J. C. LANIER ACCEPTS POST AS CODE HEAD

Acceptance of Position As Leaf Code Administrator Unofficially Announced

It was announced unofficially today that J. C. Lanier, Greenville lawyer, and member of the tobacco section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, has accepted the position as code administrator of the loose leaf tobacco industry.

Mr. Lanier was tendered the position, which is said to carry quiet a boost in salary, by the code authority of loose leaf auction tobacco warehouses at the annual convention of the United States Tobacco Association at White Sulphur Springs last week.

Doubt was expressed at the time that the Greenville man would be able to accept the offer because of regulations of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration barring those who negotiated codes from administering them.

The report received here today indicated that obstacles in this connection had been removed and that Mr. Lanier would take over duties as code administrator.

This means that headquarters of the code authority will be established in Greenville. It was said that 180 field men would be employed in enforcement of the code dealing with weights, fair trade practices, wages and hours.

Officers will be maintained in each of the tobacco belts, it was stated, so that a definite check may be kept on the industry and its observance of code provisions.

Mr. Lanier was a specialist with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and ranked next to the chief, J. B. Hutson. It was said his selection for the new post was in recognition of his services with the Adjustment Administration.

Dollfuss Takes Military Power In Own Hands

Hitler Aid Gives 'Hands Off' Order

In an amazing address at Koenigsberg, Rudolf Hess, cabinet member known as Chancellor Adolf Hitler's "second self," pleaded for an understanding with France, sounded a warning against impending war and defied any nation to invade Germany. The speech, following a week after the abortive revolt, was delivered before Nazi leaders.

DEATH WILL BE DEALT TO VIOLATORS

Persons Caught With Explosives In Their Possession To Be Executed; Dollfuss Presents Resignation of Cabinet and Then Presents New List; Determined to Stamp Out Nazi Movement In Austria

Vienna, July 11.—(AP)—Engelbert Dollfuss, Austria's fighting chancellor, announced a huge new drive against Nazis today after concentrating in his own hands all military and police power of the nation.

The death penalty will be dealt out for the mere possession of explosives, Dollfuss announced in an effort to stop widespread bombing outrages.

In a cabinet shake-up, Dollfuss presented the resignation of the whole group to President Wilhelm Miklas and then submitted a new list for Miklas's approval.

Dollfuss appeared determined to stamp out the whole Nazi movement in Austria.

Taking a leaf from the notebook of his neighbor and friendly protector, Benito Mussolini, Dollfuss will add several cabinet portfolios to his active duties.

He will be chancellor, foreign minister, minister of defense, public security and agriculture.

All military and police power in Austria will be concentrated in his hands through the defense and security post.

A communique asserted the step was necessary for peace and order and to wipe out the "last vestiges of treasonable movement."

JESSE JAMES SENT TO ROADS

Negro with Name of Famous Outlaw of Old Sentenced For Gun Stealing

Lads by the name of "Jesse James" always did like to tote pistols, and they always landed in trouble.

This was the case of the famous Jesse James of old and colored Jesse James Little who appeared in County Court yesterday on a charge of stealing a pistol.

After the evidence had been heard, Jesse was sentenced by Judge Dink James to sixty days on the roads to brood over the inadvisability of stealing—even a pistol.

Three or four other actions were disposed of during the session after which court started its annual vacation of one month. Work will be resumed August 14.

Alex Williams, arrested by police over the week-end on a charge of possessing liquor for the purpose of sale, was fined $25, cost included.

Pearlie Clark, arrested along with Williams, was released on payment of $25 and cost. They operated adjoining blind tigers, police said, and apparently were doing good business until the three gallons of liquor, said to have been in the possession of each, was captured.

Fined $50 and cost on a charge of reckness driving, John Lamb appeared to Superior Court under bond of $200.

UP TO THE LEGISLATURE

Sometime ago when the state made announcement that it had made arrangements to take over the Atlantic Beach and Wrightsville toll bridges and remove the tolls, we expressed our opinion that it would be better for the Highway Commission to give its first attention to those toll bridges that connect the various sections of the state before taking over the strictly resort bridges, in order that the greatest number of persons might be benefited.

In a letter to this paper from E. B. Jeffress, chairman of the State Highway Commission, we are informed that every effort is being made by the state at this time to purchase the Wright Memorial bridge across Currituck Sound and that legislative action will be necessary before the Chowan and Cape Fear bridges can be toll free. This should be done and certainly it is to be hoped that the next legislature will lose no time in enacting such measures as will permit the removing of tolls from these bridges.

Chairman Jeffress' letter is as follows:

"In a recent issue of your paper you had an editorial entitled 'Toll Bridges,' in which you indicated that first attention should be given to taking over Chowan, Wright Memorial and other bridges that would serve travel in general."

"For your information we have made every effort to purchase the Wright Memorial Bridge at a figure which we regard as fair, but the owners are not in a position to sell. We are now working on a problem of trying to obtain a reduction of tolls on this bridge and I hope we shall succeed."

"As to the Chowan River Bridge and the Cape Fear River Bridge, both of these were constructed by special acts of the General Assembly, by which they would be toll bridges until paid for. It would be necessary for the Legislature to pass another Act permitting us to remove the tolls on the bridges so long as the debt service requirements are met from the General Highway Revenue."

"We have already made as great a reduction on these bridges as we can and must wait the General Assembly's action. I just thought you would be interested in knowing just what we are trying to do."

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—While considerable mystery continues to envelop just what the President had in mind when he named Donald R. Richberg, NRA general counsel, as co-ordinator of the various emergency relief activities during the summer, many observers believe or think is certain.
It is doubtful if the youthful, eloquent and diplomatic legal adviser for NRA will return to his old post in the fall.
Although granted leave of absence from NRA until September 1, it is thought Mr. Roosevelt will other plans for Richberg in the future. The best guess seems to be that his

SPITE MARRIAGE

By Katharine Haveland Taylor

SYNOPSIS: Marsha Moore kills Bob Powers, because she believes that Geoffrey Towleton is "more her own." But she discovers that Towleton apparently is married, and takes Bob after all. Now they are awaiting dinner in the charming house Bob has chosen for their honeymoon—and Marsha finds that Bob is very dear to her.

Chapter 15 THE DINNER

MARSHA moved to stand by him before the hearth; he slipped an arm around her.
"Dear," Bob said, "I've seen how you have felt all day. I want you to know and to remember that there's nothing you need fear, because, you see, no need of mine is so great as having you unafraid, content, as happy as I can make you. Do you understand?"

A hand on her shoulder, he turned her to him.
"Yes," she answered.
"I love you very much," he said next; "you don't at all sense what that means now . . . you will some day. It means that I don't want to take from you, but that I want to give to you. Do I make myself at all clear?"

"Yes," she answered again.
"You are not afraid of my taking your hand now?" he questioned.
"You were this morning at about ten minutes past eleven when you thought 'I'm alone with him and I'm married to him!' You were a pitifully frightened child—and it would kill me to hurt you in any way."

She moved closer to him; he felt her hands clinging to his. And looking down, he saw her lean forward to kiss the shoulder of his coat.

He held her close; "Thank you," he said, "and I shall hope that with time you'll aim a little higher."
She raised her face to his; "You don't need to pretend gaiety, lightness," she said. "What I want is to have you happy. I have never wanted anything so much."

She had never spoken so much of truth, she knew. She must, deficient thing though she was, make him happy. He must never be hurt by her; his fineness must never be lessened by her. His arms tightened.
"Are you certain?" he whispered, after a sharp intake of breath.
"Yes!"

He bent his face to hers.
Later, they drank to the future, after Ella had appeared, with a discreetly prefacing cough to announce dinner.

The wind howled around the cottage as they ate their first dinner together; a very gay meal that was punctuated by odd, shaken silences when he stared at her, tried to smile and could not.

"Where are we, Bob?" she asked once.
"Paradise," he answered.
"Oh, I know that—" (She was going to be able to do it easily after all, she decided) "but the name that others call it?"

"Easthampton, dear."
"Really? It has been so odd not knowing where I stood in any way!"

"You're going to learn. No thank you, Ella. Oh, Ella, I will. I didn't see what was on your tray."

HE TOOK a generous serving of the candied sweet potatoes which he liked usually, Ella knew, but he hardly ate anything. She blinked.

She remembered him so clearly as a boy, and his bravery after his father died in that "cruel, quick way" . . . hit in one of the old "light bugs" on the railroad tracks. And how he had helped his mother by his bravery.

None finer, and young Mrs. Powers, Ella knew, was worthy of him . . . a beautiful, beautiful young lady with eyes that looked as if they must cry, while turned on him. And "gentlespoken and seeming rather shy-like."

"She asked me to tell you," said Ella later and in the pantry, "how she enjoyed the dinner."
The cook waited by the table.
"Well, go on—," she ordered.
"I never saw two more in love," said Ella. "She liked my serving. She said, 'It was a delightful dinner, Ella, and so beautifully served,' and he stood, as she spoke, his hand on her arm. She wore the dress he liked best. I heard him thank her . . . and she says to him, at that, she says, 'I always want to do what you want me to,' she says, and she choked sayin' it."

"It seemed like they'd both been a bit lonely, to me, serving them. I duties will me in the field of planning for retention of those phases of the "new deal" deemed worthy of being made permanent.

In his new job, Richberg will have opportunity to view the whole machinery of recovery in broad outline and not simply from the standpoint of NRA.

This experience, plus the ability he has demonstrated already as one of the key men of NRA should make him doubly valuable to the administration in the working out of its plans in the future.
Breathing Spell Here
Everything points to the quietest period from now until September 1 the national capital has experienced since President Roosevelt entered the White House on March 4, 1933.
It begins to appear as if that long-awaited "breathing spell" for both the capital and the nation is to become a reality. So far as is known no new policies are to be initiated until the President's return from his vacation cruise. The whole governmental set-up apparently will rock along in easily fashion until the last of August.

Mr. Roosevelt has passed out the word to his aides to take it easy politically. There'll be several of them touring the country during the next few weeks making speeches in behalf of the "new deal," but a renewal of the feverish activity which has characterized the past months is not expected.
It probably won't be until the U. S. S. Houston docks in Seattle some time in August and lands its distinguished passenger that things

Telling His Constituents
To 33-year-old Thomas O'Malley, of Wisconsin, a first-termer in the House, probably goes the distinction of thinking up the most novel method of acquainting his constituents of what he did in their behalf in the Seventy-Third Congress in an effort to convince them to keep him in for another term.
The youthful and earnest Mr. O'Malley consumed some eight pages in the Congressional Record just before adjournment in making out his case.
He listed every vote he cast and gave in detail the reasons why he voted as he did. He went back through past issues of the Record, picked out those instances where he participated in debate on the floor or made a speech and set them forth in detail.
It's probable one of the few times a Congressman ever managed to get a "re-print" on anything quite so extensive.

MODEL PLANE WINS
JUST 'GOING AWAY'
Kansas City—(AP)—Richard Funk, 17-year-old messenger boy, won a model airplane sailing contest and received the award of a gold watch "in absentia," as the colleges say.
Richard couldn't wait to see how long his plane remained aloft, because he had to go to work. The official timers weren't much better off, even after chasing the little craft to an outlying suburb in a motor-car.
They lost sight of the ship while it was at an altitude of about 2,000 feet and were compelled to stop their watches at eight minutes, twenty-one seconds.

To The Rescue

By MARY GRAHAM JONNER

A little girl had fallen into the pond, and as it was much deeper than before, owing to the heavy rains, she was beyond her depth.

Evidently she did not know how to swim, and Jelly Bear must rush to her quickly or she might drown.

It seemed to him that it took him some time to reach her, but he really was amazingly quick.

He grabbed her shoulder and swam with her to the bank. Then he pulled her up on the grass.

She was choking with the water she had swallowed, and Jelly Bear took her up, held her head downwards and shook her gently so that the water would run out.

She hardly knew what was happening—only that she was in misery. Jelly Bear showed himself to be an expert life saver.

In a little while she stopped coughing and was almost all right. But she still choked a trifle, and Jelly Bear continued to shake her gently.

"She's going to be all right!" Jelly Bear thought happily. "Woof, woof, growl, growl," he said to her in his most gentle voice, "you'll be fine in another few moments."

But just then, coming across the grass, were some people. They were calling the little girl. Jelly Bear gave them his best answering growl. But, oh! He was in trouble!

Enzo Defies Wife, The Ex-Mrs. Astor; He'll Go Ahead With His Boxing Career

Enzo Fiermonte, the Italian adonis who forsook the prize ring to marry the former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, is going back to it. Defying Mrs. Fiermonte, he appeared at the offices of Madison Square Garden in New York to sign papers for his bout with Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, and he is shown at right with Jimmy Johnston, Garden official. void and is a rigid force with strong hope of slam. It connotes support for the suit bid by partner or preparedness for any response. With other players it is just as good suit. But certain it is that a rebid of the opponent's suit can mean nothing but possession of that suit. Here is a hand in example:

The bidding was: West one spade; North two clubs; East pass; South two spades; West three diamonds; North four clubs; East pass; South four spades; West pass; North five clubs; all pass.

South's idea in bidding and rebidding spades was that he would sound out the no trump and slam possibilities, in case North had anything much but clubs. North, of course, could do nothing but repeat clubs and leave the matter of slam up to South.

With the opening of the ace of hearts by East, followed by a heart ruff West and the lead of the king of diamonds, the declarer, Mrs. Lloyd B. Thomas, of Brooklyn, had to watch her step.

After the diamond king was taken with the ace, the lead of the ace of clubs exhausted West. The North hand was entered by means of a spade ruff and two diamonds from the south hand were discarded on North's king and jack of hearts. North's last diamond was trumped South and there was a return to the North hand with another spade ruff, nothing being left in the North but high trumps.

Dalhart, Texas.—(AP)—The wind gets quite a sweep out here on the Texas plains. When H. C. Hudson advertised finding a broad-brimmed hat, he received more than a dozen replies from persons living as much as one hundred miles away.

Another International Match
More probably will be heard of the Portland Club's attitude during conferences in regard to another match in London for the cup which Charles M. Schwab donated last year for annual international competition of teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson are leaving New York late in July with the expectation of arranging a match in September. If the Britons agree to permit use of Culbertson's slam conventions, which proved very effective in an American team's victory last year, perhaps the way will be paved for international revision of the code.

The French who participated in the present code are not very enthusiastic over contract, preferring plafond.

Sholokhov's novel is a Soviet product, but the purpose behind it is not entirely a Communist one. The author wishes to show how the events before the war, the war itself and the revolution reacted upon a special people, and he has been able to do so with such sweeping success because he is himself a Cossack, has lived among them on the banks of the River Don and knows them.

He has related his material specifically to a young Cossack named Gregor Melekhov. A hard-riding, hard-drinking young man who was before the war, the war itself and the revolution reacted upon a special people, and he has been able to do so with such sweeping success because he is himself a Cossack, has lived among them on the banks of the River Don and knows them.

Bad Children
Josephine Lawrence's "Years Are So Long" (Stokes) is almost the antithesis of all this. Miss Lawrence has written a treatise on a subject which seems to interest her amazingly—namely, that children do not owe their aged parents support.

Obviously there are two sides to the question, only one of which Miss Lawrence explores. Barkley Cooper and Lucy, his wife, have raised a family of five children and spent all Barkley's $60 a week doing it. Barkley is more than seventy years old

BUGS' BLANK TAR BABIES IN MOUND DUEL

By R. O. MOYE

Greenville won its first shut-out game of the season yesterday afternoon against Tarboro by the score of 1 to 0. Not only was it the locals' first shut-out game but it was the fifth win over Tarboro in as many tries.

The game was perhaps one of the most interesting played by the local club this season. It was marked by a pitcher's battle between Reynolds May for Greenville and Shoaff for Tarboro, with May getting the upper edge on the Edgecombe county lads by holding them when hits would mean runs. Although Tarboro outhit Greenville 7-4, they were unable to hit at the opportune time.

Greenville made its only run in the seventh frame. Weaver, first man up, singled and was sacrificed to second by Poole. Wagner, who came next, hit a fly to centerfield. "Skipper" Harrington then came to the bat and with a beautiful single scored Weaver. This was Harrington's second hit of the day. And speaking of hits made by both teams all of Greenville's hits were singles, while Three of Tarboro's seven were for two bases.

Tarboro threatened to score on several occasions and it was in their last half of the seventh that they really did miss their golden opportunity, for it was at this stage of the game that they had a man on third with only one out, but May was master of ceremonies in giving out hits and struck out the next man for the second out. Wagner caught a pop fly to end the scare.

Both teams pitchers superb support. Tarboro really showed that they would give more trouble to the other teams by their hard playing as exhibited yesterday afternoon. It was just a case of who would get the breaks of the game and the locals got that break in the seventh.

AYDEN WILL INVADE 'BUG' CAMP TODAY

Greenville baseball fans prepared to turn out en masse today to witness the raising of the pennant captured by the local club last season and also to see "Lefty" Dean, south-paw ace, attempt to down Ayden in what is destined to be one of the finest games seen on the diamond this season.

The flag-raising will be accompanied by impressive ceremonies, including a brief talk by Mayor R. C. Flanagan, of Greenville, who will present the pennant, Bruce Bare, president of the circuit, and other officials. After the head-jamming is over the ball club headed by the high school band will parade around in preparation for the clash with the boys from Ayden.

It was probable that somebody might ride a goat into Ayden today bearing the inscription, "Ayden hasn't got our goat yet." The inscription applies more to Kinston than to Ayden, and the cry that should be heard at this time is not "stop Ayden" but Kinston, as the Lehigh lads continue to tighten their lead in the standing of clubs.

The day will be a "red letter" one for local fans, and the largest crowd probably ever to assemble on Third Street School athletic field is expected to be on hand to help cheer the "Bugs" on to victory and a higher place in the standing of clubs.

With the invincible "Lefty" Dean on the firing line, the prospects of victory are brighter than any game so far played with Ayden, and if the lad is going in the old-time form Doc Smith and Company are going to find it extremely difficult to connect for sufficient bingles to put the old game on ice.

"Lefty" has hurled only one game for the locals this season, but it went down in the books as a win and that was all the fans expected of him. He returned from the Red Sox training camp about two weeks ago, and has worked in the outfield nearly every day, using his big dynamite-loaded bat in a way that has figured in the six out of seven games captured by the local outfit.

With the "Bugs" in fourth place and pushing toward higher ground, fans may rest assured of seeing an entirely different brand of ball during the remainder of the season as "Skipper" Harrington and crew attempt to root Kinston out of first place and occupy the top rung of the ladder for a while—just to see how it feels after staying off the roost consistently since last season.

MATHIS HAS BIG DAY

New Bern, N. C., June 11.—Kinston defeated New Bern, to 5, yesterday, but nobody could blame Doc Mathis, new manager of the locals.

Mathis, former Davidson College athlete, clouted three hits over the fence—two for homers and one for a double—to turn in the greatest individual performance of the season in the league. His first smash came in the opening inning. The second homer, with two on, tied things up in the seventh. It was Mathis' first game in a New Bern uniform.

Biddle hit over the fence for the locals, but it bounced back into the field and was ruled a triple. The decision, which was protested, cost at least a tie as Biddle was left stranded.

Fletcher and Rogers pitched for Kinston. McEvoy and Flythe hurled for New Bern. Each team made ten hits. Ham Ferebee, with three for four, ranked next to Mathis in the locals' attack. Rand, Irwin, Rogers and Fletcher each made two hits before the last half of the ninth could be started. Each club erred twice. Tatum caught for Kinston; T. Ferebee caught for New Bern.
