Fort Lauderdale, Fla., May 27. (AP)—William B. Leeds, Jr., who had been missing in a small fishing craft with two companions last night arrived here this afternoon.

Washington, May 27. (AP)—President Roosevelt today ordered the navy and coastguard to start search for William B. Leeds, who was reported missing since 6 p. m. yesterday in his 26-foot fishing launch enroute from Miami to Bimini.

The president acted on receipt of the following message at 10:10 this morning from Captain Fox of the Yacht Monaca:

"Mr. William B. Leeds missing in 26-foot fishing launch since 6 p. m. yesterday enroute from Miami to Bimini.

"Please do your utmost to start immediate systematic search."

Stevens Early, a secretary to the president, immediately notified the navy and coastguard.

Miami, May 27. (AP)—A coast guard seaplane today searched for the 26-foot launch in which William B. Leeds, Jr., prominent New York socialite, who left Miami yesterday for Bimini.

The fishing launch should have reached Leeds' yacht Monaca, anchored at Bimini, within four hours. The sea was rough during the night and there were scattered gusts of heavy rainfall.

The coast guard sent out the patrol shortly after daybreak to search between the islands and the British Islands fifty miles away.

The plane returned at 10:40 for refueling and resumed the hunt with Commander L. P. Chalker at the controls.

Chicago, May 27. (AP)—Philip Whaley, Jr., investment house clerk, was shot and killed today when he resisted a Negro gunman who "arrested" the youth and a companion on the pretext that he was a policeman and then robbed the two.

Mayor Urges Support Of 9-Months' School

Asserting that "Greenville is on trial," Mayor R. C. Flanagan today called on the people of Greenville to go to the polls tomorrow and vote for the proposed nine-months school term.

The message was dispatched from Washington, D. C., where the mayor has been confined for several days on account of illness. He has been much interested in the movement to provide a supplement for a ninth month of schools here, and because of his inability to be home election day, sent the following message to remind the people of the importance of the balloting:

"Greenville is now on trial. She has always given her citizens the best. Let us now do our duty to our children and provide for them what they most need. A small investment now will grow to wonderful proportions in a few years. The only real pleasure you will ever get out of life is to do something for someone else. Think on it. Now is the big chance." R. C. Flanagan.

ATTENDANCE AWARDS GIVEN

Hundred and Thirty-seven High School Pupils Handed Certificates Today

This morning at homeroom period 137 high school pupils were awarded certificates for perfect attendance. Out of a school of 500 people such a record is indeed outstanding.

Among the eighty-nine seniors twenty-eight have perfect records for the 1934-35 term. The outstanding senior in this respect is Charles Musselwhite, who has neither been absent nor tardy for the last eight years. This commendable record was almost equaled by Edith Clark and Opal Claire Harris who have perfect records for six and five years respectively.

Marvin Riddle, Charles Wooten, Josephine Saad, Helen Foley, Carl Abbe and Sam Dees have records of perfect attendance for four years. Those with three years of no absences and tardies are the following: J. B. Tyndall, Doris Tucker and Mary Belle Fleming. Two-year records of perfect attendance include Matt Phillips, Margaret Hyman, Leo Burks and Grady Bell. The following seniors have such a record for their senior year: Ronald Slay, Carl Langley, Max Minges, John Size, Elizabeth Moore, Mary Agnes Walker, Alton Johnston, Neal Herring, Glenn Brooks, Elizabeth Carrio, Doris Clark and Gertrude Eason.

The percentage of attendance for the senior class for the entire eight months was over ninety-eight.

William E. Parker, chief of the Monterey, Cal., fire department was a member of the city's first organized force 45 years ago.

Special School Election To Be Held Tuesday

Voters of the Greenville School District will go to the polls tomorrow to vote on a nine months' school term here.

The movement for the extra month of school to supplement the state-supported eight months term received additional impetus here this morning in a parade staged by the student body of Greenville high school, including the 89 members of the graduating class dressed in caps and gowns which they will wear at final commencement exercises tonight.

Preceded by the high school band, the paraders passed through the business district. They bore banners containing snappy slogans in the interest of the ninth month of school and urging people to go to the polls and make the vote unanimous.

It was the first parade of its kind ever staged here and attracted the interest of hundreds of people in the business district.

When the special registration books closed several days ago 956 persons had registered for the election, and supporters of the movement were optimistic today that they would be successful.

In a last minute effort to convince the people of the necessity of going to the polls in large numbers, Mayor R. C. Flanagan from a sick bed in a Washington, D. C., hospital urged "consideration of the child life of the community" and asked full support. Before going to the hospital, the mayor, in a public statement, placed himself unequivocally on the side of improvement of the schools.

Other leaders of the community have also voiced their appeals and indications were that a big vote would be cast in favor of the proposal, which has been endorsed by leading organizations of the city.

J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, declared the movement was for increasing the length of the school term alone and did not involve improvement of curriculum or increase in pay of the teachers.

Voters who registered for the election were impressed with the necessity of going to the polls as all who fail to vote will be counted against the movement.

Headquarters of the forces supporting the extra month of school will be at the office of F. C. Harding tomorrow, and persons who have no way of getting to the polls have been requested to call the office and arrangements for transportation will be made for them.

SEEK WORLD CONFERENCES ON CURRENCY

Great Britain Expresses Hope Pres. Roosevelt Will Call for Meeting

London, May 27. (AP)—Encouraged by what they construed as indications of growing sentiment for international exchange, British financial circles expressed hope today that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull might take the initiative in calling a new world currency and trade conference.

The opinion was held here that the key to stabilization rests with Washington. British financial writers declared that stabilizations would be impossible if the United States eliminates what was described as the uncertain factors in her policy.

The factors sighted are the possibility of further devaluation of the dollar, the war debt issue and the present silver purchase program.

Observers here inclined to the belief that President Roosevelt may be contemplating some modification of his program. If such modification should be evaluated and a conference be convened it is generally conceded in press comments the conversations would have a fair chance of success.

PUBLICATION KIDNAP NOTE BALKS PROBE

Mystification Expressed Over Note Published in Seattle Newspaper

Tacoma, Wash., May 27. (AP)—Publication today of the ransom note sent to the parents of nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser, after his kidnaping Friday caused authorities investigating the case to express fear their negotiations for his return would be considerably hampered as a result.

"It's terrible," commented a high police official who refused to permit his name to be used. "It is an outrage and may prevent us from aiding the parents to get their son back safely for several days if ever."

The authorities expressed complete mystification as to the source which supplied the note published and copyrighted by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, the newspaper in which Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, the youth's parents, were requested to insert a reply to the note.

Officials said the original to the note together with the envelope on the back of which was scrawled the boyish signature of the missing boy had been sent to Washington where it was being studied by experts of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice.

It was believed, however, that descriptions of the note had been kept from the various law enforcement agencies cooperating in the case.

No word came as to whether the kidnapers had again communicated with the parents after the advertisement in Sunday's Post-Intelligencer appealing to them to find new methods to reach the Weyerhaeusers.

Detectives continued to watch the post office here in the belief the kidnapers might again send a special delivery letter to get their reply to the boy's parents.

Salient points in the ransom note follow:

"Demand for $200,000 in cash in bills of various denominations and marked."

"Five days in which to raise the money." Today was the third day after the warning that they were no to notify the police or any private detective agency and to keep it out of the newspapers.

Another warning to "just follow the rules—we'll get along fine, don't slip on your part or it will be just too bad for someone else," a boast the police could not catch up with them and that they were educated and intelligent.

RETURN FROM
TRIP TO TEXAS

Greenville Men Praise
Work of International
Kiwanis Convention

Judge Dink James and G. V. Smith returned yesterday afternoon from San Antonio, Texas, where they attended the annual convention of Kiwanis International. Judge James is president of the local club and Mr. Smith is past president.

They reported the convention one of the best in years, declaring that more interest was confined to actual work of the organization than in many years.

In addition to hearing addresses by leading officials of the organization they also were treated to a trip to Monterey, Mexico, where they had an opportunity to see how Mexico does things, and were outspoken in their praise of the charms of the senoritas.

The trip lasted about ten days and was marked by a number of sightseeing excursions in which the thousands of Kiwanians took part.

The two Greenville delegates expressed themselves as gratified over the fine reception accorded them by San Antonio residents, declaring everything was done to make the convention one of the best in years.

Suspended publication of numerous newspapers and periodicals in Germany in the last two years has resulted in a marked curtailing of the output of German newspaper.

Wheat Control Plan for Four Years in Offing

Washington, May 27. (AP)—A plan to hold the nation's wheat crop in check for the next four years was being put into final stage today by the AAA in the wake of a referendum showing farmers overwhelmingly in favor of control efforts.

Latest unofficial returns favored continued control of the wheat adjustment program by 179,029 votes to 28,330. Officials were jubilant.

France Supported As Government Offers
Battle to Gold Standard

Paris, May 27. (AP)—The French cabinet today offered battle for the gold standard, announcing the government's life would be staked on the defense of the franc.

A demand by Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin for "full powers" was approved and the council of ministers with President Lebrun presiding is expected formally to adopt his program tomorrow.

The danger to the franc through the treasury's inability to borrow was explained by Louis Germaine-Martin, minister of finance, who told the cabinet of the tremendous drain of gold which bankers estimated would reach 1,000,000,000 francs or $65,000,000.

CIVIL COURT
BACK AT WORK

Two Week Term Resumed Here This A. M. with Calendar of 30 Cases

The second week of the two weeks' term of civil superior court convened here this morning with Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount on the bench.

The calendar for the final week contains around thirty cases of more or less interest to the people of the community. It was expected the majority of actions would be disposed of either through direct hearing or by the compromise route.

Around fifteen cases were completed last week, several of which were compromised.

Every effort is being made to clear as many cases as possible from the civil calendar and quite a dent has been made by the number of sessions held here since the first of the year.

Germany's formerly important export trade in sugar has practically disappeared, according to reports of American trade observers in the Reich.

Washington, May 27. (AP)—NRA codes were wiped out today by the Supreme Court. It made this ruling in an opinion delivered by Chief Justice Charles Hughes in the Schechter Poultry case from New York, selected by the government to test its power to regulate wages and hours of workers through the more than 500 NRA codes of fair competition.

The A. L. A. Schechter Poultry Corporation, the Schechter Live Poultry Market, Inc., and four individuals comprising those two firms, engaged in the live poultry business in Brooklyn, were indicted for violating the live poultry codes of fair competition and with conspiracy to violate the code.

In the Federal District Court for Eastern New York the members of the two firms were found guilty in the conspiracy count and given prison sentences, and with firms were found guilty on the remaining counts relating to trade practices.

With Donald R. Richberg, NRA chief, who argued the case in a crowded court room, Chief Justice Hughes held that 96 per cent of the live poultry marketed in New York came from other states.

"The defendants are slaughterhouse operators," he added. "They do not sell poultry in interstate shipments."

"The government," Mr. Hughes said, "stressed the general national crisis confronting the country."

"Extraordinary conditions may call for extraordinary remedies," he said, "but the arguments stop short of attempting to defend the act outside of constitutional authority."

"Existing conditions do not create constitutional power."

The court declared Congress had not proved sufficient restrictions and had not laid down proper rules.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

Washington
By RAY TUCKER

LIBERALS: The private conference recently held in an upstairs White House room behind lowered blinds—with the guests steering in the rear entrance—was the most important political assemblage since the 1932 Democratic National Convention. The extraordinary attempt to keep it masked shows how the participants from the President down feel about its economic and political possibilities.

It was a session at which the President asked for brutal criticism from Sen. e Progressives who campaigned for him in 1932 but have lately been turning against him in disappointment. Those invited to submit pent-up grievances were Senators Norris, LaFollette, Wheeler, Cogan and Johnson. The only Cabinet members invited were the two liberals—Wallace and Ickes. Conservatives in the Senate and the Cabinet were barred. The symposium sparked and sizzled from shortly after dinner until 2 in the morning, and the guests did not spare their host.

They told him wherein they thought he had failed in his pledges to them and to the "forgotten man." They furnished him a bill of particulars concerning measures which his friends and party leaders have blocked or sidetracked. They read letters in which their constituents charged him with having followed a "lost leader." They still expressed their hope in him, blaming his apparent desertion on certain of his advisers. They alleged that some of his aides have definitely tried to keep the facts from him and to insulate him against liberal thought—and resentment.

FRUITS: Their bitterness was a surprise and a shock to the President. (Continued On Page Four)

Dancing will be from nine until one o'clock. Paul Jones and his orchestra will play for the dance.

Vesper Service At College.

The vesper service by the side of the lake yesterday evening was one of the most beautiful and impressive of the college Y. W. C. A. has ever given.

The announcement of the girls who were elected by secret ballot to represent certain qualities of character, whose names had been kept secret until they stepped forth to take their parts, gave added interest to the occasion.

The pageant "A Litany of Comradeship" which for years was used for the vesper on commencement Sunday, made a beautiful climax to a splendid series of services through out the college year. This has become an annual affair, and its main purpose is to present the college girls who have shown most vividly the qualities which go to make up "The House of Comradeship."

The spirit of the Y. W. C. A. was represented by the retiring president, Miss Frances Watson, and Head of the House of Comradeship, "Love," by the new president, Miss Hathe Pearl Mallard. The remaining qualities were represented as follows: "Friendliness," by Miss Ethel Vick; "Cooperation," by Miss Effie Lee Watson; "Service," Miss Frances Watson; "Sincerity," Miss Polly Melvin; "Loyalty," Miss Margaret Martin; "Trust," Miss Helen Jenkins; "Courage," Miss Margaret Norman; "Joy," Miss Melba O'Brien; "Sympathy," Miss Malene Grant; "Understanding," Miss Isa Costen Grant; and "Hospitality," Miss Jackie Outland.

Those taking part in the pageant were dressed in white robes with the blue bands showing the national colors of the Y. W. C. A. The members of the choir were concealed by shrubbery, so the music seemed to come from the very air, and the hymns chosen fitted the scene and the hour. Taps were sounded from the distance, followed by the procession, the Y. W. C. A. official song, "Follow the Gleam."

Orchestra Pleases Audience.

Enoch Light and his internationally famous orchestra were heard in a concert of varied music at East Carolina Teachers College last Saturday night by a large responsive audience.

Wesley Philathea Class.

The Wesley Philathea Class of Jarvis Memorial Methodist Church will meet Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, instead of on Monday evening, with Mrs. Roy L. Harris, in Chatham Circle. Mrs. J. H. Woolard, Miss Addie Conleton and Mrs. Matt Hardee will be assisting hostesses.

The many friends of little Jane Jane, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Rollins of Winterville, will regret to learn that she is suffering from infantile paralysis.

half of the program was more or less equally divided between the semi-classical and the popular numbers while the latter part consisted chiefly of request numbers, the greater part of which were popular pieces.

The orchestra was composed of thirteen pieces, a concert soloist and tenor vocalist.

Some of the numbers on the program were "Overture To Faust," Mr. Light's own arrangement of "Manhattan Serenade," and "Medley of Waltzes," "Sylvia," "Chloe," "Serenade to a Wealthy Widow," "Without a Song," "It's Easy To Remember," "Dust on the Moon," "Dinah," "Sweet Sue," "A Latin From Manhattan."

Miss Ozella Phenice, concert soloist, sang "I Bacio" and "L'Amour T-Jour L'Amour."

Andrew Hayes, tenor, pleased the audience with several songs, among them some specialty numbers.

Philip Le Bow, cellist, was heard in a solo selection of the classical order.

Enoch Light, the director, displayed his ability as a musician leader but not only as an orchestra leader but as a soloist and violinist. His most pleasing personality and his willingness to respond with the many request numbers won for him the admiration of the entire audience.

During intermission and at the end of the concert, backstage and ante-room were crowded with students seeking the autographs of the artists.

This program, the last number of the entertainment series for the current year, was acclaimed by the students as "the best" and "certainly was by far the most popular that has been presented on the series in several years."

J. B. Cummings, of the Geography staff, has served as chairman of the entertainment committee for the last two years, and during this time has brought many outstanding entertainments to the college. The other members of the committee are, Dr. Lucile Turner and M. L. Wright of the faculty, and Misses Frances Newsome, Elizabeth Wilson, Eleanor Cuthrell and Jack Humphrey, student representatives.

First Church of Christ, Scientist.

"Soul and Body" was the subject of the lesson sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 26.

The golden text was from Psalms 84:2: "My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh crieth out for the living God."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson sermon was the following from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly houses of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord. (For we walk by faith, not by sight). We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord." (II Cor. 5:1-8).

The lesson sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When you say, 'Man's body is material,' I say to you: Be willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. Give up your material belief of mind in matter, and have but one Mind, even God; for this Mind forms its own likeness. The loss of man's identity through the understanding which Science confers is impossible; and the notion of such a possibility is more absurd than to conclude that individual musical tones are lost in the origin of harmony."

Beauty Contest and Ball.

Farmville, May 27.—One of the outstanding social events in Eastern Carolina during this season is the beauty contest and ball which is to be given in Farmville on Friday evening, May 31st. The Junior Women's Club and Associate Carolina are sponsoring this gala event and all indications are that it will be a huge success.

Governor Ehringhaus has been invited to crown the queen. The judges invited are: Lt. Gov. Graham, Senator Rivers Johnson, Senator W. G. Clark, Sr., W. Bruce Lea and Miss Helen Ward.

The queens and sponsors have been selected and everything will be done for their entertainment. The queens will be presented at nine o'clock and the judges will decide Eastern Carolina's most beautiful girl.

The ball will follow immediately after the judges' decision, dancing will continue until 3 a. m. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fenner have been asked to lead the opening figure. Music for this stupendous affair will be furnished by Benny Goodman's N. B. C. orchestra of fifteen artists including Helen Ward and Patricia Burgen of cinema and radio fame.

HIGH SCHOOL ART CLASS IN FIRST EXHIBIT

Accomplishments of Special Work Shop Viewed by Hundreds of People

On Friday, May 24, in the library of the Greenville high school was held the first exhibit of the special class in general shop work.

Throughout the day a large number of students and a few parents visited the exhibit and found to their surprise that this class has accomplished unusually splendid things throughout the year.

Since December, eighteen boys under the direction of Mr. Warren Gillespie have been doing general shop work in a basement room of the high school building. These boys range in age from ten to fifteen years, and in grade from the second to the sixth. The work of the year has been primarily in three fields: mechanical drawing, woodwork, and metal work. C. exhibit were some over a hundred articles which were made in the general shop, such as ash trays, letter boxes, picture frames, candle holders, lower pockets, book ends, cigar stands, magazine stands, kitchen stools, sewing boxes and airplanes.

Mr. Gillespie came to Greenville from Elkton Maryland after a number of years of experience in West Virginia Maryland and Tennessee. The type of work which he has been able to elicit from this special class of boys is indeed remarkable. So keen has been the interest of this group in their work that frequently boys have been at work in the specially equipped shop from seven o'clock in the morning until six in the evening. Occasionally evenings found some of these boys back at school doing a type of work which they have learned to enjoy. School for this group now seems more practical and more worth while than when the more formal studies were the only menu.

With such results as have been only too obvious to parents and teachers of their boys it is certainly to be hoped that this work can be continued on an even larger scale next year.

NEW BOOKS

By JOHN SELBY

A two-volume set of books entitled "God's Soldier" (Macmillan) is enough to set anybody pondering. Any two-volume set of anything is these days.

But the truth is that this particular work is worth almost anybody's time. St. John Ervine has ever-written the story of the Booths, perhaps, but one must admit that the story presents a temptation.

Probably the second of the two volumes is most interesting, if only because it contains the story of a dramatic disintegration, equally dramatic incidents, and a good deal about the only Booth the author does not unduly revere. This is Evangeline.

There is much color in this volume, too. There is the amazing story of Smith-Picott, whose career led from the Anglican church thru the Salvation Army to the directorship of his own sect and the production of three children named (actually) Power, Glory and Hallelujah.

Another is the story of Eva Booth's hurried journey from Canada to the convention at which Bellingham Booth was attempting to seduce the American branch of the Army away from the suzerainty of Bramwell, his brother and head of it all. Eva found the door locked, but was not chilled. She found an open window, appeared dramatically on the stage and stopped the session.

ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT IN WILSON

Wilson, May 26.—Coy Crawford who escaped from the State Prison Camp near Goldsboro two months ago, while serving a term for robbery, was arrested last night by local officers at the corner of Paul and Broad streets here when the car in which he was driving was caught in a traffic jam.

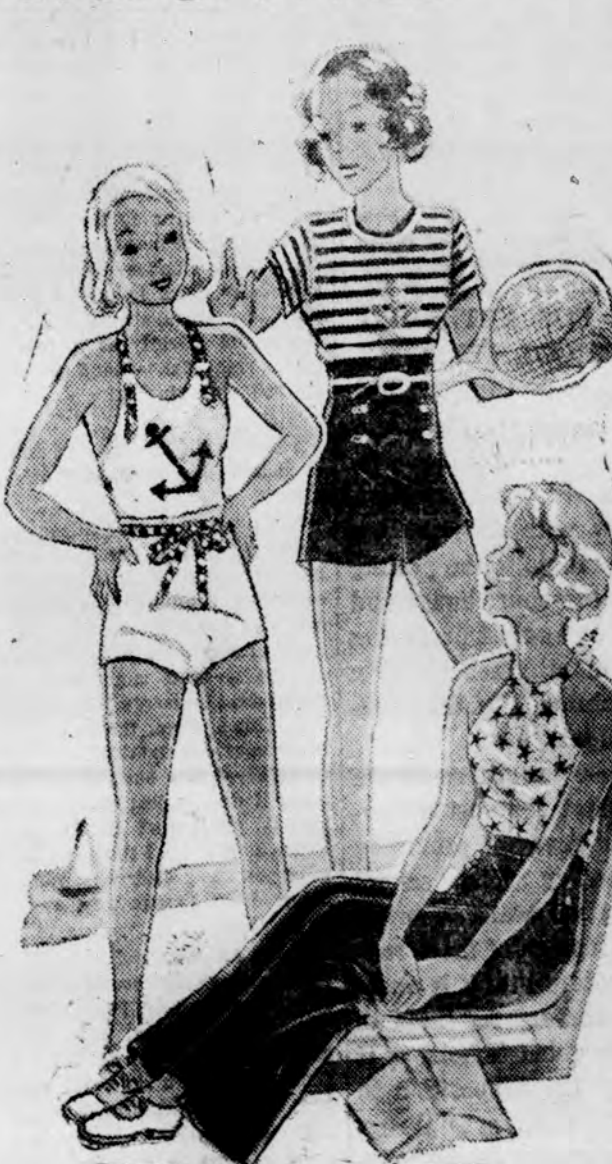

Basic Griffin, a Wendell tobacco auctioneer, was in the car with Crawford and was also arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Crawford is being held here pending the arrival of prison camp authorities from Goldsboro.

VOTE FOR EXTENDED SCHOOL TERM

Nine hundred fifty-six citizens of the Greenville school district who registered for the special school election, tomorrow will have the opportunity to go to the polling place at the court house and vote for or against providing a nine months school term for the children of this community next year.

Of those registered, we believe that the vast majority are in favor of providing the necessary long school term but we want to bring to the attention of these registered voters that it is absolutely necessary for them to cast their votes tomorrow if they want the proposition to carry. Under this special registration, every person who fails to vote is counted as voting against the movement so if you stay at home tomorrow and fail to vote it is just like going to the polls and casting your ballot against the movement for a longer school term.

We repeat that it is our belief that the election will carry by a big majority if those who have registered will vote their convictions, but if you stay away from the polls and leave it for others to do the voting, there may not be enough votes cast to carry the election and the movement will fail.

If you are among those who have registered and are eligible to vote in tomorrow's election we urge you to let nothing keep you from visiting the polls and casting your vote FOR the extended school term. The future of our children from an educational standpoint depends upon the action of our voters at the polls tomorrow.

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Alison Rede knows that Daphne Summers is marrying Alison's father for his money. Today she has seen Daphne, through the window of her flat, in the arms of a strange man. Alison learns on her return home that suddenly Daphne has persuaded her father that Alison should go with them on their honeymoon. Alison cannot decide whether to tell her father about Daphne and her other lover.

Chapter 25

PHONE CALL

COULD Guy throw any light on it? she wondered. She glanced at the ivory and silver clock on her table. Still another ten minutes before dinner. She began to hurry, finished dressing quickly, clasped on her father's turquoise pendant and ran hastily down stairs.

After seven, he had said, and it was now ten minutes to eight. If she rang up now, she would catch him, she could tell him of the new development before her father got down or Daphne Summers arrived.

The light was out in the library but Alison did not wait; she ran to the desk and switched on the reading lamp, caught up the telephone book and flipped over the pages. Dundas—Doctor Dundas—here it was—an address down in the East end;
she dialed the number with a finger that shook slightly as it fumbled for the right slot. What a long time the bell took ringing!

"Hello?"
—Somehow she had expected a maid or Doctor Dundas instead of Guy himself.

"Hello? Is that you? Alison Rede speaking. Listen, I've only a few moments but I wanted to tell you—something funny has happened—I can't talk about it now, she's dining here and may come in at any minute and the servants might hear. But can we meet tomorrow?—It's urgent.
Yes! Lunch, then, the same place, same time? All right. Will you pick me up here? Yes, but I think it'd be better if we met just round the corner. Do you know? By the end of Ebury Street... I thought I ought to let you know after what you said today. Well, thanks most awfully.
Goodnight."

Alison set the receiver back. Intense relief, to have someone to turn to in these troubles. Perhaps if she told him about that other bit of knowledge, the kiss, he would see more clearly than she could herself what was the right thing to do.

She went out and upstairs to the drawing room to wait for Daphne Summers.

BEHIND her, in the library, the heavy wine-colored damask curtains parted. Daphne came out of the window recess quietly and rather slowly. Crossing to the table, she took a cigarette out of the silver box.

She had a very long holder of amber, bound with gold—one of Robert Rede's presents; she fitted the cigarette into it with careful precision, all her thoughts elsewhere. When she had lit it, she went out of the room and up the stairs to the drawing room, her face without expression and her eyes no more than very faintly amused.

Dinner passed off so calmly that the girl began to hope that her father had listened to her after all.
Daphne accepted her apology sweetly.

"Of course, I quite understand. I often do myself. You didn't notice the time. It doesn't matter in the least; we can shop tomorrow instead, can't we?" Not a single question about that lunch, not a word about the honeymoon plan! Before the evening was over Alison found herself wondering if she had made too much fuss.

It was not until the next day at one o'clock that anything happened.

THEY were all three up in the boudoir, looking at patterns and approving Daphne's final choice.

"Rather nice," Robert always agreed amicably on such points. He knew nothing of furnishings and cared less. He took a chocolate from the box beside Daphne and said, "I say, these are good! Your own making?"

"I made them specially for you they're all the nutty kind that you like."

"You're a marvel!" He offered them to Alison, who could say truthfully that they were the best that she had ever eaten. But she sighed. They had been two hours choosing! Daphne seemed to like to keep them both there, centered on her affairs.

But two hours of such comparative calm that Alison really felt wise. We must press the education of our children far beyond anything heretofore attempted. A nine months school term tends in this direction and therefore we should support it and maintain it until our intelligence and virtue lead us to establish a twelve months term.

"Bye, darling," She waved to Daphne and ran to the door.
"Alison!" Her father spoke gravely.

"Yes?" With her hand on the door, she turned, "What?"
"I want a word with you."

She came back into the room slowly, her face growing pale. What now?

"Did you lunch yesterday with that young architect fellow, what's his name?" Robert Rede was always simple and direct.

"Guy Westman?" Alison could not help a glance at Daphne, but she was sitting on the floor turning over her lapful of patterns, her face totally expressionless. Robert went on sternly.

"You're off to lunch with him again today." It was a statement, not a question.

"Yes," She could not guess how he knew but she threw it back defiantly.

"Well, you're not to! You're not to see him again. I forbid it. Understand?" He put that quietly enough yet between them that special tone had always meant an order that must be obeyed.

"But why? I must know why!"
Alison was white now as the wall behind her.

"Because I've found out all about him," said her father. "And he's not a fit person for you to know."

think the fruits of this mysterious conclave show already in his determination to force his far-reaching program through Congress without compromise.

HOP: Huey Long's insistence that he is a "poor man" seeking only the advancement of the meek and lowly is derided by Democratic sleuths—who charge that he spends freely to propagate his share-the-wealth theories. They suggest that certain interests inimical to the New Deal are supplying him with funds for siring discontent among the young.

One of Huey's most active and ardent disciples is Eugene Daniel of New York. Mr. Daniel figured in the headlines not so long ago as the radical Harvard graduate who tear-gassed the New York Stock Exchange and gave the bulls and bears their first real cry in years. He visits Mr. Long's office frequently and returns to New York with a wad of money which he does not make by selling the Senator's newspaper on street corners.

Mr. Daniel stages lavish beer parties after these trips to Washington. He boasts that "here is more money where that came from."
The Harvard man makes no attempt to whoop 'em up at political rallies.
He simply collects adolescents in beer cellars and Greenwich Village gardens. Then he fills them with hop and Huey.

STRANGE: Republican bigwigs are mortally offended by these marches on Washington, especially as the parade has just begun. Unless the GOP can discredit them as rigged-up affairs its leaders fear they will turn out to be a distinct partisan asset between now and the 1936 election.

That explains Senator Hastings' concern. Although the Senate rejected his demand for an investigation, the chairman of the Republicans' Joint Congressional Committee is keeping the issue alive. His letter asking Secretary Wallace for his version of the farmers' trek is merely the opening gun in the engagement.

The Senator could find Wallace's views in a book he wrote long before he became Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Wallace declared then that farmers must demand the same influence as Washington which corporate and labor lobbies enjoy. He still feels that if the U. S. Chamber of Commerce can assemble 3,000 delegates every year in its palatial structure a block from the White House, the farmers have the same right to voice their desires and protests. And the White House—strangely enough—sides with Wallace.

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN
BARGAIN: Secretary Roper's Business Advisory Council isn't the only group which feels it has been given the works in Washington. The American Bankers' Association nurses a similar grievance.
Several months ago leading members of the Association had a private conference with Federal Reserve Governor Marriner Eccles in Texas. It was all very unofficial but New York insiders say a definite undersanding was reached. The ABA agreed to soft pedal its opposition to Title II of the banking bill —and specifically not to object to an open market committee (controlling the purchase and sale of federal securities by the Reserve Bank) dominated by the Federal Reserve Board.

In return Eccles was supposed to engineer acceptance of amendments by the administration which would remove the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency from the Federal Reserve Board and would give four votes out of nine on the proposed open market committee to governors of regional Reserve banks. The bill as it stands allows the regional banks merely to advise—note to vote.

OVERSTEPS: The bankers aren't hurling any open charges of a double cross. That wouldn't be wise—because they'll be pretty much a Mr. Eccles' mercy if the bill passes.
But privately they claim they lived up to their end of the swap and Eccles didn't.

That's why the ABA has been so unexpectedly calm and gentle in its attitude towards the bill until recently. Their tune changed only when it became certain that the promised amendments were not coming through—and their present vehemence is in proportion to their disillusion.

The best posted sources exonerate Eccles personally from the imputation of bad faith. They figure he overstepped his authority in offer-

JEAN HARLOW EATS HUMBLE PIE

Jean Harlow (left), the movie beauty, really started something when she snubbed co-eds at the University of Arkansas. The girls, all Harlow fans, called her in Hollywood by long distance telephone—but Jean said she didn't know anybody in Arkansas and wouldn't talk to them. Aroused by the snub, a theatre chain in Arkansas suggested a boycott of Harlow pictures. Hollywood learned of it and pretty soon Jean called one of the co-eds, Bob Henderson (right), and apologized to the extent of $6.45 telephone tolls. (Associated Press Photos)

ing such an agreement—but didn't know it until later.

ALONE: New York sharp's prophesy that Father Coughlin will come a heavy cropper on the Nye-Sweeney banking bill. His assumption that the administration will swallow said he favored an independent monetary authority won't be justified. The Radio Priest has announced that Congressional hearings will be held on his bill—but that isn't up to him. It's up to Senator Fletcher and Congressman Steagall. Neither of them is likely to confuse an already complicated situation still more just to make Coughlin happy.

When the Eccles bill first came up several of Father Coughlin's closes; advisers urged him to support it as a practical step towards his objective. They told him it would be politically impossible to go beyond it at present. But Coughlin wouldn't listen and came out for his own plan. Then he burned his bridges by attacking the Eccles bill as a "bankers' measure" (you wouldn't think it was if you could hear the bankers talk.) That makes it impossible for him to retrace his steps and get aboard the winning wagon now.

Astute observers remark that this is the first issue he is making a fight on which hadn't already been extensively popularized (by other sources besides himself) before it came to a test. This was true of devaluation, of the silver policy, of opposition to the World Court and of the Patman bonus bill. For once he stands virtually alone—and it will make quite a difference. The Nye-Sweeney bill won't bet to first base—but a lot of financial conservatives hope Coughlin does succeed in promoting a Congressional argument about it. They figure that would vastly improve the chances of killing the objectionable Title II in the Eccles bill.

FLEXIBLE: Even conservatives were startled by the low scale of wages established for relief work.
They freely admit that the hardest-bodied industrialist would have trouble finding grounds for complaint about unfair competition.

as violent as the initial reaction from labor would indicate. They point out that a large proportion of allotments are specially exempt —PWA projects, highway construction, etc. Beyond that Harry Hopkins has considerable latitude in shifting the announced scales. This flexibility will be a great advantage in appeasing discontent if it gets dangerously hot.

SAFE: The railway brotherhoods threaten to support the Wheeler bill for public ownership of railroads unless the Crocker pension bill and the proposal to require a three-fourths majority of the Supreme Court to nullify an act of Congress are enacted.

New York interprets this as a beautiful bluff. The brotherhoods don't want public ownership. It's harder to drive a bargain with the government than with a private employer. But they know that the Wheeler bill hasn't the shadow of a chance—so it's perfectly safe to make the gesture.

FAMILIAR: Charles R. Gay's maiden speech as President of the New York Exchange might well have been delivered by Richard Whitney himself. His only departures from tradition were to say that the national welfare must come first and to pat the Securities Commission on the back. The latter wasn't unprecedented—Whitney had done it before he quit.

Mr. Gay harped on the familiar chord that there's nothing wrong with the Stock Exchange except that it's terribly misunderstood.
This was reassuring to the old-timers who feared he might possibly turn out to be a crusader.

WICKER IS HIGH FINALS SPEAKER

Final Commencement Exercises of City Schools to be Held at College Tonight

Declaring it is the "little things of life" that result in great achievement, Rev. Worth Wicker, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, delivered the annual sermon to the graduating class of Greenville high school in the high school auditorium last night at 8 o'clock.

The minister told his hearers there are really no great things in the world, that it is the gradual succession of small things which make for actual accomplishment.

Commencement, which started last Friday evening with presentation of the annual senior class play, will come to a close tonight with graduating exercises in the campus building of East Carolina Teachers college. The literary address will be delivered by Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount, who is presiding over civil superior court here. Julian Miller, editor of the Charlotte Observer, was to have delivered the final address but illness prevented his filling the engagement.

Diplomas will be presented to the 29 graduates, the largest class in the history of the school by James L. Little, chairman of the Board of Trustees of City Schools. J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, will announce awards for the year, and special music will be provided by high school musicians.

Centering his sermon around a saying found in Persian literature, "Blessed is the man who digs a well in the desert," Mr. Wicker showed that the diligent diggers of today accomplish as much as did those referred to by the Persians. The work of digging a well in the desert in the old days was a life-saving achievement, but today it would be of little consideration—would actually constitute a small thing compared with the big way of doing things during this era. It is the succession of little things, however, which eventually result in outstanding accomplishment, he declared, urging his hearers to confine their attention to the little things in future life, assuring them that all things good and great were achieved in this manner.

He called attention to the work of Sir Ronald Ross, whose efforts in the medical field saved the world from malaria, and to the Crusaders who brought about the surrender of pagan Jerusalem, and asserted that it was through the application of constant effort that they finally succeeded in their fight to improve conditions in the ages in which they lived.

He told his young hearers that, probably the greatest of all things might be found in digging in the well of human ignorance, releasing minds from bondage and to greater heights of achievements. He said education was the greatest thing inherited from forefathers, and that the greatest anybody could do was to continue to provide this medium for greater human progress and development.

He called attention to the three talents spoken of in the Bible, and what might have been accomplished by the recipient of the third talent had he applied himself to the "little things" of life instead of being satisfied with what he had.

"Put your best into everything, whatever you do," he urged, "in order that it may prove a help to humanity."

Following the sermon, J. H. Rose, superintendent of schools, called attention to the election for a nine months' school to be held tomorrow, and urged support of the citizenship. He said it was a movement in behalf of the children of the community, and appealed for his hearers to go to the polls and help this cause.

The service was largely a tending and was marked by impressive music by the high school orchestra, under direction of J. A. McDougle, and numbers by a mixed quartette and mixed chorus directed by Miss Oona Shindler, director of public school music.

The graduating class made an impressive appearance as they filed to the front of the building in conventional caps and gowns. The program consisted of the procession, hymn, "For the Beauty of the Earth," invocation by Rev. J. H. McIver, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, responsive reading by the congregation, "A Legend," mixed quartette, scripture reading by Rev. J. A. McIver, sermon, "Stanzas," from St. Cecilia Mass by mixed chorus, and benediction by Mr. McIver.

"MURDER" CASE ROAMS 45 YEARS. COWMEN SAY
Alpine, Tex. (AP)—Cowmen here like to argue that the red yearling calf of January, 1890, still roams the range. They say the steamed, sad-eyed "critter" returns here at certain times and bellows through the window of an old saloon.

Two camps of cowboys guarded every calf near Locust in 1890. Two guns flashed; a small herd was dropped. The cowboys groaned and branded the calf "Murder, January 1890." Although that was 45 years ago, as told in the region's history, it is alleged the "calf" still haunts the country.

STRESS HOME ECONOMICS IN HIGH SCHOOL

Twenty-One Senior Girls Take Advanced Courses During Past Session

One of the most practical and interesting courses in the high school curriculum is the home economics work. For the school year 1934-35, twenty-one senior girls have taken advanced work in home economics.

During the eight months of school these students have taken up the more obvious phases of several fields of work. In the first place a unit in personality development was stressed. In this unit such aspects of personality as personal grooming, health, and social ease were emphasized. The second unit of work was in home beautification. Both interior and exterior planning was studied. Perhaps one of the most valuable units of the year was that in food preparation. In connection with this unit, a number of formal dinners were given with members of the home economics classes acting as hostesses. One formal tea and several picnics were also given by this group. The unit in clothing construction resulted in many useful garments, and also in improved taste and more effective economy. The unit in home management was in the process of study when the year closed.

No phase of high school work for the past year has been of more genuine value and pleasure than that done under Miss Mary York in the Home Economics Department.

WILMINGTON LIQUOR PROBE NOW ASSURED

Wilmington, May 27.—(AP)—The New Hanover county grand jury will meet in special session today to begin an investigation of charges of "protection" payments and "tip-offs" on pending raids, John J. Burney, district solicitor, said last night.

Charges of protection payments and graft in the liquor traffic in Wilmington were made Tuesday from the stand in Superior Court by Al Brandon, admitted speakeasy and gambling house operator, as he pleaded guilty.

Solicitor Burney said 100 subpoenas have been drawn for persons believed connected with illegal enterprises in Wilmington and that the grand jury will remain in session six months if necessary to make a thorough investigation of the charges.

KANSAS NEWSPAPER GETS 'PLEDGE' FROM IMBIBEES

Independence, Kan. (AP)—First offenders convicted of drunkenness here may avoid publicity in the Independence Reporter by signing an agreement to refrain from the use of liquor.

In the event of a second conviction, full details reprinted including the account of the signing of the first pledge. The plan has proved so successful, the Reporter says, it is being extended to include minor infractions of the liquor laws.

THIRD STREET SCHOOL ONE OF CITY'S MOST BEAUTIFUL

The Third Street Elementary School, one of Greenville's four modern school buildings for children of the white race, is considered one of the most beautiful school buildings in this section. To the rear of this building are the city school system athletic fields and a completely appointed field house.

7TH GRADERS RECEIVED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Certificates Presented at Appropriate Exercises Here This Morning

This morning at nine-thirty in the high school auditorium one hundred and five seventh graders were graduated from the grammar grades of the city before the largest audience ever to witness a seventh grade graduation in Greenville.

The short program opened with a hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," and was followed by the invocation pronounced by Rev. J. A. McIver.

Immediately after the seventh grade chorus under the direction of Miss Zell Jones gave two selections: "Summer Time" and "Stars of the Summer Night."

An unusual feature of commencement exercises for the seventh graders was their being welcomed into the high school by the seniors graduating from the high school tonight. Sam Dees, president of the class, made a brief speech of welcome to the incoming freshmen and presented to the class the colors, yellow and white, which the class will use while in high school. After certificates of graduation were presented to the seventh graders, graduates of the year's senior class pinned the class colors on the incoming freshmen and escorted them to their seats.

The senior class of 1935 which is instituting the custom of receiving the freshmen in the high school hopes that other classes will find it convenient to make this a yearly habit.

After letters and plans were forwarded to the baseball boys, the program was concluded with the high school song done by the band, glee club, and high school seniors.

Another Strike Ended.
Clay County, Kas. (AP)—Prisoners in the Clay county jail struck because "the law in Kansas compels us to work if we don't want to." Sheriff Jimmy Wood informed them they would be obliged to serve one day longer for each day of the strike. They went back to their work.

New York Cotton

New York, May 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady one higher to six lower with trade buying and near month liquidation on distant positions.

After new crop positions sold off four to seven points lower July advanced a few points on the spot house buying. By the end of the first hour the market generally was showing and advance of two points to a decline of six with October easing from 11.85 to 11.80.

At midday the newer months held within a point of the high while new crop positions were within a point or two of the low or five points net higher to 8 lower from the general list.

The market eased later in the day. Futures closed steady 2 to 19 lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, May 27.—(AP)—Europe's gold standard struggles intrigued the financial markets today but the market refused to be depressed and prices generally were upward.

Notwithstanding anxiety was expressed here and there as to the ability of the French to hold to gold, little disposition was shown to liquidate stocks.

After a hesitant start the utilities list firmed.

Although selective participation was still the rule, the activity dwindled as a number of traders decided that the sidelines were safest at the moment.

Trains and cotton were not particularly enthusiastic, and pointed a little higher. The late tone was steady to firm. Transfers approximated 850,000 shares.

NRA Codes Are Wiped Out By Supreme Court to guide the President in approving the codes.

It ruled section three of the act providing for codes of fair competition was an illegal delegation by the power of Congress.

In a decision read by Justice Brandies it ruled on a case brought by the Louisville Joint Stock Land Bank against William Bradford, Sr.

The federal district court for Western Kentucky and the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the legislation affecting farm debts estimated at $12,000,000,000 by the Minnesota attorney general. The supreme court was unanimous.

The law provided for moratorium attempts failed to scale a farmer's "Section three is without precedent. It sets up no standards aside from general claims."

The code making authority conferred, he ruled, is an unconstitutional delegation of legislative authority.

Washington, May 27.—(AP)—The Frazier-Lemke act granting a five-year moratorium for paying off farm mortgages and affecting billions of dollars of indebtedness was held unconstitutional today by the Supreme court.

Congress, Mr. Hughes emphasized cannot delegate to the President the right to do whatever he thinks desirable. He said Congress had not specified adequate restraints.

The President in approving the code may add to or subtract from the provisions.

Many May Seek to Oust Senators in 1936 Elections

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Although no one dares hazard a guess as to when congress will wind up the present session, there are indications around capitol hill that the '36 elections already are coming in for serious attention.

Almost every day word of a new contest is passed around in cloak-rooms and corridors. Members of the house have their eyes on seats at the other side of the capitol and are preparing to go after them in the primaries.

Such gossip has it that Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, dean of both houses in point of continuous service, will have a fight on his hands next year. Two members of the house—Martin Dies of Jasper and Orange, and Joe Eagle of Houston—are both reported planning to run against him.

Kentucky Battle Seen

Rumor has it also that a first class contest is in the offing in Kentucky where the portly Senator Logan is up for reelection. Fred M. Vinson, a house six-termer and author of the much discussed plan to pay the soldiers' bonus which was shelved in favor of the Patman proposal, is reported edging himself to run against Logan.

Senator Logan, a former chief justice of the Kentucky court of appeals, created something of a stir in the senate shortly after his election by declaring rather ironically that he didn't want to come to the senate in the first place and that since he had been there he was not at all sure he cared about staying.

Chavez May Be Opposed

Senator Capper, republican of Kansas, is reported to have run into political difficulties by his support of "new deal" legislation. He has been charged by some members of his party with being a better democrat than a republican and an effort may be made to unseat him in '36.

The attitude displayed by the group of senate liberals when Dennis Chavez of New Mexico presented himself to take the oath of office to fill out the unexpired term of the late Bronson Cutting makes certain a lively senatorial contest in that state next year.

The six senators who absented themselves from the chamber while Chavez, a democrat, was being sworn in, are prepared to invade New Mexico if necessary in 1936.
