MRS. LINDBERGH RETURNS TO COURT AS MOTHER TESTIFIES

MRS. MORROW USED TO REBUT NEW EVIDENCE

Testimony of Grandmother of Slain Lindbergh Baby Sought to Rebut Defense Insinuations Against Dead Violet Sharpe; N. J. Trooper Used by State to Offset Defense Ladder Testimony

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Testimony came to an end today in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping and murder of baby Charles A. Lindbergh, with the baby's grandmother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, giving testimony to clear away defense insinuations against her maid, Violet Sharpe.

Mrs. Morrow was a rebuttal witness for the state. The defense offered no rebuttal.

A renewed motion for a directed verdict of acquittal was promptly denied.

Ann Morrow Lindbergh, the bereaved mother of the slain baby, was in court to hear her mother testify.

She held back tears as Mrs. Morrow related that Violet Sharpe was in her home serving dinner as late as 7:45 p. m. on the night of March 1, 1932, when the baby was kidnapped.

A defense witness said Violet Sharpe was in a restaurant in Yonkers, N. Y., with a gray blanket over her arm at 7:30 that night.

Court adjourned at 2:37 p. m. It will resume summation of evidence at 10 a. m. next Monday morning.

Ernest Miller and Catherine Miners testified they were on a party with Violet Sharpe from 8 to 11 p. m. the night of the kidnapping.

The state offered more witnesses as well in an effort to clear the name of the dead Isador Fisch of any complicity. Mrs. Ottilie Hober of the Bronx, said Fisch was at her home the night of April 2, 1932, when the $50,000 ransom was paid by Dr. John F. Condon.

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ann Morrow Lindbergh came back to court today with her mother, Mrs. Dwight Morrow who was called as a rebuttal witness for the state in the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

It was the first appearance of the bereaved young mother since she testified in the second day of the trial.

The two women—mother and grandmother of the kidnapped and slain baby Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.—slipped in quietly after court opened for the 29th day of the trial.

Louis Bronnman, a New Jersey state trooper, was on the stand to rebut the defense witness whose testimony was offered to cast a doubt on the state ladder evidence against Hauptmann.

Mrs. Morrow's testimony was sought by the state to rebut the defense insinuations involving the late Violet Sharpe. The maid committed suicide before she was to have been questioned for the fourth time in connection with the kidnapping investigation.

The defense used two witnesses who said they saw her, or saw a woman, resembling her on the kidnapping night of March 1, 1932. One said she carried a gray blanket and was near Yonkers, N. Y., ferry early.

Negro Sentenced To State Prison In Assault Case

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Garland Walker, 27-year-old Wake County negro ex-convict, today was sentenced to serve from 14 to 15 years in State's Prison following his conviction of attempted criminal assault on a young white matron.

Walker was convicted by a Wake Superior Court jury last night following one day trial at which Mrs. Willie Parrish, prosecuting witness, testified as to the charge.

An attack, Mrs. Parrish said, took place at the negro and the woman's husband had taken several drinks. Walker was charged with criminal assault, but the jury found him guilty of the lesser crime, Parrish testified that he went to sleep and did not wake until the morning following the night of the alleged assault.

SAYS BRUNO 'GENTLEMANLY'

Denying Bruno Richard Hauptmann ever was other than "gentlemanly and honorable" towards her, Mrs. Gerta Henkel took the stand at Hauptmann's trial. She exchanged smiles with the defendant, chewed gum and answered questions "uh huh," "yep," and "nope." She said Hauptmann used to come to her house for coffee. When Mrs. Henkel left the stand, Hauptmann smiled broadly. She is shown in a posed photograph just before she testified. (Associated Press Photo)

LEAF MARKET CARDS FILED

90 Per Cent of Cards Sent to Raleigh; Several Left in Office Because of Error

Ninety-nine per cent of the tobacco marketing cards have been checked here and delivered to the Raleigh office. The few marketing cards left in the office were due to the fact that the growers failed to complete them. They follow:

Mrs. Fannie E. Johnson, Jack Bullock, W. T. Barlock, Elbert J. Garrett, Paul Allen, Edward Kipatrick, Mrs. Suddie D. Corey, Payton T. Atkinson, J. F. Brewer, N. H. Beppard, Robert Lee Pilgreen, James Otis Cox, Bragaw Fertilizer Co., Mrs. Alice L. Robertson, John A. Edwards, Mrs. Lulu L. Dixon, John B. Joyner, Gdn. Escuse Smith, Mrs. Gladys Moring, J. S. Brown, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., Miss Cora W. Smith, Gus Bullock, T. L. Bland.

The fact that the above growers have failed to complete their cards means that their payment will be delayed.

They are urged, both by letter and through the press to come in and complete same at their very earliest convenience. It is absolutely impossible to secure an adjustment payment until these papers have been completed.

bet of House members will tell you in the privacy of their offices that Speaker Joe Byrns really owes nothing to Mr. Roosevelt. This is based on the premise that Byrns got himself elected to the Speakership on his own merits whereas a coterie of New Dealers originally had set out to elect Sam Rayburn of Texas.

Others might point out that FDR finally ordered his lieutenants to stay out of the battle entirely thus leaving Byrns and his seniority a sure win.

Meanwhile Byrns has been playing the game. He has run administration to make a circuit of the House Office building and listen to some of the private remarks leading Democratic Congressmen are making.

Some of them are pretty mad at the New Deal. The only trouble is, because of illness, and Byrns has had they don't dare say so publicly, going got tough.

PITT RAISES $675 AT BALL

Committee Reports Net Receipts From Roosevelt Birthday Ball January 30

Net receipts from the Roosevelt Birthday Ball given here January 30 were reported today by W. W. Lee, treasurer of the ball committee, to be $675.

Seventy per cent of this money will remain in Greenville to be used in behalf of sufferers from infantile paralysis and the remaining 30 per cent will go to President Franklin D. Roosevelt for infantile paralysis research.

Last year the total fund derived from the dance went to the Roosevelt Warm Springs Foundation in Georgia, to boost the cause of paralysis.

The ball was held in the Campus building of East Carolina Teachers College and hundreds of people in all sections of the county attended, heard the President speak over the radio and enjoyed what was described as one of the best dances here in years.

Members of the committee who worked so faithfully for the success of the ball had the satisfaction of knowing that Pitt County's contribution to the cause of infantile paralysis was among the largest of any other part of the State.

LEGISLATIVE RAMBLINGS

By C. A. PAUL

"Will this bill make permanent waves more costly?" asked Senator Rivas Johnson when Senator Paul Grady's cosmetologist bill came before the Senate for consideration.

"I don't know about that," answered Senator Grady, "but it will make them more permanent and more beautiful." "But," said Senator Johnson after a pause, "I want to get this bill out of the way. It's a good bill and, anyway, I want to go home." "Are we to understand that Senator Grady is afraid to go home until we pass this bill?" interrupted another Senator. The introduction of the bill grinned said "Yes." But Senator Grady can't go home for, despite his objection, the bill will not be considered until Tuesday.

Tam Bowie, who comes down from his native Ashe County every other year to represent it in the Legislature, probably thought few Senators would withstand the pressure of his presence. He was right. His fund bill, affecting outstanding bond indebtedness of Ashe County and which Tam insists is another "local" bill, passed the Senate after some debate during which some charged that the bill would create a precedent.

HILL THINKS LIQUOR BILL DUE TO PASS

Father of Measure Before Legislature Says he is Dry But Not Blind

Sir Walter Hill, Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 9.—"The liquor control bill will pass the Senate easily," says Senator John Sprunt Hill, introducer of the measure and one-time great contributor to prohibition forces. "It will get the approval of between thirty and forty of the fifty Senators. The bill is fathered by drys, but we are not blind drys. We recognize the seriousness of the liquor situation and we know that existing conditions must be changed. Of course, I know the attitude of the confirmed drys. Once my associates, they now shout that I am wet. That is untrue."

When Senator Hill was asked how he arrived at his estimate of $3,600,000 in new revenue if his bill is enacted into law, he said his estimate was based on Virginia profits in October and November 1934. Virginia's profits were slightly more than $297,000. "Now," said Senator Hill, "we have a population about 400,000 greater than that of Virginia. This may estimate, which exceeds actual returns in Virginia by less than $3,000, is very conservative. I believe our revenue would be considerably greater, but I don't want to make rash predictions. A great deal of Virginia's whiskey revenue comes from North Carolina. That ought to add to our revenue and considerably shrink Virginia's profits."

How many liquor stores would you say would be established in North Carolina if your bill becomes law?" asked a reporter. "About 50 or 60," replied the Senator. He said he had not polled the House of Representatives and did not know whether that body will pass his bill or not.

"Our purpose," continued Senator Hill, "in distributing copies of the bill a full week before introducing it, was to see what amendments, if any, would be offered. None of any importance have appeared. I have received hundreds of letters and telegrams from all over the State. These communications favor the bill 10 to 1."

Late News Flashes

Seeks Divorce. Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—A case of act in haste and repent at leisure was how the disillusioned Mrs. James Cook Scarlett described her recent elopement with the family chauffeur when she called in her attorney to discuss annulment or divorce.

The 20-year-old society bride of two weeks remained in hiding today after two weeks' old husband, George P. Scarlett, was being cleared in police court of a charge that he made off with $5,000 worth of jewelry belonging to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Howard Cook of Chevy Chase, Md.

LOCAL SCOUTS ACTIVE TODAY

Celebrate Silver Jubilee Anniversary; Several Things Planned For Today

Sixty-eight Greenville Scouts and leaders met at Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church, social room last night. The occasion was the celebration of the twenty-fifth Silver Jubilee Anniversary of Boy Scouts in the United States. During the celebration of the group heard the National Scout broadcast over the nation-wide hook-up of radio chains NBC and Columbia.

The broadcast was composed of talks by President Roosevelt who is also honorary president of Boy Scouts of America; Walter W. Head, president of the National Council, Boy Scouts of America, and Jas. E. West, chief Scout executive.

The Scouts enjoyed many games, singing stories and eagerly feasted on ice cream during the broadcast. These events were under the leadership of the Scout leaders of the city.

This afternoon the Scouts continued their celebration with a hike. They hiked out to the flowing well. There they played games, sang, heard a story, and cooked the food that had been carried. As guests of the Scouts on this hike were other boys of Greenville of Scout age.

This morning Scouts were active in making public the city's Safety Slogan, "Drive to Live, Not to Kill." For this good turn Scouts carried posters about the town, marching with musical instruments and noise makers, everywhere drawing attention to the slogan. Other Scouts painted the slogan on the sidewalks.

Ten Boy Scouts appeared before the board of review, June Rose chairman, at the High School library this morning. These Scouts reviewed the requirements for their respective tests. They will go before the (Continued on Page Four)

George Washington Taft Bound Over to County Court After Hearing Today

George Washington Taft, colored, who was named after two presidents of the United States, came to grief in police court this morning when he was bound over to the next session of County court on a charge of careless operation of an automobile. He provided bond of $100 for his appearance in county court next Tuesday morning.

Taft was arrested several days ago when he allegedly ran his car into another machine driven by David Beech, causing damage of around $65 to Beech's car. When settlement could not be reached, Taft was arrested and held for hearing in police court this morning.

This was the only case heard by the court this morning, one of the lightest dockets that has faced the court since the Christmas holidays when for several days neither city nor county officers had more than routine duties to take care of.

With the week-end on tap, policemen expected to have more action for the court Monday morning.

U. S. PLANS TO BUILD BIG AIR BASE IN HAWAII

Bill May Soon Find Its Way to Congress For an Expenditure Of $11,000,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 9.—(AP)—There were indications from Congressmen today that the proposal to build a $11,000,000 army air base in Hawaii may soon find its way to the House in bill form.

A suggestion to spend such a sum in the United States' furthermost point of defense in the Pacific was discussed in a secret meeting yesterday by the House Military committee with General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and other high officials of the army.

Chairman Swain, Democrat of South Carolina, emphasized that the action was taken by the committee on the proposal would be for the defense purposes and that it would have been considered even if Japan had not taken steps to scrap the Washington naval treaty.

Tokyo, Feb. 9.—(AP)—High Japanese officials expressed the opinion today that the Hawaiian fortification project announced in Washington was apparently the reply of the United States to Japan's suggestion regarding a new Pacific fortifications agreement.

COTTON BODY NAMES HEADS

J. E. Winslow Elected Head of Local Committee at Meeting This Week

The Cotton Committee, elected by the thirteen different townships in the county, met Wednesday of this week and organized by electing a County Committee, which is composed of J. E. Winslow, chairman; W. H. Dail, Jr., and Roy T. Cox.

According to reports coming from County Agent E. P. Arnold's Office the township committee members were recently elected and who will handle the signing up of new cotton contracts for 1935 and for the adjustment of the old contracts are as follows:

Winterville Township—F. McCoy, Tripp, M. O. Speight, and R. L. Worthington.

Ayden Township—F. M. Kilpatrick, W. O. Jolly, and Jack Quinrick.

Swift Creek Township—P. S. Moore, Alton Gardner, and Wilber Fleming.

Belvoir Township—T. E. Parker, W. R. Tyson, and C. J. Harris.

Carolina Township—A. L. Woolard, T. L. Perkins, and J. S. Fleming.

Bethel Township—J. V. Taylor, E. L. Mayo, and W. C. Whitehurst.

Pactolus Township—J. P. Davenport, C. R. Fleming, and Coy L. Forbes.

Chico Township—J. J. Carroll, B. J. Edwards, and Leslie Fleming.

Fountain Township—G. E. Trevathan, J. W. Redick, and A. C. Gay.

Falkland Township—R. B. Tye, W. S. Newton, and J. C. Parker.

It is expected that blank forms for carrying on this work will be available around February 15.

Public announcement of the new contract sign-up will be made through the press so that growers who desire to sign may have an opportunity to appear before their committeemen and submit con-

Announcement of the settlement was received by the Board of Aldermen at their regular monthly meeting Thursday evening but was not made public until late yesterday.

Mrs. Smith filed suit in Superior court after she said she was injured when she was tripped by a rank growth of grass on Ward street and fell to the pavement.

The city was held responsible for her injuries because it had permitted the rank growth of grass on the side of the pavement.

The plaintiff was represented by S. J. Everett.

Ten Persons Killed By Tornado In East Texas

Grateland, Texas, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Ten negroes were killed and forty were injured last night when an East Texas tornado wrecked a farm community on the Murray farm fifteen miles west of Grateland.

Thirty tenant houses were razed. At Niveah, in Leon County, fifteen other negro tenants were hurt and tenant houses were wrecked. One ranch was damaged badly and the Storey and Dorsey commissionary was destroyed.

Twelve Groveton residents suffered slight injuries. Reports indicated that a number of the negroes were injured on the Murray farm of Houston County last night.

Widespread damage occurred in the county of Leon and extended north of Marshall where two airplanes at the airport were destroyed. In the Reynard community the Beasley cotton gin was ruined along with the Beasley and Smith store.

In addition to her widower, she is survived by six daughters: Mrs. H. E. Coburn, Newport, N. Va.; Mrs. L. W. Andrews, Miss Nina Moss, Tums, Miss Doris and Miss Blanche Bryan, of Fayetteville; two sons, Hadly and Roosevelt, Farmville; four sisters, Mrs. W. B. Matthews, Rocky Mount; Mrs. Martha Whitfield, Bethel; Mrs. Annie Whitfield, Norfolk, Va.; Mrs. W. O. Williamson, Buxton, and a brother, J. C. Hathaway, Bethel.

IN JAIL IS THE PLACE FOR THEM

The legislature yesterday killed one bill which we believe should have become law. That was the measure that would make mandatory jail sentences for drunken drivers. The best way to break up drunken driving is to slap jail sentences on such offenders and with jail staring them in the face we do not believe as many people would drink whiskey and then get under the wheel and venture forth on the highways.

PATROLMEN SHOULD PATROL ROADS

It has been our opinion that first of all the highway patrol should be for just what its name implies, to patrol the highways of this state instead of being used as a collection department for bad checks and the like received by the state. We agree heartily with the News and Observer in the following editorial in which that paper declares that before the legislature makes any provision for enlargement of the highway patrol it should definitely define the duties of patrolmen as that of keeping our highways safe.

The Observer says:

The Highway Patrol says its Captain, Charles D. Farmer, should have a minimum of 300 members. It all depends. Such an increased force could undoubtedly go after a lot of bad checks and collect a lot of taxes and do a good deal more of that kind of thing. But what the State wants to know is whether the State Highway Patrol is going to patrol the highways. When that is certain, it will be time enough to talk about a minimum of 300 members. If that is not certain, it will be better to abolish the patrol altogether.

What North Carolina wants from its highway patrol is not procession riding or tax collection or strike suppression but safety on the highways. Not a man should be added to its number nor a dollar appropriated for its maintenance until legislation is passed restricting its activities to its first and sadly neglected job of keeping the highways safe.

RUNAROUND A considerable number of House members are forthright at the mouth because of rough treatment they think they have received at the hands of three of Mr. Roosevelt's agents. Reading from left to right these three are Postmaster General Farley, Democratic National Chairman, Emil Hurja, Farley's Assistant Chairman, and Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, who had a lot of jobs to distribute but didn't parcel them out according to the Democratic Hoyle. Farley's latest suggestion—that State Chairman take over original patronage for all jobs—holders—has the Hon. Representatives talking to themselves. They foresee that they won't even be able to pick the winners in their own districts any more.

A lot of the boys are concealing a taste for Hurja. They complain

Montana Kid

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: The Montana Kid and Mateo Rubiz have stolen back the crown of Our Lady, which had first been stolen by the governor. They have divided the crown, but Rubiz has escaped with his half. But Rubiz is captured, and Major Alvarez has taken Rubiz a part of the crown to the governor. General Estrada, the only major who can work out a very good deal for himself.

Chapter 26
BARGAIN

EVEN the thought of the Kid, and even the memory of the jewels, were dimmed for a moment in the mind of the general. It was true that he loved money, but he loved reputation, equally. He got hold of the major and shook him by the shoulders as a schoolmaster might shake a child.

"Say the thing slowly. Look me in the eye. If you are drunk again and speaking like this, I'll have you shot, Major!"

Alvarez had been drawn quite close by the grip of the general and now he murmured: "Out of the pocket of Rubiz, some goldwork and five big emeralds—"

"Five" muttered the general. "Only five? But that's half. Mateo Rubiz and five—five of the lost—Why, it's better this way! Tell me, Alvarez! Did other eyes see those emeralds?"

"The moment I saw them my hand was over them. Not three men could have seen, and those three won't believe tomorrow what they saw to-night."

"Alvarez, I've noted you down for a long time," said the general. "A man of action, with your hands and not with your tongue!"

At that the face of Alvarez actually puckered with delight. His thinness turned into breadth, like the face of a cat.

The thing was arranged quietly. General Estrada sat in his own study and Alvarez stood before him. Upon the table Alvarez laid down the little pouch of heavy gold. He laid, also the arc of metalwork which had five points, with an emerald in each one—a big, shining emerald.

"You are going to be rewarded, Alvarez," said the general. "If you should become a colonel, suddenly, would it surprise you?"

"Have I not heard a rumor about your kindness, sir?" answered Alvarez. "But also I was noticing that there are five emeralds."

"Five?" said the general. "There are ten—but only five in this damned broken fragment—"

HE felt that he was talking on a little too freely. No matter what Alvarez might guess, there was no use confirming him in such plain words. So he broke off, scowling a little.

"What I noticed," said Alvarez, "is that five makes an odd number, whereas ten—or four—is exactly even."

The hint was very broad, but the general could not see or understand, without too much pain. Therefore, he only looked wistfully at Major Alvarez, as though at a figure far away.

The wind had changed, clearing the sky and letting the moon shine through. The general now turned his head and looked, with a sigh, at the moon-brightened heavens. The strength of his sigh parted the dense brush of his mustache and allowed his pouting lips to be seen, and the full majesty of that enormous chin.

"Five!" muttered the general. "Whereas four," said the major, "would make an exactly even number."

With his strong fingers, slowly, the general broke away an emerald from its setting at the end of the arc. He dropped the jewel into the palm of his hand. As part of the crown it had been beautiful, but seen by itself its beauty increased strangely.

He closed his eyes and held out his hand.

Delicately as a bird could pick up a grain, the cold finger tips of the major removed the emerald from the hot hand of Estrada.

Well, there would be a chance, one day, to silence this man's tongue—forever.

"As a matter of fact," said the major, looking down at the emerald, "it is easy to see that this is only a paste imitation."

"Ha!" cried Estrada. "I mean," said Alvarez, "a man with the proper sort of an eye can see that it is not the jewel that was stolen from the church in Duraya."

Estrada leaned back in his chair with a sigh.

"I understand you," he said. "Therefore, when I drop a word here and there that what Rubiz had was no part of the stolen treasure, that the poor fool for once had lost his eye and merely picked up glass—"

"Very well," said the general wearily.

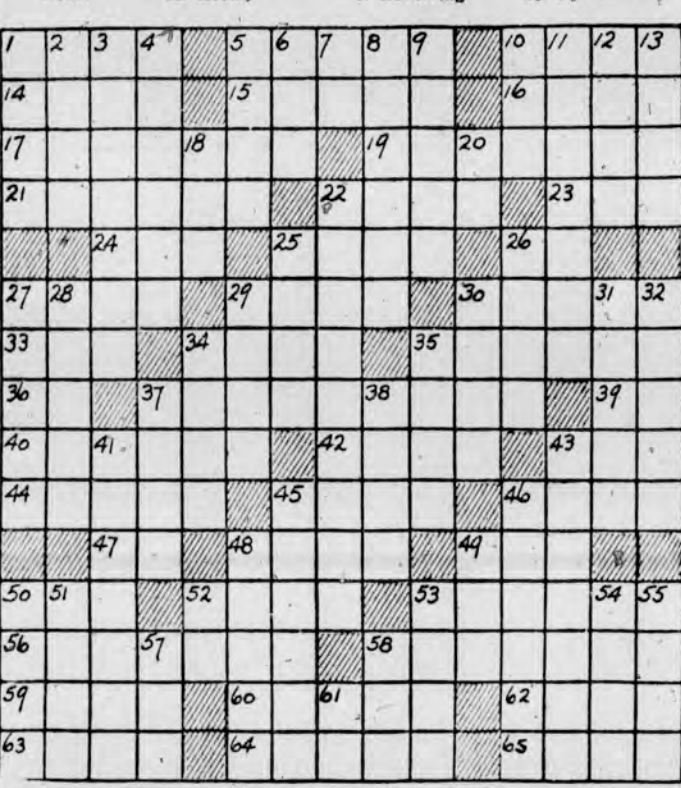

And his glance followed the movement with which Alvarez carelessly dropped the gem into a pocket.

imports China trade is rather small. It has enough dollar value, however, to keep a tidy few of our business men sweating.

CENSORS: Confidential reports continue to show that the military are still in the saddle in Japan and riding high. A prime indication is the extent of censorship which has been imposed on Japanese news papers.

One of the Osaka dailies, with a circulation of about 2,000,000 criticized the government editorially recently for spending 100,000 yen on air maneuvers. The paper contended this money could better have been expended on new aerial equipment because control of the central light switch would have answered every defensive purpose of the maneuver. A few days later this paper editorially announced "A Change in our Opinion."

During the recent London Arms Conference all dispatches to Japan were carefully censored.

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN
FATE: The chief concern of utility holding companies at present is not whether they'll be put on the spot—but how. Their scouts report two schools of thought in Washington—one favoring the quill and the other sword starvation.

The first would operate through such drastic taxation on dividends as to mean almost instant death for the companies. If the measure is enacted on these lines its application will be postponed two or three years—thus giving the condemned time to commit suicide gracefully.

Advocates of starvation prefer milder taxes to be applicable immediately. These would presumably have the same results in the end—but would take longer to get there.

Power men would favor the latter alternative if they had the choice. They would have better prospects of providing that specialized taxation was unconstitutional before it had fatal effects.

Readers understand that Congress itself has some doubts on that score. But word is that a federal holding law for holding companies will be enacted in order to take care of the power trusts which might escape their destined fate.

DREAM: You may have wondered why the Federation of Labor wants to force the majority rule issue in the motor industry when the workers enrolled under their banner are obviously such a small minority. The answer lies in with one of the Federation's hottest grievances against the Woman board the fact that it permitted voting employees to register themselves as unaffiliated.

This was the last kind of an election the Federation wanted. Their idea of proper procedure was to force the voters to choose directly between Federation unions and company unions—all other alternatives barred.

On this basis they might have captured a few plants even though the workers might have preferred no union at all. In such cases majority rule would have given them full control.

And what a help that would have been to the recruiting campaign! They have been swamped with new members who wanted to be in right with the only official bargaining representatives. But alas, Wolman's realism punctured this rosy dream.

SOLOME: You may have noticed that John Lewis and Bill Green concentrated their wrath on Donald Richberg for extension of the automobile code and indicated that the President wasn't to blame.

Shrewd observers call this belated diplomacy. Comment runs that the present leaders of the Federation only kept their jobs by grace of FDR's cooperation in giving them trophies to show. To attack him now would merely be playing into the hands of more radical labor elements who want to oust them. But somebody had to be the goat—and Richberg was handy.

The informed remark that Richberg may lose his official head before the year is out—but not because Bill Green plays Salome.

SHIVER: A number of New York papers all agreed on silver seigniorage profits for this fiscal year and the next. This item is figured at $65,000,000 for General and Special Accounts in 1935 but drops to a paltry $10,500,000 for 1936.

Analysts claim this discrepancy can only be explained on the theory that the Treasury anticipates a very much higher price for silver by next year. No broad increase in world demand or drastic reduction in American output is in sight to account for it. Therefore it's argued that the Treasury must expect either an enormous increase in the domestic price of silver by a change in the law or that all the major nations will be on a bi-metallic standard before July of 1936. The boys don't need to read Secretary Morgenthau's mind but they can't make sense of his flurries any other way.

AGFS: Governor Jean Tannery of the Bank of France is having a swell fight with the bank's regents—representing private capital.

The regents variously contend that the government is asking far too much in virtually demanding that the Bank guarantee the French Treasury's credit. The issue closely parallels our own dispute as to whether the Federal Reserve Service, Senator Francis de Winter-munitions kind—is one of the bitterest opponents of the Flaming-Tannery policy.

Insiders predict that there—as here—conservatives will protest in vain. The government holds all the aces.

STEEL: The two largest steel companies have greatly improved their operating efficiency in the past year. U. S. Steel's operating profit jumped from $18,000,000 in 1933 to $35,000,000 in 1934—Bethlehem's from $11,500,000 to $21,000,000. Neither is getting its full share of the current improvement. With the whole industry running around 56 per cent of capacity U. S. Steel is only at about 44 per cent and Bethlehem about 4 per cent.

But both managements can point with pride to the fact that there has been no serious impairment of their cash position despite a series of whopping deficits.

CONSISTENT: New York gets an ironic chuckle out of Senator Borah's interest in Mexican internal affairs just after he led the fight to lick the World Court because it would involve us in foreign

The Long Night

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE Puddle Muddlers jumped about Christopher happily, for his eye had not been frozen as Willy Nilly had at first feared. It had been badly nipped with the cold but now it was all right.

Only his wing was injured as he had bumped against the chair.

Willy Nilly set it so that it was all right, but still he could not use it, and when the night came on poor Christopher could not sleep.

He tried to put his head under his right wing but it was so uncomfortable that he could not get to sleep.

It was foolish, he told himself, not to be able to use his right wing. He had not realized how strong was the habit that made him always sleep in just one way.

All through the night his left wing hurt and he had to keep it still, and all through the night he put his head under his right wing and tried to sleep, only to wake up before he had properly begun to doze.

But he tried to be very quiet so as not to disturb the others. Once Willy Nilly awoke and asked him if there was anything he wanted, and though Christopher would have loved to have somebody awake to talk to him he said he was quite all right.

He knew how much time Willy Nilly had lost and how much sleep he had cost him. So Christopher passed the long night without sleep, feeling most uncomfortable.

He thought morning would never come and he felt that the others were sleeping longer than ever, but at last they awoke, and what a joy it was to talk, to have breakfast, to feel better!

dent in "allowing debts to say how they shall settle with their creditors."

The measure had previously received House approval. Representative Tam, speaking trouble in the Senate, lent his presence to his cause. His bill was passed, 32-7.

Chain filling stations and chain department stores will fight bitterly against enactment of the new chain store tax schedule of the revenue bill. With them in the fight will be the ten-cent stores.

The major oil companies, operators of chain filling stations, are especially exempted under the existing revenue act because it was believed that their inclusion under the new tax would have been inequitable about $1,000,000 in new revenue to the State under the proposed revision. Believing that chain filling stations should also come under the chain store tax, a sub-committee of the Finance Committee submitted for committee approval the revised schedule which reduces the tax on the filling stations might be taxed, but add a four-per-cent provision so that revenue from department and large grocery stores should not be lost through reduction of the basic rate. The oil companies will fight the entire proposal on the ground that they should not be taxed like other chain stores.

The department stores will fight the floor-space factor at an open hearing on the tax here next Wednesday afternoon before the joint Finance Committee. The new schedule reduces from $150 to $100 the maximum tax which may be imposed against a chain store, but provides that all floor space in any individual store in excess of 500 square feet is taxed at $50 for the first additional square area, $25 for the second, and that all floor space above that (1,500 square feet) be assessed at $20 per square foot.

Thus, a chain operating department store in which there are 50 units would pay a total basic tax of $4,500, a reduction of $800 from the present schedule, but because such stores always use a great amount of floor space the total tax paid would, it is estimated, be about double under the present schedule. Ten-cent stores would pay increased amounts likewise, although their tax bill would not be nearly so great as department stores because they usually occupy less space.

Representatives of department stores are predicting that the new schedule will not be adopted. Observers here point out that their argument will not be helped by the major oil companies.

JAPANESE CULTURE PLAN FOR PHILIPPINE COLLEGES

Manila.—(AP)—A plan to endow chairs of Japanese culture in Philippine universities was disclosed here by Dr. Francisco B. Nitze, dean of the college of education in the University of the Philippines, when he returned from Japan.

Dr. Nitze said the Japan Society for International Cultural Relations has the plan under consideration. He said the society has a treasury of 1,000,000 yen and is trying to raise to 5,000,000 yen.

BIBLE CLASS GIVES SUPPER

Members of C. J. Ellen Class of Memorial Baptist Church Enjoy Fine Program

A get-together meeting of the C. J. Ellen Bible Class of Memorial Baptist Church was held in the basement of the church last night with approximately fifty members in attendance.

A delightful supper was served by young women of the church, and the way some of the boys ate, especially Eugene Wilson, former class president, indicated he not only had the heart of an epicure but the gastronomic appreciation of one. Others gave him a close race for eaters and the ladies' faces were wreathed in smiles when they saw how keenly the meal was appreciated.

W. W. Lee was toastmaster, and after extending a welcome to the members, called on three or four former class officers and church leaders for short talks.

The speakers were D. J. Whitchard, Jr., superintendent of Sunday school; Tom Swain, class teacher; Eugene Wilson, former president and Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of the church.

Each called attention to the important part which Sunday school plays in the religious life and urged members of the class to stick to their class and attend church as regularly as possible. The relationship between the church and the Sunday school was outlined by the speakers, and especially Mr. Fleischmann, who stressed harmony, vision, loyalty and patience as very necessary qualifications to church members.

Mr. Fleischmann paid tribute to the late Dr. C. J. Ellen, in whose honor the class was named, and asked the members to perpetuate the high standards set by Dr. Ellen during his long connection with the congregation.

Vernon Parrish, who the night before was elected a member of the Board of Aldermen, and then claimed the distinction of being the "cleanest man in politics" because he was in the bathtub when his election took place, was in charge of the fun program, and the fast ones he pulled on the audience and the audience in turn pulled on him produced many a laugh.

When Vernon seated himself at the table it was discovered he had a policeman next to him. "A body-guard," thought his friends. "What kind of a guard will he have with him when he attends some of those jamborees given by other organizations?" They rode Vernon unmercifully about the bodyguard, and he was no other than Patrolman Rogerson, a member of the class, who took an hour of his "stuffy turkey" with the boys.

Mr. Parrish presented around 23 prizes to class members and ladies of the church who assisted in providing the delightful repast. Among the gifts were a number of humorous letters which produced considerable merriment.

Mr. McDonald, choir director, was in charge of the singing.

Stevens-Askew.

High Point, Feb. 8.—A wedding beautiful in its simplicity was solemnized at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Crowell on the Archdale road, Thursday afternoon, January 31, at five-thirty o'clock, when Miss Rose Elizabeth Askew of Winterville, N. C., became the bride of Ross O. Stevens, formerly of Michigan, but now making his home in High Point. Dr. Crowell was the officiating minister and only intimate friends and relatives were present to witness the marriage.

Preceding the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hunt, vocalists, of Pleasant Garden, and Miss Adelaide Crowell, violinist, with Miss Pauline Hicks, piano accompanist, gave a lovely musical program. Mr. and Mrs. Hunt sang in a pleasing manner, "Because," "Until," and "All For You," and Miss Crowell's violin played selections "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes," and "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms" were beautifully rendered. During the ceremony she played softly "O Promise Me."

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Hazel Askew of Winterville. She was lovely in her traveling suit of dark blue, with which she wore matching accessories. They were met at the foot of the stairway by the groom, accompanied by his best man, Mack Isley of Burlington, and proceeded to the improvised altar banked with ferns and ivy and lighted by tall candelabrae in the music room, where the vows were spoken.

The bride a young woman of personal charm, formerly made her home in High Point where she has a wide circle of friends. She graduated from the local high school with highest honors and later took coveted honors while attending Guilford College, from which institution she was graduated last June. She is at present a member of the Trinity High School faculty, where she is popular with both faculty and students.

Mr. Stevens is a native of Michigan. He graduated from University of Michigan and holds a degree of M. A. from that institution. He is at present in charge of the Department of Conservation of Wild Game in connection with the Deep River project of the Soil Erosion Service Department of the Interior.

On their return from a short wedding trip the couple will be at home here.

Violin Ensemble At College.
Tomorrow afternoon at 4:45 o'clock the violin ensemble of the college, assisted by Miss Louise Nagle, will give, in the Austin Auditorium, an hour's program of chamber music to which the public is invited.

The ensemble will open with a Mozart number and "Morning Prayer," by Tchaikowsky. They will then play a Kreisler composition based on a Beethoven theme, followed by some French folk tunes. Later they will play two Brahms numbers and the Sextet from "Lulu."

Miss Nagle will play a Mendelssohn group and Chopin's "Polonaise in A flat."

The personnel of the ensemble, composed of members of the faculty and students, which is under the direction of Miss Gorrell, is as follows: Violins: Misses Lois Gorrell, Lucy Nulton, Lois Grigsby and Alma Browning, of the faculty, and Misses Irene Lane, Irene Renfrow, Myra Westbrook and Wesley Bankston, from the students; Cello: Miss Mary Shaw Robeson; Piano: Miss S. Elizabeth Smith.

Bell Arthur News

Misses Dorothy Odham, Emma McArthur and Frances Dilda of Fountain, were here Saturday.

Misses Elizabeth Spain and Ernestine Parker spent the week-end at their home near Greenville.

Miss Lila Gray Reel of E. C. T. C., spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Bruce Strickland.

College Minstrel.

The enthusiastic response of the large audience that attended the minstrel show at the college last night was the finest proof of the success of the performance.

Black-faced comedians and magnificently dressed guests, made a most pleasing combination. The arrangement of the scene as a seashore pavilion gave a splendid opportunity for bringing all together in spectacular effects. The pirate costumes worn by the comedians, who occupied the center of the stage, and the musicians, who were on a raised platform back of them, gave a touch of harmony to the setting. The guests in colonial costumes, and rich fabrics were seated at tables on the sides. The ceiling was gaily decorated in Japanese lanterns and balloons. The lighting added greatly to the pleasing effects throughout the evening.

Mr. Deal, resident in the red pirate's suit of the captain of the band, made an excellent intercom, guiding and directing the show without monopolizing it.

The points of the excellent line of jokes were not lost on the audience. The dialogue and singing were well arranged in alternate groups.

The comedians held the stage throughout the first of the evening and the guests, with their feigned dances, the latter part, Jack Humphrey, as Jim Crow, Gus Forbes as Flapjack, and John Clark as Indy, were the chief singers. James Ray Pittman, Lasses sang one song, "Run! Bessie Kissproof," was the announcer for the dances. The chief Jokers were Jimmy Johnson, Asbestos, George Willard, Pernicious, W. O. Jolly, Porkchops, Theo Eason, Blackbird, and Jerry Davis, Coal Tar.

The dance program was opened by Miss Carolyn Hamric, in rich oriental costume, who gave two solo dances, a tap dance, and later a mazurka. Period dances followed. Misses Lucy Barrow and Louise Briley danced the stately minuet. Primrose Carpenter and Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, who was dressed in a dignified black dress of her grandmother's, demonstrated the beauty and grace of the lovely waltz. The cake walk, with Miss Jackie Strickland as "Madam Queen," and C. O. Armstrong as "Andy," brought the house down. The younger generation especially appreciated the modern dance by Miss Clara MacMartin and Primrose Carpenter.

The twelve couples of guests, gorgeously arrayed in colonial costumes, danced the Virginia Reel, which at the end, turned into a modern dance for the finale when all joined in the singing of several songs, with "Carolina Moon" as the climax. Then all lights went out except the big orange moon.

The stage band played throughout the entire entertainment. Miss Katie Lee Johnson was at the piano; Dan Wright and Withers Harvey played trumpets; Melvin Willard, the saxophone; Joe Walker, the banjo; Troy Burnette the Sousaphone, and James Carr drums.

Miss Loraine Hunter was the genius who planned and directed the whole show. The general managers were James Carr and Theo Eason. The stage committee was composed of W. O. Jolly, Paul Bow, G. Herman Smith, G. R. Gammon. The ushers were Robert S. Fleming, chief; Daniel Jordan, Tex Lindsey, Charles Cobb, Murray Hodges, Wesley Bankston, Jack Nobles. Misses Jean Tate and Margaret Lee were in charge of costumes and Misses Carolyn Brinkley and Helen Eomer were in charge of make-up. Men of the faculty served on the ticket committee. Electricians were James Davenport and Billy Darden.

The colonial costumes and some of the others were furnished by a professional costumer.

This is the second minstrel show given by the Varsity Club and it seems to be fixed as an annual feature. The proceeds will go to men's athletics.

play is a revival of the drama of that age and promises to make most interesting entertainment for the audience. "Fashion" was a popular success in the theatre ninety years ago, and was revived with equal success in 1924 by the Provincetown Players. Miss Mary Dirmberger is directing the production of the play here. American drama has progressed a long way since "Fashion" was written, but the novelty and glamour of the theatre of the by-gone era still clings to the play.

This brilliant society drama was written by Mrs. Anne Cora Mowatt. Mrs. Mowatt herself was a lady of fashion until her husband lost all his money in Wall Street, and she was forced to help the pocketbook. The story of "Fashion" is centered around a family of Tiffany's in New York, who lived about 1850. Mrs. Tiffany, who aspires for social fame, imagines herself to be a lady of fashion, and desires to marry her daughter, Seraphina Tiffany, to some member of the noble class. Miss Mary Elizabeth Crawford of Kingston, has the part of Mrs. Tiffany, and Miss Sue Elizabeth Smith of Pinetops, plays the part of Seraphina. Count Jolimaire seems to be the most probable husband for the belle Seraphina, but she says no more attention to him than she does any other men. Paul Fitzgerald of Greenville, takes the part of the count.

Many complications concerning forgedy virtue in distress, false names and other things that make up the typical story of this period of time, serve to add interest and humor to the entire plot.

The part of Mr. Tiffany, who is guilty of forgedy, will be played by Godfrey Oakley of Greenville. He is threatened by Spobson, his confidential clerk, and is forced to promise Seraphina's hand in marriage to him.

Miss Betty Carswell of Thomasville, Georgia, has the part of Prudence, a maiden lady of a certain age. She adds to the humor of the play by her apparent knowledge of everything.

Gertrude, the governess of Seraphina, who is the real heroine, will be played by Miss Martha Hart, Peale, of Wilson. She is able to reveal the true identity of the count, who is only a fake and a fraud.

Millenette, the impudent French maid, will be played by Miss Katherine Crowe of Goldsboro. She laughs at Mrs. Tiffany behind her back, but proved to be an invaluable help to her in supplying French phrases and French customs. She is a former sweetheart of the Count's who when she knew him, was a valet.

Gertrude inherits a large sum of money from her grandfather, Adam Trueman, this part being taken by Jack Humphrey of Beaufort. In the end she walks off with the choice matrimonial prospect, Colonel Howard, a colonel in the United States Army. Billy Tolson will play this part.

T. Tennyson Twinkle and Angus

BRIGHT EYES!

Shirley Temple, everybody's sweetheart and No. 1 public favorite comes to the Pitt Theatre for three days in "Bright Eyes." The picture opens Monday. James Dunn takes a leading part.

tus Fogg also feature in the play, and are suitors of Seraphina's hand. Twinkle is played by Perry King, and Fogg by Clifton Crawford, both of Greenville. Zeke, the colored servant, played by C. O. Armstrong, of Ayden, adds much to the humor in the play.

The play, has five acts, all of which are laid in the Tiffany home in New York.

Lee Heads Essay Memorial Contest

Greensboro, Feb. 9. — The state committee of the Keeler Memorial Fund, through its chairman, David J. White, announced today the appointment of W. W. Lee, Greenville, as county chairman of the Keeler Memorial Essay Contest in Pitt county. This contest is sponsored annually by the North Carolina Building and Loan League in the high schools of the state and was conducted in this county last year.

Mr. Lee is affiliated with the Home Building and Loan Association and is active in the affairs of the community and of the League. His association has long been a member of the League.

In making public this appointment, Mr. White comments upon the history and purpose of this contest as follows: "The Keeler Memorial Fund was created several years ago as a memorial to the late E. L. Keeler of Charlotte, a pioneer in building and loan work in the south, and for many years secretary of the Mutual Building and Loan Association, Charlotte, the first building and loan association to be organized in this state.

The purpose of the Keeler Memorial Essay Contest is to create interest in thrift and home ownership, and by this means to carry to the young people in the high schools of the state this knowledge instilling in them habits of thrift and a desire for home ownership. Students entering the contest may write upon any subjects pertaining to thrift, saving, etc. Ten contestants, representing each of the ten districts of the North Carolina Building & Loan League, will be chosen to participate in a state contest by holding eliminations first in the schools during March, then by counties and finally by districts. The winner in each district will compete for the grand prizes at the State League Convention to be held in Winston-Salem on May 28-29. Prizes to be awarded will be $100.00 first prize; $50.00 second prize; and $25.00 third prize."

SPRY OLD CELT CHASES TRUANTS

Belfast, Northern Ireland.—(AP)—Aged 94 and probably the world's oldest truant officer, John Dolan of County Fermanagh refuses to retire.

"I'm still spry enough to catch and tweak the friskiest ear," said old John scornfully.

John dodged school himself back in the early days of Queen Victoria's reign, about the time that Abraham Lincoln was spitting rails, but that is no excuse for modern youngsters "hopping the wag"—as "playing hooky" is known here.

An ancient donkey and cart form his official conveyance in keeping track of the youngsters.

The school authorities, torn between sentiment and duty, are in a quandry over his refusal to take a pension.

The age of man has been placed at 16,000,000 years, by a new comparison of blood serums of mankind and ape.

SALES TAX SUBSTITUTE DRAWS FIRE

Much Opposition Reported to be Developing in Tax Fight in Legislature

By J. C. BASKERVILLE
Raleigh, Feb. 9.—Much opposition is already developing to many of the plans which the anti-sales tax group has indicated it will propose in place of the sales tax and some members of this group are already hearing from their constituents back home in vigorous protest to some of the substitute plans. It is learned here today. There is still much difference of opinion among the anti-sales tax group and as yet the group has not decided definitely on what it will offer to the joint finance committee Tuesday or Wednesday, when it has announced it will lay its cards on the table and reveal its plans. Representative W. L. Lumpkin, one of the chief spokesmen for the group, frankly told this correspondent that while many different plans had been discussed and were under consideration that no definite decision had yet been reached on a number of these.

Strong reaction has already set in against the proposal to impose a 3 per cent tax on all gross incomes of individuals in excess of $1,000 a year which was under consideration by the anti-sales taxers. The most determined opposition to this 3 per cent gross income tax is coming from the farmers and from that portion of organized labor, such as the railroad brotherhoods and other units of organized labor where individual incomes are in excess of $1,000 a year. In fact, it was learned today that there is some opposition to this tax among the anti-sales taxers themselves on the grounds that it is too much like the sales tax which they are seeking to remove.

Other critics of this plan maintain that if enacted into law, this plan would really be less equitable than the present 3 per cent sales tax, since it would tax the gross income of individuals spent for rent, insurance, but away as savings or into investments, as well as the portion spent in making retail purchases. At present only that portion of an individual's income spent in making retail purchases is subject to the 3 per cent sales tax. It is also pointed out that while the present sales tax is collected only a few cents or a few dollars at a time from day to day, that the 3 per cent gross income tax would be payable in a lump sum once a year as the income tax is paid and that it would be much more difficult to pay this tax in a lump sum than in small payments as the sales tax is paid.

The farmers, especially the tobacco farmers, are already wailing to the fact that this proposed 3 per cent tax on gross receipts, in addition to the regular state income tax would impose a tremendous burden on them. For this tax, if enacted, would require farmers to pay the state 3 per cent on the total amount they receive each year for their tobacco, cotton, livestock and farm products. For instance if a farmer raises and sells $3,000 worth of tobacco, $2,000 worth of cotton and $2,000 worth of other farm products, he would have to pay the state 3 per cent on $6,000 or $180 a year. Even if the farmer made none or a very little profit on these sales, he would be required to pay this tax just the same.

Under the present 3 per cent sales tax, the farmer, laborer, mill worker or professional man or woman does not pay on the basis of gross income but only on the portion of his income which he spends in making purchases at retail stores. Farmers are permitted to sell their own products grown on their own farms to the public generally and to each other without having to pay or collect any sales tax.

Leaders of the anti-sales tax group today admitted that so much opposition was developing to this particular proposal that they doubted if it would even be presented to the joint finance committee. Another new tax which the anti-sales tax group will propose will be a stamp tax on all land and real estate sales and transfers, based on the amount of money involved in the sale. But the rate of tax could not be learned. It is expected, however, that the rate will be about two per cent of the total amount involved. With the real estate business at a low ebb, this proposal is believed likely to draw strong opposition from farmers, landowners and real estate dealers.

PARIS SHY ON PARISIANS PROVINCIAL DOMINATE CITY

Paris.—(AP)—Of the 2,871,000 inhabitants of Paris only 987,000 are hundred per cent Parisians. Most of the other half have migrated from the provinces. Statistics show. The largest contingent is furnished by Auvergne, the mountainous region of central France. Akin to the Scots, the Auvergnats, a hardy, thrifty, cautious and industrious breed have a monopoly of the coal, junk and chimney sweeping trades.

'CURE' LOOMS IN TAX FIGHT IN THIS STATE

Classification of Property May be Proposed in the Legislature Soon

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 9.—Classification of property is being seriously considered by a prominent legislator who sees in it a way out of the tax muddle. This North Carolina Constitution would have to be amended in order to put in effect classification of property as basis for collection of revenue. The legislator mentioned may ask the Legislature to place such an amendment before the people at the next election.

The question of classification has been up before in North Carolina, but has always failed of approval. Several States, including the neighboring State of Virginia, tax property and intangibles on that basis. Tax experts have long pointed to classification as a method of actually collecting taxes on solvent credit, bank deposits and so on. At present no one will deny that many millions in bank deposits and so on. At present no one will deny that many millions in bank deposits are taxed. True, the law requires that such deposits be taxed, but few efforts have ever been made to actually force listings in full so that taxes could actually be collected.

Classification of property means that the Legislature would have the right to classify, for tax levying purposes, tangible and intangible property. It might, for example, tax bank deposits at one-half of one per cent, unimproved property at one per cent, and improved property at 2 per cent. The actual percentages might vary according to ability to pay, the amount of types of property within the State at various times, or according to revenue obtained.

Thus, say proponents of classification, if bank deposits were taxed at one-half of one per cent instead of, as at present, like all other forms of property, practically all deposits would be listed. The incentive to dodge the tax would be greatly reduced. At present a taxpayer can just prior to the tax listing date convert his bank deposits into government bonds, which are tax-exempt, at a cost of one-eighth of one per cent, that amount representing the brokerage fee. Later, by paying the same fee, he can re-convert his bonds back into cash. Thus, for one-fourth of one per cent, he can avoid the payment of taxes, which, in many instances, amount to almost 3 per cent. Advocates of classification say that practically no one would convert deposits into bonds and back again in order to save one-fourth of one per cent. The rate assumed, of course, being one-half of one per cent.

Opponents of classifications have always pointed out that tangible property, under classificationists' counter with the statement, largely true, that intangibles escape present taxation schemes to a very great degree. Their claim, when analyzed, means that it is better to assess such property at a low rate and collect it than to fix the rate at a high figure and fail to collect a great portion of the tax.

Rural communities usually oppose classification because they believe that such legislation is favoritism because it would tax real property (farm and other lands) at a higher rate than solvent credits and bank deposits, most often owned by the "bigger interests." Classificationists would tax idle lands, timbered lands, and cultivated lands under varying rates. Productivity rather than possession would form their basis for tax levying on real estate.

The legislator who seriously considers offering classification as a remedy for a way out of the present tax fight has, in the past, fought the sales tax. His position now on that tax is not known. He may vote for it much against his own views, but he would prefer to see classification adopted as a tax policy.

CLAIM RENTAL BOOKS WILL BE GREAT SAVING

Administration Measure Expected to Represent Saving of $13,000,000 Annually

By J. C. BASKERVILLE
Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 9.—The bill to provide rental text-books for all the school children of the State, introduced by Senators L. L. Grady and Nash and L. E. Griffin of Chowan and now before the Senate Committee on Education, is expected to provide minor financial relief to the children and parents of the State than any measure yet introduced this session or likely to be introduced, in the opinion of the introducers and many others in the general assembly. A rental text-book plan will save the parents and children not less than $4,500,000 a year as compared with the present cost of text-books and supplies bought outright by children and parents, at the average outlay for books and supplies is at present as much as $10 per year child. Charles Whedbee, legislative counsel to Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, who wrote the bill at the request of Senators Grady and Griffin and with the full approval of the Governor, estimates that the cost of books and supplies is nearer $20 a year per pupil rather than $10 per pupil, and that as a result the cost of books and supplies for 900,000 children is nearer $18,000,000 a year instead of $9,000,000 a year.

These same books can be rented to the children of the State under a State-wide rental plan for an average rental of $5 per child per year. Whedbee believes, which would be a total cost of $4,500,000 a year and thus bring about a saving of $13,500,000 a year on the basis of a present cost of $20 per child per year for books and supplies. But if the saving is only half this much, it will be substantial, all observers agree.

The bill introduced by Senators Grady and Griffin provides first for the appointment of a commission of five members by the Governor, with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction as an ex-officio member, to work out detailed plans for putting the rental text-book system into operation and report to the Governor as soon as possible. This commission is to serve without pay.

The bill further provides that when this plan has been submitted to the Governor, that he and the Council of State shall have authority to revise the plan and make whatever rules and regulations are necessary to put it into effect, to fix the amount of the rentals and work-out all details necessary for its administration. Provision for financing the rental text-book plan is made in the section of the bill which appropriates $2,000,000 of State revenue, if not otherwise appropriated for this purpose, of if this amount is not available from current State revenue would permit the issuance of State bonds up to $2,000,000, the bonds to be retired and liquidated from the rentals received from the school book rentals.

It was learned from an authoritative source that if the bill is enacted the State will probably be able to borrow the $2,000,000 needed from the Federal Government at a very low rate of interest, and that it may be able to get half this amount, or $1,000,000, as an outright grant from the Government.

Sensors Grady and Griffin are known to have been interested in the rental text-book plan for many months and last summer this correspondent predicted that Senator Grady would introduce a rental text-book bill in this session of the General Assembly.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The stock market resumed its waiting attitude today and many yesterday's mildly bullish traders were inclined to stay out of the betanish weekend session with small receipts.

There were a number of moderate gains. The close was a trifle irregular. Transfers were 300,000 shares.

Notwithstanding the fact that the equities was unable to stir up any enthusiasm on the bullish side of the market recovery propagandists were encouraged by lack of selling pressure generally.

Grains were not particularly buoyant.

Bonds were fairly firm throughout although United States Government Securities were slightly mixed.

in the evening before the time of the crime.

And another said he saw a woman carrying a baby wrapped in a blanket and being assisted on a street car by a man who resembled the late Isador Fisch. This incident was alleged to have taken place later in the early hours of the next morning.

Bornmann's rebuttal testimony attacked the opinion of a defense witness who qualified as an expert and said an attic floor board in evidence showed no tool marks which should have been apparent if the board was ripped from the joints. The trooper said he pulled the board up with his bare hands. He also indicated that nails taken from it were put into the evidence.

The defense expert has said he believed the nails never had been used.

Arthur J. Koehler, Federal wood expert, followed Bornmann. He was considered the State's star witness in the case for he testified it was his positive opinion that the left hand upright to the Lindbergh kidnapping ladder was ripped from the floor of Hauptmann's attic in the Bronx and also that the plane marks on the ladder had been made by Hauptmann's own plane.

The defense attacked the evidence with a demonstration to show that nicks in the blade left different marks when held at a different angle.

Koehler's rebuttal to this was that the marks though close or farther apart, according to the nicks of the plane, were still tell-tale.

He directly disputed one of the defense experts who brought to court two pieces of wood and said they were of different origin though their grains matched.

Koehler said they were of the same piece. The object of the defense has been to show that matching of the latter rail with the attic board could be coincident and not necessarily incriminating.
