PENTECOSTAL CONFERENCE CLOSES HERE

Appointment of Ministers Featured Final Session Held Here Yesterday.

The twenty-first session of the North Carolina conference of the Pentecostal Holiness church met in the Greenville church last night, October 25, and continued until Monday at 3:30 in the afternoon.

On Friday night, Rev. J. H. King, of Franklin Springs, Ga., general superintendent of the Pentecostal Holiness church, preached a very impressive sermon to a large congregation. The business proceedings began Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The conference body was very peaceful in its deliberations during the day Saturday. The devotional services Saturday night was a means of great spiritual uplift. The preliminaries were conducted by the pastor of the local church. The singing was apparently inspired by the Holy Spirit. Many in the congregation rose from their seats, leaped and shouted for joy. The unity of the spirit was so pregnant the very atmosphere until it was pleasant indeed to be in that assembly. Rev. A. H. Butler delivered a very stirring message which was met with hearty sanctions and a volume of amen. At 9:30 Sunday morning W. B. Godwin, conference S. S. evangelist, conducted a service in the interest of S. S.

At 11 o'clock Sunday morning J. H. King, general superintendent, preached an inspiring message to an overflowed congregation. A singing class from the Falcon Orphanage rendered a program at three o'clock under the direction of J. A. Culbreth, superintendent. At six o'clock, James W. Butler, conference president of the young people's societies conducted a service in the interest of the young people's work.

At 7:15 a song and praise service was conducted by the pastor of the local church. Scores of men and women rose and testified to the definite experience they had received from God through faith in Jesus Christ. Rev. J. W. Berry of Whiteville preached Sunday evening at eight o'clock.

Business proceedings began again Monday morning at nine o'clock. Some of the main features of the proceedings were hearing reports from committees, election of officers, and making appointments for the next conference year.

Juggling of Huge Sums Is Involved In Proposed Revision Of War Debts

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—If from the conversations of Premier Laval of France, and President Hoover result revision of all war debt settlements, one of the most intricate financial structures in international history must be dismantled.

The juggling of billions of dollars by the world's statesmen to the satisfaction of more than half a dozen nations would be involved.

Chancellor Bruening has already been represented in Berlin as ready to open the reparations question for revision of the Young plan.

INJURED GRID STAR IS DEAD

Richard Sheridan Succumbs to a Broken Neck Suffered in the Army-Yale Game.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Back to West Point today came Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Jr., to find a last resting place with some of America's most distinguished soldiers.

The 21-year-old Army football star and honor student died in a New Haven hospital last yesterday of a broken neck suffered late in the Yale game Saturday.

Funeral services will be held in the Catholic chapel tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Interment will follow in the West Point military cemetery, where are buried General Winfield Scott, General George Custer, General Robert C. Anderson, who was in command of Fort Sumter in 1861, General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, and many another famous military figure of the past.

At the request of Sheridan's mother, services both at the chapel and cemetery will be private. The corps of cadets and officers of the post will attend.

In the general grief that was felt at the academy over Sheridan's death among cadets and officers alike, there was no disposition to talk of what course the Army would pursue in regard to the games remaining on its 1931 football schedule.

Twenty-two years ago the Army cancelled its schedule after the death in the Harvard game of 1909 of Cadet Ben Byrne but it was pointed out that the situation had changed greatly since that time.

Army then played its games at West Point and there was no such thing as gate receipts.

Widespread reaction, expected after the death of a player on so prominent a team especially in view of so much recent discussion and agitation about over-emphasis of the game, failed to materialize as expressions of regret poured in from various sources.

Yale and Harvard football officials and players hastened to express sympathy and the Notre Dame football squad requested that a special mass be said in the university chapel today.

Morrison Flays Bailey Attackers

Raleigh, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Those who would unseat Senator Josiah William Morrison, said his colleague, Cameron Morrison, are guilty of "one of the most insolent pieces of dirty politics ever practiced in this state."

The Charlotte senator's statement came last night at a testimonial dinner tendered Bailey by his "home folks."

Senator Morrison predicted the fight against Bailey would re-act against its sponsors.

Other speakers at the dinner were Governor Gardner, Willis Smith, speaker of the house; Dr. William Louis Poter, president emeritus of Wake Forest College and J. M. Broughton, Supreme court judge, congressmen, legislators and others attended the gathering.

SEES BETTER TIMES AHEAD

Boston Steel Man Says Business Barometer Will Soon Begin to Climb.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Oct. 27.—(AP)—The business barometer will soon begin to rise, C. N. Pitts, Boston, president of the American Institute of Steel Construction, told the opening session of the organization's annual convention here today.

"We have now passed through two years of tribulation and trial, and it seems now that there are signs that the business barometer has ceased to fall and that the time when it shall begin to rise is not far distant," Pitts said.

"It has been a period of distress and anxiety for all, but we would not be worthy of the high place we hold in this country's business world if we could not truthfully say 'our heads are bloody but unbowed.'"

In such times, Pitts said, trade associations must bend their efforts to solve the unemployment problem and take a greater part in sociological movements. "During the last two years organized cooperation has proved its value to the steel construction industry and has enabled it to tide itself over a most difficult period."

HEARING IN HIGH COURT

Representing the Senate that it Had Right to Reconsider Nomination of George O. Smith After He Had Been Confirmed and Sworn in, John W. Davis Demands that Smith Be Ousted; Pepper Defends the Rights of Smith.

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Before the Supreme court, a legal tug of war between the White House and the Senate went on today with the chairmanship of the Power Commission as a marker.

Representing the Senate in its contention that it had the right to reconsider the nomination of George O. Smith after he had been confirmed and sworn in, John W. Davis, the Democratic nominee for President in 1924, demanded that Smith be ousted.

George Wharton Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania, defended Smith's right to the post.

In a calm even tone, Davis outlined his argument. He said the Senate was admitted by both sides and that the decision involved a question of law.

Davis said the Senate rules empowered it to reconsider a nomination before two executive sessions had expired, even though the Senate had been formally notified of confirmation.

"The signing and delivery of a commission and the taking of an oath by the respondent," he said, "cannot fortify the position of the respondent or shield him from ouster by this court."

At the outset of the argument, a brief was given by Erwin N. Griswold, a Justice Department attorney, in behalf of himself, Attorney General Mitchell and Solicitor General Thatcher. It said the crucial fact in the case, "is that the Senate intended that notification of its consent should be forthwith sent to the President before the time for reconsideration expired."

"Once that fact is established (and it cannot be disputed) the consequences flowing from it are inevitable."

"The Senate did consent to the appointment. It intended to and did advise the President that it had consented. It consented to an immediate appointment and it intended that, if that consent was acted on and an appointment made, the possibility of reconsideration would be gone."

"It, therefore, gave full, unqualified, constitutional consent to the appointment which was made, and that is the end of the matter."

It could not, as the President said, "enrich upon executive functions by removal of a duly appointed executive officer under the guise of 'reconsideration of his nomination.'"

DON COSSACK RUSSIAN CHORUS FIRST ATTRACTION AT THE COLLEGE

The Don Cossack Russian Chorus, which will appear at East Carolina Teachers college November 17, has started on its triumphal pathway from the Atlantic to the Pacific in its twenty weeks tour of 100 concerts. Both Canada and the south are included in the tour.

They travel on Nansen passes, which means special passports must be made out for them with the phrase "en voyage" substituted for the name of the country, for they are practically "men without a country." These passes are issued by the League of Nations. This is the first large organization to visit this country on passes from the league.

These "Nansen passes" are issued to former residents of Russia who departed or were expelled from their country at the time of the revolution and have since pledged allegiance to no other government. The men in the chorus were formerly officers in the Imperial army of Russia. While in prison they formed the chorus under the leadership of Serg Jaroff, later working in factory or mines during the day, they continued their evening practice. They first sang the ritual in the Russian Embassy Church in Sofia, then their fame spread abroad and until now they are considered the greatest choral singers in the world.

MISS ROSE TALKS TO METHODIST WOMEN

Monday afternoon, in the first of a series of four talks on the subject "The Turn Toward Peace," Miss Laura Rose of E. C. T. C., talked to the women of Jarvis Memorial Church. Her topic for the afternoon was "Why War Must Be Abandoned." Miss Rose first discussed the cost of war in dollars and cents as it strikes at the present means of earning a livelihood. She told how war disrupts business relations for the majority of the world's people, so that if during war India did not drink tea, then India suffered from lack of tea buying, and because India did not buy cotton Great Britain suffered and finally the depression told on the cotton farmer in North Carolina. If the United States were allowed to spend the amount taken for only one week of the last war, every state in the Union could build 940 high schools at $100,000 each; 1,540 grade schools at $40,000 each; 1,540 churches at $100,000 each and 1,920 recreational centers at $35,000 each.

Speaking of the cost of war in human suffering and in the possibilities of war in the lives of the young men who were killed, Miss Rose said it was impossible to estimate such a total cost. The mental and physical anguish of the soldiers the tears of the home folks, the handicaps of children, born and reared under war conditions, the lowering of moral standards during and after wars, all could not be estimated in the cost of war. Concrete facts place the cost of living in millions in battle, ten million in result of war, and twenty million wounded and disabled. The total million killed in battle could roughly be compared to the population of the entire states of North and South Carolina, Virginia and Georgia. In discussing the cost of war, Miss Rose brought out the great loss in scientific advance, since the great scientists of the warring nations must be engaged in discovering means of destroying nations instead of building them up.

The lecture for the afternoon was concluded by painting a picture of future wars, which will be battles of air and space. Invisible airplanes controlled by radio, and capable of carrying enough poison gas to destroy a whole section of a country, are practically perfected. As yet, no defense has been discovered against such warfare. The greatest change in future warfare will be the shift from the fighting at the front line trenches to the centers of population and choicest farm lands, these centers being entirely wiped out by air raids and poisonous gases.

This afternoon Miss Rose spoke in "Means at Hand to Take the Place of War." It is hoped that all women of the city who are interested in the cause of peace will attend any or all of these lectures.

Will Present Title for Big Mountain Park

Washington, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Governor O. Max Gardner of North Carolina, and Henry K. Horton of Tennessee, will convene to Secretary Wilbur on Monday title to 170,000 acres of land for inclusion in the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

The trip of the two governors will be the second of this nature. On February 6, 1930, they presented deeds to 158,799 acres in the Great Smoky area.

With the lands to be transferred next Monday, the total in the hands of the government will be approximately 330,000 acres or only about 100,000 acres short of the total minimum acreage.

Included in the new deeds will be the new deed, the Champion Fibre Lumber Company tract, the largest single acquisition within the park area. It contains nearly 100,000 acres, virtually all covered with virgin timber.

Relatives Plan to Go to Aid of Condemned Man

Carson City, Nev., Oct. 27.—(AP)—Everett T. Mull, 50, Morganton, N. C., contractor who disappeared from his home there last April, is under sentence to die in the lethal gas chamber here the week of November 6 for killing Jack O'Neil, his partner in an alleged bootlegging business.

Prison authorities, to whom Mull is known as John Hall, said that while he seemed to be trying to shield his real identity, Mull readily admitted being a native of North Carolina and that he had five daughters from a previous marriage.

Last October he remarked and bought his bride, understood to have been the May Coffey referred to in North Carolina dispatches as disappearing at the same time he did, to Las Vegas, Nev.

The sentence of death was pronounced September 29. Mull and O'Brien were understood to have conspired over a difference of $680 in their accounts, and Mull convicted of putting his pistol to O'Brien's head while O'Brien was driving a car in which Mull rode on the rear seat.

ABOUT TOWN

It is dry in this section of the state and the menace of forest fire is more serious than it has been in months.

Devastating fires have already burned over thousands of dollars worth of timberlands in Onslow, Craven and Carteret counties during the last several days and the loss will probably reach staggering proportions before the blazes are finally curbed.

Forest fire wardens are keeping a vigilant lookout in all wooded areas at this time, but the best they can do will be of little avail without the co-operation of the hundreds of people who frequent the woods during this season of the year.

Hunters and fishermen should bear in mind the fact that lighted cigarettes and cigar stumps form the greatest menace to woodlands of any other thing to be imagined and unless they are thoroughly extinguished before being dropped in the forests it is impossible to estimate the total fire loss during the present dry season.

The loss in Pitt county last year was tremendous because of the careless handling of fire, but it is hoped the educational program put on by forest fire wardens sufficiently after the blazes was sufficiently impressive to cause the people to observe more care in the handling of fire this year, and thereby reduce the annual toll taken by the fire demon.

Although the situation is not alarming in the slightest sense of the word, members of the Pitt County Health Department were today making an effort to impress upon the people the need of rigid application of quarantine regulations following the reporting of fourteen cases of scarlet fever in widely separated areas during the last several days.

By carefully applying the regulations as provided by law, threatened epidemics of disease of any kind may be completely relieved in any sections of the country, in the opinion of prominent health authorities.

Parents are urged to give close attention to the condition of their children and to keep them home at the first indication of sore throat. By letting them go to school with sore throats and without first ascertaining the nature of the sickness, the parents jeopardize the health of hundreds of other children and make it possible for an epidemic of scarlet fever.

Parents who permit their children to go out and mingle with the public after they have been quarantined, not only endanger the lives of others but also open themselves to prosecution. While no brazen violation of the law in this respect has occurred here, it is believed the regulations are not being as completely observed as they should, and it is for this reason the public is being warned of the dangers involved in such action.

The public schools have been closed in one city in the western sections of the state as result of scarlet fever, and this has brought about a general tightening of regulations in all parts of the state, and especially in districts where case reports have been submitted to the county departments of health.

It is to be hoped Greenville and Pitt county people generally will consider the appeal of the health department for co-operation and help improve the condition instead of drifting along carelessly and let it gain greater scope.

The boost which Hon. C. Franklin Wilson is receiving for Congress in Morristown, N. J., was received with interest by relatives and friends in this section.

Mr. Wilson is one of the many native Pitt county men who have gone away and risen to enviable heights in the business and professional fields because of their recognized ability as leaders of public thought.

Mr. Wilson is not only one of the most successful and influential lawyers of New Jersey, but is a former jurist who rendered outstanding service to his state in this capacity.

He is admirably fitted for the high post which his friends are urging him to accept, and should he do so it stands to reason he will render service equally as meritorious and commendable as that in other fields of endeavor.

Greenville and Pitt county are proud of the recognition accorded their son in the progressive state of New Jersey, and believe he will attract nation-wide attention should he decide to seek the high honor they wish to bestow upon him.

Arrangement for international credit for the purchase of American wheat and cotton abroad is under consideration between representatives of the Farm Board and the French government.

Just how the negotiations will pan out is not to be definitely ascertained at this time, but it appears that here is a good opening for America to dispose of some of the surplus wheat and cotton the various agencies of the nation have been complaining about for so long.

While everybody is averse to the credit idea at this time, it is difficult to see where America would be the loser by extending the necessary credit to enable France to make the purchase.

Fact is, it appears to be a much better plan than dumping the wheat into the ocean, as proposed sometime ago, or giving it away to some foreign country to relieve hunger.

It might also be advisable to market some of the surplus tobacco crop that way. Certainly the firms dealing in it are financially able to extend short term credit to powers abroad in an effort to do away with congested markets and thereby open up a way for improving prices.

COTTAGE PRAYER MEETINGS TONIGHT

Tonight in various sections of the city cottage prayer meetings will be held in preparation for the Gipsy Smith revival which is to begin at the Immanuel Baptist church on November 10. It is hoped that a good attendance will be in evidence at each of the places where the meetings are to be held. Services will be held again on Friday night. The homes and leaders for tonight are as follows:

H. H. Duncan will lead the service at the home of Mrs. Patty Clark on Myrtle avenue.

Prof. Herbert ReBarker will have charge of the meeting at the home of J. Herbert Harris on Ninth street.

Dr. Carl Adams will have charge of the service in the home of Mrs. O. Q. Lassiter on Biltmore street.

At the home of Mrs. Boswell on West Fourth street, Walter Smith will be the leader.

The hour of the meeting is 7:30. The public is invited and urged to attend.

COLORED HIGH SCHOOL TO PLAY WASHINGTON

The football team of the colored high school will play Washington here Friday afternoon at 3:30 on the Third street gridiron, it was announced today.

Both teams were described as in good condition and Greenville promised supporters to add an extra scalp to her belt.

HERBERT RE BARKER TO SPEAK AT GATHERING OF MEN THURSDAY

A special prayer service for men will be held in the printing office of Henry Renfrew on Evans street on Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock. Every man in the community is urged to attend the meeting. Strangers will be given a cordial welcome.

Many local residents no doubt remember the meetings which were held in local business houses four or five years ago and what a fine spirit of fellowship was manifested throughout the city as a result. It is hoped by this first meeting and the ones to follow during the next few weeks will bring this old-time communion and fellowship of men back again, and it is hoped the men will make it a point to be present and lend their support to the movement.

Herbert ReBarker, who has charge of the first meeting, and those who have not and those who have heard him speak, have a real treat in store. Ministers of the various churches are especially invited to be present.

JETER ADDRESSES TWO GROUPS IN CITY TODAY

F. H. Jeter, director of the department of publicity of State College, spoke to reporters of Pitt County 4-H clubs at the Sheppard Memorial Library this morning.

This afternoon he addressed a group of correspondents of Home Demonstration clubs.

He told the writers of the best way to handle rural news, admonishing them to write concisely and omit personal opinions.

He stressed the importance of newspaper publicity to rural life, and said that the various club reporters could do much for their individual localities by keeping the public informed concerning their activities.

Troops to Guard Court as Negro Gets Hearing

Greensboro, Oct. 27.—(AP)—A jury of Forsyth county men and a troop of National Guardsmen will be state's contribution toward a fair trial for Will Moore, 38-year-old negro who will go on trial here Thursday morning charged with criminal assault, murder and arson in connection with the death of little Vera Leonard September 30.

Moore, alias Asbury Respus, stood like a frightened animal when arraigned in Superior court, wearing the same ragged overalls and holding the same dirty cap which he wore when arrested the day of the tragedy.

The special venire was ordered from Forsyth on motion of defense counsel, who called attention to the mob which formed here the night the negro confessed the crime.

After the arraignment the negro was taken from the city, presumably back to state's prison, for safe keeping until the trial.

After his arrest, officers said, the negro admitted attempting to assault the child, killing her when she screamed and then setting the house on fire in an effort to consume her body and obliterate traces of his crime.

Police today were hoping to be able to use Moore to clear up other crimes in Guilford county with which he was believed connected, and which have been listed as unsolved murders.

In 1928 the charred body of Mrs. J. W. Gilbreath was found in her burned home. Three years later the four year old son of W. J. Osborne was found drowned in a stream only a few inches deep. In 1925 Mrs. Eunice Stevenson was murdered and then her body was changed. Officers believe all of the crimes might have been the work of Moore.

LADY with a PAST

By Harriet Henry

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir hopes to find in Paris the key to her popularity. Several seasons in New York have left her with a dismal consciousness of her diffidence, her lack of bright appeal. Mrs. Muir has done her best to preach the importance of social success, and all Venice's life she has urged her daughter to try to be attractive. But Venice finds herself repeatedly a wallflower. She has only found one man, Drake Farrelly, who appears interested in her, and with whom she can be her genuine spontaneous self. Venice is lovely, with copper colored hair, slim grace, and a wistful, heart-shaped face. She believes that she could be popular if she could only learn to toss light conversation, and forget herself in a situation. Mrs. Muir has brought her to Paris, to give her a new start. Venice fears defeat, but anticipates an opportunity to begin again where she is not known.

Chapter 14

ASPIRIN AND THE LEFT BANK
The most seductive of sirens, Paris in the late spring; shy yet brazen, elusive yet obvious, laughing in the gay sunlight, sombre in the futile spring rain. But there is mostly sunshine, a soft powdering of sifted gold.
It was lovely that first week in Paris. Down the years it stayed in Venice's memory, a carefree seven days of fascinating shops, rich foods, occasional cocktails and no contracts that caused her embarrassment or the exertion of summing up heady repartee.
The only blot on the horizon of these sunny days was Mrs. Muir's cold. She complained of it a great deal that developed a short, mincing little cough. Venice could not determine whether it was a real cough or something affectingly nurtured. But even the cold brought its advantages. Mrs. Muir decided to wait until it was cured before she communicated with certain acquaintances in Paris and cousin Alicia Pce at Antibes. The interim of no friends gave Venice a delicious respite, nothing to worry about. It was a period of seven days in which she never once had to bother over what anyone thought of her. Lovely Venice being just Venice, no necessity of summoning sudden smiles, sudden gay rejoinders. The cold also gave her several unforeseen opportunities for prowling about on her own. The cold was responsible too for her fleeting conversation with the girl with the big eyes, a conversation which gave her a mental start, a glimpse of a new point of view.
It was their sixth day in Paris. Mrs. Muir and Venice were in the former's bedroom after luncheon. "What'll we do this afternoon, Mother? Let's sit in the Tuilleries. It's such a lovely day."
Mrs. Muir sighed.
"My head is all stopped up," she complained fretfully. "I don't think I'll go out."
Venice glanced back at her with genuine sympathy. Her mother's nose was really unduly red.
"But the sunshine might do your cold good," she suggested.
Mrs. Muir pressed a hand to her forehead.
"You don't realize how miserable I am, Venice."
"Yes, I do. But a heavy cold is just a heavy cold. Come on, mother."
"It would be most imprudent. I can just tell you one thing, Venice Muir, if I die over here you can bury me some place around Paris. I don't want those rough sailors pushing my coffin about on shipboard."
Venice tried not to smile.
"Oh, don't talk that way, Mother!" Mrs. Muir put on a quick, bright smile to show how brave she was. "Well, I won't then. But I mean it. An ocean trip is bad enough when you know what it's all about, but it must be much worse when you're dead."
Venice laughed outright here.
"You ARE a grouch, Mother!"
"I'm not. When you reach my age you'll look ahead too. And I don't want you to mope or miss parties ever for me. I don't approve it for young people, remember that. Go on out, my dear. I'll write letters and take aspirin."
"Are you sure you don't mind my leaving you? I'm dying to mope about the left bank and you never want to do it with me."
"I certainly don't. Paris is dirty enough on the right bank. Run along and don't go into any obscure streets. Remember you look like a rich American."
"How humiliating!"
Venice hurried into her hat and coat and ten minutes later was walking through the Place Vendôme up to the Rue de Rivoli and on across the Seine. She found a narrow winding street and followed it. Wine shops, antique shops, book shops. She lingered so long staring through dingy windows that dusk suddenly told her the hour was growing late. She was completely lost and had to inquire her way back every few streets.
"Pardon madame, ou est le Quai d'Orsay?"
"Pardon, m'sieu, ou est le Quai d'Orsay?"
Headed in the right direction she became lost in impressionistic details which pacified themselves very sharply on the sensitive retina of her appreciation. The soft pastels of dying daylight in the darkening sky, here a square of light in a high window like an orange block in the mauve dusk; there a mass of yellow roses in a shabby vender's arms. Crossing the Pont Royal she lingered a moment staring down into the purple ribbon of the Seine, sluggish and sheenless, its dullness broken here and there by the point of a

N. C. AND DUKE MAY PLAY FOR STATE HONORS

Charlotte, Oct. 27.—(AP)—If North Carolina can get by N. C. State in the Wolfpack's homecoming game Saturday, the chances are the Tar Heels and Duke's Blue Devils will be playing for the state championship when they meet at Durham November 21.
The Wolfpack is the only obstacle remaining in the Blue Devil path before the Tar Heel game and if Chuck Collins' charges push aside State, Davidson will be the only thorn to be removed before meeting Duke.
North Carolina's play this season against admittedly superior teams has been such as to make the Tar Heels odds on favorites over the "Pack" despite the fact that the Tar Heels have won only the Wake Forest game.
Duke's play has been in and out. At times, the Devils have shown flashes of championship timber and at others they have looked like anything but a class outfit. How the team fares against Tennessee at Knoxville Saturday may give an indication of the relative strength of North Carolina and Duke but comparative scores are often deceptive.
North Carolina should have little trouble getting by State but the Wolves traditionally fight harder against this old rival and almost anything may happen at Raleigh. The Heels have had tough going during the last few weeks and the energy expended against Vanderbilt, Georgia and Tennessee may be missing in the "Pack" clash.
Davidson, upstart of many supposedly mighty football teams, will attempt to recover from an overdose of its own medicine against V. M. I. at Davidson Saturday. The Wildcats came out of the scoreless Erskine game with nothing except their pride injured and will be in good shape for the Virginians.
Erskine will show its ware against Wake Forest and what was scheduled as a breather for the Demon Deacons will probably turn out to be a hard afternoon. Coach Jackie Todd has been molding a tough outfit at Due West, S. C. this season and Davidson is not the first supposedly superior team to feel the Seceders' wrath. Furman, one of South Carolina's strongest teams, had to be content with a scoreless tie with the smaller school.

"Yes, let's. I think I'd better have him."
They ate dinner in Mrs. Muir's room. Doctor Hawks arrived as they finished their crepes Suzette.
"A heavy cold," he pronounced. "Stay in bed several days, Mrs. Muir."
"Are you coming to see me again?" she inquired anxiously.
"I hardly think it's necessary. Not unless you telephone me that you're worse."
He was a nice young man, lean and aquiline. One of those Americans who has lived in France so long that he talks like an Englishman. It is an inexplicable development but it often occurs.
After he had gone and her mother went downstairs to the lounge. She felt unaccountably depressed. The afternoon had been so lovely and somehow it had all dispelled itself in terms of aspirin and hot water bottles and fretful reproaches. The room was empty except for a girl about her own age who bent over a centre table examining a map of Paris. Venice watched her. She was comparatively well dressed with a pale face devoid of any make-up. Suddenly she looked up and Venice was startled by the size of her earnest blue-grey eyes. The girl took her in and smiled.
"Do you know where the Rue de Grenelle is?" she asked.
Venice felt unexpectedly pleased. She moved to the centre table and leaned over the outspread map.
"It's on the left bank, I think. Let's see."
Their index fingers traced various streets and boulevards.
"Here," cried Venice, "here it is."
"Of course, and I've been hunting for ten minutes. Some friends have asked me to meet them there at a place called La Petite Chaise tomorrow and I couldn't imagine where it was. Thank you so much."
Venice straightened and felt awkward as to the next conversational move.
"Sit down, won't you, and talk to me," suggested the girl.
"Yes," said Venice and suddenly realized that this was a new person and she was being her customary diffident self. She gave an exact imitation of her mother's most winning smile.
They made themselves comfortable at adjacent sides of the table.
"I'm over here alone, are you?"
"No, with my mother."
"I broke loose from mine. My family is party mad. I hate parties."
Venice forgot to be anything but natural.
"So do I," she said. "Why do you?"

FLA. MORALE BOOSTED BY BO McCLELLAN

Atlanta, Oct. 27.—(AP)—The morale of the crippled Florida, faced with the assignment of stopping the powerful Georgia eleven in the Southern Conference headliner Saturday, was several degrees higher today after the return of "Bo" McClellan, senior halfback, to the lineup.
McClellan practiced for the first time this season yesterday. He suffered a broken leg before the campaign started, and his leg has mended so well that he probably will be in condition to play against Georgia. However, four regulars are out with injuries, two of them, Johnny Fountain and Homer Seay, confined to the college infirmary.
Georgia worked out against Florida yesterday. And it was rumored at Athens that Homer Key out of the Vanderbilt game with an injured knee, and Jack Roberts fullback, probably would be in condition against Florida. Roberts was in the Vanderbilt game a short while. Coach Harry Mehre scrimmaged his men with the idea of doing better this season than last year's scoreless tie with Florida.
Tulane declared a holiday. Georgia Tech renewed the practice grind in preparation for the Vanderbilt game Saturday. Duke had a short but spirited session with Coach Wade drilling the team on defensive passing. The Vanderbilt regulars took the day off, and the Alabama first string ran through a brief practice period and stopped for the day.

How CARDUI Helps Women

"I WAS passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Quilan, Texas. "I improved very much after I had taken Cardui for a while. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. As each one of them arrived at womanhood, I gave her Cardui for several months. I found they were less nervous and felt stronger. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. In my home we have all been better for having taken it."

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON
New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Cotton opened barely steady today at a decline of 6 to 8 points under Liverpool, southern and continental selling which was promoted by favorable weather and projects for increased receipts. December sold off to 6.51 and March 6.74, or about 8 to 10 points net lower.
Offerings were taken by covering and trade buying, while the decline seemed to attract some commission house buying. The selling tapered off after the first few minutes and prices stiffened up within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations by the end of the first half hour.
Liverpool cables said the hedging had been absorbed by trade calling and covering in that market and reported a fair business in cotton yarns and cloths for both the home trade and export.

GRAIN MARKET
Chicago, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Stirred by reports that France had about completed negotiations for the purchase of 20,000,000 bushels of United States government sponsored wheat the market late today outdid the season's high price record. It was further reported that France would need to import 50,000,000 to 70,000,000 bushels of wheat before August next. The news caught the wheat pit almost bare of offerings, and the market jumped rapidly.

STOCK MARKET
New York, Oct. 27.—(AP)—Wall street's attention returned to domestic affairs today, and further consideration of the status of corporate earnings and dividends sent share values into another slow decline.
Illinois Central's dividend omission, while expected, had an adverse influence on sentiment, and traders were wary of the buying side of the market pending the quarterly statement and dividend announcement of U. S. Steel Corp. due after the close of the market.
Illinois Central dropped to a new low under 20, off about 5 points, and Santa Fe and Union Pacific registered similar losses. Miscellaneous issues off 2 to 4 points included New York Central, New Haven, B. & O. C. & O., Allied Chemical, American Telephone, North American, Public Service of N. J., Seare Roebuck, American Tobacco B., International Harvester, Eastman and McKeesport. U. S. Steel, General Motors, Standards of N. J. and California, Anaconda and Kennecott were among issues off a point or more.
News from Washington that the administration had completed its study of railroad securities, but would hold action in abeyance until the executives decide what they will do with the Interstate Commerce Commission's proposals, was regarded with mixed sentiments. Banking circles particularly interested in railway financing, however, were inclined to feel that an eventual agreement between the executives and the commission would be reached. While definite information is lacking, it is hoped that the government may offer loans, in addition to those from the suggested pool of increased revenues, to aid weaker carriers in meeting their bond interest and maturities.

They believe it will add greatly to the prospects for success at the general disarmament conference in February, and take a heavy financial burden off the world.

A detailed communication, specifying the military and naval construction activities that this country would forego, is to be framed at the State Department before Sunday, the expiration date set by the league for replies.

In preparing the formal answer, Secretary Stimson will have the assistance of Hugh Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, and representative at the league of disarmament committee sessions at Geneva in September when the holiday was proposed.

Participation in the move conforms with the administration's attitude toward arms reduction in general.

The holiday would apply to new construction and also would prevent any increases in naval or military personnel.

A probable source of confusion is seen on the question of replacement of existing armament. Strictly speaking it would not be increasing armament to replace worn-out airplanes and ships.

After the replies have been received by the league, each nation is to be shown the measure of agreement that has been reached.

They believe it will add greatly to the prospects for success at the general disarmament conference in February, and take a heavy financial burden off the world.

A detailed communication, specifying the military and naval construction activities that this country would forego, is to be framed at the State Department before Sunday, the expiration date set by the league for replies.

In preparing the formal answer, Secretary Stimson will have the assistance of Hugh Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, and representative at the league of disarmament committee sessions at Geneva in September when the holiday was proposed.

Participation in the move conforms with the administration's attitude toward arms reduction in general.

The holiday would apply to new construction and also would prevent any increases in naval or military personnel.

A probable source of confusion is seen on the question of replacement of existing armament. Strictly speaking it would not be increasing armament to replace worn-out airplanes and ships.

After the replies have been received by the league, each nation is to be shown the measure of agreement that has been reached.
