RECOMMEND FEDERAL BODY ON EDUCATION

Hoover Advisory Commission Makes Final Report After Years of Study

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Creation of a Federal education department headed by a cabinet member has been recommended to President Hoover by his national advisory committee on education.

In a final report on two years of study, the committee also urged a hands-off policy by the national government in state educational affairs.

The committee report, published today, conveyed a warning of danger unless President Hoover acts to change existing conditions.

The proposed new government department would be presided over by a secretary of education, with a chair in the president's cabinet.

The new secretary would act as a spokesman for American learning. He would be bound by law, however, to keep hands off state educational processes and to work for decentralization of control.

"The development of administrative power by the Federal Government in highly specialized fields of education," the report said, "presents a threat that cannot longer be ignored."

"Unless there is an early reversal of policy, further Federal participation in highly specialized phases of education within the states will involve us in a form of moribund, centralized centralization with evils far greater than those which characterize some of the European governments."

The danger may seem remote, but it calls for our scrutiny now.

By a vote of 45 to 6, the committee approved a statement that the government was lacking entirely in an "effective and consistent public policy as to what it should or should not do in the field of education."

By far the greatest stress was laid upon a withdrawal of Federal control from state educational affairs.

Roosevelt Will Hold Conference With Al Smith

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Times says Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, often spoken of as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, and former Governor Alfred E. Smith whom he once called Democracy's "happy warrior," are going to talk things over at a private luncheon this week.

Governor Roosevelt plans to go south for a holiday within a few days. According to the Times' information the governor himself arranged the interview, but even the closest associates of both men expressed no knowledge of the meeting, nor would they indicate what subject might be discussed.

Considerable significance was attached by political observers to the report, in view of last week's conferences in which former Gov. Smith and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, a presidential possibility, participated.

Friends of both Gov. Roosevelt and Mr. Smith said there were many subjects of common interest involving both party and state affairs concerning which conversation might be desirable.

The Times had no information as to the definite date on which the meeting would take place. It stated, however, that Mr. Smith had received the invitation to the private luncheon in a letter from Albany.

Fire-Eating Goat Polices the Town of Swansboro

Kinston, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Major Matt Allen, chairman of the state industrial commission, has a goat, William, that "polices" Russell Island near Swansboro of everything including lighted cigars.

The goat, big as a cow with a two-foot beard and gilded horns ruts everything. Cans, paper, old clothes and "everything else" sores as his diet—a diet twice as big as "any other goat's."

But Chairman Allen says the goat's chief claim to fame is his fire trick. The goat does not discriminate in brands.

The fabled horns—the idea of the caretaker of the island—but the fire-eating idea is the goat's own.

GIPSY SMITH SPEAKS TO MEN

Urges Them to Get On Their Knees and Pray at Mass Meeting Sunday

Greenville doesn't need preaching—it has plenty of preachers—what it needs is for men to get on their knees and begin praying.

This was the message which Rev. Gipsy Smith, Jr., brought to a mass meeting of men at Immanuel Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

It was one of these sermons literally bristling with great truths of the Bible, and the several hundred men were held spellbound as the evangelist drove home a brilliant array of facts in connection with the need of more of the spirit of Christianity.

The meeting was held in celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Men's Missionary movement, and was in charge of Rev. W. S. Harden, pastor of the Presbyterian church. He explained that the movement was organized in New York with a view to interest men in the work of Christ, and that 45 denominations were engaged in the task.

Mr. Harden said it would be difficult for him to lead the song service and play the piano. No sooner had the remark been made than Gipsy Smith walked rapidly to the front and seated himself at the piano. He displayed that he is a capable pianist as well as a preacher, and both playing and congregational singing was inspirational.

Rev. W. H. Covert read the Scripture lesson from the 57th chapter of Isaiah.

Taking his text from the 27th chapter of St. Matthew giving a description of the crucifixion and resurrection, Mr. Smith presented different aspects of the life of Christ, which he said he thought all men should know if they would become a power in the field of Christian service.

On the Cross, he declared, Christ made propitiation for the sins of mankind, and it is a mercy seat where God meets men.

The cross does not amount to a row of beads to the average run of men unless they appropriate and take advantage of what Christ did in their behalf, the evangelist asserted.

Through Christ's death on the cross, he pointed out, God provided a way of escape from the death penalty of sin because the blood of Christ cleanses from all sin.

Men are constantly sinning, Mr. Smith said, and because of that fact there must be a daily cleansing through the blood which Jesus shed on the Cross in the behalf of humankind.

The Bible, he asserted, teaches us to get down on our knees and pray, confess the sin corroding the heart, and then have it cleaned through the blood of Jesus.

Mankind does not have to go back to God for repeated requests for forgiveness of sin, the evangelist said, because God puts the sin behind his back when it is washed.

MAY BAN HUNT TO CUT FIRES

Raleigh, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Because of the danger of hunters accidentally starting forest fires, the State Department of Conservation and Development may ban hunting in North Carolina until the present dry spell ends.

Charles H. Flory, assistant state forester, announced here that such a ban was under consideration shortly after two indirect deaths yesterday as a result of forest fires were reported.

One death was that of Strong Boney, 23, state highway patrolman, who failed to see a bridge abutment in a smoke cloud and struck it with his motorcycle. He was killed instantly.

The accident occurred six miles east of Kenansville. Boney was the son of the late Paisley Boney of Goldsboro. He was unmarried and lived with his mother at Wallace.

The other person to die was Theodore Shelbert, negro, of Roanoke, Va., whose automobile collided with that of R. H. Hunsucker, of Winterville, on a smoke-shrouded highway west of Wendell.

Heavy smoke clouds over the eastern section of the state caused abandonment yesterday of the Eastern Air Transport Company's New - York-Jacksonville airplane passenger service.

Sprayed from fires miles away reached here and almost the entire eastern half of the state was affected to some extent. Scattered blazes are burning over the coastal section with large fires raging in the Aurora and Pungo sections of Beaufort county.

Reports from the western section of the state said fires there were confined to McDowell and Cherokee counties.

Marion, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A fire burned along a six-mile front on Humber Mountain today and observers said unless it was checked it would destroy thousands of acres of timberland.

Two fires between Ashford and Linville may vanish by burning out when they meet but another blaze on the spruce pine water shed is threatening a huge timber tract.

A small fire at Bridgewater is burning unchecked and a hundred acre blaze south of Marion is still burning but has been brought under control.

Wilmington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—There have been sales and sales and now the district army engineer's office here wants to sell a detour.

Bids will be opened Thursday on the road leading to the new dismantled bridge crossing the inland waterway near Carolina Beach. It contains 1,200 tons of clay gravel and is several hundred yards long.

Wilmington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—After refusing to eat for three days, Mrs. Lela Pendleton Pickett, middle-aged widow held in jail in connection with the alleged poisoning of her daughters, has broken her hunger strike.

She ate a barbecue sandwich yesterday, the first food she had taken since her arrest Thursday morning.

Mrs. Pickett was ordered held by a coroner's jury which found her daughters, Virginia, 10, and Elizabeth, 6, died from poisoning. Virginia died last May and Elizabeth in September.

Kinston Banker Granted Stay of Prison Sentence

Raleigh, Nov. 16.—(AP)—William B. Harvey, Kinston banker under sentence of four years and a day in the Federal prison in Atlanta for violation of the Federal Banking laws, was granted a second stay of sentence today which will extend his freedom until January 1.

Harvey was sentenced to three years when he pleaded guilty to embezzlement of some $54,000 from the defunct First National Bank of Kinston and received a year and a day for forging and circulating registered liberty bonds.

Harvey was given a stay of sentence until today when he pleaded guilty at New Bern in mid-October, appeared here today before Judge I. M. Muehrke, Federal jurist, and was granted a further stay on the grounds of ill-health of his wife.

HEAVY SNOW VISITS WEST

Idaho, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Snow blanketed southern Idaho, parts of Montana and mountainous regions of other western states today, inflicting hazards of winter wheat upon the autumn travelers.

An outing party of ten men was trapped in a storm which laid a three-foot mantle of snow at the summit of the Sierra mountains of California yesterday. Four of the group faced isolation for a week or more in a cabin at Echo Lake.

Their six companions made five miles backing soft snow with a motor car yesterday and expected to reach Placerville today or tomorrow. Both parties have access to food.

A high wind drove the flakes that fell heavily in southern Idaho last night. Trains and buses were delayed. Mail planes were grounded.

Snow fell over many parts of Montana. A foot was registered at Heben Dam, near West Yellowstone. Almost a dozen cars skidded off a slick highway near Butte. Drops in temperature ranged from six to 3 degrees.

The Montana Power Company at Butte reported the coldest area in the state was that in the vicinity of Dutton and Valler, where the mercury sank to 12 degrees above zero.

PARTY WHIPS BUSY AGAIN

Washington, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Party whips in the coming House are going to be kept busy rounding up their colleagues when voting time comes on legislation.

The close division of the party strength undoubtedly will give the Democrats voting mastery one day while on the next the Republicans may rule the situation.

The whips, often incorrectly called the assistant party leaders, are men designated by the parties to assemble their respective forces to secure passage of their bills or to defeat passage of their opponents' measures.

They send out notices as to the legislative program of the House each week and sometimes designate from two to three assistants to aid in bringing their colleagues in the vote.

In the last Congress, Rep. McDuffie of Alabama, was the Democratic whip, and Rep. Vestal of Indiana, the Republican whip, the (Continued on page six)

DINO GRANDI REACHES U. S.

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Low flying fogs today balked the State Department plan to take Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy by air from the liner Conte Grande to Washington.

AGAIN ASSAILS BISHOP CANNON

Sparta, Ga., Nov. 16.—(AP)—The Rev. Rembert G. Smith, suspended by the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, for one year on a charge of "high unministerial conduct" was greeted with a demonstration at a mass meeting on his return home last night.

All church services in Sparta were suspended for the meeting in the Hancock County court house. Every seat in the courtroom was taken and numbers stood in the aisles and doorways. Court officials estimated 900 persons attended.

The minister spoke to the crowd for nearly two hours, opening attacks on certain of the Southern Methodist leaders and branding the charges against him as a "dastardly undercover assault."

The charges were not detailed publicly. The minister has criticized what he termed political activities in the church. He declared he was forced to preach without opportunity to prepare a defense.

Last night he again attacked activities of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., whom he called the "political Bishop" and his charge that Bishop Cannon had "wrecked the judicial system of the Methodist Episcopal church, south," brought prolonged applause.

The crowd again applauded when Mr. Smith, discussing the findings of the committee that tried him, said, "I am defining 'high unministerial conduct' as telling the truth about a political bishop."

His text was taken from the eighth verse of the first chapter of Acts describing the last words and actions of Jesus before His Ascension. Christ told his followers they had been empowered to go out into the world to preach His messages to the people and to await the call in Jerusalem.

The speaker gave a vivid, gripping description of the appearance of the ball of fire before the disciples, and the tremendous crowd of people that appeared before them. All of them testified to the wonderful works of the Lord, and then there began one of the greatest home mission campaigns in the history of the world. Little churches began springing up over the country at that time and the disciples labored seven years carrying the messages of Christ everywhere, he said.

Mr. Spillman said Christ came to spread the Gospel to all sections of the world. He described the gradual progress of the work and the opportunities afforded the various countries.

He gave a graphic portrayal of the development of religion in the United States and its spread through the series of wars. Through the winning of new territory by this country, the word of the living God was placed in territories that probably never would have heard it had not been for the early struggles, the speaker pointed out.

America is faced with one of the best opportunities in history today to carry out the commands of Christ, he said. The south is humming with industry, and its wealth (Continued on Page Six)

Body Starts Private Deliberations After Twenty-Minute Session Early Today; Japanese Commander Says Compliance With League's Demands Would Result in Sheer Chaos

Paris, Nov. 16.—(AP)—The council of the League of Nations deliberated for twenty minutes over the Manchurian conflict late today, the date set for the Japanese evacuation in Manchuria, and adjourned to carry on its work of arbitration in private negotiations.

Chairman Aristide Briand reviewed the council's efforts to restore peace during the last six weeks and said that the delegates could best determine their course in private conversations.

Foreign Minister Sir John Simon of Great Britain said he would lend his full cooperation to "uphold the moral authority of the League." Gerhard Von Buelow, German delegate hoped he would be able to assist in reaching a happy solution.

American Ambassador Charles G. Dawes did not attend the session. The absence of Consul General Frensis B. Gilbert, American Observer in the previous session, was noticeable.

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 16.—(AP)—Lieutenant General Shigeno Hongo, commander of the Japanese army in Manchuria, told the Associated Press today that if Japan had complied with the League's resolution to evacuate non-treaty zones by today the result would have been sheer chaos.

He said that no nation had a greater respect for the League's ideals than Japan and the unfortunate situation in Manchuria was embarrassing alike to the League and the Japanese army.

"We are not purposely obstructing the League's objectives," he said, "or attempting to lower its prestige, but we must do what necessity dictates to protect Japanese lives, rights and interests in this part of the world."

He listed the total number of Japanese troops in Manchuria at 13,400.

These troops are in addition to those on the Nonni River front, whose numbers are a military secret but are estimated at close to 3,000. On the basis of these figures, it was calculated that 5,000 Japanese troops were stationed outside the non-treaty zone.

The Japanese are reported to be dominating the governments of Lioing and Kirin provinces, with sizable detachments in three areas outside the South Manchuria railway zone. The force of 13,400 men, as it stood after the Mukden coup of September 18, is undiminished, except for about 200 killed or seriously wounded in engagements, and a fresh mixed brigade is on the way for replacements.

The occupation of Kirin and Chanchiatun is likely to be continued for a long time, it was stated, because each place commands a railway built with Japanese funds, and by Japanese engineers for which the Chinese have never paid.

Control over the Changchun-Kirin-Tunghua, Chengchiatun-Suplingkain and Taonan-Anganchi rail ways enables the Japanese to threaten the Mukden-Hailung-Kirin and Tahushan railways, which the Chinese built in recent years, paralleling the South Manchuria railway, over Japanese protest.

The army on the Nonni river front was reported by its headquarters to have defeated a Chinese cavalry detachment of 4,000 in a considerable engagement yesterday, and to have occupied the village of Chienchuan, 12 kilometers north, east of Tashing.

Infantry cavalry, artillery and aircraft were said to have participated in the engagement.

ONE BIG FIVE GAME FOR N.C. THIS WEEK

Charlotte, Nov. 16—(AP)—Duke will seek its first victory over the University of North Carolina since the early days of football next Saturday at Durham in the only game involving a Big Five team to be played on state soil this week.

The Blue Devils have not whipped the Tar Heels since football was reinstated at Trinity, now Duke, some 10 or 12 years ago after being banned during a period of about the same length.

Win, lose or draw the Tar Heels will wind up as Big Five champions for the year. North Carolina State handed the University team the title Saturday by trimming Duke 14 to 0 while the Tar Heels were downing Davidson 20-0.

If Duke wins, North Carolina will finish with three victories and one defeat while Duke will have two victories, a tie and a defeat.

Two of the Big Five teams, Davidson and Wake Forest will be idle this week-end. They meet at Davidson Thanksgiving Day.

N. C. State meets the highly-touted South Carolina Gamecocks at Columbia, S. C. Saturday. One boy the Gamecocks will have to watch is Bob McQuage, sophomore quarterback who starred as the Wolfpack's downed Duke.

Other games on Saturday's card bring together Lenoir-Rhyne and High Point at High Point; Appalachian and Concord State at Boone; Catawba and Lincoln Memorial at Salisbury.

Besides N. C. State's conquest of Duke, last week's games brought little or nothing in the way of a surprise. Wake Forest went down before Oglethorpe 37-0. Catawba trimmed Piedmont 20-7. Guilford lost to the Langley Army eleven 21-7. Lenoir-Rhyne lost to Maryville 14-6 and Appalachian was held to a 6-6 tie by Bowdoin State.

Presents Results of Fertilizer Tests With Cotton at Fountain

"An increased yield of 580 pounds of seed cotton per acre at an increased cost for fertilizer of 121-2 cents, one of the interesting facts brought out by a cotton demonstration conducted this year by Mr. J. N. Fountain of Fountain," said T. M. Carr, vocational agricultural teacher of the Fountain high school.

"The agricultural department of this high school," continued Mr. Carr, "tries to assist in establishing good farm practices as well as teaching the fundamental principles of agriculture. Realizing that money spent for fertilizer represents the largest single outlay of each of the farmers of this section, a demonstration in cotton fertilization was planned with Mr. Fountain. The land selected was as uniform in fertility as we could find of the Norfolk sandy loam type. The preparation of the land and cultivation was the same on all plots. The seed was the same also. The only variation was in the fertilization of the different plots. The following is the fertilization of each plot and the yield per acre in seed cotton:

Plot 1 received 600 pounds of 3-3-3 at planting and gave a yield of 520 pounds seed cotton per acre. Plot 2 received the same material at planting and 200 pounds Chilean Nitrate as a side dressing and yielded 689 pounds seed cotton. Plot 3 was fertilized with 400 pounds Acid Phosphate and 50 pounds Muriate of Potash at planting and made a yield of 610 pounds seed cotton. Plot 4 received the same materials at planting as plot 3 plus 50 pounds Chilean Nitrate and was given a side dressing of 150 pounds Chilean Nitrate at chopping time. This plot yielded 1100 pounds seed cotton. Plot 5 received the same amount of Acid Phosphate Muriate of Potash and Chilean Nitrate at planting as plot 4 but the amount of side dressing of Chilean Nitrate was increased to 250 pounds. This plot gave a yield of 1460 pounds seed cotton per acre.

"The widest difference in yield was between plots 1 and 5, amounting to 940 pounds of seed cotton at an additional fertilizer cost of $2.62. However, the most economical increase was between plots 1 and 4. The results of this demonstration and others similar to it, will be used for discussion in our all-day and evening class work," said Mr. Carr.

At a field meeting held at this demonstration, those present were given an opportunity to estimate the yields. Prizes were offered by the Chilean Nitrate Educational Bureau.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, ether-holding elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DON COSSACK MALE CHORUS HERE TOMORROW

Tomorrow evening, Tuesday, Nov. 17, in the campus building of East Carolina Teachers College, at 8:30 o'clock, the Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus, will give their long looked forward to concert.

The Singing Horsemen of the Steppes, 36 strong, under the direction of their dynamic leader, Serge Jaroff, will march out in uniform, clicking their heels together in military style as if they were still members of the Imperial Army, and will sing their three-part program with depth of feeling and with dramatic power. The chorus is said to have in it the deepest bass voice in the concert world today, and the highest tenor voice with everything between, and the blend is something different from anything Americans have heretofore heard.

In their religious numbers they bring out the spiritual depths of the soul. The homesickness and longing for the beloved scenes of their homeland makes these exiles who are traveling "en voyage" and doomed not to have a home sing the lovely melodies of the Cossack folk songs which have never been sung before. Recalling experiences as members of the Wranglers White Army, when they sang marching tunes, and camp songs, they sing the soldier songs as if they were still marching and fighting.

The audience will get a show that is like a pageant for contrasts, and will hear a concert of wide range of voices and songs. The effect of the whole is intensely dramatic.

Spend Day in Morehead.

Dr. R. H. Wright, Dr. Joseph Smith, Dr. W. I. Wooten, Dr. J. M. Barrett and Sheppard Andrews spent today in Morehead fishing.

Eastern Star Meets.

Farmville, Nov. 12.—The regular meeting of the Order of the Eastern Star was held on Thursday evening when communications from the state officers relative to the different phases of the work done by this organization were read and special attention was called to the Thanksgiving gifts for the Masonic and Eastern Star Home. Contributions were decided upon at this time.

An account of the recent meeting of the Home Board of Directors and of a personal visit to the Home at Greensboro were given by Mrs. J. W. Parker, Worthy Matron, who also requested co-operation with other lodges of the state in saving soap wrappers with which to procure a refrigerator for the institution, and appointed Mrs. J. T. Bundy to take charge of this project.

The Worthy Matron told of the visit of the North Carolina delegation to General Grand Chapter at San Antonio, Texas; to Grand Chapter of Texas at Houston, and presented an invitation to Kentucky Grand Chapter, when Miss Opal Baugh of Maysville, sister of Mrs. B. E. McClure, well known here, will take the office of Worthy Grand Matron.

The Education Fund was discussed during the business session, the fact being emphasized that the Grand Chapter of North Carolina is assisting 15 young people to complete their college education.

The program for the evening consisted of two selections "George Washington the Mason" read by J. H. Paylor, and "George Washington Patron of Education" read by L. Dardin. This program was planned to commemorate the initiation anniversary of Washington into the Masonic Lodge.

N. C. METHODISTS WILL IN GREENVILLE TUESDAY. (Continued from page one) than an annual conference. Greenville is to be host to the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, from Tuesday until Sunday night and will have as its guests about five hundred ministers, delegates and visitors.

Bishop E. D. Mouzon, who has been in charge of this conference for the past six years, will preside. During the time he has served in this Episcopal district he has grown on the members of the conference, and they are delighted that he is to be their leader again this year. Bishop Mouzon is recognized as one of the outstanding preachers and churchmen in America. As a presiding officer at an annual conference he is painstaking and kind to all. He will be warmly welcomed at Greenville.

Rev. E. L. Hillman is pastor of Jarvis Memorial Church, where the sessions will be held. Rev. J. H. McCracken is presiding elder of the Washington District and will assist Mr. Hillman in entertaining the conference as will the various committees from the local church.

The North Carolina Conference is nearing the centenary milestone in its history. It is now 95 years since it was set off from the Virginia Conference, that taking place in 1836. At that time the entire state was embraced by the conference, and so remained until 1890 when it was divided and the Western North Carolina Conference formed. Because of climatic conditions and the fact that industries grew more rapidly in the Piedmont section of the state, the younger and has outstripped the older in members and material growth resources.

The first annual session of this conference was held in "Greensborough" in January, 1938, with Bishop T. A. Morris as the presiding officer. At that conference there was a white membership of 15,062 and 3,666 colored. From that small beginning 95 years ago Methodism in the state has had a marvelous growth. The two conferences in the state at their last annual sessions showed a total membership of 264,458. Of that number 117,171 are members of the North Carolina Conference. It has a clerical membership of 270 and no colored members at all.

Last year the conference contributed the following amounts to the various causes: American Bible Society, $495; Church Extension, $6,762; Christian Education, $13,079; Federal Council, $190; General Conference Expense, $759; Hospitals, $949; Lay Activities, $1,281; Missions, $23,905; Negro Work, $1,139; Temperance and Social Service, $456; Theological Schools, $1,519; by the Woman's Missionary Society, $122,462; from the Golden Cross Enrollment, $191; Presiding Elders, $34,848; Bishops, $4,273; Preaches in Charge, $423,742; Conference Claimants, $13,071; Superannuate Endowment, $3,420; making a total raised for all purposes besides buildings, etc., $1,330,623.

The conference is divided into nine presiding elders' districts, has 227 pastoral charges and 730 organized churches. The presiding elders having charge of the districts are as follows: J. C. Wooten, Durham; O. W. Dowd, Elizabeth City;

W. A. Cade, Fayetteville; Walter Patten, New Bern; H. M. North, Raleigh; H. C. Smith, Rockingham; J. H. McCracken, Washington; L. B. Jones, Weldon, and W. C. Martin, Wilmington.

These presiding elders will form Bishop Mouzon's cabinet and assist him in making the appointments of the pastors to their several fields of labor for the incoming year. Two labor for the incoming year. Two labor for the incoming year. Two labor for the incoming year.

Revs. J. C. Wooten and Walter Patten, have served the Durham and New Bern districts, respectively, for the past four years, and according to the law of the church, which does not permit a presiding elder to serve in the same district more than four years consecutively they will necessarily be assigned to new fields of labor next year. The four years limit does not apply to ministers who are in the pastorate, but custom of long standing, usually causes both preachers and people to expect a change every four years and this is done except in rare cases.

When Bishop Mouzon and his cabinet meet in Greenville they will find that there are more ministers serving their present fields for the fourth year or more than ever in the history of the conference, there being 43, two of whom are presiding elders. It is expected that practically all of these will have served less than four years, will move. The appointments this year will be read by Bishop Mouzon on Sunday night.

Jarvis Memorial Church, conference host, has grown into one of the strongest churches in the conference. At the conference, held in Fayetteville in 1872, the early report available, Greenville and Washington, composed a station, and at that time both churches had a membership of only 187 with three local preachers and a Sunday school enrollment of 199. At the last session of the conference the reports show that Greenville had a membership of 1084 and Washington 926. This church has entertained the conference on two other occasions, in 1891 and 1917. At the former Bishop Charles E. Galloway presided and the latter Bishop Warren A. Candler.

At the conference held in 1891 Rev. R. B. John, who died this year, was conference host, and Revs. N. H. D. Wilson, K. D. Holmes, L. S. Massey, E. E. Rose, M. Bradshaw, J. C. McCall, J. D. Bundy, E. B. Wilcox, J. J. Porter, M. T. Best, J. W. Martin and J. T. Draper were admitted on trial. Of this number, Revs. N. H. D. Wilson, L. S. Massey, M. Bradshaw, J. D. Bundy and J. T. Draper are still living.

It has been the custom of the North Carolina Conference Historical Society to meet on Tuesday night before the convening of conference on Wednesday, but it will hold its annual meeting this year on Friday night, and the program will center in the life of Governor Thomas J. Jarvis. He was an honored member of the church at Greenville, and that church was named Jarvis Memorial as a testimony of the love the membership had for that grand old man. Hon. Josephus Daniels is president of the society and will preside and speak of Gov. Jarvis as Governor of North Carolina. Hon. George W. Conner of the Supreme Court, will speak of Gov. Jarvis as a Lawyer. Dr. R. H. Wright, president of East Carolina Teachers' College, will tell of Gov. Jarvis' contribution to Education. Governor Jarvis as a leader in Forming Public Sentiment will be discussed by the Hon. R. N. Page of Aberdeen, and

Rev. M. T. Plyler will speak of Gov. Jarvis as a Religious Leader. It is expected that this will be one of the most interesting meetings the society has ever held. Another pleasing and unusual event of the conference will be the preaching every evening beginning Tuesday evening, of Dr. Harry M. North. It is customary for the presiding bishop to secure the services of some outstanding minister from outside the conference to preach during the conference session, but this year Bishop Mouzon, to the delight of the conference, has asked one of its own members to render this service. Dr. North will be heard with much pleasure by his brethren.

The preaching in the afternoons will be done by Rev. E. H. McWhorter, Wednesday; Rev. J. A. Russell, Thursday; and Rev. T. G. Vickers, Friday.

Four ministers have died during the year. Three of them were on the superannuate roll and one in the active work. Dr. W. D. North, who has been a tower of strength as a spiritual leader for a number of years; Rev. R. B. John, who was one of the greatest church statesmen among the members of the conference; and Rev. W. F. Gallo-way, who retired from active service several years ago, and Rev. S. A. Cotton, who was in the midst of a great pastorate at Sanford, all joined the conference above during the year. On Sunday afternoon a memorial service will be held in memory of these brethren and the address will be delivered by Rev. W. A. Stanbury.

Wednesday morning at 8:30, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered to the conference and visitors by Bishop Mouzon, assisted by the presiding elders. Immediately after that service is concluded the conference will organize for its work during the session by the election of a secretary, his assistance, committees to act during the week and filling vacancies on boards.

A business session will be held each morning when reports from the presiding elders and pastors will be made and other conference business transacted.

PATROLMEN FIRED UPON; INJURED AS MOTORCYCLE CRASHES INTO AUTOMOBILE

Highway Patrolman E. L. Headley received injuries last night when he was fired upon by motorist after his motorcycle had wrecked on the Greenville-Grimesland highway, several miles from the city.

The officer was returning to Greenville with several persons he had arrested for driving drunk. A car sped by him in a reckless manner and he gave chase.

As he drew up behind the speeding car, the driver suddenly put on brakes, and the motorcycle crashed into the automobile. The officer was thrown to the pavement and as he lay there the occupants of the car fired upon him. He returned the fire but was not able to say whether he registered a hit. The motorcycle was damaged.

This was the second time the officer had been fired upon in the last month. He escaped injury when negro motorists shot at him as he was returning from the Tarboro fair several weeks ago, but his motorcycle was damaged.

SMITH SPEAKS TO BETHEL BAPTIST CONGREGATION

Walter Smith, linotype operator of the Daily Reflector, spoke at the Baptist church at Bethel yesterday at the morning service.

He talked on the subject of missions and was heard by a splendid congregation.

He stressed the importance of more attention to the spreading of the Gospel of Christ, and urged the denomination to take advantage of the splendid opportunities afforded for this work at the present time.

SEVEN MARRIAGE LICENSES ISSUED OVER WEEK-END

The usual rush to the altar continued in Pitt county over the week-end and records in the office of the register of deeds today showed that seven licenses to marry were issued Saturday. Two of the couples were white and the remainder colored. They were:

Elbert Morgan to Miss Minnie Garris of Falkland; Leslie Evans to Miss Lula Evans of Chocod.

Colored—Isaac King to Maggie Edwards, of Ayden; William Thomas to Helen Blow, Pitt county; Frank Eastman to Ethel Carney, Greenville; Wiley Dunn to Minnie Green, Greenville; John Vines to Jane Lofton, Pitt county.

LAWLESS ELEMENT QUIET IN COUNTY OVER WEEK-END

The lawless element was quiet over the county during the week-end and not a single arrest was made by officers during Sunday. It was reported from the sheriff's office today.

Only a few minor arrests were made last week, and the previous week was similar to yesterday.

The record is an exceptionally good one and officers were much pleased with the improvement.

Negro Saved From Mob

York, S. C., Nov. 15 (AP)—Saved, authorities said, from a group of armed men, John White, 16-year-old negro, was held in jail here today after he was alleged to have made insulting remarks to an 18-year-old daughter of a farmer.

Chief of Police J. Frank Faulkner and Rural Policeman Elliott Harris arrested White in a negro section here after the young negro had fled from the McConnellsville section.

White was alleged to have insulted deficit.

Some think the president is in favor of increased taxes to relieve the financial shortage, while others believe he looks with disfavor upon such action.

However, the public will watch his message, and should he be in favor of an increase of taxes there is no doubt he will be greeted with a howl of protest and reproach.

While the government deficit is to be regretted, some other measure should be taken to relieve it. For instance, the rounding up of more persons not bearing their part of the income tax, and taxation of luxuries that will not affect the average citizen.

The election of Guy Smith as president of the Kiwanis club will be of interest to his many friends here and other parts of the State.

As head of the Eastern Carolina Chamber of Commerce, an organization serving over forty counties in this part of the State, Mr. Smith has attracted much attention through his efforts in behalf of the people.

He has been connected with the tobacco industry here for many years and is associated with the oldest and one of the most influential warehouse concerns in the State.

That he will be able to accomplish much in behalf of the club he has been elected to serve is not to be doubted, and with support of the membership, the future is much brighter than it has been in years despite the economic situation confronting the community, state and nation.

COXEY STAGES COMEBACK

Jacob S. Coxe, who 37 years ago led his famous army of unemployed on Washington, D. C., has won his latest battle. He was elected mayor of Massillon, Ohio, on a platform advocating municipal ownership of utilities and flotation of a bond issue to aid the city's unemployed. Here he is with his wife, Henrietta, and his son, David. He is now 77 years old.

ed the young white woman Tuesday. Shortly afterwards he went to Dallas, N. C., the officers said, and returned Saturday to McConnellsville.

Policeman Harris said a group of white men, armed with shotguns, then started looking for the young negro. No further demonstration occurred after the arrest.

The officers quoted White as saying he merely asked the young woman if her father needed any cotton pickers on his farm. The girl said the negro made an improper proposal to her.

LADY with a PAST

By Harriet Henry

SYNOPSIS. Suspense holds Venice Muir while she waits for the party that will introduce the "new" Venice to New York. Society formerly has found her boring. She now returns from Paris with rumors of conquests. She hopes to seem mysterious, because she has been named the cause of a marquis's suicide.

Chapter 30.31

Her mind in the days before Lola's house-warming played about all sorts of contradictory pictures. One moment she was her shy gauche self, struggling for bright conversation with one young man who sat with her interminably. The next she was crowded on a sofa between a dashing pair of males, another standing before her and still another at one side. She even visualized herself stimulated by the situation to brilliant talk. And Roland Wainwright, that dazzling young man, that debonaire faun, would he notice her not? Perhaps it would be months before she ran across him. As for Drake Parrelly he would never have a chance to be sorry for her again. The thought of him actually turned something over inside her.

She dressed with utmost care that Sunday. A black silk dress, light-fitting and simple, real lace at neck and wrists. A tiny tricorne hat with a half veil that enhanced soft ropper hair at cheeks and forehead. A dash of that elusive perfume, vaguely reminiscent of gardenias.

Lola's was crowded when she arrived.

"Hello, darling, come into our little bedroom and dump your coat."

Lola left her in the doorway of a charming room made jellier-skilter by innumerable wraps, bags and gloves on beds, chairs, and chaise longue. She went towards the living room and stood uncertainly in the doorway. Venice at a hundred parties as of yore. Jerry was posing cocktails and did not see her. Roland Wainwright sat on a sofa between two pretty girls. He glanced up and gave her an indifferent nod. Lola was occupied in introducing some people over near the window. The old humiliation swept her, turned her cheeks to deep pomegranate. I'll be just where I was if people have not heard, she thought.

"Hi, Venice. When did you get back?"

It was Donny Reese. She summoned a quick bright smile.

"Hello, Donny. A week ago to-morrow."

"Seems pretty flat, doesn't it, after Montmartre and Ciro's and the good old Ritz-Bar?"

"It certainly does." She must do better than this.

"On dit you set some hearts a-fire in Paris, Venice."

She smiled. Everything was going to be all right now. Donny had heard.

"It was greatly exaggerated," she said evasively.

"You can't fool the press," Donny protested.

"But the press can fool you."

"I will say your triumphs haven't spoiled you a bit, Venice."

"They shouldn't," she was enjoying herself immensely. Her double entendre was only appreciated by herself and it made her limpid grey eyes sparkle and her small mouth turn up at the corners.

With her inevitable analysis she realized that Donny was taking in her face and figure and clothes for the first time. Here was an ensemble that had wrecked the life of a marquis. It deserved attention.

"Why, Venice, you haven't had a cocktail."

It was Jerry before them with a laden tray.

"Thank you."

"I'm glad you're back, Venice," pursued Jerry. "You must live things up occasionally for an old married couple."

"I!" exclaimed Venice in all sincerity.

"Beware of this woman," Jerry laughed to Donny Reese. "She admitted to Lola that the best part of her was hidden deep."

"Oh, dear," protested Venice, quite incoherent in her resentment, "did Lola repeat that?"

"The truth is always valuable," said Donny. "Come on, let's sit down, Venice." They threaded their way to a window seat.

"You're an enigma," said Donny as they made themselves comfortable. "You've always seemed so shy."

"I am. I haven't changed a bit."

"Then how did this French fellow penetrate your reserve?"

"He took pains."

"That's going to be my cue. Will you step out with me Thursday?"

"I'd love to," Venice's heart was pounding. Her first invitation in New York in her life was a date. The very fact that she was wanted made her lose her diffidence.

"Where'll we go? Let's dance. The Lido?"

"And we had to come all the way to America to meet," she said. "It's just as well," one of them retorted. "We probably shouldn't have got a look in with all the titles that were at your heels."

"Please," American gentlemen stuffs ever a treat in the midst of decorous European hand kissing."

"What had happened to her? She gave quick repartee for repartee. There was laughter in the little group about her. This new attention crept slyly to her head. It made her bright and carefree. Suddenly her eye strayed to Roland Wainwright. She was astonished to see that he was staring at her. She allowed herself to smile.

"Did you meet Lita Chase?" asked one of the new young men.

"You mean did I listen to her?" "Your answer is a perfect commentary," he said and every one laughed. It was with this little flurry of mirth that Roland Wainwright left his place on the sofa and approached.

"How are you, Venice?" Roland Wainwright somehow insinuated himself into the little group. She was surprised that he knew her first name.

"Hello, Rollo." She shook his outstretched hand with that surprising grip of hers.

"Make room for a bloke," he laughed and squeezed in on the window seat between Donny and Venice.

"Is that nice?" protested Donny. "It's all right," said Venice. "I have to speak to Lola anyway."

She hurried over to where Lola conversed with Jerry in a corner.

"I have to go home," Venice said. "Why?" Lola protested. "Please stay."

"I can't, Lola. Thanks so much." The situation had grown too big for her. She could not cope with it gracefully and she wanted to leave before her own natural lack of vivacity gave her away. Had she realized, her leaving was a masterpiece of strategy. Roland Wainwright was disgruntled at her quick disappearance. Donny Reese was annoyed. He had wanted to take her home. And the two young men were left wondering whether she was very clever or very stupid or just merely spoilt and superficial.

Gradually but surely Venice began leading that life of which she had once longed so poignantly to be a vital part. Donny's evening, when Lola and Jerry had come to dinner and the four of them had later gone to the Lido, was a success. It was followed by his invitations for tea, dinner and dancing at the St. Regis, and the Horse Show. One of the new young men whom Venice had met at Lola's house-warming telephoned her, but this conversation embarrassed her to such an extent that she heard her saying she would not be able to see him that week. He had better telephone the next.

She was happy with the dimming of that piquety feeling at each party, but she realized that the people who danced with her continually and invited her here and there were just uncaring playfellows in a giddy game. It was curious. Was popularity really like this? A showy gloss, a surface veneer.

The Philip Mannings gave a dinner in late October that started a new wheel revolving in the machinery of Venice's popularity.

Venice sat in the beautiful wainscoted dining-room as she had some months earlier, but this time Roland Wainwright was on her left and Philip Manning on her right.

She felt so shy of Roland Wainwright to devote herself to him and her pleasantries towards the host played that that dazzling young man as no clever badinage could have done.

"For and Bettina were at South ampton all summer, weren't you?" smiled Venice.

"Yes," said Philip Manning. "Joy-hole."

"Comfortable," Venice murmured. She was conscious of Roland Wainwright's scrutiny and words eluded her. She would never see him another chance to feel that she was unduly interested in him.

"You had a gorgeous summer," Philip said. "Paris and the South and young men in love with you all over the place."

"You exaggerate, kind sir."

"Methinks not. Lola came back with glowing accounts of you and your Marquis and a devoted American she heard about."

"Lola is a human Town Topics on two feet."

Here a slender girl on Philip Manning's right said something to him and Venice was forced to turn her gazed to meet these sparkling sapphirine eyes of Roland Wainwright.

"You purposely avoid me," he complained with mock grief.

"Why should I?"

"That's what I'd like to know."

"Let's analyze it," Venice had meant this seriously. She fell gravely in towards that insolent kiss of his some months back. He took it with a laugh.

"I didn't know you could trace," he said.

"No?"

Her stupid monosyllables from one of the inefficiency of her conversational lack he accepted as death in the wake of certain European rumors.

"You're deep, Venice Muir."

"Not really," she said. More simplicity that was misunderstood. At this party of the Mannings, Venice was not one of those who gratefully slid into a game of contract after dinner. She found herself dancing in the adjoining room; and dancing chiefly with Roland Wainwright. Before the evening was over she was talking to him simply and easily, knowing a latent excitement in the realization that the eyes of the other girls were following her with envy.

He took her home. In the dim consciousness of his limousine her fervescence faded in certain speculation as to what he actually felt about her. She looked out of the window and prayed God to give her something to say.

"A penny for your thoughts?" he begged. She was discovering that you could always depend on him to pull forth a hackneyed phrase at the proper moment.

"My mind was a blank, Rollo."

"I doubt that. You think quite a lot, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"There's so much to think about."

"Waste of time, Venice. It never gets you anywhere."

"Did you ever try it?"

He was beginning to be fascinated by the frank little insouciance that he took hold of her hand. Venice was just about to draw hers away when she remembered that hand-holding was probably an hors d'oeuvre in the meal of intrigue. She left it remain. The car drew up at the curb.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—(AP)—New jump more than 21.2 cents a bushel today accompanied brisk export demand for North American wheat and ominous indications of southern Hemisphere crop shrinkage.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Nov. 16.—(AP)—An upturn in wheat, contrasting with a slump in silver bullion, provided a confusing background for the securities markets today, and share prices were finally permitted to drift lower, after fluttering uncertainly during the early trading.
