ROOSEVELT SENDS NEW INSTRUCTIONS TO LONDON

President Provides His Delegates With Data To Fight For Early Success

LONG CABLE MESSAGE IS SENT TO HULL

Action of American Chief Arouses Different Emotion in Two Embattled Camps; American Delegates Jubilant Over Prospects of Presenting Concrete Proposals in Support of Retaining Full Agenda

London, July 8—(AP)—After having saved the life of the world economic conference by his order to fight to the finish against adjournment, President Roosevelt provided his delegates here today with more ammunition to try for the parity's success.

Correll Hull, secretary of state, and chief of the American delegation, presented a long cable message from his chief, which while it had a certain effect as a matter of fact, was known to contain help and was expected to tender assistance in carrying the American president's campaign for world wide price recovery to success.

Mr. Roosevelt's latest move aroused entirely different emotions in the two embattled camps. The gold bloc and the countries which supported the American policy.

The American group was jubilant over the prospect of being able to present concrete proposals to the parity in support of their desire for treatment of full original agenda.

Leaders of the gold bloc declared that the president's program is tended to solidify what they characterized as the dollar-sterling bloc.

Comprising it are the United States, the British Empire and a number of smaller states who assisted in opposing the European gold standard nations.

Frank Stone, who died of injuries received in an attack on Amos Haddock in the Shelmerdine community Sunday, June 11, has been identified as Mark Simon, of Raleigh, it was reported at police headquarters today.

Identification was established through a photograph in the hands of local police which was sent to Simon's mother, Mrs. L. H. Simon, 33 Swain street, Raleigh.

Simon, reported to have been drinking, was fatally injured when hit in the head with a club by Haddock during an altercation. He was said to have threatened to whip Haddock and when he attempted to carry out the threat Haddock hit him the fatal blow. He was rushed to the hospital here but died shortly afterward.

After coming to this county some years ago, Simon married a young woman of the Shelmerdine section. She told officers she often had heard her husband speak of relatives in Raleigh. She was given his photograph which was sent to Raleigh police for aid in locating the relatives. Mrs. Simon identified the picture as that of her son.

PLEADS FOR STATE RIGHTS

Clarence Martin Addresses Annual Meeting of N. C. Bar Association

Wrightsville Beach, July 8—(AP)—Deploring abrogation of state's rights by centralization of power in the federal government, Clarence E. Martin, president of the American Bar Association, pleaded today for a return to the simplicity of constitutional government as "the performance of authority" may be placed where it belongs.

The Martinsburg, W. Va., attorney, speaking before the North Carolina Bar Association, emphasized that his remarks were not directed at the present federal emergency legislation, which he said is "merely for temporary purposes and for a limited time only."

He particularly denounced the number of power taken over by the federal government under the Interstate Commerce act, as interpreted by the courts and legislation passed on the argument that it is for the "general welfare" of the nation.

He traced several historical differences between the states and the federal government prior to the war between the states, including the New England movement for withdrawal from the union, South Carolina's tariff nullification fight and Wain's battle against the fugitive slave act.

PITT COUNTY OVER TOP IN COTTON DRIVE

Minimum Goal as Set By The Government Passed During Morning Hours

That Pitt county would go over the top in the federal cotton production control campaign was assured today as contracts from farmers continued to roll into the office of E. P. Arnold, director of the Department of Agriculture, and head of the government drive here.

Mr. Arnold said that on the basis of contracts signed up to this morning the county had passed the minimum goal as set by the government and that they would be near the maximum when the last contracts have been approved by the committee tonight.

The report of the campaign this morning showed that growers had contracted to plow up 3,267 11-12 acres or equivalent, of 1,250 bales of cotton. The minimum as prescribed by the government is 1,200 bales. By tonight, Mr. Arnold said, there was every indication the total acreage would be approximately 3,600.

From the acreage reported during the morning growers will receive $6,515.50 without option and those accepting cash with option will receive $29,303.00.

The total number of growers signed was given as 705, including some of the largest of the county.

Mr. Arnold said he was highly gratified over the response shown by the planters in view of the government's effort to take 3,000,000 bales of the staple out of cultivation this year and thereby boost the price situation.

Prices for cotton have virtually doubled since announcement of the government plan. While the advance was based purely on speculative influence, this was sufficient to show that speculators have faith in the government plan and are backing it. Should the plan fail it was likely possible to say what the market would do but there was every indication it would slump again probably reaching the lows recorded prior to the announcement of the government plan.

LEGION LISTS CITY'S BEAUTY

Many Young Women Register For Beauty Contest Here July 14th

With approximately 28 of this city's business firms already entered and their representatives selected, plans for the American Legion Beauty Pageant here on the evening of July 14 at the High School Auditorium, at 8 p. m., are progressing nicely.

Indications point to the entrance of 40 or more firms. Seldom, if ever, has more intense interest and enthusiasm been aroused than is being manifested in this Beauty Pageant by the people of this city who are now wondering "who will be Miss Greenville."

"The sidewalks of New York were never like this in July," said members of Company 1232, Civilian Conservation corps, as they piled into four-foot snow to build tent foundations for their camp at Navada Falls, Rainier National park, Washington. Most of them, recruited from New York's tenements, had never seen trees such as grow on Mount Rainier. (Associated Press Photo)

Denny Shute Wins British Open Golf Cup

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 8.—(AP)—Dennis Shute, 28, American professional from Philadelphia, today captured the British Open golf championship beating his countryman, Craig Wood of Deer, N. J., in an all American 36 hole play off.

The new champion shot the double round in 75.74, 149, only three strokes over par for 36 holes. Wood's score was 78.76, 154.

FICKLEN SAYS LEAF OUTLOOK IS FAVORABLE

Increased Purchasing Power of Foreign Countries Aiding American Trade

J. S. Ficklen, president of the E. B. Ficklen Tobacco Company, and former head of the Tobacco Board of Trade, took local Kiwanians on a trip to several European and Oriental countries last night, looked over the tobacco situation, and then gave them a summary of encouraging and discouraging features of the industry at this time.

The address was the highlight of the semi-monthly meeting of the club which was presided over by Dr. R. S. McGeachy, in the absence of Rev. E. L. Hillman, who was called out of the city on account of the death of a relative of his wife.

The program was in charge of John H. Pitts, who called on B. B. Sugg to present the speaker of the evening. Mr. Sugg said the Greenville market reached the peak of its glory while Mr. Ficklen was head of the Tobacco Board of Trade and attributed much of the success to his vision and untiring effort on the part of the industry. He said the tobaccoist was perpetuating ideals made extant by his late father, one of the pioneers of the tobacco trade.

Mr. Ficklen, who has made two trips to Europe and the Orient this year, pictured the outlook for the forthcoming season as favorable.

He attributed this to improvement of the export trade caused by decline in the value of the American dollar. The slump of the American monetary system, he said, had increased the purchasing power of foreign countries, especially China, the second largest buyer of American tobacco in the world. Cheap Chinese money as compared with the American dollar in the past, handicapped trade with this country to no little extent, the speaker said, but now that the Chinese are getting more for their money, indications are they will be able to trade more freely with this country.

WILL SUPPORT HEALTH QUEEN

Kiwanis Club to Sponsor Miss Mildred Taylor at Statewide Contest

Miss Mildred Taylor, of Pactolus, Pitt county, district entry in the statewide health contest to be conducted at Raleigh in August, is sponsored by the Kiwanis club of Greenville.

This decision was reached by the club last night upon the suggestion of Dr. R. S. McGeachy, who said the young woman was the finest specimen of young womanhood he had ever seen. He stated that she rated one hundred percent after standing examination in both the county and district contests.

Miss Taylor, member of the student body of Pactolus schools, won the honor of participating in the state contest when she was picked for first place in the district contest held in Washington in May. She won out over then contestants from several counties in this part of the state.

In the county contest here she was crowned queen of health at the Community fair after winning first place over a field of five hundred young women comprising the membership of the various 4-H clubs of the county.

Of rare physical charm and beauty Dr. McGeachy stated that Miss Taylor stood a good chance of winning first place in the state wide contest. He pictured her as one hundred percent perfect and anybody beating that score is going some, he pointed out.

At the suggestion of Judge W. A. Darden, the club invited Miss Taylor to be their guest at the next meeting two weeks hence.

Dr. McGeachy said he would convey the invitation to the young woman and felt confident she would accept in face of the organization's sponsorship of her cause.

Robbers Make Surprise Haul Early Today

Robber Disguised as Policeman Sticks Gun in Janitor's Face And Robs Vault Ferend Emotions In Drive. Two Conferates Assist; All Escape in Automobile

New York, July 8—(AP)—Three robbers, one of whom wore a policeman's uniform held up the Corn Exchange Bank and Trust Company branch at Broadway and 110 street shortly before 9 o'clock today, seized about $30,000 and $40,000 in cash and escaped in an automobile with two confederates.

Three robbers managed to get in the bank before it was open when a man dressed as a policeman tapped on the front door and was admitted by George Smith, negro watchman.

As soon as the robber got inside, he produced a revolver and covered Smith with it while he admitted his two companions.

The fourth and fifth members of the band remained in the parked car near the bank entrance. The watchman was held at bay for nearly an hour while the robbers awaited arrival of someone who could open the vault.

During this period eight other employees of the bank including several women arrived and were kept covered with guns. One of the eight was assistant manager who was compelled by the robbers to open the vault.

The robbers then seized the money and fled, the one wearing the policeman's uniform meanwhile having donned a gray topcoat and cap.

COTTON CROP SHOWS GAIN

Acreage Under Cultivation Reported Larger Than the Previous Year

Washington, July 8—(AP)—Cotton in cultivation in the United States on July 1 was reported by the Department of Agriculture today to total 46,798,000 acres compared with 36,542,000 in cultivation a year ago and 32,939,000 the previous year.

Estimate of the indicated production on the basis of the July 1 condition was not given because of the law forbidding such action.

The estimate does not take into account the proposed 30 percent reduction in acreage which the agricultural administration has given as the amount it might take out when reports have been received.

In working out the tentative acreage quotas assigned to date the administration used the 1931 acreage—39,109,000—as a basis, saying it was more nearly comparable to the present acreage than any other recent year.

Rocky Mount—Edward Barrett Smith of Louisburg died this week at Park View Hospital following several weeks treatment for pneumonia. Mr. Smith's condition was reported as encouraging for several days but complications developed Sunday there was a change for the worse and his condition became more critical until pneumonia developed.

During his illness he fought valiantly making a brave fight for life but he approached the end with a sublime and unflinching courage. Not one murmur or a word of complaint as he endured the intense suffering.

A citizen beloved by all has passed. Something beautiful and very tender has gone out of the lives for many with his passing and lasting grief has been brought to a host of friends.

Mr. Smith was 75 years old. He was the son of Goodman F. Smith and Elizabeth High Smith; and nephew of the late Dr. Lorenzo Smith, prominent Methodist Minister. He was connected with the Branch and Davis families of Warren county, the Shore family of Lenoir County and was a cousin of President Ulysses S. Grant.

PITT GETS QUOTA

According to reports today the cotton sign-up in Pitt County has reached the minimum quota prescribed for this county but it is expected that the time limit will be extended and it is hoped that before the period finally closes growers in this county will sign to the maximum limit.

WELL DONE

By living well within its budget and by hard work the city administration finished the fiscal year with its bills, bonds, etc., paid and a small balance despite the depression. Under prevailing conditions we feel that this is somewhat of a record and those responsible for the administration of the city's affairs are to be congratulated for the manner in which they have carried on this work.

LET'S GO AFTER IT

With a government public works fund of $3,300,000,000 available to the various sections of the country we are wondering what benefit if any, our city and section is to derive from same. As we understand it a large portion of this fund is to be repaid by the taxpayers of the country as a whole whether or not their immediate sections ask for any of it to carry on public works and in view of this it seems that Greenville would do well to make application for enough of this money to carry out some worthwhile projects here. We are told that a certain per cent of the amount of money we borrow from this fund is not charged to us and that the balance is to be paid back over a period of years with a low rate of interest. There are many projects that Greenville would do well to take up while this fund is available and labor and material costs are cheap and we urge the authorities to see to it that application is made now for a part of this fund. A public works program here would not only get for the city some needed improvements but would also prove a great help in the way of relieving unemployment and increasing buying power.

A New Serial by Ruby M. Ayres

SYNOPSIS: George Bancroft's life has become very complicated of late. She refused Clifford Asher's offer of marriage because she loves Nicholas Boyd. Boyd is in Germany trying to have removed the year that has ended his film career. Nicholas' wife, Bernie Boyd, is in England making a movie, and evinces considerable interest in George's step-father, Bishop. And Bishop and Evelyn, George's mother, are not on too good terms. Bernie talks with Bishop and George at her studio.

Chapter 36 FAMILY QUARREL

Ever since she arrived at the studio George had been trying to gain enough courage to ask about Nicholas, and now she did so, in a quick, nervous, little voice. "Is Mr. Boyd better? You said he was ill."

Bernie's pretty face hardened a little. "I suppose he must be," she said disinterestedly. "I really haven't heard anything definite," and then she turned away as if anxious for the subject to drop.

Bishop was looking at George with a faint smile, but he only said: "Do you think we can tear your mother away now?"

Evelyn was thoroughly enjoying herself, and on the way back to London she talked with great enthusiasm. "Such delightful people, all of them. I never expected to be made so welcome. Didn't you think they were most delightful, Bishop?"

"Considering most of the money in the concern is mine, they could not very well be otherwise," he answered. "Really, Bishop, to speak to me like that in front of Georgie," Evelyn complained. In a moment she went on: "By the way Bishop, have you made any definite arrangements about going to Germany? I have several invitations to stay with people, and if I knew your plans I could make my own."

George glanced quickly at Bishop; he had not moved or opened his eyes, but after a moment he said quietly: "Make what plans you like, my dear. I may not be going to Germany, after all, but that need not interfere with you."

"Not going!" Evelyn colored angrily. "Really, Bishop, after racing me half across the world for the specific reason that you must go, to calmly turn round and tell me you may change your mind. What on earth does it mean, may I ask?"

"Simply that I may change my mind, that is all." "Well, really!" Evelyn said again. She looked at George for sympathy. "You are the most trying man I ever knew. I give up everything at a moment's notice to bring you over here, and all for nothing. Have you realized at last that there is nothing really the matter with you?"

"Possibly." "I always said you would," she declared triumphantly. "Men are such babies. They get a pain and they immediately think they are dying. Well, I hope in future you will pay attention to me, instead of being so inconsiderate. If I hadn't the patience of Job, I should have a great deal to say; you are fortunate in having a wife with such an even temper."

"Very fortunate," Bishop agreed calmly. "And now all my plans are upset, I suppose," his wife went on. "Of course you will expect me to stay with you in that dreadful hotel. You know how I loathe hotels, even the best of them, and I had so looked forward to going to stay with the Hunters in Scotland."

"Go by all means. I am not preventing you." Evelyn flushed; she did not want to stay with her husband, but on the other hand she did not like to be told she was not necessary to him.

"And what do you suppose I can do with Georgie?" she asked shrilly. "George can stay with me," Bishop said. There was a little silence, then Evelyn said hastily: "Well, you seem to have arranged it very nicely between you. Do you want to stay with your step-father, Georgie?"

"I don't mind what I do," George said. "I'll go back to Uncle Edward if you like."

Bishop opened his eyes suddenly and looked at her, and she added hurriedly: "Of course I knew I couldn't always stay with you."

Evelyn said aggrievedly, "I could take you to Scotland, of course, but I doubt whether you would be happy with me."

"Or whether you would be happy with her," Bishop said. She flashed him an angry glance. "Really I seem to be in the wrong whatever I say," she complained. "And heaven knows I have tried to do my best for you both, but there is no gratitude in the world."

"You've been very kind," George said, wondering in bewilderment why the thought of returning to Edward Bancroft had given her a real thrill.

In a way she had been happy in London, and had enjoyed the excitement of her new clothes and of being taken about, but she had not met anyone who had really interested her, and sometimes she was conscious of a little feeling of weariness, of wanting to get away and be free once again.

"I had hoped," her mother went on, "that amongst all the people I have introduced to you, you would have found someone to whom you could take a fancy. But I never knew a girl like you. Men don't seem to interest you as they did me."

George opened her eyes wide. "Someone to marry, do you mean?" she gasped. "You must eventually marry," Evelyn said. "All girls marry unless there is something very peculiar about them. When I was your age I had had half a dozen proposals, and I suppose you have not had one."

"Yes, one," George said with a twinkle. "Some unspeakable young man whom I have never seen, I suppose," her mother said tartly. "Why did you not tell me?"

"It only happened last night." "Last night?" Evelyn's face cleared. "Oh, you mean that nice Clifford Asher? Well, that is not so bad. His father is a famous man, and no doubt Clifford will one day be quite well off. I am very pleased with you, Georgie."

"But I am not going to marry him," George said quietly. "Why not?" "I don't love him."

"Well, of all the absurd reasons—Evelyn said. For ten days George watched the mail, hoping against hope that Nicholas Boyd would reply to her letter. She had found out exactly how long the mail took from Berlin to London, but even allowing for a couple of days to elapse between the receipt of her own letter and the mailing of his it was too long, and she began to lose heart.

"You're losing your color," Evelyn told her one morning. "It makes you look old and tired. You had better use some rouge."

"I never had any color," George said. She felt irritable. "I was always brown, and I hate rouge."

Hitler Consolidates Work Program

By TOM WILHELM Berlin—(AP)—Plans for relieving the unemployment situation advanced by previous governments have been rolled into one gigantic measure by the Hitler cabinet in an effort to pull Germany out of the rut.

Throughout the plan which calculates to spend a billion marks, or $250,000,000 and put 1,250,000 men back to work in fields, factories and offices, one may observe Bruening, von Papen and von Schleicher, all of whom busied themselves with the same problem.

Broadly speaking, the plan is based on two theses, lightening of the debt and tax burdens through various means, and stimulation of business by means of treasury loans to groups, individuals and municipalities.

The Hitler administration claims that thus far it has brought down the number of unemployed to 5,500,000, roughly a million less than the high point this winter and some 60,000 less than the low of last year.

The 1,000,000,000 marks will be amortized through budget levies over the next five years.

Various machinery replacements in factories, as long as the purchases are made within Germany.

Funds will be put at the disposal of water and electricity works for extension of their services, and to municipalities and districts which will use the money for improvement of canals, subways and public buildings. These latter loans will be interest free, but other loans will bear a nominal rate.

Fritz Reinhardt, state secretary in the ministry of finance, estimates that the plan will absorb 1,250,000 persons from the floating supply of unemployed workers. He indicated that additional laws would be promulgated by the cabinet from time to time as conditions warrant.

Embraced in the blanket law are proposals whereby tax evaders, until October 1 of this year, may avoid the risk of jail sentences and fines.

A tax evader whose conscience bothers him may go to his lawyer and pay the amount of the evasion. Thereupon the lawyer sends it in his own name to the finance department and receives a receipt. This receipt is a guarantee against future prosecution.

The government said this would be the last amnesty for tax dodgers.

Private funds established to alleviate the lot of the unemployed may be deducted in their entirety from the gross income in figuring income taxes the new law provides.

Ayden Club Meets.

Ayden, July 8.—At a meeting of the Junior Woman's Club held at Hotel Ayden on Thursday night, Miss Renno Jenkins, chairman of the program committee, presented Mrs. E. H. Cannady who gave a most interesting and instructive lecture on "Ideals," illustrated in colored chalk.

Beginning with a perfectly blank board and adding lines, stroke by stroke, as she lectured, in a short while a lovely picture resulted. So do we begin our lives. When born our minds are blank, but adding lines and making strokes in the right direction we can make a perfect picture and develop high ideals.

A short business session was presided over by the president, Miss Gertrude Coward, prior to the program.

A delicious salad course was served by refreshment committee.

FICKLEN SAYS LEAF OUTLOOK FAVORABLE

another reason for improvement in the industry.

Discussing the yield this year, he said that while production would be much larger than last year, it would not be excessive. He said he hoped for living prices for growers, but did not anticipate a run-away market by any means.

By reason of the short crop last year, he said, stocks in the hands of dealers was smaller than in years. Dealers have been able to clear out old stocks and are in better shape to help take care of this year's production.

With the cost of this year's crop less and with greater yield in prospect, he declared the growers would realize more from their labor than in recent years.

On the discouraging side of the picture, he found increased production of the leaf in foreign countries placing a barrier in the way of American trade. America grows less than half of the tobacco consumed in the world, he pointed out, and the remainder is produced in foreign countries at far less expense. Cheap labor, and inducements offered by governments to raisers of tobacco, were given as reasons for increased demand for foreign tobaccos.

Excessive duties on American tobacco shipped to other countries, crippled trade in recent years, but improved purchasing power of some of the countries should cause a revival of demand for products from this country, it was stated.

He mentioned conditions in Japan, China, Philippines, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and other countries, telling of the condition of trade in each. Britain was given as the largest American consumer with China taking second place.

He stated the American people had nothing to be discouraged about, in fact, the future offered considerable encouragement in the face of the turn in monetary conditions.

C. D. House and J. F. Davenport were presented as Junior Kiwanians succeeding Graham Guley and Frank Wooten. They were presented with the club emblem by Donald Conley.

SALES OF NEW CARS SHOW ANOTHER GAIN

Sales of new automobiles registered another substantial advance in June, according to figures released by L. S. Harris, chief of the Motor Vehicle Bureau of the Department of Revenue.

June sales totaled 2,376 passenger cars and 490 trucks, as compared to 1,429 passenger cars and 490 trucks in June, 1932. For the first six months of 1933, sales of passenger cars totaled 5,262 and those of trucks totaled 2,000 as compared with 7,106 and 1,736 for the same period in 1932.

General Motors products accounted for approximately half the same last month. Chevrolet led all passenger cars with 1,040 and the Pontiac was fourth with 124. Ford was in second place with 472 and Plymouth third with 372. In the truck division Chevrolet sold 263 and Ford 127.

CITY IS URGED TO TAP ARTESIAN BASIN UNDER IT

Minneapolis—(AP)—A vast artesian basin that could be tapped for the city's water supply at an estimated cost of $3,500,000 underlies the city of Minneapolis, says Benjamin Drake, leader in the Citizens' Artesian Water League.

Agitation has begun to persuade the city council to authorize work to utilize this supply and discontinue obtaining the city's water supply from the Mississippi river.

Drake declares the city is the center of a subterranean basin of 2,500 square miles of water bearing rock at varying depths for 400 to 1,100 feet. The supply, he says, would be inexhaustible.

U. S. Woman Diplomat Seeks Denmark Trade

Copenhagen—(AP)—Personality popular with the Danes, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen; the new American envoy here, has also endeared herself to the American community.

"They were 'for her' more than ever when she stated:

"I am a business woman and I am here to assist in restoring the normal flow of trade between America and Denmark. That is my principal business."

Sees Danish Leaders

And she has set about that business with zest.

She is negotiating not only through the Danish foreign office but keeps in touch with other cabinet ministers and with the Danish captains of industry and commerce.

With the latter she is exceptionally popular. They like her business-like methods and not the least that she can talk to them in German or French, if they themselves are not masters of English.

Shortly, Mrs. Owen expects to be able to talk to them in Danish. She is studying the language intensively though she is at work in the legation office from early morning till late in the afternoon daily.

Fixes 'American Home'

Upon the American community here she has impressed the idea that they are to consider her house their American home in Denmark. She brought her own colonial period furniture with her; the walls of her study are lined with the best in American literature; and everywhere are to be found pictures by American painters.

When Mrs. Owen was in Denmark two years ago, she and her children motored through the country and she had many invitations to revisit scenes of that trip.

Legation business, however, will prevent her from making long excursions this year, though she has managed to visit Aalborg, the capital of North Jutland.

En route she stopped at Odense, the birth place of Hans Andersen the poor Danish boy who became the teller of fairy tales to the children of the whole world.

Gets New Home

Peter Christopolis, 13, Omaha, Neb., orphan boy, will become the adopted son of a wealthy Paterson, N. J., silk dyer because he resembles the real son who was drowned a year ago. His new parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jean Strongs, who saw his picture and were impressed by the resemblance to their boy. (Associated Press Photo)

LOCALS LICK KINSTON TO TUNE OF 8-3

Greenville again held undisputed lead of the Coastal Plain league today after administering a sound thrashing to Kinston at Third Street School grounds yesterday afternoon.

While Greenville was shoving Kinston deeper into the gloom of the cellar, Ayden trounced Snow Hill at Ayden and regained definite hold on second place while at the same time shoving the Greene county lads into third position. Ayden played here today.

It was a rapid transition of the standing of clubs column with Snow Hill tied with Greenville for first place and Ayden bringing up a close second place, and left the league exactly like it was before the Snow Hill club started its rampage toward the top.

The Kinston-Greenville game yesterday was another of the many fine contests witnessed here this season and provided fans with plenty of thrills. Greenville fans, by reason of their loss through a ninth inning rally of Snow Hill here several days ago, realize that a ball game is never won until the last ball has been tossed, and they remembered this as the team continued to pile up run after run against Kinston yesterday.

The score as it was finally chalked up was 8-3 in favor of Greenville. Kinston unlimbered their heavy artillery in the very first frame when Biddle, center fielder, hit the sphere over the right field fence for a home run with one man on the paths. The visitors added another tally the middle of the game but were unable to connect for sufficient safeties after that time to increase their score.

Bob Forbes, veteran high school pitcher, did mound honors for Greenville. He had the visitors eating out of his hand the most of the time and breezed along comfortably with airtight support of his teammates.

In spite of the fact that he was hit in the head by a pitched ball in the seventh frame, Forbes went to first and did his own running and then returned to the box to complete chalking up another victory for the home town club.

Douglas, highly-touted Kinston moundsman, was on the firing line, and while he pitched well at times, he was unable to silence the bats of Greenville at critical stages. He pulled himself out of two or three holes, however, which would have meant additional runs for the locals.

Greenville was credited with thirteen hits against Kinston five. Brown and Poole led with the stick for Greenville, each being credited with three safeties, two of which were for extra bases. Lang and Bostic accounted for two each, and Miller, Dean and Harrington chalked up one each.

Brinser came through with two hits for Kinston.

Greenville had a perfect day in the field while Kinston was charged with two bobbles. The fielding of Brown at first was one of the highlights of the game. He accepted several difficult chances and made them all good. The remainder of the team also handled the apple in a skilled way, accounting for a couple of double plays.

The box score follows:

Kinston	Ab	R	H	O	A	E
Barhan 2b	4	0	1	3	0	0

SPORT SEANTS

By ALAN GOULD

Organized baseball, over a half century of existence or more has been slow to make any radical changes in its conduct of the nation al sport, but it has been through major upheavals before and it may go through another one, if conditions do not take a distinct turn for the better by the close of the 1933 campaign.

It is no secret whatever that a majority of the big league clubs are "in the red" for the second consecutive year, despite sweeping economies, the reduction of player limits, the move of a number of clubs like St. Louis, Cincinnati and Boston in the National League toward establishing bargain double-headers, and the steps taken in both major circuits to strengthen second-division outfits.

Major league club owners still feel they are offering more for the sporting follower's money at 50 cents or a dollar, than any other professional sport, but the fact is that the customers are staying away from the games through the week in very large numbers, indeed, meanwhile taking advantage of the double bills on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

This presents the combined problem, (1) of making a radical change in the schedules for 1934, with the double-header idea dominant, and (2) necessitating a possible re-scaling of prices.

In other words, the current tendency to offer the fans more for their money with synthetic double-headers has the effect of making them feel a single game is not worth the same price.

Perhaps the most puzzling development of the year is the failure of the New York Giants to attract increased attendance coincident with their sustained and sensational pennant drive.

If I heard the magnates complain once in National League circles last season I heard them deplore a dozen times the fact that their biggest towns, New York, was away off in attendance because the Giants were wallowing around in the second division.

It sounded plausible. John McGraw was out and the team was going nowhere. But it bounded upward this spring, with a rush. The team has played the kind of ball that figured to appeal most to fans saturated with powerhouse baseball, as exemplified by the slugging Yankees. Yet the cash customers have not bounded up to the Polo Grounds.

Why? Your guess is as good as mine. It may be that the apathetic fan of 1932 still has a hang over. It may be that the out-of-town buyers or convention delegates, their visits to the Big Town greatly curtailed, no longer have the time to spare for a ball game when they do hit Gotham. Whatever it is, it is plan to the club owners who trusted the biggest of baseball publics to support a winning team.

Magnates Wary
There has been talk of course, of a split in one major league or the other, the idea being to shift one of the St. Louis franchises to another city for the financial benefit of one and all, but this is more easily suggested than accomplished.

Developments by the end of the year may force a change but it will take a lot of argument, backed by heavy financial inducements, before the magnates run the risk of leaping briskly from the frying pan into the fire.

AYDEN ADVANCES
Ayden, July 8—Ayden ousted Snow Hill from second place in the Coastal Plain League by winning, 6-3 here yesterday. Wall, Autry and D. Johnson each with two hits, accounted for all but one of Ayden's safeties. The visitors' six hits went to as many players. D. Johnson pitched and Stephenson caught for Ayden; White pitched and Ogden caught for Snow Hill.

NEW KINSTON HURLER
Kinston, July 8—Christ Wootep Oglethorpe University Pitcher, has joined the semi-pro baseball club here. The young Georgian has many relatives in North Carolina and is a namesake of the late T. C. Wooten a lawyer who live here. His record as a college hurler is good.

Stock Market

New York, July 8—(AP)—Financial markets brested sizeable profit taking waves today and emerged a trifle wet in spot but with little use of a pulmotor.

It was a brief session of minor ups and downs in stocks and only a few specialties show inclination to race for higher levels.

The close was irregular. Transactions approximated 2,600,000 shares. Notwithstanding further reports of business and industry throughout the country cautious attitude was apparent in most trading categories.

The dollar again dropped in foreign exchange markets although its recession was not so pronounced as previously.

Grain was a bit irregular. Wheat got up around a cent a bushel and corn prices were fixed.

Cotton moved narrowly and finished with losses of five to 25 cents a bushel. Bonds were steady to firm.
