Roosevelt Maps Out Legislative Plan In Georgia

CONFERS WITH TWO LEADERS OF CONGRESS

Program for forthcoming session talked over with Senators Robinson and Harrison of Mississippi; Social Security expected to feature activity

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 26.—(AP)—President Roosevelt mapped out a legislative program today in conference with Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, floor pilot, and Harrison, of Mississippi, finance chairman, pointing to a quick session centered on social security for the future.

In his first talk with the Congressional chiefs, the President also emphasized a strict budget limitation provision for general relief, but was definitely believed to be against the proposed two billion dollar outlay for the soldiers' bonus.

Roosevelt in the past has insisted that extra expenses be met by added taxes to pay the way aside from the extraordinary relief fund and there was every reason to believe that today he laid down his stipulations for the bonus payment should be voted.

Administration leaders have been cold to a revenue increasing bill at the forthcoming session and indicated the necessity for reconsideration of some of the temporary taxes to expire. In calling in the Senate leaders first, the President showed a wariness to be involved in the House fight over a Speaker, and this might be indicated throughout his talks along with any of the several candidates.

His conference today with Senators Robinson and Harrison was believed to show a determination to keep a watchful eye on the final side of the forthcoming congressional meeting.

FEW WRECKS ON WEEK-END

Highway Patrol Reports Investigation Of Only Four Car Mishaps Sunday

Automobile wrecks, which have been taking a toll of from eight to five lives in this highway patrol district each month over a period of a year or so, were conspicuous for their paucity in Pitt County over the week-end, the report of high patrolmen indicated today.

Although four wrecks were investigated in widely separated areas of the county, patrolmen said none of them were of a serious nature. One negro, whose name was not determined, sustained a minor injury.

As they went about their work today, patrolmen were reminded of the train-truck collision below Grimesland, Friday, November 16, which claimed the lives of three persons, all of Greenville and Pitt County. The crash was the worst in years, and patrolmen were attempting to get people to drive more carefully and give due attention to highway signs as result of wrecks of this kind.

Police reported a minor crash or so in Greenville but like wrecks in other parts of the county, they were of minor importance.

TWELVE BUILDINGS DAILY MARK SAO PAULO BOOM

Sao Paulo, Brazil.—(AP)—A local building boom has reached such proportions that statisticians figure each hour sees half a new house or business building completed.

New structures in the first half of the year totaled 2,518 and the pace is increasing.

Brick prices have doubled and other materials are following suit.

Sao Paulo, as the export center of the nation, was first to feel the effects of the depression. Now its experts say it is leading the way to recovery.

MANIPULATED FOR WRECK WITH SCHOOL BUS

E. E. Wheatley of Albemarle to Face Hearing Here on Three Charges

E. E. Wheatley, of Albemarle, is scheduled to face preliminary hearing here December 4 as a result of charges growing out of a collision with the Bell Arthur school bus on the Farmville road, November 12th.

Wheatley, Chief Lester Jones, lieutenant of the division highway patrol said today, is charged with pushing a school bus without stopping, assault on a child and wrecking the bus.

The wreck, the officer said, occurred in front of the home of Guy Sutton where the bus had stopped to put out Sutton's son. The youngster received painful but minor injuries when Wheatley's car allegedly taking up too much of the highway, struck the bus and then hit the child, who sustained minor injuries. The truck was damaged only in a slight way.

Chief Jones said the truck was loaded with children, but that only the Sutton child was injured.

The officer also stated that Wheatley stopped for a short time and then continued on his way without divulging his name to the driver or other persons who gathered at the scene of the wreck.

He was taken into custody by a member of the patrol at Albemarle several days ago after his license number had been checked through the department at Raleigh.

Wheatley was understood to be in Greenville today conferring with the highway patrol head regarding the wreck, but it was stated nothing could be done about the case until it comes up for preliminary hearing December 4.

NEGRO JAILED IN AXE ATTACK

James Jones Held for Superior Court for Cutting Harrison Lewis, Colored

Charged with assault with intent to kill, James Jones, colored, of New Bern, was held in the county jail today awaiting trial in the next term of criminal Superior court.

The negro, Chief of Police George Clark said this morning, is charged with attacking another negro named Harrison Lewis, also of New Bern, in the head with an axe Saturday night, and inflicting a wound twelve stitches were required to close.

The alleged assault took place at the home of Nora Williams, colored, on Factory street, in the western part of the city. Jones and Lewis were reported to have been arguing over an undetermined subject in the house. Jones was said to have gone out into the yard and when Lewis followed shortly afterward, Jones followed struck him in the head with the axe.

Jones was given preliminary hearing in mayor's court this morning and bound over to Superior court under bond of $500. He was unable to provide bail and was remanded to the county jail.

Insull Sure He Will Be Set Free In Other Cases

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 26.—(AP)—The dream of complete vindication surged in Samuel Insull today. His first battle won with the speedy acquittal Saturday of himself and co-defendants on charges of a $100,000,000 mail fraud, the former financier said: "I am ready to face these other trials that are pending. I have been vindicated in this case, and I am confident that I will be vindicated in the others."

Police Expect Capture Of Mrs. Stoll's Kidnaper

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Nashville police and other Tennessee officers were on the alert today for the possible capture of Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., accused as the kidnaper of Mrs. Berry Stoll, of Louisville, for $50,000 ransom.

Word that the former University law student and asylum inmate, who has evaded arrest since the October 10th abduction, had been seen in Franklin, eighteen miles from here, Saturday night, and was headed toward Nashville, came to police last night through C. C. Harris, a Nashville insurance man.

A net was immediately spread for the capture of the 27-year-old Robinson if the information was accurate. Police placed watchers at places in and near Nashville where Robinson might go, and the Department of Justice took similar steps.

SEEK AID IN HALTING FIRE

County and District Forest Fire Wardens Seek to Cut Down Annual Loss

Twenty-five forest fires have been reported in this county during the last several weeks, Dick King, county forest fire warden said today, as he called on the public to help cut down the annual loss caused by forest blazes.

Although loss in each case was small the warden said the situation might have been entirely different had the fires not been given immediate attention.

The warden called attention to a statement issued today by L. A. Carter, of Washington, district forester. The statement follows: "The splendid co-operation being given to the forest wardens by the citizens of Eastern North Carolina has been of great help in holding down the losses from forest fires so far this fall. The dense growth of grass along the highway and in the fields caused by early fall rains present a great fire hazard and numerous fires have been started along the highways by careless motorists throwing lighted matches and cigarettes from their cars. Only the aroused public interest in saving our forest lands which has resulted in landowners and other quickly putting out these fires has presented serious losses."

"The careless smokers and the careless hunters who drops his smoke or matches or leaves a 'warning fire' without being sure it is out are causing both forest land-owners and the forest wardens considerable worry right now. The annual influx of hunters to this section for Thanksgiving hunts, together with the dry condition of the woods, is cause for concern."

"The careless hunter is making it harder each year for himself, and the hunter who is careful with fire in the woods, to find land on which to hunt. Many land-owners in Eastern North Carolina are planning to fence their lands against hunting, not because they are mean, but because they desire to prevent the hunter who is careless with his 'smoke' or camp-fire from setting the woods on fire."

"Every hunter who expects to be in the woods, and every other person who may travel through them, is urged to be especially careful with fire and to urge others to do so."

TWO PERSONS DIED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Mansfield, Mass., Nov. 26.—(AP)—William Melcher, 32, of Sharon, and Miss Ruby Rand, 22, of Norton, were killed yesterday when their plane lost a wing while 1,000 feet in the air and crashed in dense woods. Mrs. Melcher witnessed the tragedy from her husband's automobile at the Boltz airport, three-quarters of a mile distant.

The plane, owned by Melcher, had been kept at the Boltz airport. Yesterday he took several friends riding, including his wife. He then took up Miss Rand. They had gone through several evolutions before the final loop that ended in disaster.

MASONS HOLD THANKSGIVING SERVICE HERE

Rev. Perry Case of Grifton Delivers Principal Address at Methodist Church

The Masonic Thanksgiving service held in Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church here yesterday afternoon was well attended by members of the organization from all sections of the county and numbers of other interested people.

The services were held under the auspices of the local Masonic lodge and members of the Eastern Star. The object of the gathering was to express appreciation for the many blessings bestowed upon the community the past year. It was the first service of the kind held in the county in history, although annual Thanksgiving services are held each Thanksgiving Day under auspices of the Greenville Ministerial Association.

Rev. Perry Case, of Grifton, principal of Grifton public schools, and prominently identified with Masonic activities in this section, delivered the principal address, summarizing the many blessings which the community has received.

The speaker called attention to the bountiful crops raised this year and the excellent prices paid for them, and declared everybody had more reason to be grateful than any other period in recent years.

He enumerated the symbols of Masonry, declaring that "brotherly love" was exemplified by the fraternity in all of its contacts with the public. He urged that the spirit of love and good-will continue to dominate the work of the order so that the mandate of Christ might continue to be fulfilled.

A delightful musical program was rendered by members of the choir of the Eighth Street Christian Church with Miss Eugenia Thomas at the organ. This part of the program was under direction of A. W. Harris, who headed the music committee on arrangements. J. Frank Harrington presided.

TO HURRY TRIAL SILVER SHIRT HEAD

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 26.—Solicitor Zeb V. Nettles has made a formal request for a special term of Superior Court, beginning January 7, for the trial of William Dudley Pelley, chief of Silver Shirts, and three associates on charges of violating the State's securities law.

The solicitor has written letters to Governor Ehringhaus and the county board of commissioners requesting that the special term be called and the commissioners will also make a formal request to the Governor who is expected to order the special term.

Pelley and the other defendants, Robert Summerville, former editor of The Liberator, magazine published at Galahad Press, Inc.; Don D. Kellogg, business manager of the company, and H. M. Hardwicke, treasurer, are charged with having sold stock in Galahad Press, Inc. through misrepresentations that the company was solvent. The company recently was adjudged bankrupt and the bankruptcy hearing led to the charges against Pelley and his co-workers. Pelley was president of Galahad Press and a stockholder.

INSULL CONFRACT IS ALREADY RUMORED

Chicago, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Will Samuel Insull try a financial comeback?

That question was current today on the heels of the victory of the 75-year-old former financier in Federal Court Saturday.

There were rumors that he would return to La Salle street and the office field if his other court battles were decided in his favor.

But Insull himself, smiling and talking readily about his acquittal on the Federal mail and fraud charges, was silent as to any business plans.

Police Uncover Clue In Deaths Of Three Girls

President's Son Sued For $25,000

Mrs. Daniel P. O'Leary, 60 (above) who claims she was injured when struck by an automobile which Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. (below) was operating, has filed suit for $25,000 against the President's son. Mrs. O'Leary lives in East Boston, Mass. (Associated Press Photo)

White also positively identified a suitcase picked up two miles from where the girls' bodies were found as one of three carried by the woman off the trip.

"One child," White said, "answered to the name of Jennie," she was the youngest of the three.

"The party had tickets from Boston," he said, "and the woman who seemed very tired, carried the grip from the bus to the State Capitol."

Before going into the morgue he said he had described the children to authorities even to the hole in the court of the youngest, estimated to be about seven years old.

This one he remembered particularly because he had helped her on and off the bus.

PROBE PUSHED TO NEW YORK, NEW ENGLAND

Driver Positively Identifies Girls Found in Mountain Thicket as Occupants of His Bus; Woman Accompanied Children With Suitcases; Had Tickets From Boston

Carsile, Pa., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Are first denials due to the identities of the three fair-haired little girls found dead in a rain drenched thicket turned authorities toward New York and New England today in their investigation.

The information came from Paul White, Harrisburg bus driver, who after viewing the three linen swathed bodies at the morgue, said he was confident the three children accompanied a woman from New York to Harrisburg in his bus last Wednesday.

White also positively identified a suitcase picked up two miles from where the girls' bodies were found as one of three carried by the woman off the trip.

"One child," White said, "answered to the name of Jennie," she was the youngest of the three.

"The party had tickets from Boston," he said, "and the woman who seemed very tired, carried the grip from the bus to the State Capitol."

DRIVE CAREFULLY TODAY

More than half of all the persons killed by motor vehicles are pedestrians. Remember this when sailing along serenely on the country highways. Illumination is poor at night—especially on curves and just beyond hill crests, when you are faced by the glaring lights of an approaching car. Pedestrians who walk on highways should wear some light colored article of clothing and they should always walk on the left side of the road, facing oncoming traffic. When cars pass each other directly opposite them pedestrians should step out onto the shoulder of the road.

News Behind The News.

Washington

By GEORGE DURNO

Wolf? Congressional investigation of waist—and Graf—in federal relief administration is regarded as almost a certainty as a result of Senator Borah's recent blasts.

Belief Administrator Harry Hopkins has announced he would like to clear the situation up once and for all, and has asked Borah for proof of his charges. The Idaho Lone Wolf is far too shrewd a campaigner to expose his ammunition to possible dampening in advance. It's a safe bet the Senator will continue to fire carefully spaced volleys at FERA between now and January—but carefully refrain from revealing the sources of his information. To do so would be poor publicity technique.

Borah is an old hand at starting investigations. He has an uncanny ability to detect public suspicions before they crystallize and start the ball rolling. He can always be certain that once he gets it under way his mail will be full of new tips and actual chaff but almost invariably some wheat.

BURN BETHEL CHURCH NOTES

Impressive Program Marks Dedication of Baptist Church Yesterday

The Bethel Baptist Church was dedicated with impressive exercises yesterday morning. The dedicatory sermon was delivered by Rev. J. P. Harris on the subject "God's Memorials."

The church was erected in 1920, the first service being held in 1921. It was built at a cost of $40,000 and is considered one of the most attractive buildings of its kind in this section of the State.

One of the most impressive was the burning of notes accumulated in erection of the building, signifying the liquidation of all debts of the congregation. The note-burning was in charge of a committee composed of E. O. Burroughs, Dr. Cecil Garrenton, John Mayo, L. L. Whitehurst, H. L. Andrews, W. W. Taylor and W. R. Bullock.

Rev. Leslie Newman, pastor of the church, presided over the service which was attended not only by the members of the congregation, but by representatives of other denominations from all sections of the county. After the benediction by Rev. J. L. Peacock, the congregation of nine hundred-odd persons was invited to the community building where a delicious lunch was served.

Members of the congregation declare they were greatly indebted to every member and friends of the church who contributed so generously to the cause.

The following program marked the exercises:
 Doxology.
 Invocation—J. B. Bowers.

Hymn—"Faith or Our Fathers."
 Scripture—Joshua 4th Chapter.
 Prayer—E. B. Pea, Trenton, N. C.
 Special Music—The Hooker Family.
 Announcements by the Pastor.
 Visitors were recognized at this time.
 History of Church—John Moore.
 Hymn—"Have Thine Own Way, Lord."
 Future of Bethel Baptist Church—Rev. Ford A. Burns.
 Special Music—Choir.
 Dedicatory Sermon: God's Memorials—Rev. J. P. Harris.

Woman Held For Disorder Agrees To Leave Town

Maggie Taylor, white woman who reside on Jarvis Street, agreed to leave town by tomorrow when she appeared in mayor's court this morning on a charge of operating a disorderly house.

She was taken into custody Saturday night when police said they were called to the house on account of the noise caused by a big party which was in progress at the time. Chief George Clark said this morning there were several other people in the house at the time and three of them were held for being drunk and disorderly.

The policeman said their attention had been called to the house on several former occasions, and that the disturbance became so pronounced Saturday night that they raided the place and took the woman into custody.

The Concert

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER. Jelly and Honey Bear and the cubs, Blacky and Jupiter, were all ready to go to their cave for a good winter's sleep. They had been eating and eating, getting fatter and fatter, so that they would not feel the need of food for a long time.

The Puddle Muddlers were going to have a concert and then lead them to their cave in grand style.

Willy Nilly had found a little violin in the big box in his house that held things just for fun, and Rip, the dog, had the little drum fastened on his back which he could hit with his tail.

The ducks had reed pipes they were going to blow, and Top Notch, the rooster, had a stick which he was going to wave. He was going to act as the drum major.

Christopher Columbus Crow, living up to his name, had discovered a little comb in his wanderings and he had put a piece of tissue paper around it so he could play a tune.

"We're ready, aren't we?" asked Top Notch.

"Have we decided what tune we are going to play?" asked Willy Nilly.

"Does it matter?" asked Top Notch, who hadn't a very good ear for music.

"It wouldn't sound very pleasing if we each played something different," smiled Willy Nilly.

"Let's play the tune of 'Good Night Ladies,'" he added. "As a matter of fact I wrote down some words we could use."

Willy Nilly repeated the words until they knew them, while the bears looked as though they would fall asleep before the concert got under way.

But now the music began.

ICELAND'S PONIES, HERRING BASIS OF GERMAN TRADE

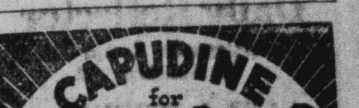

Reykjavik. —(AP)— Germany is anxious to trade her finished products for Iceland ponies and herrings. Increased land development in East Prussia is given as a reason for an increased need for draught animals, and Iceland ponies are known the world over as being very strong, docile and hardy.

Then, too, Germans under simulation by the authorities are eating more herrings, so that conditions seem to be favorable for Icelanders to take more German wares in exchange.

ferred here with the Icelandic Chamber of Commerce.

As the guests were assembling, Mrs. R. A. Tyson gave an organ program of appropriate numbers. She wore a gown of white lace with a shoulderette of Joanna Hill roses. She played the "Rosary," "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," "Libesträum," "Love's Old Sweet Song," and "I Love You Truly." During the ceremony, she softly played "Schubert's Serenade."

Just before the wedding music, Mrs. George B. W. Hadley, mother of the bride, and Herbert Hadley, brother of the bride, entered. Mrs. Hadley wore a black brocaded velvet dinner gown with a shoulderette of gardenias.

Miss Jesse Moye, wearing a gown of white net and shoulderette of talisman roses, sang "Until," by Sanderson. This was followed by a duet, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," by Stultz, and sung by Mrs. J. F. Waldrop and Charles James. Mrs. Waldrop wore a gown of white satin with a shoulderette of talisman roses. She then sang a solo, "The Wedding Song," by Mary Rosa.

As the bridal party entered, Mrs. Tyson played the Wedding March from the opera Lohengrin.

All the conventional black dress suits with boutonnières of white roses. The ushers were first to enter and proceeded two at the time down opposite aisles. They were: James Moye, Frank Patrick, Reid Perkins, Foster Young, Jesse Moye and David Blanton of Marion, N. C.

The bridesmaids and groomsmen were next to enter. They proceeded two at the time down opposite aisles, crossing at the altar and steps back of the altar. They were: Mrs. George F. Hadley with Jake Hadley, Miss Elsie Barnes of Wilson, with Howard Gold, of Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Padgett, of Greensboro; Miss Mabel Glenn Best, with Porter McNair, of Tarboro.

The bridesmaids wore identical gowns of gold velvet made on long lines with trains and decollete backs caught at the neck with brilliants. With these they wore gold slippers and gold velvet gloves. They carried arm bouquets of Gladys Persons chrysanthemums, tied with yellow and bronze tulle.

Then came the Dame of Honor, Mrs. Reid Perkins. She wore a gown of bronze velvet, made similarly to the bridesmaids', velvet gloves and bronze slippers. She carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses and ferns tied with bronze tulle.

After the Dame, came the Maid of Honor, Miss Jane Hadley, only sister of the bride. Her similarly made gown was of green velvet with corresponding slippers and gloves, and her flowers were an arm bouquet of Pernet roses tied with yellow tulle.

The Dame and Maid of Honor stood on either side of the chancel rail.

Immediately preceding the bride and groom came the junior bridesmaids and groomsmen. They were little Misses Eleanor James and Rosamond Hooker Nicholson, and Masters Sammie White and Billy White. The little girls wore long flesh satin gowns made en train, and bandeaux of crystals in their hair. They carried Colonial bouquets of Joanna Hill roses and pom-poms. The little groomsmen wore long black trousers and white mess-coats boutonnières of white roses.

The bride entered with her brother, George F. Hadley. She never looked lovelier than on her wedding evening. Her gown of white Duchesse satin was fashioned en train with high neckline and long sleeves. Her veil of tulle was becomingly worn in cap effect and caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and orchids.

Immediately following the Movement wedding Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Best and Miss Mabel Glenn Best entertained the wedding party, relatives of the bride and groom and the out-of-town guests present for the wedding. The guests present for the wedding, on the lower floor of the Best home, on Evans street was beautifully decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mr. and Mrs. Best greeted the guests as they arrived and presented them to the bridal party. From the receiving line they were shown to the dining room.

Here the wedding motif was prettily carried out. The lace covered table was centered with snapdragons, white roses and smilax, and lighted with white burning tapers. Mrs. Hortense Moye and Mrs. Jesse R. Moye, seated at either end of the table, served cream in shape of showered with valley lilies and maiden hair fern.

The groom entered with his father, Joseph George Moye, as best man.

The bride and groom proceeded down opposite aisles and met at the altar. Dr. G. R. Combs, the bride's pastor, joined them from the vestibule and spoke the words that made them man and wife, using the ever beautiful ring ceremony of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

As the bridal party repaired from the church, Mrs. Tyson's played the Wedding March from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream."

The bride is the elder daughter of Mrs. George B. W. Hadley and the late George B. W. Hadley. She was reared in Greenville, where she has won hosts of admiring friends as well as other places in the state where she has visited. She was educated in the Greenville city schools and Salem College.

The groom is the elder son of Joseph George Moye and the late Mrs. Margaret Howard Moye. He too, was reared in Greenville. He attended the Virginia Military School in Lexington, Va., and graduated at the University of North Carolina in the class of '28, and is a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He holds a responsible position with the Greenville Banking and Trust Co.

The wedding unites two of the oldest and most prominent families in the city. The popularity of the young couple has been attested by the large number of social courtesies extended them since the engagement was announced.

The following out of town guests were here for the wedding: Mr. and Mrs. Wright Wiggins, A. C. Kinnon of Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown and Mrs. W. R. Mann of Whitakers; Mrs. C. W. Gold, Mrs. W. O. Howard, Mrs. Norman Harlow, Miss Page Howard, Howard Gold, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Padgett, Mrs. Norman Block, Greensboro; Mrs. Harold Collins, Lumberton; Cain, James McLeod, Mrs. Storey Florence, S. AS THE CHEERING SUBSIDIES

(News and Observer)

A cheer went up from the crowd of spectators, only faintly quieted by the banging of the clerk's gavel.

The defendants broke out with "Hurrahs." Some of the crowd rushed to congratulate the defendants.

Papers were thrown into the air. Turmoil pervaded the sedate trial room.

So Samuel Insull came to acquittal of charges of defrauding thousands in the maze of his companies and the mysteries of his stocks.

It is doubtful whether the cheer will resound throughout the countryside, particularly in the Mississippi Valley, where men and women today are paupers as a result of investment in Insull's glittering empire.

It is doubtful whether the jury's verdict in Chicago will restore faith in that type of Big Business and Big Business operations which Insull represents.

There is far greater probability that the "vindication" of Insull will increase the popular conviction that it is impossible to convict in America a malefactor of great wealth.

The country will remember as Insull rejoices that he is not the only defendant who has escaped conviction.

Not even Al Capone was ever convicted of any of the serious crimes which made him Public Enemy No. 1. Out of the whole nasty Teapot Dome scandal, only one official was convicted; he was sent to prison for receiving a bribe, but, marvelous to say, no one of the business men who undertook to corrupt a public official for private profit could be convicted of giving it to him.

No one was convicted as a result of the shocking disclosures of income tax evasions by men of great wealth in the Pecora investigation which resulted in the passage of the National Securities Act.

Mr. Insull will find that the roster of the "innocent" and the "vindicated" is no very exclusive company.

In Insull's own case, as the cheering subsides, the country continues to wonder why the old innocent ran like a man caught in a henhouse.

A jury found him innocent, but he still stands dramatically convicted by his own conscience which sent him into a fugitive's flight across the earth.

Numerous new "wildcat" wells have restored some of the old boom-time prosperity to Wink and other west Texas oil towns.

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES

SYNOPSIS: Several things have happened to Nicholas Trench since he was acquitted of the charge of murdering his former employer, Osborne, earlier in the day. Nicholas and his cousin, Sir Seymour, have quarrelled because Seymour wants him to get out of Scotland. He learns that the studio next to his has been taken by a young woman. He receives word that Sir William Stone, the chemist, wishes to see him, and two strangers appear at his door asking to come in.

Chapter Nine THE SAVING VOICE

"WE HAVE no connection with any newspaper," the man who called himself Stellman said.

"What we have to tell you is strictly private and only concerns yourself."

For a second I still hesitated; then my curiosity got the better of me.

"Come along in," I said. "It's more comfortable than talking on the doorstep." I ushered them through the hall, and closing the studio door after us, I made an inviting gesture towards the sofa.

"Won't you sit down?" I continued. "I am sorry I can't offer you a drink. I only got back a few minutes ago, and I'm afraid there's nothing in the place."

"On the contrary," said Mr. Stellman, "I am inclined to believe there is."

He turned to his companion. "Do you not agree?"

With a swift movement the other whipped his hand out of his pocket, and to my unexpressed amazement I found myself staring down the barrel of a Mauser pistol.

"Don't move," drawled its owner, "or you'll get hurt. Just you stay quite still, like you are."

With that ugly looking little black muzzle pointing straight at my heart, I hadn't the smallest inclination to do anything else.

"Now, Mr. Trench"—it was the bearded man who was addressing me—"I think that we may as well proceed straight to business. No doubt you have already guessed the object of our visit."

I shook my head. "You overrate my intelligence," I said. "At present I can only imagine that you're both escaped from a lunatic asylum."

His expressionless eyes stared back coldly into mine. "You will not help yourself by being insolent. We have come to recover a document which you stole from the safe in Osborne's house after you had murdered him."

For a moment I was completely dumfounded. So that was it! That was the explanation of the crime, and in some way or other these two extraordinary strangers were connected with the mystery. Who they might be or where they had come from Heaven alone knew. All there could be no doubt about was the fact that they were dead in earnest.

"I hate to disappoint you," I said, "but you're barking up the wrong tree altogether. I didn't kill Osborne, and I didn't steal any of his property."

"See here," jerked in the one with the gun. "We don't take no stock in that fool verdict. You got it right enough, and by Heaven you'll hand it over."

"Better leave him to me," the other moved a step nearer. "What my friend says is correct, Mr. Trench. We know you have the formula, and whatever means we have to use we intend to get possession of it. You will be very foolish indeed if you drive us to extremes."

HE SPOKE quietly, but there was something in his voice which convinced me that he meant what he said. I could well believe that he was the kind of gentleman who would stick at nothing.

"I can only tell you the truth," I protested. "I can't make you believe it. I haven't got your confounded paper, and if you're silly enough to shoot me you must put up with the consequences."

The clean-shaven man laughed. It was not a pleasant sound. "Say," he inquired, "ain't we had enough of this?"

"Quite, I think," Mr. Stellman felt deliberately in his pocket, and with his eyes still fixed on mine drew out a neatly rolled coil of thin whipcord.

"I will give you a last chance," he said. "If you still refuse I shall tie your hands and legs together with this, and then things will happen to you which, believe me, you will not enjoy at all. I can promise you—at in a few minutes you will be ready enough to answer my questions."

Before he had finished speaking had made up my mind. If the choice lay between stopping a bullet or being trussed up and tortured, had no doubt at all as to which I preferred. I stood as still as death, but every muscle in my body was tense and ready.

The man who was holding the pistol took a step towards me. "You stir a finger," he said, "and I'll blow your guts out."

With a quick jerk Stellman undid the coil. The loops tumbled to the floor, and at the same moment, staggeringly clear through the strained silence, came the sound of a girl's voice.

"The police, please—as quickly as possible."

"What was that?"

The pistol was still pointing full at my mid-section, but from the half shadowed face above it two startled eyes were searching the studio.

"It came from there—the room over the staircase."

"Is that the police? Will you please come at once to Queen Studios, Chalk Farm? It's a case of murder."

A foul oath burst from the clean-shaven man's lips: "Some blighted Jane phoning up the cops. Here take this and I'll..."

"No, it's too late now," Stellman's voice was quiet but peremptory. "Whatever happens we can't afford to be found here." He picked up the coil and thrust it back into his pocket.

"But say..."

"Do as I tell you. Keep him covered and follow me." He walked unhurriedly to the entrance where he turned and faced me. "An Revolt, Mr. Trench. I was not aware that you were entertaining friends: we shall meet again very soon."

"I hope so," I said civilly.

Step by step the other backed out after him. There was a brief pause the faint click of a latch, and the front door shut softly.

To a man who is not accustomed to miracles the sudden arrival of one is apt to be a trifle disconcerting. On the whole, however, I think I acted with commendable promptitude.

It must have been rather less than three seconds before I had wrenched round the key and shot home the bolt behind them, and not more than another two before I was back again in the studio doorway.

I stood there breathing quickly and staring up at my bedroom.

sition Hopkins must pay his workers and buy supplies.

At this writing it seems probably Hopkins' organization will stress this comparison in defense and fall back heavily on the need for spending speed to avoid human suffering—with accounting as an aftermath.

Toss: The political phenomenon most noticeable in the current attack on relief expenditures lies in the fact that no finger is pointed at President Roosevelt.

Although FDR appointed Hopkins and supposedly approved his method of approach, any blame will accrue to Hopkins alone.

The White House reposes inside of a charmed circle. Even before the voice of the people spoke so loudly on November 6 none of the administration's critics dared lay blame for anything directly on the President's doorstep.

All of the onslaught directed at the New Deal thus far have been aimed at subordinates.

Opponents concentrated their fire on administrative aides as if they had been elected by the people rather than appointed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Witness Moley, Tugwell, Wallace, Ickes, Farley and Johnson, to name only a few.

If a heel of Achilles is ever found the champion may take a toss.

Gamble: The closer Washington analysts follow developments at the Anglo-American Japanese naval gathering in London, the more they are becoming convinced that the real seat of negotiations is right here in Washington—with Japanese Ambassador Saito functioning as an important delegate.

Developments of the past few days point more sharply than ever to a single stumbling block in the way of a new naval limitation agreement.

That is the conflict in position between United States and Japan. Should an accord be reached here Great Britain would find it easy to fall in line.

Incidentally, you would have to be acquainted with Japanese etiquette to know that Saito is gambling his future diplomatic career on the chance of reaching a naval understanding with our State and Navy Departments.

Saito knows the Navy problem better than Ambassador Matsudaira, who is functioning in London.

Saito had a hand in negotiating both the London and Washington treaties and he spent the past summer in Tokyo finishing out just what his domestic political situation would stand in the way of compromise.

When he left to return to the States Saito expressed the belief an understanding with Washington could be reached.

As the Japs see it, such a statement places personal responsibility on him.

If he fails a promising diplomatic career comes to an end.

And he didn't have to commit himself.

Norman Davis and Admiral Stanley have plenipotentiary powers in London but proposals must be forwarded here for study before America goes on record.

Thus Saito is negotiating at the fountain head—and his own head is almost certainly at stake if he misses fire.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN

Peace: Keep your eye on Harvey Cough. New York learns that the ex-RFC director is slated to act as backstage peacemaker-in-chief between the government and the utilities.

Many utility leaders would like to make him a member of the board of trustees of the Edison Electric Institute.

If he takes the job he will be virtually the dictator of Institute policy.

There has been a good deal of inside friction among Institute directors as to the best course to follow.

One group—including president Tom McCarter—has wanted to meet government assaults with an aggressive publicity counter-attack.

Another faction has thought it wiser to try to conciliate political authorities.

The two viewpoints have neutralized each other and as a result the Institute has done nothing definite in either direction.

Recent intensification of the anti-utility campaign has the industry's big shots being scared.

They've decided they simply cannot afford to continue marking time and must get together on a plan of action which most of the big companies will support even if they don't all agree with it in principle.

Hence the urge to have someone whose judgment they respect—but who hasn't been involved in the argument—tell them what to do.

It's understood that Cough is strongly in favor of making whatever concessions are needed to induce the government to call off the hounds.

And it's probable that Cough's pacific views will prevail in the Institute whether or not he becomes associated with it officially.

Recently the champions of active resistance seemed to have gained the upper hand but this is no longer true.

Strategic: In many respects Cough is an ideal choice for liaison man between Washington and the power companies.

His own utility group has enjoyed singularly happy relations with customers, and state authorities.

He understands utility problems from the inside and at the same time he knows what the New Deal is all about.

He left the federal service on cordial terms with FDR.

The list of guests at his recent well publicized hunting party contained some significant names—including president Rudolph Hecht and vice-president Tom Smith of the American Bankers' association.

Insiders hear they helped their host and Senator Joe Robinson spread the gospel of cooperation among the utility executives present.

There's one further angle to bear in mind.

If the power companies' overtures for peace should be rejected by the government Cough is in a strategic position to help them exact political retribution later.

He knows the weak spots in the administration's armor and he's quite close to Jesse Jones, C. G. Ratin anti-New Deal circles still talk of Jones as the conservative Democratic white hope for 1936.

Shooting: Even though they give in to Washington as a matter of expediency utility men fervently insist that all the government's pother about the cost of electricity to domestic consumers is like poking sparrows with an elephant gun.

They have figures to show that the average American family only pays 5.9 cents a day for electricity (or 9.2 per family that actually uses current) as against 5.7 cents for cosmetics, barber and beauty shops, 6.8 cents for theatres 12.5 cents for tobacco and 14.6 cents for soft drinks.

Comment runs it's about time the government started target practice on the high cost of ice cream sodas.

Boss: The Stock Exchange Nominating Committee is about to make up its official slate for next spring's election.

Richard Whitney can have the presidency again if he wants it despite a persistent undercurrent of rebellion.

Whitney is an able administrator but even his friends realize he is something less than a genius at public relations.

Recent efforts to counteract earlier mistakes in this respect haven't done much good.

Some brokers think the best answer would be to create a new post—chairman of the board.

As in the case of many corporations the chairman would have charge of the Exchange's contacts with the outside world while president Whitney would confine himself to executive duties.

The Exchange set-up makes insurrection from within very difficult.

Many members who would not care to oppose Whitney openly would support this new idea.

It's still in the talking stage but has attracted enough interest to bear watching.

PIGEON HOUSE MOUNTAIN VISIBILITY PROVED IN TEST

San Diego, Calif.—(AP)—Palomar Mountain, on the north rim of which the world's largest telescope is to be erected, was once known as Smith Mountain.

Its official designation was changed back to its Spanish name, meaning "pigeon house" several years ago.

Flocks of wild pigeons still nest among the rocks.

Its visibility was determined by nightly observations taken of Polaris by an astronomer over a period of five years.

Salt Lake City—(AP)—A military land warrant issued in 1837 to George T. and Lenora Gould, minor children of a deceased Maine milliaman, turned up recently at the Federal land office here.

With it, the original holders could have claimed and 160 acres of the public domain.

At present it is worth about $200 as payment on a commuted homestead, desert homestead or a timber claim.

More than $200,000,000 in foreign gold has been shipped to this country since the dollar was placed on an international gold basis in January.

tosed around very carelessly. Those who have looked over certain states even talk about outright graft.

Hopkins finds himself in rather a tough spot. From President Roosevelt down the New Deal proclaimed repeatedly that no one would starve.

Hopkins was given the job of getting action, and getting it quick. He did, but naturally he was forced to adopt the trial-and-error system about which New Dealers have talked so much.

Now the opposition is fishing for errors. It would seem they are going to catch enough to fill at least one skillet.

Impartial students agree that Senator Borah made one unfair charge against FERA in his recent address. Borah compared administrative costs of government relief with Red Cross costs in the Mississippi flood disaster, etc.

The Senator neglected to point out that in disaster relief efforts, doctors, nurses and other relief workers donate their services because of the temporary nature of the situation, while the Army invariably loans tents, coats, blankets, etc. With national relief imposed on him as seemingly permanent propo-

DEVILS MEET STATE TEAM ON THURSDAY

Durham, N. C., Nov. 27.—If history means anything, and they say it does, Duke's Blue Devils will be facing a team of All-Americans when they meet N. C. State in Duke stadium Thanksgiving Day afternoon.

For the history of the past three games between the two teams records that the Wolves, each and every one of them, have played with the skill and brilliance of members of that honorary selection.

Bob McQuage's greatest exhibition of halfbacking in that 14-0 State victory over Duke in 1931 will long be remembered in North Carolina. McQuage, with two long touchdown runs to increase the total, probably gained more ground in that one battle than any individual back has gained in any one game before or since.

The brilliance of State's Mops Cumiskey in the 1932 battle at Raleigh brought the statement from Coach Wallace Wade that Cumiskey was one of the best line-smashers he had ever seen. State's 6 to 0 victory over Duke last year was due chiefly to the running of State's fine fullback.

Last year Raymond Redding and Kenneth Stephens, who this year are co-captains, gave as great an exhibition of defensive end play as has been seen in Duke stadium. They were in every play and completely bogged Duke's off-tackle and end runs.

While Redding and Stephens took care of defensive work, Ray Rex, who did the line-smashing for State, was an ever-dangerous threat in running the ball. He played one of his greatest games against the Blue Devils last year.

Redding, Stephens and Rex will be back this year and it is a big worry for Duke coaches to figure how the famous Cornelius reverse can go or how those off-tackle plays can function with Redding and Stephens on State's flanks. Too, the task of stopping Ray Rex is probably the biggest Duke's line has faced this season—and Duke's forwards have not shown exceptional ability in stopping opposing fullbacks this season.

Faulty Tires Cause Deaths Says W. H. Ray

Faulty tires are greatly responsible for many automobile fatalities during the dangerous winter driving season, according to W. H. Ray, president of the Colonial Oil Company.

"During the winter season, when roads and streets are slippery and wet, a motorist takes his life in his hands when he ventures out in a car equipped with worn and threadbare tires.

"Driving with worn tires is a false economy when the slightest mishap may be responsible for a serious accident. A driver needs complete control of his car when driving on wet streets and roads and he cannot have this control if his tires are worn and have lost their non-skid ground-gripping ability.

"Surveys and statistical compilations show that a dominant percentage of accidents during the winter season have been caused by the driver losing control of his car due to faulty tire equipment. As a major tire marketer the Colonial Oil Company is in a position to make first hand observations. Our service stations and authorized dealers carry a complete line of Yale tires, built exclusively for us by the General Tire and Rubber Company. The men at these stations are trained observers, and in selling Yale tires to motorists who need them they are fulfilling the promise of service which is the policy of the Colonial Oil Company.

Well Known Firm Will Close Out Business Here

E. F. Duke, manager of R. E. Harris & Company store here, announced today that arrangements had been made for closing out the business and settling the Harris estate. Following Mr. Harris' death more than three years ago, there were minor heirs and the court ordered that the estate be held intact until such time as the minor heirs reached their majority. In view of the fact that the heirs now having become of age, Mr. Duke stated today that the estate would be settled as early as possible.

The R. E. Harris Company has been operating a general mercantile and farm supply business in this city for a number of years at the corner of Evans and Fourth Streets. Despite good business this fall, Mr. Duke stated that the stock is still large and that every piece of it, together with the store fixtures, will be disposed of in order to close the business and vacate the building as quickly as possible. The store will be close from today through Thanksgiving, during which time stocks will be inventoried, arranged and made in readiness for the close-out.

C. H. Schaut, of Kinston, who twelve years ago conducted his first sale in Greenville for the Harris Company, has been given entire charge of the stock of goods for final disposition, and Mr. Schaut stated this morning that he would make announcement of the plan of disposal just as soon as final decision had been reached.

Add to the Shakespearian plays that have been filmed: It's not generally known, but the old Vitagraph company made "Othello" and "Romeo and Juliet"—in one or two reels—shortly after 1900. "Romeo and Juliet" got encores later after the screen was more mature.

Queenie Smith religiously sends home all the clippings mentioning her name "romantically" with this actor and that. She sends them to her husband. The first "romance rumor" started when Queenie was photographed with Cary Grant at a Hollywood function.

She Knew Him When
Grant's recent separation from Virginia Cherrill made it a possibility for "new romance," but the gossipers forgot that "Queenie had not separated from her husband. In fact, she had known Cary when he was Archie Leach on the stage, and they were merely saying "howdy" after all these years. Ramon Novarro and Edward Everette Horton were doing a scene together, but the nicely dressed young woman at the other end of the stage was getting more attention from the set bystanders. She was on her knees, wielding a big paint brush in another set, beside an overalled painter who was equally good but no better at the job. Inquiry as to the meaning of it brought the enlightening answer, "Oh, she's the piano-player."

Largest Telescope To Be Erected On Plateau

By E. H. TIPTON
Pasadena, Calif.—(AP)—The 200-inch mirror, world's largest telescope which will provide the human race with an "eye" to see objects 400 million light years away, will be placed on a plateau and not atop a mountain peak as are many of the great instruments now in use.

Selection of the site 45 miles north of San Diego followed exhaustive tests of atmospheric conditions and the examination of many proposed locations.

Elevation is 5,500 Feet
Crews are building a road to the 160-acre tract which lies at an elevation of 5,000 feet on the slopes of Palomar Mountain. The mountain reaches a peak several hundred feet higher up.

It may be four or five years before the giant reflecting disk measuring 17 feet in diameter and cast at Corning, N. Y., is ready to penetrate into the far reaches of space, but astronomers already are speculating on what it will do.

Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory, who will supervise the grinding of the mirror at the California Institute of Technology, estimates it will disclose objects so distant that light traveling 6,000 billion miles a year would require 400 million years to reach the earth.

To Bring Moon Closer
"This mammoth telescope," said Frederick G. Leonard of the University of California at Los Angeles,

"may be expected to show about as many stars in the heavens as there are people on earth." He said only about 6,000 stars are visible to the naked eyes.

More houses are being built in Scotland than at any time since March, 1933.

with 6 points of superiority and at NO INCREASE IN COST

IF YOU wanted the very best motor fuel today that money could buy . . . What grade would you ask for? . . . Where would you go to get it?

To answer both of these vital questions for the owners of new and old automobiles, Gulf announces No-Nox Ethyl Aviation Grade Gasoline available today at Gulf stations and dealers at no increase in cost!

Almost everyone knows that there has always been an especially fine grade of gasoline for airplanes . . . but up until now that grade has never been available to motorists with high compression ratio motor cars. Now it is . . . Gulf No-Nox Ethyl Aviation Grade Gasoline!

WHAT IS AVIATION GRADE?
Gulf No-Nox Aviation grade is the finest motor car fuel available, regardless of price. Its high octane rating has been further increased. Its distillation characteristics conform to those of United States government specifications for aviation gasoline.

*WHAT ARE THE SIX POINTS OF SUPERIORITY?

1. Quicker starting
2. Quicker warming up
3. Better acceleration
4. Less crankcase dilution
5. More available power
6. Increased anti-knock properties

This new Gulf No-Nox Ethyl Aviation Grade Gasoline will give you quicker starting on cold mornings because it is more volatile. It will warm up your engine faster . . . give you more available power . . . get you away faster in traffic . . . give you more anti-knock power on hills . . . and more economy for city driving!

From year to year during the past few years, the tendency in design of automobile motors has been towards higher compression ratios to a point where today a gasoline must have high anti-knock properties in order to give maximum fuel performance. The approach of winter weather makes necessary a further quality—quicker starting! Gulf's new No-Nox Ethyl Aviation Grade Gasoline combines both of these essential qualities with four  others to meet the present demands of motorists and approaching winter weather. Try it!

Trade reports continued of a highly constructive character and industrial issues were again the leaders of the forward movement.

At the same time the rails and utilities were somewhat greater demand. The trading pace was fast in the early hours. With a holiday approaching, there was some profit-taking in evidence, but this seemed to be absorbed without much trade.

Early firmness was shown by steel, tobacco, rails and utilities. Liggett and Myers and Du Pont erased gains of around a point each.

POSTOFFICE ON TRUCK SERVES RURAL FRANCE

Paris.—(AP)—A postoffice on wheels, the first of a projected series, has been put into service to provide facilities for out of the way spots in France.

Mounted on a ten-ton truck chassis, the body houses two sound-proof telephone booths, three writing desks, and three wickets where all the usual operations of a postoffice can be conducted. A cable will connect the telephones with any convenient line. Bicycle messengers on the truck's staff will facilitate transmission of telephone messages.

Yugoslavia selected two stamps for this purpose. They are 1.75-dinar deep rose and 3.50-dinar ultramarine. The stamps picture the king from one of his most recent photographs and are identical in design with the type of 1931.

For the second time and by a second country the statue of Christ in the Andes has been illustrated on a postage stamp.

The latest issue is a 10-centavo commemorative in connection with the recent International Eucharistic Congress held at Buenos Aires. Previously the statue had been made part of the drawing used on a 25-centavo air mail stamp of Spain. It was one of the group put out in 1930 as the Spanish-American union issue.

This statue of Christ is located in Upsallata pass high in the Andes mountains on the border between Chile and Argentina. It was dedicated in 1904 and is a symbol of everlasting peace between those countries. Constructed of iron from melted cannon, it stands 60 feet high.

From Ecuador. At almost regular intervals in the past several months odd stamps have been trickling through from Latin America, mainly forecasting changes in the lower denominations.

Just at hand is a 2-centavo from Ecuador printed in dark and light green and indicating a departure in the design of that country's stamps. It carries the modernistic motif with a winged post horn as a part of the design. In the background to the left is a telegraph pole, although most of the background is solid green.

It Brought $1,975. That recent find of a modern

Gulf Announces Balanced New Fuel For Motors

"For a long time," say local executives of the Gulf Refining Company, "our scientists and refinery technologists have been striving to produce a motor fuel that would combine starting, rapid warming, high octane rating, and rapid acceleration."

It is a relatively easy matter to produce a gasoline with any one of those characteristics. However, to combine all of these qualities in one gasoline is a matter that taxes the resources and ingenuity of the petroleum industry's greatest scientists and technologists. Such a combination, however, has been achieved in Gulf's new gasoline, Gulf No-Nox Ethyl (aviation grade). This new motor fuel, due to its low air-fuel mixture temperature and its unusually high octane rating, will give extra quick starting on the coldest morning. In addition, this new product has preserved its mileage qualities, particularly for city driving.

Rapid acceleration, too, has been provided for by refining this gasoline so that it has a volatility high enough for rapid and even carburetion; yet, at the same time it retains a stability that permits an efficient air-fuel ratio during sudden opening of the throttle.

All in all, this new motor fuel offers the motorist a gasoline with qualities of quicker starting in cold winter weather, rapid acceleration, high octane rating, power and speed combined with a maximum mileage commensurate with these other high performance qualities.
