SPECIAL MEET OF ASSEMBLY LIKELY SOON

Liquor Question Expected to be Taken Up Again Within Next 90 Days

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hoel.
By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, May 13.—A special session of the general assembly within 60 to 90 days to enact a statewide liquor law is now regarded as likely in political circles here. It is no secret that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus does not like what the general assembly finally did, that he made a fifty-fifth minute effort to bring about a compromise between the wets and the dries in the general assembly just before it adjourned Saturday and tried to persuade its members to come back this week to work out some sort of state-wide plan to which both factions would agree. It is also well known that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus sat in on these last-minute conferences in the Governor's office with members of the senate and house refused to budge an inch or agree to any sort of compromise, with the result that the general assembly left the present laws on the statute books and adjourned.

But a very definite reaction to the enactment of these laws permitting only 17 1-2 of the state's 100 counties to vote on whether or not they shall legalize the sale of liquor has already set in on the part of other counties that want the right to vote on this question but which was denied them. There is also a growing conviction among the more liberal-minded dries, as well as among the wets, that if any liquor is to be sold in North Carolina, it should be under state control and regulation and from state liquor stores, rather than from county liquor stores under county control. For many believe that it will be next to impossible to keep the county stores and county control boards out of politics. There is also a growing conviction that whatever revenue is derived from the sale of liquor in the state should go into the state treasury to help meet state obligations and augment state revenue. For present indications are that the revenue bill enacted by this general assembly still lacks at least $1,000,000 of providing enough revenue to balance with the appropriations.

Still another objection to permitting only 17 1-2 counties in the state to sell liquor and to leaving the control of the liquor stores entirely in the hands of the county control boards, is that if these counties are given a monopoly on the sale of liquor in the state for as much as two years, which would be the case if no special session is called—the revenue from its sale might prove so large and so hard to relinquish that these counties might block any effort to get up a state-wide liquor sale and control plan in 1937. So one of the reasons for the belief that a special session will be called in the near future to set up a state-wide liquor sale and control plan, is so the state may take it over before the counties get their plans started or at least before they become firmly rooted.

An additional factor that has been overlooked until today is that both houses passed the resolution by Representative Victor Bryant of Durham, to empower the Governor to appoint a special commission of seven members to study all the various liquor sale and control methods both in the United States and in other countries, with a view to making recommendations for the adoption of a state-wide liquor control and sale plan for North Carolina. It is expected that Governor Ehringhaus will appoint this commission within the next few days that it will get busy immediately and work as rapidly as possible. As soon as it has completed its work formulated its report and developed a plan for North Carolina, it is believed that the Governor will call a special session of the general assembly to consider the report of this commission and its recommendations.

Noted Currutuck Citizen Is Dead

Currutuck, May 13.—(AP)—Dr. Julian S. Baum, for many years active in the political life of Currutuck county, died yesterday in a Norfolk hospital where he had gone last Friday for treatment. He was 65 years old and for a number of years was president of the Pine Island Club, Poplar Branch.

L. S. Law School Put On Probation

DICTATOR OF POLAND DEAD

Marshall Pilsudski's Demise Causes Grave Concern Over Future of the Nation

Warsaw, May 13.—(AP)—The death of Marshall Joseph Pilsudski, Poland's dictator, gave diplomats fresh cause for concern today over the outlook for peace in Eastern Europe.

Much may depend upon who succeeds the iron-willed marshal. It may determine the future of the peace pact system. It may also decide whether Poland henceforth will cast her lot with France or Russia which has just concluded a mutual assistance agreement, or whether she will continue along the line of German rapprochement which Pilsudski had marked out.

Death came to the 67-year-old ruler of Poland's destinies last night after short illness. His body will be buried among the great in the cathedral at Wawel castle, but his heart will rest in Wilno and his brain will be given to science.

COUNTY COURT SITS TUESDAY

Ten Actions Had Been Docketed for Hearing Today; More Expected

County courts will convene here tomorrow morning after being inactive a week due to the civil term of Superior court here last week. The docket today contained around ten cases but it is probable it will be swelled somewhat by tomorrow with cases sent up from other sections of the county today. As customary, the charges will consist of larceny, violation of highway and prohibition laws with the majority of the defendants probably obtaining release on payment of fines are going to the roads.

The docket is small compared with other sessions following a week of inactivity and indication pointed to completion of work tomorrow afternoon.

LEGISLATIVE RAMBLINGS

Raleigh, May 13.—Openly defiant of the law, Cale K. Burgess, head of North Carolina's United Dry Forces lobbied on the floor of the Senate during its strenuous early morning session as it passed the bill exempting 18 counties from the provisions of the state dry act, the Turlington law.

HAWAII WILL BE ATTACKED BY WARSHIPS

Navy Plans Spectacular Maneuvers After Loss of Two Lives in Ship Collision

Honolulu, May 13.—(AP)—The mightiest concentration in Pearl Harbor's history—42 warships—rode to anchor today awaiting orders for a westward dash in secret maneuvers involving a spectacular attack on Hawaii.

A grim reality was struck in the maneuvers meanwhile in the accidental death of two men in the collision of two destroyers and the crash of a naval plane.

Richard Chadwick, gunners second mate, second class, of Cliffsides, Mich., was killed early yesterday when the destroyer Lea crashed into the stern of the Sicard. Four men were hurt.

Both the expeditionary forces commanded by Brig. General Chas. Lyman and the mighty Maine battle fleet that swept into Pearl Harbor yesterday from San Francisco are in battle trim and ready for another sea dash on a moment's notice. The time of the departure of Admiral Reeves' "white fleet" was not disclosed but the crippled destroyers Lea and Sicard will be left behind.

END SCHOOL FINALS TODAY

Four of the Largest Schools of County to Hold Graduating Exercises Tonight

Final exercises in connection with the closing of Pitt county schools will be held tonight. The finals in all schools will be marked by class exercises and awarding of diplomas to over 250 high school graduates. Nine schools of the county system completed their commencement programs last Friday night leaving five to add final touches today. Bethel is the last school of the county to close, finals there having been set for May 17. Bethel is a week later closing this year than the remainder of the schools due to a broken boiler which necessitated several days' suspension of work during mid-winter.

The schools to hold finals tonight at Ayden, Farmville, Winterville and Grimesland. Senior classes are to have charge of exercises in all schools with exception of Grimesland where Major Graham, superintendent of Kinston schools will deliver the literary address tonight.

T. M. Grant, presiding elder of the Methodist church, delivered the baccalaureate sermon at Ayden yesterday, with Dr. Ormond of Duke University, appearing at Farmville and R. F. Pittman at Winterville. Attendance at all schools has been large and exercises were described as the most inspirational and impressive in years. A two per cent increase in graduates was noted in the various schools. It was reported the latter part of last week. Around five hundred children received certificates to high schools.

Two Fires Here Over Week-End

Two fires over the week-end did damage which firemen said today was small. Saturday night a blaze starting in the attic of Jackson's suitomir corner Third and Cotanche streets, did damage firemen estimated at around $25. A small hole was burned in the roof before the blaze was extinguished. The origin was undetermined. This morning about 5 o'clock firemen were called to Grant Bell's Store on Albemarle avenue to handle a blaze originating from an undetermined cause in the rear of the combination-store cafe. The loss was estimated at $50.

Fugitive Held. Stamford, Conn., May 13.—(AP)—Walter Spigner, 37, negro, of Stamford, was being held here for South Carolina authorities today after he had been arrested on a fugitive from justice warrant.

All States in the Union, also Canada and France, are represented in the visitors' book at the Creek council house museum at Okmulgee, Okla.

Philippines Moving To Halt Election Violence

Manila, May 13.—(AP)—An outstanding Sakdalista leader was held by the constabulary today as authorities executed widespread moves to combat rumored extremist violence planned for tomorrow's independence plebiscite.

On the eve of the election in which 10,700,000 Filipinos will vote to accept or reject proffered independence from the United States, the constabulary arrested Celerino Tiongo, a Sakdalista leader, they said was wanted "dead or alive."

Late News Flashes

Senate Approves Wheeler Bill. Washington, May 13.—(AP)—The administration legislative program, held back by continual controversy, was given a forward push today by Senate committee approval of the Wheeler bill to regulate or dissolve holding companies.

The measure approved 14 to 2 by the committee now contains authority for a thorough study by the securities commission of operations of investment trusts and companies. The committee acted while Senate leaders made last minute changes to be sure of enough votes to sustain President Roosevelt's expected veto of the Patman bonus bill.

The Senate itself went into another debate over amendments strengthening the TVA, while the House, well along in its legislative program, continued on page four.

PITT FARMERS OFF TO CAPITAL

Three Hundred Growers to Protest Removal of Processing Tax at Washington

Approximately 75 automobile loads of farmers were to leave Pitt county today for Washington City where they will confer with congressmen and administration farm heads in opposition to abolition of the cotton processing tax. It was made known by E. E. Arnold, director of the local Farm Department. Mr. Arnold said around 300 growers were expected to make the trip. They have already written letters to their congressmen asking personal interviews Wednesday to express their views against removal of the processing tax.

They are also scheduled to attend conferences tomorrow to meet Henry A. Wallace, secretary of Agriculture, and Chester C. Davis, to assure them that the farmers of this section appreciate the federal farm program and are supporting it.

Farmers from other sections of the state will also visit the capital city and register their protest against efforts of manufacturers to remove the cotton processing tax. They also will confer with their congressmen regarding the matter. Mr. Arnold said the growers of this section were satisfied with the government cotton program. They were the first in the country to rally behind both cotton and tobacco programs and want them continued in view of the general improvement in the economic situation since the government stepped in to aid them.

The growers were scheduled to leave various sections of the county today no fixed point for departure having been made. All will travel by automobile, arriving in Washington in time to rest before beginning the series of conferences which they hope will result in the improved conditions.

Miss Effie Moore Dies Near Stokes; Funeral Tomorrow

Miss Effie Isabella Moore, age 50 years, died at her home near Stokes this morning at 4 a. m. from a lingering illness. Miss Moore was the youngest daughter of Guilford and Mary Moore of Stokes community. Miss Moore was never married and she lived at the old home place with her brother and sisters. She is survived by two brothers, Ira and Guilford, and five sisters, Misses Etta, Viola, and Bertha at home, Miss Ollie of E. C. T. C. and Mrs. G. A. Ross of near the home.

She was a member of the Sweet Gum Baptist church and manifested much interest in the denomination as long as her health permitted.

Funeral services will be conducted from the late home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. R. F. Pittman of Ayden. Active pallbearers: John Whitaker, A. R. Barnhill, Herbert Randolph, Bruce McLamhorn, Leon Reddick, Hubert Simmons.

MAYOR ASKS SUPPORT FOR SCHOOL VOTE

R. C. Flanagan Gives Unqualified Endorsement to Nine Months' Term Here

Mayor R. C. Flanagan, in a special message to the voters of Greenville today, gave his unqualified endorsement to the movement for a nine months' school in Greenville and urged the citizenship to go to the polls May 28 and cast their vote in behalf of the question.

Declaring he is in favor of "this proposition," the mayor said, "I am using all of my influence in favor of this move and I call upon all of you to work for this move also, and let us make this election as unanimous as possible."

His statement follows: To The Voters of Greenville: You have seen fit to elect me Mayor again. You evidently believe that I have the best interest of our good city at heart and you evidently respect my opinion and judgment on matters which affect the welfare of the citizens of this community.

If you believe in me to the extent which your unanimous selection indicates, I now ask you to think with me on one of the most vital matters which has come to our attention since I have been Mayor of Greenville. I refer to the matter of extending the term of our City School from eight months to nine.

I believe in this proposition. I signed the petition as one of the qualified voters calling the election. The petition from the School Board to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen was passed unanimously and enthusiastically. I, therefore, as Mayor and private citizen, as the father of children in school, call upon you to think upon this matter seriously and I hope, that when you have thought the matter through, you will find that both your head and your heart will say to you that you must support the move to add this month to the term of our schools.

The State of North Carolina has done all that it is going to do for our schools. The local communities must now step in and complete the job. We used to support a nine months school costing $110,000.00 from property tax. Surely we can now raise $8,000 to support just one month.

In my opinion it is not going to be necessary to raise the total tax rate of the city but a few cents in this ninth month. Certainly the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen when they make up the budget will be just as anxious as the largest taxpayer to keep the total tax rate as low as possible.

I am thankful that the City of Greenville has kept its financial house in order during the past years so that now it can do for its children what it ought to do, namely, give them a nine months school. I am using all my influence in favor of this move and I call upon all of you to work for this move also, and let us make this election as unanimous as possible. It will be the best advertisement this city can possibly have.

Your servant,
R. C. FLANAGAN,
Mayor of the City of Greenville.

Wets Predict Victory In Ga. Repeal Ballot

Atlanta, May 13.—(AP)—Foes in the wet-dry fight expressed confidence today of victory as bone-dry Georgia awaited the verdict of Wednesday's repeal referendum. Opposing forces admitted no apprehension as to whether the outcome would permit a wet blanket over the Cracker State or to deliver an ultimatum to enforce the 28-year-old prohibition statute.

FARMERS OF SOUTH MOVE ON CAPITAL

"March on Washington" Plans to Support Farm Program of Pres. Roosevelt

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—Declaring they wanted to "offset some of this opposition noise," the advance guard of a movement organized as the southern farmers' "march on Washington" was here today in support of the Roosevelt farm program.

Leaders expressed the hope that Secretary Wallace, returning by plane after rallying farmers behind the AAA in a speech at Alexandria, La., and possibly the President himself would greet their delegation tomorrow.

The movement got under way as New England and southern textile interests hammered away at the cotton processing tax which is being used as benefits to farmers who curtail their acreage. On orders from the President a cabinet committee is proving contentions of New England governors and congressmen that the processing tax and Japanese imports are closing textile mills.

Delegations on their way last night included 25 coming by train from Arkansas and Louisiana, and 100 Mississippians, mostly from the delta section. Alabama and Georgia groups numbering 350 plan a "cotton special."

Raleigh, May 13.—(AP)—Approximately 1,500 North Carolina farmers representing nearly fifty agricultural counties in the state will join in the mass demonstration in Washington tomorrow in support of the Agricultural Adjustment program. John W. Goodman, assistant director of the Agricultural Extension Service, explained this morning that the number of farmers planning to join in the march increased appreciably over the week-end. Practically the entire delegation will be from cotton and tobacco growing sections of the state.

The farmers will go to Washington by buses, automobiles and will meet in the national capital before joining a demonstration from other states for the massed program. Nearly 100 Wake county farmers left yesterday and today to take part in the farmers' march.

LONG DEMANDS FARLEY PROBE

Louisiana Kingfish Predicts Victory as Showdown on Resolution Nears

Washington, May 13.—(AP)—The demand of Senator Huey Long, Democrat of Louisiana, for an investigation of Postmaster General Farley's conduct moved toward a showdown in the Senate today.

Administration leaders predicting the proposed inquiry would be voted down overwhelmingly were warned by Long that such action would mean "good-bye" to the Democratic party as it is represented by the "Knight of the Nourmahal."

By vote of the "Knight of Nourmahal," he referred to President Roosevelt.

As the vote neared on his resolution for a Senate investigation into numerous charges he has made against Farley, Long expressed confidence of passage.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

Washington By RAY TUCKER
UP: Administration advisers are watching price trends as anxiously as a doctor holds the pulse of a patient in a crisis. An unchecked rise in living costs might easily prove the vulnerable spot in whatever recovery armor the New Deal may don between now and 1936. That would be inflation which every housewife could understand.

The price experts say they find two reasons for rejoicing. The gap between the production rates of durable and consumption goods industries is slowly narrowing. Both are moving up. Durable production was 36 points to the bad on the index chart in March of 1933. Now the spread is only 14 points, and the two may be heading for a rendezvous. Farm products are responsible for

MOTHERS OF CITY HONORED

Special Services In City Churches Feature Celebration of Mother's Day

Greenville along with the remainder of the national yesterday celebrated Mother's Day, and even the weather man conspired to make the occasion a great success.

The day was bright and clear with the tempera very probably the highest of the year and this formed an appropriate setting for the celebration which grows in scope with the coming of each year.

Special exercises in the various Sunday schools followed by sermons and special musical programs at the 11 o'clock church hour constituted the major part of the observance here. Mother was extolled both in song and sermon, with ministers paying splendid tribute to the guardian angel of every household. Flowers in profusion were used in churches and homes alike to accentuate the observance. Red and white flowers used in lapsels of men's suits and as corsages by the ladies paid tribute to both living and dead alike. Red denoted the living and white the dead.

The observance was continued in Greenville today when mothers were invited to the Reflector-Pitt matinee given at Pitt theatre each year in honor of mothers who have reached the age of 55 years.

Greenville has always done its part in the observance of Mother's Day but it is probably the celebration here was made widespread and pronounced that ever before. Many a heart was made happy by gifts in memory of the untiring services of the saintly spirit of each household and the sentiment behind the observance had a salutary effect upon the entire community.

THREE MEN KILLED, EIGHT OTHERS HURT

Fairmont, W. Va., May 13.—(AP)—Three men were burned to death and eight others injured, two critically, as fire swept through the Bethlehem Mine Corporation's No. 41 mine at nearby Barracksville early yesterday.

The teaching of the Word and the teaching of experience coincide. When we permit God the change things in us, then changes will occur outside. This important fact was well illustrated in the experiences of men.

INQUEST IS REQUESTED IN LAURINBURG DEATH

Laurinburg, May 13.—Funeral services for John Maxwell, 34, who died here Friday allegedly of self-inflicted pistol wounds, were held at the residence in South Laurinburg yesterday afternoon.

The shooting was reported as about 1 o'clock Friday morning. Coroner M. J. McDonald said an inquest, requested by the Maxwell family, has been tentatively set for next Monday.

About 80 per cent of the cattle bought by the government in the drought emergency of 1934 were cows and heifers.

DR. GORDON OPENS SERIES OF SERVICES

Writer and Lecturer Heard by Big Crowds at Memorial Baptist Church

Dr. S. P. Gordon, of Winston-Salem, widely known writer and lecturer on religious subjects, opened a series of revival services at Memorial Baptist church yesterday morning. The services will continue morning and evening through Thursday night.

Dr. Gordon, who recently returned from a speaking engagement abroad, was greeted by capacity congregations yesterday morning and last night. This morning another good crowd was on hand to hear this inimitable champion of the cause of Christ in the first of the 8 and 8:30 o'clock services to be conducted each morning during his stay here.

The services yesterday morning were exceptionally inspirational due to the fact that it was Mother's Day and the choir rendered special numbers in keeping with the significance of the occasion. A solo by W. W. Lee and anthem by the choir featured the musical program.

Dr. Gordon, author of "Quiet Talks," a series of books dealing with religious questions, spoke to the three congregations in a quiet, friendly manner, with the injection of his famous "are you listening?" query coming at the end of a number of his remarks.

There is nothing sensational in Dr. Gordon's style of presentation. But there is something astounding in the effect of his quietly-spoken words and the lucid way he presents his subject.

Yesterday morning he spoke on the subject, "The Hungry Heart of God," using as his text the first sentence of Psalm 91. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty."

The story of the manner of God's speaking to Moses as the leader of ancient Israel afforded many illustrations of this great sentence of Holy writ, and brought the hearers nearer to God.

Three important words furnished the key to unlocking the treasure of this personal experience of God: "Act" is the first word that leads us toward God, and He to us, entering into the sweetest fellowship known in the experience of man; "Habit" is the second important word, showing us that if we would abide, it must become a daily habit, and out of these two grows the third word, "Atmosphere," for our action and our habitual touch with God occur within this blessed sense of His presence, and thus we come to know with new meaning the joy of abiding "under the shadow of the Almighty."

At the evening hour, Mr. Gordon spoke upon the topic, "How a Staid Community was Gently Shaken Up," and used the story of Jesus meeting the woman at the well at Sychar, recorded in John 4, as the basis for this message. In simply language this story unfolded before the eyes and minds of the hearers, and once more the opportunity of yielding the will and life purpose to the gentle touch of the Master for His will and purpose was indelibly impressed on the hearers.

"Does Prayer Ever Change Anything," was the topic of this morning's devotions half-hour service. Mr. Gordon led the thought of the congregation into the meaning of this question with this bit of the Word: "Again I say unto you, That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching any thing that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven. For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." Mat. 18:19-20.

The teaching of the Word and the teaching of experience coincide. When we permit God the change things in us, then changes will occur outside. This important fact was well illustrated in the experiences of men.

YOU MUST REGISTER THIS WEEK

If you are interested in the extension of the school term in the Greenville school district to a nine months' term be sure that you register this week in order that you might be qualified to vote in the coming election in which the issue is to be decided. This is an entirely new registration and only those who register will be entitled to vote. The books will close next Saturday night.

So far the registration is small which means that should there be any opposition to the extension of the school term the opposition would have little trouble in registering enough voters in these last few registration days to defeat the movement. We are sure the vast majority of our citizens are in favor of the extended term and realize that the slight increase in taxes to make the longer term possible will be money well spent as an investment in the future citizens of Greenville.

Don't delay this matter longer. The registration books will be at Warren Drug Store from tomorrow through Thursday, and then at the court house through Saturday. Visit one of these places and make sure that your name gets on the books and then when the polls open on the 28th be sure that nothing keeps you from casting your vote in favor of the extended school term.

exception of prices. Those are still tied to the 1926 figures. The unofficial explanation is that the 1923-1925 level represents a more normal condition of production, employment and prices. In 1926 we were on the doorstep of the boom. Moreover the 1923-1925 level is lower than that of 1926 and probably easier to attain.

Marriner S. Eccles, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, would drop the price level theory entirely. He rates it an illusory guide to prosperity. He considers a maximum of production a far more important aim, especially as crop failures and exchange variations bear so unpredictably and uncontrollably on prices. Gov. Eccles' philosophy may affect the administration's attitude on this question if the pending banking bill becomes a law.

CHANGING: Gov. Eccles feels sure the banking bill will pass in a form pleasing to the administration, despite the bankers' opposition to Title II. He has already arranged for a publicity program designed to "sell" the measure to the public and to prove that fears of "political control" of the Federal Reserve System are unwarranted. "Jimmie" Warburg and "Lew" Douglas are blamed for raising that suspicion.

For the first time in its history the Federal Reserve Board has what Washington calls a "press agent." The innovation probably stuns the bankers as much as Title II. In the past the Board has been tomb-like in its secrecy. But Mr. Eccles believes his "special aide" can do a lot to smooth his path in the ad-

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Guy Western has rescued Alison Rede from a deserted Sussex house, and brought her back to her greatly relieved father, Guy. Alison's father is horrified to learn that she has received a telegram from her father, Guy, directing her to the house. He has sent no such telegram.

Chapter 13
ABOUT DAPHNE

"I DON'T know what I should've done without Mr. Western," said Alison sweetly.

Robert Rede took his cue. "I'm extremely grateful to him," he remarked.

"I don't know what else I could have done, sir," said Guy modestly, facing the two honest eyes which were summing him up. "Anyway, it was a pleasure."

Major Rede nodded in approval—he liked young men to call him "sir" respectfully, and he liked a modest tone, compliments inserted in their proper places.

"I hope you'll come and look us up," he said to Guy. "Live in London, don't you?"

Westerns in plenty, but not a single architect called Guy Western in the whole book!

It was after dinner that night that Alison summoned up enough courage to ask about her father's fiancée.

"Tell me more about her. What's she like? Where did you meet her? How did it all happen?"

Robert, sitting contentedly in his big chair, a bright fire burning, his clear light and his daughter perched on the arm of the chair, felt cheerfully at peace with the whole world. He smiled merrily at Alison.

"I expect you thought me an old fool, didn't you?" he guessed. "But you won't when you've met her."

"Yes, but what's she like?" Alison insisted. "You know, father darling, you're not good at description! You haven't even told me whether she is dark or fair!"

"Oh! Dark."

"Pretty?"

"I suppose she's not what you'd call pretty," he admitted. "But at my age, my dear, one doesn't judge by looks. She's charming and attractive. A woman who knows her world, and a delightful companion for a lone man."

"What else could I have done?" asked Guy.

"Mr. Western's an architect," put in Alison.

"Ah! An architect. Well, I hope you'll come round and see us when we're less—when we're less—" he finished that sentence by a fierce twist which sent his tie into its place and a put on his dishevelled, thinning hair. Alison seconded the motion with a soft "Yes, please do!"

"I'd like to very much, if I may." There are times when words are quite unnecessary; two pairs of eyes can talk without such a clumsy medium. A glance exchanged on the way to the front door, a smile, a hand which lingers half a second too long in saying goodbye can express some things much better than any language yet invented. When the front door had shut, Alison gave a sigh.

"Nice young fellow," Major Rede said warmly. "... good manners. Decent. One can always judge." He linked his arm into Alison's and stooped to kiss her again. Said in gratitude, "We must ask him round to lunch or something one day, don't you think we ought to?"

"I think perhaps we ought," said Alison. "He's really quite nice."

Which only goes to show the complete duplicity of even good girls.

SHE was halfway up the stairs when she remembered that she had not asked Guy for his address! Well, he lived in London and it would be in the telephone book. When she had unpacked, bathed and changed, Alison ran down to the library.

"Good to be home again!" she thought, looking round the big, square room with its solid old furniture, its rich, wine-colored damasks and its air of sober peace. Good to be back and good, too, to think that her father liked Guy, that he would be coming to lunch!

She picked up the telephone book and opened it at W. Pages and pages of Westerns, Innsurances and newspapers and factories; Westerns and Westerns and Westerns—it took several minutes to run down the thickly lettered columns; when she had finished she turned back and began again, more slowly. The book dropped from her hands.

ministration of hotel financial authority. When Mr. Meyer was Reserve Board Governor he saw reporters as infrequently as he could. "No news is good news," was his motto—Times—and bankers—are changing.

"Has she any children?" asked Alison.

"Children? Good Lord, no!" He seemed almost shocked at the notion.

"How old is she then?" Her father looked up at her blankly.

"I don't know, now you come to mention it, I don't know!" Alison laughed.

"Darling, isn't that like you!" "I should say she was about," he considered, "well, ten years older than you."

Twenty-eight. Well, that wasn't too bad, decided Alison; it would be more like having an elder sister. The phrase in her father's letter: "a Mrs. Sumers, a widow," might have meant anything.

"You know you haven't really told me anything about her; what's her other name?"

"Daphne."

"That's pretty; Daphne Sumers," said Alison approvingly. Her father tweaked her ear.

"She won't be that soon!"

"Why, when are you to get married?" Not soon, Alison hoped. Let her have a little while with her father first!

"In about six weeks, we thought," he told her. "You see, we're going to honeymoon in Madeira, so I thought I'd wait until your aunt Emily got home from India and then you could stay with her while we were away."

"I think that's a splendid idea," agreed Alison; her fat, red-faced, cheery aunt was delightful and she liked both her young cousins.

"He said rather wistfully now, 'I hope you are going to like her.'"

Alison stooped and kissed him lightly.

"I know I am," she said warmly. "I expect it has been lonely for you."

He laughed slyly.

"Has? Don't you think I'd be rather rash to count on many years of you, my dear?" He noted her flush with a smile and added, "Think I didn't notice how that young man looked at you?"

"He didn't!"

money had been set aside for the study and no authorization given.

Social planners say that no long-term program of government or private undertakings can be started without a knowledge of the kind and cause and total of unemployment. Ignorance of this problem is abysmal. Nobody knows how many women have entered industry since the depression, although they have widely supplanted men in small-machine production. There is no estimate of the number of jobless who have come of employable age since 1929. Nobody can verify or disprove the statement that total employment needed for peak production is 25 per cent less than in 1929 because of technological advances.

A. F. of L. estimates say that slightly less than 11,500,000 were out of work in April and this does not include those on PWA, FERA and CCC rolls. National Industrial Conference Board figures run about 10 per cent less. An authoritative estimate is more essential now than ever before if the country is to have a standard—political as well as economic—by which to judge the effectiveness of the $4,000,000,000 work-relief program in providing a "full dinner pail."

ANOTHER: Gold troubles again! A New York attorney thinks he has found a scheme for beating dollar devaluation despite the Supreme Court decision upholding revocation of the gold clause. In the gold bond covenant it is provided that the bond shall be accepted in payment of federal income taxes. Taking advantage of this provision he has advised certain clients to offer a $1,000 gold bond in payment of $1,690 in taxes on June 15.

Government lawyers anticipate difficulty in defeating the act in the courts. They doubt if action begun on this basis will reach the Supreme Court. But they don't like the idea of another trip down the long trail. Once was too much.

OFF-THE-RECORD: The Washington press corps—400 men and women—generally endorsed President Roosevelt's refusal to disclose to Congress his off-the-record revelation of the spanking he administered to Big Business spokesmen.

Although handled informally, the matter might have proved a serious invasion of the freedom of the press—and the President. He talked frankly to newspapermen in these twice-a-week off-the-record sessions. He gives them unpublisheable information which guides them in writing about profound issues. If he had set a precedent by permitting 531 Congressmen to eavesdrop the confidential nature of these get-togethers would disappear. The President's style would thereafter be cramped by the prospect that his words would be published in the Congressional Record.

The off-the-record system has its evils. It permits officials to spread propaganda without assuming responsibility for it. But any smart correspondent can detect propaganda when he sees it and he needs no help from Congress!

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN

TIP-OFF: The transformation of the American Bankers' Association from a cooling dove to a roaring lion traces to the influence of the big New York banks. Its mild-mannered criticisms of the banking bill weren't getting enough reaction from Washington to satisfy opponents of "political control."

The big fellows realized their own entry into the fray wouldn't help their cause with Congress—so they persuaded President Roosevelt to change his milk diet to raw meat.

The tip-off which shows New York's hand inside the A. B. A.'s glove is the later news voiced objection to the change in Title I which provides that banks belonging to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation shall contribute one-eighth of one per cent of their total deposits as a premium instead of one-twelfth of one per cent as originally proposed.

This is purely a big bank complaint. The higher the assessment based on total deposits the more they have to kick in proportionately. The little institutions would naturally be in favor of that—so the A. B. A. certainly isn't expressing their viewpoint.

PROXY: The section of Title II which New York is especially anxious to have amended is Marriner Eccles' proposal that the Federal Reserve Board alone shall have absolute control over open market operations—which means the purchase and sale of government securities by the twelve Federal Reserve banks. This demotes the governors of the regional banks to the status of mere "advisers."

It's true that the regional banks—including the once mighty New York bank—do as Washington tells them without any back talk now so it wouldn't make much difference in current practice. But financial leaders hate the idea of perpetuating that condition by law.

It remains to be seen whether New York's aggressiveness by proxy gets results. Objective observers doubt it.

ADVANTAGE: New York Republican circles are buzzing with talk of Owen J. Roberts as they haven't buzzed for years. The suggestion that he might be a suitable Presidential candidate next year has drawn an amazingly warm response from men who count behind the scenes.

No one of importance is going to spill the beans by declaring for him prematurely but shrewd appraisers of political values figure he has two important factors in his favor. One is his double-edged appeal. His consistent liberalism in Supreme Court decisions (up to the rail pension case) would be a selling point with Republicans who fear a throw-back to right-wing domination of the party. At the same time his forceful opinion on the pension law is reassuring to business and financial interests.

His second advantage is the fact that he is a member of the Supreme Court and therefore cannot be smoked out on any issue except those which come before the court. Republican strategists are convinced that the less they commit themselves the better their chances for a comeback and Mr. Roberts is protected against having to take positions. Moreover that protection will last right up to the moment he is drafted—if he is. His only political drawback is that he comes from Pennsylvania. And perhaps that won't be such a handicap in G. O. P. eyes since the Guffey-Earle triumph put the Keystone State in the doubtful class.

BIGGER: Lewis Douglas is beginning to catch the spotlight again. Watch him edge into it farther. Conservatives are pushing him quietly to the fore. He's a personable and convincing spokesman and his budget-balancing speeches are drawing an encouraging fan mail.

There's some talk of him as a conservative Democratic candidate in '36—the Palmer-Bukner role that Jesse Jones has been expected to play. Many right-wingers would prefer him to Jones.

But Lew's friends say nothing doing. He has bigger game in view—a key part in the future reconstruction of a Democratic party purged of New Deal heresies.

SCALPS: The Stock Exchange old guard is completely licked so far as control is concerned but is out for a little soul-satisfying revenge. The boys have whetted their sharpest knives for John W. Hanes at today's election. They will feel quite consoled if they can keep him out of a governorship.

Hanes is a special target because he was a leading member of the commission house crowd which engineered Richard Whitney's over-throw. Also—horror of horrors—he is reputed to be a Roosevelt supporter.

Eurd Grubb is another candidate for governor whose scalp is sought. A number of old timers don't like the idea of "an upstart from Curby" helping to manage their affairs.

DEAD: Betting is 5 to 1 there will be no extra session of the New York legislature to reapportion political districts—despite reports that Farley and Lehman are preparing to make Tiger jump through hoops.

Tammany opposition to loss of seats in the legislature hasn't weakened in the least. Political sharps predict that Jim Farley has too much sense to pick a fight he's bound to lose when he will need all the party harmony he can get in 1936. Reapportionment looks as dead as a mummy until next year—and maybe longer.

Legislative Rambling

present that Burgess was actually directing the dry senators' campaign.

Although no one except members of the Senate, newspapermen, and legislative employees are permitted to enter the Senate chamber proper during sessions of the upper House, Burgess flagrantly flouted the rule.

Later as the House was preparing to concur in the Senate's action Senator Steele, a Democrat of Ireland, was seen to enter the hall of the lower house to confer with Republican Representative Charlie Jonas. The state Republican party is officially bone dry. Rep. Jonas has consistently voted against every bill offered to submit the liquor question to a vote of the people, either on a statewide or a county basis. During heated house debates Democratic representatives have repeatedly interrupted his speeches to ask if he was making political speeches or addressing members of the House.

Burgess has been present in the capitol on every occasion when the legislature has voted on liquor control. He was conspicuously absent when the Page bill was being debated. The Page bill would have increased the number of liquor act enforcement officers in the state.

The 1935 legislature failed to clear up the clouded tax foreclosure situation in North Carolina. After Charles Whedbee, legislative adviser to Gov. Ehringhaus, had spent weeks in preparing a uniform tax foreclosure law the Senate passed it, but the house refused to pass the measure, thus leaving the tax muddle just as it began at the session found it.

The Whedbee bill, drawn after many students of taxation had been consulted, was considered by most impartial observers to be a thoroughly good measure and would have provided a uniform system throughout the state in the matter of tax foreclosure. The 1935 legislature passed several acts relating to the subject, but most of them were later declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court, thus leaving the situation in worse condition than before the laws were passed.

Several local bills, applicable only to particular counties, were enacted into law during the session which ended on Saturday.

The only tax foreclosure measure passed during the 1935 session was the bill offered by Rep. Rous, of Lenoir, on Saturday. It provides that additional suits for delinquent taxes against persons already having such suits in the courts may be added to the suits pending, thus reducing the expense to the delinquent taxpayer and reducing the number of cases to be handled.

POLITICS AT RANDOM

By BRYON PRIVE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

Talk of a right-wing third party in which old-line Democrats could battle against what they regard as the dangerous policies of the Roosevelt administration, makes almost no impression in Washington.

When Governor Talmadge of Georgia denounced Mr. Roosevelt as an extreme radical, and predicted there would be a third and presumably more conservative ticket in the field in 1936, most experienced politicians merely smiled.

They could not picture Mr. Roosevelt's chief critics within his own party, such as Senator Carter Glass, Al Smith and John W. Davis, either supporting Republicans or going into any sort of coalition with Republicans.

It just doesn't fit in at all with the lessons of experience.

Few Leaders Bolt

To suppose that dissatisfied elements of a party easily can be persuaded to bolt is one of the greatest fallacies in politics.

It is quite true that party allegiance is not what it used to be; still it remains the rule, not the exception.

An examination of the election return of any year will demonstrate that only a minor percentage of the whole body of voters shifts from one side to the other, even in times of political upheaval.

The percentage among leaders is even smaller. Only a handful of first-rate political figures can be named who have left their party during the topsy-turvy changes of the past twenty years.

Party Loyalty

The case of Senator Glass is very much in point. He probably has used stronger language than any other Senator in condemnation of various of the key measures proposed to Congress by Mr. Roosevelt.

Yet no one who really knows him expects him to leave the party. He is of that school which believes that the Democratic party at its worst is better than the Republican party or any independent movement at its best.

He is of the same spiritual lineage as that other conservative Democrat who recently was asked how he could support the President for re-election.

"Why shouldn't I?" he responded. "The fact that I don't approve of his temporary leadership has nothing to do with my devotion to the party. I'm just a better Democrat than he is, that's all."

To Observe Guest Night.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will observe their annual Guest Night this evening at eight o'clock in the auditorium of the church.

Speaks At College.

The college students are having the privilege of having Dr. S. D. Gordon with them on the campus for two services. He conducted the Y. W. C. A. vespers services last night and will talk at the assembly hour tomorrow at twelve o'clock.

"The Master Is Here" was his subject last night, and he made a deep impression on the young women who heard him. His easy informal approach to the subject and the close connection between the scripture lesson and the application to their own lives made his message seem personal.

As most of the students went home for Mother's Day, the attendance unfortunately was not so large as usual.

The Friday night services have been especially interesting lately. Miss Lois Grigsby, of the English department, last week spoke on the subject, "The Burning Heart," which term she used for one whose Christianity is real, one who has a passionate desire for right living. She gave the standards of conduct such as a person has, and illustrated by campus standards.

Miss Maria D. Graham recently talked on "The Joys That Come To One Through Work," maintaining that the normal person is not lazy, but likes challenging tasks and finds happiness in the successful accomplishment of different tasks.

The get-together meeting of the Third District was entertained by the two Auxiliaries of St. Paul's parish, Greenville, on May 8th. Representative groups of women from Ayden, Farmville, Grifton, Greenville and Winterville were present.

At ten o'clock the Holy Communion was celebrated by the rector, Rev. Worth Wicker.

Following this service the meeting was called to order by the district president, Mrs. G. S. Vought of Farmville. Mrs. Eleanor Gower of Grifton, graciously responded to the cordial welcome extended the visitors by Mrs. Richard Williams.

After the routine of business was completed a very interesting program was presented. Mr. Wicker spoke on the purpose of the "Forward Movement" in our national church. The program was participated in by Misses Hennie Long and Bessie Brown of Greenville, and by Mrs. Joyner of Farmville. A playlet given by the college girls of the Friendly Hall group coached by Mrs. Worth Wicker, was very effective.

Noon-day prayers were said by Rev. Mr. Klonan of Farmville. After the benediction pronounced by Rev. Alex. Noe of Ayden, the group adjourned to the parish house, where a delicious luncheon was served and a happy social hour was enjoyed.

After this good-byes were said with the reminder that next year the group would enjoy another happy get-together experience at Grifton. —Reported.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 12.

The golden text was from John 3:14-15. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson was the following from the Bible: "And seeing the multitude, he went up into a mountain; and when he was set, his disciples came upon him: And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying, Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."

The lesson-lesson also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When speaking of God's children, not the children of men, Jesus said 'The kingdom of God is within you,' that is, Truth and Love reign in the real man, showing that man in God's image is unfallen and eternal. Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick. Thus Jesus taught that the kingdom of God is intact, universal and that man is pure and holy."

Methodist Bible Study.

The Bible Study will meet at the Methodist Church on Wednesday evening at 7:00 o'clock instead of 8:00 o'clock, as is usual, so that members may attend the meeting at Memorial Baptist Church to be conducted by Dr. S. D. Gordon.

Entertain For Rev. and Mrs. Grady.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert C. Grady were honored at a most charming reception Friday evening when the Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Mosely.

Guests who called between the hours of eight-thirty and nine-thirty were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clifton and presented to the receiving line by Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Crisp and Mrs. Norman Warren. Composing the receiving line, which was formed in the music room, were Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Mosely, Rev. and Mrs. Robert C. Grady, Dr. J. N. H. Summerell, Mrs. Georgia James, Mrs. Hunter, Mrs. Marshall, Miss Ruth Hillhouse and Mr. and Mrs. Carey Warren.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Harvey invited the guests into the dining room, where Mrs. P. M. Johnson and Miss Kate Lewis served iced delectable the bridal motif, from large silver platters.

The central table spread with a lace cloth held an arrangement of tall, slender candelabras supporting pink tapers flanked the centerpiece. The dining room and the reception rooms were adorned with lovely summer flowers.

Mrs. Chas. Horne and Mrs. H. P. Dennis received in the dining room. Miss Helen Briley, Miss Mary Agnes Deal, Miss Mabel Ames, Miss Martha Minges, Miss Louise Corbin and Miss Nancy Nesbitt served dainty cakes and salted nuts. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Clifton directed the guests into the hall where they were asked to register by Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Beard.

The adepts were bade by Miss Lewellyn Thornton.

COREY PLAYED BIG PART IN LIQUOR FIGHT

Pitt County Senator Backed Effort to Secure Vote on Legislation of Rum

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, May 13.—Senator Arthur Corey, of Pitt county, played a leading part in securing for 18 counties the right to vote on the question of liquor control. Starting out with the idea to secure that privilege for only Pitt county, he was besieged by other legislators until his bill, as finally presented, took in more than two congressional districts.

The Corey bill was not passed, but the same purpose was accomplished through the Williams bill which applied only to Pasquotank county. The reason for the switch from the Corey bill to the one offered by Representative Webb Williams was that the latter bill had already passed the lower house. A delay would have resulted from passage of the Corey bill. By the simple expedient of amending the Williams bill so that it applied to Pitt and other counties the lower house had to vote only once on the bill to concur in the senate amendments, because the house had already passed the Pasquotank bill.

Identified throughout the session as a liberal, Senator Corey has gained the lasting respect of his colleagues in the upper house of the state's lawmaking body. To your correspondent Senator Corey exhibited telegrams from about 150 of the leading citizens of Pitt county urging him to see that his county received the privilege of holding a referendum on the question of liquor control to be accomplished through a store-system, operated by the counties in which stores will be located. All profits accruing from the sale of legal liquor will go into the coffers of the several counties. The state will receive no share of the proceeds.

Aside from his own personal convictions as to the question of submitting to the voters the question for final settlement Senator Corey said he was motivated by a desire to see that the best people in his county were duly represented by him. He reiterated that many of the leading citizens of his county asked him to work to the end that the question might be voted on by the people.

"I am a Democrat," said Senator Corey, "and I subscribe to the Democratic principle that the people should decide such a controversial question as liquor control. I hold no brief for liquor, nor am I a wet; but I do believe that the people should vote on this question."

BAPTISTS TO GO MEMPHIS

Annual Meeting of Southern Baptist Convention to be Held This Week

By WALTER M. GILMORE

Memphis, May 12.—(Special)—Memphis will be the mecca of Southern Baptists this week. More than 5,000 messengers from the eighteen states and District of Columbia included in the territory of the Southern Baptist Convention are expected to attend the eightieth session of the Convention in the municipal auditorium of this city May 15-18.

According to President M. E. Dodd, Shreveport, La., who will give the key note address Wednesday afternoon on "The Stewardship of Ideas," major emphasis will be placed on Foreign Missions at this session. Dr. J. B. Weatherston, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, who is scheduled to preach the Convention sermon Thursday morning, has just arrived from a four months tour through the Orient on which he visited many of the mission stations of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, London, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, and Dr. Geo. W. Truett, Dallas, president of the Alliance, will speak the first evening of the Convention concerning the religious needs and outlook of the world.

The report of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, will attract much interest. Dr. I. J. Van Ness, who has been connected with the Board for the past thirty-five years, half of this time as editorial secretary and the latter half as executive secretary-treasurer will make his final report, since he is retiring from the Board in June. Dr. T. L. Holcomb, Oklahoma City, who recently accepted the position as executive secretary-treasurer, succeeding Dr. Van Ness, will be presented to the convention by Dr. W. F. Powell, Nashville, president of the board.

According to statistics recently released by Dr. E. P. Aldredge, statistical secretary of the convention, Texas this year leads all states of the Union in the number of Baptists. For forty-five years at more Georgia has held this distinction. According to Dr. Aldredge, there were at the close of 1934, 924,725 Baptists in Texas, including both white and colored. There were 915,000 in Georgia, with North Carolina third with 750,000. Of the number in Texas 599,793 cooperate with the Baptist General Convention (white). According to Dr. Aldredge's figures there are now 24,360 churches cooperating with the Southern Baptist Convention with a membership of 4,277,052.

LOUIS HOWE'S ONE PROBLEM
By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—For a quarter of a century the future of Franklin D. Roosevelt was Louis McHenry Howe's one absorbing problem.

In all the annals of the White House there probably never has been a Presidential secretary with his record of devotion and astute political counsel. Unparalleled also was the close political partnership and personal friendship with a chief executive enjoyed by that little waif of a man who wore baby clothes and a high, shiny collar of the type fashionable in America's bicycling era.

A shy, self-effacing man who apparently cared nothing for personal preferment, Colonel Howe managed to keep clear of much of the White House limelight despite the fact that his extraordinary position in the President's confidence and his reputation as a master political strategist made him an important figure in the administration.

President's 'No-Man'

While the names of brain-trusters such as Professors Mooley and Tugwell and of new dealers such as General Johnson and Donald Richberg, were being flashed in the headlines as the President's No. 2 or No. 3 men, Howe quietly went about his business in the inner sanctum carrying the job he himself had once described as being "Franklin's no-man."

Not only was it said that his astute political counsel and unflinching devotion did more to develop "The Boss" into Presidential material than anything else excepting Mr. Roosevelt's own efforts, but his position in the household had been for many years something like that of a wise and beloved old uncle.

When Mrs. Roosevelt was puzzled about something, it was to "Louie" she often went for advice. He called both the President and the First Lady by their first names.

Great Nervous Energy

Hunched in a chair, he would peer from soft brown eyes in a thin, seamed face over high piles of papers on his desk. The papers, the desk and the room seemed to dwarf him. Most expressive were his hands. Grasping a telephone, holding a paper or cigarette, they seemed to dispose the nervous energy that his quiet manner so effectively concealed.

Howe disliked titles, particularly the flamboyant "Colonel," although he was very proud of being referred to as Roosevelt's closest friend. He was interested in photography, enjoyed old friends as well as old clothes, while the seashore and detective stories had a fascination for him. He liked poetry and cats and played a smart game of bridge.

In the period prior to Mr. Roosevelt's becoming governor of New York, the stepping stone to the presidency, Howe had a bedtime talk with him practically every evening on affairs of the day. While Roosevelt was governor Howe would go up to Albany from New York City several days of each week.

In Manhattan, he lived like a recluse. When the family was out of town he ate by himself and then went to the Roosevelt town house where he read detective stories.

PIRATES ARE BLANKED BY OAK RIDGE

Oak Ridge Cadets blanked East Carolina Teachers College, 4-0, in a nifty baseball game here Saturday afternoon.

Roger Taylor, Greenville boy, pitched the shutout. He held the Teachers to two safeties and struck out eight. Rogerson, ace of the Teachers, allowed only three hits, but his mates erred at the wrong times.

The Cadets counted twice in the fourth on three errors. Another was scored in the sixth on an error and Hayworth's double. Mock's triple opened the eighth, and he counted when Tyson's bounder was muffed. Grizmad made the Cadet's other hit.

Ferebee and Ridenhour made the Teachers' two safeties.

New York Cotton

New York, May 12. (AP)—Cotton futures declined, barely steady, two to eight points on lower Liverpool cables and on London selling. After calling off to let losses of 6 to 10 points, investors tapered and price rallied, followed by a call off from 11:02 to 11:09 about the end of the first half hour had recovered to 11:01 with the general market three to nine net lower at that time.

July asked to 11:05 and then recovered to 11:09 on trade news five times but other months had failed to follow at midday and the general list was 6 to 15 points lower.

Puttings closed steady.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 12. (AP)—White pine stock market continued flat in the afternoon today. Some outside traders took profit on the three that a corrective reaction was overdue.

The white pine market for sometime developed a strong tendency in the early decline and some of the outside and speculative found buyers.

Terrific trends appeared later however as a few of the utilities declined.

Electric provided a little enthusiasm for awhile. Wheat was a net on a high and cotton was down. Secondary rail line picked up in the bond market. Steel was down in foreign exchange transactions.

The late stock tone was rather firm.

Transfers were 1,950,000 shares.

program, took up the last big bill of the session.

In a report to the House, the ways and means committee asked passage of laws to strengthen the government's operations against liquor smugglers whose operations now have increased to "alarming proportions."

Downtown Washington saw the arrival of the advance guard of southern farmers coming here, they said, "to offset some of this opposition noise to the administration's farm program."

Flannagan Bill Reported Out.
Washington, May 12. (AP)—The Flannagan bill to establish tobacco classification and inspection standards and authorize the secretary of agriculture to designate approved auction markets was voted out today by the House agricultural committee.

The measure also provides for the licensing of samplers and inspectors and provides for the secretary to investigate the sorting and other processes in the marketing of tobacco as well as to set up tentative standards pending establishment of official standards. Inspection and fees are to be paid by the buyers.

Provisions would be made for the inspectors to distribute bulletin information on the market, supply and demand, and other facts affecting tobacco prices.

Bailey Raps Long
Washington, May 12. (AP)—Asserting that Senator Long, democrat of Louisiana, was suffering from an "illusion of grandeur," Senator Bailey, democrat of North Carolina, declared in the senate today: "It is about time the American people are told that chicanery, trickery, fraud and corruption are not tolerated in this body."

Bailey After Long
Washington, May 12. (AP)—New charges made by Senator Long, Democrat of Louisiana, against Postmaster General Farley's official conduct were countered in the Senate today by Senator Bailey of N. C., with the assertion that the Louisianaan had submitted "not an iota of evidence that would be competent in any court or other deliberative body."

Before a packed Senate and crowded galleries Long had stated he "could produce witnesses that Farley had been a party to a 'diabolical fraud' through manipulation of government contracts."

He read an affidavit made to him April 23 last, by Helen Humphreys, a former employee of the James Stewart Company, New York contractors, in which she swore she could testify that Harry D. Watts was given a contract with that firm because he had claimed he could get business for it through Farley.

Bailey, replying, said Long was now producing an affidavit of April 23 "when his accusations were made on February 11." He said Long had failed to produce witnesses before the post office committee which rendered an adverse decision on his request for an inquiry when asked to do so.

AND BAILEY AFTER
Long interrupted to say the committee had not authority to summon witnesses then because it involved expenditures and the audit committee did not approve such outlays.

"I gave a list of all the witnesses," Long said.

"His list was Mr. A and Mr. B," Bailey returned and when Long said promised to disclose the names prior to that time Bailey said the "time was then."

Rare Roosevelt
Chicago, May 12. (AP)—Senator Thomas Schall, republican of Mississippi, told the Chicago Bar Association today that "if President Roosevelt enters an election in 1933 and wins 'there'll be no further election and the republic of the United States may be only a matter of history."

The president has assumed the functions of our republic," the blind senator said "and is about ready like Louis 14 to declare himself the state."
