

France Plans To Press For Condemnation Of Germany

PROPOSAL TO BE PRESENTED TO THE LEAGUE

Council Will Also be Requested to Consider Penalties For Nations Which Violate Treaties; Britain Determined Not To Abandon Drive For International Agreement

Geneva, April 15.—(AP)—Pierre Laval, foreign minister of France, said in French quarters today that France would press for the condemnation of Germany and a request that the League consider economic penalties against nations which in the future violate treaties.

As the members of the council assembled for the extraordinary session called by France because of Adolf Hitler's announcement that Germany had renounced the limitations of the international delegates if they considered the report of France for the condemnation of Germany too strong.

The French submitted a vigorously worded memorandum which charged that Germany had compromised negotiations for the limitations of armaments and had threatened international relations.

Before he entered the council, a high British official announced that Great Britain was determined not to abandon her drive for international agreement on the limitations of armament.

The session got under way at 3:42 p. m. The only persons of a nonofficial status who were permitted in the building were news men.

The French document characterized German military moves as the "culmination of a series of methodical actions, pursued in secret."

The action, it said, had deliberately destroyed the basis of Germany's collaboration with the League of Nations.

Without asking that the League take any specific action against Germany, the memorandum expressed confidence of the French government that the council would make a decision concerning the present state of affairs and will safeguard the future.

McLachorn, operator of a filling station on the Greenville-Winterville highway about four miles from Greenville, was being held under bond of $100 today for his appearance at the next sitting of county court on a charge of possession of whiskey for the purpose of sale.

McLachorn was taken into custody when county officers raided his filling station over the week-end and allegedly found 12 pints of whiskey. The contraband beverage, it was said today, was secreted under the back steps of the filling station and required considerable searching before finally being located.

This was the second raid made by sheriff's officers over the week-end, a large haul being reported in the Falkland road along with an arrest.

Jenny Lind Records Sought
Stockholm, (AP)—A world-wide search is underway for phonograph records of songs by Jenny Lind, whom Phineas T. Barnum made famous as "the Swedish nightingale." She died in 1887 and the phonograph was from a popular instrument then, but it is hoped some record of her voice has been preserved.

Inefficient Traffic Warning Blamed For Death of R. S. May

A coroner's jury investigating the death of R. S. May, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident at the corner of Fourth and Green streets Friday night, returned a verdict this morning declaring "we find that this man came to his death because of the inefficient system of traffic signals installed in our city prior to the night of this accident."

It was the unanimous opinion of the jury, said a report issued by Coroner A. A. Elwanger following completion of the investigation, "that Mr. May would be living with us today had the town authorities had the forethought and had the proper system of traffic signals installed in our city prior to the night of this accident."

It was ordered that a copy of the verdict be sent to the mayor of the town and the local newspaper.

The verdict was signed by H. T. Smith, G. A. Clark, Joe Vincent, L. O. Gross, Joseph Palmer and Charles R. Flye.

The verdict absolves Nash R. Joyner, driver of the car in which May was riding, as well as Bruce Cozart, driver of the car that crashed into Joyner's machine.

UNITY AMONG GREAT POWERS IS SEEN TODAY

Stresa Conference Makes Big Contribution to Peace and Prosperity of Europe

Stresa, Italy, April 15.—(AP)—A determined unity among the three great powers of western Europe was seen in conference circles today as the most significant contribution to peace resulting from the tripartite conversations between Great Britain, France and Italy.

Six points of an agreement were listed in a communique issued after the meeting closed:

- 1.—A common line of conduct "on France's appeal to the League of Nations council for consideration of Germany's armament notes"
- 2.—Pursuance of negotiations for the "development which is desired in the security of eastern Europe."
- 3.—Consultations in case of threat to the independence and integrity of Austria and a conference at Rome to decide the Danubian accord.
- 4.—Future studies looking toward completion of the western European air defense pact.
- 5.—Recognition that Germany's unilateral abrogation of the military clauses of the treaty of Versailles had undermined confidence in the security, peace and order and reaffirmation of the desire to work for an international agreement on limitations of armaments.
- 6.—Recommendations to the states affected that they consider the request of Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria for increase of armaments.

GOHOSTS: Despite all the surface confidence a little bird is whispering into White House ears it won't be long before Comptroller John R. McCarl starts getting tough about the spending of that $4,880,000 work-relief appropriation. Remember that McCarl was appointed fourteen years ago a vouchsafe and veto federal vouchers by Warren G. Harding. He stepped into the position giving him power to interpret appropriation acts from a job as executive secretary of the Republican National Congressional Committee.

While Congress was still battling over precise phraseology of President Roosevelt's newest mandate of power New Dealers went to great lengths to keep McCarl's knuckles out of the broth. FDR signed the best bill he could get but his lawyers have reported privately there were jokers left in it that may give the administration at least a slight headache.

Some of the President's legal advisers even have visions of Old Baggeyman, McCarl temporarily hamstringing an important cross-section of the whole recovery setup. They may be seeing ghosts and then again the ghost may be a very live one. It's all a matter of legal interpretation which seldom fails to be intricate.

ROUNDROUNDS: A lot of New Deal grief is feared to be hanging from that proviso making any employee who draws $5,000 a year or more salary from the four billion eight-eighty subject to Senate confirmation.

At first bluish administration strategists accepted this with concealed smiles. They knew many

Late News Flashes

In the Legislature
Raleigh, N. C., April 15.—(AP)—The Senate this afternoon amended the license tax levy on peddlars of agricultural products in the biennial revenue bill so as to levy a State-wide fee of $25 and permit cities to levy the same tax.

The amendment by Morgan, of Richmond, struck out the permissive section allowing counties to levy the same tax.

Debate was started on the controversial franchise tax levied on domestic and foreign corporation.

Senator Burroughs, of Guilford, offered an amendment to base the franchise levy of $1.75 per $1,000 on the basis of worth of the capital stock, surplus and undivided profits whether the bill as written levies a tax on the amount.

The section levying a 3 per cent tax on meals sold by public eating places was adopted with only minor changes being made.

Divulge Plot To Assassinate Three Statesmen

SEEK FARMS FOR TENANTS

Measure Now in the Making Would Convert Tenants Into Small Farm Owners

Washington, D. C., April 15.—(AP)—The Senate expects to consider a bill this week described by its backers as "tiny farming," and transform thousands of farm tenants into small farm owners.

The measure, introduced by Senator Bankhead, of Alabama, and approved by the Agricultural Committee, would create a farmers' loan corporation with an initial capital of $50,000,000 subscribed with funds from the 1935 relief act which authorizes long-term loans to finance the purchase of small farms and equipment.

The corporations would be authorized to issue $1,000,000 of bonds, the proceeds to be used for loans for small farms and farm homes, including equipment and livestock.

Preference would be given applicants who are married who have dependent families, have good moral character, experienced at farming, who are or recently were farmers, farm tenants, share croppers or farm laborers.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO WRECK

R. E. Askew of Farmville Held as Result Of Three-Car Crash At Ballard's

R. E. Askew, of Farmville, was being held for the April 30th term of County Court today on a charge of reckless driving and assault with a deadly weapon growing out of the wreck of three cars and injury of four persons at Ballard's Cross roads last Saturday.

The injured, James Askew, Milton Shirley, Coy Gates and John Dixon, Jr., all occupants of Askew's car, were rushed to the local hospital for medical aid. They were reported to be suffering from minor fractures, cuts and bruises, although none were believed to be seriously injured.

Askew is charged with running into the rear of a car driven by Mrs. P. J. Elks as she started to make a left hand turn after giving proper signals. Another car parked at the side of the road was also involved in the wreck as the machines swerved from the road. All three machines were damaged considerably by the impact.

Highway patrol officers investigated the wreck shortly afterward and ordered that Askew be held for the next sitting of county court.

AVERT RUBBER PLANT STRIKE

Agreement at Akron Causes Demobilization of Strike Forces Over Week End

Akron, April 15.—(AP)—The rubber unions and company heads today began demobilizing with peace secured under an agreement reached in Washington.

As both sides abandoned the strike preparations which climaxed months of trouble here, the attention of the industry and workers turned to a court-room in Cincinnati where two of the companies fought an order of the National Labor Relations Board. The board ordered collective bargaining elections in the Goodrich and Silvertone rubber company plants.

ANARCHISTS ARE BUSY IN GENEVA AREA

Plot Reported to Involve Pierre Laval, Of France, Edouard Benes, of Czechoslovakia and Nicholas Titulescu, of Rumania; General Alarm Sent Out in All Countries

Geneva, April 15.—(AP)—Local police today disclosed a plot to assassinate three noted European statesmen and revealed despite denial in Marseilles that two suspected Italian men and a woman had been detained in Marseilles.

The statesmen plotted against, said police, were Pierre Laval, foreign minister of France, Edouard Benes, foreign minister of Czechoslovakia and Nicholas Titulescu, foreign minister of Rumania. They described the terrorists as anarchists.

Police said the alleged anarchist plot was directed against Benes and Titulescu on the ground that they were believed hostile to revision of the peace treaties.

Authorities sent out a general alarm through Switzerland, Germany, Austria and French frontiers to prevent the entrance of all suspected anarchists.

Police protection for the gathering of the League of Nations council was strengthened because of the reports that terrorists were coming toward Geneva.

ANOTHER HELD IN THEFT CASE

Police Announce Arrest of Jason Lanier In Salvage Company Robbery

Jason Lanier, alias James Collins, colored, was being held for grand jury action today, following his arrest by police the latter part of last week in connection with the robbery of the Salvage Company, Evans Street store.

Officers are holding the negro on a charge of receiving and concealing stolen property, although they said he did not have an actual part in the robbery. They said the negro had stolen goods from Horbert Green and Bill Williams, also colored, were taken into custody for the actual robbery.

Green and Williams, who were arrested two or three days after the entrance to the store the first of last week, were given preliminary hearing Saturday and bound over to criminal court under bond of $500 each. They were unable to give bond and were remanded to jail to await trial.

The two allegedly entered the Salvage Company through a back door, filled several sacks and suitcases with goods and made away with it. Officers announced today that virtually all of the goods was recovered with the arrest of Lanier.

THE QUESTION OF TRAFFIC SIGNALS

A coroner's jury today laid down a challenge to our city government in no uncertain terms when it declared that the death of R. S. May from an automobile accident, was the direct result of failure of the city government to provide adequate traffic signals at dangerous intersections in the city.

The matter of traffic lights in Greenville has been a debatable question for some time there being some who believe that they would be a detriment in the way of more congestion of traffic while others have expressed a belief that they are essential to safety. The city now has the matter laid before it in a forceful way and the matter is one that should be investigated and something done about it. If it found that a system of traffic signals here would save even one life then certainly the system would be cheap at any cost.

It must be remembered, however, that any system of traffic signals, no matter how elaborate, will be worthless unless the signals are obeyed. So when the city decides to put in a system of signals let us hope that enforced obedience of the signals will be more strict than the enforcement of our present traffic regulations in this city.

members of Congress were sharp-shooting at Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes, Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, Under-Secretary of Agriculture Rex Tugwell, Rear Admiral C. J. Peoples, chief of the Federal Procurement Division and possibly one or two others who will have a major hand in spending the world's greatest relief fund.

The smart boys had a hidden ball trick all figured out to get the entire work-relief backfield into the clear. They planned, if necessary, to impound a sufficient portion of the remainder of the old $3,300,000,000 appropriation to pay the salaries of Hopkins and any other general's whose status might be questioned.

This would run around the stipulation about salaries taken from the new appropriation. It was figured Ickes, Tugwell and Admiral Peoples would escape the Senatorial gauntlet because they already are on the permanent government payroll and would only be performing added duties without extra pay in the work-relief sleup.

CZAR: With closer study the strategists think they may wake up some morning and learn that the Comptroller General—who is a law unto himself—has refused to honor new expenditure vouchers signed by Ickes, Hopkins, Tugwell, Peoples et al until they have been specifically confirmed by the Senate to write those checks. If this happens there will be a stew in least circles that will afford interesting reading—but pending a final outcome parceling out of the $4,880,000,000 would stop. Further, it is reported McCarl might be tight enough to decline to issue semi-monthly pay checks for

Chapter 35

EXPLOSION

"MANAGE him? Yes, Jane's managing him all right," roared the Judge, bringing one fist down with a bang into his open palm. "She's managing him straight to hell."

"What Jane was really cut out for was a matron of an orphan's home—and God help the orphans! You know, Miss Julia, that James Stinson isn't a clodhopper or a human machine like that Northrup outfit. He's sensitive and delicate like a harp and has to be handled like a harp and not like a trained pig."

"The Lord-a-Mighty didn't make James ordinary and He didn't make James practical, but Jane thinks she can. I was over there last night and James dropped some cigar ashes on the floor like any man would in his own house and you should have seen the look she gave him."

"She told him there was an ash tray at his elbow, in the same tone she would have told a stray dog to take his dirty bone out of her parlor."

"What did James do?"

"He didn't do anything but shut up and never act natural again all evening. I'd like to be married to Jane myself for about a week so that I could tell her what I think of her—it would take just about that long. I was so mad I went home and didn't sleep a wink."

Miss Julia tried to stand up for her young friend, but the Judge was in no mood to listen.

"You want to keep your eyes shut to the truth or you would not talk that drivel. It's plain enough to anyone who wants to see it. The trouble is that Jane is a born old maid with the mothering instinct gone to seed."

"She acts as if her husband were a naughty little boy Fate or the Devil had wished on her to bring up and who hasn't sense enough or judgment enough to wipe his own nose or wash behind his ears."

"Why, I was over to the Millards for dinner last week along with James and Jane and when Bill Millard asked James whether he would have his roast beef rare or well done, Jane snapped out before James could get his mouth open, that he liked it well done. James never said a word and ate what was given him, although I happen to know that he likes his beef rare."

"Seems to me that James better learn to stand on his own feet occasionally instead of letting Jane do all the leading. She probably doesn't realize just how such things sound."

"There's just one way to manage a woman like Jane Northrup and that's with a club," growled the Judge rudely. "I never said James was perfect—he isn't. But if he added wife-beating to his other qualifications I wouldn't be able to find a flaw in him. As it is I'm worried—worried sick."

"Oh, pohaw," said Miss Julia. "You're talking pure nonsense."

She sent her old friend home somewhat comforted, but she remained worried and uncomfortable herself.

JAMES was asking himself a dozen questions just what had happened to him and Jane. Things had gone so well for a while after their trip East. He had plunged into his work expecting soon to make another five thousand dollars and take Jane on another wonderful trip. But he hadn't made the five thousand or in fact much more than usual and in a few weeks Jane began again to appear restless and bored; later to complain of her health; or worse still to maintain queer sulky silences in his presence; to look at him as if she wished he were not there.

During the next year what little love there had been left between them seemed to die a rapid and natural death. Their relations went from bad to worse. They had come to the point where James dreaded to be alone with his wife—as he realized one warm Spring evening with peculiar poignancy as he hesitated at his front door, hating to fit his key in the lock and open it.

The house was still Jane's and James alone and he never felt completely at ease in it. His long ago dream—the dream of his early married life—of some day moving back to the mansion, he had never so much as dared mention to his wife, although she had long since begun to complain of feeling cramped in the Tyler House and longed to remodel it or to buy a large place where she could more fittingly entertain.

The mansion was large and spacious, but any mention of it or even of past Stinson glories was almost certain to provoke Jane into a succession of caustically sarcastic remarks that James dreaded more than anything else.

James indeed made heroic efforts to remember just what subjects did or did not irritate Jane. Much of the time he was unsuccessful. He sighed wearily as he turned the lock, hoping that this evening would not be one of those times.

Jane proved somewhat sulky and tired and had little to say as they ate their dinner and James, after an attempt or two at conversation, ate silently and rapidly as was his wont. Afterwards they sat together on the front porch, still silent, and it was a relief to both of them when Mr. Northrup's large bulk loomed darkly before them at the foot of the steps.

Jane jumped up and kissed her father affectionately. James drew forward the largest, most comfortable porch rocker; almost ran into the house to get his choice cigars.

"THANK you. Thank you very much," said Mr. Northrup benevolently, biting off the end of the cigar and lighting it. "I am afraid I am putting you to a great deal of trouble—I am afraid so indeed. I just dropped in for a moment to offer James my congratulations. Your mother assured me that morning would do as well, but I felt I would sleep better if I told you both of the gratification, the extreme gratification, Mr. Preston's offer has given me."

"Mr. Preston's offer! Offer of what?" asked Jane quickly. "I haven't heard anything about it."

"That surprises me, surprises me very much. But I was told by Ellison on the way home that Mr. J. H. Preston of Kansas City had himself informed him that he intended to engage James as counsel after hearing him argue that case—Mitchell woman's case, I think it was. It was merely chance, one in a thousand, Ellison assured me. That took Mr. Preston into the court room. Opportunity at last has come knocking on James' door. I should call it Presidential myself—quite Presidential."

"Why, James, that's splendid," said Jane warmly. "You ought to get a big fee out of it. The Ellisons say that Mr. Preston is worth a cool five millions. But why on earth didn't you tell me about it?"

"Nothing to tell," said James shortly.

"You mean he hasn't yet offered to engage you?"

"Yes—ex, he offered to, but it wasn't a case I could touch with a ten-foot pole. As far as I could find out he is trying to get rid of his wife and has nothing to base his case on except that she is old and fat and hasn't been able to adjust herself as rapidly as he to their rise from nothing to five millions. Personally, I believe there is another woman in the background egging him on."

"Do you know that—or is it just surmise?"

"I know he hasn't any grounds to divorce his wife."

"He must have or he would not be consulting a lawyer. You don't know a single thing about Mrs. Preston. She may be a perfectly terrible person. You might at least find out. Why it's the opportunity of a lifetime. Did you refuse it definitely? Just what did you say to him?"

"I told him I was not a divorce lawyer."

"But you got Sally Mitchell's divorce, didn't you? You can take a washwoman's case. I fail to see the fine distinction that keeps you from taking Mr. Preston's. Perhaps it was because Sally was just a lap or two ahead of the poor house and couldn't pay you a cent, while Mr. Preston would be sure to be good for two or three thousand dollars—perhaps more."

Mr. Northrup offers to straighten matters out, tomorrow.

Of course President Roosevelt himself could sign all the expenditure vouchers—but there are a great number of these checks going out daily and it would add a sad extra load on an already overworked man. What he could do is McCarl should decide to withhold pay checks above the grade of $5,000 is something else again.

Reverend: A year ago the Treasury Department rejected complaints by American farmers growing rye against Polish imports. Poland was accused of paying a bounty to its growers. Now American automobile manufacturers are stirring up a based on Poland's prohibitive import duty on foreign autos. Rye may be traded against autos, enough people being interested.

Those protesting the influx of Polish rye (the grain) are making quite a case. They point out that last year the Treasury passed judgment on the basis of the Anti-dump

Legislative Rambling

That? "The deer bill," promptly replied Thad. It was the bill which would allow county commissioners to ban the sale of the brew.

"Your motion is out of order," said Mr. Stevens as he banged the gavel. "There is another matter pending."

"Well," replied Mr. Bailey with a twinkle in his eye, "just as soon as we are through with it I want to renew my motion." "Huh!" grunted the Acting Speaker, "as long as you want to do that there'll always be something pending."

A burst of speed in the Lower House has caused the Legislature to be only 131 bill and resolutions short of the record-busting session of 1933. A total of 1,637 measures have been tossed in the mill this year; 1,768 had been offered at the same time two years ago. This session the 128 House members have rolled up the imposing total of 1,152. The 30 Senators have accounted for 485. Two years ago the House had fathered 1,243 bill-children, the Senate 525. SB 525, incidentally, was offered by Haywood's Senator Francis and was none other than the 3.2 per cent beer bill. Today is the 97th day of the session, the 83rd actually working day.

Republicans seem to have better memories than Democrats. For the second time this session Republican Representative Klutz, of Catawba beat the Democratic House members to the gun when he moved that the House adjourn Saturday in honor of its birthday of "the third President of the United States and founder of the Democratic party, Thomas Jefferson, who never in all his life advocated a tax on poverty!" Earlier this session he had moved that the House adjourn in honor of the birthday of William Jennings Bryan.

Senator Julian Allsbrook and Representative Paul Ervin ought to be members of the same branch of the Legislature. Recently Mr. Ervin, who hails from Mecklenburg, became indignant when Representative Hoyle, of Guilford, offered a bill which would have struck from the State flag the date of the Mecklenburg Declaration. On Friday last Senator Allsbrook, another youthful legislator like Messrs. Hoyle and Ervin, moved that the Senate adjourn in honor of the anniversary of the Halifax Resolution, a resolution passed by the Provincial Congress of North Carolina in session at Halifax on April 12, 1776. Representative Ervin is now wondering if the Legislature will be in session long enough for him to move for adjournment in honor of the Mecklenburg Declaration—May 20.

While the Senate debates the biennial money bill its calendar gets bigger and bigger, though not necessarily better. A great stack of bills await action by the Upper House piled up by committees anxious to empty their files. One of the Judiciary Committee's turned no fewer than twenty embryo laws loose at a single sitting last week.

Each week-end legislative observers revise their estimates as to how much longer the session will last. Most of them are now "guessing" that since adjournment will take place on or about May 1. The date depends a great deal on how long the joint House-Senate conference on the revenue bill lasts. Molding of the bill in conference while trying to straighten out differences of opinion may require a few days, perhaps many.

Despite the pleas made by presiding officers each session legislators cling to the custom of waiting until the shank of the session to offer local bills. Every two years moves are made to prevent the introduction of such measures after a certain date, usually February 15. With regularity such moves are defeated. Which means that at the very last local bills will be passed so rapidly that no one can keep an accurate check on them.

New York Cotton

New York, April 15.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady higher to one layer with commission house buying on steady Liverpool cables meeting more liquidation.

Trading was only moderately active and prices eased off slightly after the call under liquidation and selling from local sources.

Business became a little quiet after the close of Liverpool and the market rallied a few points.

There was no follow up and after selling to about Saturday's close prices eased again. At midday active months were about 6 to 8 points net lower with July selling at 17 and October at 11 1/2.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 15.—(AP)—The stock market encountered realizing barriers today, especially in the recently buoyant metals and prices generally turned moderately irregular.

Steadiness in most categories was the rule in the early hours and even in the profit-taking flurries there were a number of issues that succeeded in weathering the selling and it was announced the activity dwindled slowly on the decline.

Some of the rails were unloaded when the long-awaited pension law decision by the Supreme Court again failed to make its appearance.

The New York Stock Exchange cut the official call money rate to one-half of one per cent, a new record low. Bonds were a little better than steady.

Grains were inclined to dip and cotton rallied about in a restricted range. The gold currencies were a bit easier on foreign exchange markets.

The late stock tone was moderately irregular.

Transfers approximated 2,100,000 shares.

Work of the committee as a whole was proceeding slowly. An effort to cut the license tax rate on penny vending machines from $2.50 to $1.25 per year was defeated.

Washington Woman Dead
Beaufort, April 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Carl W. Jacobson, of Washington, N. C., died here today from cerebral hemorrhage suffered while visiting her father, C. H. Bushall.

Shoots Man and Kills Himself
New Bern, April 15.—(AP)—Veston Broughton, 35, was shot to death about 7 o'clock this morning by Ernest Brite, 30, as Broughton was leaving Brite's home at Treat, Pamlico county. Brite returned to his home and killed himself by sending a bullet from a .45 calibre pistol into his head. Brite's jealousy of his wife is ascribed by police of Pamlico county as cause of the tragedy.

Brite first fired a load of No. 4 shot into Broughton's back, went into his house and returned with a .45 calibre pistol with which he fired a bullet into the prostrate man's head.

Supreme Court to Pass on Recovery Act

Washington, April 15.—(AP)—The Supreme court today agreed to pass on the constitutionality of the national industrial recovery act.

A final decision in the New York poultry case selected by the government as ideal for the purpose is to be rendered before the Supreme court late in May or early in June.

Argument will be heard on May 2. A previous case against Willie E. Oelcher, Alabama, lumber dealer, was dropped by the government after it reached the supreme court on the ground it was not a satisfactory test.

The lower federal court had held the recovery act and the lumber codes were invalid.

In the poultry controversy the circuit court of appeals in New York decided principally in favor of the government.

The supreme court adjourned today for two weeks without decision on the constitutionality of the railway pension law or the Frazier-Lemke moratorium act.

In Congress

Washington, D. C., April 15.—(AP)—A week of intensive effort to rush the administration four billion dollar employment campaign and its securities program toward completion was started today by the departmental chieftains and Congressional leaders.

Job-creating projects were surveyed and tabulated by public works, relief, highway and other officials hoping to fit into the gigantic program expected to be announced soon as President Roosevelt arranges that administration set up to direct the employment effort.

Indications were that possibly one billion dollars would be spent on grade crossing elimination, street and highway construction. This type of work and aid to the Middle West and dust storm sufferers are prepared to be put into the program at the present time.

On Capitol Hill leaders directed the House into a second week of debate on the social securities legislation, holding in reserve a committee which could be trotted out to liberalize the measure if it becomes insistent.

At the White House President Roosevelt and representatives of 18 Latin-American countries affixed their signatures to a treaty or firing on cultural monuments.

Third Street Girls Defeat Training School

One of the most thrilling ball games of the season was played by the seventh grade girls of the Third Street school against the seventh grade of the Training School.

Helen Campbell pitched for the Third Street group and Mary Lee Anderson for the Training School girls. Pitchers for each group did fine work. Third Street players won the score being 13 to 12. We invite the Third Street girls to come over and play us on our diamond sometime.

Sinclair Defies Processing Tax

Boston, Mass., April 15.—(AP)—The first open defiance of the administration's cotton processing tax was voiced by James Sinclair, president of the Fall River Cotton Manufacturing Association, he said: "I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself."

Sinclair who is also treasurer of the Charlton Mills in Fall River proposed that Northern and Southern manufacturers refuse to pay the tax unless "President Roosevelt shows an inclination to aid the textile industry."

"I am in a Boston Tea Party mood," Sinclair declared.

"I am willing to go to jail for refusal to pay this tax myself," he asserted. "I can enjoy a rest in jail as well as anybody else."

Washington High To Play Locals Here Tomorrow

The big game of the baseball season of the Greenville High School will take place tomorrow in Greenville at the Third Street Park when Washington high school plays here. The first game of the series between these two keen rivals was to have been played last Friday. However, the game was ended by rain in the third inning with Greenville leading by a score of 3 to 1. Wells will be on the mound for Greenville. This boy is good this year. He has won six games out of six starts for a perfect record. The local team has played eight games this year and lost only one and that by only a one run margin.

In addition to winning all of his games this year Wells is leading the team in hitting and when not pitching handles the first base assignment.

The student body of the High School is solidly behind the team and are getting primed for a great burst of enthusiasm to be evidenced at the game tomorrow. A pep meeting will be held tomorrow and the cheer-leaders are going to be on hand to lead the students in their noise-making.

All the members of the local squad are in good shape and are "raring" to go.

The game will start at four o'clock.

Bostic Leads Pirate Outfit With The Bat

Runt Bostic, captain of the baseball team of East Carolina Teachers College, is leading his teammates with the stick.

Runt has the old eagle this season. Up to the game with Louisville he was hitting .470. Out of 23 trips to the plate he has got eleven safeties. Tek Lindsey has a higher average, having got one hit for two trips to the plate. Eason, letter man of last year, is hitting third with .445. Eason has seen action in only three games because of a broken rib.

The team as a whole is batting .308. There have been 264 trips to the plate. Sixty-four of these were good for base knocks.

8,271 men and women visited the Chesterfield factories during the past year...

LIGGETT AND MYERS TOBACCO COMPANY

A man who visited a Chesterfield factory recently, said: "Now that I have seen Chesterfields made, I understand better than ever why people say Chesterfields are milder and have a better taste."

If you too could visit our factories you could see the clean, airy surroundings; the employees in their spotless uniforms, and the modern cigarette making machinery.

You could notice how carefully each Chesterfield cigarette is inspected and see also how Chesterfields are practically untouched by human hands.

Whenever you happen to be in Richmond, Va., Durham, N. C., or San Francisco, California, we invite you to stop at the Liggett & Myers plants and see how Chesterfields are made.
