CITY IS ALL SET FOR OBSERVANCE OF CHRISTMAS

Charity Organizations Make Final Appeals for Gifts For The Indigent

HOOVER OFF FOR HOLIDAYS BASKETS WILL BE GIVEN POOR

President Leaves Capital for Fishing Trip in Georgia-Florida Waters.

Aboard President Hoover's Train En Route to Savannah, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Leaving the cares of office behind, President Hoover appeared in a relaxed and happy frame of mind tonight as he sped southward toward a ten-day fishing cruise in Georgia and Florida waters.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover, with seven guests and immediate aides, looked forward to setting sail from Savannah almost immediately after their arrival at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning and to wetting a line by noon time.

The Presidential party left Washington at 1 p. m. aboard two special cars attached to his Southern limited. It was the first time Mr. Hoover had left the capital since the return from his unsuccessful campaign for re-election.

In contrast with his campaign departure, however, there was no crowd at the station and scarcely a score of persons noticed the President as he walked through the station. A few hats were doffed but there was no applause.

He left by way of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

Salvation Army Will Distribute Hundreds of Baskets Today; Christmas Tree for the Poor on Monday Night; City Brilliantly Decorated as Last Minute Preparations for the Coming of Saint Nick.

With business and residential districts brilliantly lighted with hundreds of vari-colored lights and charitable organizations making a last-minute appeal for gifts to the poor, Greenville was all set today for observance of the Christmas holidays.

The observance probably will be the most complete in years, and when the citizenship lay themselves down to sleep tonight in preparation for the coming Old Saint Nick, they will be able to assure themselves that they have done their best to carry cheer to the hundreds of people dependent upon the public for support.

The Yuletide comes after several days filled with pageants, dances and intense preparations in the homes and stores of the city, and finds everybody in a receptive mood for observance of the day in true style.

The Salvation Army which is preparing hundreds of baskets for the poor, made a last-minute appeal last night for additional food and money to carry out its plans. While support has been liberal, Ensign Willett, in charge of benevolent operations, declared that every basket available would be necessary to take care of the enormous demands of the poor.

The organization will bring its program to a completion next Monday night with a Christmas tree for the poor children of the city. Hundreds of gifts have been contributed to this cause by members of the fire department who through their department have repaired hundreds of toys for the tree. The dinner baskets will be distributed from the Evans Street office of the Salvation Army this afternoon.

Santa Claus came to the city Wednesday afternoon by air, and since that time the business district has been crowded with people seeking to provide themselves with proper kinds of gifts for the Yule season.

The rush actually got under way yesterday, however, and will not diminish until the stores, which have remained open every night this week, close tonight.

According to present plans, business will be at a complete standstill Monday as the city goes about the business of observing Christmas Day which falls on Sunday this year. Virtually all stores and public buildings will be closed during the day.

While virtually all churches have already presented Christmas programs of various kinds, the final exercises of this kind will take place at Memorial Baptist Church Sunday night when the choir will present a Cantata centered around the Babe of Bethlehem.

The social life of the city reached its climax Tuesday and Thursday night with dances by the German and Cottillon Clubs and have been followed by numbers of parties honoring guests in various homes of the city.

Decorations both in the business and residential districts are probably the most extensive of years. Hundreds of lights have been thrown across streets and along store fronts and windows, converting the business district into a thing of beauty. Home are also decorated with trees and multi-colored lights, vying with the business district for the honor of capturing the honor of having the best decorations.

Congress Proposes to Attach to Independence of Islands A Number of Complicated Sets of Safeguards.

BY BYRON PRICE, Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington

The strange ways of politics are demonstrated once more by the efforts of the present Congress, in its dying days, to solve the 35-year-old problem of what to do about the Philippines.

Ever since Dewey raised the stars and stripes over Manila, almost all parties in the United States and almost all political leaders have agreed (outwardly) that freedom was just around the corner.

A quarter of a century ago President Theodore Roosevelt said: "The islands should at an early moment be given their independence." This sentiment has echoed again and again from the White House, and has found almost continuous and universal acceptance (outwardly) on Capitol Hill.

Yet nothing much has happened. Whenever action was proposed, a certain shrinkage was apparent all along the line. Now and again there have appeared near-humorous aspects of this disparity between the beating of the drums and the absolute absence of orders to advance. The answer has been politics.

In local Philippine politics, in particular, the popular issue of independence has been ridden through repeated campaigns by many a Filipino leader who knew that realization must remain many years in the future.

Freedom has been the dream of many of the populace for generations. A full-fledged insurrection against Spain was in progress when the islands were captured in '98. The first business of the new American military government was to squelch another full-fledged insurrection against the United States.

Hardly could any Filipino hope for public deferment unless he made independence the first plank of his platform. In the United States, any public man who expressed doubt was promptly labeled an imperialist.

Neither in this country nor in the islands has there existed any general understanding that independence would impose tremendous burdens on the Filipino people, exposing them not only to political dangers from abroad but probably bringing down a stiff barrier against their prime exports of sugar and vegetable oils to the American mainland.

But most public men have understood it, and that is why there has been such a notable lack of cooperation whenever anyone actually approached the point of action.

More than three years ago, when it seemed something really might be attempted, one of the foremost of the Philippine leaders who had been advocating "complete, immediate, and absolute independence," announced that he would be satisfied with a "compromise."

On another occasion, never publicly disclosed, a group of Philippine leaders worked out a detailed plan with American officials to grant the islands a sort of dominion status, but at the last moment they shied away from signing their names to it.

The attitude of the Filipino leaders who helped draft the bill now pending—and they include men who have been loudest in demanding complete freedom—was described in the senate the other day by Senator Pittman as follows:

"Knowing the intense desire of their people for immediate independence and yet knowing the impossibility of carrying on an independent government without concession from our government, they are unwilling to accept immediate independence in the face of a condition that would be destructive."

All of which throws a great deal of light on the otherwise inscrutable circumstance that nothing has been done sooner; and that even now Congress is proposing to attach to "independence" a compli-

Earl W. Jones, Statesville, Is Formally Charged With Embezzlement of Funds

Wilmington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Earl W. Jones, former Statesville bank receiver was charged with "misapplying and embezzling moneys, funds and credits of the Commercial National Bank of Statesville" on a warrant signed by U. S. Commissioner V. L. Cudger of Asheville and received here tonight.

The amount of money involved was not immediately learned. Jones who disappeared from Statesville December 5, the day he was to have turned over the bank's affairs to W. H. Stradelin sent by Washington authorities to relieve him, was found in a hotel here this week. He has been a patient in a hospital since and friends say he has been suffering from amnesia.

TRAINS RUN IN POSTOFFICE

Airplanes to Land On Roof of New Building Nearing Completion at Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—(AP)—The world's largest postoffice has railroads running through its basement, a provision has been made for landing of airplanes on the roof and it is costing the government $21,000,000 to build.

A trip through the nearly completed building revealed that Uncle Sam has been no laggard in making things modern. For instance, there are 15 miles of wire conveyor belts capable of distributing 9,000,000 letters a day through the building.

Not until just before the Christmas rush of 1933 will decorators put finishing touches to the huge building but postal employes will start working in a few weeks.

Nebraskan Seeks To Abolish Electoral College in Bill Before Congress.

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska introduced again today his long proposed resolution to abolish the electoral college. Norris offered it as one to amend the constitution.

It also would provide for succession to the presidency when a new chief executive had not been chosen by the time his term begins.

FOUR LIQUOR MAKERS TAKEN

Several Gallons Of Booze also Captured in Still Raid in Bethel Section.

Four men, three white and one colored, were captured by county officers along with a still in the Bethel community yesterday. About five gallons of whiskey and a considerable amount of paraphernalia were also taken.

Three of the men, Redick and Leamon Mczelle and John Williams, the latter colored, were being held in the county jail awaiting preliminary hearing, while the fourth, John Jones, was released under bond following preliminary hearing before a Bethel magistrate.

Officers making the raid were Constable Dick King of Greenville and Chief of Police Martin of Bethel.

The officers said the plant was going at full blast when they arrived and little trouble was experienced in rounding up the entire outfit. The still was located on the Taylor farm about four miles from Bethel and was one of the best types used in the manufacture of the illicit whiskey traffic in this section of the state.

After the plant was completely destroyed the officers returned to Bethel and then to Greenville, where three of the men were placed in jail to await court action.

Wilson, Dec. 23.—(AP)—An investigation of the affairs of the defunct Planters Bank of Wilson was recommended today by the Wilson county grand jury in a special report to Judge F. A. Daniels in Wilson county Superior court.

The grand jury cited five alleged statutory violations of banking laws as disclosed in a report of the accountant, A. Lee Rawlings & Company of Norfolk and Raleigh. The bank closed Dec. 29, 1931.

Stormy Years Big Test For American Republic

By RAFAEL ORDORICA (Associated Press Staff Writer) Revolutionary and international wars, hurricanes, earthquakes and swift administrative changes agitated eighteen of the twenty Latin-American nations in 1932.

One of the wars, the Gran Chaco clash between Paraguay and Bolivia, was undeclared. Yet its casualties had been estimated at 30,000 by mid-December.

A revolt in Brazil engaged 100,000 men and cost the victorious fedtrals $10,000,000 for supplies alone.

One of the hurricanes swept a tidal wave across a Cuban coast town and took 2,500 lives. Another killed 300 in Porto Rica, left 75,000 homeless and caused $7,000,000 damage.

One of the earthquakes smote Mexico, bringing down buildings and death upon 400 inhabitants of one town.

Presidents were made and overthrown in bewildering succession. Some held firmly to the reins of government through rigid application of the rules of dictatorship.

Land-locked Bolivia and hemmed-in Paraguay, gathering momentum from a border clash in July, hurled 60,000 men into the virgin jungles (Continued on Page Four)

FOUR OTHERS GO TO ALTAR

Cupid Continues His Attack on the Lovers of the Community.

Cupid is showing no quarter to the lovers in his holiday activities in this immediate section and four more couples were sent to the altar in Pitt county today.

One white couple and three colored appeared at the office of the register of deeds yesterday to obtain licenses to marry. The couples came from Craven county and Ayden and Greenville townships.

Six couples applied for licenses to wed here Thursday to bring the total for the holiday season well above the two score mark.

The trek to the altar was expected to show a pronounced increase today, the last day before the celebration of Christmas gets under way and employes of the office of the register of deeds were preparing to do a land-office business.

Those granted licenses to wed yesterday were: Charlie Jones to Miss Almata Morris, both of Craven county.

Roscoe Perkins to Ella Brown, both of Greenville. Johnnie Allen to Helen Hatton, of Ayden. John Staton to Martha Johnson, of Greenville.

CLUB ENJOYS FINE PROGRAM

Kiwanians Devoted Attention to Observance of Christmas Here Last Night.

Christmas, the happiest season of the year for millions of people through the world, was celebrated in appropriate style by members of the Greenville Kiwanis Club in regular twice-a-month meeting at the Woman's Club last night.

The program followed a delightful supper served by ladies of the club and consisted of the singing of Christmas selections by a quartette and a couple of solos by Jimmy Barber, former Greenville boy who for the last several years has appeared with internationally known quartettes in various parts of the country.

Playing his own accompaniment on a guitar, young Barber, with his wife, is spending several days here with friends, delighted his audience with two popular selections. He was presented by Dink James.

The program was in charge of Rev. W. H. Ryan, pastor of the Eighth Street Christian Church, who presented Mrs. E. L. Hillman and Mrs. Ray Tyson, Jr., who put on several delightful features in connection with the holiday season.

Explaining the prime object of Christmas, the establishing of peace throughout the world as enunciated by the Christ Child over nineteen hundred years ago, Mrs. Hillman told of the suffering, cost and heartaches resulting from war, and through a story dealing with two soldiers, fees in conflict, who became brothers in spirit after they had been mortally wounded in battle, drove the meaning home with telling effect.

Before and after the story appropriate musical selections were presented by a quartette composed of Mrs. Dink James, Mrs. Tom Watson, Spruill Spain and Jimmy Barber, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Tyson.

W. W. Morgan, member of the high school faculty, was introduced as a new member of the club and the induction ceremony was in charge of B. B. Suggs, who after stressed the ideals of the club, presented the new member with a club emblem.

The club voted for the elimination of the office of district trustee in accordance with steps taken by the international organization.

Judge W. A. Darden was elected a director to succeed Dr. R. S. McGeachy, who sometime ago was elected vice-president of the organization.

K. T. Futrell explained the Christmas party to be tendered at the East Carolina Training School at Rocky Mount next Tuesday. Members of the district Kiwanis Club have been invited to attend and will be expected to provide presents for sixteen boys, nine of whom are from this county, and the remainder from surrounding counties without a Kiwanis Club.

President G. V. Smith presided over the session.

Woman Wears Snake Tattoo Unconventionally in the costume of a young woman at a recent promenade concert at Queen's Hall, London, attracted great attention. She wore a blue silk skirt with sleeves rolled up, a very short skirt of the same material, large gold rings in her ears, and round her ankles snakes were tattooed.

Democratic Leader to Visit President-Elect at Albany Today for Conference.

Washington, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Fresh speculation that attempts would be made to bring an agreement between President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt on approaching international problems arising today as Norman Davis, high ranking Democrat, conferred with the chief executive and then left to see the President-elect.

Mentioned often as a possible secretary of state in the next administration, Mr. Davis spent an hour in discussions with the President and Secretary Stimson.

TWO SHIP FIREMEN ARE SERIOUSLY BURNED Wilmington, N. C., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Two firemen of the steamship Munition were critically burned when a boiler room explosion threw heated oil over their bodies while the vessel was at sea today.

Harry F. Marr, 49, of New Orleans, and Nicholas Vauro, 25, of Boston, Mass., were the injured. They were taken ashore and placed in a Southport hospital.

The explosion occurred when ten men were cleaning tubes in the boiler room. They said a tube "back-fired," spraying hot oil over Marr and Vauro. The other eight were not injured and beat out the flames.

LAURI LEHTINEN PASSES UP AMERICAN INVASION Helsinki, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Lauri Lehtinen, the Finnish runner, has decided he will not go to America during the winter, but intends to make himself ready to run for new records next summer. A trip to America would draw down his condition, he believes.

ABOUT TOWN

It is Christmas Eve again and to-night Old Saint Nicholas, beloved saint of millions of children all over the world, will slide down chimneys and remember those who tried to be good during the year.

What a thrill the prospective visit of the cheery old gentleman brings to every childish heart, as well as grown-ups! The same sensation that has coursed through the bodies of people of all ages will live afresh today and tomorrow, and the spirit of the Yuletide will reach out to the most remote parts of the county, try to lift the heart of all people to new heights of ecstasy and delight.

It is that important occasion which is being commemorated to-day. It is the memory of the birth of the Christ child that comes people give freely to one another, and to remember the poor and needy as espoused by the teachings of the Christ on the shores of Galilee.

Relief organizations of the city are to be congratulated upon the effort now under way to carry joy and happiness to the bleak friends of the poor.

The attempt to raise clothing, food and money for this cause has been the most monumental and far-reaching in the history of the city and it is hardly likely anyone will go hungry while the spirit of Christmas exists.

People who have traded in Greenville the last two weeks have been able to understand why Greenville bears the reputation as the "Principal shopping center in this part of the state."

Buying Barbara

SYNOPSIS Twenty years ago the firm of Quentin, Lodely and Cane made good a fortune it had lost for Farrell Armitage. Bankrupt, the senior partners, died. Cane prospered, became Sir James. Now Farrell has been expecting to propose to Lella, Sir James' daughter—but he met Barbara Quentin. Farrell declares he will marry Barbara, although Barbara is to marry the crippled Mark Lodely in five days. Lella helps Farrell by sending him to take Barbara to a dance. While Barbara dresses Farrell buys three pictures from Mark, and Mark accepts an invitation to visit Farrell in London on Thursday—the day set for his wedding. Farrell goes down to meet Barbara; she is wearing an emerald given her by Mark. Farrell does not like it.

Chapter 12
Barbara did not seem either astonished or offended by his protest. There was not an atom of coquetry about her. She just looked inquiringly at him, the emerald taking all the color from her hair and her eyes.

"I beg your pardon," Farrell amended. "One of my vanities is that I'm a judge of pictures—" he shifted the three landscapes slightly under his arm—"and that emerald isn't right. It isn't your stone. You should never wear anything but pearls and jade and—perhaps occasionally little old-fashioned sets of garnet or black opal. But mainly pearls."

"Mrs. Lodely's burst of laughter crashed out from the doorway. 'So now you know, Babe! Pearls, pearls! Poor old Babe!' Her hoarse gentility filled the air. Fact is, Mr. Armitage, you've not been properly introduced to our Babe. She's Toxeter's only dress-designer and interior decorator and general adviser on Art in the Home and so forth. And the only pearls comin' her way are her own pearls of wisdom—"

"Cast before swine," supplemented Armitage, gently.
Barbara made no answer. She took from a peg the fur coat that she had been wearing Armitage first saw her and with a quiet—"Tomorrow evening as usual, Judy" she left the little house. Armitage lingered to take leave of Mark's mother.

"You son is coming up to Town in a few days to stay with me, Mrs. Lodely. I'm hoping you'll come, too?" She looked astonished.
"In a few days?"
"On Thursday, to be exact. I'm sending down a car for him."
"This comin' Thursday? Oh, but—" She was bewildered and, as he expected, she covered it with her inevitable laugh. Then she swung away up the stairs.

He slammed her door shut and strode across the pavement. Barbara had got into the car—the Devallet sedan that had brought him down from London to Kings Mallard. Under the light of the street-lamp he saw her eyes wander around its shining interior.
"This is a nice car, Mr. Armitage."
"Why not try her out? You might like her."
"You mean—I may drive this beautiful car a little way? Now?"
She had slid along the seat and was behind the wheel. He got in beside her. In the intimate half-darkness of the car, he noted that she used no perfume but that her hair had a natural fragrance, too delicate to describe.

"I can't drive well," she said. "I don't, you see, very often get the chance of driving at all. But I will be very careful."
She had turned out of the road and was heading cautiously for the open country round the bay.
"You're perfectly all right. You drive intelligently. Let her out a bit if it amuses you."
"No, I'm not sure of myself. Besides, we mustn't go far. The dance—" "Wouldn't you rather drive my car than dance with me?"
"Oh, yes," she admitted. Then, as he chuckled—"I'm afraid that sounded rude, but when you're a business-person you get rather tired by the end of the day and dancing in a crowded room isn't much fun. You feel too shattered."
She brought the Devallet to a standstill. A second car rattled past them and its lights showed him the faint rose staining her cheeks and the darker gold where the night wind stirred amongst the roots of her hair.

The nurse never guessed it was a fairy talking to her, but she sat down and wrote Santa a letter and asked for just what the fairy had told her. Then she rushed out to the mail-box and slipped the letter in. But the little fairy snatched it right out so she could take it back to Santa.

"Here's a letter we forgot," she said as soon as she arrived.
"Well, well," said Santa. "We can't forget any letters. Then he read it, and shouted: 'Ho, there, here's a whole bunch of little children who just want a funny clown—bring me one—Oh! Bring Pinocchio. He'll have children to play with all the year long.'"

"I can tell you that shout made Pinocchio happy. He stood right up and did a cart wheel and a couple of little jig steps. And Ingala, who had been watching, smiled so happily, because she knew she was going to see some dear little girl, and she wanted Pinocchio to be just as happy as she was going to be.

"To Toxeter?"
"To my—our new house; where Mark and I are going to live. A good many of our possessions are there already, and amongst them is a cupboard of which Mark has lost the key. I believe I've found a key that would fit and I want so much to try it."
"Tonight?"
"Yes. Then, if we can open the cupboard, you can see more of Mark's work. I believe there are some portraits there. Don't you want to go to Toxeter?"

CHRISTMAS PAGEANT AT MEMORIAL BAPTIST CHURCH TOMORROW NIGHT

The last of the Christmas programs presented by the various churches of the city during the holiday season will be presented at Memorial Baptist Church tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The cantata, "The Star of Bethlehem," will be rendered by the choir of the church, assisted by three singers from other churches, Mrs. J. S. Karsnak, S. F. Allen and Ed Williams. The organist will be Mrs. J. L. Fleming.

The first of the Christmas programs was presented at the Presbyterian Church Sunday before last and was followed by similar exercises by virtually all other churches of the city.

The program for Sunday night follows:

Organ Prelude. Hymn of Praise by the Congregation: "Joy To The World."

Responsive Reading: Psalm 98. Evening Prayer.

Hymn of Praise by the Congregation: "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear."

The Evening Offering. Cantata by the Choir: "The Star of Bethlehem." (Text arranged and music composed by Carrie B. Adams.)

2. Cantata: Chorus: "Oh, Come All Ye Faithful"; Chorus: "Good Will to Men"; Tenor Solo: "The Shepherd's Vision"; Quartet: "The Holy Night"; Soprano Solo: "Sleep, My Saviour Sleep"; Duet, Trio and Quartet: "Star of the East"; Chorus: "From Mountain Afar"; Contralto Solo: "A Mother's Carol"; Men's Chorus: "Room for the Christ Child"; Soprano Solo: "The Glorious Star"; Chorus: "Alleluia"; Chorus: "Oh, Sing Unto the Lord."

CHRISTIAN CHURCH TO HAVE ONE SERVICE SUNDAY

The Eighth Street Christian Church will have only one service on Christmas Day. This service will be a unified service, the first period of which begins at 9:45, will be the worship period lasting for 45 minutes. This period takes the place of the regular worship period of the Sunday school and the morning service of worship. During this period there will be the celebration of the Holy Communion and sermon with special music of Christmas carols by the choir. The second period will be the teaching period from 10:30 to 11 o'clock during which the regular classes of the school will have their regular lessons. There will be no other service during the day.

On next Saturday night, December 31, the young people of the Christian Church and the young people of the Methodist Church will conduct a watch-night service in the Methodist Church. This service will begin at 11:15 and continue until midnight. The public is invited to worship with us and close the year in prayer and meditation, as is fitting for those who call themselves Christians. It is hoped that a large number of Greenville folks will avail themselves of this opportunity to watch 1932 pass out and to welcome into being the new year of 1933. Remember the hour, 11:15 to midnight.

SANS SOUCI CLUB HOLDS INTERESTING MEETING

The Sans Souci Club enjoyed a most delightful Christmas program when the last meeting of the year was held at the home of Mrs. J. L. Kilgo on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 20th. Christmas greens with mistletoe and red berries made the home most inviting and attractive; while Santa Claus and his merry reindeer, with his sleigh packed with good things completed the festive appearance of the home and made all hearts aglow with Christmas expectancy. Lighted wreaths in the windows shed a soft light and gave the setting needed for the lovely program, which followed. Accompanied by Mrs. J. B. James at the piano, Mrs. Dan Farrar of Tarboro sang "Who Is Sylvia?" by Kreisler. Mrs. Farrar always delighted her hearers with these numbers. Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, chairman of the program committee, then presented Mrs. E. L. Hillman, who gave a most interesting talk on Bethlehem. Mrs. Hillman spoke of Bethlehem out of her own experience, having visited it some years ago. She had with her a great many pictures of Palestine and its people as well as samples of the lace made by the native women—all of which added greatly to the interest of her hearers. She described vividly the picturesque people, their customs and occupations, and succeeded in making very real the Church of the Nativity—that one place of greatest interest in Bethlehem. However, we quite agreed with her in thinking that, after all, the Field of the Shepherds was the most sacred spot about Bethlehem, because it alone of all holy places there has been untouched by the religious zealots of all counties who have gathered there.

"Judean hills are holy, Judean hills are fair, For one can find the footprints of Jesus everywhere."

During the course of her talk and in conclusion, Mrs. Hillman read several most appropriate Christmas poems. Her talk was intensely interesting and especially so at this season of the year when the whole world is turning its thoughts once more to Bethlehem, the birthplace of the Holy Babe.

She was followed on the program by Mrs. J. H. Rose, who read in her own impressive manner, "The Legend of the Christ Child," by Elizabeth Harrison. She prefaced her reading by saying that there was only one Christmas story and that all others are variations of that one. Nothing could be more descriptive of this lovely little story for it does truly embody the real Christmas spirit. Mrs. Rose delighted all who heard her with her reading.

As a conclusion to this most enjoyable program, Mrs. Farrar again sang beautifully, this time most appropriately "The First Noel," and as a last number, "Home." During a lovely social hour the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Louise, and by Mrs. L. G. Cooper, served a delicious salad course, after which fruit cake was passed, and Santa himself peering from his chimney, was given to each one present as a reminder of the nearness of Christmas Eve.

Many guests added to this enjoyable occasion. Among these were Mrs. Oakley, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Tom Watson, Mrs. L. G. Cooper, Mrs. E. L. Hillman, Mrs. J. H. Rose and Mrs. Tom Farrar of Tarboro.

Mrs. Eure Entertains Bridge Club. Ayden, Dec. 23—Members of the Bridge Club and additional guests were entertained on Wednesday afternoon at a Christmas party by Mrs. J. B. Eure at her home in West Haven.

The rooms were decorated with Christmas greens carrying out a color scheme of red and green. Names for Christmas presents had been previously drawn and the gifts were used as place cards. Contract was played at two tables, following which Mrs. W. W. Salsbury, Mrs. J. E. Burgess and Mrs. G. G. Dixon received attractive gifts for high score.

Mrs. Dixon assisted the hostess in serving aspic salad, cheese apples, saltines and hot coffee to the following guests: Mesdames J. E. Burgess, W. T. White, Jack Quinley, M. C. Phillips, W. W. Salsbury, J. D. Cannon, G. G. Dixon and Miss Virginia Bell Cooper.

Designs Christmas Rotary Emblem. Ayden, Dec. 23—The Rotary emblem designed and built by Rotarian Anson Sawyer has been erected at the intersection of Lee and Second streets and attracts the attention of all passersby, being as unusual as it is beautiful.

The design which is a large cross has in the top a large star and just below "Peace On Earth," down the center, "Good Will To Men," and a Rotary wheel at the bottom. The wheel revolves and different sections are lighted at intervals. Colored lights extend from the design to the four corners of the street. Much favorable comment has been made on the design and the Rotary Club plans to have a photograph made of it while lighted, and send same to the Rotarian, official publication of Rotary International, where it will be seen throughout the world.

THE VANITIE BOXE

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS Hollywood, Calif., Dec. 23.—Ernest Truex is one stage actor of note now in pictures who says he will be just as happy if he never sees a footlight again.

Here to play his original role in "Whistling in the Dark," the diminutive comedy star looks back upon a life virtually spent in the theater, the last twenty years or more in the big time, and says: "I've had enough. I've done twenty-five plays in New York and seven in London in the last twenty-two years, and I'm sick of looking at audiences night after night, doing the same show night after night, sick of going on the road with shows."

Misses Old Thrill "I admit there's nothing in pictures to equal the thrill of a first night in the theater, and pictures are hard work. But when I leave the set in the evening and think back over a hard day when everything seems to have been unusually difficult, I can console myself with 'Well, it's done—I'll never have to do it again.'"

After "Whistling in the Dark" Truex is slated to star in "Warrior's Husband" for Jesse Lasky, fulfill a London stage contract, and then return for a contract agreement now pending with M-G-M.
