GENERAL JOHNSON TO CONTINUE TO "BOSS" NRA

Resigns After Row And Then Resumes Work

RICHBERG IS INVOLVED IN DISTURBANCE

Johnson Decides to Remain at Head of Reorganized Unit After Firm Insistence of President; Probably Will Later Become Chairman of Board Controlling Recovery Organization

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The deep seated character of NRA's latest troubles became apparent today when it was learned that General Hugh Johnson angrily walked out of last Monday's White House conference, resigned in writing and reconsidered only on the firm insistence of President Roosevelt.

The dispute arose over an NRA reorganization plan submitted to the President by Donald Richberg, the NRA counsel, and Francis Perkins, the Secretary of Labor.

Among other things the plan was interpreted by Johnson as contemplating his own retirement to private life.

The general walked out when Mr. Roosevelt seeking to soothe the ruffled spirit of his conferees suggested that a decision be postponed while Johnson took a rest and a trip to Europe.

The reconciliation so far as Johnson is concerned was consummated just before Mr. Roosevelt's departure Saturday for Hyde Park. Under its terms Johnson stays on as administrator and probably will become later on chairman of a board controlling NRA.

The implications respecting Mr. Richberg and Miss Perkins are less clear. Richberg's friends say he will remain the NRA counsel although there will be no further doubt that Johnson is boss. Miss Perkins is expected to confine her activities more closely to the labor department.

NEGRESS HELD FOR STABBING

Lugenia Spencer Stabs Amos Harris Nearly To Death on First Street Here

Charged with assault with intent to kill after seriously stabbing Amos Harris, colored, on First street last night, Lugenia Spencer, also colored, was given hearing in police court this morning and bound over to Superior court. She was unable to give bond and was remanded to jail.

Harris, said by police to have been drinking, met the negress walking along First street last night. She charged Harris with having told untrue stories about her and immediately brought what police described as a three-inch blade pocket-knife into play. Harris was dangerously slashed about the chest and back.

Although seriously injured, it was said he probably would recover barring complications.

AAA To Pay Billion Dollars To Growers

LEAF PRICES STILL MOVE UPWARD HERE

Prices continued to move to higher ground on the local tobacco market this morning and indications at the noon hour were that the average would be above 30 cents a pound. The market averaged $28.26 last Friday when sales were suspended for the week-end.

There was about one million pounds of leaf on the floors of the various warehouses today and with five sets of buyers on duty indications were that sales would be the largest of the season. Only two sets of buyers were on the sales last week because of the inability of buying companies to bring their men here from other belts in time for the opening.

It was said that floors would be cleared during the late afternoon with five sets of buyers buying at full speed the market is able to handle 1,750,000 pounds of tobacco daily.

With the million pound mark reached today it was expected that million pound days would be in vogue from now on with farmers from a radius of many miles bringing their tobacco here to sell.

Farmers continued to smile broadly today as the upward trend of prices was noted and expressions of general satisfaction were heard on all sides.

OFF TO LEGION CONVENTION

Delegates of the Pitt County Post of the American Legion left Sunday for Greensboro where they will attend the annual convention of the North Carolina Department of the American Legion.

The delegation was headed by Commander J. H. Rose and was twice as large as last year by reason of the tremendous increase of membership registered by the local post during the past year.

Delegates in addition to the commander were: J. C. Lanier, H. S. Baggs, Walter Cherry, Coon Williams, Hicks Corey, Wilson Davis, S. M. Woolfolk and Dr. R. S. McGeachy.

Mrs. R. S. McGeachy was the official chaperon chosen by the post for Miss Mary Rachel Teel who will be the local post's contribution to the statewide beauty contest.

Miss Teel was chosen at a beauty contest conducted by the Legion here several weeks ago and is considered one of the most attractive young women of the community.

Late News Flashes

Tobacco Piles Up. (By Associated Press)

The two-way flow of gold was resumed in tobacco markets of the Carolinas today with unofficial estimates showing prices steady with offerings increasing.

Observers at Wilson, one of the great markets, estimated today's average price would run less than 28 cents for 1,300,000 pounds of the week. This compares with approximately $12 a hundred at this time last year. Common and medium grades were reported in brisk demand.

At Lake City, S. C., offerings were 700,000 pounds and prices ranged around the $24 mark. Lower grades predominated. Many farmers were selling tips.

Priced advanced sharply at New Bern where offerings were off because of rain. The first 10,000 lbs. brought an average of $27.15. (Continued on page four)

He was probably one of the best known farmers of the Stokes area and confined the most of his life to the development of the farming industry.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Emma Briley, a son J. R. Carrington, of Washington, and two daughters, Mrs. Abe Gray and Mrs. E. A. Hawkins, both of the Stokes community.

SELECT NEW GRAND JURY HERE TODAY

Opening of One Week Term of Criminal Court Marked by Judge's Charge

A one week criminal term of Superior court convened in this city this morning with Judge R. Hunt Parker, of Roanoke Rapids, presiding.

Most of the morning hours were consumed in the selection of a grand jury and the judge's charge. The charge was of a comprehensive nature and thoroughly familiarized the jurors with the various criminal laws.

The new jury, which will serve for the usual term of six months, is headed by N. C. Brooks, foreman. The remainder of the jurors follow: L. C. Speight, R. T. Strickland, A. V. Moore, L. A. Mills, A. L. Barrett, Roy Hodges, J. W. Joyner, R. E. Belcher, Alvin Newton, A. B. Moye, E. C. Carr, Roscoe Dawson, R. C. Butler, J. Raymond Tucker, Willie J. Hardee, R. G. Jackson and J. H. Burney.

The first case disposed of this morning was the driving drunk charge against Jim Pursell. Judgment was suspended for four months on payment of cost. No fine was taxed on the defendant because it was established that he suffered from tuberculosis.

Around a hundred cases are on docket for this week, among them being three murder cases and numbers of charges of robbery and larceny.

The grand jury is faced by two score or more cases and the week for that body is expected to be one of the busiest in months.

H. L. RIVERS, JR. BURIED SUNDAY

Final Rites Conducted From Home of Parents at 5 o'clock Yesterday Afternoon

Funeral services for H. L. Rivers, Jr., who died here Friday night at 10:10 o'clock after a brief attack of pneumonia, were conducted from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rivers, on Tenth street Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock and burial was made in Greenwood cemetery. Final rites were in charge of Rev. A. W. Fleischmann pastor of Memorial Baptist Church.

Mr. Fleischmann paid splendid tribute to the life of young Rivers, considered one of the most promising young men of the community. He wielded a strong moral influence among the young people of the city and was always on the alert to do what he thought was best for improvement of public life.

The funeral was attended by hundreds of friends and the beautiful floral tribute was expressive of the love and esteem of the community.

After graduating from the local high school, young Rivers studied civil engineering at Clemson college two years, returning to Greenville where he entered East Carolina Teachers college one year. He was prominently identified with campus life in high school and college and his influence for fair play marked his scholastic training.

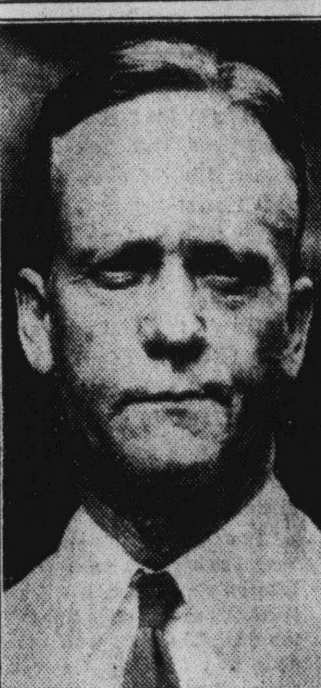

He was made assistant manager of the municipal swimming pool here when it started operation about three weeks ago. He had previously served as life guard and life saving instructor at Westbrook Swimming pool on the outskirts of the city.

He is survived by his parents and a brother, Tom Rivers. Close personal friends were active pall bearers.

PLAN WALKOUT IN ALL KINDS COTTON MILLS

Strike Leaders Prepare for Walkout as Labor Board Seeks To Avert Convulsion

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The strike committee of the United Textile Workers with plans completed for a general strike in the cotton textile industry on September 4, today began preparations for a similar walkout in the silk, rayon and woolen industries.

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The National Labor Relations Board apparently is ready today to intervene swiftly to avert a convulsion in the gigantic textile industry.

The board watched closely as strike leaders in the north and south acting on instructions from the United Textile Workers here perfected plans for a national walkout which they say may eventually involve 800,000 workers.

Authoritative information is that the secret order sets the date of the walkout at September 4, the day after labor day. Other sources, however, hold that the strike will be called on or before next Saturday, the original deadline.

NEGRO HELD FOR ROBBERY

Julius Johnson Bound Over To Superior Court For Freight Car Robbery

Arrested here several days ago on a charge of robbing a freight car of a case of cigarettes, Julius Johnson, colored, was bound over to Superior court following hearing in the regular Monday morning sitting of police court.

The negro was unable to give bond and was immediately transferred from the city jail to the county bastille.

Johnson was taken into custody by police Wednesday afternoon, it had been learned that he had sold cigarettes among several negroes here.

He confessed immediately and told police where part of the loot was hidden.

The robbery was committed shortly after a Norfolk-Southern freight train parked a car on a crossing in the western part of the city. Police said Johnson recently completed a term on the roads on a similar charge.

PAYMENTS TO BE MADE BY END OF 1935

$282,882,519 Paid Out to Farmers up to August 25; North Carolina Farmers Will Receive Total Of $21,735,000; Tobacco Growers To Receive Huge Benefit Payments

Washington, Aug. 27.—(AP)—More than $1,000,000,000 is destined to go into the pockets of the nation's farmers through the AAA before the end of 1935.

Cotton, tobacco, wheat and corn-hog benefits payments will total $779,402,000, officials estimated today. Of this sum $282,882,519.21 had been paid out up to August 25.

Of the later payment cotton farmers have received the lion's share, $152,510,793. Wheat farmers netted $67,781,591; corn-hog farmers, $46,815,988, and tobacco growers $15,773,785.

In addition to the $779,402,000 which is being paid out to farmers for controlling production—cattle raisers will net about $126,000,000 and sheep men approximately $7,500,000 by selling drought animals to the government. This raises the total for farm adjustments close to $1,000,000,000.

Farmers in North Carolina will receive $21,735,000.

LOCAL POOL BACK AT WORK

Operation Resumed This Morning After Suspension Saturday And Sunday

The local municipal swimming pool which has been closed here the last two days because of the death of H. L. Rivers, Jr., reopened this morning and will observe the regular schedule until the end of the season.

The pool was closed Saturday and Sunday out of respect for young Rivers, who has been assistant manager of the pool since beginning of operation about three weeks ago. He had been connected with this form of sports for a number of years formerly serving with the Westbrook pool on the outskirts of the city for two or three years.

Known for his ability as an expert in swimming and life saving the young man rendered invaluable service in operation of the municipal pool and its effort to throw a safeguard around the hundreds of people who swim there from day to day.

Announcing the two day suspension Saturday, Manager Eric Tucker said the pool would observe its regular schedule during the remainder of the summer and attempt to render the same high type of services to its patrons.

Manager Tucker said another swimming class would begin Wednesday morning from 9 to 11 o'clock. He said those interested might register at the swimming pool office.

The method of instruction available to students is taken from one of the best in the world, the "Brink System" which is used by the American Red Cross.

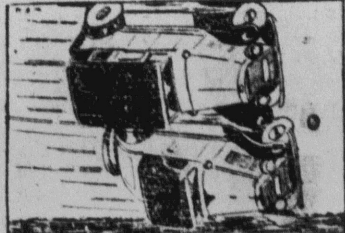

Tucker said he hoped that many people unable to swim will take advantage of this opportunity. The price of $1 for five hours of instruction is being offered in order that everyone who is interested will be able to join the class.

The schedule has been changed for the convenience of most of the people a few times since the pool opened, and in order to avoid any confusion it is repeated.

Daily—7 to 8, 9 to 12, 2 to 10. Sunday—2 to 7, 9 to 12.

IT SHOULDN'T BE ACCEPTED
Opponents of the proposed new constitution to be voted on at the November election have finally perfected an organization and from now until the election will wage a campaign against the new constitution. As we have previously expressed it in this column it is our belief that the voters will do well to cast their ballots AGAINST this proposed new constitution. There are of course some points in favor of the new constitution but each of these measures that have merit could be included in the present constitution by way of amendment and in this way we would be better off than to accept the proposed new constitution which likewise contains enough objectionable features to more than outweigh the good. If the voters of North Carolina wish to hold on to control of the affairs of their counties and the state it is up to them to use their ballots and influence to defeat this proposed new constitution.

There are two things that we believe the people of North Carolina do not want: One is to give the governor the authority to appoint every public officer in the state. We do not contend that this would be done if the new constitution is adopted, but under the new constitution the governor would have such authority if he chose to use it.

The other is that under the new constitution the legislature would have the privilege of classifying property for taxation and fix rates according to its own wishes. Such power in the hands of the legislature would make it possible for persons holding money or other forms of property to enjoy lower tax rates than holders of real estate. Four times already the voters have defeated such an amendment to our present constitution and we do not believe that now they will accept a new constitution giving that power to the legislature.

These two features, alone, we believe are sufficient to cause the voters to vote against the proposed new constitution for certainly already enough of the rights of the citizens have been taken away from them.

TIGER ISLAND

A New Serial by Gouverneur Morris

SYNOPSIS: Not knowing that Captain Wong Bo and his radio operator, Flint, plan to scuttle the "Boldero" in the instance, the big game hunter Harvey Bowers agrees to accompany a cargo of wild animals to Singapore for their owner, Angus Melrose, who has been put ashore at the Dutch port of Sumbawa with acute appendicitis. Bowers engages as assistant an animal trainer from a stranded circus, Ivy Green. What is more important, he finds her very attractive. Flint is telling Bowers and Ivy about the "Boldero's" limited accommodations.

Chapter 11
GETTING SETTLED
HE turned his smiling face to Miss Green. "The cabins are pretty bad," he said. "You can have mine if you prefer it, but it's no better. Mostly, I sleep on a mattress outside the wireless-room. It's lots cooler on deck than below."

"Personally," said Bowers, "I am going to use my cabin or cabins as dressing-rooms and parcel-rooms. I understand that you are a part owner. It's therefore with regret that I must report that your ship seems to have been built for the convenience of cockroaches and worse."

"We do the best we can," said Flint. "Every now and then we close all the ports, bathe down all the hatches, and do a great extermination act with sulphur or formaldehyde. The only trouble is we don't exterminate. They seem to like it."

"The bathroom," said Bowers, "ought to have been a de luxe cabin. It is only a shower, but it has two portholes and an open transom over the door. The bolt, with which the door was formerly fastened, has, I am sure, and the key to the lock is doubtless in the collection of some souvenir hunter."

"The bath is airy in more ways than this. The curtain, which formerly may have contained a percentage of rubber, now resembles that material which, in the best dressing-making establishments, goes by the name of 'peekaboo'."

"The best way," said Flint, "to bathe on this ship is to come on deck and have some of the crew douse you with buckets of seawater."

"I think," said Miss Green, "that I'll have to give the shower a fair trial first."

"I had an idea," said Bowers, "that the sleeping accommodations on the Boldero might not be as represented in the company's recent world-wide advertising campaign, so I bought two mattresses at a trading-store. They may be a little hard and a little thin, but they are clean. I bought also some pillows, pillow-shams and sheets. I thought Miss Green would probably wish to sleep on deck."

"I ought to sleep somewhere near the animals," said she.

"You pick the place," said Bowers, "and we'll do the rest."

"There is no place like this place," said she. "What do you call it?"

"The forecastle-head," said Flint. "If there is any breeze, you'll get it, and if there is, as sometimes, a strong jungle smell, it will be carried aft."

"What will I do if it rains?" she asked.

"You will go below," said Bowers, "in a drenching condition; but it is not apt to rain. It shouldn't rain for several weeks, and the sea ought to be like glass."

THE sun had long since gone down behind the mountains which were back of Sumbawa, and the short tropic twilight was coming to an end.

"We dine early," said Flint. "Does anyone mind?"

"Do we dress?" asked Miss Green.

"Not the first night out," said Flint. "We borrow our manners and customs from the best English liners. In about two minutes, the 'Get Ready' song will be sounded, and twenty minutes later the 'Come eat' song."

"And where," asked Bowers, "is the dining saloon?"

"Nobody knows," said Flint. "It was abandoned years and years ago. Captain Wong Bo has asked you to sit at his table. Except in bad weather he is always served on deck, usually just aft of the bridge-structure; but you can always locate his table by ear."

"Is it one of those tables that raps?" asked the girl.

"No," said Flint. "The table itself is unusually quiet. It has been very nicely brought up. The sound that I refer to is made by a cork coming out of a champagne bottle. At luncheon and dinner, instead of soup, we serve a glass of champagne. At breakfast, of course, this is optional. Captain Wong Bo has some cases of excellent champagne. We have, as you know, a refrigerating plant, and so our champagne comes to the table in a bucket of ice."

"I have an awful feeling," said Bowers, "that this voyage is not going to last long enough."

"By the way," said Flint, "do either of you play bridge?"

They both did.

"That will be good news for the skipper," said Flint. "I play a little when I get a chance, but it is his particular madness. When he can't get a game, he is always dealing experimental hands and working out end-plays."

It was extraordinarily still. The ship's progress was hardly fast enough to create a ripple. The buried thudding and clattering of the engine seemed rather to accent than to disturb the stillness. You might have thought, so still they were, that the birds and the animals were all dead.

Then suddenly the air began to throb with a soft musical and continuous vibration. It seemed to draw nearer and nearer, and to swell and swell, and then to recede and to wane.

The "Get Ready" gong had sounded, and Ivy Green announced that although she was not going to dress for dinner, she was going to change. Bowers showed her where the cabins were, her luggage and the shower. While she was changing, he located the cabin steward, tipped him handsomely and told him to carry the mattresses to the forecastle-head and make up two beds.

Later that night he succeeded in overruling Miss Green's objections to the arrangement which he had ordered.

"Except for Flint and me," he said, "there is nobody on this ship but Chinamen. A Chinese sailor can be one of the most unpleasant things in the world. Your bed is right up in the butts. Mine is well aft and cross-wise to the ship."

"I don't snore, and I don't annoy young women who dislike me. Aren't you perhaps flattering yourself a little too much? The facts are these: you're in my employ, therefore you're under my protection and I am responsible for you. I am going to protect you whether you like it or not."

"You're a pretty girl on a ship full of men, mostly young and mostly bad characters. No one is going to annoy you or molest you in any way, and that goes for me too."

PEOPLE in the tropics who make a habit of going to bed late are people who can get along with a minimum of sleep. Daylight itself is the universal alarm clock.

That first night out, Ivy turned in at 9 o'clock. She had changed in her superheated cabin to a suit of men's pyjamas and a wrapper. It was a black night, and it was not without difficulty that she found the way to her reservation between the captain and the extreme bows of the ship.

She shed her wrapper and tucked in. The sea was glass smooth, but there was a long slow majestic ground-swell. The black triangle of the Boldero's bows was a long time in completing each slow rise and fall. There is nothing that could be called a breeze except that created by the Boldero's four knots an hour.

Ivy lay on her back and looked up at the stars. A sheet covered her lightly and was perhaps too much covering; but toward morning the temperature in those seas nearly always dropped a little, and the thin blanket which Bowers had provided would come in handy.

She was reconciled to the sleeping arrangements. Bowers' bed was made up aft of the captain, and she admitted to herself that she would have been nervous to lie out on the deck with no one near.

The Chinese crew on the Boldero had not made a favorable impression on her. It took all kinds of Chinamen to make the race, and among the Boldero crew some of the lowest types could be recognized at a glance. Unrestrained and without fear of consequences, they were the kind of men who would stop at nothing.

If Bowers had not been an animal murderer she would have liked him from the start. She could not but believe that he was honorable, and that his promise to protect her was valid. Presently she heard the sound of his slipped feet. One of the tigers growled warily rather than menacingly as he passed, and one of the long-legged birds said something to the others about his passing.

Flint's emotions, tomorrow, will be a deluge.

Yet, Washington seemed to sense that the new league hardly was just one of the crowd; that if it would be heard from often in the future; that in one way or another it might be destined to have a part in the writing of history.

Start of New Party?
For one thing, the conviction is inescapable that the organization will figure in practical politics. When influential men start a campaign to "protect liberty," they speedily are drawn into political arguments; willy-nilly.

And when such Democrats as Al Smith and John W. Davis, and such Republicans as James W. Wadsworth, climb into the same boat for a political ride, it causes comment. The inclination is to soft-pedal talk of a new "conservative" party, yet if we are to have a "conservative" party in this country, how else is it to start?

So what about implications with respect to Mr. Roosevelt, and 1936? Joett Shouse, who is to be president of the league, says the "new deal" will be put under the microscope. He uses the future tense in saying that. But he changes to the present tense when he adds that the league definitely "isn't anti-Roosevelt."

He does not say the league never will be anti-Roosevelt; and that one certain thing is that if the league keeps its identity, it will feel that strongest kind of influence in 1936 to be able for Mr. Roosevelt or against him.

Between the Lines
Reading between the lines—and that has to be because all of the men involved, in the league and in the administration, are experienced politicians who pick up their words advisedly—the situation would seem to be something like this:

A considerable group of property owners, including conspicuously certain eastern industrial and financial interests, recently has shown increasing alarm over the trend of "new deal" policies.

This group, roughly identified with the designation of "conservative," took particular offense at the President's speech at Green Bay, Wis., in which he appealed to the western liberals and said the "new deal" must march on.

Now that apprehension is to have direct expression. The league, with out a party label as yet, has served notice on Mr. Roosevelt that organized pressure is to be brought to bear at Washington.

The President's Choice
Mr. Roosevelt can do one of two things. He can defy that pressure, or he can use it.

It even is conceivable he might welcome the activities of the league to off-set the opposite pressures he feels from him more radical supporters, and to help swing the "new deal" policies more toward the right.

Noe Reunion in Beaufort. Ayden, Aug. 27.—The Noe reunion which has become an annual celebration at the old home town of Beaufort, took on a new feature this year in the form of a birthday party August 24, the birthday of John E. Noe, the second oldest boy, who still lives at Beaufort.

Four of the sons of John T. S. and Susan Stanton Noe entered the Episcopal ministry and are active and successful in various fields of the church. Thomas Pasteur, the oldest son 62, is in charge of the Church Home Orphanage, York, S. C.; Alex C. D. is rector of St. James' Church, Ayden; W. R. is executive secretary of the Diocese of East Carolina, and lives at Wilmington; Israel is dean of St. Mary's Cathedral, Memphis, Tenn., and John is engaged in the fishing industry at Beaufort. The mother, Mrs. Susan Stanton Noe, is living and very active at the age of 83, and she with the boys and their families make the yearly pilgrimage to the old home.

A feature of the celebration was a picnic dinner at Atlantic Beach and a motor boat ride with Rev. A. H. Marshall in the afternoon.

There were seven children in this famous family, who reached maturity. Florida, the only girl, who married L. C. Tripp of Washington, died fourteen years ago, leaving one daughter, Madeline Tripp of Scotland Neck, Edward, who married Jesse Prigdon of Wilmington, died four years ago, leaving no children.

The other members of the group have fair-sized families and with children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren Mother Noe has a large group with her each year for the meeting.

It is extremely rare that so many members of one family enter the ministry and in fact very few groups in America hold this distinction.

Notice To Playground Children. All children who have been members of the folk game and dance classes of Pitt County Playgrounds, please meet back of Third Street School at 4:30 Tuesday afternoon with your directors. Please wear white dresses or blouses.

With the exception of Irish and sweet potatoes, food crops grown in North Carolina last year were not sufficient to supply the State's population.

Poor Puddle Muddle

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
Puddle Muddle was more muddled up than ever it had been. No longer was it a quiet settlement with only the little man Willy Nilly and his animal friends living there.

Now it was filled with all the visiting animals and the farmers and their children. The visiting animals had eaten all Willy Nilly's food and had dug up his garden and made a great mess of the whole place.

And the farmers had come to get their animals and had accused Willy Nilly of stealing them.

"I may not have the backbone of a butterfly," thought Willy Nilly, "but this is too much."

Aloud he said: "My rooster, Top Notch, told all his barnyard friends to come and call on him at some time or other. They evidently thought his account of Puddle Muddle was so wonderful that they'd come at once."

"So here they all are. They have been eating everything, they have ruined my place, and now you come along and say that I've stolen your animals!"

"Just look about you. Look at my poor garden—and it was in such good condition with everything growing so beautifully."

"Look at my pantry shelves. I'll never be able to grow all the food they've eaten—not for ages and ages."

"They're asleep now because they've eaten so much they can't move. Take a look around. That's what I ask you to do!" Willy Nilly ended.

The little gnome-like man certainly felt bitter, and indeed, all things considered, he had a right to.

Tomorrow—"They All Remain"

There are many men ambitious to become circus stars and thus to be sure of employment who would like to discover the secret of "reverse balance" which Capt. Dalbeane says is the secret of his marvelous act.

Capt. Dalbeane was born amid the gold fields and the haunts of the kangaroos in Australia, ran away from college at Melbourne, became an ardent bicycle enthusiast, and won eleven out of twelve major races. Having conquered the two wheels, Dalbeane then tried to manage the single wagon wheel. At that time the contraption of the automobile had just been discovered in America but was unknown in Australia. It required two years of patient endeavor and time out for hospital care before the wagon wheel was conquered. Coveting further success Dalbeane then decided not to quit until he had lifted that heavy wagon wheel mounted with his own weight up a flight of steps, step at a time. Thus he was determined to lift himself as it were by his own boot-straps. After a broken arm and several fractured ribs, he was victorious. He encourages would-be imitators to steal his act and tells them the secret is the "reverse balance," but not a single person of the many who have attempted to copy the act have been able to do so—they cannot find the "reverse balance."

Capt. Dalbeane has contracted to perform this unusual feat twice daily with the Russell Bros. three ring circus and he will be seen here when this circus exhibits in Greenville Monday, Sept. 3rd, afternoon and night.

This Australian wizard is very intelligent, has toured twenty-three countries of the globe and is a

THEY'RE EVEN KNITTING PLAIDS! Fashion's Favor Turns To Needle's Wares For Fall

Paris. —(AP)—Knitted togs have stepped up several rungs in the 1934-35 fashion ladder and new winter models are stressing new ideas. They are even knitting plaids these days. Anny Blatt does this blouse for early fall wear in tones of gray. It is knitted in pieces and sewed together just as though it were cut out of cloth.

Afternoon frocks, evening gowns and suit vests which look like tapestry have been clicked off knitting needles to make some of the most striking clothes for fall. Plaids have been reproduced in a manner which makes them look like fabric at a little distance.

Knitted evening gowns in dashing turquoises, jades and corals as well as sober blacks and browns are being shown as a fashionable practice for cruises and airplane trips.

"The prayer is appropriate for all those who are approaching the gloomy hour of temptation. You have felt the grapple of some temptation. Your nature at some time quaked and groined under the influence of force. In the tempted hour you need to ask Jesus to abide with you."

"The words are pertinent to us, from the fact that we are nearing the evening of life."

"On earth with many of you the evening is the happiest part of the 24 hours. You talk and laugh and sing. You recount the day. You plan for tomorrow. You have games and repartees. Amid all the toil of the day, this is the goal for which you run, and as you take out your watch or look at the descending sun you thrill with the thought that it is toward evening. So death comes to the disciple. The troubles of earth will end in the felicities of heaven. The bereavements of earth will soon be lifted. You will not much longer stand pouring your grief in the tomb like Rachel weeping for Absalom. Broken hearts bound up. Wounds healed. Tears wiped away. Sorrow terminated. No more sounding of the death march. Toward evening. Death will come, sweet as slumber to the eye-lids of the babe, as evening hour to the exhausted workman. The sky will take on its sunset glow, every cloud a fire-palm, every lake a glory mirror; forest transfigured; delicate mists climbing the air. Your friends will announce it; your pulses will beat it; your lips will whisper it: 'Toward evening'."

Any lad who attends the Russell Bros. circus and then can succeed in imitating Dalbeane's act will be sure of earning a liberal salary as long as he lives.

Lenoir, Aug. 27.—Top dressing with nitrate of soda by growers of Caldwell county materially increased the yields of both wheat and cat crops this spring, reports County Agent D. H. Sutton. A demonstration with wheat, run on the farm of H. H. Grubb of Kings Creek, shows an increase of 10.6 bushels an acre where the crop was top dressed with 200 pounds of nitrate of soda. Two hundred pounds of an acre of 10-0-4 fertilizer mixture was used under the crop. Jones McLeod of the Lenoir section ran a demonstration with oats and the top dressing gave him an increase of 16 bushels an acre.

Sanford, Aug. 27.—Dewey McIver, Negro, age about 23, was fatally shot Saturday night by Sheed Clegg, Negro, age about 35. The tragedy occurred in the yard at the home of Clegg, near Worthy's Crossing, Lee county. The load from a shotgun took effect in McIver's chest, causing death soon thereafter. Clegg came at once to Sanford and surrendered to the officers.

At an inquest this morning conducted by Dr. J. F. Foster, county coroner, the jury ordered Clegg released from custody upon evidence that the dead man had threatened the life of Clegg, because Clegg objected to the attentions that he (McIver) was paying to Clegg's daughter. McIver was not armed at the time of the shooting.

McIver had recently served a term on the roads for breaking into the home of Clegg.

URGE SAVING OF FALL HAY CROPS. Raleigh, Aug. 27.—North Carolina farmers are urged to save all their hay and legume seeds this fall, due to a shortage of these crops in drought-areas of the Middle West, P. H. Kline, plant breeding agronomist at N. C. State College, urged today.

"We will not only have to produce hay for our own livestock but also for the many head of the drought-area beef cattle which will be held over this winter," Kline said.

He advised the saving of all cowpeas, soybeans, lespedeza, and crabgrass hays.

Scybeans should be cut for hay when the pods are full grown and the seeds about one-fourth to one-half grown. If cutting is delayed the leaves begin to shed and the stems become woody. Lespedeza should be cut at a height of between 10 and 12 inches. Crabgrass hay makes a good quality of hay if cut early.

The stories are beautifully written. They are terrible. But they will do good.

Kinston Gets First Game Post Series On Tuesday

The "World's Series" of the Coastal Plain league will begin tomorrow with Greenville playing in Kinston.

The season was concluded Saturday afternoon with Kinston in undisputed possession of first place and Greenville in second. Second position was in doubt until the last day's play when Greenville by trimming Ayden 10 to 9 in a morning game, eliminated all mathematical chance of either New Bern or Ayden claiming the second rung.

New Bern won the game here Saturday afternoon. It was a rather listless affair in view of the fact that Greenville knew she had second place clinched and New Bern knew all chances of their capturing the coveted position was blasted during the morning.

The decision to begin the championship play was reached at a meeting of Greenville and Kinston club officials at Ayden yesterday. It was decided to begin play in Kinston and alternate from town to town until one of the clubs has annexed a total of four games.

Kinston has been running roughshod over virtually all clubs of the circuit the most of the season and fans from that place today were confident of taking four straight from Greenville and bringing the series to a quick end. But Greenville which climbed from fifth place to second place in one of the most sensational rallies of the season, will have something to say about that and the contest probably will be prolonged to the full seven games before a decision has been registered.

Greenville is in possession of the circuit flag, having captured it in the series with Ayden last season. Ayden dropped four straight games to the locals to lose the series and Kinston is hoping to repeat the Greenville performance on the champions of last season.

In view of the tightness of the race and the prominence of the college boys playing with the various clubs, the entire eastern section of North Carolina is manifesting much interest in the championship race and special writers will be sent here by some of the leading newspapers to cover the games.

The games are expected to attract the largest crowds of the year despite the fact that the concluding games played on the local lot drew the largest attendance in the history of the new athletic field.

Both Greenville and Kinston fans will turn out en masse to help boost their clubs on to victory.

Already safely in the post-season playoff, Greenville dropped a 4-3 decision to New Bern here Saturday afternoon. A double header had been planned, but Greenville's win in a morning game at Ayden removed New Bern's last mathematical chance even of tying Greenville.

Lefty Kennel held the locals to six hits. The winning run was tallied in the ninth on a single by Mathis, a sacrifice by E. Perebee, and a double by Patton.

Dean started on the hill for the locals but was relieved in the fourth by Harrington. Dean yielded four hits and two runs. He walked six. New Bern made a total of 12 hits.

Mathis, with a triple and two singles, and Norwood and Kennel, each with a double and two singles, led New Bern. Lambeth hit a double and a single to top Greenville.

TWO FOR KINSTON
Kinston, Aug. 25—The local Coastal Plain League club defeated Snow Hill 6-5 this morning and won over Tarboro 8-4 this afternoon. The locals got 10 and the visitors 13 hits in each game.

Lefty Rodgers did not finish the morning game, but got credit for his 19th win in 20 starts. Newsome pitched for Snow Hill, Tatum caught for Kinston; Royce for Snow Hill. Griffin, infielder, got three hits out of four for the visitors: Tatum made three out of three for Kinston. In the afternoon game Irwin got two singles and a homer in four trips for Kinston. Cleary got four singles to bat 800 and Colleenberger made two doubles and two singles in five trips for Tarboro.

Kinston clinched first place in the league, which wound up its season Saturday, with a win over Ayden yesterday afternoon.

THREE IN ONE DAY
Ayden, Aug. 25—Ayden crowded three games into a single day in an effort to scrap its way into the post season series, but the locals' chances went a-glimmering when Greenville took a 10-9 victory in the middle affair.

The game with Greenville started at 11 o'clock. The locals had defeated Tarboro 7-0 in a game started at 9 o'clock. In the afternoon Ayden opposed Snow Hill in the day's regular scheduled game, and Snow Hill came off with a 9-0 victory behind good pitching of Silvey.

Worley Knowles made three hits, one a homer, and Faust Johnson duplicated that performance to lead the locals against Tarboro. Ayden out-hit Tarboro 13 to 5. Batteries: Ayden—Knowles, Cosnovar and Smith; Tarboro—Shoaf and Richards. Worley was hit on the arm by a pitched ball in the sixth and had to retire.

The locals turned on the batting fireworks against Greenville but the Greensies did more with a dozen hits than Ayden could with 17. Knowles hit two homers and a single to lead Ayden; Ty Wagner hit two homers and two singles to lead Greenville. Wall and Bullock made three hits each for Ayden. Batteries: Greenville—Dave Smith, May and Wagner; Ayden Wrenn, Stephenson and Doc Smith.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York Aug. 27—(AP)—Financial markets were in a diffident mood today with prices pointing moderately lower in relatively quiet trading.

While there was no special pressure on the general run of stocks bids were low in most cases. New York traction issues were an exception. Grains were unable to attract any substantial support and losses of a cent or more a bushel were suffered by the majority.

Commission house commentators were optimistic but much backing and filling was anticipated over the next week or so.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem ruled about even. Santa Fe, American Telephone U. S. Smelting sold moderately lower.

Transfers were 510,000 shares.

FACTS

About Automobile Prices

Every prospective automobile purchaser will be interested in the following facts about America's fastest selling car—the Ford V-8—and its two principal competitors.

Since the introduction of the 1934 models there have been substantial PRICE ADVANCES. To the best of our knowledge these advances were never advertised to the public. Part of the price increases were recently taken off and literally thousands of dollars were spent in advertising the reductions.

The table below shows what has taken place by comparing the low prices of 1933 with present prices. All prices are F. O. B. factory.

1933 PRICES COMPARED WITH PRESENT PRICES
Make and Body Type	1933 Price	Present Price	Total Advance
Ford V-8 Coupe	490	505	15
Coach	500	520	20
Sedan	560	575	15
Cabriolet	585	590	5
Chevrolet Master 6 Coupe	495	560	65
Coach	515	580	65
Sedan	565	640	75
Cabriolet	565	695	130
Plymouth DeLuxe "6" Coupe	495	595	100
Coach	525	610	85
Sedan	575	660	85
Convertible Coupe	595	685	90

It will be noted that while the above three makes sold at nearly the same figures last year, the smallness of the FORD price advance means a far greater comparative value than before.
