Nation Orders 120,000 Conscripts to be Gotten Ready for Service; Britain and Italy Prepare For Stress Conference; Ethiopia Confirms Reports of Breaking Off Negotiations With Italy

(By The Associated Press)

A French ministerial council decided to keep 60,000 men under arms to guard her frontiers while 120,000 new conscripts men are being trained, and while England, France and Italy determined at the Stress conference April 11 how to secure European peace in the face of German rearmament.

The three powers were constantly in touch with one another. The British cabinet will meet Monday to hear a full report of Captain Anthony Eden on his European tour and to outline more definitely the British program at Stress.

There was some excitement in the free city of Danzig where a flood of Nazi fervor carried the populace along rapidly to the Volstag election tomorrow and at Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian capital. Emperor Haile Selassie confirmed for the first time an extensive interview that his nation has broken off direct negotiations with Italy in the border dispute.

Paris—The council of ministers presided over by President Lebrun decided to keep the active army force up to 250,000 trained men in France for the next sixty days. Troops meanwhile were moving into quarters on the French border near Metz. The cabinet will meet in special session April 9 to decide on the policy of Stress.

London—It was officially intimated today that Britain's major job at the Stress conference will be to keep France's condemnation of German rearmament from wrecking works of Sir John Simon and Anthony Eden on the continent.

Simon, Eden and possibly even Premier Ramsay MacDonald will attend the Stress meeting. The British government had not made up its mind what attitude to take on rearmament.

Revenue Bill Back In
Senate; Still "Short"Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, N. C., April 6.—The revenue bill is at last in the Senate, with the 3 per cent sales tax back in it, with the dividends tax removed and with the amount to be diverted from the highway fund between $1,630,000 and $1,790,000 a year, depending upon whether or not gasoline sales continue to increase.

But even with this increased amount to be diverted from the highway fund, which may amount to $790,000 a year more than was authorized by the House, the revenue bill still lacks $51,647,542 of balancing with the appropriations bill for the next two years, according to the estimates of Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell if only $1,630,000 is diverted from the highway fund. If gasoline sales increase as they have been increasing the past few months, or at the rate of 10 per cent, the amount diverted will probably amount to $1,790,000 a year. But even then the revenue bill will still lack $1,295,542 of balancing with the appropriations bill.

The appropriations bill figures provide for an increase in salaries of school teachers and other State employees of only 20 per cent the first year 25 per cent the second year. In order to make the 25 per cent increase effective for both years, the Senate will have to throw the bill more than $2,000,000 out of balance for the biennium.

If the Senate would put the tax on dividends back into the bill, it is agreed that the bill would yield at least $500,000 a year more than some believe this tax would yield as much as $1,000,000 a year in additional revenue. But most observers agree that there is not much likelihood that the Senate will consider reinstating the dividends tax unless that the House forces it to do so by refusing to accept the Senate amendment removing it. But history is past sessions shows that the House usually recedes more quickly than the Senate when revenue bills go to conference.

Senator Newman, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, does not agree entirely with the estimate prepared by Commissioner Maxwell and maintains that the revenue bill as it now stands, will yield at least $1,747,000 the first year of the next biennium and $2,747,000 the second year, as the result of more liberal estimates he has made as to the yield from the different taxes in the bill. If Senator Newman's estimates are correct, the bill will yield a surplus in excess of appropriations of $285,753 the first year and will fall short of appropriations the second year by only $573,295, with a total difference for the biennium of only $288,295. He believes that this slight difference can easily be taken up and the revenue be made to show a slight credit balance for each balance for each year of the biennium.

Episcopal Church Head to Pay Annual Visitation to Local Church Tomorrow

Rt. Rev. Thomas C. Darst, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Eastern Carolina, will pay his annual visitation to St. Paul's Episcopal Church tomorrow, it was announced today by Rev. Wicker, rector of the local church.

The bishop will be accompanied to Greenville by Mrs. Darst. They are expected to arrive this afternoon and will be guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wicker at the rectory.

Tomorrow afternoon Bishop Darst will pay his annual visitation to St. Paul's Cross Roads and deliver a sermon before the congregation of that church.

Final passage was expected late today or Monday.

Conscription of officials was approved by vote. The amendment was offered by Representative Lee Lee, Democrat, of Oklahoma.

Quickly the House then approved an amendment by Representative Connelly, of Massachusetts, raising the age range from 21 to 31 to 21 to 45 of the members of the unorganized.

WORK RELIEF
BILL FINALLY GIVEN OKAY

Huge Peacetime Appropriation Measure Ready For Signature Of Pres. Roosevelt

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—The New Deal today staked $4,880,000—vastest peace-time appropriation in history—on its plans to bring relief to public works while the nation watched to see who would be chosen to direct the huge task and just how it would be tackled.

Showing a bit of last-minute speed after 75 days of debate and delay Congress completed the emergency measure yesterday when the Senate passed the conference reported 66 to 13, and the House did likewise, 317 to 70.

The President, fishing off the coast of Florida, was expected to sign the legislation into law as soon as it could be sent to him by airplane. Vice-President Garner planned to affix his signature today ending upon Congressional formalities.

The questions, "Where is the money coming from?" was raised at the last minute in Senate debate yesterday. Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, asserted there had been little talk about that phase of the matter and protested that the bill should contain his plan for issuing more silver back currency.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, retorted that the $4,880,000 would come from the taxpayers and, "When it comes there will be the biggest howl ever heard."

July 1 was circle on the administration calendar today as the date for putting the main part of the program into effect. On that date officials said the government will move to provide $50 a month jobs for able-bodied men and women now on the dole. An effort will be made to increase the number of work relief from the present total of 2,500,000 to 3,500,000.

Mr. Roosevelt asked that the matter go over until he had absorbed a little sunshine and rest. For the time being those seeking final knowledge must be content with his statement that he would veto a 1935 payment bill.

SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE FIRE PREVENTION

April 9 Set Aside For Observance in Various Schools of the County

Forest fire prevention will be observed in various schools of the county April 9. It was made known today by R. W. King, Pitt County Forest Fire Warden.

Programs, it was understood, have been arranged in each of the schools and children will be told of the tremendous loss experienced from fires each year and also instructed in the best ways to prevent such conflagrations.

Referring to the forest fire situation throughout the county, Warden King said his men had controlled more than sixty fires during the past month, saving hundreds of cords of cut timber left in the woods and have also protected many buildings, fences and various other kinds of property over the county.

The warden urged farmers to move cord wood out of the forests. He pointed out that most of the fires dealt with the past month resulted from farmers burning brush with the fire spreading into wooded areas.

He said one large fire spread into Pitt county from Martin county, but that Pitt warden received no aid from Martin county because that county has no forest fire organization. Lenoir, Greene, Wilson, Edgecombe, Beaufort and Craven counties are co-operating in state forest fire protection and Pitt county has not been harassed from fires spreading from those areas, it was said.

Warden King said his men had received fine co-operation from people in the rural areas in their attempt to reduce the annual toll of the fire demon. He said this was evidenced by the fact that only one indictment had been obtained for a violation.

He expressed appreciation of the spirit of co-operation shown by the Board of Education in setting aside April 9 for observance of forest fire prevention and declared that good results should be obtained from the movement.

Sen. Reynolds
Buys New Auto;
Junks Old One

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—The dilapidated old automobile Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina used in his 1932 campaign—and since a hunk of junk in the Senate garage—has gone for its reward. He has traded it for one of the fancy 1935 models—a long gray sedan with trunk, rear wheels and radio.

Reynolds' old campaign car, vintage of the 1930 automobile, was a familiar sight in North Carolina when he took the stump against the then Senator Cameron Morrison.

STILL SEEKING DROWNED BOY

Dragging of Tar River Continued Today for Stacy Highsmith Drowned Yesterday

Search continued today for the body of Stacy Highsmith, 13-year-old Third Street school boy, who was drowned when the boat in which he was attempting to cross rampaging Tar River overturned early yesterday afternoon.

Another youth by the name of Jordan, 11, was also thrown in the stream but saved himself by grabbing a rope tied to a fish trap under the railroad drawbridge and drawing himself to safety. The other youth and the boat were swept down stream by the raging current and soon disappeared from sight.

Light plant employees hauled young Jordan to safety, but efforts of Will Hill and Alton Vincent, who broke the chains of a boat and starter in pursuit of Highsmith, were unavailing. The swift current was said to have kept young Highsmith afloat for some distance, but his body was said to have disappeared near the highway bridge.

Owing to the swift current and high water, efforts to locate the body yesterday afternoon were greatly handicapped. Grappling hooks were used, but the body had not been located at nightfall when work was suspended. Dragging operations were continued this morning, and belief was expressed that the body would be recovered during the day.

The drowned youth was the son of Mrs. Katie Highsmith of Reed Street.

The family had been living here about a year, moving from Rocky Mount. The youth was a student in the fourth grade at Third Street School.

Surviving are the mother and several brothers and sisters. Kermit Wildron and Evelyn Highsmith, of Greenville; Mrs. J. A. Kelly, Philadelphia; Mrs. J. A. Stewart, Hampton, Va.; Leslie Highsmith, of New York; and Patrick Highsmith, Hampton, Va.

MANAGER FOR LEAGUE CLUB
SOUGHT HERE

Officials Begin Search For Playing Head For Coastal Plain Outfit

A committee was named to employ a manager for the Greenville baseball club of the Coastal Plain league at a meeting of club officials and directors here last night.

Although the names of prospective managers under consideration were not divulged today, it was said that two or three were to be conferred with in the next three or four days and some definite action taken.

It was said that a playing manager would be insisted upon, and the committee was told to keep this fact in mind while looking over the field of prospects.

In addition to discussion of the managerial problem, the ball heads also elected Berry Bostic as a member of the Board of Directors. Ways and means for financing the club this year were also given some consideration but it was understood this would not come up for final action until a later date.

"Tiek" Poole and Milton Harrington were managers of the club last year. Harrington handling the team during the first part of the season and Poole the latter. It was understood that neither was being considered for the post this year.

With Goldsboro and Williamston admitted to membership in the league this year, making it an eight-team circuit, all clubs were turning their attention to getting players lined up for the opening of the season June 4.

The opening date and decision to admit the two extra towns were decided at a meeting of the league directors in Ayden Thursday night. The campaign will close August 23 with the schedule calling for 72 games in 71 days, the teams playing home-and-home games on July 4.

The league this year will be composed of Kinston, Greenville, Ayden, New Bern, Tarboro, Snow Hill, Williamston and Goldsboro. Four of the holdover clubs have announced managers for this year, Doc Smith going back to Ayden, Bunn Hearne to Kinston, George Whitte to Tarboro and Chick Doak to New Bern. Peahead Walker is expected to return as manager of the Snow Hill club.

FOUR HELD IN CAR ROBBERY

Negroes Arrested on Charge of Robbing Norfolk - Southern Freight Cars

Four negroes, described by police as notorious freight car robbers, were in custody here today, charged with the robbery of two Norfolk Southern freight cars here last night.

They are Boston McNeal, Frank Austin, Eddie Barnes and Robert Betha.

They are charged with breaking into freight cars last night, at 8:30 and 2:30. Cigarettes were believed to have been taken in the first robbery, but the total amount of loot had not been determined today because a check had not been made.

The early morning robbery resulted in the loss of rayon goods and men's belts. This was also recovered as the negroes attempted to elude capture.

Austin was taken here during the early morning hours when he was picked up in Wilson and McNeal and Barnes were taken off the train at Farmville.

The cigarette theft was not discovered until the train, which reached here about ten minutes, reached Marsden. The car door was found open and railroad officials immediately notified Greenville. The thieves are believed to have caught a returning freight and robbed the car of rayon and belts.

Chief of Police George Clark said this morning that McNeal had been connected with freight car robberies for a number of years and had served several terms on the roads. He also said the others had been prominently connected with a ring of thieves confining their attention largely to taking goods from cars.

The three arrested in Farmville and Wilson were to be returned here during the day where they will face preliminary hearing probably Monday morning.

Raymond Hamilton, noted outlaw of the Southwest, captured in Dallas, Texas, yesterday, is scheduled to die for the death of a guard in a prison break engineered by the dead Clyde Barrow.

The slippery 22-year-old bandit and understudy of the slain Clyde Barrow, and ranked in the criminal world with Alvin Karpis and Thomas H. Robinson, was captured last night without a shot being fired.

Although he had sworn not to be taken alive, Hamilton submitted meekly when Sheriff Smoot Schuchman's deputies and Ft. Worth officers encountered the bandit in the railroad yards at Fort Worth.

Deputy Sheriff Phil Dacker, of Dallas County, poked a gun in his ribs and told him, "Hoist 'em, Ray," and Hamilton obeyed.

Hamilton was rushed to Dallas County where plans were made to take him to the prison at Huntsville for electrocution as the murder of Major Strawson, prison guard, slain in the prison delivery engineered by Barrow.

The States do not have to watch the funds.

LEGISLATIVE

By C. A. PAUL

No longer will North Carolina sheriffs be halted by imaginary lines when they are hot on the trail of felons. Already passed by the Senate and approved by the Lower House, is a bill which will permit sheriffs and their deputies to get their man, even if they have to cross county lines to do it.

As originally passed by the Senate, the bill provided that such officers could serve criminal processes in other counties than their own. The House Judiciary Committee No. 1 amended it so that the officers may do so only when those accused of felonies run across county lines. In other words the sheriff must actually be giving chase before he can legally cross a county line.

What is a drug store? That is a question the House of Representatives is asking.

Southwestern Outlaw To be Returned to Penitentiary to be Electrocuted For Slaying Guard; Maintains Air of Bravado Even in the Face of Certain Death

Dallas, Texas, April 6.—(AP)—Raymond Hamilton, southwestern desperado, and one of the trio labeled by the Department of Justice as Public Enemy No. 1, was behind prison bars today, the first time since he escaped from the Texas penitentiary death row.

THEY SHOULDN'T MEDDLE IN OUR AFFAIRS

Politics and the old line politicians rode in the saddle again yesterday when the senate bill that would abolish the absentee ballot in Pitt County received an unfavorable report. However, Senator Corey, sponsor of the bill was able to get a minority report on it and the matter will be brought out on the floor of the Senate. The Senate committee likewise gave an unfavorable report on a bill that would require county party chairmen who intend to be candidates for public office to resign their chairmanships before the date for appointment of county boards of election, registrars, poll holders and other election officials.

As we see it the absentee ballot should be abolished statewide, for there has never been a feature of our election system in this state that has been more widely abused or has let in more crookedness in our primaries. If, however, the politicians are so strong in the legislature that they will not permit statewide repeal, certainly we see no reason why any county that desires abolition of the absentee ballot for that county cannot have it. The expressed determination of the committee to see to it that no single county gets repeal of the absentee ballot because it might prove an entering wedge that would result in statewide repeal and the wrecking of their political playhouses is we believe nothing but pure meddling in the affairs and rights of any single county, to make that county accept a provision of law that is rotten to the core, in order that crooked politicians in some other county might be in position to reap personal political benefits from the operation of the system that they too might lose if one county is permitted to endeavor to clean up its politics.

While there might be a few politicians in this county who would like to see the absentee ballot continued here, we believe we express the wishes and sentiment of the vast majority of the voters in this county when we say that the law should be abolished. If the other counties don't want it abolished, certainly we would appreciate it if they would keep their hands out of our business and let the Corey bill pertaining to Pitt County only, be adopted by the General Assembly. There is no possibility of an honest election with the absentee ballot law in effect and if our county wants to rid itself of this abomination we don't think the politicians from other counties should be allowed to interfere.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

They are beginning to make themselves felt as the Grand Army of the Republic did for years after the Civil War. "With the bonus a settled account the demand for straight pensions will grow until they are heeded by Congress. The executive branch of the government always shudders at the cost which is charged against the budget."

SELECTIVE: The Veterans of Foreign Wars, who have successfully led the bonus fight so far, already have worked out a uniform World War pension system. It would be based strictly on length and type of service and FVW actuaries claim it would cut 25 per cent from the cost of present-day veterans administration.

This pension plan, you will be hearing much more about it a little later—would give prime consideration to the soldiers who had actually bared his chest to enemy bullets—and in many instances caught one. It would eliminate men without overseas services from further consideration.

The American Legion has not spoken yet in definite terms. Its membership includes many who never got outside the United States. There are 2,000,000 World War soldiers in this class and they may want a slice of pension when the passing starts. It is only human.

POLICY: Washington political observers for the most part agree that President Roosevelt's New Deal will finally make or break on administration of the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill.

Here again FDR is facing a vital decision when he gets back from Florida.

Will spending of the huge sum proceed along the same slow and careful lines Secretary Ickes has laid down so far in PWA or will there be a flurry of fast spending designed to get as many in jobs at once as possible regardless of the merit of work done? Harry Hopkins tried the latter in the winter of 1933-34 with his CWA program.

AFFECTED: Ickes still is for planned construction that promises financial return to the government or affords lasting benefits to the community. Marriner Eccles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, Benjamin V. Cohen, general counsel for the Power Policy Committee, and others support the so-called scientific spending idea. Former No. 1 Braintrust Ray Moley recently warned in print that not much of the $4,880,000,000 would be spent immediately.

Against this group of planned spenders who wish to weigh every project long and carefully are the many who demand that the money be put in circulation just as fast as possible among the 3,500,000 employables now on relief rolls, the cost to be counted later. Republicans, the Huey Long opposition and others will be watching every expenditure like cats at a rat hole. They will be ready to criticize long and loudly—and FDR's chances of reelection next year can hardly fail to be affected one way or the other.

BREAKDOWN: If you observe Congress in action these days, and then talk privately to members, you can hardly escape the conclusion that an aura of apathy—to say the least—has spread over the houses.

A great many members profess to be in a whirl over the increasing magnitude of the New Deal set-up. They protest they are being overworked, if by nothing else, from an unprecedented influx of mail dealing with a myriad of subjects. Administration supporters are being harassed on the score of patronage. Certainly something is seriously wrong. In three months not one major piece of legislation has gone through the mill.

BLOCKED: Senator Wagner pegs away on his labor disputes bill. Industrialists and code authorities come in knocking the bill, claiming that it turns over all industry to the American Federation of Labor. Impartial observers agree that the conflict between organized labor and organized industry shows no sign of ending. No solution is in sight—certainly the Wagner bill will not be passed without a desperate fight, and the chances against it seem to be overwhelming.

The truth is that organized labor is deeply dissatisfied, disgruntled with the administration and waiting for a favorable opportunity to strike. Better times would precipitate strikes. Textile people actually would welcome strikes but labor is too canny to force the issue in that industry.

The darkest part of the Congressional situation at this time is the failure to bring industry and labor together.

SYNOPSIS: James and Jane Stimson have returned from a honeymoon, in which there was only one untoward circumstance—James was not married enough. And Leslie Harris, whom James probably would have married but for Jane's efficient scheming and the help of the town bachelors, seems happy, almost. Now it's up to James to live up to the five "swords" Jane's father and mother have given him and Jane.

Chapter 28

ROUGH CORNERS

JAMES and Jane, meantime, were spending most of their evenings arranging or re-arranging their brand new furniture and three hundred and twenty-six wedding presents, or at least Jane was arranging and re-arranging while James was admiring each succeeding effect.

"Lord," James groaned one evening in mock despair, "I don't believe that anyone outside the Vanderbilts and Astors ever had so much truck."

They were in the dining room. Jane had just finished cramming a groaning cabinet with a plenitude of elaborate and heavy cut glass. Another cabinet displayed an infinitesimal part of their hand painted china.

Their plate rail, their tables and to hang up his hat, to put away his umbrella, not to strew papers and parcels and God knows what all over the back parlor table.

He remembered one day and forgot the next. Just as he forgot important and vital matters like hours for meals.

"I don't see," he protested vigorously, "why the stars should stop in their courses because I am ten or fifteen minutes late. Why do we have to have dinner anyway at half-past six exactly?"

"For one reason because I have only one servant. A house is a little factory. It has to be run like one or a single girl cannot get through her work."

Jane bore it for a time with exemplary patience. She told herself that she had married a genius. Geniuses could not be expected to behave even as you and I. Still, it did seem sometimes that James was displaying more selfishness than temperament. And she had no intention of encouraging selfishness.

As the weeks went on James developed a succession of irritating habits. Jane was soon complaining to her mother of her husband. "What's the matter? You seem worried," Mrs. Northrup said one morning when Jane dropped in for mantels and bureaus and book cases could scarcely hold all their valuable bric-a-brac. Clocks ticked in every room, pictures crowded the walls, fancy covers adorned the tables, mirrors gleamed in every available nook.

"I'll never be able to live up to it," James went on. "If ever two people started housekeeping in champagne style on a beer income it's us."

"Well, I wasn't brought up in beer style and neither were you. I've long prided myself on being able to make a dollar do the work of two. Don't you worry. Anyway, there's always Father to fall back on."

"Your father's helped us with obligations already. I don't mind him giving you an allowance to spend on yourself, but I'd prefer to pay the house bills. ... live on what I make."

"All right," Jane replied cheerfully. "Father has done an awful lot. It's up to you now to hustle around and bring home the bacon."

"I'm trying to do just that," James said humbly.

"Of course you are. Of course I expect you to. Making a living is the very least of what I expect of you." Jane smiled at him brightly and James kissed her. He did wish, however, that Jane did not accept the making of a living so casually.

OTHER young couples in New Concord started housekeeping in small cottages with the brides doing their own work. He did not, of course, expect Jane to do without a servant. Even in the mansion they would have had to have a servant. Jane expected him to compliment her frequently because she managed to get along with one. And with all the dusting.

The servant question loomed large on the young Stimson's horizon. Jane had already tried out two and lost them. Later she lost others. But this Jane claimed was more James' fault than hers and Jane probably was right.

In spite of all his good resolutions, James proved him if far from a model husband. Jane often said that five minutes after he came through the front door the house looked as if a baby elephant had been rampaging through it. James tried to remember, industry resulted from the government's retreat creates a critical problem of a different sort. For many months those who have consistently violated the code have mostly been operating in the black while competitors who heeded the law have been losing business because they were obliged to charge higher prices. The latter now feel that their loyalty has been shabbily rewarded by the government and there's strong sentiment in favor of chucking the code in the nearest ashpile.

But this again would never do from the New Deal viewpoint. It would be terrible psychology to have a major industry scrap its code just as the battle to renew NRA is getting hot.

Informed New Yorkers understand that Washington is privately polishing up a club which it hopes will be effective. Last year federal purchases accounted for 8 per cent of domestic lumber consumption. This year—thanks to work relief appropriations—the figure may be closer to 25 per cent. It might make a difference to the industry's viewpoint if a policy were established that Uncle Sam would buy lumber only from codeadherents.

DAMPER: Regardless of how the Mellon tax case comes out it has had its effect on important financial circles.

You may have noticed that big-time conservatives have been surprisingly reticent about voicing opinion criticism of the New Deal—despite mounting evidence that its popularity is fading. The opposition is much more confident than it was a few months ago—but it still prefers to operate underground as far as possible.

Why? Because right wing leaders harbor a lurking suspicion that they might find themselves in Mr. Mellon's shoes if they express themselves too freely—and that prospect puts a real damper on their craving to crab.

MONEY: Two schools of New York thought are trying desperately to get the administration's inner ear on the matter of monetary policy. One group—including many bankers—advocates a quick stabilization agreement with France in terms of gold. They are willing to have the dollar further revalued if necessary. They are more concerned about getting it nailed down than as to the point at which the nail is done. Proponents of this idea would ignore England unless she chooses to come in of her own accord.

The rival school favors abandonment of any hookup with gold for an indefinite period—perhaps permanently. Their plan is to reach an understanding with Britain as to management of currency so that the dollar and pound will not be cutting each other's throats. They argue that England has stabilized her domestic price level with remarkable success without tying to gold—and claim we would be wise to follow her example. They contend the increasing French demand for gold because of the war scare is bound to have deflationary effects here unless we cut loose from the metal pretty soon.

FDR has given no intimation which of these courses he favors—if either. But he won't be allowed to forget that a lot of people believe the monetary question is vital.

TEAM: Despite talk of Anglo-special order at an extra price is necessary to procure a 90-inch vehicle.

Thomas Contee Bowie, better known as Tam, is determined to see to it that babies are born in the wilds of Ashe County. When the bill which would regulate the practice of mid-wifery appeared before the House for the 'tenth time, he moved that it be re-referred to a judiciary committee. The much-traveled bill has been to the Senate Health Committee twice and to the House ditto a like number of times. Tam insists that he simply wants to protect the unborn babes of his bailiwick.

Already the bill has been rubber-stamped so many times on its blue folder that a compass and a guide book are almost necessary to chart its travels. It has been everywhere it seems, except to Ashe County. It won't go there if Tam has his way.

NO. 1 HANG-OVER--OVER EATING

Most people think of over drinking as the cause of hang-overs when over eating, or eating the wrong food is the big offender. Distress after eating is banished after a glass of 7-Up. The effect of 7-Up in the stomach neutralizes the acid—the CO2 (Carbon Dioxide) purifies and sweetens the stomach. 7-Up does take the "ouch" out of grouch. You can easily prove it. Keep a case at home. 7-Up sold wherever Bottled Drinks are sold. Order a case today from your grocer. The next Hang-Over will be No. 2—Over Drinking.

In addition to this, milk has been served by the school through the courtesy of Mr. J. H. Rose. Not counting labor this has cost the Salvation Army $92. Capt. By QUINTON JAMES

Germany's "national day of mourning" in which tribute was paid to that country's war dead, was made the occasion for the issuance of two special stamps.

Identified as "heroes' memorial day stamps," they were in denominations of 6 and 12 pfennigs. Within a frame of oak leaves was placed the profile of a German soldier wearing a steel helmet.

Across the top was the inscription "Heldengedenktage 1935" which is translated into "Heroes' Memorial Day 1935." Collectors pointed out that it was the first time that German war victims had been honored by a special stamp issue.

President Honored

Eighty-five years of life on mother earth already has been the appropriation of Dr. Thomas Garique Masaryk, president of the republic of Czechoslovakia. So, in honor of his birth anniversary, a special issue of adhesives is being brought forward by that country.

In two types, the four stamps bear portraits of Dr. Masaryk, together with a facsimile of his signature. On the 50 heller green and the 1 koruna red, the aged president is shown in profile wearing military headgear. The other two values, 2 korona blue and 3 korona green, have him in almost full face with a soft felt hat.

The stamps, classified as commemoratives, are engraved on heavy cream paper, which is tinted slightly in the basic color of the engraving.

Hill Horne's drug store served refreshments between the acts. Bissette's drug company donated the programs. The management of the Pitt Theatre placed their trained staff at the disposal of the Guild. The work of the stage carpenter, property men and others responsible for the technical smoothness of the show left very little to be desired. The Junior Woman's Club handled the advance sale of tickets in a manner to exceed expectations.

FUSSES CAUSE SENATE OKAYS FOR DELAY ON INCREASE FOR REVENUE BILL ROAD PATROL

Factional Disputes And "Trading" Held Responsible for Committee Deferment

Force to be Boosted to 121 Men; Little Opposition Expected in The House

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, N. C., April 6.—Factional fuses between different groups in the Senate Finance Committee, especially between those who opposed the dividends tax section and those favoring the 2 per cent sales tax rate, are responsible for the delay in getting the revenue bill out of committee and before the Senate. It is generally agreed here. The House passed the revenue bill almost two weeks ago. Since that time it has been in the Senate Finance Committee which has been wrangling over what to take out and what to leave in the bill.

One group in the committee, centering around Senators from certain Piedmont counties where several large manufacturing concerns and individuals with large incomes are located, has been working to strike out the section of the bill which would tax dividends from domestic corporations as normal income, under income tax law. The House adopted this section after the Joint Appropriations Committee had included it in the revenue bill, despite bitter opposition from a good many of the members of the Senate Finance Committee. Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell has estimated that this section would bring in between $500,000 and $600,000 additional revenue a year. Representative Ralph W. McDonald, of Forsyth County, maintained, and still maintains, that it will bring in $1,000,000 a year, or perhaps even more.

It is agreed that there are quite a number of large firms and corporations as well as some very wealthy individuals, some of whose incomes are derived from stock in domestic and foreign corporations, that are bitterly opposed to this provision and want to see it removed. As the law now stands, such dividends are not taxed as income on the basis that corporations which distribute such dividends have already paid the State corporation income and franchise taxes. The contention of the opponents of the tax is that that tax these dividends double taxation.

Another group in the Finance Committee, however, favored the retention of the dividends tax, the chain gasoline filling station tax, the chain store tax and virtually every new tax put into the bill in the House, in the hope that the sales tax right could be reduced from 3 per cent to 2 per cent.

But in spite of the opposition from this group and from Chairman Harris Newman, who favored the retention of the dividends tax, the Finance Committee finally voted Thursday to remove the dividends tax. This threw the bill at least another $500,000 a year out of balance with the appropriations bill. This action made those who favored the retention of the dividends tax and the lower sales tax members mad, with the result that they then joined forces and voted to reduce the sales tax rate to 2 per cent in retaliation. This threw the bill almost $5,000,000 a year out of balance with the appropriations bill. By this action the lower sales tax action the lower sales tax action said to the opponents of the dividends tax:

"If you are going to insist upon exempting wealthy corporations, millionaires, and persons of wealth from paying taxes on their dividends, then we are going to vote to reduce the rate of the sales tax and give the poorer people some relief, regardless of how much it will throw the revenue and appropriations bill out of balance."

Still another factor in the general fuss in the committee were that some of the members became peeved at Chairman Newman because he advocated taking an additional $630,000 from the highway fund and thus make the total to be diverted from the highway into the general fund $1,630,000 a year. There are also indications that some of those who voted to decrease the sales tax rate to 2 per cent did so in the hope that by so doing they might be able to get the committee to adopt the section which was proposed to tax liquor, and thus make the Hill bill, or at least the revenue sections of it, a part of the revenue bill. That effort failed.

IDEAL MARRIAGE AGES DETERMINED BY NAZIS

Berlin.—(AP)—With the calm assurance of a dictatorial regime, the Nazi racial politics department announces that the best ages for marrying are 26 for men and 24 for women. But, it admits, only about one-tenth of the 509,597 weddings in this country last year were of couples of those years. The department finds "the sharp increase in marriages due to national social encouragement" a source of great satisfaction. In 1932, it says, there were 79 marriages per 1,000 of population, compared to 10 in 1934.

BARBARA STANWYCK AT STATE MONDAY, TUESDAY

Barbara Stanwyck, in an entirely new kind of role, and with Warren William as leading man, comes to the State theatre Monday and Tuesday, in her latest Warner Bros. production, "The Secret Bride."

The picture, based on the play by Leonrod Ide, is a thrilling drama of political intrigue which involves the commission of two baffling murders and the impeachment of the governor of the state on bribery charges. It is said to provide Miss Stanwyck with her greatest opportunity for tense emotional characterization for which she is famous.

WAR ON 'WONKS' ORDERED BY PEIPING GOVERNMENT

PEIPING.—(AP)—War on "wonks," as the half-wild curs which roam the streets of this city are called, has been started by the municipal government, which is threatening to carry out in full a new regulation which requires all dogs to be registered.

If enforced, the measure may mean that the local dog population will be cut in half, as the ownerless curs which prowl the alleys number well up in the thousands. Since the Chinese believe it is bad luck to kill a dog, these animals have been breeding promiscuously for centuries. Fantastic crosses of dachshunds and police dogs, greyhounds and poodles, are common sights. One result is that a new species has evolved. He is a big, tough fellow called "the four-eyed watch dog." As large as a fox-hound, he has black and tan markings and two yellow or white spots just above the eyes.

ized militia that may be drafted into the armed forces. An amendment offered by Rep. Sauthoff, progressive of Wisconsin, to provide conscription of all members of congress to vote for war was ruled out on a point of order. He quoted a statement that it is easy to start a war for somebody else to fight.

Rep. Maverick, democrat, of Tennessee, proposed to exempt newspapermen, press association from licensing but was defeated by a vote of 21 to 55. While the house worked the senate was in recess.

Four Held in Prison Cruelty Charlotte, April 6.—(AP)—Henry C. Little, superintendent of the Mecklenburg prison camp, and R. C. Rate and T. M. Gordon, guards, today were arrested on warrants charging them with brutality to prisoners.

It was at Little's camp that Woodrow Shropshire and John Barnes, negroes, developed a condition that caused amputation of their feet, an incident which brought on legislative inquiry in prison camp conditions and discipline of prisoners.

A warrant was also issued by J. W. Dock Dudy, a third guard, but early this afternoon he had not been located. Appearing before court authorities Little, Rate and Gordon were placed under $1,000 bond for their appearance next Monday before Superior court Judge Don Phillips, sitting as a committing magistrate.

The four men named in the warrants are charged with "using such treatment as tying and chaining Woodrow Wilson Shropshire and Barnes to their cells as to cause their feet to become frozen with the result that infection set in resulting in the double amputation of these members."

New York Cotton

New York, April 6.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady two high to one lower with trade buying of near months and foreign selling of the late position.

Passage of the work-relief bill including the George amendment authorizing the use of relief funds in financing the cost of administration of the Agricultural Adjustment act had been anticipated and had little effect on the market. Trading continued quiet after the call with the tone steady.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 6.—(AP)—The stock market caught its breath today after its spurt of the previous session. Some leaders showed a disposition to take profit and prices were only a little better than even during most of the proceedings.

The close was steady. Transfers approximated 425,000 shares. While bullish sentiment still seemed to predominate there was little tendency to reach for equities either by the public or so called professionals.

After moderate activity and a some higher opening the trading volume dwindled until later demands. Bonds improved on the hope that the Supreme court would hand down its decision on the carrier pension law Monday. Grains were and narrow most of the time.
