ITALIAN GOVERNMENT SENDS
MILITARY FORCES TO AFRICASEEK TO HALT ATTACK FROM ETHIOPIANS

Two Divisions of Troops Ordered Out For Service Immediately; Several Thousand Troopers Also Reported Sent From Naples; New Attack Reported on the Italian-Somiland Border

Rome, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Italy called a quarter of a million men to the colors today and started thousands of others off to Africa as fresh hostilities were reported on the frontier of Somiland and Ethiopia.

The government spokesman said the whole military class of 1911 had been called out; it is known that the class numbers more than 250,000 men. An official communique announced that two divisions numbered 8,000 men each has also been mobilized.

The call to serve was issued, said the government, for a measure of precaution.

The text of the communique follows:

"As a measure of precautionary measure, two divisions of the Pelitana and the Cacinana have been mobilized between the Tenth and Eleventh Infantry.

"Operations for the recall of the contingent of the class of 1911 have been conducted with greatest attention."

Reports from Naples early this afternoon indicated several thousand troops already have sailed from there.

The date of the mobilization order indicated it was issued hastily after word had been received of the most recent Ethiopian attack on the Italian frontier post long the Italian-Somiland border in the vicinity of Adubi.

A government spokesman disclosed this morning at official quarters that news of the latest border hostilities was received ten days ago through the communique making it public was not issued until late last night.

Late News Flashes

In Congress Today
Washington, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The administration $4,880,000 work relief program swung in the balance today behind locked doors of the senate committee which had already penciled the measure heavily.

At issue was the McCarrin amendment to require payment of prevailing local wages to the jobless in the various communities. Reconsideration was voted 14 to 9.

The committee neared a showdown today with the knowledge that President Roosevelt believes this proposal and let it be known that it would wreck plans to take 3,500,000 employables from the relief rolls.

Administration spokesmen said $50 a month rate was intended under the bill.

With the supreme court's anxiously awaited decision not scheduled for delivery today, a featureless business docket drew little attention of the high tribunal. Out came of the relief bill held special attention.

NEGRO HELD FOR LARCENY

James Little Bound Over to County Court in Police Court This Morning

Joseph James Little, colored, was bound over to County Court on two charges of larceny following preliminary hearing in Mayor's court here this morning. He was unable to give bond of $200 and was remanded to jail to await hearing.

The negro, charged with stealing a shotgun and groceries out of automobiles here about two weeks ago, was nabbed by police during the week-end. The shotgun was alleged to have been stolen from an automobile belonging to Dave Proctor and the groceries were taken from the machine of Don Carson. Both cars were parked in the business section of the city.

Little, described by police as about 19 years old, recently completed a term on a charge of larceny and it was said he would probably find his way back to the roads for a much longer term.

This was the only case of any importance disposed of in mayor's court this morning. Dockets here have been light for the last several days, and the County Court docket which draws a considerable number of cases from the lower court here is expected to be comparatively light tomorrow.

News Behind The News.

SWAPPING Breakdown of hopes and plans has brought the American Federation of Labor to a crisis. It has failed to capture control of labor. This failure has caused it to miss out in dictating terms to the government and industry. Internal pressure, personal rivalries, checkmates by industry and now the refusal of the government to weaken it still more, if possible before the showdown on reenactment of the new NRA.

These factors are now leading out in spite of efforts of the Federation leaders to make a showing of a united front. The political and industrial forces that oppose the aims of the Federation are seizing upon the evidences of its weakness to weaken it still more, if possible before the showdown on reenactment of the new NRA.

OVERPLAY President William Green miscalculated the situation when he figured that through enactment of Section 7A and discriminatory interpretation of that section in favor of the Federation it would increase its membership to 10,000

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 11.—The fight to divert several million dollars of highway revenue to the public schools is already under way and will break into the open Tuesday on the floor of the Senate. For the effort already started in the Senate to write into the State drivers' license bill a provision to require adult drivers of school buses is now known.

be nothing but a political maneuver on the part of the North Carolina Education Association to force the diversion of at least $3,000,000 of highway funds to the schools or to force the transfer of all school transportation to the State Highway and Public Works Commission which would increase the operation expenses of the Highway Department by at least $4,500,000 a year. Compulsory employment of adult school bus drivers would boost the present cost $3,000,000 a year.

This was learned here today from a county superintendent of schools who had been approached by one of the principal lobbyists for the school forces in an effort to get him to support this plan. But this particular county superintendent was still opposed to either requiring the use of adult school bus drivers or to transferring the school transportation to the State Highway and Public Works Commission. In fact, this superintendent said that he and most of the county superintendents who come in close contact with the school transportation system are convinced that student drivers for buses are far preferable to adult drivers since they are under the constant supervision and control of the school principals and superintendents, while adult drivers would not be. Actual records kept of school bus accidents the last several years show there have been fewer accidents with student bus drivers than where adult drivers were employed.

The strategy of the school forces is to get the adult drivers' section enacted into law before any of the school legislation comes up and then when the Legislature later on wakes up to the fact that it had enacted a section in the drivers' license law that will cost the school fund about $3,000,000 a year more than at present, the school forces will maintain "it's a law" as they did with the old Maclean law. Then if the revenue provided for the general fund from the revenue bill is not sufficient, they will maintain that there are but two things to do. First, divert $3,000,000 a year from the highway fund to the school fund; second, transfer the entire school transportation system, including maintenance and replacements, to the Highway Commission, which would increase its overhead expenses at least $4,500,000 a year.

The hope of the school lobbyists is, of course, that rather than be saddled with the school transportation system and $4,500,000 a year of additional expense that the Highway Commission and those who are opposed to diversion will compromise on an agreement to divert about $3,000,000 a year of highway revenue into the general fund. After that

DRAWING FIRE

Operators of Filling Station Say Measure Will Only Increase Tax Burden

Sir Walter Hotel.
Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 11.—The proposal to increase the taxes paid by gasoline filling stations, especially those operated by the major oil companies, almost $1,000,000 a year above what they are now paying will only serve to increase the already heavy tax burden borne by automobile and truck owners in North Carolina, according to both the oil companies and individual car owners. As a result, these groups are expected to join forces here Wednesday afternoon in opposing the proposed new tax schedule at the public hearing before the Joint Senate and House Finance Committee.

The new proposal, sponsored largely by the anti-sales tax members of the Finance Committee, would increase the taxes being paid by gasoline filling stations in the State from about $200,000 a year to more than $1,000,000 a year by bringing chain filling stations, whether owned by large corporations or by individuals within the State, under the chain store tax section of the revenue bill. This new section, as drawn by a sub-committee, would tax the filling stations on the basis of floor space, running as high as $100 per station for all in excess of twenty stations in any one chain.

This tax would have to be passed along to the consumers, who now pay more than $20,000,000 a year in gasoline and motor taxes, it is maintained, since the filling stations could not afford to absorb it. Nor would this tax equalize the competition between the large chains of stations and the smaller independents, since it is maintained that the independents can now buy gasoline from independent refineries at the same or lower prices they can from the larger companies. The filling station operators also point out that the petroleum industry carrying more in Federal and State taxes than any other industry, with an average of 43 per cent of price paid per gallon of gasoline going into taxes—in other words, a sales tax of 43 per cent.

Friends from several parts of the State attended the final rites and a tremendous floral tribute was expressive of the high esteem in which Mr. Warren was held.

Moving to Greenville from Edgecombe County in 1903, Mr. Warren became one of the best known business men of the community. He was for many years engaged in the fertilizer and insurance business. Later he was connected with his son, B. S. Warren, in the operation of the Warren Drug Store and still later associated with another son, C. M. Warren, in the conduct of a feed and seed business. He was engaged in this business when illness several days ago forced him to retire.

He was quiet and unassuming, and numbered his friends by the thousands because of his wide business connections.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Susan Warren, in addition to several children in this and other sections of the State.

Juvenile Court Awaits
Evidence in County
Court Before Sentencing Youths

Judgment in the case of nine members of a band of youthful negro thieves nabbed by police here first of the month will be made known by Judge J. Frank Harrington in Juvenile Court here tomorrow. It was announced today.

The youths were given hearing before Judge Harrington Saturday, but judgment was reserved until tomorrow because all evidence in the case would not be divulged until the trial of L. H. Burlingame in County Court Tuesday on a charge of receiving stolen property from the boys.

They are charged with stealing valuable tools from lime-stations and selling them to Burlingame, operator of a filling station within a stone's throw of the police station.

Judge Harrington intimated today he would order four of the youths confined in a school of correction and that the remainder would be sent out of Greenville on probation and hard work.

The youths, ranging from 12 to 15 years of age are:
John Graham, David Clark, Henry Grice, Joe Grice, Petrus Grice, Charles Price, James Whitfield, Rap Tucker and Boston Bradley.

Two other youths captured here in connection with the operation of another alleged band of thieves were placed on probation. They are John Simms and Fred Williams. They were arrested last week for alleged stealing fertilizer sacks from the local plant of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company.

Numbers of similar cases have been handled by the Juvenile Court in the last several months and numbers have been sent to schools of correction or placed on probation.

$3,000,000 Emergency Highway Bill Will Face Senate For Action Tonight

Sir Walter Hotel.
Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 11.—The $3,000,000 highway emergency bill faces the Senate tonight at the Legislature begins another week of the 1935 session. The bill presented by Senate Roads Chairman Spence, is an administration measure. It approved it will allot $3,000,000 for immediate use of the highway department in order that "repairs and rebuilding" of highways may get under way at once. Ordinarily appropriations are made for the new biennium which begins on July 1, but due to the necessity for immediate action because of the deterioration of secondary roads, the bill would permit the Highway Department to do the work this spring.

No one here doubts that the bill will be approved. Most legislators realize that secondary roads, used by school buses, mail carriers, farmers and others are in need of immediate attention. No new roads would be built under the terms of the bill.

Other bills up for consideration by the Senate tonight are of relatively minor importance. The drivers' license bill will not be considered further until Tuesday when it is on the calendar as a special order.

In the lower House no major bills are on the docket. The bill which would require all dogs to be inoculated for rabies re-appears for its second reading after securing a favorable committee report. Other bills on the calendar would establish a photographers' association, a step by photographers to rid their business of "fly-by-night" competition, and a measure which would permit losing parties in land litigation to collect from the winners taxes already paid when the winner has not paid such taxes. Several local bills complete the calendar. Among them is the Haywood County school bus bill which would permit that county to supplement the pay of school bus drivers. After much debate during which its opponents argued that it struck at the policy of State-supported schools, the House passed it on its second reading. Twenty votes were cast against it. It will receive considerable opposition in the Senate.

ARGUMENT FOR STATE TODAY

Prosecutor Declares It Has Been Proven Beyond a Shadow of Doubt Hauptmann Is Kidnaper of Lindbergh Baby; Reviews Evidence Surrounding Case; Four Hundred Exhibits on Display

Flemington, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The final defense plea for Bruno Richard Hauptmann today turned into an utterance of charges against Betty Gow and the dead Ollie Wheatley, and denunciation of the aged Dr. John Condon.

"Condon stands behind something in this case that is unholy," Edward Reilly, chief of defense counsel, told the jury which is trying Hauptmann for his life as the kidnaper and murderer of baby Charles Lindbergh, Jr.

Dr. Condon was the ransom intermediary for Col. Lindbergh. He testified he paid $50,000 to Hauptmann in a Bronx graveyard. Reilly declared again, the baby was kidnapped with the aid of "disloyal servants" and in this connection he named Miss Gow and Wheatley, the late Lindbergh butler.

He also brought in the name of Fred Johnson, the Norwegian sailor friend of Miss Gow. Because Dr. Condon had said he had believed Red Johnson was innocent, Reilly asked:

"Why should Condon come to the rescue of the only person in the world that they haven't brought back if he didn't know him?"

Pleading to save Hauptmann from the electric chair as the perpetrator of the crime, Reilly declared: "Col. Lindbergh was stabbed in the back by those who worked for him."

WHO WAS WRONG?

With no desire to pick a fight with our sheriff or other law enforcement officers, but with a determination to render our people a service by demanding that the officers do their duty in the way of cleaning up alleged gambling joints in this community, we have had considerable to say on the subject of late. Last Thursday we commented in this column upon an occurrence at one of the alleged gambling joints that resulted in the injury of at least one person and asked why such places were permitted to exist.

On Friday afternoon the sheriff paid us a visit with the statement that we must have the names of all the businesses in order to make such a comment and since same was a reflection on his office he demanded that we give him the names of witnesses in order that he might get the necessary evidence upon which to swear out a warrant.

This demand sounds all good and proper and would indicate that we were barking up the wrong tree if we could not meet this request with enough facts upon which to swear out a warrant, but the amusing part of it is that we had been informed that the sheriff had already investigated the fight to which we referred but had taken no action. When the sheriff asked for the information we had at hand, we countered with a question as to what he already knew about the affair and he admitted that he was aware that the fight to which we had referred had taken place and that a man had been knocked down stairs and injured. It was a drunken brawl, according to his statement, and after investigation of the affair by him (the sheriff) and the injured man's father, he had withheld action in order that the injured man's father might endeavor to get the other party or parties mixed up in the brawl to pay damages for the injuries received by his son.

As we see the matter, if it was a drunken brawl, as the sheriff said, somebody was guilty of violation of the law and subject to arrest, but it appears that the desire of the injured party for damages seemed to the sheriff more important than making an arrest and he adhered to a hands-off policy to let the matter be settled by the parties concerned.

It is our opinion that there is too much of this business of letting guilty parties settle out of court, strengthening the public belief that those who stand in favor or are able to pay, can get by with their violations of the law while those unable to meet the situation find themselves hauled into court for punishment.

It is not our personal desire to reflect discredit upon any individual officer in our community, but we are interested in seeing the gambling joints and similar dives cleaned out and we expect to print the facts in these matters when we can get them and let the chips fall where they may. We have always endeavored to cooperate in the fullest extent with the law enforcement forces in this community to make it a better community and certainly the officer who is doing his duty will find no ground to take offense at what we print.

code He was advised to do so by Donald Richberg, on the showing of facts.

President Green and John L. Lewis worked in harmony for the general aims of the Federation, but they are at the same time deadly rivals for the dictatorship. Lewis has gradually gained strength as Green's expense. Lewis forced his way into the executive committee and the vice presidency, although at present he is only twelfth in the line of the great credit created by the Federation's gain membership as he predicted and also because politicians and industrialists have flocked to his generalship and found him in his armor. They do not have the best of him but they have even six months ago.

OMINOUS: Both Green and Lewis savagely attack Richberg for refusing to champion the Federation's aims wherever they conflict with the aims of industry. This attack is not as dangerous as it would have been a few months ago. Richberg seems to have sensed the futility of certain Federation aims before AFL leaders realized that they were headed for failure.

The Federation is a powerful institution which has the instinct for survival. It can stand a lot of hard knocks without becoming demoralized. Its leaders announce that they will organize the automobile and steel workers on a big scale. They clamor for the 30-hour week and for prevailing wages to relief workers in the forthcoming work-relief campaign. But ominous signs of this session in the inside are evident,

Montana Rides Again
A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: The Montana Kid and Mateo Rubiz have stolen the crown of Our Lady from General Estrada, who had stolen it from the church. But before Montana and Rubiz can return the crown to the bishop, Rubiz is captured. Montana and half the crown are safe; Rubiz has lost his half to the general, and now the general hopes to force Mateo to betray the meeting place he has arranged with Montana, just as the lovely Rosita had betrayed Montana and the Kid to the general a few hours back.

Chapter 27

ROSITA slunk out of the room, her hands pressed over her ears. "Is Rubiz chained?" asked Estrada.

"See, Excellence."

Estrada, with a sense of luxurious content, surveyed the heavy chains that weighed down the hands of Rubiz. There was an iron ball of twenty pounds weight hitched to his ankles, and the chain from the ball passed up by a special chain and was fastened to a collar that fitted close around that great neck.

"Leave him, then," said Estrada. "I may need you again in a moment. Wait outside the room."

When they had withdrawn, Estrada said: "Rubiz, the fact is that you worked with El Keed. You made a gringo your partner to steal from me today."

Rubiz said nothing. There was merely a sort of idle curiosity in the eyes with which he scanned the face of the general. But in Estrada there was a mighty confidence. It was as large as his soul and rooted as deep.

"When you stole the emeralds," said Estrada, "you took half and El Keed took half. You went by different ways. And, by God! you almost escaped, as he did. Bad luck stopped you. And yet, Rubiz, it may not be such very bad luck, after all. You have fallen into the hands of a man of understanding."

"The poor have never had any reason to fear you. Now, then, I was once a poor man, myself. I remember those days very well. And I want to tell you that I can feel such a sympathy that I could give up all the noise and the reputation that will come from all over Mexico because I am the man whose grip at last closed on you. I could arrange matters so that you would be able to slip quietly away, Rubiz, one of these nights. And all that I want you to leave behind for me is a little information—just a little information, Rubiz."

"Something for nothing is not what a man can expect in this world, Rubiz. But the payment I ask from you is very small. I begin by pointing out to you that there are certain jewels in the hands of El Keed—that El Keed was your partner in the work of this night. I merely ask you where I can find the gringo."

There was no answer.

The general said: "You note, Rubiz, that the man is not one of us. You note that he is a gringo?"

Rubiz smiled. And at that, with a touch of anger in his voice for the first time, the general continued: "If you will talk willingly you receive your freedom. But if you put me to it—if I have to tear the answers out of you, I shall have them, with blood dripping from every word of them. You hear me, Rubiz?"

GENERAL IGNACIO ESTRADA could not believe his eyes. Yet he saw that the prisoner continued to regard him in silence, without greater emotion than a mild curiosity. The general leaped to his feet. "You fool!" he shouted. "Do you know what I am?"

"A dog and the son of a dog," said Rubiz.

Not for the first time that night, the rage of the general was so great that he remained calm.

In a sense it would be better this way. More than once General Estrada had enjoyed putting his questions by force, but he had never had such a complete man to deal with. There was pleasure as well as answers to be extracted by the method he had in view. Therefore he almost wondered that he had, in the first place, offered any sort of a bargain to Rubiz.

The little cell in that old dungeon which was supposed to be disused was the lowest of the entire cellar of the building. It was so low that the river water, seeping aslant through the walls and oozing through the floor, kept oozing through the walls and oozing through the floor. And on the floor there was slime from which sprang up a disgusting odor of decay. But though the floors were thick with change itself have discussed the matter have bred a psychology of incipient panic. Hundreds of traders are nervously wondering whether it wouldn't be smart to liquidate their holdings while they still have a chance.

Prolonged suspense might easily bring a selling wave that could cause a lot of grief. The chief reason there hasn't been one yet it because much of the "wise" buying in recent weeks has been done for the long pull—in anticipation of business gains months from now when the government's spending program takes hold. This type of purchaser hasn't caught the "scare" infection—but might if someone lights the fuse.

SPECIFIC: New York doesn't expect Congressman Rayburn's bill to abolish holding companies to go through in its present form. The word is that it was phrased so drastically in order to test popular sentiment and as a basis from which to work.

Holding company heads cherish the hope that the public will react less enthusiastically than Washington expects. They cite evidence of popular approval for the Supreme Court ruling annulling federal oil control. On the whole there is relief that the bad news is out. At last they have something specific for opposition to chew on. Their battle tactics aren't settled yet—but watch for a vigorous publicity campaign upholding the sanctity of American enterprise.

AID: General Electric's new invention to cheapen the cost of power distribution will help the private utilities—but experts say it should help federal power plans even more. The President was including the device in his plans in mid-summer of '34.

Its chief application will come in the wide dissemination of current from a single producing plant. This would be a godsend in the Tennessee Valley. Private groups with scattered properties will find its benefits not limited.

Dr. Dean At College.

Dr. Frank Dean, rector of St. Timothy's Episcopal church of Wilson, spoke to the Y. W. C. A. of East Carolina Teachers College last evening using as his subject, "The Tragedies of Loneliness."

He stated that the loneliness of being too busy to feel the presence of God. He said that too often one thinks of God as a God of the past and when sorrow comes as a God of the future. Many times one loses the power to cultivate and know Him as the God of now.

It is Dr. Dean's opinion that the presence of God is possible for anyone who seeks it and it is the natural sense of one's soul. God is a living God, and to capture His presence is to find Him in the beauty and wonder of the every day world. When one has found Himself in the presence of God, it brings poise, peace and calmness to his soul.

Major Gilks and Adjutant Bortner of Charlotte, will take charge of all meetings.

Violin Ensemble at College.

The E. C. T. C. Ensemble and Miss Louise Nafie in their hour of music yesterday afternoon presented a beautiful program that gave real pleasure to an appreciative audience.

The opening selections were religious and reverential in spirit, in peculiarly appropriate mood for Sunday afternoon. The second group was lighter, a Rondo arrangement by Kreisler of a Beethoven theme, with the melody shifting from first to second violins and then to third. The two French folk songs, one gay and the other more serious, intermingled into one solo, was marked by lovely rhythm.

One of the Brahms numbers was a soft lullabye and the other a lilting waltz. The familiar sextet from "Lucia" was played by four violins, the cello and piano.

Miss Louise Nafie, the piano teacher, added to the faculty this term, delighted her audience with her beautiful playing, which was marked by marvelous rhythm, clear cut, clean tones, and what musicians call "pearly runs," all showing deep subtle musical perception. Her three selections were happily chosen from Mendelssohn and one from Chopin.

This is the second time the Ensemble has given a Sunday afternoon program. It is to be hoped they will give others from time to time.

The Ensemble is made up of a small voluntary group composed of both members of the faculty and students who enjoy getting together once a week and playing for their own pleasure.

Valentine Party.

The two librarians of the college, Misses Helen Gray and Margaret Sammon, entertained their student assistants with a Valentine party in Ragsdale Hall last Saturday evening.

The Valentine note was used in the decorations, and carried out in the refreshments, ice cream and cakes. Valentine games and contests furnished the entertainment.

The most interesting seemed to be pinning on the head of the gook-looking young man. The guests had much fun with a Valentine hunt.

Misses Ellen Jenkins, Helen Taylor and Minnie Margaret Gorman, received prizes. In addition to these, the other guests were Misses Frances Newsum, Polly Melvin, Ruth Kiker, Katherine Hinson, Ethel Vick, Reba Ange and Elsie Birch.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Spirit" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Feb. 10.

The golden text was from II Cor. 3:17: "Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." (Rom. 8:1, 14, 16).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man understands spiritual existence in proportion as his treasures of Truth and Love are enlarged. Mortals must gravitate toward their affections and aims grow spiritual—they must hear the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite—in order that sin and mortality may be put off. This scientific sense of being, forsaking matter for Spirit, by no means suggests man's absorption into Deity and the loss of his identity, but confers upon man enlarged individuality, a wider sphere of thought and action, a more expansive love, a higher and more permanent peace."

Garden Club Meets.

The Garden Club on last Friday afternoon, had an exceedingly practical, interesting, and instructive talk on roses by Mr. Casey of the Goldsboro Nurseries. He limited his remarks to the successful growing of roses, which he clearly showed, calls for intelligent work and covers a broad field. His audience followed him with close attention and was moved by their numerous definite questions that they were practical rose growers and intended to apply the knowledge they had gained from this expert.

He divided his talk into three parts, giving reasons why people do not have success with roses: They try the wrong kinds; or use the wrong kind of soil; or do not feed them properly.

He said that many people make a mistake in thinking that all roses should grow the same size. He showed three bushes, dug from his nurseries that morning: one, a radance, which naturally grows large; another, a lady Hillington, which remains a small bush; and a third, Betty Upchurch, which attains medium size.

He named varieties which were subject to black spot and winter killing, and others which do not do well here, or have short life.

In the list he gave as varieties that do well in the south, are these: Radiance, Editor McFarland, Betty Upchurch, Charles K. Douglas, Lady Hillington, Mrs. Charles Bell, Duchess of Wellington, and others.

While roses prefer a heavy clay soil, he stresses the fact that it is not impossible to raise roses in sandy soil if there is a clay subsoil to hold food so that the roots may in time get it. For a sandy soil all that is needed is to put in a little clay when planting the bush.

In Mr. Casey's estimation, many people use soil as an alibi for failure, when the truth is that three-fourths of the roses that fail are underfed. Roses are heavy feeders, as people who have greenhouses and feed them every two weeks, know well. The best food for roses is cow-stable manure. This should be dug into the soil but must not touch the roots. Guano 4-8-4 is also good. At first only three pints should be used to a bed 4x12 feet. After this about one quart should be applied every thirty days. This should be hoed in to a depth of about one inch and then watered. A thorough soaking is preferred, because if the soaking is not thorough, the sun next day will dry out the water and the roots will have to turn up to get water and nourishment.

Sufficient cultivation during an average season will be merely hoeing to keep weeds out, but during an extremely dry season a covering of pine needles will be necessary.

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the discussion following, when definite questions were asked by members of the club and answered by Mr. Casey. In answering those about planting he said that the roots should be in a natural position with the bud knot one inch below the soil. The hole should be dug several inches deeper than the underground section of the bush so that there will be room for drainage. Before the planting fertilizer should be worked in to the depth of ten or twelve inches.

He gave advice about the kind of fertilizer to use and the different sprays. In the discussion about pruning he said that climbers should be pruned after blooming instead of before, as there will be loss of bloom because the bloom buds are on the climbing canes. It is best to prune others about the middle of March instead of in the fall because cold starts injury at the end of the branches, and if pruned too early some of next year's growth will be sacrificed.

In cutting roses one should remember to cut just above a leaf with five leaflets. One should plan to enjoy some of the roses left on the bush as the plants thrive better if the leaves are not cut off as fast as the plant can make them.

The president of the Garden Club Mrs. Travis Hooker, who presided over the meeting, welcomed the new members. Mrs. Lawrence Stroud and the guests, Messdames Mrs. Stocks, and Pittman, all of Farmville, and Mrs. Robert Duval Jones of New Bern. State Chairman of Cities, will be invited to speak at the next meeting.

'President Vanishes' At State.

The man responsible for the two most important and widely discussed recent political film dramas Walter Wanger, producer of "Gabriel Over the White House" and "Washington Merry-go-Round" has produced another with fuller revelations of the forces behind the operations of the nation and with more far-reaching implications.

The picture is "The President Vanishes," an imaginative drama, based on a recently published anonymous novel, and is the feature attraction at the State today and Tuesday.

When the film opens, war has been declared throughout Europe and financial forces, profiteers and politicians are working secretly in the United States to force the nation into the war.

With the service press under their control, the profiteers are disseminating propaganda calculated to whip the nation into a frenzy of war lust. But the president of the nation, played by Arthur Byron, is adamant against going to war.

Just when the emotional hysteria has reached its peak and Congress is prepared to vote for war, word is flashed through the nation that the President has been kidnapped!

The nation is stunned by the news and a frantic search to find the President begins. In the meantime his opponents are preparing to put up the spineless Vice-President in his place and to go ahead with their plans.

In a thrilling and dramatic denouement, the President returns to defeat the conspiracy and the nation is preserved from another disastrous conflict.

Supporting Byron, in the principal role, are Paul Kelly and Peggy Conklin, who play the romantic leads.

May was off to 12.36 and was holding around 12.37 at midday.

With other months showing net losses of 7 to 9 points.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The financial market generally skipped over any judicial and economic doubts today and most prices pointed lower in extremely dull dealings.

Another failure to announce adjudication of the gold clause cases was given as the principal excuse for some disappointed dealings in stocks and commodities. But the trade picture was also a little cloudy.

At the same time bonds held fairly steady on scattered preferred and equities hushed the trend for fairer advances.

Grains and cotton dipped and the dollar improved.

Stock trading was extremely dull throughout.

Transfers were 330,000 shares.

PROSECUTOR SAYS BRUNO HAUPTMANN GUILTY MURDER

"In this connection he flung out the name of Betty Gow and charged she was the only person from the Lindbergh home who knew the baby was to be in Hope well the night of the crime; and of Wheatley who he said had charge of the dog which failed to bark when the baby was taken.

"The booming attorney charged that the kidnap letter was planted and that the baby was not taken from its nursery through the window.

"The person that picked that child out of that crib," he charged, "I give you my solemn word the inference I draw, knew that child and that child knew that person."

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The State of New Jersey contended today had proved beyond a reasonable doubt, "conclusively and overwhelmingly," that Bruno Richard Hauptmann kidnapped and murdered Baby Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. on March 1, 1932.

Opening for the State and surrounded by nearly 400 mute exhibits and heard by the gray-faced worried defendant, Prosecutor Anthony Hauck told the Hunterdon County jury.

"The State of New Jersey contends that they have proven not only beyond reasonable doubt, but conclusively and overwhelmingly, that Bruno Richard Hauptmann is guilty of murder in the first degree, that he is guilty of the murder of the infant Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr."

He pointed out at once that the State had established the "corpus delicti."

He recited details of the theory which he declared the State proved that Hauptmann entered the nursery window on the Lindbergh home by means of a ladder, yanked the sleeping baby from his crib, started back down the ladder with it and fell to the ground as the ladder broke.

It was then that he contended that the baby suffered a fractured skull which caused its death.

"We have proven to you conclusively," he said, "that the fall caused the baby's death when it received the fractured skull, which was of such an extent that it caused instantaneous death."

Later he said:

"You can infer from the crash that Colonel Lindbergh heard was the very crashing of that very ladder outside the nursery window."

Colonel Lindbergh, father of the child, testified he had heard a noise which sounded like the fall of a crate.

"You can infer that the defendant on leaving the premises with the child, realizing the baby was dead, yanked that garment from the baby and that at the same time the thumb was dropped on the Lindbergh premises."

He was referring to the baby's sleeping suit which was sent to Colonel Lindbergh by the kidnapper and the thumb-guard which had been tied over the garment, and which Betty Gow, the Lindbergh nurse, said had been found one hundred yards from the house a month after the crime.

"You can equally infer that after that little curly headed baby's garment was yanked from the body along with the thumb-guard that he (Hauptmann) hurried to his car, but it was not until he found the first safe and convenient place from the Lindbergh house that he went into the woods and there hurriedly scooped a grave and hurried on to the Bronx. And that is proof that the baby died on the premises because if the baby had died elsewhere it wouldn't have been buried so near the Lindbergh home."

was done it might then be possible to slip through "a minor bill correcting an error in one already passed" changing the age of drivers from 21 back to 16 or 18 years of age. Then there would be $3,000,000 more in the school fund which could be the following described real estate, to-wit:

Being situate in the town of Greenville, N. C., and beginning at the southeast intersection of Fourteenth Street and College Street and running thence eastwardly along the southern boundary of Fourteenth Street extended to Mill Run; thence up the various courses of said Mill Run in a southerly direction to the Norfolk-Southern Railway Right of Way; thence in a westerly direction to College Street; thence with the boundary of College Street to the beginning, containing four acres, more or less, and being the lands formerly conveyed by L. used to make additional increases in salaries of superintendents, principals, teachers and for many other purposes, including additional library books and supplies, so much wanted by the text-book and school-supply people.

If the provision should remain in the drivers' license bill to require adult school bus drivers, a full $2,400,000 a year would be required to pay their salaries, since it is agreed it would be necessary to pay them at least $75 a month—or more than school teachers are getting—merely to drive these buses a few hours each morning and again late in the afternoon. There are 4,000 school buses, so the salary item alone would amount to $2,400,000 a year. Replacements are estimated at $600,000 a year and the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs and so forth at $1,000,000 a year. So the total cost of operating the school transportation system would be boosted from a present cost of $1,313,768 a year to at least $4,000,000 a year if not to $4,500,000 a year.

So far there has been strong sentiment in the Senate for requiring adult bus drivers. But this sentiment may change when the facts are known.
