15 THOUSAND WORKERS WILL BE AFFECTED

Patterson, N. J., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A general strike of some 15,000 silk workers will probably be called for Monday in the Passaic Valley. Ed Keller, general manager of the Associated Silk Workers' Union, announced today.

A strike call to silk weavers would have the effect of virtually paralyzing the entire silk industry in this area for production had been already crippled during the past three weeks because of a strike of between 2,000 and 25,000 silk and rayon dye workers.

Keller said the union would call out weavers unless the employers agreed to a revival of the 1933-1934 contract they had with the workers and to a reinstatement in September when the local workers joined in the general national textile strike.

Authoritative quarters said it was doubtful if the manufacturers would meet the demands.

Coincident with the threatened new strike in the industry, George Oakland, president of the federation of silk rayon dyers and finishers of America, announced the dyers would stand fast on their demands for $1 an hour minimum wage and 30 hours a week and a closed shop.

ONE KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF BIG GAS TANK

Charlestown Navy Yard Building Also Destroyed With Damage of $175,000

Boston, Mass., Nov. 13.—(AP)—One man was killed and damage amounting to $175,000 was caused when an acetylene gas tank exploded in the Charlestown Navy Yards here today.

The dead man was identified as Samuel Dunlea, 35, of Charlestown attendant of the building in which the tank was destroyed. His body was found in the mass of debris by firemen.

Captain Ross Shalbach, in charge of construction of the yards, said the damage to the plant, a two-story brick and concrete building, would total $150,000, while the damage to a boat-house nearby where tow grids collapsed and the roof fell in, would be $25,000. The boat house was about 150 yards away.

Navy Yard officials said they believed there had been three explosions, the first of which occurred at about 2:15 a. m., and was followed by two smaller blasts. Ten minutes before a marine guard, Thomas Ogilvie, had passed the plant and everything was quiet. The cause of the blast was undetermined, but Captain Shalbach said it might have originated from a leakage or a spark.

BLASTS CLOSE ARMISTICE DAY

Fireworks on North Side of River Conclude Celebration For Community

The celebration of Armistice Day came to a close here last night with a deafening crash of fireworks on the north side of Tar River. The detonation from the large firecrackers were so loud they brought back a keen reminder of the carnage overseas and persons not aware of the celebration thought probably Germany had started another war.

Yesterday afternoon Louisville Delegates to the North Carolina Teachers in a football game to the tune of 7-6, and this brought to an end the part of the program sponsored by the American Legion.

He told of the program of the American Legion seeking to take "profits out of war" by conscription of wealth as well as men. This would be accomplished, he said, by universal draft.

After the speaking former service men and numbers of guests enjoyed a delightful barbecue dinner in the Campus building of the college. The observance of the end of the war actually got under way Sunday with brief services in all the churches commemoration of the brave deeds of American soldiers on foreign soil.

Members of the Legion expressed themselves as highly pleased with the way the exercises came off and were particularly proud of the splendid address made by the Raleigh man.

Chapter 46
UNEXPECTED INTRUDER

"WHAT are you trying to tell me?" asked Marian of the District Attorney. "Why should you worry whether I've got the house locked tight?"

"I don't know of any special danger," he answered with a laugh. "I only want to pacify this young husband of yours. Now listen, child—pack your bag and be ready for me. I'm coming right out to bring you back to town."

"Lon is hurt, isn't he? Don't lie to me please, I won't faint or do anything foolish."

"No, Lon isn't hurt. I'll tell you what's wrong, because if I don't some of your newspaper friends will. Lon is in jail. Now don't get panicky, it's the safest place he can be at a moment like this."

"On the check charge?" she asked.

"No, he was caught robbing McSwain's safe in the Clark building."

"Lon . . . robbing?" Marian exclaimed incredulously.

"And don't worry about it either," came the laughing reply.

THEY DON'T MIX

Whether you are a "wet" or a "dry," this fact will interest you: Repeal of prohibition has resulted in a tremendous increase in drunken driving, according to reports of police bureaus, safety departments and similar organizations. No one knows whether this is due to people drinking more now than during the prohibition era—but it is a fact that more people are taking drinks and then getting behind the wheels of their cars.

A driver does not even have to be noticeably drunk to be dangerous. Investigations show that very moderate doses of alcohol produce the following effects on the average driver: Slower reactions, less uniformity in response, a narrowing of the field of attention, a rise in self-assurance which breeds recklessness, and a general decline in mechanical efficiency. The change occurring may be relatively slight—but when the driver is in sole charge of a hurtling mass of metal, it becomes important indeed. A man who shows few signs of his drinking, and is a pleasant and rational companion, may become a menace to the public in his car.

The "wets" of the country should take the lead in discouraging the drunken driver. He is one of the worst dangers to the cause they espouse—"alcohol on the highway" is certain to be used as a potent argument for prohibition. Today, with liquor legally on sale in the bulk of states, legislation to curb drunken driving should be made even stiffer than in the past—and should be enforced to the letter. Alcohol and gasoline don't mix.

"I've come to bargain with you," Silver declared.

"Run along now. Don't bother about unlocking the gate. I'll walk up to the house."

Marian turned from the telephone and hurried to the bedroom. It should take her friend about half an hour to drive out from town. Lon in jail. Curious that she should feel relieved. The idea of her Lon's robbing a safe was preposterous. How had McSwain managed to frame him in a position like that?

At least the blow had fallen. Now they could act. There would be no more of this suspense, no more of that agonized waiting for something to happen.

Here watched her bring out her bag and fold clothes into it. She didn't know which clothes she packed. He marched to the closet and returned with his leash.

"All right, old man," she said patting him, "you are going too; going for a ride in the automobile," she explained.

HE pranced about joyously, following her, getting under her feet as she went from room to room seeing that everything was in order, turning off the refrigerator, seeing that she had turned the electricity off in the warming oven; returning to make sure she hadn't made a mistake.

The telephone again. She hurried back. It was Bowen, her old managing editor.

"Say, lan," he began, "what's this wild yarn they're phoning over from headquarters, something about your husband being locked up for robbery? Is the fellow they have over there really your husband?"

"I imagine he is, the D. A. just telephoned and broke the news to me."

"You don't sound the least bit downhearted," Bowen commented.

"I'm not," she confessed, "I've been expecting so much worse to happen that this sounds like a reprieve."

"You mean you . . . you expected him to do this? Marian, what's it all about?"

"The ugliest story you've had in a long time," she prophesied. "It's the story we were working for the getting the right. Should this happen all bets would be off and 1936 would become a very important year in the eyes of the fat boys.

Analysis of political trends since well before the turn of the century indicates that salvation of the Republican Party would come quickest through reconstruction under the hands of the LaFollette brothers of Wisconsin.

"Fighting Bob" LaFollette, father of the present mentors of the Progressive Party, began writing platforms for the Republican Party many years ago. Each time he offered one in a national convention he was booted down, but about twenty years later those rejected platforms successively were adopted without question and most of the elder LaFollette's early ideas are now law.

Complete realignment of Republican ideas to fit those of Senator Bob and Governor Phil of Wisconsin would be heart-wrenching for many who have followed the G. O. P. banner but the political funerals of last week make such pain "so what?" Certainly something akin to this must be done if the Republicans are to make a serious threat at the Democratic New Deal.

Even should Republican sentiment turn in this direction, of course, there's one hurdle to cross that President Roosevelt himself built. Young Bob LaFollette has been supported by the administration and vice versa ever since 1932. Perhaps FDR knows his deal can be beaten only by a man younger than himself and therefore took Young Bob into camp at an early date.

More Democratic Committee rail birds say maestro Jim Farley is thinking about giving some of his brain-trustish colleagues in the New Deal a blackboard talk with dry Kansas as the case in point. If the lesson in political rudiments materializes Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Interior Ickes and Relief Administrator Hopkins are supposed to benefit.

According to the hard-boiled headquarters Democrats the New Deal missed out in the sunflower state because administration idealists permitted Republicans to play Santa Claus. Senator Arthur Capper and Governor Alf Landon are reputed to have seen to it that Republicans headed virtually all of the New Deal emergency setups in Kansas, thus giving the opposition control of plowing under, birth control of pigs, mixing mortar and feeding the hungry.

There are Democrats who aren't satisfied with a flood and get mad because the last spoonful wasn't scooped up.

New York

By JAMES McMILLIN

Real: Evidence is mounting that the new teamwork between financial leaders and Washington is on the level.

From the bankers' side there has been a decided pick-up in commercial loans the past two weeks—especially in the New York district. Insiders say this credit tide will continue to raise. Also the big banks are beginning to take a genuine interest in promoting the administration's housing program. Still further confirmation is given by the private remarks of responsible bankers that the Treasury is practically free to write its own ticket on the terms and amounts of its next financing.

The bankers in turn are satisfied with the government's good faith as expressed in Senator Fletcher's statement that he can see no point to additional financial legislation at present. They realize the President can't say such things himself but they accept Fletcher as an authoritative through unofficial spokesman. It would be hard for Congressional radicals to get far with the chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee blocking the road.

WASHINGTON LICKS LOCALS BY SCORE 26-0

The Washington Pam-Pack scored a decisive win over the Greenville Greaves before a very large loyalist day crowd, 26 to 0. Greenville had won the last three games and were trying hard to make it four in a row; Washington was more determined that they would not to suffer this fourth defeat and went about administering a sound thrashing to the home club with the greatest of ease.

Only on three occasions did Greenville generate an offensive that appeared to be clicking. They failed to get beyond the 24-yard line. The powerful defensive playing of the entire Washington team stopped cold every threat that was made at their goal line.

In Carter, Kugler and Stewart the Pam-Pack presented a trio of smooth, hard running backs that were ably supported by hard charging line.

Greenville played Washington on even terms the first quarter. The ball was in the Washington end of the field most of the quarter. On the first play of the second period Carter started the fireworks by going through his own right tackle for a gain of 48 yards. Once the Washington team started, Greenville was powerless to stop it. This march ended when Kugler caught the Greenville team flat-footed and went through a big hole on his own left side from the 11-yard line for the touchdown. He halted when he tried to buck the line for the extra point.

After this first touchdown, the Pam-Pack wasted little time in crossing the goal line the second time. From punt formation, Stewart carried the ball 33 yards. From the 19-yard line Kugler again carried the ball over using a play exactly like the one he used to make his first touchdown. Both times he crossed the line standing up Carter converted the extra point on a line buck.

At the beginning of the third period Greenville kicked to the Washington 10-yard line where Carter received and returned it to the 40-yard line. On the very first play after this Carter received the ball on a fake reverse, then passed to Winfield who received the ball on his own 46-yard line and traveled for 54 yards for the score. Again they failed to make the extra point.

Washington scored its fourth and last touchdown toward the end of the third period when Carter passed to Winfield for a 32 yard gain. On a spinner Carter went off-tackle from the 10-yard line for the touchdown. Carter passed to Winfield for the extra point.

The fourth quarter offered a number of thrilling plays, but there was no further scoring after the third quarter closed. On a bad pass from center Winfield fumbled and Greenville recovered on the Washington 24-yard line. They failed to capitalize on this break and the ball went over. Washington immediately punted out of danger. At this point the Greaves started passing in a desperate effort to score. This did not last long as Stewart intercepted one of Carroll's passes and ran it back 30 yards to the Greenville 26-yard line. On the first play after this Stewart passed again to Winfield for 23 yards placing the ball on the 3-yard line just as the game ended.

From the start of the second quarter until the game closed Washington rattled Greenville. Their line simply ripped ours into shreds. Their spinners and fake-reverses were always good for a gain. It seemed that the Greenville team just could not get started, they were out-charged, out-blocked, in fact, they were outplayed in every department of the game unless it was in punting.

Greenville tried ten passes, completing two for 30 yards, they had one pass intercepted, while Washington tied five, completing three for 84 yards. The Pam-Pack drew 30 yards in penalties and the Greaves 15.

Washington had a number of men that were outstanding. Tally was very strong on defense, while Winfield stood out as a pass receiver par-excellence. Captain Davenport at right guard was in practically every play. In the backfield, Carter Kugler and Stewart were hard to stop. For Greenville, Clark, Summerell and Hatem in the line and Wm. Eilers and Brewer in the back field showed up best.

Following is the line-up:

Greenville	Position	Washington
Cox	Right End	Tally
Size	Right Tackle	Roberson
Hamilton	Right Guard	Davenport
Summerell	Center	Allgood
Clark	Left Guard	Canady
B. Eilers	Quarterback	Stewart
W. Eilers	Right Halfback	Williams

Brewer	Fullback	Daniel

Score by periods:

Washington	0	13	13	0	26

ECTC LOSES TO LOUISBURG

Louisburg College and East Carolina Teachers College each made one touchdown yesterday, but the visitors succeeded in converting the extra point and thus gained a 7-6 decision over the Teachers.

The visiting Trojans counted in the second period. Coach Frank Suttentfield had started his second team but at the close of the first period he sent in an entirely new team except that McFayden remained at left end.

Late in the second period the Trojans journeyed 60 yards to score. Weldon and Davis led in a ground attack which carried to the Teacher's 32. Weldon then threw a forward pass to Richardson, who in turn flicked a lateral to Boland—and this play put the ball at the Teacher's seven. A line play failed, and then Weldon passed to McFayden for the touchdown. Weldon place-kicked the point.

The Teachers counted in the middle of the third period. An exchange of punts gave them the ball at Louisburg's 45. A pass, Perebee to L. Ridenhour, gained 10 yards. Perebee and Noble, in three plays, carried to Louisburg's 22. A pass, from Perebee to Lindsey, advanced the ball to the four-yard line. After two line plays had failed to gain Perebee skirted end for touchdown. Noble attempted to kick the extra point, but his try was blocked by Goodwin and Hoskins.

Louisburg made a dozen first downs and the Teachers made five. The visitors attempter seven passes, competing two. They completed four of a dozen. They completed four of a dozen. They completed four of a dozen.

Johnson and B. Ridenhour, Teacher's tackles, were outstanding performers. Perebee was the home team's backfield ace. McFayden, who played the full game, was the leading lineman in the Trojan's play. Gibson and Boland featured among the backs.

The line-up follows:

E. C. T. C.	Position	Louisburg
Jolly	Center	Early
Sinclair	Right Guard	Bracy
Nobles	Right Tackle	Belanga

DUKE REMAINS FAVORITE FOR UNC BATTLE

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 13.—Duke's sparkling play against Wake Forest Saturday, together with the narrowness of Carolina's margin over Davidson, left the Blue Devils in the role of favorites as the two teams made ready to hit the training grid for their annual classic here Saturday.

This morning's mail brought another flood of ticket orders. The advance sale, unprecedented in the history of football here, indicates that a crowd of close to 30,000 will turn out to see the arch-rivals fight it out for the Big Five and Southern Conference titles.

The Blue Devils took Wake Forest in stride, winning 28-7 after playing their second team for almost three-quarters. Carolina beat Wake Forest by the same margin, 21-0, but that was in the opening game of the season, and the Deacons have come a long way since that date.

Carolina was extended, and had to play its regulars almost all the way, to turn back Davidson, a team Duke defeated 20-0, by the relatively small margin of 12-2.

Duke will also have a big advantage in the kicking game if Charlie Shaffer does not return to the lineup this week, and Coach Snavely has expressed grave doubt as to whether he will be in any kind of shape even if he is able to play.

Carolina's punters averaged only 30 yards and had a couple of their boots blocked Saturday, putting them in bad holes. Against Wake Forest Parker and McAninch, who do the Duke kicking, averaged 42.5 yards. Which means that Duke will gain twelve yards in exchange unless Carolina can improve its kicking this week.

Captain George Barclay and Eddie Kahn in the line and PJM Hutchins in the backfield, were the standouts of the Davidson contest. Hutchins tore the Wildcat line to shreds on a couple of marches. Jim Tatam, tackle, and Harry Montgomery, halfback, were about the only injuries, and they should be ready in a couple of days.

Barclay, Kahn and Tatam are remembered for their brilliant play in the 1933 game with Duke, won by the Blue Devils 21-0. The Tar Heels also won in 1932, the score being 7-0. The two previous contests were scoreless ties before which Carolina had a long line of victories.

Coach Snavely is pointing the Carolina team to the game with Duke as he has not pointed them to any other game this year. Not even to Georgia or Tech, the two Southern Conference leaders Carolina upset.

The squad did not wait until today to begin its preparations. Mimeographed copies of the scouting report on Duke were taken with the squad to Davidson and distributed to the players on the train and the squad met yesterday afternoon to hold a post mortem on the Davidson clash and map out plans for Duke.

writing think of the next Republican candidate as a burn offering they privately can't see anything but Mr. Roosevelt's re-election unless the New Deal goes up against an earthquake.

The G. O. P. inner circle knew months ago it was going to take a beating in the bye-election just tabulated. Among others Ogden Mills warned all his colleagues to be prepared for a Democratic landslide.

Republicans in the know have been pointing for 1936 only for publication. Since the Maine results they have been holding their horses for 1936 and 1940.

Well in advance of last week's election, political statisticians for the G. O. P. had prepared a most private chart indicating a mild recession in New Deal popularity this year and re-election of President Roosevelt, two years hence. Then in 1934 it is supposed to come a decided swing back in the Congressional election followed by a situation in 1940 that will make any Republican will build turbulence among the pub-nominated a cinch for the presidency.

Though the statisticians were a bit off in their predictions for this year the Republican high command still banks on the rest of the projection.

One man whose voice raises high in Republican councils has told his intimates it wouldn't help the party at all to elect a President in 1936. As this year sees it, the man who gets a White House lease in '36 is bound to be kicked out in '40 because heavy taxes and radical ideas will make any Republican will build turbulence among the public. He is counseling that in 1940 the Republicans can come back in power and stay there for a long time.

Twist: There is always one big "if" to this line of reasoning of course.

Big business generally will play along with the Roosevelt administration so long as it keeps on a fairly straight road. It will have to do so for its own protection.

But there is just a chance that FDR may lose the left wing while reaching for the right—without ever the bankers in turn are satisfied with the government's good faith as expressed in Senator Fletcher's statement that he can see no point to additional financial legislation at present. They realize the President can't say such things himself but they accept Fletcher as an authoritative through unofficial spokesman. It would be hard for Congressional radicals to get far with the chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee blocking the road.

Devaluation: Reports that the President is considering devaluation to 50 cents before Congress meets have New York up in the air. Financial leaders are pulling all the Washington wires they can find to try to head it off.

It isn't that they object so violently to devaluation as such. But they claim that such a move would wreck budding hopes for international monetary stabilization. England would certainly be sore. She would be compelled to follow suit to protect her foreign trade—and this might easily start a risky race to depreciate currencies. Also it would push the entering gold bloc off the deep end.

Insiders understand that the President's only purpose in devaluing soon would be to deprive Congressional inflationists of ammunition and they are convinced the gesture would cost more than it's worth. So far the White House is as inscrutable as a stone Buddha in its reaction to their urgent private pleas. They'd feel a lot happier if they could get a definite response.

Steel: The Steel Labor Board faces a vital test day after tomorrow in a hearing involving an employment complaint against Clayton Ark and Company. The question of majority rule in collective bargaining is at stake and New York conservatives—both in and out of the steel industry—are deeply concerned about the outcome.

The Steel Board is expected to follow the example of the National Labor Board in the Houde case by affirming the principle of majority rule. If so the courts will be kept busy. The steel industry will fight to the end to preserve its precious company unions and will refuse to recognize the authority of an adversarial decision unless and until the U. S. Supreme Court decides against them.

Loans: New York is getting teary of the plan to head off cash payment of the veterans' bonus by cancelling interest charge on bonus loans outstanding. They have a hunch that beneficiaries of farm and home loans would think it a swell idea and demand similar treatment for their own obligations. This would be duck soup for the farm bloc. You can see why bankers aren't keen to have the subject brought up. They haven't yet decided what the election figures show on this question.

Name: In the old days Wall Street market letters used to speak sagely of pool operations in this stock or that. It would be bad form to mention such things now since pool operations are outlawed. But they've unlearned a beautiful substitute phrase and refer profoundly to "imitative buying" when a flurry in a certain stock seems to demand explanation. They hope the rose is as alluring under its new name.

Dr. Miles At College.

Dr. Robert Miles, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Lexington, Ky., who is holding the series of Y. W. C. A. services at East Carolina Teachers College, made a splendid impression on his audience at the first service last night and again at the chapel exercises this morning.

"Christian Youth Building a New World" he announced as his theme and stated that all of his talks would center in this. "Youth, if it is going to build a new world," he believes, must be willing to dare, think clearly and sanely, be courageous, possess a vision, and live precariously. Youth is living in a new world that calls for constructive work and the solving of many of the difficult problems and unless it does realize this youth becomes a liability instead of an asset. College students are actively living their youth and they will continue to be young so long as they have youthful attitudes. Young people, he thinks, need a motto or something to pin their ideas to, something which gives voice to their underlying sentiments and desires, but a slogan is futile unless there is effort, something done that puts the slogan into action.

"Being Alive" was the subject Dr. Miles used at the assembly hour this morning. He urged the students to be alive to the beauty in life, to books, to people, and to God, to seek out beauty and appreciate it. As a rule those who are alive to beauty, and books, and people, are alive to God.

Cammie Gray Guild Meets.

The Cammie Gray Guild of the Christian Church, which was entertained by Miss Agnes Wadlington last night in Ragdale Hall, enjoyed very greatly a talk by Dr. Lucile Turner of the English department of the college. Miss Turner spoke on places of worship that she visited while in Europe last summer. Her descriptions and illustrative materials made her audience feel as if they had actually seen these shrines.

She told of a chapel in the Cathedral of Naples which was built in the year 343. At that time the chapel was a small church and since then a cathedral has been built about this little room. The principal altar-piece in this cathedral is the Virgin Mary with the Angels which is one of Michaelangelo's great works.

In England she gave as the most interesting of the large places of worship St. Paul's Cathedral and Westminster Abbey. There are three small churches which attract much attention also: the Church of Holy Trinity, where Shakespeare is buried; Stoke Pages, where Grey wrote his "Elegy Written in Country Churchyard"; and Gramere Church in the Lake District, where Wordsworth and Coleridge are buried.

N. C. Symphony This Evening.

The concert by North Carolina Symphony will be given in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Lamar Stringfield, the noted composer, flutist, and conductor, is the director. E. A. Ewing is the business manager. A selection from the composition by Lamar Stringfield, a part of his "Mountain Suite" that won the Pulitzer prize for him, is one of the high spots of the program.

The excellent programs they have been presenting throughout the state have been received with enthusiasm both by musicians and the general public. They have given a number of concerts since the one they gave here in July. Asheville was their headquarters during the latter part of the summer, and Winston-Salem in the early part of the fall. Most of their concerts for the past three months have been in the western part of the state. This is the first in a series to be given in the eastern part of the state.

This is the second attraction in the three North Carolina entertainments announced by the entertainment committee. Two of the three one-act plays presented the first of the month and directed by Miss Mary Dirnberger who was herself trained by Dr. Koch, were written by the Carolina Playmakers. Next Monday the Carolina Playmakers will present three of their plays.

West Greenville P. T. A. Meets.

In keeping with the program planned for "National Educational Week," the Parent-Teacher Association of West Greenville School held their second meeting of this term at 7:30 on last Friday evening in the school auditorium.

Mothers and fathers were assembling as early as seven o'clock, and when the hour for the meeting arrived, every seat was occupied.

Supt. J. H. Rose, in a short talk, mentioned the importance of a P. T. A. whereby parents and teachers might become more closely associated and cease taking each other for granted.

Rev. J. A. McIver, our guest speaker for this occasion, very interestingly compared the "Schools of Yesterday with Our Modern Schools." Pointing out one particular year of his career as teacher, Rev. McIver entertained his audience with his experience as nursemaid, doctor and preacher, as well as teacher of eight grades. He also named this as one of the richest and fullest years of his life, made so through his opportunity to serve humanity in every way possible.

A short business session immediately followed and was presided over by the first vice-president, Mrs. H. A. Hudson. A letter from Mrs. J. D. Aman announcing her resignation as president, was read and accepted, and Mrs. H. A. Hudson unanimously voted into this office.

A report from the treasurer gave an attractive balance on hand which has been recently enlarged by the $25.00 cash prize won by our school, and given by the Eastern Carolina Fair Association for the best float taking part in the parade which marked the formal opening of our County Fair. The new president named the following committees to serve for this term.

Finance—Mesdames M. E. White.

Joe Cagle, G. A. Taylor, J. R. Gurganous.

Social—Mesdames J. O. Duval, Earl Sellars, Louis Dupree, C. B. Waters.

Welfare—Mesdames H. H. Duncan, A. P. Hines, S. V. Morton.

Program—December. West Greenville grammar grades and teachers; January, Mrs. B. L. Tyson; February, Mrs. T. I. Moore; March, Mrs. Arthur Denton; April, Mrs. J. D. Aman; May, Mrs. M. B. Massey. General Publicity Chairman—Mrs. Arthur Denton.

Miss Fullilove, our principal, speaking in behalf of the faculty, expressed their appreciation for the large number of parents present, and invited them to visit the classrooms and observe the work of the students which was on display. The teachers were stationed in their respective rooms where they personally met the parents and discussed the problems of their children.

Just a peep into the teacher's rest room was sufficient proof that some one had been at work. The teachers with the aid of a few students and mothers during spare time have worked over and re-furnished the recreation room which is now a very inviting "nook."

So much interest was displayed through the large attendance of both mothers and fathers, it was decided to change our monthly meetings to evenings instead of afternoons as heretofore, thereby giving the fathers a chance to attend regularly.

In the lower corridor the guests paused to enjoy delicious fruit punch and cakes and to express themselves as having enjoyed a most interesting meeting and social hour.

ROTES HEAR YOUNG WOMEN

College Girls Speak At Regular Meeting Of Club Here Last Night

Rotarians last night heard what an important part government relief funds play in the lives of students at tempting to make their way through college as well as several phases of activities of the self-help student.

A boy of young women from the East Carolina Teachers College together with young man appeared at the regular meeting of the club and gave the club members some sidelights on what they are doing to make their way through school. And judging by their brief talks, the job of making one's way through college is not an easy one, especially when funds are lacking and one has to work at various jobs to keep scholastic life moving.

Dr. A. M. Schultz was in charge of the program. He turned the program over to Dr. Howard McGinnis, of the college, who introduced the students.

Miss Edith Marslander spoke on the subject of the "FERA," telling what the government relief fund is doing toward enabling 108 young people to make their way through college here.

Baxter Ridenhour, one of the young men at the college, also spoke briefly of the help extended by the government, and the direct benefit which self-help students are receiving from the fund.

Miss Ruth Moore, one of the self-help students hired and paid by the college, spoke of duties of such students, and gave a vivid insight into their activities.

Miss Norma Melton, one of those serving in the dining-room, told of activities of students employed in the field and the things they are doing to pay for their education.

Miss Viola Smith gave her experiences in working her way through college, and they were pleasant ones, in spite of the fact that she had to do plenty of work to get by.

Miss Bertie Dell Lamb gave her views on the depression and how hard it has been for a girl to get by in school. She told of the Robert H. Wright loan fund now being created and what an important part it would play in the life of students who find going to college rather difficult because of the lack of finances.

Erickson Will Hold Revival At Baptist Church

A revival meeting will be held each night this week at Immanuel Baptist Church. Mr. Erickson, who has been conducting a series of services in his tent here, will be in charge of the services.

He was extended an invitation Sunday to carry his services to the Baptist Church because of the cold weather. Services will begin each evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Rev. J. A. McIver, pastor of the church said today that "all people in and around Greenville who love to hear God's man preach Christ are most cordially invited to hear Mr. Erickson preach, and come and work with him."

Mr. McIver said Greenville's greatest need is "a genuine revival of religion."

John Blowing Pests Of American Traffic Are Being Penalized

Washington, Nov. 13.—The traffic pest who uses his automobile horn because of impatience is having a cold, fishy eye turned on him by the American Automobile Association.

City officials all over the country are receiving pleas from the association and its president, Thomas P. Henry, of Detroit, Mich., to put a quietus on the horn addict.

The association points to several foreign capitals which are conducting "noise disarmament crusades" successfully.

London authorities recently banned indiscriminate use of auto horns between 11:30 p. m. and 7 a. m. with the threat of a $10 fine for the offender. It has had the effect of bringing quiet in a five mile radius of Charing Cross which has been "unknown since the advent of the automotive era," London officials report.

In Berlin a fifty mark fine ($20) is imposed for unnecessary tooting of horns or sounding of sirens. It has brought a quiet that American tourists are reporting on their return home.

"Such a campaign in American cities," says Henry, "would bring not only a new era of quiet, particularly in residential sections, but would contribute to safer motoring conditions."

"The horn was, and is, intended as a warning signal, but not one out of a hundred blasts today carry any such significance. If we could cut down the use of the horn there would be more respect for boulevard stops; less speed in turning corners; less hurrying in congested traffic and a decrease in the number of drivers who weave their cars in and out of lanes of traffic."

"Any program to reduce noise in our streets also might include a drive against open exhausts on motor-cycles, back-firing of engines, and other unnecessary noise."

Chills has a campaign for better radio programs.

REAL ESTATE MOVES LIVELY

Transfer of City and County Property Taking on Renewed Life in Pitt

The movement of real estate which has taken on renewed life here the last several weeks continued rapidly today with indications that the month will set something of a high mark in this field of activity.

Records in the office of the Register of Deeds today indicated that thirty-two separate and distinct transactions have been recorded here the last several days, the largest probably for any period in months, although the list last week was quite large.

Amounts involved in the various transactions ranged all the way from $10 to $7,500, and affected real estate in virtually all sections of the county.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Financial markets today displayed a rather spotty appearance as strong and weak spots developed in the various speculative and investment categories.

Stocks showed no definite trend. Some specialists found a following for substantial gains as hope for better earnings in certain lines were renewed. Heaviness of some of the utilities and other issues tended to still the enthusiasm for a general advance. The news was neither bullish nor bearish.

Sundown Stories

Quick-Dick Departs

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
The next morning the people from the nearest village came to ask Willy Nilly if they could have Quick-Dick, the horse.

"We have written to the fire department people who used to own him, and they said they are willing if you are," the speaker for the people in the next village told Willy Nilly. "We have agreed to take good care of him, as we feel we'd like a horse who knows what to do when there is a fire."

"We've been a little nervous ever since we had that big fire, you know, and we've just bought, second-hand, a little fire engine which can be pulled by Quick-Dick. The engine stands in the center of the cart and the hose is wound up on a roller attached to the back of the cart."

Quick-Dick pricked up his ears at the thought of being a fire horse once more.

"The pension money will be saved for him until he feels he can't work any more. Do you agree to this?"

Willy Nilly could see how happy Quick-Dick was over the idea, and the Puddle Muddlers all thought it would be very satisfactory to everyone.

The horse would be near enough so they could all go over and see him and hear stories of the old days; he would give them rides sometimes, and he would be a neighbor. Yes, it would be fine all around. Quick-Dick neighed an affectionate good-bye and then he whispered to Willy Nilly: "I'm grateful to you but I'm glad to have the chance to be active again. I want to be a fire horse always."

As a feature of our National Wilton Week Sale last August we offered a group of Whittall Anglo-Persian Rugs (then priced at $117.50) for only $89.50. This was not "sale" merchandise but the traditional Anglo-Persian quality. We sold a great many, several to people who had owned Whittall Rugs for years and knew their outstanding quality. Many more have since been sold at their regular price. But so many of our customers have asked us to hold another sale of these famous rugs that we have taken it up with the Whittall people. In view of the number of requests, they have once again authorized a ONE-WEEK SALE and have added to our stock several NEW PATTERNS introduced since National Wilton Week. ACT NOW—for next week these Anglo-Persians revert to their regular price!
