Hundred Unemployment Relief Workers Injured By Blaze In California

RESCUE PARTY HUNTING FOR MORE BODIES

Motion Picture Projectionist Arrested For Starting Blaze That Swept Ravine In Griffith Park Where 3,700 Unemployed Workers Were at Work; 36 Charred Bodies Recovered; 20 Others Sought

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Grim-faced searchers today stumbled over the fire-scarred wall of a canyon in Griffith Park from which 36 charred bodies were recovered, expecting to bring back the remains of about twenty more.

Unemployment relief workers were trapped in the brush fire yesterday. Besides the 36 recovered, R. C. Huston, assistant superintendent of the county charities, said 20 or 25 more lay in the deep ravine that could not be removed before daylight.

Approximately 100 men were in the hospital, many of them injured seriously in the mad scramble up the side of the box-like canyon that became a raging inferno as a strong wind fanned the rushing fire they were attempting to extinguish.

Robert D. Barr, 29, an unemployed motion picture projectionist, was arrested by police and booked for suspicion of arson. He was tracked by the license on his automobile which had been parked near the scene where the blaze started and where a man had been seen to enter the canyon and reportedly start the blaze.

MORE WAGE INCREASES GRANTED IN HIGH POINT

High Point, Oct. 3.—Wage increases ranging from three to ten per cent for knitters and boarders in most local hosiery mills have been announced for the purpose of equalizing the wages of various departments and are effective with the current pay rolls starting Monday in most plants and on next Monday in others.

The advance does not effect the several thousands workers in the other departments where experience in operating under the code has shown that benefits were greater than in the boarding and knitting rooms. The adjustments are made to correct the disadvantage of those two important departments in which upwards of 2,000 men are employed. Wage increases of ten per cent, effective October 16 have been announced for the Diamond Full-Fashioned mill where about 400 work and an adjustment satisfactory to workers demanding a 15 per cent wage increase was made by the Adams-Mills Corporation.

DOZEN CASES HEARD HERE

County Court Disposes Of Two-Week Docket in Rapid Fire Order

A dozen or more cases were disposed of in the regular session of county court here yesterday and work was completed during the early afternoon.

The docket was comparatively small in view of the fact that court was idle last week because of the one-week session of civil court. Usually each case accumulates in two weeks to run the court two days or more, but the past two weeks saw the criminal element quieter than usual and left only a minor number of cases for the court to consider after their week of enforced holiday.

Bud Lee Hardee, colored, charged with selling whiskey, was sentenced to 12 months on the roads. The negro, it was said, has been connected with the illicit whiskey traffic here for a number of years, and this was only one of a number of offenses.

John Phillips, colored, charged with larceny, was given six months on the roads.

Convicted of carrying a concealed weapon, Luther Manning, was sentenced to 90 days on the roads.

Edward Holmes, colored, was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon, and sent to the roads for three months.

Rufus Williams, colored, was given six months for larceny.

Convicted of possessing liquor for sale, Pate Cox, was given four months on the roads. The same sentence was meted out to Calvin Cox colored, appearing on a similar charge.

Annis Palmer, colored, taxed with a fine of $30 for possessing liquor for sale.

STORM DRIVE ENDS TONIGHT

Contributions Draw Still Nearer $200 Mark With Overnight Donations

Contributions to storm sufferers along the North Carolina coast moved still nearer today toward the $200 mark with the receipts of overnight donations.

W. J. Bundy, director of the Red Cross here, gave the total figure as $196.25 and with the campaign coming to a close tonight there was every indication the goal of $200 would be reached if not surpassed.

The benefit show at State Theater last night fell far short of expectations from the standpoint of attendance, and T. Y. Walker, manager of the show, reported today that only $8.25 was raised for the cause.

A varied program was offered the small number of people who attended the midnight show. It consisted of the picture, "Trouble Shooters," and several local talent numbers put on under direction of Mrs. P. W. Picklesimer. W. W. Lee acted as master of ceremonies.

The show was described as unusually good by those in attendance, and the local people taking part were praised liberally for the excellent acts.

Persons desiring to give to the storm sufferers were urged today by Mr. Bundy to get busy and do so at once as the drive will be brought to a close at midnight tonight. Tomorrow funds will be totaled and a check sent Red Cross headquarters for use among the hundreds of people along the North Carolina coast who suffered the loss of homes and other property in the terrific hurricane which swept over the area two weeks ago.

Additional contributions: Mrs. W. J. Bundy, $1.00; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Joyner, $1.00; Mrs. Selma C. Moore, $2.00; W. G. Stokes, $10.00.

Bernice Adams Laid To Rest At Black Jack

Bernice Adams, 4-year-old child of Mrs. Jesse Adams, died yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home at Galloway's Cross Roads after illness of two weeks of meningitis.

Funeral services were conducted from the late home this afternoon at 2:30 and burial was made in the Black Jack Church cemetery.

She was the only child of Mrs. Adams. The father died a year ago. She and her mother made their home with the mother's brother, William McRoy.

The counter, mirrors and other equipment of the Klondike restaurant in Brookfield, Missouri, were wrecked by the explosion of a keg of beer.

SEES DANGER IN CROWDED SCHOOL BUSES

Health Official Declares Overcrowded Trucks Here Menace to Public Life

The danger of overcrowded school buses was emphasized here today by Dr. R. S. McGeachy, director of the Pitt County Department of Health.

The new state school law which became effective this year has reduced the number of buses in virtually every county and many machines not only are carrying capacity loads but are overloaded to such extent they constitute a menace, Dr. McGeachy declared.

Dr. McGeachy, after a visit in many sections of the county in the interest of public health, declared numbers of buses in this county with capacity of 35 were carrying as high as 65 children. The danger of the overload constitutes a menace, the health officer said, especially in view of the fact that the buses operate two miles before beginning to discharge any of their load.

In calling attention to the situation, Dr. McGeachy said he had no remedy to offer in view of the inability of the State School Commission to cope with the situation because of lack of funds. He declared, however, that a remedy should be found before an appalling accident occurs that will cost the state in terms of human life much more than would be involved in adequate transportation facilities.

VIRGINIA IN 'WET' RANKS

State Votes Two to One For Repeal of National Prohibition Law

(By The Associated Press)

With Virginia voting nearly two to one for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the list of States favoring abandonment of prohibition now stands at 32 with none opposed.

Florida will vote next Tuesday, and on November 7 referendums will be held in North Carolina, South Carolina, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Utah.

If four of these States decide for repeal, the prohibition amendment will be nullified as soon as State conventions formally pass on repeal, probably the first week of December.

The Old Dominion, one of the bulwarks of prohibition since 1914, turned thumbs down on the amendment it had been the second to ratify. At the same time it recommended repeal of the Layman Act, State's dry law.

Almost complete returns indicated that every district in the State had rejoined the repeal movement with a majority of the country areas joining the cities in opposition to the prohibition regime.

WOULD 'FIRE' LEADERS OF PUBLIC WORK

Unions Calls on Federation of Labor to Appeal to President For Aid

Washington, D. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—Eight national and international union proposed today that the American Federation of Labor convention appeal to President Roosevelt for speedier spread of the public works program and removal of officials in charge of it.

Their resolution said that through the laxity or inefficiency of those entrusted with the expenditure of the $3,300,000,444 public works fund thousands of industrial workers "are in suffering and want," and added: "Resolved, That this convention appeal to the President for removal of those public officials who either through laxity or inefficiency are responsible for much of the present unemployment unless those now in charge can show a change to carry out the intent of Congress."

This resolution was signed by representatives of Sheet Metal Workers, Boot and Shoe Workers, Brotherhood of Fireman and Oils, Elevator Contractors, Painters Decorators and Paper Hangers, Street and Electric Railway employees, Electric Street Employees, Upholsterers, and the Newspaper Writers' Union No. 17668.

Like the other 102 resolutions proposed the first two days of the convention, this was referred to a committee for consideration. There was no advance indication of what the results would be, but sponsors of the proposed resolution pointed out that they control a sizeable block of votes.

LEAF SALES LIGHTER HERE

Efforts of various agencies to convince farmers of the necessity of not rushing their tobacco to market as evidenced during the early days of the season, apparently were getting results this week with lighter sales being noted on the local tobacco market.

While the market has had just all it could do this week the offering of bright leaf have been some lighter than last week when warehouses were crowded to overflowing and all kinds of conveyances stood on the streets waiting their turn to be unloaded.

Glutted markets, it was declared, by government officials, permitted tobacco to damage before being put on the auction block and caused it to depreciate in value.

The market was able to clear its floors yesterday afternoon and indications were that the same condition would prevail this afternoon.

The price situation, which showed a pronounced upward bound yesterday, but the market average continued to hold well above the $13 a hundred mark.

With the government and buying companies continuing negotiations concerning this year's crop it was hoped prices would continue to advance and get nearer the 17 cent parity as buyers proposed the farmer conference in Washington.

Official figures released this morning showed the market sold yesterday 1,356,806 pounds of leaf for $179,266.70 at a general average of $13.21 per hundred pounds. The average for the previous day was $13.63.

NEW COTTON DRIVE BEGINS

South Carolina Inaugurates Another Movement to Boost Price Situation

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 4.—(AP)—The starting point of various cotton campaigns in recent months today presented another tentative proposal to the cotton States—hold your cotton drive with a 15-cent price as the objective.

The newest campaign was more or less in the formative stage, but Governor Blackwood revealed he was considering issuing a proclamation urging growers to take advantage of the government 10 cents a pound loan program, and to hold their cotton for 15 cents a pound.

This course was urged upon the governor by J. S. Wannamaker, of St. Matthew, president of the American Cotton Association, who also proposed that other cotton States governors be urged to join in the movement.

Governor Blackwood has urged that farmers take every possible advantage of the government loan program and "not rush cotton to market, even though the price of 10 cents or a little better prevails."

TWO KILLED IN COLLISION

Mebane and Durham Men Killed as Truck Collides With Automobile

Burlington, Oct. 4.—(AP)—The crash of a truck and a light automobile here last night had claimed two lives today.

B. R. Broadwell, 40 of Durham and Howard Oakley, 18, of Mebane were killed almost instantly when the two vehicles collided between Burlington and Haw River about 11 p. m.

Details of how the wreck occurred had not been cleared up today. Claude York, Mebane youth, who was with Oakley, was slightly hurt. The car was driven by Robert Bright, also of Mebane, who said he was unable to explain how the accident happened.

URGE GROWERS TO WAIT FOR PARITY PRICES

Farm Board Here Reports as Untrue Reports Circulated Here That a Refund Will be Paid on Tobacco Already Sold; Farmers Told to Hold Crop Until Government Agreement is Signed; Only Damaged Tobacco Should Be Sold

Nailing as untrue reports circulated in the community that farmers will receive a refund so as to make their tobacco already sold bring a parity price, the Pitt County Board of Agriculture today issued a warning to farmers in position to hold their tobacco to do so until the government announces plans for securing parity prices.

The statement carried the signatures of J. E. Winslow, chairman of the Department of Agriculture, and E. F. Arnold, county farm agent. "We have been in touch with the Washington office in connection with this matter," the statement says, "and find that there are no grounds for such promise to farmers, and we are hereby warning farmers that it is to their interest to market as small amount as possible at this time."

The statement also supported the governor's request that "only those who have tobacco subject to damage or who are in absolute necessity for funds derived from the sale of tobacco should sell now."

The warning comes following a tendency on the part of growers to rush their crop to market in the face of prices still below the parity agreed upon at the conference held in Washington prior to the ending of the enforced tobacco holiday.

The statement follows: Warning It has been brought to our attention that farmers are being led to believe that any contract agreement signed between the Government and the tobacco companies will be made retroactive as of September 25 and that farmers selling tobacco now will receive a refund so as to make their tobacco already sold bring a parity price.

We have been in touch with the Washington office in connection with this matter and find that there are no grounds for such promise to farmers, and we are hereby warning farmers that it is to their interest to market as small amount as possible at this time.

We approve the Governor's request that only those who have tobacco that is subject to damage or who are in absolute necessity for funds derived from the sale of tobacco should sell tobacco. We urge farmers who are in a position to hold their tobacco to do so until the Government announces plans for security parity prices.

A COSTLY DELAY

Now comes a report from Washington of further conferences to be held with the tobacco companies and likewise information that there is no guarantee that action taken by the government is to be retroactive with benefits on that portion of the crop already disposed of.

As we have said many times before it appears to us high time for the government to come through with its promised action to see to it that the growers receive a parity price for this year's crop. The crop is probably already one-fifth disposed of the average price so far is such as to indicate that parity prices will not be reached upon the present basis.

Last Saturday Governor Ehringhaus wired President Roosevelt urging immediate action on the part of the government if disaster for the tobacco grower is to be avoided but still, nothing but talk from Washington. Personally we are confident that the government is big enough to cope with this situation, but when growers signed the acreage reduction contracts they expected immediate action by the government and the slowness with which the government has apparently handled the matter is causing a great number of growers to begin to lose confidence in the whole proposition.

Every day, throughout the belt, several millions more pounds of the crop is passing from the hands of the farmers with the result that it will soon be too late for the growers to hope for much help, if any, on this year's crop.

The government has definitely promised these growers something and again we urge those in charge to see to it that immediate action is taken to make these promises good. This delay is proving most costly for the farmers.

HEAVY TRAFFIC OVER NEUSE RIVER BRIDGE

New Bern, Oct. 4.—Around 10,000 cars crossed the Neuse river passenger bridge Saturday and Sunday, following its being opened for traffic shortly after midnight Friday night after storm repairs. This is twice the usual traffic, from 2,500 to 3,000 cars ordinarily crossing the bridge a day, it is reported by the district office of the State Highway Department.

Outrageous Fortune by Patricia Wentworth

CHAPTER 15 TRIAL BY WATER WHEN the rest of the house had settled into darkness and silence, Nesta Riddell still sat on the parlor. She sat leaning forward with her cheek propped on her hand and her eyes fixed.

Chapter 15 TRIAL BY WATER

It was being difficult—he was being difficult. Would he be any easier if she waited? Or was her best chance now, before he had got back his strength? Everything in her said now. She hadn't risked so much and come so far to lose everything for the want of a little pluck.

The emeralds were half hers. She had risked as much for them as Jimmy had. If Van Berg died, they'd bring her in accessory after the fact. She'd risked that, and she wasn't going to be done out of her price, not much she wasn't. She'd have her share of those emeralds whatever she had to do to get it.

It was a long time now since the footsteps overhead had ceased. For a little while there had been the faint whisper of voices, but it was a long time since they too had died away.

She wondered if there was anything in that staid old Caroline Bassell's. It was whispered in the village that Caroline knew a good many things that she hadn't any right to know. People in Packham said she had a hold over Mr. Entwistle and could do what she liked with him.

Suppose she had tried this stunt of hers on him. Suppose she had gone into his room at the dead hour of the night, the hour between midnight and the first hour of the day, slipping in on her stocking feet with a bowl of water in her hand. You'd have to tread like a cat and keep yourself almost from breathing so as to know by the breathing of the sleeping man whether he were deep enough asleep. Old Caroline always walked quietly.

She gave up the creeps in broad daylight the way she'd come on you without the least sound, with her neat upright figure and her prim starched collar, her face that always put Nesta in mind of a plump floured scone, and her brown front that never had a hair out of place. There—it was all nonsense, and creepy nonsense at that. Only, if a man could be got to talk like that in the dead of night with no power to hold anything back...

There was no light in the passage or on the upper landing. The linoleum was cold under her feet as she went through into the kitchen and switched on the bulb in the ceiling.

MINA'S big mixing-bowl would be about the right size. She reached it down off the china shelf and filled it half way at the tap. The water had to be cold—that was what old Caroline said. But how cold would it have to be? You could call anything cold water so long as it came out of the cold water tap.

This wasn't very cold—no bite in it so to speak. Perhaps a drain out of the hot water tap wouldn't do it any harm. She let in a little and dipped her hand into the bowl. Would that wake you up if you were asleep? Not if you were really fast. Was it near enough cold to do the trick? You couldn't tell that till you tried; and it was long odds that it was nothing but a peck of rubbish anyhow.

In her heart of hearts Nesta did not believe that it was rubbish. At the kitchen door she hesitated, and then put out the light. Now the house was all dark and silent with the warm, breathing silence of sleep. Even the newest and rawest of houses is a haunted house in the dead of night. The bodies of those who live there are unaware, but their thoughts fill the silence.

Nesta was not thinking of this, but as she stood with her hand on the door of the room opposite the kitchen, a little chill just touched her and her heart beat audibly. She had the bowl in her left hand, and she had to keep it steady.

The door swung in and she followed it, taking three or four steps forward and then standing still to listen. The bedroom was on the left—the fireplace straight in front of her, the chest of drawers across the corner, and the window on the right. She listened, and at first she could hear nothing at all because of the drumming in her ears. Then, after she had stood there for a while, it passed and she could distinguish his slow, deep breathing. The window was open and a light, cool air came in.

Nesta turned and closed the door with a steady hand. There should be a chair at the foot of the bed. She frowned to find it heaped with his discarded clothes. When she had slid them off on to the floor, she brought the chair to the bedside and set the bowl of water down upon it.

By this time she could see the outline of the window and the black jutting corner of the chest of drawers. The bed was just visible, and when she had looked a little longer she could see that he lay facing the window with his right arm clear of the bed-clothes.

SHE knelt down by the bed and reached for the bowl. The chair was too high. It hampered her, and she pushed it away. She could hold the bowl in one hand and have the other free. Yes, that was better.

She put out her hand and felt for his, bringing her fingers down upon his wrist by the slowest degrees. It seemed as if an interminable time passed before her hand lay on his, and he had not moved. There was something almost terrifying about this contact.

His hand was heavy, inert, and warm. It was warmer than her own. She began to glide it very slowly towards the edge of the bed, and all the time she listened for a change in his deep, slow breathing.

The change came with an extraordinary suddenness. He cried out and fung over towards her, startling her so much that she jerked sharply back, letting go of his wrist and slopping some of the water over on to the floor. Her heart thumped hard, and through its thumping she heard him say in a rapid mutter, "Eight of them—the finest in the world—no one knows—"

After the first recoil she stayed quite still. The mutter died. The bowl of water became heavier and heavier in her hand. He lay now almost on his face, his left arm under her and his right hanging over the edge of the bed. His breathing became slow and deep again. She let the time go by.

At last she put her hand on his and slowly, slowly brought the bowl of water up to it. This time her fingers covered his. Hers touched the water first. And then almost imperceptibly their two hands sank into the bowl. He did not move. He breathed in the same deep, slow way. His hand was heavy and still.

She said, in a voice that was just not a whisper, "Where are the emeralds?" And at once he stirred in his sleep. His head moved on the pillow; his hand moved in hers. He said, as if repeating her words, "The emeralds?"

"Where are the emeralds?" There was the same movement again. He said, "No one knows." "You know?"

This time there was no movement and no answer. "You know where the emeralds are?"

He lay still and said, muttering, "I know." "Where are they?" She felt a fierce excitement, a fierce demand. His hand pulled on hers. She forced her will, and felt that he resisted it.

"Where are they?" He said, "No one knows but me." The resistance hardened. "Tell me where they are."

He wrenched his hand from hers. The water ran over the lip of the bowl into her lap. Then, before she could recover herself, he reached out and caught her by the throat.

School Plans

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"I can't devote all my time to this," said Willy Nilly, "but I will be the principal of the school, which will prevent many arguments. Rip, the Dog, will be the headmaster. Mr. Quacko will be the swimmer instructor. Top Notch will teach those who are to become roosters the fine points that make for rooster perfection." Top Notch stood straighter than ever.

"Christopher will give oral speed tests, and will be in charge of examinations. Now you must all leave me so I can attend to fixing up this place while the rest of you can go around and tell all the animals in the neighborhood that school will be held on my porch tomorrow."

They were off at once, each going in a different direction. "Cock-a-doodle-do," crowed Top Notch as he went to the nearest barnyard. "Send your chicken children to school tomorrow. Let them have the right start in life by studying under the famous Professor Top Notch." All the others spoke to the parents they went to see in much the same way.

"Oh dear," sighed Willy Nilly, "I have no more backbones than the inside of a marshmallow. I'll have to get things ready for the school. They'll need smooth stones for slates and sharp pebbles for pencils with which to scratch their home work. They'll need books and school bags and I'll have to get out one of my old tables for the teacher and a chair and a ball."

"Oh, there is so much to do!" The plans for the school were under way.

U. N. C. GETS IN SHAPE FOR VANDERBILT

Chapel Hill, Oct. 4.—Carolina's starting backfield out at Vanderbilt Saturday may show two new faces if Eddie Martin and George Moore keep up the good work which they did against Davidson Saturday and which they continue in practice yesterday and today.

Head Coach Chuck Collins and the Tar Heels are making ready to shoot the works in an effort to upset the mighty Commodores and crash the halls of football fame.

The team made an excellent defensive showing in limiting Davidson to three first downs in its opening game, but Coach Collins sees the need of more punch and drive in the Tar Heel attack, and thinks Moore and Martin may be just the two boys to fill the bill.

Both boys are hustling juniors up from last year's reserve squad. Although the 160 pounds they carry is not a great deal of weight, they are fast, hard runners, and what is more to Coach Collins' liking, excellent competitors.

Moore, who is a brother to the Tar Heels' sophomore center, Bill, carried the brunt of the ball carrying in Carolina's 45-yard fourth quarter march to victory over Davidson. His forte is knifing off tackle, which he does with speed, authority, and the force of a much heavier back.

Martin, whose long range punting under fire was one of the features of the Davidson game, is a hard runner, sharp tackler, and clever little field general who lives up to the nickname of "Pepper" in every way.

If the youngsters prevail, they will replace Charlie Woollen, Jr., dependable veteran quarterback, and Jim McCachren, a highly thought of sophomore who failed, however, to hit big stride last week. Running with Don Jackson and Captain Bill Croom, who head the Tar Heel passers, they should give Carolina a versatile and hard running starting backfield. Jackson led all the ground gainers last week, while Captain Croom averaged 5 yards a try with the ball last season.

GOLDSBORO HIGH PLAYS HERE FRIDAY

Greenville High pigskin chasers will play their second game of the season here Friday afternoon at 3:30 with Goldsboro High. It was announced today. The game will be played at Third street athletic field and officials of the club today were appealing to the public to attend in large numbers and support the youngsters in their effort to make a greater record in this field of sports.

Goldsboro rates one of the most formidable aggregations in this section of the state, being a member of the Class A conference. Last week the Wayne county youths defeated the strong LaGrange aggregation and will come to Greenville determined to add another slice of bacon to the trying string.

Coaches said the local club was developing rapidly and hoped to be able to increase their victories to two, they having defeated Belhaven to the tune of 20-0 here last Friday.

GREENVILLE MARKET REPORT PRICES HIGHER

Prices higher Monday on practically all grades and higher again yesterday and today. Many growers averaging above 20 cents. The rush and block experienced last week on account of 3 weeks holiday is over and all sales will sell out completely today.

Everybody has observed that an overwhelming per cent of the offerings have been common tips, which of course brings down the general average. When the market begins to sell a larger per cent of the better grades, we believe that more than parity average will be realized.

Patrons of market during past week have been very patient and considerate during the greatest rush and confusion we have ever had and we ask that any lack of service on the part of the overworked warehouse force this week be overlooked as we have never had anything like it before.

The government expects to announce shortly completion of agreement with buying companies relative to prices. We feel confident those who have sold since market opened will receive a refund on the prices already received though everyone knows that government refunds come slow. Let us suggest that everyone preserve warehouse bills of sales.

You will not find the tobacco buyers on any market cooperating in every way more splendidly than the buying forces on the Greenville Tobacco Market. This fact alone is more responsible for Greenville being the world's largest Tobacco market than any one factor. When such conditions as this exist on a tobacco market, better prices for the growers is always the result.

The Board of Trade does not permit under penalty of $50.00 fine, any warehouseman to reserve floor space for anyone. The principle of first come first served under the By-Law must be carried out.

Tune in on Greenville's Radio Station WEED every day (except Sunday) at 9:45 A. M., 12:45 P. M. and 5:45 P. M., for latest tobacco market reports. Will find it on your dial around 142 or 1420.

Baby Breaks Collarbone

Robert Edward Lee, five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lee, probably has decided he won't try falling off the bed again.

The youngster rolled off his bed at home of his parents on the corner of Fifth and Greene Streets yesterday and broke his collarbone. He was reported as getting along nicely after receiving medical attention.

URGES BORROWING FOR PUBLIC WORKS

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 4.—Repeating his declaration that the Federal emergency public works program offers a "golden opportunity to effect needed public works, City Commissioner of Public Works J. E. L. Wade declared Monday the time during which this opportunity can be grasped is nearly lapsed.

He showed a letter received today from P. S. Wilson, of the national Recovery Committee for Water Works Construction, urging officials of municipalities to send in their applications for funds under the "30 per cent grant, 70 per cent loan at 4 per cent" clause, and stating "they have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

ACCUSED OF MURDER OF HIS OWN FATHER

Winston-Salem, N. C., Oct. 4.—A preliminary hearing for Will Snow, 33, charged with murder in connection with the death of his 62-year-old father, W. T. Snow, of Walker-ton, will be given by Magistrate A. Shapiro at 10 o'clock this morning.

Dr. W. N. Dalton, Forsyth coroner, announced that no inquest will be held. An autopsy performed by the coroner yesterday disclosed that the man's death was due to a skull fracture on the left side of the head. The accused man is alleged to have struck his father with a hammer during an argument Saturday. He caused the arrest of his father after the altercation on a warrant, charging the older man with being drunk. Late Saturday afternoon the older man lapsed into a coma while in his cell at the county jail and he was removed to a hospital where he died several hours later.

FORCE WOMEN OUT OF CAR AND LEAVE WITH IT

Fayetteville, Oct. 3.—Tommy Warren, a soldier, is being sought as one of three men who took an automobile away from two High Point women here Saturday and wrecked it near Bennettsville, S. C. The young women, Mrs. L. V. White and Miss Mary Green, told law officers they were sitting in their car in front of a cafe here when they engaged in conversation with three soldiers who offered to show them around on a sight-seeing tour. After they had driven around a while the visitors said, their escorts forced them to get out of the car near Eastover filling station on the other side of the river, and drove away with their automobile.

Officers later learned that the car had been practically demolished in a collision with another machine in South Carolina. Sergeant Garrett of the military police, and Constable Frank Gray went to Hartsfield and brought back A. G. Strickland and Archie Revel, two of the accused men. The other still was at large today.

PLYMOUTH MAN BADLY INJURED IN ACCIDENT

Plymouth, Oct. 4.—Sam Henry Miller, a negro, died late Sunday evening from a wound that he sustained while in a drunken brawl with Dick Smith. It seems that Smith was beating Adelle Miller, a sister of the deceased, when Sam Miller interfered and was struck over the head with a brick by Smith which resulted in death within a few hours.

During the scuffle, Adelle also stabbed Smith with an ice pick through the back, puncturing one kidney. It is believed that the pick broke off in the body of Smith. The affray took place at the home of the Millers, on Sugar Hill, on Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock, but when the report reached police Smith had disappeared and a diligent search by Sheriff J. K. Reid, Chief P. W. Brown and their deputies so far have proved fruitless.

Why—

Chesterfields are Milder

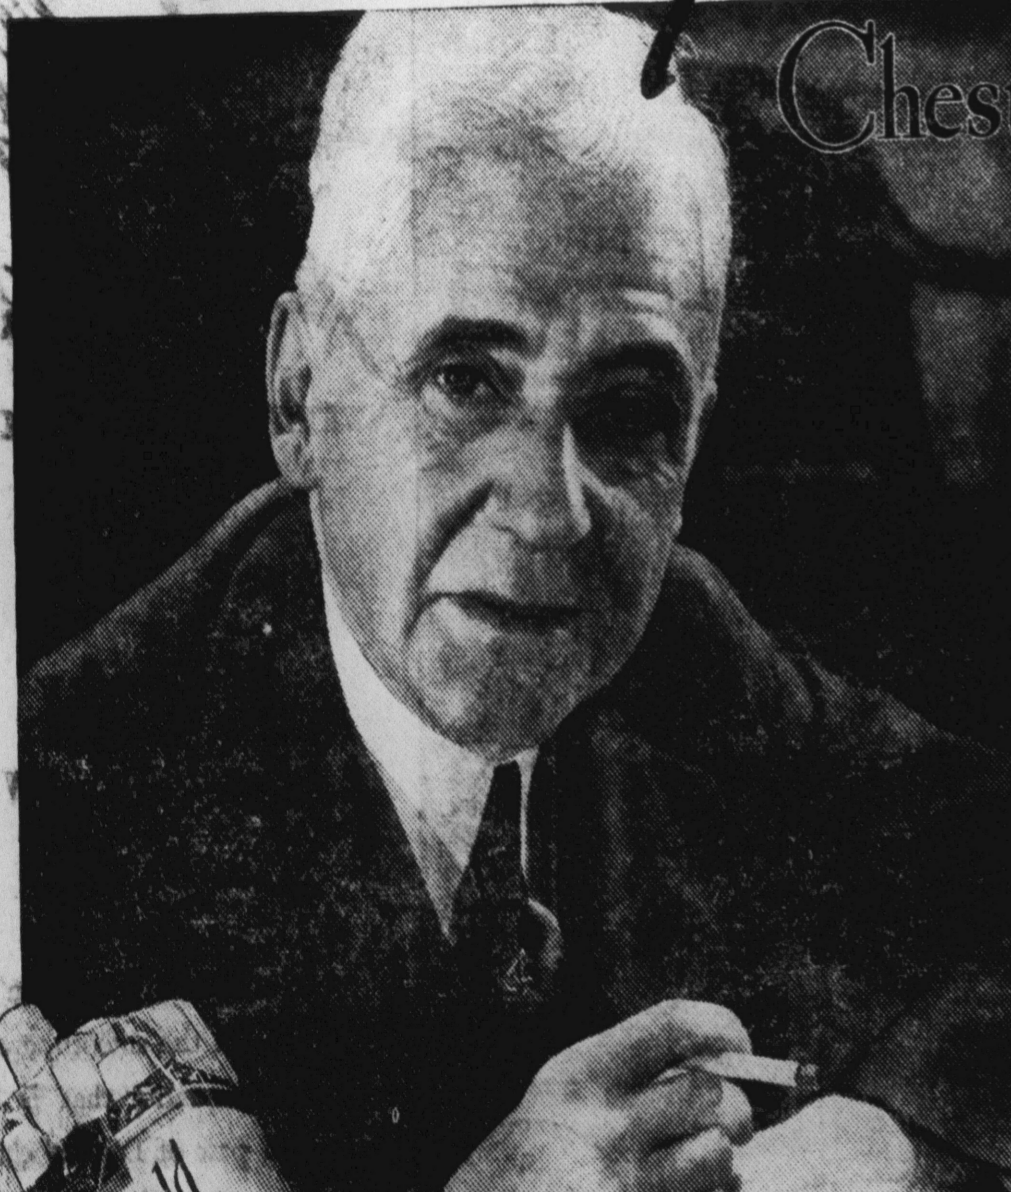

TOBACCO to grow, to ripen and become mellow, has to take in or absorb something... not Vitamin D, of course, but something that it gets from the right amount of Sunshine

It's the Southern sunshine you read about, combined with the right sort of climate and moisture, that makes the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, and Virginia the best tobacco country in the world.

You can stand down there in that Southern sunshine and almost see it grow.

This ripe, mellow tobacco is skillfully cured by the farmer. Then, for 30 months, it's aged—just like fine wine.

It takes the right quantity of each kind of these tobaccos, blended and cross-blended—then seasoned with Turkish, to make a milder cigarette. Sunshine helps. Just try it!

Larger Enrollments, Short Funds Crux Of School Problem

By RADER WINGET (Associated Press Staff Writer) "Save the schools from economic blight." That is the desire of educators throughout the United States as shown in a survey by The Associated Press.

Two paramount problems faced by thousands of school officials as the fall term opens this year arise from an increased number of students and a reduced income.

Meeting this problem, the officials are reducing the number of teachers, cutting salaries, shortening school terms, and looking to special assistance from States. At the same time construction activity is being halted to conserve cash.

Educators say they are not underestimating the ill effect of those emergency measures and efforts are being made to bring the schools back to a normal basis.

NRA Codes Have Effect Combined in boosting enrollments are natural population increases and the return to a greater number of older children to school under the impulse of child labor clauses in NRA codes.

Budgets last year were under 1929, and indications for this year show further reductions. Montana spent more than $14,000,000 in 1929 and about $10,000,000 last year, with estimates for this year "sharply lower."

Instructing the increased number of children—approximately 350,000 more than last session—will be between 18,000 and 18,000 fewer teachers this year than last, when there was a greater number than in 1929.

Salary Reductions Continued Salary reductions are being continued in almost every community. Most popular with school officials are 10 and 15 cent cuts, many of them labeled "permissive" or "voluntary," indicating the temporary nature of the retrenchment plans.

Instances are reported where lengthened school terms depend entirely on the amount of salary reductions. Last year in one section teachers worked for board and room only, but this condition is not reported for the coming year.

Money is being saved through reduced school terms. Some States are fixing a limit on the term and others are planning to operate as long as there is money in the treasury.

North Dakota Capitol Nears Completion

Bismarck, N. D.—(AP)—Now that its new cornerstone, hewn of native granite, has been placed, North Dakota's new $2,000,000 state capitol building is nearing completion after weathering controversy and labor trouble.

The original cornerstone-laying, last December, attended by Vice-President Charles Curtis, was criticized by the last State legislature as a "deceiving show." Since then souvenir hunters had damaged the first stone to make it unfit for use.

By legislative mandate a "naming ceremony" was ordered for the unveiling of the new stone. Since construction of the building was started two years ago, a legislative investigation and labor strikes interrupted its progress. The old commission resigned and a new one was appointed by the governor. In July a third commission came into existence under an act of the last legislature.

For a few days last June martial law was declared in Bismarck in connection with a strike of laobers employed on the project. Since settlement of the strike work has progressed rapidly, with occupancy of some offices scheduled for October.

The nineteen-story building, tallest in North Dakota, overlooks the Missouri valley from Capitol Hill. It replaces the state house destroyed by fire in December, 1930.

A "zig-zag" steel grating road, costing about fifteen cents a square foot and requiring no maintenance for twenty years, is claimed to have been perfected in Austria.
