THINK SENATE WILL REMOVE
NEW TAX ITEMSUpper Branch Expected to Cut $1,000,000
Of New Taxes From
Revenue BillReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, N. C., March 27.—The Senate is expected to remove at least $1,000,000 of the new taxes added to the revenue bill by the House either in the Senate Finance Committee or after the bill gets back to the floor of the Senate, despite the fact that when the bill came over to the Senate from the House today it came nearer balancing with the appropriations bill than at any time so far, according to most observers here. As passed by the House, the revenue bill will yield approximately $32,017,000 each year of the next biennium, according to the latest estimate.

But if the Senate strikes out the two taxes it is now expected to—the stock dividend tax and the chain filling station tax—the difference between the revenue and appropriations bills will be increased by about $1,000,000 a year, since the tax on stock dividends is expected to yield about $600,000 a year, based on the minimum estimates. The Senate then be faced with the necessity of either reducing the appropriations bill to come within the expected income from the revenue bill, or else find enough additional new revenue from other sources to make up the difference.

An attempt will be made by the anti-sales taxers in the Senate, of course, to remove the sales tax or else reduce the rate. But this attempt is regarded as having no chance whatever of succeeding. It will be made largely to make the political faces of the anti-sales tax members of the Senate with their tax platform, most observers here, constituents "back home" where several of them ran on an anti-sales tax issue. Many of the anti-sales tax members are now lacking the support of individual merchants and Merchants' Associations who are now writing and wiring their Senators to vote for the sales tax instead of against it, rather than have them support any more of the McDonald-Lumpkin substitutes.

The revenue bill as passed by the House was referred to the Senate Finance Committee this morning when it came over from the House and hearings are expected to be granted to a few interested persons this afternoon and tomorrow morning, according to Senator Harris Newman, of New Hanover, chairman of a committee. It is hoped, however, to complete these hearings tomorrow morning or afternoon at the latest and report the bill back to the Senate by not later than Friday. An effort will be made to complete consideration of the bill by middle of next week.

If the Senate makes any material changes in the bill and removes any of the taxes the House adopted, it will then have to be sent back to the House for concurrence in the Senate amendments. It is expected that the House will refuse to concur in the Senate amendments. It is expected that the House will refuse to concur in the Senate amendments either the dividends tax or the chain filling station tax, in which case conference committees will be appointed by both the Senate and the House to go to conference. The final enactment of the bill will then depend upon how soon the Senate and House conferees can agree on the differences in the bill and then upon whether the House and Senate will accept the compromises agreed to by the committee members.

This may require only a few days or may take many weeks. In 1933 the General Assembly remained in session until almost June owing to the refusal of the Senate to accept the compromise agreements of the conference committees on the revenue bill. Another long session developed in 1933 as a result of a deadlock between the House and Senate over the sales tax section that lasted for many weeks.

The outlook at present is for rather a quick compromise of any differences between the House and Senate when the revenue bill goes to conference, rather than for a deadlock. The decisive vote by which the revenue bill containing the sales tax section, passed the House is regarded as an indication that there will not be much wrangling over this portion of the bill in the Senate. And if the Senate can revise ways and means to raise as much new revenue as it is expected to strike from the bill, the House is expected to reach a compromise without much delay.

Senate leaders already realize they must provide plans that will yield as much new revenue as they strike from the bill and are understood to be preparing several new proposals by which to get this new money.

Fisherman
To River

Wilmington, N. C., March 27.—(AP)—An unidentified fisherman was caught in a lighted net in Roanoke River here and be all right, and it would have been had the river not caught fire. Just after dark last night a fisherman attempting to effect a landing near the river bridge, lit a cigarette and tossed the match overboard. Immediately the river became a sheet of flames. There were screams as the flames danced about his boat; witnesses yelled, some one turned in the fire alarm, and fire trucks began to rumble.

When the shouting was over and the fire was out, firemen discovered a leaking pipe to one of the many large gasoline storage tanks bordering the stream. The fisherman had disappeared.

DOUBT AS TO JAPAN'S RIGHT OF SOVEREIGNTYLeague Experts Disagree
as to Control
Over Island Group in Pacific

Geneva, March 27.—(AP)—Japan's resignation from the League of Nations will take effect at midnight raised doubt today as to who would ultimately control the Pacific Islands seized from Germany and turned over to Japan under League mandate. The Tokyo government is generally expected to retain control over the islands under supervision of the League Mandate Commission. The delicate question of sovereignty over the mandated territory raised the issue on which Geneva experts disagree. Some say the allied and associated powers of which the United States was one, are vested with sovereignty over the islands and have entrusted them to the administration of Japan under League supervision. Hence they argue that only the allied powers can deprive Japan of her mandate. Others contend the allied and associated powers yielded their sovereignty of the various island mandated territory to the League and therefore the League is entitled to determine what nation is to control them.

Child Hurt When Struck By Car

Bruce Warren, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Warren, is in Pitt Community Hospital suffering injuries sustained yesterday afternoon when he was knocked down by an automobile on the street in front of his home on West Fourth Street. The little boy, in an unconscious condition, was rushed to the hospital, but reports this morning were to the effect that his injuries were not as serious as a first anticipated. No bones were broken, the report said.

The accident was said to have occurred when the child ran into the street to get his ball and was sideswiped by a car driven by Larry Tilgham. The driver of the car was not to blame for the accident, it was said.

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—A study of student failures at the University of Georgia showed that this group, compared with the rest of the student body, had more absences from class work, spent fewer hours in study, had more disorderly conduct, and that their parents as a whole had less education and more broken homes.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
News Behind The News.

WASHINGTON

By George Durso

HAUNTER: Ever since Saturday political Washington has been debating the full significance of Herbert Hoover's latest blast at the Roosevelt administration. Does it make him a candidate to return to the White House in 1936 or is he merely trying to exert his titular leadership of the Republican party to the point of having a large hand in saying which of the GOP hopefuls will run against President Roosevelt? You can get a bushel basket of logical-sounding answers to prove either side of the argument without even asking.

But the men who are really lifting the full import of Mr. Hoover's 5-point call to arms against the New Deal are those still known—more or less because newspaper ingenuity has failed to invent a better-fitting name—as the Republican Old Guard.

BRING BACK
NEGRO WANTED
FOR HOLDUPBud Taylor, Who Assaulted and Robbed
Bethel Man, Captured in Virginia

Chief of Police Martin of Bethel, returned this afternoon from Cape Charles, Virginia, bringing with him Bud Taylor, negro, wanted in Edgecombe county for the assault upon and robbery of George Teel, Bethel market man. The crime took place about two weeks ago as Teel was returning to Bethel from Hassels. Teel had been to Hassels on business and had consented to ride the negro, a former employee, back to Bethel. Before reaching the Pitt County line they had a puncture and both got out of the car to fix the tire. While Teel was leaning over inspecting the tire the negro struck him over the head with a hammer and robbed him of $72 and fled.

Citizens of Bethel offered a reward of $50 for the negro's capture and he was arrested by Cape Charles, Va., officers Sunday night. Chief Martin went to the Virginia city yesterday and returned with the negro today. The crime was committed on the Edgecombe county side of the line so the prisoner was taken to Tarboro and lodged in jail to await trial.

Late News Flashes

Today's Legislature

Raleigh, N. C., March 27.—(AP)—The Senate today voted to submit it to the voters in 1936 a number of proposed amendments to the taxation and judicial sections of the State Constitution as the House worked on the biennial revenue bill and showed little inclination to change the joint committee's recommendations. By a vote of 37 to three, the Senate sent to the House the Weathers' bill on taxation changes, and by a 38 to eight vote approved the companion measure dealing with judicial changes.

The proposed judicial changes (Continued on Page Six)

Special Base
Contract Period
Ends Saturday

The period for receiving applications for Special Base Tobacco Contracts for 1935 will be closed in the fluenced tobacco areas on March 30 and in the burley and western dark tobacco areas on April 15, it was announced today by the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. Tobacco history of land and persons in the years 1929 to 1934, together with the labor, barns and equipment available for tobacco production on the land in 1935, are considered in establishing the base under special base contracts. These contracts are intended to provide for allotments under production adjustment contracts. Special base contracts are not available to growers who can obtain equitable allotments under regular production adjustment contracts.

Since nearly all tobacco growers can obtain equitable allotments under either the production contracts or the special base contracts, it is expected that few, if any, allotments of tax-payment warrants will be made to non-construction growers in 1935.

The period for receiving applications for special base contracts for 1935 is being closed in order that growers may be notified as to their allotments prior to the time for planting the 1935 crops.

Misspelled Word Contest
Creating Much Interest

The Misspelled Word Contest, which began last Wednesday, is creating a great deal of interest among the readers of this paper. Most all of the entries were sent in by ladies of various ages, judging from the handwriting. Many of the replies were very neatly prepared, a great many of the words selected by the Contest Editor were severely overlooked by many entrants to the contest. The winner of First Prize is Mrs. W. A. Tucker, R. F. D. 2. Her entry was very artistic indeed. The Second Prize goes to Miss Mary Ida McLachlan, Winterville, N. C., and Third Prize is awarded to Mrs. Richard Williams, 402 Green Street in Greenville.

SEEK TO BAR
CHAIRMEN AS
CANDIDATESBill Would Prohibit County Party Chairmen Running For Public OfficeReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., March 27.—A bill to prevent county chairmen of political parties from becoming candidates for nomination or election to public office without first resigning their political posts will reach the Senate today by way of a "without prejudice" report from the Senate Committee on Elections.

The bill, fathered by youthful Senator Julian Ailsbrook, of Halifax county, will appear on the calendar for action tomorrow unless the Senate should decide to act on the revenue bill before clearing its legislative decks. The bill provides that any county chairman who desires to announce his candidacy for public office shall, not later than January 1 preceding the election, resign his political post. The reason says Senator Ailsbrook, for his bill is that the chairmen have a voice in the naming of registrars and other election officials. He believes that that constitutes a great advantage to party chairmen who desire to secure a public post.

It is not known how the Senate will act on the bill, but the measure is conceded a good chance for passage. Senator Ailsbrook is virtually interested in election reform although he is not of the reformer type. Looking younger than his 32 years, he was once president of the student body of the University at Chapel Hill where he secured his law degree.

A companion measure to the anti-chairman bill was offered by Senator Ailsbrook this week. It would require a complete new registration of voters throughout the State for both primary and general elections, increase the pay of election officials from $3 to $4 per day, and permit the establishment of new precincts where the vote in any existing precinct shall exceed 1,200. It has not been acted upon by the Elections Committee.

INSURANCE
BILL LIKELY
WILL FAILLittle Hope For State
Fund For Workmen's Compensation
InsuranceReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, N. C., March 27.—The State threat to insurance companies writing workmen's compensation insurance in North Carolina will fail to materialize. That is the opinion of observers here who have watched the bill which would permit the State to go into the insurance business.

Postponed until today, the bill appears before the Senate after having received an unfavorable report at the hands of the Senate Insurance Committee. The bill was brought out on a minority report by virtue of the signatures of three members.

A preliminary survey of the Senate reveals that the minority report will fall far short of adoption.

The bill would provide for the establishment of machinery for handling workmen's compensation insurance under the State-wide law. The machinery might never be called upon. Whether or not the State would enter the field of a compensation would depend entirely upon action by the Governor and the Council of State, with their action predicated upon the raising of rates by insurance companies to what they considered excessive levies. The bill provides that if and when such a condition should arise the Governor and the Council of State could call into play the State machinery. No appropriation would be involved—employers would simply pay to the State insurance premiums and the State would make disbursements for claims in the same manner as that of commercial insurance companies.

The bill, if passed, would thus be used as an axe to hold over the heads of insurance companies writing that type of insurance. The companies contend that they cannot govern rates because premiums are based on types of risks and the total amount of money paid out to beneficiaries.

BARUCH WANTS STOP PUT TO
INSINUATIONSWar Industries Board
Chairman Demands
That Committee go
To Bottom of Facts

Washington, D. C., March 27.—(AP)—A ringing demand was made today for Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the World War Industries Board, to put an end to insinuation and innuendo about him or "find me guilty of violation of the trust and confidence imposed upon me during that period."

Appearance of the tall white-haired advisor of several Presidents created a stir in the packed hearing room of the Senate office building. Arriving ahead of the committee members, he greeted each as they appeared and presented Herbert Bayard Swopé, assistant chairman of the War Industries Board under Baruch.

"As the question of my fitness to pass an opinion upon the grave social problem of war profits lies in a test of my character," he said in beginning his formal presentation before the committee, "as it is evident that a test is to be made of the question of my record during my service I gave my country, it seems to me the course to follow is to plunge at once into that subject so that you may either put an end to the insinuations and innuendo the existence of which I would be childish to deny; or that you find me guilty of violation of the trust and confidence imposed upon me during that period."

ANTI-SALES TAX FORCES
ARE DEFEATED"Free Spenders" Join Forces With Three Per Cent Sales Tax
SupportersReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, March 27.—It was not "the administration" or the lobbyists for the big interests that caused the house to retain the sales tax and reverse itself again and put the state back up to 3 per cent, but the fact that the "free spenders" who were unwilling to see appropriations reduced if the revenues bill was reduced, joined forces with the sales taxers, according to most observers here today. A large number of house members who had consistently opposed the sales tax or favored the reduction of the rate to 2 per cent finally voted for the bill on third reading and justified their doing so by explaining that since there seemed no other way of getting the revenue to meet the appropriations and assure the school teachers of a 20 and 25 per cent salary increase, they would vote for the bill.

The "free spenders" were willing to go along with the anti-sales taxers, and "two per centers" only as long as they could be assured that just as much revenue would be found as through the sales tax. But as soon as the lower sales tax forces began losing their fight for the adoption of the various alternative tax plans, the "free spenders" and big appropriators started breaking away and aligning themselves with the sales tax forces. For they had pledged themselves to increase teachers salaries 25 per cent and made other promises which they knew could not be carried out without the sales tax and the 3 per cent rate.

Representative McDonald, the leader of the lower sales tax forces, at one time voted for the revenue bill including the 3 per cent sales tax on its third reading, justifying his position by the fact that all his alternative plans had been defeated and that the sales tax was hence the only way to get the needed revenue. He later changed his vote to "present" so that in the end he voted neither for nor against the 3 per cent sales tax.

The action of the house is regarded as a distinct victory for the "free spenders" and the school forces.

HOUSE TO TAKE UP SPENDING
BILL TODAYWill Start Consideration of Biennial Appropriations MeasureReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, March 27.—The appropriations bill, calling for expenditures of $31,469,249 the first year and of $33,210,295 the second year, is expected to be taken up in the house some time today unless it decides to work on its long and congested calendar instead. Representative Victor S. Bryant, chairman of the house appropriations committee said this morning. Since the house does not resolve itself into a committee of the whole in considering the appropriations bill and since it does not have to pass it on its third reading on successive days, this bill is expected to pass in much less time than was required for the passage of the revenue bill.

"If the various factions in the house seem to have recovered from the scars of the revenue bill fight, I shall move to take up the appropriations bill today," Chairman Bryant said. "But if there still seems to be some ranking among the members I shall let the bill go over until tomorrow."

The appropriations bill still is approximately $2,000,000 in excess of the estimated revenue from the revenue bill, even with the 3 per cent sales tax with all the exemptions removed. Representative Bryant admitted. But he expects to make a fight for the adoption of the bill as it now stands and to oppose any further reduction in any of the appropriations.

The school forces in the house and those favoring a minimum increase of 25 per cent in the salaries of all school teachers, college professors and state employees for both years of the biennium, are expected to make a determined effort to increase the appropriation for the first year of the biennium so that it will permit a salary increase of 25 per cent instead of only 20 per cent as now written. The recommended appropriation for the second year provides for salary increases for school teachers and all other state employees of 25 per cent. If this effort to make the salary increase 25 per cent for both years succeeds, the total proposed expenditures will be increased by at least another $1,000,000 and the difference between the appropriations bill and the revenue bill increased to $3,000,000 for the biennium.

Says Eastern Frontier
Must be Elastic and Subject to Revision;
Fears Russia's Strength

Berlin, March 27.—(AP)—A high authority stated today that Reichsführer Hitler demands absolute military equality on a gun for gun basis, "excepting the navy, with other European powers."

This authority said Hitler told Sir John Simon, British Foreign Secretary who returned to London this morning, that Germany would be content with small percentage of the British navy. Hitler told Sir John, however, according to this source that he wanted army equality with France gun for gun, man for man and airplane for airplane, and intimated he wanted superiority over Russia.

The Reichsführer, the authority said, strongly indicated even though France reduced her armament greatly, Germany would not follow suit until he was certain what Russia would do. It was said at every turn Sir John found Hitler standing firmly on the foundation stone of the Nazi foreign policy—Gleich-derech Titing—meaning equality.

London, March 27.—(AP)—High official London quarters today declared that Reichsführer Hitler had demanded from Sir John Simon Foreign Secretary, that the power grant Germany the following concessions:

An economic union with Austria. Elimination of Pomerania—the Polish corridor, which under the treaty, gives Poland a seaport.

Return of the Czechoslovakian territory with reparations of 3,500,000 Germans there.

An army and air force equal to Great Britain and France and an air force stronger than Soviet Russia's.

A navy of 400,000 tons. Reichsführer Hitler was said to have told the British Foreign Secretary that he regards German's eastern frontier as elastic and subject to revision at any time and that one of his first aims is the reunion of East Prussia with the rest of Germany and the elimination of Pomerania.

CHEAPER AUTO
LICENSE TAGSMeasure To Cut Rate
To 45 Cents Per Hundredweight Expected to PassReflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, March 27.—A reduction of about $2.50 in the cost of automobile license plates for owners of small cars will probably be the result of efforts to reduce the tag tax. Observers here expect the state senate to pass today on second reading a tag-reduction bill which will reduce the per hundredweight levy from 55 to 45 cents, with the minimum cost for any private car fixed at eight dollars.

Last week the senate upset the dope bucket by refusing to accept a roads committee bill which would have fixed the levy at 50 cents with a $9 minimum and passing, on second reading the bill with an amendment which would have made the levy 40 cents and $7. The vote was 19-14. It failed to appear for third reading because it was discovered that bills designed to reduce taxes must pass by a roll call vote. The same is true of measures which raise tax rates or create new levies.

This week when the bill came up for its third reading proponents of the reduced tag tax sensed defeat. Senator Rivers Johnson, advocate of such a reduction, offered an amendment to the 50-cent bill fixing the levy at 45 cents. The move was, of course, a compromise gesture. It was accepted. The bill was thrown back on its second reading. Whenever a bill is amended on third reading it automatically reverts to its first reading. Thus the bill was placed on the calendar, constituting first reading, and will appear today for its second and really decisive reading.

Adoption of the Johnson amendment, however, indicates that the bill will be passed by the senate as now written: with the hundredweight charge fixed at 45 cents, the minimum tag cost at $8. Many members have thought that the lower house will refuse to accept less than a reduction of 15 cents—a 40-cent tag—but several legislators now believe the house will accept the compromise apparently effected in the senate.

What happens in a motor when it is not supplied with a grade of oil required by its present state of wear? Simply this: The oil which should hold the compression is too thin. The engine is noisy. Eastern Star Installs Officers.—A special meeting of Chapter 149 Order Eastern Star was held last night for installation of new officers. The chapter was called to order with old officers in their stations. The flag was presented and a pledge of allegiance was given the flag, followed by the "Star Spangled Banner." The old officers were then asked to retire. A march was played as their stations were vacated.

Mrs. A. P. Hines, retiring worthy matron, having been chosen by the chapter for installing officer, was introduced by Mrs. H. S. Ragsdale. The chapter reflected new life of the season by lovely floral decorations furnished by Greenville Floral Co., green predominating.

Burning colored candles were effectively used for each star point. The officers-elect led by the installing marshal, Mrs. C. T. Munford, marched in and were seated. Prayer was offered for the success of another year.

Appropriate music was rendered by Mrs. J. L. Fleming. Flowers were presented each starpoint representing their stations. Officers installed were:

Mrs. Louise Wells, W. M.; Mr. Frank Harrington, W. P.; Mrs. N. C. Brooks, A. M.; Mr. P. E. Wells, A. P.; Mrs. Roland Herring, secretary; Mrs. Mollie Brown, treasurer; Mrs. Maude Earhart, Cond.; Mrs. Mollie House, A. FRIEND OF THE DARK ANGEL

The average motorist, however modest he may be in other respects, becomes an egomaniac as soon as he takes the wheel of his car.

He believes that traffic regulations should be rigidly enforced—so far as other drivers are concerned—but that he should be an exception to the rule. John Jones should be forced to keep down to twenty or thirty miles an hour—but he, whose abilities are hardly second to those of Sir Malcolm Campbell, can be trusted to drive as fast as he pleases.

The accident statistics demonstrate how tragically wrong this average motorist is. Nine out of ten accidents occurring last year were directly the fault of drivers or pedestrians. In only one out of ten was the mechanical condition of the car to blame. And in the overwhelming majority of instances the factor that led to the mishap was excessive speed. The best proof of that lies in the fact that the rate of death per accident on highways—where speeds are naturally higher than on streets—was more than 100 per cent greater than the average for all accidents combined. In city accidents, the rate of death per accident was 52 per cent worse between intersections, where motorists speeded up, than at intersections, where the bulk of drivers instinctively slow down.

A heavy foot on the throttle is the best friend the Dark Angel has. At the present time, campaigns are underway in all states and most cities to enforce reasonable traffic regulations. The driver who thinks he can "safely" drive as fast as he wants, wherever he wants, must be taught the error of his ways.

Republican party transcends any personal interest or any selfish interest of any group. They ponder over that demand for a "rejuvenated and vigorous organization."

PURGE: Just how Republican National Chairman Henry P. Fletcher fits into Mr. Hoover's reorganization ideas is another problem.

It is interesting to note that the first word GOP headquarters here had of the Hoover letter to the California Republican Assembly was through a newspaper man in possession of an advance copy.

There was no doubt that Mr. Hoover was earnestly urging a return of Republican administration. Could it be that, mindful of the lack of real cooperation he received from the oldtimers, the ex-President was a little personal spring cleaning

GREAT RICHES

by Mabel House Farnham

SYNOPSIS: All New Concord's best people are trying to take James Stimson III, away from Leslie Harris and hand him over to the wealthy Jane Northrup body and soul. Jane has engineered a plan to take him away from Leslie Harris and hand him over to the wealthy Jane Northrup body and soul. Jane has engineered a plan to take him away from Leslie Harris and hand him over to the wealthy Jane Northrup body and soul.

Chapter 19

MR. HARRIS, TIGHT

JAMES fairly leaped forward and caught his aunt by the arm, turning abruptly about and away from Leslie.

"Is he here?" he asked, urging her impetuously forward.

"Oh yes, and in a terrible state. He's come for Leslie and he says..."

James did not wait for more, but dropped his aunt's arm and ran. When he reached the dancing platform at the further end of the lawn, he found the music stopped and the dancers crowded together at one end of the platform whispering and giggling and watching John Harris who stood just below them on the lawn. Wearing his old-fashioned frock coat and bell-crowned hat and swaying tipsily to and fro as he leaned heavily on his gold-topped cane.

If you will conduct me to my daughter, young fellow, I will wipe the dust of this household off my boots and guarantee to withdraw myself and any member of my family from a cannibal which has dared to look down upon us."

"Come on, Mr. Harris," interrupted Sam Fletcher, who chose this moment to appear from the shadows. "You know I never looked down on Leslie. Come along with me and we'll hunt her up."

"I'm here," said a little strained voice and Leslie stepped forward, her eyes red but her head held high. "Come, Father, come along with Sam and me and we'll all go home."

Mr. Harris' high-handed manner suddenly forsook him and he began to cry.

"You've been insulted, Leslie," he sobbed, "insulted by a bunch of riff-raff your grandmother wouldn't have wiped her feet on. My God, Leslie, when I think of your grandmother..."

"NEVER mind, never mind," coaxed Leslie, urging him forward and out of earshot. Sam had his other arm but James stuck valiantly to their heels, insisting that he and no other should drive them home.

Miss Sarah, who stuck as persistently to James as James to Leslie, was forced to demur in no uncertain tones, pleading James' duties as host, which her nephew impatiently waved aside.

"Of course you have got to stay and look out for your guests," interrupted Mr. Samuel Fletcher in his loud truculent voice. "And since I brought Leslie to the party I'd like to know why I shouldn't take her home."

"Please, Leslie..." persisted James, but Leslie avoided his pleading eyes and turned to Sam. All the life, all the sparkle had gone out of her and it occurred to James he had never in his life seen anyone look so tired. As the three drove off, Mr. Harris still sobbing and protesting weakly, James could have cried himself.

Of course it had to happen at his party. Of course it had to be the mutt who had the good luck to be chosen as Leslie's prop and staff instead of one who would have given ten years of his life to have spared her one moment of humiliation.

But he would see her tomorrow. He would show her as tactfully and delicately as he knew how just how much he respected her and looked up to her. None but a little thoroughbred would have faced that giggling crowd as Leslie had and gone off with her head held high and not a suggestion of apology. Oh, he would tell her, he would show her...

Damn the miserable old dance anyway! Damn the miserable heartless brutes who had laughed at Leslie's shame. They were dancing again, gay and excited and happy as if they had not just watched a girl's heart break and her fine courage in bearing it—a girl so much finer than the whole pack of them that there wasn't a single one fit to tie her shoe lace.

He could not face them. He would not go back and dance and listen to their snickers and innuendoes. The least he could do to show his loyalty to Leslie would be to go off some place by himself and suffer with her.

(Copyright, 1935, Mabel H. Farnham)

James hides out, tomorrow.

"Have no fear," said Harris. "My blood has cooled."

But Howard and Jackson Crowell stood one either side of him vainly urging him towards the house. The whispering and giggling stopped abruptly as James came forward.

"Good evening, Mr. Harris," he said pleasantly. "Won't you come into the house with me and have some supper?"

"Good evening, Mister... Mister Stimson," answered his uninvited guest, speaking at first slowly and distinctly and meticulously dividing his syllables. "There is nothing, sir, you can offer me now or at any other time. I have come, sir, for my daughter Leslie, a rumor having reached my ears late this evening that she was not a welcome guest in this picaresque provincial assemblage that makes itself a laughing stock by trying to ape its betters of the great world and calls itself society. Society!"

Here he laughed, a great boisterous shout and then calmed himself and frowned. "But I must apologize to the ladies present. I do apologize from the bottom of my heart. It is, I assure you, sir, a matter rather for tears than for laughter, but alas my sense of the ridiculous sometimes betrays me. The first families of Kansas!"

AGAIN he laughed, laughed while the tears ran down his cheeks and he could barely stand, while he kept repeating between paroxysms, "I do apologize. I do apologize. But it really is side splitting."

"No doubt," said James somewhat grimly, "but suppose we go up to the house and talk it over. I am afraid we are delaying this dance."

"In a moment, my young sir, in a moment. And in the meantime please be so good as to take you hand off my arm. It happens that I have a great aversion to being pawed. In my youth, when there were still a few men left in this country who might properly be called gentlemen, I would have run a man through for less affront than yours." (James hastily withdrew his arm.)

"But have no fear. Have no fear. My blood has cooled with my years."

in mind? Those who were worried get more so when they recall he polled 15,000,000 votes against Mr. Roosevelt.

TESTER: Wise men who like an advance hint on future administration policies will do well to scan closely all prepared speeches delivered by Donald Richberg.

In addition to being Director of the National Emergency Council and new boss of NRA, Richberg has a much more important function in the Roosevelt official family.

He sends up trial balloons in behalf of the White House. Personal of his past public addresses will show this has been useful.

PRIVACY: Well informed sources estimate that, as a matter of fact, Richberg has done little governmental coordinating in recent months although such is supposed to be his chief job.

Donald succeeded Frank G. Walker as head of NEC nearly a year ago—but Walker minus any official portfolio, still spends part of each week in Washington.

The inside dope is that Walker, an original Roosevelt man and erstwhile Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee still is endeavoring to get discordant cogs in the New Deal machine clicking. His friends say he discovered long ago it couldn't possibly be done with publicity—an drow in finding it a plenty tough job from under cover.

LEARNING: President Roosevelt

NOTES: Mariner Eccles spent eleven days explaining the banking bill to a House committee. The Senate takes no account of what anybody tells the House. The Patman bonus vote of 318 to 90 in the House does not necessarily indicate such strength if the House votes on a veto. The little Republican bunch in the Senate will come in handy to help FDR fight off inflation. It's not the first time a President has been rescued by the opposition. Donald Richberg throws out a hint that the Wagner bill ought to pass.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN

JUMPS: New York sharps scent something phony about the grand reconciliation scene between the White House and the Federation of Labor. They should have had an offstage orchestra playing 'Hearts and Flowers' when John Lewis and Donald Richberg pulled that unanimous handshake. The act had all the realism of an 1840 melodrama.

Insiders say the gap between the administration and organized labor is far too wide to be bridged by the mouthing of sweet sentiments or giving labor another representative on the Recovery Board. They hope it that FDR realizes his slaps at the Federation are costing him dear politically and is trying to negotiate a new basis of understanding.

But they add that it will take at least two jumps to cross the chasm and everything depends on whether he land on a rock or a banana peel in the middle. If Richberg is to be the stepping stone they figure the footing will worse than precarious.

SWEPT: Reports persist in informed quarters that the President's current concession to the Federation chiefs is the curtain raiser for more important gestures to come. The Wagner bill is Labor's fondest dream. Despite denials it's doubted that Senator Wagner swung to the White House side of the prevailing wage argument without at least a farish quid pro quo.

This doesn't mean that the Wagner bill will necessarily get an official White House blessing. But astute observers expect the administration lacks which were strewn in its path last session to be quietly swept away.

DISPOSING: New York understands that A. D. Whiteside's resignation from the National Recovery Board traces to the scrapping of his pet ideas by the higher-ups. He was a staunch advocate of limiting NRA to a maximum hour-minimum wage—no child labor proposition. A couple of months ago this plan seemed certain of official adoption. Now it's been replaced by a revised project halfway between its stark simplicity and the complications of the original setup.

Shrewd wathers believe FDR has erred in giving the boys on Capital Hill such a clearly-defined target to snipe at. "He doesn't seem to realize the days are gone when a measure becomes law on his say-so. He can still propose—but you can bet your grand piano that Congress will do the disposing from now on."

CUT-THROAT: Many business men—especially those connected with code authorities—are panicky at the prospect of a savage price-cutting spree after June 15 unless NRA is renewed in a form which includes regulation of trade practices. They are trying hard to drum up a rousing industrial demand for continuation of codes.

Some important lines are already suffering from an unofficial but widespread buyers' strike. Wholesale purchasers are holding off on the theory that prices will drop through the cellar when current NRA restrictions are removed by failure of Congress to act. The most disturbing angle is that they have been inspired by this attitude by the advice of certain manufacturers notorious in the past for cut-throat tactics.

APPEAL: Keep your eye on the New York State Committee for the Revival of Private Enterprise. This committee was recently formed as a sort of offshoot from the New York Economic Council. A mild and inexpensive drive for members last week netted over a thousand recruits. If the idea catches on well here you can expect creation of a national organization on similar lines shortly.

The committee has so far avoided locking horns on specific issues—and will continue that policy as consistently as it can. In general it aims at curtailment of state and national spending and abandonment of business reform legislation. Its sponsors plan to build gradually and carefully—avoiding direct conflict with other groups and individuals as completely as possible. Politically it is finally gave an official blessing to Senator Copeland's pure food and drug bill. The interesting angle was Undersecretary of Agriculture Rex Tugwell's reappearance in the picture.

Last year, the food and drug bill failed because Tugwell's name was too closely identified with it. This session the Brain Trust kept carefully out of sight and let Copeland take all the credit until the day before Mr. Roosevelt wrote Congress asking for the legislation.

legislation until next session has several highly interesting features. One is that the demand for delay runs exactly counter to the expressed desires of the administration yet it arises from members of Congress who have been regarded always as particularly friendly to Mr. Roosevelt.

Another is that the postponement campaign is designed to relieve industry of a new additional expense—the pay-roll tax relief upon to pay in part, the cost of the unemployment insurance system.

A third is that those who do not want to act now are denying, on this one specific point, the administration theory that "reform" should accompany and be intertwined with recovery; that even before the present depression is ended, positive steps should be taken to avert future depressions.

What is happening on the insurance issue means that a considerable bloc of Mr. Roosevelt's own people, who want to see him succeed in downing the depression and who expect enthusiastically to support him for re-election are convinced that for his own good he ought to taper off the period of experimentation.

They are in favor of avoiding further steps which would put an additional tax or regulatory burden on the period of experimentation.

They are in favor of avoiding further steps which would put an additional tax or regulatory burden on industry, and letting it see what it now can do for itself toward the resumption of normal industrial activity.

By and large, there has been very little of that attitude in Washington heretofore. Those who have opposed non-partisan—but its program could easily serve as a rallying point for conservatives of all parties.

The group is wary of the pitfalls which sent the American Liberty League off to a stumbling start. Its featured membership will be solid but relatively inconspicuous citizens—no duPonts or Davises as shining marks for left wingers. By beginning as a New York State outfit it avoids crossing swords with Washington too soon and can feel its way along the channels of public opinion with less danger of running on a rock.

The committee makes a special appeal to consumers—neatly timed to take advantage of mounting protests about the cost of living. The point is stressed that consumers pay for high taxes and legislative burdens in higher prices. Insiders predict the outfit will be a factor nationally by 1936.

COLLEGE WILL OPEN SEASON HERE TODAY

East Carolina Teachers College will open its baseball season here today when they play the Guilford College nine in the first of a two-game series. The second game is to be played on Thursday afternoon. The game will be called at 3 o'clock on the athletic field at the college.

Starting out with only five-letter men, at last season as a nucleus upon which to build a winning nine. Coach Mathis has built up a strong team from the twenty-odd candidates which reported at the first of the season. Although Guilford has the edge on the locals, a good game is anticipated both today and Thursday.

East Carolina Teachers College will also play High Point College here on Saturday and Monday in a two-game series.

LOCAL HIGHS BEAT TARBORO

Nice hits, splendid fielding and air tight pitching by Richard Downing gave the Greensies a 3 to 1 victory Tuesday afternoon in Tarboro over the Tarboro High School.

Richard did as good a job of portending that old apple over the plate as one usually sees for a high school pitcher. He held the opposition to six hits, well scattered until the ninth when two were bunched to fill the bases. Dick did some nice work to come out of that hole without a run scored on him. The one run tall artoro scored was not earned, two errors and a hit accounted for the lone score.

Bill Clark continued his superb fielding, Parrish and Hatem also came through with nice catches. Bill went far into left center field to make a beautiful running catch with one hand. This was a catch that Lou Gehrig calls a "pencil salesman" catch—catch the ball with one hand and sell pencils with the other hand.

Pierce, Clark and Parrish led their team in hitting, they made six of the nine hits, each had two to his credit. Downing had one clean hit to his credit. The Tarboro players made a nice trail from home plate back to their bench as nine were retired by the strikeout route.

Lewis, Tarboro pitcher kept the nine hits well scattered. In the fifth Greenville bunched three hits to score two runs. With men on third and second, Tom Parrish came through with a hard drive that scored both men. Lewis had six strikeouts to his credit.

'CONTRACT' 1935 RULES EXPLAINED

(The third of a series of four articles on the new contract bridge code, effective March 31, by an outstanding official of the game details with penalties for violations of the laws during the play period.)

By ALFRED M. GRUENTHER
(Written For The Associated Press)
The Play Period

New Terms: Four new terms are used in this period. "Defender" replaces the cumbersome "opponent of declarer." "Penalty card" is used instead of less descriptive and inaccurate term "exposed card." The "dummy" is now "declarer's partner" and the "dummy hand" is known as the "faced hand."

PENALTY CARD OF DEFENDER: If during the play a defender improperly exposes a card, such a card becomes a penalty card. A penalty card must be left face up on the table until played, and whenever it is the turn of the defender who owns it to play he must play it, unless the play of the penalty card would constitute a revoke.

This law involves a slight change from the old exposed card law in that heretofore the owner of a penalty card was not required to play it at the first opportunity. Instead, the card remained subject to call by declarer, unless, in the meantime the owner had a chance to play it. In actual play, the new law will make little difference, since the alert declarer has always forced the play of the exposed card if it was to his advantage to do so. If he failed to call it, the owner would usually play it anyhow in order to avoid the danger of being required to play it later at an inopportune moment.

Complicated Law Replaced. LEAD OUT OF TURN: By declarer from either hand. Either defender may require declarer to take back the lead and to lead a card of the same suit from the correct hand. This is the same law which has been in force many years.

By a defender: Declarer may either treat the card led out of turn as a penalty side as soon as it is the turn of a defender to lead.

The law relating to an out of turn lead by a defender takes the place of old law 46, which was so complicated that few tournament directors have been able to agree on its exact interpretation. As it is re-written there can be no doubt as to its meaning.

Re-written For Clarity. THE REVOKE AND ESTABLISHED REVOKE: The substance of the revoke law has not been changed, though it has been re-written in the interest of clarity. The penalty for an established revoke is still two tricks. These are transferred from the tricks won by the revoking side after its revoke (including the revoking trick). To clear up a point which has long bothered contract bridge players, assume that South is playing a hand and that West revokes to the third trick which is won by his side. The revoke becomes established and the revoking side does not win any more tricks. In that event, the penalty is paid by the transfer of only one trick. However, if an additional trick is won by the revoking side the two-trick penalty must be paid.

Another long disputed point which is now specifically covered in the laws is illustrated by the following situation: Declarer revokes to the sixth trick and now spreads his hand claiming the balance of the tricks. In this way he does not actually play to a subsequent trick, and for that reason there has always been some question whether the claim establishes the revoke. This point is now settled affirmatively in L.A.W. 29.

Penalty Less Severe. INSPECTING A QUITTED TRICK: If a quitted trick is looked at before the end of the hand, the opponents score 50 points in their premium score.

The old law provided that the non-offending side might call a lead, but it has been realized for some time that this penalty is too severe. To be forced to make a specified lead frequently results in a severe penalty—entirely out of keeping with this relatively minor, though annoying, offense.

RIGHTS OF DECLARER'S PARTNER: Under the new laws, declarer's partner is given certain definite rights as follows:

- (a) Reply to a player's proper question.
- (b) When requested, discuss questions of fact or law.
- (c) Question declarer regarding his possible revoke.
- (d) Draw attention to a defender's irregularity and ask declarer if he knows his rights.

Laxative So Many Like. Old folks, young folks—thousands of them say they prefer Theford's Black-Draught when they need a laxative. It does its work so well. "I have used Theford's Black-Draught in my family since 1885," writes Mr. Henson Temple, Smithdale, Miss. "We do not feel like we could keep house without Black-Draught. We are quite a good ways from town, and a good simple medicine, like Black-Draught, is good to have on hand. All these years I have never changed because it gave satisfaction."

ers objected to this drastic limitation, so the law making body has again given the dummy player a voice in the proceedings.

One important change involving declarer's partner which may be missed in a casual study of the laws involves the revoke rights if declarer's partner leaves the table during the play of the hand. Under the old code, if dummy left the table the adversaries could not claim the penalty for an established revoke unless one of them had questioned declarer before the revoke became established. This protection provision has now been repealed so that if declarer's partner leaves the table, the declarer is fully liable for any established revokes made during his absence.

(Tomorrow Lieutenant Gruenther will explain the new scoring.)

A log church built, in 1708, near Tompkinsville, Ky., and known as Old Mulkey meeting house, is said to be the oldest wooden building in Kentucky.

New York Cotton

New York, March 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened easy seven to 12 lower on decision of mill owners to curtail mill operations and under foreign and commission house selling. Buying at the start was followed by selling after the call.

July sold off to 10.96 and December to 10.65 or net declines of 12 to 14 points. Demand improved after the setback May holding steady at net declines of four to seven points at the end of the first half hour.

The market remained quiet during the forenoon with fluctuations narrow. July eased after advancing from 10.86 to 11.08 under steady pressure with active months showing net losses of four to eight points at midday.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 27.—(AP)—The dark cloud that has surrounded railroad financing and continued financial and economic tension in Europe kept Wall street as cautious today as a man treading on eggs. Recent selling pressure in the securities market subsided, however, and further recovery of grains were encouraging. In foreign exchange dealings the Belgas was brought under control and the gold bloc quarters breathed a sigh of relief but further advances in sterling indicated a continued flow of funds from the continent to London. The turnover for the session was only about 480,000 shares.

amended from the floor to give justices of the peace continuation of their present constitutional status would.

Allow increase in Supreme Court justices from five to seven; allow courts to sit in division; allow the creating of criminal superior courts and election of judges to hold the criminal courts; allow waiver of trial by jury and other changes.

The proposed taxation changes would raise the limit of income taxes from six to ten per cent; allow classification of real and personal property for taxation; permit local government units to exempt from taxation homesteads occupied by the owners up to $1,000 in value and place new limits on public indebtedness.

Forty-eight allotments in the appropriations bill were adopted by the House as a committee of the whole with but one change. Bryant of Durham, chairman of the appropriation group requested that the first year's allotment for Western Carolina Teachers College be boosted $15,000.

The section adopted included appropriations for judicial and all state executive departments and all educational institutions, they were East Carolina Teachers College, $106,365; State Hospital, Goldsboro $234,790; Caswell Training School $160,440.

The bill to permit the sale of five per cent beer in the state which was passed Monday night was ratified into law.

The Senate got a new bill to require the teaching in public schools of the "harmful effects from the use of Alcohol." It was also given two bills relating to superior courts. One would allow judges to remove foremen of grand juries for cause and the other would create court committees for the calling and con- ducting of criminal and civil terms.

The biennial revenue bill passed by the House yesterday and given to the Senate finance committee this morning and a meeting of the group was called for this afternoon. Chairman Newman, of New Hanover, said the bill will be reported out of the committee tomorrow or Friday. The House will meet to- night to work on the appropriations bill.

Hopkins Head Man.

Washington, March 27.—(AP)—Creation of the machinery to spend the $4,880,000,000 occupied the administration today as the work-relief program appeared headed for the congressional finish line.

Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, has emerged as the number one candidate for handling the program to give work to 3,500,000 employables with such others as Secretary Ickes and Under-Secretary Rexford Tugwell apparently booked for more or less important parts. Some officials recall the previous White House expressions that President Roosevelt would be the chief boss of the relief funds but his personal activity was expected to deal more with policies than with details.

As soon as the Senate and House conferees concluding final draft of the relief bill and their work has been approved by each house the administration is expected to announce its work relief organization.

● Right now we are holding a Spring Parade of Frigidaire's 16 beautiful new models—each with the marvelous new Super Freezer.

The Super Freezer makes possible a complete refrigeration service. It provides the right kinds of cold for every purpose—all in the same cabinet. There's fast freezing for making ice cubes and desserts; frozen storage for meats and ice cream; extra-cold storage for keeping a reserve supply of ice cubes; moist storage for vegetables and fruits; and normal storage under 50° for foods requiring dry, frosty cold.

Ice trays glide from the Super Freezer at a finger touch; automatic reset defrosting turns on the current when defrosting is completed; interior electric light; low current consumption and the famous Frigidaire Cold Control. Let us show you how you can let a Frigidaire '35 pay for itself out of the savings it makes possible.
