-room where the ceremony was performed, was appropriately decorated with ferns and fall flowers.

Just before the entrance of the bride and groom, Miss Ona Shindler, accompanied by Miss Carolyn and Agnes Fullinove as they sweetly sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told" by Stults; and "I Love You Truly" by Bond.

As Miss Shindler played Lohengrin's Wedding March the bride and groom met at the foot of the stairs and entered the drawing room and stood before an improvised altar.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March was used as a recessional. The bride wore a becoming brown going-away suit with accompanying accessories, and a shawl-dette of sweetheart roses.

Immediately after the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Holleman left amid a shower of rice and congratulations for a northern trip.

The bride is the pretty and attractive daughter of Mr. S. T. Godwin of Bailey. During her residence here for the last few years, she has made a number of warm friends.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. R. S. McGeachey gave a most interesting report of the national convention just held in Detroit.

Mrs. McGeachey attended as national committeewoman from this state. She outlined each day of the convention and made her report most vivid. She complimented the new North Carolina national commander, Henry L. Stevens, and told how gracefully and overwhelmingly he took the convention.

After adjournment, the hostesses served refreshments and a pleasant hour was spent over the tea cups.

15TH DISTRICT N. C. FEDERATION MEETS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 14.—Stirring messages were brought to the women of the 15th Federated Club District meeting here yesterday at the Parish house by Mrs. J. M. Hobgood, of Farmville, president of the State Federation; Mrs. George Marshall, of Mount Airy, second vice-president; and Mrs. D. M. Clark of Greenville, District president. Each speaker stressed the importance of the home and the giving of self through service.

Mrs. Clark, District president, presided, giving the program announcements in a most attractive manner. In speaking she confined her remarks to the needs and interests of the 15th district.

Rev. Stephen Gardner pronounced the invocation, following which Mrs. H. W. Carter, president of the local Woman's Club, extended greetings to the visitors which was graciously responded to by Miss Lola Speller, of Williamston.

After the minutes, which were read by the district secretary, and a lovely chorus represented by the MacDowell Music Club, Mrs. J. M.

Hobgood brought the principal message to the approximately 250 women attending the meeting.

During the course of her remarks Mrs. Hobgood touched on each phase of club work as outlined by State Federation committees which includes such objects as the home, politics, legislation, Safety First Councils, the beautifying of public highways, Sally Southall Cotton loan fund, disarmament, unemployment and every activity which is carried on in the several departments established in connection with all women's clubs.

"I cannot understand why honesty seems to stop at city limits," said Mrs. Hobgood in speaking of the destruction caused by tourists in rural sections. "What do you suppose we would think of a farmer who would look his Berkshire sight-seeing through the living rooms of a home in a community? Yet an autoist will carelessly set fire to grass causing untold damage to the farmer's property or practically take possession of his field."

Mrs. Hobgood pointed to the many signs along the North Carolina highway as shields that shut out the lovely views and urged the women to start a movement to rid the highways of bill boards.

She told of the recent conference held with Governor Gardner regarding the unemployment situation, which she attended, and the serious situations that would arise during the winter months as a result of this fact, and urged members of all women's clubs to cooperate in every way possible to relieve the situation.

The MacDowell Music Club rendered a chorus at the conclusion of Mrs. Hobgood's address, followed by which Mrs. George Marshall, Mount Airy, second vice-president, of the Federated Clubs of North Carolina, gave a splendid talk relative to acquiring more federated clubs in a district. She also gave many helpful suggestions as to the filling out of district reports.

Mrs. Clark, district president, as the most wide-awake district president serving in North Carolina during last year, having federated more clubs in her particular district than any of the other district presidents in the state.

Miss Frieda Heller, of the State Library Commission, also attended the meeting and made a very informing talk during the afternoon session, explaining the use of the free county library, using a miniature truck to demonstrate the manner in which the library is maintained.

District business matters were discussed and disposed of during both morning and afternoon sessions and reports were heard, during the course of the meeting, from the federated clubs included in the district.

During the noon recess hour a delicious two-course luncheon was served the visitors.

During the course of her remarks Mrs. Hobgood touched on each phase of club work as outlined by State Federation committees which includes such objects as the home, politics, legislation, Safety First Councils, the beautifying of public highways, Sally Southall Cotton loan fund, disarmament, unemployment and every activity which is carried on in the several departments established in connection with all women's clubs.

"I cannot understand why honesty seems to stop at city limits," said Mrs. Hobgood in speaking of the destruction caused by tourists in rural sections. "What do you suppose we would think of a farmer who would look his Berkshire sight-seeing through the living rooms of a home in a community? Yet an autoist will carelessly set fire to grass causing untold damage to the farmer's property or practically take possession of his field."

Mrs. Hobgood pointed to the many signs along the North Carolina highway as shields that shut out the lovely views and urged the women to start a movement to rid the highways of bill boards.

She told of the recent conference held with Governor Gardner regarding the unemployment situation, which she attended, and the serious situations that would arise during the winter months as a result of this fact, and urged members of all women's clubs to cooperate in every way possible to relieve the situation.

The MacDowell Music Club rendered a chorus at the conclusion of Mrs. Hobgood's address, followed by which Mrs. George Marshall, Mount Airy, second vice-president, of the Federated Clubs of North Carolina, gave a splendid talk relative to acquiring more federated clubs in a district. She also gave many helpful suggestions as to the filling out of district reports.

Mrs. Clark, district president, as the most wide-awake district president serving in North Carolina during last year, having federated more clubs in her particular district than any of the other district presidents in the state.

Miss Frieda Heller, of the State Library Commission, also attended the meeting and made a very informing talk during the afternoon session, explaining the use of the free county library, using a miniature truck to demonstrate the manner in which the library is maintained.

District business matters were discussed and disposed of during both morning and afternoon sessions and reports were heard, during the course of the meeting, from the federated clubs included in the district.

ABOUT TOWN

Thousands of people went to Yorktown, Va., today to celebrate the victory of American forces over British troops during the Revolutionary war.

The celebration will be staged on ground hallowed by the sacrifices of American forefathers in the last supreme battle for independence. The surrender of Lord Cornwallis, commander of the British forces, was the culmination of long years of bloody conflict in which the American cause was given great impetus by aid of France.

The heroism of French soldiers in that conflict found its counterpart in the great World War when American soldiers crossed the sea to show their appreciation of the heroism of French soldiers in the Revolution.

The Yorktown celebration should forever keep alive our interest in the cause for which that great conflict was fought and inspire our children and our children's children to perpetuate the deeds of their illustrious forefathers.

Insistent in its demand for legal sale of beer, the American Federation of Labor yesterday renewed its plea in behalf of the beverage.

Representing thousands of working men throughout the nation, it is impossible to foresee the outcome of the Federation's demand, yet it is doubtful if its object will be achieved.

It would be necessary to change the Constitution of the United States to make possible the demand of the Federation, and were that done the way would be opened to appeals for complete renunciation of the prohibition amendment.

There is an element that will fight just as insistently against the proposal as the Federation is fighting for it but the real issue will not be forgotten in the scuffle.

However, prohibition is under fire, and if its proponents would save it from the onslaughts of its adversaries they will be called upon to wage even a more militant campaign in its behalf in coming years than they ever waged before.

Don't forget your bundle for the poor.

Boy Scouts, two dozen of them, will make a round of the business and residence sections tomorrow in observance of "Charity Bundle Day," a statewide movement having as its purpose the providing of clothing for the poor.

With hundreds of unemployed people of the county suffering from lack of both clothing and food, it is incumbent upon the thinking people to give freely as they can to the cause.

The Scouts have dedicated the entire day to the task of collecting clothing, and persons having anything to give are urged to leave the bundles in a conspicuous place so that the Scouts may find them without delay.

The winter is going to be filled with untold hardships for the poor despite the best that can be done through relief movements and it is to be hoped everybody will do his part toward amelioration of human suffering.

Children's Day Draws Interest At State Fair

Raleigh, Oct. 16. — (AP) — The North Carolina State Fair today was devoted to education and to the school children of the state. Schools throughout this section held no classes in order that the pupils might have opportunity to see the exhibits.

They were expected to swell the record-breaking attendance at the fair this year, which reached its climax yesterday with 25,000 coming for the fruit exhibits, dog show and Wake Forest-N. C. football game.

The State Department of Agriculture, which has supervision of the fair, today pronounced it a decided success. The annual exhibition was placed under the department by the last legislature in an effort to overcome some of the troubles which had beset the fair management in recent years.

TAKE STEPS TO AID JOBLESS

1.—Maintenance of the United States wage standard to keep up purchasing power.

2.—Shorter working hours, on the ground that industry would share the benefits of the machine age with labor.

3.—Prohibition of child labor.

4.—National planning to balance production and consumption.

5.—Employers to take on more workers, the idea being that industrial leaders should "care for their men as a father cares for his children."

6.—Creation of work through public building and construction, on the theory that the nation is obligated to look to the welfare of all its citizens, although the convention voted down emphatically the unemployment insurance or "dole" system.

7.—Strengthening of employment agencies, equitable distribution of all work, more even distribution of wealth through taxation in the higher brackets and stimulation of industry by resumption of brewing of mild beer.

Besides these salient points, the federation approved a detailed system for relief, divided into temporary, and permanent aid. Relief through public appropriations and private funds was the outstanding suggestion for immediate aid.

All federation officers were re-elected and Cincinnati was selected for the 1932 convention.

These two, who have been the government's most bitter enemies since it took office, combined forces after the recent overturn in the Bruening cabinet and recently by a joint meeting in Harzburg served notice of their intention to turn the chancellor out of office if they could.

When the Reichstag convened this morning the government was sure of 243 votes and thought it could pick up enough from the smaller parties to give it a margin of at least one ballot.

Then the economic party announced that it would swing its support to the chancellor.

changed between trucks and water carriers over railroad water front terminals together with traffic interchanged between river or bay carriers and established water carriers over the terminals.

At Savannah, Ga., where large quantities of naval stores products are moved to port by trucks, a meeting of naval stores interests was called today to discuss the new charge.

The freight department of the Central of Georgia Railroad said the tariff was a purely local charge applying to all lines with port terminals. On this basis it was said in railroad circles permission was not required from the Interstate Commerce commission or the Georgia public service commission.

Traffic executives said the charge was designed to give the railroads compensation for the use of their terminals at various ports by the truck operators.

Ports at which the charges apply include: Beaufort, N. C.; Charleston, S. C.; Columbia, N. C.; Edenton, N. C.; Elizabeth City, N. C.; Fort Myers, Fla.; Georgetown, S. C.; Hertford, N. C.; Morehead City, N. C.; New Bern, N. C.; Norfolk, Va.; North Charleston, S. C.; Plymouth, N. C.; Port Royal, S. C.; Washington, N. C.; and Wilmington, N. C.

as 26,389,310 for $2,403,320.22 at an average of $9.10 per hundred pounds.

The price situation continued firm during Thursday's sales and good quality of tobacco sold as high as $64.00 per hundred pounds.

There was over a million pounds of leaf on the various warehouse floors today, but sales were completed during the mid-afternoon.

The highest poundage record in history was set by the market Monday when 2,500,000 pounds of golden leaf was offered for sale. The market was blocked but 1,500,000 pounds was disposed of during the day and the block was cleared up the following day. It was the fourth time the market had been blocked during the season, but the former congestion was mild compared with the record-smashing offerings the first of the week.

The highest price recorded on the market today was $70 per hundred pounds and that was paid by E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Co.

KELLOGG PACT INVOLVED IN MANCHURIA

son considers that the League Council provides the same machinery for consultation as is provided under the nine-power Pacific treaty.

At first hesitant to accept the League's invitation to sit with it because of Japan's failure to consent, the State Department moved gradually toward its decision to participate.

China, through its Washington Legation, announced its willingness for the United States to join in any League action.

Following reports that Japan had flatly rebuffed American offers to help preserve the peace through the Geneva organization, Secretary Stimson conferred at length with Ambassador DeBuchi. The latter later recommended to Tokyo that it give consent to this government's participation in any League action.

While there has been no official comment on the subject, it has been made clear informally at the State Department that the United States would not associate itself with the application of any League sanctions. These include subjection of nations breaking a pledge against war under the League covenant to boycott, blockade and in the event of failure to pacific measures, to active military pressure.

THREE MEN BURNED IN GASOLINE FIRE

Goldsboro, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Three men were burned, one possibly fatally, in a gasoline fire at a grist mill, south of here today.

Leslie Hood, 35, of Grantham township, is in a critical condition. His hair was singed off and he is burned about the back, face, neck and hands.

Lloyd Hinson, 45, and his son, Bob, 17, were less seriously burned. Bob Hinson was on top of a crude oil engine used to operate the mill when the motor backfired, igniting a can of gasoline in his hand.

SOUTH WILL SEE THRILLING GRID GAMES

Atlanta, Oct. 16. — (AP) — The color and thrill usually associated with late season football games set the south awash today as Dixie's football teams whirled into place for tomorrow's battles.

The championship hopes of the "Big Five" were centered on Saturday's games. Tennessee against Alabama, Vanderbilt against Tulane, and Georgia against North Carolina will feature the contests.

Probably next in interest to the fortunes of the "Big Five" comes the annual renewal of the Auburn-Georgia Tech classic here.

Other games involving conference teams tomorrow include Kentucky and Maryland at College Park, Md.; V. P. I. and William and Mary at Richmond; Washington and Lee and West Virginia at Charleston, West Va.; Mississippi A. and M. and L. S. U. at Baton Rouge, La.; Sewanee and Chattanooga at Chattanooga; Duke and Davidson at Davidson.

Mercer, leading contender for the S. I. A. A. championship, goes outside its territory tonight to take on John Carroll University at Cleveland, Ohio. Oglethorpe and Loyola of the south will play tonight at New Orleans in their annual game. Miami and Georgia A. and M. play at Miami in another night game.

Clemson, of the Southern Conference, engages the Citadel at Florence, S. C. in the annual battle between the two schools this afternoon.

Birmingham Southern and Mississippi College, two S. I. A. A. teams, play at Jackson, Miss. Louisiana Normal and Louisiana College were billed at Natchitoches, La., and Erskine and Newberry at Due West, S. C.

Virginia Military Academy defeated Virginia 18 to 3 at University, Va., yesterday when the university's new $300,000 athletic plant was dedicated. Wake Forest beat North Carolina State 6 to 0 at Raleigh in the annual fair week football game.

SPORTS SLANTS

"The penalty of decency," as Penn State college's president, Dr. Ralph D. Hetzel, expressed it, must be paid in the reformation of athletic systems. The day after he said this, Penn State paid the first installment by dropping its opening football game to so inconspicuous an opponent as Waynesburg.

Penn State, where Killinger, Way and others galloped to football fame a decade ago, has abolished subsidized athletics, high-powered coach and high salaries, training camps and other signs of a commercialized age in college sport.

"Penn State," proclaims its president, "took the lead in the east in abolishing all subsidies to students, granted for athletic skill. It has been followed within a year by the University of Pennsylvania, Columbia university and others in this very vital forward step."

"We are now in a period of transition. We shall pay in a measure the penalty of decency and progress but ultimately we shall receive our reward. I think there is no question but what this movement will, in the near future, become universal in America."

"Pending that time, it is entirely possible that we shall complete with some of our old rivals at a disadvantage. It is the policy, however, that as rapidly as is possible, we shall turn to competitors who are willing to subscribe to the same measure of fair play and good sportsmanship as we have established."

In other words they are hoping for the best at Penn State. Meanwhile, nothing will be done to discourage the gate receipts.

How It Grew
President Hetzel, in frank language, traces the development of intercollegiate sport from haphazard days to high-pressure enterprise.

"Intercollegiate athletics at Penn State," he declared, "as was the case in the great majority of colleges and universities of the country, grew up as an orphan child. College faculties and trustees did not see fit to concern themselves seriously with it, and so it was farmed out, nursed in its infancy by the students and handled over in its troublesome maturity largely to the alumni."

"In fact, this orphan took on such proportions and such vigor that it ceased to be controlled either by students or alumni and became the victim of circumstances."

"Athletic contests became so spectacular that they quickly and in alarming measure attracted the attention of the public. Gate receipts grew and gate receipts at institutions whose teams won the greater number of games exceeded the gate receipts of other institutions."

"This seemed to make it desirable that there should be set up at each institution every possible facility designed to increase the

CARDS SCORE ON THRILLER IN SERIES FINAL

This Associated Press telephoto shows a thrilling bit of action in the final world series game when the Cardinals beat the A's 4-2, to win the championship. George Watkins, Cardinals' right fielder, slides home inches ahead of the ball, which can be seen just entering Cochrane's mitt. Watkins scored after Cochrane dropped a third strike on Orsatti and had to throw to first to retire him.

STATE TITLE UP TO U. N. C. AND DURHAM

Charlotte, Oct. 16. — (AP) — With Duke and North Carolina the only Big Five teams with clean slates, fans today awaited tomorrow's games to give them an inkling of which team appears to have the best chance of winning the state title.

The 6 to 0 licking N. C. State took at the hands of Wake Forest yesterday put the Wolfpack with Davidson and Davidson in the group of teams defeated within the state.

North Carolina's game at Chapel Hill with Georgia topped the state contests, although the Duke-Davidson game may have considerable bearing on the Big Five championship.

The Tar Heels will present a changed lineup against Georgia, a revamping have been forced by the suspension of Johnny Branch and Roy McDade.

Chandler, veteran fullback, has been given Branch's job at quarterback. Croom has replaced Phipps at left half. Croom got the call largely because of his punting ability.

The North Carolina line that held Vanderbilt to two touchdowns and Florida scoreless remains intact. McDade, a tackle, has been used as a substitute this season although he played regularly last year.

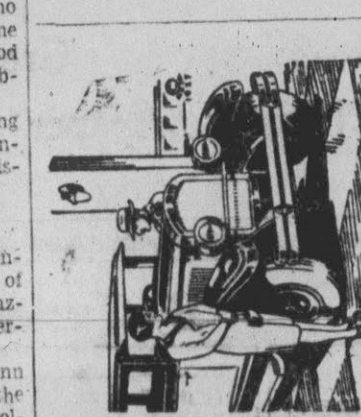

The Georgia team arrived in Durham today in charge of Rex Enright, assistant coach, a former Tar Heel mentor. Coach Harry Mehre will join the team tonight. Enright announced Georgia's first team would probably start the game, although the Bulldogs opened with their second, stringers against Yale.

Davidson has also made changes in preparation for Duke's invasion on the Wildcats' homecoming day. Coach Monk Younger announced Fred Ogden would replace Mathis at guard and Bill Flinn, a half-pint halfback, would start in place of Bruce Peabody. Bob Johnston will remain at right end instead of Steve Brown, star Cat flankman.

Flinn won his place on the varsity by his good work of the last week. Mathis may break into the game despite his injuries and the chances of Brown getting to play are also good.

MANY GRID CONTESTS SET FOR THE POOR

New York, Oct. 16. — (AP) — Football's proposed helping hand to the unemployed has developed into a nation-wide movement, today with volunteers from virtually every section of the country.

In the South, Tennessee's Volunteers have lived up to their name by indicating their willingness to play for the fund. Mississippi A. and M. also announced it would be available and others probably will follow.

The program developed most rapidly in the East where three games or tournaments already have been definitely booked and others are in the making. Army and Navy will play in the Yankee Stadium here December 1 for charity's sake; Yale, Brown, Dartmouth and Holy Cross will compete in an elimination tournament at New Haven December 5, while Princeton, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell will be competitors in a similar tournament in the Yankee Stadium December 9.

That, for the time being, is the eastern program but a game between Providence and Rhode Island is considered a virtual certainty and a number of schools, notably Rutgers and Davis and Elkins have made known their willingness to participate. Williams, although, opposed to post-season games, was expected to devote a part of the proceeds of a major game to the unemployment relief fund.

The Big Ten conference still has the subject under consideration although that powerful group already has amended its by-laws to permit extension of the season from November 21 to November 28 for intra-conference games for charity.

WELTERWEIGHT DUEL SET FOR NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 16. — (AP) — A welterweight duel between Billy Townsend, Vancouver welterweight, and Paulie Walker, rugged Trenton, N. J., battler, tops Madison Square Garden's weekly boxing card tonight.

Originally Walker was to have met Benny Leonard but Benny was banned from the Garden by the New York State Athletic commission after his unsatisfactory fight with Pal Silvers.

URGES FIGHT ON WHISKEY

Bishop Cannon Says More Carrie Nations Needed to Smash Speakeasies

Atlanta, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., says thousands of "Carrie Nations" should rise and smash speakeasies in New York and other cities where state officers have told local officers they were not obligated to enforce the prohibition laws.

Speaking at a prohibition mass meeting here last night, the Bishop said "it cannot be ignored that the Roman Catholic church from the Pope down through the hierarchy is 90 per cent opposed to the prohibition law."

He said "the wets, Roman Catholics, and the stand-pat regular Democrats have been trying to destroy me" in the years since the 1928 presidential campaign. He made the charge a "Roman Catholic district attorney" directed the probe of his anti-Smith campaign affairs in Virginia. "I expect to be indicted," he said. "That's the way they expect to destroy my influence."

The talk of Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, and others regarding state's rights on the liquor issue Bishop Cannon characterized as mere camouflage. "They want friends of the liquor traffic before the prohibition amendment and are friends of the liquor traffic now," he said.

Bishop Cannon said he was opposed to the resolution passed by the American Federation of Labor at its Vancouver convention favoring legalizing of beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content.

INDICT BISHOP CANNON

der Federal law.

Bishop Cannon has contended that all his activities were in Virginia while the corrupt practices act defines "political committee" as group working in two or more states.

He contended also that provisions of the corrupt practices act attempting to prescribe regulations for the election of presidential electors are unconstitutional, alleging them to be state appointments and under state and not Federal regulation.

The grand jury reported that Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs "unlawfully and feloniously did conspire, combine, confederate and agree together, and with divers other persons unknown, to commit divers, to wit, four, offenses against the United States, that is to say, the four willfully committed offenses on the part of said Ada L. Burroughs, as treasurer of said political committee."

No date has been fixed for the trial.

Conviction of willfully violating the Federal corrupt practices act carried calls for the following penalty:

"Shall be fined not more than $10,000 and imprisoned not more than two years."

Immediately after the indictment was returned, District Attorney L. A. Rorer issued the following statement:

"Inasmuch as the grand jury has now concluded its investigation in the case of United States vs. Cannon and Burroughs, I deem it proper to state that every request made upon us during the last few days concerning his desire to appear before the grand jury and to have certain other witnesses appear before that body, was promptly transmitted by me to the grand jury and that body was advised it was within its province to grant the request if it so desired."

The clergyman in a public statement had announced he three times offered to testify before the grand jury but that Rorer had not acknowledged his requests. During the grand jury deliberations Rorer declined to answer these statements.

The indictments recited the law requiring reports of campaign contributions at certain dates. Miss Burroughs was indicted separately for failure to report the Jameson contributions on each of these dates.

Bishop Cannon was indicted on each count with her on the ground that he "unlawfully did willfully aid, abet, counsel, command, induce and procure, and advise, incite, and connive at the commission" of the offenses.

Among the overt acts in the "conspiracy" to violate the law, the jurors called attention to a telegram sent by Bishop Cannon to Jameson on February 12, 1929 some time after the election.

Up to that time the Bishop had made no reports of the Jameson contributions, but Jameson had just informed a Senate committee of his donations to Cannon as head of the anti-Smith Democrats. Cannon's telegram to Jameson on that date said:

"Tried talk long distance New York, but office closed Lincoln's birthday. After careful examination records, think statement should be paid headquarters committee anti-Smith Democrats $17,300, paid Virginia committee anti-Smith Democrats $48,000, making total $65,300. This will correspond exactly with our official reports. Call Lincoln 3946 Washington anytime after 8:30 until midnight tonight, when leaving for New York. Sailing Thursday."

Subsequently, but after the time limit allowed by the law, Miss Burroughs made a report to the clerk of the House detailing the $17,300

Atlanta, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., was attending an executive meeting of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, here today when news of his indictment reached Atlanta.

Indicted at the conference, Cannon brought the response that "Bishop Cannon will not be disturbed. He will answer any inquiries until the meeting is over."

Speaking at a prohibition mass meeting here last night, the Bishop said he expected to be indicted because of the Roman Catholic district attorney at Washington," he said. "He would not permit me to appear before the grand jury and called only one of four witnesses I suggested. They expect to muzzle me and hope to destroy my influence that way."

Market Report

Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 3 to 4 points on overnight selling orders from the south, combined with Liverpool selling. Prices eased off to 6.08 for December or about 4 to 5 points net lower during the first few minutes of trading.

There was also scattering liquidation, but offerings were absorbed by trade buying at the decline, and there was a renewal of the demand for December believed to be for far eastern account. This was sufficient to steady prices and cause rallies of a few points; with December selling up from 6.08 to 6.17 and March from 6.38 to 6.45 by the end of the first half hour or about net unchanged to 4 points higher.

Liverpool cables attributed steadiness there to trade buying and price fixing and reported a fair cloth business with Egypt and South America.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Security markets generally views the increased reserve rate as constructive, and in the main, prices crept higher in quiet trading today.

Stocks pushed slowly upward, under the leadership of the rails, after some hesitancy in the first half hour, and while the high grade low-yield bonds were naturally depressed by firming money rates, the higher-yield issues moved upward along with stocks.

Gains of 3 to 5 points were registered in such rail shares as New York Central, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, New Haven, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson and Santa Fe. In the Industrials gains of 2 to 4 appeared in U. S. Steel, American San Eastman, American Tobacco B. Coca Cola and others.

News that the Bruening government had been sustained by a vote of 294 to 270 in the German Reichstag was generally regarded in Wall Street as reassuring. Nevertheless, some international bankers feel that the possible unfavorable consequences of a Hitlerite government in Germany have been exaggerated.

The increase in the Federal Reserve Banks' discount rate to 3 1/2 per cent, after it had been jacked up to 2 1/2 from 1 1/2 only a week ago, was followed by firmer money rates generally. Call money rose to 2 1/2 per cent for the first time in nearly a year, and commercial paper rose to 3 3/4 per cent, against 2 1/2 to 2 3/4 yesterday.

The discount rate is still considerably below the average rate since the reserve system was founded in 1914. Save for the recent period of extremely low rates, the discount rate was gone below 4 percent only in the years 1924-28. Bankers explained that since the easy money policy had failed to stimulate business, and had been only partially successful in checking the flow of unwanted gold into this country, a return of more normal basis could scarcely be regarded as adverse.

While the loss of some $600,000,000 in monetary gold from this country since England went off the gold basis is the largest movement in any like period of time in history, prominent bankers point out that the Federal Reserve had followed the extremely prudent policy of letting a large portion of the vast influx of metal of recent years, lie idle in the vaults, rather than using it as a means of currency expansion.
