SAY CHINESE ARE FORCED TO HELP ENEMIES

Coolies at Points of Jap Bayonets Are Carrying Ammunition to Big Guns

By MORRIS J. HARRIS Copyright, 1932, by Associated Press Shanghai, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The men behind the Japanese guns in Shanghai's war of paradoxes are Chinese coolies.

In addition to their own armed and khaki-clad legions, the Japanese are being assisted in their assaults upon the Chinese 19th route army by large groups of half naked Chinese who, under force, carry to the big guns in the Japanese forward position, ammunition which is to be used on the coolies' own brothers and cousins across the lines.

The coolies are taken forward from moving by the Japanese in trucks. They are searched for arms and then carefully counted off to make certain none of them have "gone sniper."

After this they are set to work moving armaments and supplies to the front line divisions. They man a long line of heavily loaded wheelbarrows and rickshaws which link the supply depots at the front in an almost unbroken stream.

Not all of these coolies come back. Frequently they are exposed to the Chinese fire and suffer casualties. Some of them return, carried by their fellows and heavily bandaged.

They wear white armbands with a bamboo sprig as identification. They are careful to maintain a studied attitude of unconcern toward the tremendous military activity that seethes around them.

When the day is over, the coolies are again herded together at the point of the bayonet, checked off and taken back to Shanghai again.

Another army of Chinese coolies works at the Japanese air field at Yangtszepo, leveling the field for the Japanese planes, building barbed-wire entanglements, digging trenches and moving boxes of explosives from one place to another.

Several Shanghai Chinese have explained that they were waylaid by Japanese Marines and forced to the guns' point, to help unload boxes from Japanese military trucks. This was denied, however, by Japanese authorities.

Miss Eleanor Hinder, American Young Women's Christian Association secretary, reported that a Chinese servant of Miss Viola Smith, United States trade commissioner, was taken, with a group of ten others, by six Japanese marines and required to work 24 hours unloading trucks under a threat of death if he refused.

Funeral For Col. G. E. Webb Be Held Friday

Charlotte, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Col. Garland E. Webb, 78, former mayor of Winston-Salem, secretary of the Winston-Salem Tobacco Board of Trade and former secretary of the United States, who died at the home of a son here last night, is to be buried in Durham Friday.

Colonel Webb's death came suddenly, although his health had not been good for some time. He came here 10 days ago.

His widow survives, with the following children: C. H. Webb, Lexington, Ky.; A. M. Webb, Charlotte; Miss Addie Webb, Raleigh; Miss Charlotte Webb, Cromwell, Va. A sister, Mrs. H. Crabtree, of Durham, also survives.

He was a native of Orange county, and made his home in Durham for some time about 40 years ago. He was publisher of the Southern tobacco Journal.

Van Buren Riddick Dies at Belvoir Home

Van Buren Riddick, aged 72, died yesterday afternoon at the home of his son in Belvoir township.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Tyson at the home this afternoon at two o'clock. Burial was in the Hathaway cemetery near Belvoir.

Mr. Riddick is survived by one son, E. R. Riddick, with whom he made his home, and two daughters, Mrs. Etta Jordan of Hillsboro, and Mrs. Jesse Bird of Lumberton.

CHINESE HOLD ON AS SHELLS RIP CHAPEI AREA

Chinese soldiers have surprised the world with their tenacity and ability to hold their own against Japan's superior equipment and better trained troops. Here is a scene behind the Chinese lines after the battle around Shanghai had raged for more than a week. Two Chinese defenders are shown in a sandbag protected machine gun nest in the Chapel district. The picture, one of the most recent from the war zone, was rushed to San Francisco by airplane from Victoria, B. C., and transmitted by telephoto to New York.

BLAME HOOVER FOR ECONOMIC STATUS NATION

Speaker Garner Says President has Led Us into Greatest Panic World's Known.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(AP)—President Hoover's economic and prohibition views crashed into the pre-convention presidential race spotlight today.

Secretary Hurley said Chairman Raskob of the Democratic National committee and his associates were "slandering and misrepresenting the president" and were not in a position to give the executive's prohibition views.

At the same time, Speaker Garner, who is being pushed for the Democratic presidential nomination, said at a press conference that the president had "led us into the greatest panic the country or world has ever known."

The war secretary's statement was made in reply to a speech by Raskob last night in New York in which the Democratic chairman said he had "good information that President Hoover will run on a prohibition referendum platform if his party should adopt such a platform."

"Mr. Raskob is in a position to speak much more accurately of the amount of money that he and his associates have spent slandering and misrepresenting the president of the United States than he is as to the president's views on the 18th amendment," the secretary replied.

"It appears a little far-fetched for the chairman of the Democratic national committee to attempt to interpret the views of the president on the subject."

Asked if he was speaking for the president, the secretary smilingly said: "No, I'm not speaking for the president."

Garner's statement was made when he was asked to comment on (Continued on page four)

CREDIT BILL IS ADOPTED

Final Congressional Action is Completed on the Glass-Steagall Measure.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Congressional action on the credit expansion bill was completed today. The Senate approved the conference report adjusting differences over the legislation between the two branches of Congress within an hour after the House had given its formal approval.

This measure opening the way for new credit for the nation's banks from the Federal Reserve System and freeing millions in gold for new currency now goes to the White House.

President Hoover was expected to sign it quickly. Senator Glass (D., Va.), co-sponsor of the legislation, brought the conference report before the Senate as soon as it was received from the house. He made a brief explanation of the agreements and without another word of discussion or roll call the Senate approved the bill.

ers are treated at field dressing stations. The victims are very young, some of them not more than fourteen or fifteen—boys who will never see again, children who have lost legs and arms, others frightfully wounded about the face.

Many cases are hopeless but the nurses do what they can to make the last hours as comfortable as possible. Today 350 were brought in, nearly all of them victims of Japanese bombing raids. Despite their wounds many of them cling tenaciously to their precious rifles right up to the gates of the settlement where soldiers of the neutral forces seized the guns.

"It's a real satisfaction to help these poor devils," said Dr. Hambleton, "every foreigner on this staff is going to stay on the job until the emergency is over."

E. G. FLANAGAN APPOINTED TO FINANCE CORP.

Will Serve as Member of Advisory Committee to Newly Created Relief Body.

Mr. E. G. Flanagan today received a telegram from Congressman Lindsay Warren announcing Mr. Flanagan's appointment as a member of the North Carolina Advisory Committee of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation an office which is to be opened at Charlotte at an early date. While the announcement was a surprise to Mr. Flanagan he expressed appreciation of the mark of confidence denoted by the appointment and stated he would accept.

Mr. Flanagan, a native of Greenville, is one of the county's foremost citizens and business men. In addition to his interest in the John Flanagan Buggy Company, he is interested in several other businesses in the city and is president of the Greenville Banking and Trust Company. He has served the county efficiently as one of its representatives in the three past sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation today announced the establishment of a loan agency of Charlotte, and appointed John A. Campbell, Jr., as its manager.

The advisory committee for the agency has not yet been completed. The corporation will not make public the names of the committee until all the places on it have been filled.

Charlotte, Feb. 25.—(AP)—The Observer today quotes Senator Oliver Morrison as saying that John A. Campbell, assistant secretary-treasurer of the American Trust Company, of Charlotte, will be in charge of a branch of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which will open within the next few days.

Mr. Campbell, Asheville native who came here two years ago after being a state bank examiner, said he had not been notified of his appointment.

Senator Morrison said the Charlotte branch would operate under the supervision of a board of directors composed of five North Carolinians and three South Carolinians. The North Carolinians named were Word H. Wood, president of the American Trust Company, Charlotte; H. M. Victor, president and cashier of the Commercial National Bank, Charlotte; F. H. Coffey, president of the Union National Bank, Lenoir, and Reuben B. Robertson of Asheville and Canton, president of the Champion Fiber Company. Senator Morrison said he could not give the names of the South Carolinians.

Mr. Wood, who was said to be slated for chairmanship of the board, said he was not acquainted with the duties which would fall to the branch, adding that he and R. M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, members of the Reconstruction Corporation advisory committee for the fifth Federal Reserve District, were to attend a meeting of the committee in Richmond today.

Dispatches from Lenoir said that Mr. Coffey, not previously a member, had been appointed to the committee yesterday.

To Continue Rate Hearings At Washington

Raleigh, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Cross-examination of witnesses for opposing railroads and other untried portions of the Interstate Commerce Commission freight rate hearing which has been under way here will be resumed in Washington Saturday, Examiner Howard Hoemer announced.

Representatives of Virginia cities both those opposing and those favoring North Carolina's petition for rates in keeping with those set for northern Virginia points, appeared before the examiner yesterday, along with representatives of the carriers.

SAY PRISONERS CARRIED KEYS TO THE CELLS

Report on Hawaiian Prison Says Inmates Free to Go and Come as They Please

Honolulu, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A story of convicts carrying the keys to their cells and the outer gates of the penitentiary, and of prisoners leaving for night or week-end visits is told in a report of the Hawaiian prison directors to Governor Lawrence M. Judd.

The report covered the state of affairs during the height of Honolulu's recent crime wave when the Oahu prison was under the administration of High Sheriff John C. Lane. Lane resigned in January after being censured by the governor. The report said conditions have been improved under the new sheriff, Major Gordon Ross of the territorial national guard, who has placed the convicts under strict but fair discipline.

Misappropriation of supplies and moral laxity of prisoners as evidenced by birth of a child to a woman prisoner were included in the sweeping charges of gross mismanagement and lax control. Liquor was frequently brought into the penitentiary the report said.

Prison conditions were first brought to light with the escape on Dec. 31 of two prisoners who, the board said, were gone several hours before the administration knew it. One, Lui Kalkapu, Hawaiian burglar, assaulted the wife of a prominent Honolulu business man the next day, was recaptured and sentenced to life imprisonment. His companion, Daniel Lyman, murderer, was at large 30 days.

Escape of the convicts and revelation many were allowed to roam the island without guards added to the feeling of apprehension among residents already alarmed by the outbreak of assaults upon women. Among the assault victims was the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., who with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and two naval enlisted men, have been indicted for second degree murder in connection with the slaying of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the alleged attackers.

Lieut. H. C. Johnson, assigned by the navy to aid in the defense of the fort, left Honolulu last night for San Francisco to meet Clarence Darrow and discuss details of the case should the noted Chicago criminal attorney join in the defense.

Government Puts More Guards Around Capone

Chicago, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The government today established a 24-hour guard of deputy United States marshals at the cell door of "Scarface" Al Capone, awaiting in Cook county jail the outcome of his appeal from an income tax conviction.

The action, constituting a precedent for federal prisoners in this area, was taken ostensibly to keep outsiders from reaching Capone.

United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenhimer refused to discuss the action or to confirm whisperings of a jail break. Repeated reports have been circulated that Capone has been overseeing the business of his syndicate from his cell, and that his lieutenants had easy access to him.

Two months ago the federal authorities investigated the reports and ordered strictness in issuing passes to Capone's cell. Gossip from the underworld has been that the chief would never serve any part of the 10 years in penitentiary for evading income tax.

The marshal said he received permission for the extra guards from Attorney General Mitchell in Washington yesterday.

KIANGWAN IS SURROUNDED

Chinese Counter Attack Successful; Jap Planes Bomb Airports; Both Sides Claim Victory in the Day's Engagements.

By MORRIS J. HARRIS (Associated Press Correspondent) Shanghai, Saturday, Feb. 27.—(AP)—In a slashing counter-attack just after midnight the Chinese army drove the enemy out of the Miaoanhang sector this morning and held on against desultory machine gun fire.

"We can't claim any great gain," said General Tsai Ting-Kai in an early morning communique, "but we have succeeded in ousting the Japanese from the Miaoanhang sector during a counterattack. The outcome of Friday's fighting was more than gratifying."

When the fury of the attack had spent itself the sector subsided into relative quiet and on the Chapel front there were only occasional outbursts of artillery and rifle fire as scouting parties stalked each other in no man's land.

On the Kiangwan front, where the Japanese have threatened to "bomb them out or starve them out," the beleaguered Chinese were holding the town against the greater part of the attacking army. Friday's advance swung the Japanese line around the walled village, but volleys or rifle and machine gun fire spiked an effort to close the bottle neck west of the town through which the defenders were receiving food and ammunition.

Japanese themselves confessed there was not the slightest indication the defense had weakened under the merciless pounding of the past week, but they said it was only a matter of time before the ancient walls would crumble under the persistent bombing from the air and shelling from artillery.

Shanghai, China, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Japanese troops, advancing into machine gun fire, surrounded the town of Kiangwan a few minutes before midnight tonight.

"If we can't bomb them out we'll starve them out," said a spokesman at Japanese headquarters. The Chinese resistance was so stubborn that starvation appeared to be the only weapon which could succeed against them.

The spokesman said the Japanese losses in the past 24 hours of heavy fighting were 20 killed and wounded.

Fresh Japanese troops began arriving on various additional light artillery equipment suitable for the low damp terrain net worked by irrigation canals. This swamp ground has seriously handicapped the Japanese in bringing up equipment including airplanes, which have been more effective than the artillery in blasting out Chinese machine gun nests and the Chinese support trenches.

The Japanese it was understood, will launch a big drive in the Kiangwan area, to push in a wedge. They hoped to separate the Chinese forces definitely by flanking the Chinese in the Kiangwan area and definitely cut the Wousung end of the front from the Chapel end.

Heretofore the Japanese strategy has been to cut the line and swing a double gate, one end hung on Wousung and the other on Chapel.

Now the strategy appears to be either to bottle up both Chapel and Wousung by various flanking movements or finally by sheer force to compel a general Chinese retreat toward the 12-mile limit set by General Kenkichi Ueda.

By JAMES P. HOWE (Copyright, 1932 by A. P.)

Jahneke of the navy, last night at Shanghai, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Japanese naval aviators, equipped with heavy bombs, began a sweeping campaign today to destroy all Chinese aviation fields over a wide district around Shanghai while on the short sector northwest of Kiangwan the Japanese delivered another attack upon the Chinese without gaining much ground.

A Japanese naval spokesman said late this afternoon that Japanese fliers bombed the Chinese airdrome at Hangchow this morning, destroying a number of Chinese planes and that they continued their raids, bombing three

The Futility of Swearing

George Washington, in a reprimand to the American army for their loose and impious tongues, refers to profane cursing and swearing as a vice so mean and low, without any temptation, that every man of sense and character detests and despises it.

There is no logical reason why one should so abuse himself by giving vent to a gurgling flow of foolish, crude oaths. This blowing off of steam may relieve one's irritation for a moment, but if one has sufficient character to exercise his will-power, he need not blow off steam in any form or manner.

Cursing is futile; it is impossible to harm anyone or anything by any amount of it. One who swears when plighted might be easily compared to a child who, when he stumbles over his trierick, kicks it—and hurts his foot. Why be so fatuous?

A conspicuous quality in a gentleman is his self-control. He is altogether free from any vulgar outburst of profanity; thus he differs from the foul-mouthed boar.

Biology Class Renders Program

This morning at the regular chapel period the fifth of a series of character education programs was presented by the second period biology class under the capable direction of Mrs. Bessie Picklesimer.

The theme for this program was "The Importance of Clean, Wholesome Living." The first item on the program was a talk, "Type of Friends We Should Choose," by Tolle Williams. Next came a short talk by Llewellyn Thornton, "Our Conversations With Our Companions and Our Amusements." A trumpet solo by Miss Edith Morton of E. C. T. C., accompanied by fluence of Food and Bad Moving Pansy Lanier, also of the college, was enjoyed very much. "The In-Pictures," was discussed by Maggie Parker. Billy Morion spoke on "The Kind of Books We Should Read." The closing number was a vocal solo by Helen Phelps.

Emms Blanchard was chairman of the program.

After the program, Mr. Porter presented letters and stars to the football squad.

Doubleheader Basketball Game

A doubleheader of unusual interest will be played tonight in the high school gymnasium. At seven o'clock the local sophomore girls will play the Kinston junior team. At eight o'clock the varsity will play the aggregation from Kinston.

The line-up for the Greenville team follows: Horne, Bostic, Dixon, Cox, Gaston and Cahoon.

It is expected this double header will attract a large crowd.

Girls Lose to Elizabeth City

On Friday evening, February 19, the Elizabeth City girls' basketball team was victor over the Greenville team by a score of 36 to 18. The game was played at Elizabeth City.

Football Squad Given Letters

This morning during the regular chapel period the football squad received their letters. Coach C. W. Porter presented stars to Dan Wright, end; Donald Langston, quarter-back; Carl Cahoon, half-back; Moark Turnage, full-back;

The Greenville girls are very good on their feet, but on Friday night they were exceptionally good. They were so good they were on their heads much of the time.

The girls played a fine game. Who would mind losing to such a team as that of Elizabeth City? They have a wonderful spirit; and no matter whether they win or lose, their spirit is always the same. Of course, the Greenville girls were the title, as both are out of the High scorer for Greenville was Bostic, who made eight points; for Elizabeth City, Wilkins, who made 12 points.

The line-up for Greenville was Bostic, Horne, Dixon, Cox, Gaston, and Cahoon. Substitutes were Sooville, Whitehurst, Crawford, and Hooper.

Representatives Chosen

On Wednesday at the home-room period the four classes of the Greenville high school held separate class meetings to elect two delegates each. One delegate from each class, accompanied by a faculty member, will visit the Goldsboro high school, and a similar delegation will go to Kinston.

The freshmen selected as their representatives Helen McGinnis and Helen Foley. From the sophomores Tom Wilson and Rosamond Van Dyke were chosen. The Juniors, after two meetings agreed on Carl Joyner and George Willard. Ed Skinner and Louis Skinner, Jr., were selected from the seniors.

Salvation Army Bundle Day Here Saturday, Mar. 5

Bundle Day for the Salvation Army will be held here on Saturday of next week according to announcement made today, and every resident of the city is urged to get together all articles of discarded clothing to be turned over to the Army for use in its relief work in this vicinity. The need for clothing at this time is greater than ever before, according to those in close touch with the relief work, and everyone is urged to help in this matter.

On Bundle Day the Boy Scouts will make a house to house canvass of the city to take up the bundles. In the meantime persons who have bundles ready may have them called for by notifying Salvation Army headquarters at 519 Greene Street, telephone 13.

McLellan Stores Use Newspapers for Advertising

"Present conditions in the business world make it possible for McLellan Stores to bring even lower prices than usual to the people of Greenville," declared Mr. F. F. Taylor, advertising manager of McLellan Stores Company.

"It has always been our policy to cooperate in every way with the community activities of the cities in which our stores are located," Mr. Taylor continued. "Who believe that one of the best ways a retailer can serve his community is by giving the merchandise people want at the lowest prices consistent with sound business practice. We believe that by eliminating waste and running an efficient store we are performing that service.

"We employ the young men and women of the community, deposit funds in the local banks, advertise in the local newspapers, use the skilled services of its craftsmen in erecting and maintaining the plant which houses the store, and incidentally, give indirect employment to other people in the community by the necessary use of light, heat, power, expressage, trucking and the like, which the conduct of a prosperous business entails."

McLellan Stores Company has made rapid growth in the past 16 years from a small group of stores in North Carolina to the present chain of 278 stores located through out the country from Maine to New Mexico.

Testing the value of newspaper advertising, the new sales promotion department, recently set up in the New York office, found that well-planned advertising more than paid for itself in increased business and sales volume. As a result, McLellan Stores Company is launching a nation wide advertising campaign.

The McLellan Stores Company has selected the Daily Reflector to carry its message of values to the people of Greenville and its environs, believing that through its pages, the store's message will reach the majority of alert and intelligent people of the community.

Garden Club.

Farmville, Feb. 25.—Mrs. J. M. Wheeler was hostess to the Garden Club at the February meeting held on Monday afternoon of this week.

Miss Tabitha DeVisconti presided calling attention to the fact that this department of the Woman's Club had been in existence for four years and enumerated some of its achievements since organization.

Miss Bettie Joyner gave a report of the planting of approaches to the town, which was begun by the Woman's Club recently, and the club noted the improvements being made by the town in vacant lots and of the trees transplanted by the various organizations during the past month.

The program for the afternoon consisted of an article, "The Venus Fly Trap," read by Mrs. A. C. Monk; a talk on "The Flower and Tree of the Month" by Miss Bettie Joyner, and a paper "Trees As Related to French History" by Mrs. A. C. Jones.

Merry Matrons.

Farmville, Feb. 25.—The George Washington idea was effectively carried out at the Merry Matrons' meeting on Tuesday afternoon, at which Mrs. J. O. Pollard was hostess; the spring flowers and refreshments carrying the national colors and the contest cards, which were embellished with flags, related to the Revolutionary period; the prize a silhouette of Washington being won by Mrs. J. T. Thorne.

The program on "English Art in the 18th and 19th Centuries" was developed with a paper on "Gainsborough and Romney," written by Mrs. J. T. Thorne and read by Dr. Annie Joyner, and another by Mrs. W. Leslie Smith dealing with the life and works of Lawrence, Kaufman and Hopper, and an exhibition of pictures of these artists.

Mrs. B. O. Turnage presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. J. W. Parker, who sent a crate of mock oranges for the members from Florida, where she has been enjoying a motor trip for the past two weeks.

In addition to the club members the hostess had as guests, Mesdames W. A. Pollard Jr., John Dwight Holmes, Roy Lyles, W. N. Spruill, L. E. Flowers, J. M. Christian and Dr. Annie Joyner.

Special.

Colonial Tea.

Farmville, Feb. 25.—The local celebration of George Washington's birthday was furthered by an elaborate colonial tea, given by the Junior Woman's Club on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Mary Wheeler, in compliment to the Senior Club.

The guests were welcomed by Miss Wheeler and Mrs. J. Q. Beckwith Jr. The national colors prevailed in the floral arrangement, and a portrait of Washington, painted by Stuart, having been in the family of Mrs. Harold Suggs Askew for 92 years, had a prominent position in the hall, being illuminated and flag draped with table decorations of cherry blossoms. Silver trays containing appropriate favors were also placed there and were distributed by Miss Elizabeth Fields and Mrs. Harry Lang.

Misses Clara Bell Modlin and Margaret Lewis received at the door of the music room, where Mrs. A. Q. Roebuck and Mrs. John Dwight Holmes rendered an entertaining musical program.

Receiving at the dining room door were Mrs. W. A. Pollard Jr., and Mrs. Judd Walker. Here tea was poured by Mrs. Harold Suggs Askew, president of the Junior Club, and Mrs. G. S. Vought, sponsor, with Misses Delphia Parker, Minnie Gabriel Bland, Louise Smith, Mallette Green, Mesdames Mae Carraway and Charles Vincent serving a variety of sandwiches, cheese wafers, salted nuts and mints. The lace covered table was centered with a silver bowl of mixed flowers, red, white and blue, flanked by red candles in silver holders.

Hostess to Card Club.

Farmville, Feb. 25.—The Progressive Bridge Club was delightfully entertained on Thursday afternoon by Mrs. W. C. Holston at her home on Pine street. Decorations of Japanese quince, spirea and narcissus were used with charming effect in the living room, where three tables were arranged for the games. High score prize, an attractive piece of pottery, was presented to Mrs. George Holston at the conclusion of six progressions, after which a sweet course was served.

Cheerio Bridge Club Meets.

Bethel, Feb. 25.—The members of the Cheerio Bridge Club and several additional guests were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Vance Bunting Friday afternoon at her home.

Early spring flowers and shaded lights added to the attractiveness of the home. Five tables were arranged for the games.

Winterville Club Meets.

Winterville, Feb. 26.—The February meeting of the Winterville Home Demonstration Club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. A. Barnes.

"Follow the Gleam" was sung and the club collect repeated. "We Believe in the South" was also sung.

The club decided to plant a cedar tree on the school campus as a memorial to Dr. B. T. Cox who died last November, the planting to be done on Monday, the 29th at 2:00 p. m., with appropriate exercises.

Miss Nice was present and gave a most helpful demonstration in cooking both tender and tough cuts of meat. This was followed by an interesting contest.

A large group of women were present and entered heartily into the spirit of the work.

Mrs. Geo. Rouse will be hostess at the March meeting.

Mrs. Andrews Entertains.

Bethel, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Leland Andrews gave a delightful party at her home Monday evening, entertaining the members of the Contract Bridge Club and several invited guests.

Tallies suggestive of George Washington's birthday were used. Several interesting and spirited progressions were enjoyed. When the cards were laid aside and scores added, Mr. Irving Taylor was found to hold high score among the members and was awarded a pretty gift. Mrs. William Andrews scored high for the visitors and was presented a dainty handkerchief.

JAPAN, UNITED STATES AND BOYCOTT

In the present Far Eastern crisis one must face existing conditions without being controlled by preconceptions. The possibility of war is not to be ignored. However much we may have favored American membership in the League or the internationalist conception of safeguarding peace which the League embodies, the United States is not a member. This fact creates special difficulties and embarrassments that must be taken into account. It is to be hoped that Americans will not advocate the adoption of drastic measures against Japan by the United States without, so far as may be, thinking the subject through.

The League might set up an economic blockade of Japan on the ground, as stated in Article 16 of the covenant, that Japan "had committed an act of war against all other members of the League" by disregarding its covenants under Articles 12, 13 and 15. But, inasmuch as the United States is not a member of the League, Japan would not have committed an act of war against this country by its proceedings. If the United States, therefore, should adopt drastic blockade measures parallel to those of the League, they might be viewed by Japan as an attack unwarranted by a non-League member and as justifying in return a Japanese declaration of war against this country alone instead of against the League. In that case, a hostile Japanese fleet might appear the next morning in Manila Bay.

Our economic boycott of Japan could not now be shielded by the League covenant to which Japan is a signatory. Nor does the Briand-Kellogg pact provide for its enforcement. If we should take economic measures equivalent to war, or just short of war, for the coercion of Japan, their justification would have to be sought on either grounds. What grounds. The international lawyers may be left at this point to wrestle with the question.

The primary, if not fatal, defect in our position, so far as joining in an economic blockade of Japan is concerned, in order to make it really pinch and bite, is that the United States did not become a member of the League long ago. If it is essential to blockade Japan, the League is as necessary to the United States as the United States is to the League.

And there is Russia to think of. Russia is not a member of the League. Article 16 of the covenant stipulates, in case a blockade of Japan is declared, that the blockade shall prevent "all financial, commercial or personal intercourse between nationals of the covenant-breaking State and the nationals of any other State, whether a member of the League or not." Russia has a land frontier around Japanese Korea as well as Manchuria. How the Russians can be kept by a boycott effective mainly by sea, from all financial, commercial and personal intercourse with the Japanese is a mystery.

It is probable that the Japanese thought out these points long before we began to. They may have underestimated Chinese powers of resistance, but they must have explored thoroughly the deplorable situation arising in a crisis from the legal separation of the League from two great world powers — themselves not on speaking terms—even when the actual interests of those two powers in Asia were identical with the League's.

The world front against Japan as an aggressor State might have been made solid and impregnable if the United States had in season become a member of the League and had followed the general European example of according Russia diplomatic recognition. Under present conditions the responsibilities and hazards attending an economic blockade supported by the United States are formidable and are not to be lightly assumed. — (Springfield Republican.)

DEMAND EXPLANATION JAP REQUEST FOR TROOP TRAINS

Chinese Eastern railway, partly Russian owned for troop transportation, charging that "in reality the troops were expected to be sent to the Soviet border."

The request for an explanation was made by L. M. Karakhan, Soviet acting commissar for foreign affairs. It was revealed today following the publication in Moscow newspapers of reports from the correspondent of the Tass (Russian news agency) at Peiping that a "white" Russian force was being recruited in Northern Manchuria under Japanese auspices to invade Caldivostok and the Russian province of Primor.

The dispatch to the Tass agency from Peiping was dated February 23, two days before Acting Commissar Karakhan's request, although it was published only yesterday.

M. Karakhan's conversation with the Japanese ambassador was verbal. He charged that the "white" Russian activities were being carried on in Manchuria "under the protection and with the direct support of the Japanese." For this he also requested an explanation from the Japanese government.

Besides this, he said, Japanese military authorities of Harbin proposed a contract with the Chinese Eastern railway to transport regular troops at a reduction of 50 percent of the ordinary cost and to carry gratis Japanese troops sent to guard the railway. In addition, he called for information about the character of the newly formed Manchurian government.

The dispatch to the Tass from Peiping also said that the Japanese Manchurian forces planned to attack Trans-Baikal province, the eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern Railway. At the same time that the "white" Russian group was to invade Primor province.

Acting Commissar Karakhan questioned Ambassador Hirota on four points. First, he called attention to the request of the Japanese command at Harbin for 17 troop trains to move soldiers from Imenpo to Pogranichini. He said this request was made "under the pretext of defending the lives of Japanese residents in the latter city", but that it was "not usual, because the troops were expected to be sent to the Soviet border."

"Such a matter," he said, "is not within the authority of the board of the Chinese Eastern Railway and the Soviet government would like to know if the request was made with the knowledge of the Japanese government. If it was, the Soviet government wants an explanation."

Secondly, Ambassador Hirota was told the action of the Japanese military command at Harbin in proposing the contract for reduced rates and free transportation of troops was "of a political character and could not be decided by the railway management, because the railway is a strictly commercial enterprise."

"The question is related," M. Karakhan said, "to the existing treaty between the Soviet Union and Japan on the one side and the Soviet Union and China on the other. The Soviet government asks whether the Japanese government really knows about this and requests an explanation."

Thirdly, M. Karakhan, requesting an explanation of the activities of "white" Russians in Manchuria, informed the Ambassador these activities were being carried out "under the protection and direct support of the Japanese" and that these facts did not coincide with "previous declarations made to the Soviet Government that 'white' Russians would not be supported by the Japanese."

Fourthly, he asked information about the new Manchurian government which the Soviet press has charged is a mere puppet directed by Japan. Ambassador Hirota promised to refer the inquiries to Tokyo.

At the same time Moscow newspapers made public a speech of General Blunkher, chief of the Far Eastern Soviet army at Khabarovsk, on the occasion of the 14th anniversary of the Red army.

"The Far Eastern Army," General Blunkher was quoted as saying "having grown stronger in late years, is ready at any time to defend the country as it proceeds to build Socialism."

"Under present conditions in the Far East we must be especially vigilant. We will not allow a 'white' guard imperialist canaille to smash our Socialist land and our collective fields with their dirty boots. If anybody tries to stretch his dirty paws for our coal, timber and oil wells, he may be sure that for each ton of coal, each cubic meter of timber, each tractor, and each pound of fish we will fight stronger and more obstinately than we fought in 1929."

"Let this be remembered by those who try to attack us." He concluded, adding the words of Joseph Stalin, Soviet dictator; "We do not want an inch of foreign land but we will not give up a single inch of ours."

BALLARD ROBBERY CASE AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

(Continued from page one) ment of Fred Powell in the hands of the sheriff in which he alleges that a bottle of whiskey was given him by Mr. Ballard on Monday to give to L. W. Gaylord, attorney for Whitley and Cox, in the hope of keeping him from appearing before the Supreme court in Raleigh on Tuesday.

According to Powell's signed statement Mr. and Mrs. Ballard approached him to the subject of delivering the whiskey to Gaylord and he agreed to do it and later Mr. and Mrs. Ballard came down the street and delivered the bottle of whiskey to him. Expressing belief that the whiskey was either doped or poisoned and was intended to put Gaylord in such a condition as to prevent his going to Raleigh, Powell's statement said he left the bottle of whiskey in the Proctor Hotel Barber Shop and then went to Gaylord to tell him not to take any whiskey from anybody because they were trying to keep him from going to Raleigh but Gaylord was busy and he did not get to talk to him. The bottle of whiskey remained in the barber shop overnight and Tuesday morning when Frank Lockamy, manager of the shop, inquired about how it came to be in the shop the negro bootblack informed him that it was intended for Mr. Gaylord but was believed to have been poisoned. Mr. Lockamy immediately took it to Sheriff Whitehurst and an investigation of the matter was begun. The whiskey was taken to the laboratory of Teachers College here for analysis but it did not show signs of any deadly poison but whether or not there were drugs in it has not yet been learned.

It is understood that the contents of the bottle will be sent to the state laboratory in Raleigh for further analysis. Pending the outcome of this test there will be no charge against the Ballards.

The highway robbery charge against Whitley and Cox was the outgrowth of an alleged hold-up on the street here in which Mrs. Ballard was said to have been relieved of about $4,200. After Whitley and Cox had been convicted it was learned that Mrs. Ballard, the day after the robbery had carried a large amount of money to Wilson and placed it in a safe deposit box in a Wilson bank under an assumed name. Alleging that this was the money that they were charged with taking from her and that they had been prosecuted on a trumped up charge Whitley and Cox immediately filed a slander suit against Mrs. Ballard. Later the verdict in the robbery case was set aside and on Tuesday of this week the Supreme court heard the argument on this last phase of the case.

TO MAKE WAR ON CIGARET BOOTLEGGERS

Birmingham, Feb. 25. — (AP) — Cigaret scowflaws who evade tax regulations by bootlegging methods will have to dodge border patrols if tax agencies of six southern states have their way.

Officials of Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, South Carolina and Arkansas met here yesterday and recommended establishment of patrols to guard state lines.

The cigarette bootleggers, they said, often use private automobiles to run their untaxed products from one state to another. It would be the job of the patrols to prevent such smuggling.

"I like a Fair Fighter"

THAT'S one of the things I like most about Chesterfields... the attitude of the people who make them. They positively lean over backwards to be fair and square.

"I've been watching their advertisements for years. And do you know the thing that struck me most forcibly? They're so reasonable! Just a plain straightforward statement of facts. No wild claims... Nothing that's hard to believe!

"I wouldn't want to be a competitor of Chesterfield! They make too good a cigarette! I really believe they're the mildest I ever tasted.

"I can smoke Chesterfields any hour of the day or night... They're so mild, I don't even bother to keep track of how many I've smoked. They must be purer, too... they certainly taste better to me!"

Boy Crazy

By GRACE PERKINS
AUTHOR OF "PERSONAL MARRIAGE"

SYNOPSIS: Peacefully engaged to Rusey Crandall, Hope Ross suddenly hears that her former husband, Dickey Dale, is sailing on the same boat that carries her best friend, Judy, and Hope determines to sail also. Ever since her father annulled her marriage, Hope has wanted to see Dickey. Now is her chance.

Chapter 29 AN ORIGINAL LOAN

Fourteen minutes after the ship had drawn from the dock, Hope went to the purser and explained things. Paying by check for passage and reservation, even agreeing to bunk in with a school teacher from the middle-west if she had to. Offering to let him wire Papa, or her bank, or anyone he pleased. God bless her inheritance—she didn't have to depend upon Papa's ideas and whims.

Then quietly, she herself went to the telegraph office and sent two radiograms. One to Mrs. Manly asking her to please take over the shop on Madison Avenue. And one to Papa Ross.

"Dear Dad," she wrote with trembling determination, "I am sailing with Judy who seems to need a chaperon on her wedding. Don't worry and please remember that I am over twenty-one now and no infant."

Love to you and Mama.
Hope."

Directly from the wireless room Hope made her way, still writing Sassy under one arm, into the writing room.

A trace of the gambler's smile still lingered on Hope's lips as she scratched urgent and whole-souled hieroglyphics over three or four sheets of quite entertaining stationery. Yet the mist of tears in her eyes that clung to her overgrown lashes, and the trembling of her hand as she wrote, were the merest proofs of her inner turmoil.

"Rusty darling: 'You'll hate me. I hate myself. I can't even think how rotten I am—and God knows, honey, I'm not worthy of your love for me. I know, because I love like that, only it isn't you I love. You know that, don't you? You've always known how I love Dickey. I've sailed on this boat tonight because he's on it; and I couldn't stand another week of not seeing him and knowing—"

"I'll always be fond of you. I may be all kinds of a beast, but when it all boils down, I'm a one-man woman; and if that one man isn't to be had then I might as well go to the devil alone, and not drag you with me."

Please understand. But then you've always understood as nobody else ever has. I'll never forget the nights you let me cry it out on your shoulder about Dickey. You said once—do you remember?—that you'd give your soul to bring him back to me! That's how much you cared for me. So you can understand how much I care—for him."

I'd give my soul not to hurt you, dear. But what I'm doing just can't be helped. I'm sorry.

With breathless haste she sealed the letter, and dashed off to get it on the shore post that went on the pilot boat. Then, just as suddenly, she kept the note from slipping through the slit in the letter box, and decided to send the letter as a wire, regardless of cost. She owed it to Rusty to let him know as quickly as Dad knew.

Back up to the operator's room she dashed—only to feel a bit close to blushing as the officer read it and gasped.

Then she ambled back to the purser and found that an arrangement had been made. A certain Miss Millie Seabrook was quite agreeable to sharing her room, amazed that someone had offered to pay its entire cost, and let Miss Millie travel across free.

Down to the stateroom went Hope—Millie Seabrook was a young Southerner, who taught 43 little boys from September to June and before long Hope had her own ideas of what she taught them) and who had saved up for three years for a trip to Europe first-class.

Somehow it had never occurred to Hope that school teachers might fall in love. But Miss Seabrook was in love. Sublimely in love with a Frenchman who had done something brave with her mother during the war. Minute were the descriptions of Henri's letters, and numerous were Henri's pictures for Hope to look at. Millie had never met Henri! But she was certainly bound for romance now, with Alabama and 43 little boys beautifully forgotten.

By two a. m. the two lovelorn cabin-mates were sound asleep. Early the next morning Hope was up and dressed. After a brisk walk, Hope was bundled up in a deck chair in the sun by eleven o'clock.

A book was in her hands. Upside down. While Hope let her thoughts parade through her mind, she kept her bright eyes alert for shy glimpses of those who paced the deck in front of her.

And they came! She saw them as they first rounded the starboard side of the deck in the wind, Dick and Hickey, coated and capped, marching around the deck. Hickey neither saw her as they passed, talking earnestly.

And breathless she watched their backs and waited after they disappeared from sight.

Around they came again, and Hope simply could not keep her eyes on the upside down book. Both saw her that time. One grim embarrassed glance, and Dickey lowered his eyes, a flush gathering under the swarthy tan of his clean-shaven face.

But Hickey didn't look away. Hickey, with his gun-powder hair sticking out like tufts under his cap, and his gray-white mustache that was a new acquisition since Hope's day. With brusque dignity Hickey acknowledged the mute appeal of Hope's wide-eyed stare with a stiff bow and a mumbled word.

But they didn't come around again! Late in the afternoon she retired to take a nap, and give the little school teacher some tart advice on men. Heading Millie, as a result, off to the barber shop for a hair-cut. Immediately she was gone. Hope sent a note over to Judy's room.

"Judy darling: 'I quite understand your complete absence at breakfast and luncheon. Nor will I care if you don't come down to dinner. But do you mind looking through your luggage for two suitcases of mine, and sending them over to Room 217? Love to you and Tom, and my blessings. Hope."

"P. S. The weather out on deck is grand. You shouldn't be missing it."

As she expected, twenty minutes later Judy herself appeared at Room 217, a porter beside her carrying the valises.

"Hope, for the love of my sainted Aunt Amelia, what are you doing on this boat—and in such a cabin?" "Judy darling! Don't you make a sweet married woman!"

"Judy," said Hope slowly. "I'm rotten. A complete and utter no-good. I've ditched Rusty. For good. In an inexcusable way, and I certainly have done him mean!" "Gee—the poor kid! But, why, Hope?"

"I've never loved Rusty, and he knew it. I guess everybody knew it. But I do love somebody else. You certainly ought to know how much. And Judy—he's on this boat! And that's why I'm here!"

"Well, of all the forms of insanity! Hope, you're just asking for punishment!" "I've had some already. Dickey wouldn't look at me this morning. And his father barely bowed. But, Judy, you must help me. You must. It's so important!"

"Darling, I'll do anything. Didn't you help me land Tom? I'll go talk to Dick Right now."

"No! You're not to do that. Don't you dare say a word. Promise me. Listen, Judy, I'm perfectly willing to make an idiot of myself, but I don't want Dickey to know what a perfect fool I am. I don't want him to know I'm chasing him. See?"

"Well, then, what can I do?" Hope leaned back and fixed her lifetime friend with a probing stare.

"Did you really mean, Judy, what 'Why, Hope, you ought to know! Good grief, haven't you done every thing for me? Haven't you made it possible for me to—"

"Never mind." Hope shrugged, and tossed her cigarette energetically out of the port-hole. "Listen, Judy. If you really want to help me, you can lend me your husband!"

"Wha—what?" "Lend me the bride instead of you." Hope explained glibly. "I'm on the boat married, and not just alone, unmoored and unescorted, and not even on the passenger list—well, Dickey couldn't suspect me of running after him. Could he? and I could talk to him as Mrs. Post much better—oh, so much better!"

Elon Ends Cage Season With Win Over Lenoir-R

Charlotte, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The Elon Christians brought their basketball season to a close last night with a victory over Lenoir-Rhyne. The score was 39 to 19. Guilford won a North State conference contest from High Point, 5 to 28, but it had no bearing on the title, as both are out of the running.

Duke University's swimming team went to Williamsburg and took a trouncing at the hands of William and Mary, 37 to 29.

The collegiate sports program in the state tapered off as interest centered in Atlanta, where Duke, Carolina and N. C. State are competing in the Southern Conference basketball tournament, and in Charlottesville, where the Southern Conference boxing tournament is in progress.

WOMAN'S GOLF TOURNAMENT CONTINUES
Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 25.—(AP)—Pre-tournament favorites of the South Atlantic Women's Golf championship have advanced to the quarter finals and the luck of the draw saw them all meeting "outsiders" today with prospects they would be in the semi-finals tomorrow. Miss Frances Williams of Allentown Pa., the medalist, Miss Bea Gottlieb of New York and Mrs. Lillian Zech of Chicago, the first three finishers in the qualifying round, were favored to win in today's quarter final.

KENTUCKY AND TULANE HOLD THE SPOTLIGHT

Atlanta, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Kentucky and Tulane held interest today in the eight-game premiere of the annual Southern Conference basketball tournament.

The contest brought together charges of Adolph Rupp and George Ruddy who teamed together under Phog Allen at Kansas.

Adolph and George have taught their boys the same style of play and with the record piled up by the Wildcats in their conference schedule it looks like Rupp has the better of the deal.

But the Kentuckians, who reached town in the van of the other 15 competing teams, are in the throes of an aftermath of influenza that put Forrest Sale, center and Demoisey, forward, on the invalid list for a time.

Both Sale and Demoisey are in the opening lineup, however. The opening blast of the whistle at 1 p. m. sent Alabama, one of the seeded combinations, against the fighting Cavaliers of Virginia. The Tide, it was indicated, had the money for the opener.

Some of the outsiders have picked North Carolina to go far toward winning of the title and the Tar Heels were paired with the Tennessee Vols at 2 p. m.

Vandrbilt threw a monkey wrench into the clear record of Kentucky as the conference season closed and hoped to knock Duke off the perch beginning at 3 p. m.

An hour later came the day's chief struggle between the Rupp and Ruddy forces with the choice lying with Kentucky.

Maryland, with her championship crew of 31 intact, comes on the boards at 5 p. m., against the Florida "dark horse."

Scrapy Auburn, like Maryland, has her last season's team back and is among the seeded four. The Tiger of the Alabama plains meets State in the opening night attraction of the Wolfpack from North Carolina at 7 p. m.

Then, the pairing makers have tossed Georgia against Mississippi

STRIBLING AND EARNE SCHAFF MEET TONIGHT

By WILLIAM WEEKS
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Charlotte, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Ernie Schaaf, Boston's youthful dealer in wholesale knockouts, attempts the loftiest hurdle of his stirring drive toward the heavyweight throne tonight by engaging W. L. (Young) Stribling, the noted Georgian, in a 10 round struggle at the Chicago stadium.

The struggle, rightly rated as the first important heavyweight battle of 1932, literally placed both fighters on the pugilistic spot, notably Schaaf. A victory for the fast climbing Bostonian would make him probably the most formidable contender for the heavyweight crown after Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey finish their title argument in June, whereas a defeat would force him to watch the championship tussle from the sidelines for at least another year.

Stribling, who was turned back by Schmeling last July in Cleveland, knew as did everyone else that a decisive victory was paramount. He was hitting the comeback trail and realized he couldn't afford another setback.

Keenly aware of their situations, both fighters were out to win by knockout systems and nothing else.

Because of his greatest experience ring generalship and his reputation in Chicago rings, where he was on the wrong end of a decision, Stribling was ranked as a slight favorite.

Market Report Cotton--Stocks--Grain

N. Y. COTTON

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Cotton opened steady at an advance of 2 to 4 points on trade and commission house buying, promoted by steady cables. May said at 7.16.

The demand was supplied by southern selling or realizing however, and prices eased right after the call with May selling off to 7.13, while October declined from 7.55 to 7.48, with the general list ruling about 1 to 3 points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

According to early reports the spot basis in the South was firm with a good demand, but the buying here was less active than recently, and the apparent falling off in demand was considered responsible for some easing up of accounts.

GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Sensational upturns of wheat values in various European continental markets today helped give sustained firmness to prices during late dealing here.

Wheat at Hamburg, Germany, closed 41-8 higher; Copenhagen, Denmark, 43-8 up, and Genoa, Italy, showing 71-8 rise. Further export interest in United States hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico was stimulated. Some Kansas points sent word that grasshoppers had appeared in large numbers.

Wheat closed steady at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 lower; corn 1-8 to 3-8 off; oats unchanged to 1-4 down and provisions 2 to 32 up.

STOCK MARKET

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—While failing to respond with any vigor to the reduction in the Federal Reserve rediscount rate today, the stock market was more inclined to higher than to lower levels.

The market's sluggish response to the cut in the bank borrowing rate prompted a little selling in the first hour, and some prominent issues sagged a point or so. These losses were quickly recovered, however, as buying appeared in several chemicals, food and specialty issues. The market remained dull, however.

Among issues showing advances of point or two by early afternoon were Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, National Distillers Products, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, United Biscuit, Jordan, General Baking, Electric Auto, Paramount, Loew's Light & Amusement, Safeway Stores, Eastman, and Johns Manville. A few preferred issues rose several points in this market, notably Adams Express and Gillette. U. S. Steel and American Telephone sagged in the first hour, then recovered. Utilities Power & Light A was a soft spot, losing a couple of points.

The old gossip about war requirements in the Far East was coupled in some brokerage quarters with the use of chemicals, and about the anti-prohibition movement with the strength of the alcohol stocks. It was notable that National Distillers products reached a new high for 1932. This gossip was not taken seriously in most quarters, however.

Wall street was keenly interested in the Washington announcement that prominent bear operators might be called before a senate committee. Since the traditional relationship of broker and client is a secret one, there has been negligible public information during the course of the bear market as to the extent of the operations of individual speculators, although there has been an abundance of rumor.

New Filling Station
To Open Saturday

The Ricks Tire and Battery Company located at the corner of Eighth street and Ducommun avenue have completely remodeled their place of business and have converted it into an attractive filling station as well as a tire and battery establishment. The work of remodeling has been going on for several days and Mr. R. E. Ricks, head of the firm announces today that everything would be in readiness for the opening Saturday.

Mr. Ricks has been a resident of this city for several years and in addition to the tire and battery business, formerly Hackney-Ruffin Tire Co., he is engaged in local and long distance transfer business. His equipment for the hauling business is unsurpassed in section and his vans are of sufficient size to take care of the entire household and kitchen furniture at a single trip.

The new tire and battery plant and filling station are modernly equipped in every respect and manned by a competent force and as expressed by Mr. Ricks, his type of service to the motorist will be unexcelled anywhere.

In his advertisement today Mr. Ricks urges the grown-ups to bring the children along to the opening Saturday as he has attractive gifts for them too.

Geneva, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The conference bureau today defeated an attempt of women's peace organizations to obtain an official position in the work of the world disarmament conference.

Their cause was championed by Senor Salvador De Madariaga, the Spanish delegate, who presented a resolution proposing the formation of a special commission of women from unofficial organizations to be an advisory body to the conference.

The British and American delegation took the position that the delegates are appointed by governments and that women may have seats in the conference by the same procedure as men, that is by appointments of their governments.

In effect the bureau reminded the women that the conference is a conference of governments and not sexes or unofficial organizations.

Dr. Edward Benes, the Czechoslovakian delegate, was authorized by the bureau to prepare a draft scheme of work for the conference by inserting into the draft convention 54 various proposals which the delegates had submitted for conference consideration. Benes' draft scheme will be submitted to the Four Chinese shells dropped near General Uveda's headquarters last night and staff officers said they expected fresh counter-attacks from Chinese positions tonight, pointing out the Chinese attack only at night to avoid Japanese artillery and air bombardment against which they are defenseless.

The Chinese authorities, claiming today to have regained most of the ground they lost in yesterday's battle, said they had recaptured the village of Miaocongchen, but Japanese officials denied this this afternoon.

Code messages from Japan to observers here today said the Japanese soon would have a full army corps here under General Yoshinori Shirakawa, that one or two divisions already were on the way and that three more divisions were being mobilized.

In view of this information and other developments indicating that a decisive battle will be fought next week, both sides were making haste to reinforce their positions tonight.

The Chinese ordered prohibition correspondents to visit areas in the rear was taken as an indication that General Staff is shifting his additional fields later in the day. Late this afternoon, he said, they were still out hunting additional Chinese fields in the vicinity of Hangchow. Upwards of a dozen Chinese planes were destroyed by bombs, he said, before they had a chance to leave the ground and three were shot out of the air by machine guns. The Japanese lost one plane which was forced down in Hangchow Bay where it sunk, he said, but the pilot was picked up by a Japanese destroyer.

The chief attack on the Kiangwan front, officials at Japanese headquarters said, was delivered by a single company which asked permission to wreak revenge on the Chinese for the killing of their captain in yesterday's battle. They went over the top in a fierce assault, led by a Second Lieutenant and gained 100 meters of ground from the surprised Chinese although they failed to surround or capture stubborn Kiangwan.

In the vicinity of the Japanese headquarters several officers narrowly missed Chinese bullets, the bamboo groves were leveled and the ruins of nearby homes were razed.
