EXPERT TELLS COURT HAUPTMANN DID NOT WRITE RANSOM NOTES

EVIDENCE IS PRESENTED OVER PROTEST

John Trendley, of St. Louis, First Handwriting Expert Used by Defense, Declares Firmly Defendant Did Not Write 14 Ransom Requests; Eight Experts Had Testified That Notes Were Written by Hauptmann

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 1.—(AP)—The combined opinion of eight state experts that Bruno Richard Hauptmann wrote the Lindbergh ransom notes was disputed today by the first defense expert and Hauptmann's attorneys formally disclaimed part of the so-called "Fisch myth."

Former intimation that the dead Isidor Fisch might have written the notes and kidnaped and slain the Lindbergh baby was wiped away by Defense Chief Edward Reilly during recess argument.

Reilly held to a contention that Fisch, not Hauptmann, was receiver of the $50,000 ransom.

John Trendley, East St. Louis, Ill., declared his opinion that the important first ransom note known as the "nursery note" was written by a left-handed man trying to disguise his handwriting.

He charged, moreover, that the chart prepared by Albert Osborne chief handwriting expert for the state, which was used by Osborne and other experts to illustrate the basis for comparing the ransom note with Hauptmann's handwriting included all but three words in the first note.

Up to the noon recess when he was under direct examination Trendley took up the nursery note line by line and word by word to show why he believed Hauptmann was not the writer.

Reilly declared: "We never contended that Fisch wrote the notes or that he perpetrated the crime. I believe he got the ransom money. We don't know who wrote the ransom notes."

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's first handwriting expert today disputed the evidence of eight fellow-craftsmen and declared Hauptmann was not the writer of the fourteen Lindbergh ransom notes.

John M. Trendley, East St. Louis, who qualified as an expert over the objections of the State yesterday gave his opinion shortly after resumption today of the Hauptmann trial for the kidnaping and murder of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Court was delayed in opening by a conference in the judge's chambers. There was also a slight delay.

LABOR RAPS NEW CAR CODE

William Green Says New Code Will Not Be Accepted Until June 16

Washington, Feb. 1.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, announced today that organized labor would "not accept" the auto code extended by President Roosevelt last night until June 16.

He made the statement before the Senate Judiciary sub-committee considering the Black 30-hour week bill.

"We protest against this code. We will not accept it, not recognize it, and will not yield to it."

Green said the code had absolutely failed to spread work. Because under it the workers are compelled or required to work almost unlimited hours at the desire of the manufacturers.

A recent ballot was conducted among workers by the National Labor Board and was represented to have shown 90 per cent of those as opposed to the AFL affiliation.

Credit For Soviets Is Sought In This Country

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—(AP)—A move to scrap the bank set-up to foster credit to Soviet Russia was considered today by officials after an attempt to reach settlement on Moscow's debt to the United States had collapsed.

The way for this action was opened last night by Secretary Hull after a final talk with Ambassador Odoorko Troynovsky at which Hull finally refused to meet the Soviet government's condition for a deal.

This condition was understood to be a $100,000,000 cash loan from the American government to Russia.

WOULD SEAT DR. ZICKLER

House Election Committee Votes to Give Seat to Alexander Representative

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 1.—(AP)—The House Committee on Elections today voted to recommend that Dr. C. R. Zickler, Democrat, be seated as the fully qualified Representative from Alexander County over the protest of Dr. J. E. Woodman, former Democratic Representative, who sought election last fall as an independent.

Representative Bowie, of Ashe; Lindsay, of Richmond, and New, of Swain, drew a sub-committee report which the full committee accepted.

Woods challenged the election of Zickler on the grounds that 500 absentee ballots were cast in the election. Zickler contended it was not shown he had benefited from them.

TIMED TWINSTINGS BRING BOAT CRASH

Stockholm.—(AP)—Two small passenger boats, plying the same course for 40 years in the twists and turns of Stockholm archipelago, have at last collided.

The collision, which occurred in a dense fog, was due to the "perfect" timing by the pilot on each boat.

Accustomed to fog and darkness the pilots have learned to navigate by the watch sailing so many minutes in this direction and so many seconds in that, to escape treacherous reefs and islands.

When they collided both boats were exactly halfway to their destination—both timed to the very second.

THEFT RING SNAPPED BY POLICE RAID

Nine Negro Youths Held For Larceny; White Man Faces Receiving Charge

Nine negro youths, ranging all the way from 12 to 15 years of age, faced several charges of larceny here today while a white filling station operator was being held on a charge of receiving stolen goods as result of the boy's activity.

Chief of Police George Clark reported this afternoon that the youths were rounded up in a series of raids last night. He said all nine confessed to the stealing of a considerable amount of goods from garages, filling stations and automobiles parked along streets of the city.

Those being held are: Joe Tom Graham, David Lee Clark, Davy Henry Grice, Joe Curtis Grice, Peter Grice, Charlie Pierre, William Whitfield, Willie Ray Tucker, and Boston Bradley.

A warrant, the police head said, has been issued for L. H. Burlingame, operator of a filling station who the youths alleged bought some of the stolen goods. He was charged with buying a grease gun, automobile batteries and about 700 brick. The brick were reported to have been stolen from the rear of the Smith Electric Company. He denied he knew the goods were stolen.

Several filling stations are reported to have been visited by the alleged thieves, and numbers or articles recovered in the police raid have been identified by operators.

Chief Clark said the youths probably had been carrying on their activities for a month or longer, as reports regarding the missing of articles from filling stations had been recorded since before Christmas.

All the defendants were scheduled to receive preliminary hearing this afternoon, but Chief Clark said the cases probably would be postponed on account of several other important matters awaiting attention of his department during the afternoon.

SCORE HURT IN TRAIN MISHAP

Motor Bus Crashes Through Switch Into Freight Train at Framington, Mass.

Framington, Mass., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Twenty persons were injured, one seriously, when a gasoline motor truck of the New Orleans, New Haven and Hartford Railroad went through a switch and crashed into the rear of a freight standing on a siding here today.

Isabel Rylander, 56, of Framington, baggage man on the passenger train, was rendered unconscious and taken to a hospital where it was said he was suffering from a possible fracture of the skull. Names of the other injured were not immediately available.

The accident occurred a few hundred yards from the Framington station. The train was en route from Marlboro to this city and carried 600 passengers. Railroad officials began an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

LEGISLATIVE RAMBLINGS

By C. A. PAUL

National Guard officers can't get auto license tags bearing numbers in from one to three digits, but they ought to be recognized, thinks Senator Rivers Johnson, of Duplin. He introduced a bill which would furnish those officers with distinctive tags.

At present, only State officials secure low-numbered tags. They fall from No. 1, the Governor's number, on up to 100 or thereabouts. Private car tags start at 100,000, and there's a reason behind that. If they began where the officials' quit the State would be pestered by literally thousands of car owners wanting low numbers, the idea being that low numbers create the impression that "Me and the Governor are like that." Other numbers below 100,000 are reserved for trucks, taxis and so on.

The first cosmetologist bill of the 1935 legislative season made its appearance today.

CIVIL COURT HERE FEB. 18

Judge Barnhill of Rocky Mount to Preside Over One Week Term

A one week term of Superior Court for the trial of civil cases will convene in this city Monday, February 18, with Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount on the bench.

This will be the second term of civil court during the year, a one week term having been completed two weeks ago. It was followed by a one week term of criminal court.

Although the calendar has not been completed it is expected to contain from forty to fifty cases of more or less importance to the people of this community.

Around thirty cases were disposed of in the former term but there are plenty more on tap to be given attention between now and the mid summer.

Approximately forty cases were cleared from the docket in the one week term of criminal court here last week and many more are expected to go the same route during the remaining terms scheduled for the spring.

JUBILEE MAY KEEP KING FROM ATTENDING COURTS

London.—(AP)—American debutantes and society women who will be presented at the two royal courts in March may not get to see King George after all.

In view of the heavy list of engagements lined up for His Majesty in connection with the jubilee celebrations, it is probable he will delegate the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York to escort the queen at the courts.

VETO: The bonus boys are well on the way to beating themselves to death.

With a crocodile tear in each eye, the Roosevelt administration has been surreptitiously slipping one faction a shillelagh one minute and tossing a truncheon to the other side immediately thereafter.

It is amazing how the lads are smashing away at each other's heels—and incidentally the prospe- cts of any bonus legislation this session.

Some observers at this stage are inclined to doubt that the question of immediate cash payment will get to a final vote in the light of recent developments in Capitol Hill.

Others think the handwriting on the wall finally will get large enough for both sides to read and that thereafter a bonus bill of sorts will pass.

But should the latter school of thought be correct, affairs have

NEW TOBACCO HOUSE TO BE BUILT HERE

R. V. Keel Announces Beginning of Construction Next Monday

Construction work is scheduled to begin next Monday morning on the large tobacco warehouse to be erected here by R. V. Keel at a cost of approximately $50,000. It was announced today.

The building will be located on Dickson Avenue west of the Atlantic Coast Line station and will be among the largest in this section of the State.

The new structure will be 370 x 183 feet and will contain 60,390 square feet of floor space. It will give Greenville ten modern warehouses covering a combined floor space of sixteen acres.

Mr. Keel, who has been connected with the tobacco business here and in other parts of the State for a number of years, said this afternoon the new warehouse would be modern in every respect, containing large airy rest rooms for both men and a comfortable and commodious camp room for both white and colored people.

The building will be of brick, steel and wood construction, and will be numbered among the largest not only here, but in other parts of the great bright leaf belt.

Mr. Keel is well-known among tobacco men and farmers of this section, having operated warehouse here and in other parts of the belt for a number of years. He announced his intention to build the new house several weeks ago, and completed arrangements with the builders this week.

Past District Governor to Highlight Kiwanis Ladies' Night Program Tonight

East District Governor and Mrs. Ralph C. Barker, of Durham, are expected to attend the ladies' night program to be given by the Kiwanis club here tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

This will be the first visit of Governor Barker to the city and members of the club were looking forward to his coming with much interest.

An elaborate program has been arranged for tonight, always one of the most important meetings of the club, and the guests will be treated to many entertaining features.

In charge of the program are all members of the program committee, W. A. Ryan, chairman, Donald Conley, vice president, Jim Gallopaw, Past President, W. A. Darden and George Woodward.

Each member of the club will be required to bring his wife or some lady friend in addition to some kind of newspaper, the date of which is of no consequence. It may be the program committee are behind with their reading or something and want to catch up by having all members to bring them a newspaper.

Favors and prizes will be distributed among the ladies, and the men will be expected to use to the best of their ability fifty new song books which Secretary Dave Moore announced had arrived in time for the meeting.

State Scouts Alibi Witness For Bruno

New Orleans, La., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long arrived in New Orleans today from Washington and got off the train at the railroad depot surrounded by a strong bodyguard whose first act was to beat up a newspaper photographer and smash his camera to pieces on the concrete floor of the railroad shed.

The photographer was Leon Trice of the staff of The Associated Press, who had taken a picture of Senator Long stepping off the train from Washington.

As he snapped the picture, Joe Messina, Long's chief bodyguard, struck Trice in the mouth with his fist. Trice, who was no physical match with the husky bodyguard, backed away.

Long, who was looking on, shouted: "Give it to him, Joe. Do anything you want to with him."

With that Messina struck the photographer with a blackjack on the back of the head and knocked him down. The bodyguard then destroyed the camera and started off with the Senator.

REVENUE BILL NEARS REPORT

Measure Expected to Be Reported to the House Not Later Than Wednesday

Raleigh, Feb. 1.—The revenue bill is expected to be reported to the House by not later than Wednesday, Feb. 6, Senator Harris Newman, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and Representative R. Gregg Cherry of the House Finance Committee, said today. All of the scheduled public hearings were completed yesterday afternoon and the joint committees are now working in executive session to re-write these sections of the Budget revenue bill which it has decided to change.

"I see no reason why the committee cannot finish re-writing the revenue bill and get it ready to report to the House by next Wednesday," Senator Newman said today. "The committees already know what sections they are going to change and it will not require much discussion to reach an agreement on these changes."

Both Senator Newman and Representative Cherry agreed that the bill would contain the sales tax section as recommended by the Budget Commission, with the exemption removed. For it is generally agreed that the anti-sales tax forces will make no effort to eliminate these sections in the finance committees, since they admit they are outnumbered in the committees. It is not even expected that the anti-sales taxers will bring in a minority report.

Since both the sales tax and anti-sales tax factions in the committee have already indicated that they are anxious to get the revenue bill out of committee and onto the floor of the House as soon as possible, it is expected both of these groups will cooperate in re-writing the bill and that no effort will be made by the anti-sales tax group to throw any bricks into the machinery or delay action. They have indicated they are saving these bricks until the bill gets onto the floor of the House. Then they are promising a veritable shower of Irish confetti in a determined effort to remove the sales tax section. But not until then.

LONG MURDER PROBE AGAIN IS RESUMED

Senator's Body Guard Beats up News Photographer on Arriving in New Orleans

Baton Rouge, La., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Senator Huey Long's plot hearing was ordered resumed this morning shortly after the Senator's arrival in Baton Rouge.

Surrounded by guards and troops Senator Long reached Baton Rouge station of his dictatorial empire at 8:55 o'clock, one hour and a half after he arrived at New Orleans by train from Washington.

He did not stay but a few minutes and came up the highway with a cavalcade of his followers.

He clipped into Baton Rouge, now under martial law with 700 soldiers and State police, both in uniform and plain clothes.

He reached Baton Rouge in the midst of a tense atmosphere and with townspeople subjected to eleven drastic martial law orders, one of which prohibits more than two persons to congregate on the streets and prohibits newspapers from printing anything derogatory to the State administration.

Bible Class Of Methodist Church Enjoys Supper

The Men's Bible Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist church enjoyed a delightful supper at the Rotary club last night in celebration of the ending of their month of their membership drive.

It was a case of the "Reds" against the "Blues" during the January campaign, and the "Blues" won and consequently the supper last of the ending of the first month of the "Reds".

It was reported at the supper that the class practically doubled its membership during the drive. So impressed was the class with the drive that it was decided to continue the campaign during the month of February, and it was hoped to further increase enrollment and give the "Reds" the satisfaction of revenge for the January defeat.

Brief talks were made by J. C. Galloway, Dr. G. R. Combs and D. M. Clark, the latter class teacher. Each of the speakers expressed appreciation of what had been accomplished by the two teams and urged them to carry over into February with a determination to do as

Art of Knitting

THROUGH countless ages has come the art of knitting. Women have taken pride in their art until knitting itself has become a sign of domesticity. Amid flying needles, tea has been served, conversation made in far corners of the earth. And now this age-old practice of knitting has become the smartest of vogues.

A prevue of a celebrated Parisian atelier—hand knitted notes. After tea on the Riviera—and again the trend. The castle of a baroness at Nuremberg—a stitch known to this aristocratic family for centuries. An exclusive Palm Beach Club—fashion leaders contribute.

WITH the revival of the hand knitting vogues and the desire for lovely hand made things, comes the demand for levelier, smarter yarns—and someone to advise and instruct in the art. Blount-Harvey has anticipated this and met the demand by installing a knitting department, a complete range of Sudbury and Colleta Yarns, and someone to teach the art of knitting. Mrs. Hogan Gaskins, well known for her many beautiful hand-made creations, is in the knitting department every day 10:00 to 11:30 o'clock in the morning and 3:30 to 5:00 o'clock in the afternoon, and will give free advice and instructions. You are cordially invited in for consultation.

A COSTLY TAX

It will do the State of North Carolina little good to balance its budget if it is done by a device which drives $100,000,000 a year in retail trade out of the State...

North Carolina is not rich enough to give up so much business or even half of it. Not only merchants and business men suffer by such a loss...

What must be the loss in other taxes alone resulting from such facts, presented by the merchants, as these?

The number of money orders sold in North Carolina jumped from $23,490,000 to $37,429,000—or 63 per cent—after the sales tax went into effect.

The number of North Carolinians who endeavored to secure credit in out-of-State retail stores increased after enactment of the sales tax from 123 per cent in some cities to 356 per cent in the Virginia town which benefited most from the North Carolina law.

The crop values in North Carolina increased more than 150 per cent last year, but the purchase of farmers and other North Carolinians last year increased only a small fraction of that amount...

North Carolina tobacco markets, especially those near the border, made no such increase in sales as the Virginia market at Danville because many farmers took their tobacco out of the State to avoid paying a sales tax on purchases made with tobacco money.

The question before North Carolina is not whether it can afford to give up the sales tax, but whether it can afford to keep it.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: By a clever ruse, the Montana Kid and Mateo Rubiz, Mexican Robin Hood, have gained entrance to the fort at Durango. They come to a good cause, for they have promised to return to the good Bishop Emiliano the emerald crown of Our Lady which the gangster stole from the bishop's church...

Chapter 15 THE DANCE THE map of the fort which the Kid had been able to draw out of the information of Miguel Santos and the girl seemed perfectly accurate...

He led the way without a flap up the two flights of stairs which had been cut into the wall of the fortress and then into a great hall, long and narrow, where only two or three weak lights were burning.

In the farther corner of this hall was a door which opened upon a short corridor that ran directly to the tower apartments of General Ignacio Estrada...

Montana, leaping into the back of the corner, whirled to see that a dozen young officers had entered the room, carrying a big hamper, and that Rubiz was still visible to them.

And at that instant a bawling voice cried: "Hal! Come here and pick up this hamper. What are gentlemen to do? Wait on themselves when there are dogs like you around?"

"Stand fast! Don't move for me!" gasped Rubiz to the Kid, covertly tearing away his mask as he spoke. "Pray for me! I front them!"

And he turned and walked straight back towards the group! "Run!" shouted one of the officers. And Rubiz obediently ran, springing forward with wonderful lightness in spite of the bulk of his unwieldy body.

The basket on the table. Stand away, Pedro, and let this fellow do the work. "He can't lift it," said Pedro. "Can't he, though? Look at the shoulders of him. If they're not all fat, he may be able to. These poor devils have strength."

There was a sudden shout as Rubiz leaped, lifted the basket, and slid it onto the table. "That's Mexico!" said the oldest of the officers. "Look at the muscles in those legs! Pull off your dirty shirt and let's see your body, too!"

"Forgive me," panted Rubiz. "I am called to my work. Another—" "Hal! Are you working for soldiers and question commands? Show him the way, Pedro! Off with it!"

Two of them grabbed the cheap white shirt and instantly it was ripped from the back of Rubiz. "There!" called out the commander. "Did I tell you? Not fat, either. All muscle—all pure strength. I'd stake that man against a mule. Where did you get those leg muscles, man?"

"In the mines, sir," said Rubiz, his head bowed, his shaggy hair falling forward. "Look at him! He's ashamed to be naked, even before men. What are those white marks? Scars? Knife cuts? Come on, and we'll find a story in this one. Open the wine!"

THAT was quickly done. The hamper was thickly packed with wine-bottles, and the corks had barely ceased popping before glasses began to brim and pour down wide throats.

The Kid, from his corner, covered the gay little party with two revolvers and shifted his aim from breast to breast, from head to head. He was perfectly convinced now, that he and Rubiz could never escape from the fort. But if they did, so would some of these jolly sparks.

"What are these scars? What sort of a peep are you?" asked the commander. "More like a damned mountain bandit, to my eye. Look at him and try to remember! Haven't I seen that face on posters with a reward for him, dead or alive?"

The nerves of Montana prickled through his skin. It seemed that the next moment would be the end of Rubiz, or the beginning of the end.

But the deep voice of the outlaw answered: "I was hurt by a fall in the mine, sirs. I was carrying a basket up the ladder—"

Chapter 16 THE GOAL "A, Montana, kill me! I can't live!" said Rubiz. "To breathe for ten minutes more is too much torture; I am going back to kill them now."

"Kill one or two and be flogged to death by the rest?" asked the Kid. "I thought you were talking about revenge."

Rubiz wiped his mouth on the back of his hairy arm. So, gasping for his breath he drew himself back little by little towards, calm. The Kid stood with his back turned on the only picture.

Afterwards he heard a murmuring voice behind him: "You could have killed a few of them. I could have helped with the rest. Instead, San Juan of Capistrano, fix the day when I can put my hands on this gringo. News we work together, but afterwards there will be a day!"

"Are you finished?" asked Montana, calmly, over his shoulder. "What do you mean? Look at this head! It would still take a parcel of breaking. Not many brains under that shock of hair, but enough to know how to lift hampers of wine for his betters. And for all that he's been through, he still has a light enough foot and hand—a light enough hand to steal the gold out of your teeth while you sleep, I'd wager. Jump up there on the table and give us a dance, you!"

"There is no music, sir," said Rubiz. The officer picked up a quirt, drew the lashes through his hand, and then struck the table.

"Up on the table, and we'll give you music!" he shouted. "Up with you!" And he slashed Rubiz across the naked body.

It seemed to Montana, as his thumbs hooked over the hammers of the revolvers, ready to open fire, that Rubiz swayed in the very act of hurling himself at the man of the whip. Instead, without touching the table with his hands, he leaped lightly on top of it.

The officers shouted. They began to strike the table in a quick rhythm with their whips. And to that rhythm poor Rubiz had to dance. When some of them made a mistake and landed heavily on his body instead of on the table, he had to leap the higher.

It was frantic work. In a few minutes he was staggering. And at last Pedro it who called out: "Let the poor fool stop! See, Luis, where you draw the blood on him! He's had enough exercise for one evening. Get down."

Rubiz jumped to the floor. "Give him a few coppers," said Pedro, "and he'll be able to forget his torn shirt."

"What about his torn skin?" "What does skin matter? It grows again without any cost!" "Here's the money."

"It's too much," decided thin-faced Luis, the superior officer. And he dropped a portion of it, calmly, into his own pocket. "Give him the rest, then," said Pedro.

"Give it to him? Give a dog food with my own hands? Let him root for it, the swine!" So Luis buried the money from him. It rattled on the floor. It rolled clinking into the farthest corners, and Rubiz darted after it, sometimes almost skidding on hands and knees in his apparent eagerness. The officers followed his antics with yells of the highest appreciation.

But a toast proposed by one of them suddenly called all heads and all eyes towards their own group. It was at that moment that Montana drew open the door into the corridor of the general rooms and big Rubiz sprang through the gap.

His eyes were insane. There was only one guttering light here, in the foul air, by which to see the outlaw, but even that light was too much for Montana. Rubiz, for an instant, buried his hands in his hair. Then he turned and beat his head against the wall.

Only after a long moment could he hold up one hand. When he opened it Montana could see a dozen copper coins in the palm. (Copyright, 1934, Harper & Brothers) frank to say that when such an obligation is placed upon the government it can never throw off the burden and, because of that, any steps in that direction should be carefully considered before assuming the responsibility.

Several legislators are of the opinion that, if an old-age pension system is set up, employees and employers should assume a goodly share of the burden. Such a step would be in line with proposed legislation in Congress which would exact one per cent from employees' envelopes and levy a three per cent tax on pay-rolls to be paid by employers.

national convention makes its decisions. One of the prime questions is how many other parties will be in the field. The answer is conceded generally to depend on the economic trends of the next few months.

Banking On Better Times If prosperity returns during the coming year, the politicians expect to see little significant third-party activity. If things go on as they are, or get worse, a bumper crop of independent movements is looked for.

Evidently, Mr. Roosevelt is banking, politically, on a very appreciable economic upturn. Recently his managers have not been taking the pains they once did to keep the Republican insurgents in the Democratic fold—that is, to keep them from going out on their own and organizing against the administration the popular discontent arising from the depression.

Democratic party chiefs are proceeding, instead, on the theory that by November, 1936, improved conditions will have wiped out most of that discontent, and that the natural prestige of the administration will insure Mr. Roosevelt's re-election on a straight-out Democratic ticket.

Garner Is Set A year ago there was talk very high up in the party of putting up an insurgent Republican as the Roosevelt running-mate. Now the talk is all for the renomination of Vice-President Garner.

In every State (except Huey Long's Louisiana) the Democrats are building up, and relying on, a down-the-line Democratic State organization, and frowning on all coalitions. Of course if any discontented Republicans want to go along, they are welcome, but they are not encouraged to expect favors.

There are a lot of possibilities in that. A return to the insurgents to the Republican camp would be calculated to aggravate greatly the struggle for control already raging. Even as things stand now, no one seems able to figure out how a prolonged deadlock can be avoided when the Republicans come together in their next national convention.

More dark horses than figure in the 1920 Republican deadlock are edging into the picture. A candidate of the type of Oden Mills or David Reed might be able to organize a formidable bloc of delegates in the East. While someone of the type of Arthur Vanderberg was getting together a Mid-Western bloc, and some one like William E. Borah was collecting the left-wingers. Beyond that, what?

A compromise like that of 1920, which produced Warren G. Harding, already is talked about by many Republican wet-shedders. And, incidentally, prediction of such a compromise is about the only prediction any experienced Republican is willing to tie to.

As to issues, as distinguished from candidates, the confusion is even worse. It seems almost assured that

Not much is said for publication, but under-surface explorations preparatory to the 1936 Presidential campaign already have reached a highly active stage.

FAIL TO GIVE 'SUBSTITUTE' FOR SALES TAX

Merchants Threaten To Carry Fight to Assembly Floor After Hearing

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. By C. A. PAUL. Raleigh, Feb. 1.—Failure to present to the joint finance committee a definite substitute for the sales tax was the outstanding point in the hearing of the N. C. Merchants Association before that group.

A definite threat of a substitute, already framed, to come at a later date when the revenue bill reaches the floor of the lower house was voiced by David Owens of Charlotte, president of the National Retail Dry Goods and Charlotte Merchants Associations. Other speakers who followed Owens also hinted at such a measure.

Owens, who was introduced by Willard Dowell, president of the state merchants' group as "the recognized leader of the merchandising world in the United States," was easily the outstanding speaker of the day. He got off to an excellent start and the committee as well as the gallery listened to him with careful attention.

Those who followed, from various sections of the state, slowed very perceptibly the pace set by Owens and it was quite evident that they made very little, if any, impression on the committee.

The hearing, scheduled for 2:30, got underway at 3:35. Finance chairmen explaining that the committee was "quite unavoidably detained" by other hearings.

"Thanks for the hearing, even though you were an hour late," said Owens. "I want to say that we are merchants, not politicians, and that we claim that we understand distribution of merchandise. We deliberately charge that thousands and thousands of dollars which would normally have been spent in this state have been diverted to South Carolina, Virginia and elsewhere by reason of the three per cent sales tax. That the tax is imposed on those least able to pay is a sophistry you are perhaps weary of hearing, but it ought to be engraved in marble where everyone can see it."

Mr. Owens denied emphatically that the merchants favor an unbalanced budget, inadequate support of schools, or the imposition of whiskey tax to supplant the sales tax. "I say this, when perhaps I ought not to say it," he continued, "that we challenge any man to run for a state office while declaring that he favors retention of the sales tax. When you work against the cause of the common man you work against the cause of merchants and of civilization itself."

Dowell, who introduced the speakers, termed the sales tax the "greatest social and economic blunder ever perpetrated in North Carolina" and added that it is "unfair, unwise and vicious."

It was obvious that the committee was disappointed in the failure of the association to produce its substitute measure at the hearing. Still more obvious was the fact that Owens was the only speaker, except for Dowell, who is a familiar figure at sales tax hearings, to create any great impression. By his position in merchandising he had the advantage over less-publicized speakers. He spoke calmly, clearly, much in the manner expected of an executive of his type.

At least one member of the committee was heard to say that the hearing would have been much more successful from the merchants standpoint, if they had introduced only Owens.

Failure to produce at this time a substitute and the promise to introduce it later are conclusive and absolute proof that the anti-sales taxers have abandoned their fight against the tax in committee and will wait until the revenue bill reaches the floor of the legislature before staging their real fight against it.

'REFUGEES' FROM HUEY'S 'EMPIRE'

When martial law made things hot for those who revolted against Sentauro Huey P. Long's dictatorship in Louisiana, James Mehaffey, vice president of the revolutionary "Square Deal" association, found temporary "refuge" in Washington. He and his wife are shown in their hotel room there. (Associated Press Photo.)

needed—and the boys aren't in a position to do that. If the Patman bill comes out New Deal strategy moves to the Senate, where a straight-out inflation bill of its nature could improbably pass.

BARRIER: Senators of both political faiths whose economic views aren't quite so ebullient as those of Brain Trusters don't see much chance of stopping the steam roller this session.

They have, however, hit on the idea of getting important members of Mr. Roosevelt's official family on record as to just how far FDR intends to go with his prospective grants of new authority. Then the record would stand as a sort of barrier beyond which the White House could not pass without laying itself open to criticism.

This is going to be a good trick if it works. Much depends on how good certain Senators are as cross-examiners and how adroit cabinet officers and other officials are as witnesses.

MASSIVE: Senator Carter Glass (D) of Va., and Senator James Couzens (R) of Michigan, are more or less leading the movement to put all New Deal legislation through the sieve before it reaches the floor for a final vote.

These two and their colleagues will see to it that full committee hearings are held on all vital measures. They consider that the crisis has passed and there is no longer any need for blind passage of emergency legislation. The "hot oil" provision of the Recovery Act, recently kicked out by the Supreme Court because of bad wording, is cited as an example of the evils of undue haste in doing the Masters' bidding.

Yet it is more or less significant that hearings before the Senate Appropriations Committee on the $4,800,000,000 works relief bill were closed to the public on a straight Party vote, the Republicans voting for open doors and Chairman Glass joining his fellow Democrats for privacy. When the hearings are complete they will be put in printed form and made public—but this will make one consolidated story—a fine campaign book—whereas had the press been permitted to cover the daily testimony there would have been piecemeal stories on what President Roosevelt proposed to do with all that money.

BUILDING: Powerful aid to the mortgage market can now be given by RFC, with its authority to use $100,000,000 for buying stock, notes, and debentures of mortgage loan companies, trust companies, savings and loan associations, etc. Stocks, notes and debentures can be sold. Thus a revolving fund will be set up which will help to liquidate capital in mortgages.

This aid stimulates the Federal Housing Administration act in relation to organizing mortgage loan associations. Such associations are empowered to issue debentures and thereby make mortgage operations liquid, added still further by federal mortgage insurance. Although this process is not spectacular it assures relief and safety in the immense real estate field and ought to encourage building all over the country.

NEW YORK. By James McMullin. CHOICE: Inside Wall Street is letting it be known that Ferdinand Pecora, successor of the Securities and Exchange Commission—like young Lechner—comes out of the West. The day is due that Congress is getting ready to be conscious. Four of the five original members—Kennedy, Landon, Healy and Pecora—are ex-sens and George Matthews' bids from only as far away as Wisconsin. It appears that the Pacific Coast is due to get the call this time. There will be quite a squawk if it doesn't.

Wise sources observe that the administration—far from being annoyed—is probably rather grateful for the sectional pressure. It affords an excellent excuse for not naming Baldwin Bane, Mr. Bane—as the Commission's Executive Administrator—was supposed to have the inside track but has been derailed. Why? The grapevine says it's because he is sponsored by Senator

The WORLD OF STAMPS

By QUINTO JAMES. Orphans of Spain benefit directly from a semi-postal issue of bi-colored stamps just in appearance from that country.

The stamps are inscribed, as roughly translated, "School home for orphans." Part of the money received from the sale of the stamps is to go to aid of the orphans.

For the basic illustration a couple of curly-headed youngsters are shown engrossed in play. One has a ball and the other a small sailing ship. The drawing is flanked on either side by a decorative border of color contrasting to the central part of the stamp.

There are seven denominations, beginning with five centavos and extending to five pesetas.

Philippines To Appear. A complete series of 14 Philippine stamps has been made ready to replace the current issue. All of the designs are of Philippine subjects except the 5-peso which will bear a portrait of George Washington seated on a white charger.

The other values will consist of: Two-centavo, Jose Rizal; 4-centavo, Filipino woman symbolic of agriculture; 6-centavo, Filipino girl; 8-centavo, pearl fishing; 10-centavo, Ft. Santiago at Manila; 12-centavo, salt spring; 15-centavo, landing of Macellan; 20-centavo, Filipino in native costume; 26-centavo, rice terraces; 30-centavo, Philippine revolution; 50-centavo, Barason church; 2-peso, battle of Manila bay; and 4-peso, Montalban gorge.

New Meter Stamp. A new design for U. S. meter stamps has been noted making its way into the mails. One of the first to come to hand originated from Schenectady, N. Y. A meter stamp is impressed on an envelope by a special machine, each of which has its own number, and serves not only as the indication that the regular rate has been paid but as the cancellation mark as well.

The new die bears an eagle in flight in the center, above which is "U. S. Postage" and below, the town of origin. To the left is the meter number and date, while to the right is "Amount paid" and in large figures below, the value. All of this is enclosed in a border resembling the perforations on an adhesive stamp.

In the old designs, the amount paid, etc., was in addition to a cancellation mark similar to that employed on small bearing regular stamps.

Greece And Health. The latest special stamps of Greece designed as a Christmas health issue were printed in two colors. They were on sale the two weeks' notice. Christmas, part of the proceeds to go to aid of consumptive clerics and officials of the state.

The stamps bear a drawing of a woman seated at a table and sharing her food with a large snake. It has been described as an allegorical figure of health.

The addresses were obligatory on all inland mail for two weeks, coming in 10, 20 and 50 lepta.

A Note Or Two. The Union of South Africa has decided to issue a special commemorative stamp in connection with King George's 50th jubilee in May. Then central feature will be the head of the king surrounded by emblematical designs. The inscription will be in English and Afrikaans.

Four more Paraguayan values have been discharged for official use.

Swedish Boycott Curtails Showing Of Nazi Movies. Stockholm—(AP)—A formal protest to the government by the editor of a theater owners' magazine, has revealed that German-made motion pictures in Sweden this past year by the working classes.

The decision of Socialist-minded trade unions not to patronize German movies, film distributors say, has caused a drastic curtailment in the number of such films brought into Sweden.

Film Origins Considered. This has been especially true, it is pointed out, in the Swedish provinces. In Stockholm a few theaters have been billing German films quite steadily.

In some cases German films have been presented without these credit lines indicating where they were produced.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Straddling financial markets today showed little disposition to step out in any direction.

With trading stocks even duller than yesterday's colorless session, most traders clung to the safety side lines and awaited for developments to shake the list out of its slow pace.

The news was not stimulating. Grains and cotton were narrow and corporate and United States Bonds were slightly mixed.

Liquor Bill Before Legislature. Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Attention of the Legislature today.

Members of the General Assembly were given copies of a model bill to create a State alcoholic authority to set up and operate a system for retail liquor stores if the voters approve the act.

The House passed two bills to remove tolls from Chowan and Cape Fear River bridges and sent them to the Senate. Earlier the Senate had adopted the committee report on the same bills which was the same as passed on first reading.

Dr. C. R. Zickler, of Alexander County, was formally seated by the House after it decided the contest made by J. P. Woodsin, former Democratic Representative, who on last November ran on an independent ticket.

The Senate got a measure from Senator Warren, of Allegheny, proposing repeal in its entirety of the law setting up the present State system of budgetary control. The law creating the budget system of control was passed during the McLean administration. Both divisions decided to hold preliminary sessions for local bills tomorrow and to resume regular work Monday night.

SPORT SLANTS

By PAP

The honor of winning the first place to be allotted on the 1936 United States Olympic team fell to Delbert Lamb, youthful Milwaukee speed skater, when he made the fastest time in the 500-meter final Olympic tryouts.

Lamb came dangerously close to not even competing in the final trial races for the Olympic team berths. The Wisconsin State committee selected four competitors to go to Minneapolis on the basis of total time for all events in the State trials. Lamb finished fifth in the scoring. Luckily someone called the committee's attention to the fact that Wisconsin was entitled to five candidates, so Lamb was sent along with the team.

It was a good thing that he was, for his showing in the 500-meters caused Frank Kalteaux, chairman of the Olympic committee, to comment that Lamb was America's outstanding hope for victory in the speed skating events next year.

Lamb skated his heat in the 500-meters alone, as his partner in the original drawings, made under the European system of the only two men in each heat, withdrew. He proved that he did not need a pacer for his time of 0:44.8 was only two and three tenths seconds slower than the world's record.

On the time basis Lamb finished second in the 1,500-meter trial, defeating the veteran Allan Potts, of Brooklyn, by one tenth of a second. Lamb's time of 2:37.7 was four seconds more than Eddie Schroeder the winner, required to cover the distance.

The Milwaukee skater's chances of scoring in Germany appear most favorable. He is bound to improve in the coming year for he is only twenty years old.

His physique is ideal for skating—which is to prevail at the Olympic meeting—favors his chances. The crowding and pushing of huge fields have in past races annoyed Lamb and prevented him from showing to advantage speed skating, and that's just what the doctor ordered for the Milwaukee speedster.

No wonder, then, that the Olympic committee was over-joyed at seeing him skim over the ice all alone in near record time.

Lamb first skated into prominence in 1932 when he tied for the intermediate State title. The following year he was more impressive and at 18 became the youngest skater ever to win the Wisconsin State championship.

He did not do so well in 1934 when the huge fields cramped his style and shunted him into the background, temporarily.

Partial credit for Del Lamb's success on the ice must go to his brother Eugene, who started him in the game. Eugene was quite a speed skater in his day.

To Del's credit it must be reported that he was wise enough to listen to his brother's counsel and profit from the latter's competitive experiences.

One thing the Olympic committee need have no concern over is the matter of Lamb's condition between now and the Olympic meeting. Training is no effort to him. He is always in condition.

In the beginning of Trendley's testimony because the State wanted to get into the records a hospital record regarding the testimony of Louis Kiss, one of Hauptmann's alibi witnesses.

Edward Reilly, chief defense attorney, asked Trendley:

"As a result of your study and examination of the ransom notes and Hauptmann's request writing, are you in position to render an opinion as to whether or not Hauptmann this defendant, wrote the ransom notes?"

"In my opinion," said Trendley "he did not."

The ransom notes represent the cardinal point in the State's case against Hauptmann. The first note was left on the window-sill of the Lindbergh nursery when Baby Lindbergh was kidnapped and murdered on the night of March 1.

Difficulties

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

"THAT hurts! That hurts my head!" cried the old man. "Oh, oh, I can't stand that."

"I'll try to do it more gently," said Willy Nilly, who realized his job was not an easy one.

So he had not to pull off a bit of skin with the adhesive, Willy Nilly got a bottle of rubbing alcohol and now the adhesive came off more easily, but tears were streaming from the old man's eyes.

"That hurt," he said miserably. "I am indeed sorry," said Willy Nilly. "I'll put some of my best liniment on your head and it will soothe you in no time."

The old man sat in Willy Nilly's house with liniment on his head while Willy Nilly thought to himself:

"All my adhesive is gone now. I'll have to get some more before I can start attending to my ears. This trouble has put me behind in my chores, too."

"I'm a foolish little man with no more backbone than an old winter leaf. But then I'm afraid Christopher may be at the back of all this."

"Now I think I'll put on my wig," said the old man after Willy Nilly had thought he was going to sit with him all day.

But as the man put on his wig and tried to straighten it on his head the liniment stuck to the wig.

"I've made a mess of it," said the old man crossly.

"Let me have it," said Willy Nilly. "I'll take it off carefully so the hairs don't stick. You'll be all fixed up in no time."

"I hope so," sighed the old man. "I hope so, too," thought poor Willy Nilly.

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Once again the old man was wowed without his wig. Willy Nilly wiped off the liniment. Then he put on some that was fresh so the old man's head would feel better.

"Now," Willy Nilly announced, "we'll have some lunch while that dries and heals your head in no time. It is almost all right now."

The old man decided the idea of lunch was very pleasant. He ate, thought Willy Nilly, as much for lunch as he had had no breakfast. Not that Willy Nilly did not enjoy entertaining, but he didn't care much for the old man. He felt that he would be a dangerous enemy, and while Willy Nilly did not fear enemies for himself, he did for his animal friends.

After lunch Willy Nilly cleaned the wig inside where the liniment had stained it and at last the old man was ready to leave.

After he had gone Willy Nilly sat down, exhausted. There had been a strain about having him and Willy Nilly was glad that Christopher had not appeared.

He wondered where the crow might be. He got up and went outside his door and called: "Christopher! Christopher!"

"Caw, caw, yes, caw, caw, did you call me?" came Christopher's voice from his nest.

"I called you last night and you didn't answer," said Willy Nilly. "Christopher did not say a word. 'I wish you'd come down, Christopher, I want to talk to you.'"

"Now I'm going to catch it," thought Christopher, as he flew down and walked with Willy Nilly into the house.

College Girls Trim Ry. Mount

Last night on the Rocky Mount "Y" court, the local college girls won a close and hard fought game from the Y. W. C. A. team. The game was featured by spurts of good and bad play by each team. The Ramblers took an early lead, and at the half held a comfortable margin. During the second half the Y girls pulled up gradually and made the last few minutes very close and exciting.

The game was marked by many fouls, each team losing two players because of too many infractions of the rules.

Askew with 13 points, and Bunn with 11, were the high scorers for the locals. For Rocky Mount, Burkey was high scorer with 13 points. Lancaster was next with 10 points. The Ramblers play Chowan here February 4th.
