GEORGE WEYERHAEUSER FREED BY ABDUCTORS

DR. MEADOWS INDUCTED AS E. C. T. C. HEAD

Pat M. Neff, Head of Baylor University
Delivers Inaugural
Address Here

By WILLIAM O. VARN,
Associated Press Staff Writer
Dr. Leon Renfro Meadows today was inducted as the second president of East Carolina Teachers' College. An impressive ceremony attended by a host of educational leaders from more than a score of institutions of the nation.

His inauguration climaxed a quarter of a century of service by the new president as a teacher at the college, and the large auditorium of the campus building was filled as the impressive academic procession filed across the greenward to commence the exercises.

Dr. J. Y. Joyner, long a leader in educational activities in the state, the man who fostered the plan for rural education in North Carolina, and a former state superintendent of public instruction, presided over the inaugural.

Following the processional and a selection by the college orchestra, Rev. J. A. McIver, pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, offered the invocation. The college glee club sang, and Dr. Joyner introduced Governor Ehringhaus.

Governor Ehringhaus, who as a 21-year-old representative from Pasquotank introduced legislation that led to foundation of this institution, introduced Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor University at Waco, Texas, and a former governor of Texas, who was the principal speaker.

Dr. Leon R. Meadows was inaugurated president of East Carolina Teachers college in colorful exercises held at the college today. He succeeds Dr. R. H. Wright who died last year.

JACKALS ADD NEW TERRORS 'QUAKE AREA

Beasts Descend From Hills in Great Numbers to Streets of Indian Village

Queta, India, June 1.—(AP)—Jackals from the surrounding hills early today descended to the shocked streets of this earthquake stricken city in search of prey adding a new horror to the ruined plateau area.

The death toll was beyond computation but it was believed to exceed the early estimates of 20,000, including some 200 Europeans.

Shots from the rifles of sentries answered by shrill shrieks of pain as the beasts were struck and the ailing cries to "Allah" by half-demented natives were the only sounds that broke the deadly silence which hangs over the city.

All structures of the city might well have been of paper crushed down by a mighty gust of winds sweeping through the Boland pass.

The appalling vista of wreckage stretches more than 100 miles.

Inaugural Speaker

Hon. Pat M. Neff, ex-governor of Texas and president of Baylor University, Waco, Texas, who delivered the chief address at the inauguration of Dr. L. R. Meadows as president of East Carolina Teachers College this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

NEW CODE TO BE ADOPTED BY LEAF HOUSES

Auction and Loose
Leaf Industry Plans to Work Under Voluntary Agreement

The auction and loose leaf tobacco warehouse industry expects to operate this year under a voluntary code, according to plans discussed today at a meeting of the directors of the East Carolina Warehouse Association. At this meeting, which was held in Wilson, the directors unanimously decided to proceed at once with plans for the adoption of a code based upon voluntary approval by all members of the association.

A tentative draft of the new code will be presented at the annual meeting of the East Carolina Warehouse Association, which will be held in Wilson at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, June 5. Practically all the warehousemen are expected to attend and express their approval or disapproval of the voluntary plan.

Many members of the industry have already gone on record as favoring the adoption of a voluntary code. They have expressed the opinion that it would be most unwise to give up the gains already secured under the code, which has been tied in with the agricultural adjustment programs designed for the benefit of the tobacco grower. Many provisions of the governmental code worked directly to the advantage of the patrons of the auction tobacco markets, and the farmers, the warehousemen and the buyers have generally approved of the administration of the code during the past year.

The further opinion was expressed that the warehousemen should continue to give their wholehearted support to the tobacco program of crop control now in force under the direction of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

If the proposed voluntary code is adopted by the East Carolina tobacco warehouse industry, it is expected that other associations operating in Georgia, the Carolinas and Virginia will also adopt a similar code, and possibly the association, in the other areas where tobacco is sold at auction.

Portland, Ore., June 1.—(AP)—The resources of the Oregon state police were thrown into the search for the kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser today, at the request of Washington state police officials at Olympia.

Latest word received at state police headquarters said the kidnapers, six in number, were headed south from Seattle in a tan Hudson sedan and a gray Buick sedan.

Flood And Storm Death Toll Mounts In The West

(By Associated Press)
Death and destruction today lay in the wake of devastating floods which rode down the plains streams in Colorado, Wyoming, Nebraska and Kansas.

Denver, Col. June 1.—(AP)—A wireless message to the American Red Cross here said today 16 persons were killed as the tornado struck McCook, Neb., at about the time the city was hit by flood water yesterday.

Miller, Neb.—A child was killed, her mother suffered probably fatal injuries and several farm homes and buildings were demolished by a tornado which struck the Miller district in the south part of the state last night.

Verdigris, Neb. June 1.—(AP)—Twenty-five families were driven from their homes and all Verdigris business houses were flooded today when Verdigris creek went out of its banks after a cloudburst southwest of here. The damage could not be estimated immediately.

Lincoln, Neb. June 1.—(AP)—Acting Governor W. H. Jurgensen today authorized Adjutant General H. J. Paul of the Nebraska national guards to use national guard troops for the relief of Nebraska's flood and started for Alma.

MAGISTRATES TO MEET HERE

Northeastern District
To Meet at Court
House Here This
Evening at 7:30

The Pitt County Association of Magistrates of the Northeastern district, in their convention in Greenville this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Court house have issued a special invitation to the members of the Pitt County Bar Association to hear Judge J. Paul Frizelle, of Snow Hill, who is to make the principal address for the occasion. He will be introduced by Judge Dink James, of the Recorder's Court.

Other speakers on the program will be Hon. A. B. Corey and Hon. John Hill Paylor and Hon. M. O. Blount, Pitt County representatives in the recent session of the Legislature. There were numerous bills introduced of a local as well as a statewide nature effecting the magistrates of their respective counties as well as the members of the North Carolina Association of Magistrates, and these legislative representatives will present the various measures ratified and explain the purpose of such bills. This part of the evening's program should prove interesting to the Magistrates as well as the lawyer guests in attendance.

Mr. H. A. Bland, president of the North Carolina Association of Magistrates will preside over the business session while John Ivey Smith, president of the Pitt County Association will serve as chairman of the other part of the program.

Indications are that there will be two hundred or more magistrates of the Northeastern District present as well as a large number from other districts of the State.

Late News Flashes

Uncover Crucifixion Hoax
High Point, June 1.—(AP)—R. J. Riggs, 36-year-old filling station operator found nailed to a cross here early today confessed this afternoon, Solicitor Gaston Johnson said that he arranged for a 15-year-old boy to "crucify" him in an effort to get his estranged wife to return to him.

The boy Solicitor Johnson said was Donald Riggs, the filling station operator's son by a previous marriage. (Continued on Page Four)

SEEK PARDON FOR LUKE LEA

Formal Application for Former Tennessee Banker Is Filed
With Governor

Raleigh, June 1.—(AP)—The formal application for the pardon for Luke Lea, former United States senator of Tennessee, who is serving a term in the North Carolina state prison for bank law violations was filed today with Governor Ehringhaus.

The petition was placed in the hands of Edwin M. Gill, parole commissioner, before it was sent to the governor. Gill said he expected to hold a public hearing in the matter in ten or fifteen days. He will then lay his recommendations before the governor.

Lea based his pardon request on allegedly new documents by evidence which his counsel, J. M. Broughon, of Raleigh contends the former Tennessee newspaper publisher and financial wizard is innocent of the charges on which he was convicted of conspiracy to wreck the Central Bank & Trust Company of Asheville. Lea is serving 6 to 10 years in prison for bank law violations. A petition asking Lea's release was signed by each of the 12 jurors who convicted him was included in the application. The petition contains no reference to the attitude of Judge M. V. Barnhill who tried Lea or to the attitude of the prosecutor. Their recommendations as in all clemency cases will be asked by Gill and will be given in writing.

Lea was convicted in 1931 along with his son, Luke Jr., and Wallace Davis, former president of the Central Bank & Trust Co. Lea, Jr., was paroled a year ago due to his physical condition and Davis was given parole sometime ago.

PAVE HIGHWAY THRU BETHEL

Road No. 90 Being
Widened Two Feet
On Each Side by State Forces

Bethel, which completed an extensive street paving program several months ago was in the midst of new paving operations today with the widening of Highway No. 90.

The highway will be widened two feet on each side by the State Highway Public Works Commission. Work started the first of the week and is expected to be completed the latter part of next week.

The highway extends for about a mile through Bethel and will be paved from one city limit to the other. Work had been about half completed today with indications that the complete program would be finished by the last of the coming week.

Several streets of the thriving Pitt county town were paved a few months ago and it is probably one of the best paved towns for its size in this immediate section of the state.

Evangelist Will Deliver Greatest Sermon Tonight

One of the greatest sermons of the series of revival services which have been under way at the Universalist church on Dickinson avenue the last several days will be delivered by Dr. Sinclair, the Scotch evangelist, tonight. It was said today. He will speak on the subject, "Armageddon."

The first series of tribulation and God's wrath has struck the earth, the minister will warn in his sermon.

He will declare that the "last days have come on the face of the earth, and asked his hearers to read their bibles to determine that there are only a few more days, maybe less, to accept Christ.

Anyone desiring to ask the evangelist questions have been requested to propound them. They will be answered through mail.

ASKS STORES TO CLOSE FOR HALF HOLIDAY

Mayor Pro-Tem Duncan Seeks Co-Operation of Merchants
During Summer

A proclamation by Mayor Pro-Tem H. H. Duncan, calling on "as many business houses as possible to close on Wednesday afternoon" during the summer months as in previous years was issued today.

Mr. Duncan, who is serving as head of the city government in the absence of Mayor R. C. Flanagan, who is confined in a Washington, D. C. hospital, also called on all citizens of the community to co-operate with the business houses in making "Wednesday afternoon holidays a success" and as widely observed as possible.

WHEREAS, the merchants and business houses of Greenville have been closing their places of business on Wednesday afternoons at 12:00 p. m. during the summer months; and

WHEREAS, the merchants and business houses in closing feel that they are contributing to the health and happiness of their employees.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, H. H. Duncan, Mayor pro-tem of the City of Greenville, do set aside and urge that as many business houses as possible close on Wednesday afternoon; and I call upon all of our citizens to co-operate with the business houses in making the Wednesday afternoon holidays a success.

A petition has been circulated by the Chamber of Commerce for the past two weeks for the merchants and business houses to close their places of business during the summer months on Wednesday at 12:00 noon. The petition asked the stores to start closing on Wednesday, June 5th and running through Wednesday, August 14th. The petition has been signed by the leading merchants and business houses with the exception of the drug stores, hardware houses, feed and seed merchants and the automobile garages.

It is expected that some of the lines that have not signed the petition will make arrangements to close in order that their employees will be given the opportunity to enjoy the Wednesday afternoon holidays.

UNDER BOND OF $1,000 FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Greensboro, June 1.—Zeb A. Davis, automobile salesman, was arrested here today by Patrolman C. A. Ingram and charged with dangerous driving on the highways and also with leaving the scene of an accident in which he was a party. He gave $1,000 bond for a hearing June 10 before Magistrate Luther Cases of Burlington.

The patrolman said Davis figured in an accident last night two miles west of Burlington in which six were hurt, John W. Somers, 58, was the most badly hurt, having a broken shoulder, dislocated hips and other hurts.

DESERTION MERCHANT TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Wilmington, June 1.—Thomas H. Williams, 57, well-to-do merchant and farmer of Acme, was found dead of a self-inflicted bullet wound in the office of his general merchandise store by his son yesterday morning at 5:30 o'clock.

He had been in ill health for some time, and had lately been despondent over his condition, friends said.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG News Behind The News.

Washington
By RAY TUCKER

REMOTE: Whatever chance there may be for a world conference to discuss stabilization, tariffs and disarmament may be spoiled by a few wishful thinkers and writers. The principal danger is that misguided public sentiment may force statesmen to call an unripe meeting. So far as government has been able to frame an agenda which would not precipitate an economic war worse than the present one.

What President Roosevelt is doing now is to let his Cabinet men talk without assuming any responsibility for their "feelers." Observers have read a lot that isn't there into Secretary Morgenthau's gold speech and Secretary Hull's indorsement of the statement that we are willing to talk monetary sense. Internationalist Hull simply saw a chance to push his pet idea and leaped to it. But there was no collusion between the State and Treasury Departments. And the White House sits back quietly in an umpire-like role.

You can paste this in your hat: Mr. Roosevelt will enter no conference unless an agreement on major items is assured. There is no chance of that now—or soon. Official spokesmen here and abroad have more faith in bi-lateral than in multilateral treaties as a pathway out of the present international morass.

When a resident of this city Mr. Carr had an active part in civic and religious affairs of the community. He was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church and for many years a member of the vestry.

OUR NEW COLLEGE PRESIDENT

The inauguration today of Dr. Leon R. Meadows as president of East Carolina Teachers College, officially places at the head of this institution a man well equipped to carry on the good work and uphold the prestige and traditions of the college. Upon the death of Dr. Robert H. Wright, a year ago, following nearly 25 years of useful service as head of the college, we expressed our belief that Dr. Meadows was the logical man to fill the place made vacant by Dr. Wright's death. His later election by the board met with universal approval in this section and we are sure that our people join us today in extending our best wishes to the new president.

TO KEEP CODE

Announcement that the loose leaf auction tobacco warehouses of this section are taking steps to continue their industry under a voluntary code, now that the Supreme Court decision has set aside the NRA, is most encouraging. We believe this industry, like others throughout the country, has been benefitted by the NRA, and now that the NRA has been set aside it is pleasing that the warehousemen realize the wisdom of continuing the system under a voluntary code. Similar action by other industries throughout the country would assure a more speedy recovery and better conditions for our people.

CHARLES STUART CARR

To those who knew Stuart Carr, and in this section of the state they number thousands, the news of his death today brings sadness. When he lived in this city there was probably no man better known and who had more friends in this county and section. Although he had made his residence in another state for the past 18 years, he had never lost his contacts with this community and on his frequent trips into this section he renewed old friendships and made new friends.

When the institution was in its infancy his broad policies laid the foundation upon which the Guaranty Bank and Trust Company has grown into one of the largest banking institutions in the state with branches in several Eastern Carolina towns. Always a friend of

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Alison Reda at last has dated Danahy Sumner, the woman who is about to marry Alison's father. Alison tells Danahy and her father that the woman is marrying him for his money, and that she is in love with someone else. Then she runs from the room to meet Guy Western, against whom Danahy has vowed vengeance. Guy tells her he is an architect. Danahy says he is a shady character from the Riviera. They are introduced by a newspaper story telling of the finding of a body in Danahy's garage house.

Chapter 29

"I'M A DOCTOR"

BUT Alison could not smile at the grim joke; she was staring down at the paper dazedly as she repeated, "How could anything be there?"

"I tell you, there must be some way in and out, some way we didn't find," said Guy.

"You mean, you don't think that it happened the night we were there?"

"No, I don't. It's stark impossible. We'd have seen a dead kitten, let alone a man's corpse, even apart from the fact that we were looking for the ghost. And there wasn't anything there when you went down next morning."

"I didn't look right round," admitted Alison. "I only went straight through to turn the light off, but even then—"

"Even then, you'd hardly have missed a body! There's a picture of the house, by the way, on the middle page."

She opened the paper and looked; it was impossible to mistake the house. The great fold of the downs on one side, the drop into the valley on the other and the road that wound past the two gates. It was queer and rather horrible to look at it again and realize that those dark, eerie cellars held a dead man.

Alison shuddered. The memory of the grey thing outside the door, of those two nail-less hands reaching towards her, was still too poignant to be comfortable. The traffic had started again and they were running down Piccadilly towards Regent Street as she said, "I don't know what my father's going to think when he sees this."

"Your father?"

"Yes, you see—she paused, wondering how she could put it. "I told you that he had some silly idea in his head that there was something funny about you—it's her fault really."

"Your stepmother's?"

"Yes, you see, she's been making mischief again. Alison grew hot and red. She hates me and she wants to make trouble, that's all. So she hit on this because she knew it'd hurt me—because we were friends."

She ended that sentence rather quickly.

"You mean she tried to stop you seeing me?"

"She got father to forbid me."

"Now?"

"Yes. But I told him point blank that I was coming. You see I had to see you."

"About the thing you rang up about last night?"

"Yes."

Piccadilly was torn up; they were following the stream of cars that circled slowly by Jermyn Street. Alison, her eyes on the 'bus ahead, gave him a brief account of her visit to Fulham. She had reached that moment when she looked into the lighted room, when he stopped her.

"JUST one moment. Can you tell what this fellow was like?"

"The man who was kissing her?"

"Yes."

"He was dark. Foreign looking. Not quite French or anything like that. More like Italian."

"Or Spanish?"

"Yes. Or Spanish," she agreed.

red flush spread slowly up his face. Their eyes were on each other, saying amazing, wonderful things. Then their hands met. They sat like that, held by the miracle of it.

"Alison—?"

The traffic signal lifted. His hand dropped and he leaped back to the wheel. They turned out and to the left into Lower Regent Street.

"I'm sorry. I'd no right to do that," he spoke in a very low and husky tone, much moved.

"I don't see why not," said Alison. "I—I did too."

"All the same, I'd no right to," he insisted. "I didn't mean to tell you. I suppose you knew I felt like that about you."

"I guessed," she admitted.

"I couldn't help it, could I?" he smiled at her rather whimsically. "I fell in love with you the very first minute, when you got so cross with me."

"On all fours on the pantry floor?" Alison's laughter was full of sheer happiness.

"Yes! You looked so adorable. So furious!"

"I was rabid with you!"

"I know. You nearly bit my head off."

"You deserved it!"

"For stopping you yelling?"

"For pinching my nose!"

"What else could I do? I'd got to stop you somehow. I didn't want you to hear and ask what I was doing there—" He stopped suddenly.

ALISON looked up, surprised; they were turning into Glasshouse Street.

"Them to hear?" she repeated, "but there was no one."

It happened so suddenly that she had no time to think. A grubby little girl of about four, darting from a doorway almost beneath their wheels—the car swerving violently, missing the child, crashing into a lamp-post, which bent, hitting the top. Scared, the child jumped back. The off-wheel of a truck coming up behind them, took the little thing and flung it up into the air.

"Oh! Alison's hands went to her eyes, shutting out the picture as the child fell, hitting the roadway. When she looked back the truck had run up onto the walk.

The driver, white and sick-looking, was climbing out. A crowd had gathered as crowds do in London, springing from nowhere; a knot of shocked and curious loafers, a messenger boy, a woman who was crying and trying to push her way through. Guy was out of the car, running across the road and Alison scrambling out, followed.

"Truck knocked down a kid," said a greasy looking man importantly. Guy pushed him aside.

"All right. I'm a doctor. He dropped on his knees beside the fallen child and the crowd, pressing round, shut him off from Alison.

Some minutes later, when the ambulance had carried away the child, bruised and cut but not seriously the worse, Guy brushed down his muddled trouser knees and looked round for Alison.

She was gone.

A doctor!

Then he had been lying—lying when he told her that he was an architect, down there to look at the Croft House.

That was Alison's first numbed thought as she stood in the road on the outskirts of the thickening crowd which surrounded Guy and the child.

A pack of lies; but why should he lie—unless the story which Danahy told was true?

"I won't believe it! I don't believe that he's the same man, anyway," she thought fiercely. "There must be some other reason—perhaps it's just that he's had training in first aid or something."

A bell rang shrilly behind her and she was swept aside by the crowd on the pavement as the ambulance drove up and two men in the white and blue of St. John's sprang out. For an instant, as the crowd parted into a narrow lane, she caught a glimpse of Guy, on his knees, the little girl, with closed eyes and white face, resting in the crook of his left arm; then the solid wall of bodies closed back and she was moved again by a policeman who was trying to keep the road clear.

The two men from the ambulance came out, carrying the child on a stretcher; Guy was just behind them with another policeman who was taking notes, while beside him the driver of the lorry, white and shaky, kept repeating, "This gentleman saw me—wasn't my fault—" in an agitated and monotonous squeal.

Alison's sudden fight is explained tomorrow.

He has taken many wallops on the chin because he is a loyal political soldier.

Leaving the Cabinet will handicap Jim as a politician. There are many highly placed officials who don't like him. There are many New Dealers whose idealistic schemes might spell political ruin if adopted. Sitting around the presidential board Jim can spike amateur suggestions. He has done so many a time. His absence is likely to make his enemies grow stronger.

RESTLESS: Jesse Jones' friends are getting peeved. Although they don't care to jump at conclusions they suspect that President Roosevelt is neglecting this conservative ace of the New Deal. As a banker, business man, financier and promoter they think his talents should be used more often by the White House. They resent the favors shown to Joe Kennedy, Marriner Eccles, Don Richberg, etc.

Mr. Jones did not accept his RFC job because of the money in it. What he craves is power, activity and glory. He has a passion for sky-scrapers and striking polo coats. They explain him. But now the RFC is running along in routine fashion. It is taking in more money than it is putting out. Other agencies—PWA, the work relief boys and the Federal Reserve—have poached on his preserves of power. No resignation is in sight immediately. But it would not help the administration if the big Texan should forsake the family between now and 1936. Conservatives everywhere would mutter: "We told you so."

OWNERS: Treasury officials are well satisfied with the sale of United States Savings Bonds—irrevocably known as "baby bonds." They are selling about $1,000,000 a day for each working day—or approximately $300,000,000 a year. But the Treasury is concerned over the type of people who are buying them. The average sale has been $781 through April. This indicates that banks and wealthy people—the very ones who damn the government's financial and monetary policies—are snubbing them up. They are taking the maximum of $10,000 face value which one individual can buy in a single calendar year.

The Treasury's original goal was many purchasers of the smaller denominations. President Roosevelt and Secretary Morgenthau hoped in this way to interest purchasers in problems of government finance, taxation and expenditures—to create a class of owners in America who would be cool to inflation and other crack-pot schemes. But the type of buyer so far is more conservative, financially, than the administration. Is it possible the others haven't any money?

JAM: In a parliamentary sense the foes of NRA have the upper hand with a vengeance. The Supreme Court decision gives them ammunition for many weeks, and they have only two weeks before June 16 to kill by filibuster or sabotage. Senators opposing NRA believe contacts to soft pedal the issue until 1936. This is given as the probable reason for the American Legion's curious silence since the veto message.

The other factor is the same idea in reverse. Some of Mr. Roosevelt's opponents figure the bonus will put him on a more embarrassing spot next year than now. So far he is committed to veto any proposal for immediate payment—and a veto would be fresher in veteran minds at election time if postponed. Their strategy is to stall off decisive action at this session.

FREEDOM: Utility men understand that the House Committee will report out the holding company bill with a key modification that Chairman Rayburn doesn't want.

Substantially the bill will read about the same except for a significant change in the Securities Commission's marching orders. As originally drafted the Commission was directed to carry out the death sentence on all holding companies except those which could prove economic justification. As altered the Commission is permitted to order the execution of only such holding companies as can be proved "harmful"—and standards of harmfulness will be defined.

This shift in the burden of proof will fit neatly into the demands of the better grade companies for freedom from the threat of extinction. Excellent sources understand that the White House will not make too hot an issue of the point.

CONSUMERS: New York department stores check with Federal Reserve reports that sales are less than seasonal. In part this is attributed to the cold weather prevailing in May. But the important point is that dollar volume is much lower proportionately than unit volume. Extraordinarily low prices prevail on many items. There's a general merchandising tendency—with a few striking exceptions—to build volume on cheapness as against the pre-depression habit of mark-ups.

Consumer resistance has forced the stores to adopt this policy. Retail purchasers have apparently made up their minds that they will do without rather than pay more than a certain amount for certain types of goods. For example, one item of men's clothing sells very well at 50 cents and practically not at all at 75 cents. Consumers are learning self-defense even without organization.

FROZEN: News from the cotton export front is both good and bad. European mills which rushed to buy Brazilian cotton because it's cheaper than ours, are finding that its inferior quality makes it more expensive to handle in the end. So they are beginning to come back to the American product.

The Eagle patrol won the first half of the baseball series. The Fox patrol is still ahead in the attendance contest. The number of points each patrol had last night were: Eagle 184, Fox 102, Raven 86, and Hawk 83.

There will be no baseball games between the patrols this coming week.

—Clifton Evans, Troop Scribe.

Announcement Party.

Mrs. J. E. Dees delightfully entertained a number of friends at bridge yesterday afternoon at her home on East Eighth street.

A pink and white color note was effectively carried out in the decorations. Places at the bridge tables were marked with pink sweet peas and the place for Miss Doris Nichols with a shoulderette of white sweet peas.

After a number of bridge games, guests were invited into the dining room. The table was attractively appointed, centered with a miniature bride and groom, surrounded with pink and white sweet peas, flanked by white tapers in silver holders.

The surprise of the afternoon came when Mrs. Jarvis Tripp gave a toast to Miss Doris Nichols, announcing her engagement and approaching marriage to Roland Davenport, the marriage to take place on June 30th. Each guest gave a toast and wrote a wish for the bride-to-be on hearts, which were collected and presented to her.

Miss Margaret Robinson assisted the hostess in serving a tempting ice course.

Mrs. Dees presented Miss Nichols with a gift of china.

Miss Nichols is the attractive daughter of Mrs. Bettie Nichols, Mr. Davenport, formerly of Columbia, N. C., is bookkeeper for the Home Furniture Co.

His service here began in the summer of 1910 at the close of the first year of this institution's history.

An impressive academic procession preceded the inaugural exercises with representatives of more than a score of colleges and universities participating. A luncheon, an alumnae meeting and an inaugural reception tonight were on the day's program.

The academic procession, passed between a line of students, holding a chain of College colors. The two-year class in their blue caps and gowns formed the circle around the fountain.

Boy Scouts were on hand rendering service.

The tributes to Ragsdale and to Wright called forth vociferous applause.

The ceremony when Dr. Meadows took the oath was very impressive.

A reception in honor of Dr. Meadows will be given at his home tonight from 8:30 to 10:30 by members of the college faculty, and the public has been given a cordial invitation to attend.

The alumnae meeting will be carried in the columns of this paper Monday by reason of the fact that it came too late this afternoon for publication.

The college commencement exercises will be continued tomorrow, and on Monday diplomas and degrees will be awarded to 161 graduates of the two and four-year courses prescribed by the institution.

Intellectual economic and spiritual freedom, Dr. Meadows in his inaugural address gave as the objectives of a teachers college, and so long as ignorance and low intelligence prevail, he believes intellectual freedom should be the first objective. "Ignorance and superstition unite in our good land to breed communism, socialism, anarchism, and atheism, and crime waves sweep over our country like devastating winds," he said, and then proceeded to give facts, which he called "unpalatable truths which

We have in the county seven reading circles located at Chicod, Stokes, Falkland, Farmville, Belvoir, Ballard's Cross Roads, and Winterville. The books are circulating quite fast, according to the librarians. The books have been loaned by the Sheppard Memorial Library and are in charge of the following: Mrs. M. E. Humbers, Miss Edna Earle Vincent, Miss Mary Sue Manning, Mrs. Chas. McArthur, Miss Cleo Lewis, Mrs. W. R. Harrison, and Mrs. T. L. Stokes.

The Falkland H. D. Club invited the Winterville club to meet with them Tuesday p. m. at the home of

Should be Goals to a Purer Social Personality

In giving these he declared they were not finely-spun theories of the proverbially impractical college professor, but could be proved by every person in the audience. He came close home for his facts and figures, citing the large percentage of illiteracy in North Carolina, calling attention to the fact that the average intelligence is below the standard for the fifth grade, that the educational rating among the states is alarmingly low, and that our record for reading books, magazines and newspapers is by no means a flattering one, with library facilities in only the larger centers.

The curricula of our public schools he declared, have been robbed of much that contributed toward the enrichment of life and only a poverty stricken curricula of so-called fundamental subjects left. Our curricula, both in the public schools and the colleges need careful revision in order that the cultural and utilitarian needs may be met, he firmly believes. "Well trained teachers will substitute intellectual freedom for the base slavery of ignorance."

He called attention to the fact that the amount of money spent on education, both here and elsewhere has been proportionately small, and that a teacher, professionally equipped, from an A grade college, gets less than a professional trainer of dogs. "A people that puts gold above its sons and daughters, or wealth above a trained citizenship will eventually have no occasion to use that treasure, for that people will die."

He paid tribute to W. H. Ragsdale and his influence in Greenville, using him as an example of what a teacher and a school means to a community.

The remedy for our economical ills should be evolutionary rather than revolutionary, he thinks, in order to gain economic freedom. He does not believe there is any royal highway to economic and success, economic freedom must be accompanied by patience, thrift, initiative, sacrifice and self-reliance.

Who, if not the well trained teacher, he asked, will carry these virtues to the millions, who must learn and practice them? He gave facts and figures about waste, lack of conservation in material things, and then spoke of the lack of conservation of human life. "We need have no fear of a machine age; one of the greatest fallacies of modern times is the theory that we must discard the labor saving machines and return to hand labor in order that more people may be given work."

"Making a life is far more significant than making a living," "What doth it profit a people if he gain the whole world of material things and lose its fine sense of spiritual values?" was the pertinent question he asked. He quoted from

President Wright's Inaugural Address

25 years ago, giving the objectives he then set up for this teachers college. "That it would send out trained teachers who would help the children to adjust themselves to our times." He called attention to the changes since then emphasizing the fact that the responsibility resting upon a teachers college is even greater today than it was then.

There is a finer spirit of cooperation among the higher institutions of learning throughout the country today, he said, than previously and the state and national educational organizations have done much toward "cementing all our educational forces into a common large unit which has for its supreme purpose the promotion of the general welfare of all the citizens of our country, and there is a conscious need of liberal education on the part of most fair people."

The teacher, he says, is certainly contributing largely toward the development of spiritual freedom and that places a heavier responsibility upon those institutions that train teachers, especially those who will go into the public schools, as it is the public school teacher rather than the college teacher that reaches the masses. "That college that trains the teacher who in turn develops youth will eventually determine the type of civilization we are to have."

He closed by pledging the faith and loyalty of the institution of which he is the head to the ideals that will result in the intellectual, economic and spiritual freedom for the people. He dedicated himself in his opening remarks to the spirit of service and cooperation which entered the college with the first student body and faculty, and expressed the hope that the same spirit would continue "so long as the plot of ground is devoted to the education of girls and boys of North Carolina."

To Robert H. Wright, the man who labored for a quarter of a century to make this school the center of learning and helpfulness for his own people, he paid high tribute, and prophesied that as a pioneer in the field of teacher training his name would stand in the forefront in the history of education in America. He also paid tribute to the fine services that have been rendered the cause of education by the faculty and officers and the board of trustees.

BETHEL BUSY WITH SPUDS

From 25 to 30 Train Car Loads to be Shipped From Town Each Day Next Week

The shipment of this year's crop of Irish potatoes, which got under way in the Bethel community several days ago, is expected to hit its stride the middle of next week, it was reported today.

For several days next week from 25 to 30 cars of potatoes daily will be shipped from Bethel. Shipments this week have ranged from 10 to 15 cars daily.

The crop this year is described as one of the best in years with quality far above the average and production as good as last year. The price situation is not as good as the previous year. The price on the opening of the market last year was from $2.25 to $2.50 a barrel. From $1.50 to $1.75 a barrel was being paid yesterday.

Many farmers will find themselves in a hole this year unless prices are boosted during the latter part of the season, although those who find production boosted over previous years will probably be able to make some profit or cover even.

Irish potato growing is one of the greatest industries in the Bethel section, along with other truck crops although considerable tobacco is produced as in other sections of the county.

When truck prices are good, Bethel is a boom town, but when they are low, it is desolated just like any other community that isn't getting as much as it should from its labor.

It is an ordinary sight to see solid train loads of potatoes moving from the Bethel market at the peak of the season, such as next week, is destined to become, and hundreds of people who have been without work for months will find employment in extensive digging and shipping operations. The payment of thousands of dollars for labor alone will add to the prosperity of the section and money conditions should be much easier there this summer in spite of the low prices being paid for the product.

SPEEDERS PAY COST IN COURT

Eight Persons Charged with Violating Traffic Laws Given Hearing

The police drive against speeding in the city limits resulted today in eight persons appearing before mayor or court for hearing at the regular Saturday session of court this morning.

They were taken with cost and permit to go with warnings that further violation of traffic laws would bring more severe punishment.

The speeders were: T. W. Slomms, Jimmie Albritton, Mrs. Knott Proctor, Jake Hadley, H. T. Willis, D. A. Merritt Jr. and Allen Monzingo.

Elmer Hardee, colored, charged with whipping his wife, was fined $5 and cost.

A. D. Bracey, charged with being drunk, was released on payment of cost.

Seven persons charged with violating city traffic laws were taken into custody the first of the week and given preliminary hearing in police court Wednesday. They were allowed to go with payment of cost with the admonition that violations in the future would be treated more severely.

Streets have been adequately marked for the convenience of drivers, police officials said, in declaring there is no excuse for violations at this time. Special attention is being directed toward persons who fail to stop at stop corners and speeders. All stop corners have been definitely marked and persons who fail to stop will be arrested and ordered to appear before court to explain why they failed to do so.

Duke Finals Begin Today

Durham, N. C., June 1.—A record number of degrees will be awarded by Duke university late Monday afternoon at the conclusion of a three day commencement program which got under way this morning. Considerably more than 600 degrees are to be conferred upon the candidates, more than 100 above the 527 degrees awarded last year.

This morning the finals program started with the meetings of the alumni and alumnae councils, and was continued this afternoon by the meeting of the university board of trustees and the staging of the annual senior class day fete. Tonight an "alumni carnival" will be held to end the first day's program.

Tomorrow morning the baccalaureate address will be delivered by President W. P. Few, and in the afternoon the service of dedication of the university chapel the highlight of the program, will be begun. This service will start at 5 p. m. when ten-minute addresses are delivered by Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, of New York; President Benjamin R. Lacy, of Union Theological seminary, Richmond, Va.; Bishop Edwin A. Penick, of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Raleigh; and Dr. W. P. Cullom, of Wake Forest; representing the Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Baptist denominations.

Anton Brees, noted Bok Singing Tower carillonist, will begin his fourth summer as master of the Duke chapel bells by rendering a program at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon and another at 8 p. m.

The calendar each week contained approximately twenty cases of more or less interest to the people of the community. Suits involving recovery of land sold under mortgage probably spotlighted the docket with other actions drawing more or less interest.

Several terms of civil court have been held in Greenville since the first of the year and scores of cases which had been hanging fire for a year or more were completed, the majority through direct hearing but quite a number through compromise.

Although the civil calendar still has plenty to work on it is in much better condition than it has been in the past year.

Fifteen cases were disposed of the previous week and it was believed between eight and ten were completed this week, bringing the total for the term to around 25.

Riggs admitted he made the cross, got the nails, the wire and everything, the Solicitor said.

Johnson said it was hard to find any law "we can prosecute him (Riggs) under but I think we'll charge him with meymeh."

He said the boy would be turned over the juvenile authorities when he is apprehended. Donald could not be found here this afternoon. The Solicitor said Riggs told him, the boy had left for Jacksonville, hitch-hiking his way.

Riggs was described as religious fanatic.

He said he was informed the filling station operator was a regular attendant on a "holy roller" revival service and recently had gone to his wife's home and thrown himself on the floor and prayed for her to see the "light" and return to him.

Riggs was seriously hurt. The nails in his hands pierced the fleshy part between the thumbs and forefinger. Those in his feet were through the flesh of the heels. Bones in the hands and feet were not injured.

The Times said the nine-year-old boy went to a nearby house, aroused the family and told them he was the kidnapped boy from Tacoma, the son of the wealthy Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Weyerhaeuser.

The owner of the home to which the boy went is a Mr. Boniza, who bundled the boy into his car and the Times said speeded to Renton to telephone, and called the Weyerhaeuser home in Tacoma from an oil station. No one responded to the glad tidings that the boy was free and safe.

The Times said the kidnapers told the youthful dark-complexioned lad to wait for "your dad—he'll be along pretty soon."

He was found about dawn. George waited as they told him but his father didn't appear and soon he started in search along the road and came to the home where he reported himself.

So Boniza asked the telephone girl to call the Tacoma police station and the first word of the boy's recovery was flashed.

The Tacoma police brought the boy here to talk with him and then sped to the Weyerhaeuser home.

Ernie T. Baklund, attendant at the old station, confirmed the news made public at Tacoma.

"He's as bright as can be. He was tickled to death. He told us that the men that kidnaped him had plenty of money all right for they gave him a dollar when he left the woods."

"He was all right," Baklund declared. "They must have been here ten minutes," Baklund added "trying to get word to the police. They left here about 10 minutes to 7."

New 25c Oil.

"Greenville motorists can now buy a 25c oil that has been purified of practically all impurities," announced W. L. Allen today. "This has never before been possible. It means that without paying a premium price the car owner can buy a motor oil which gives more mileage and better lubrication whether the temperature is high or low, than any other lubricant in that price range."

"The new and improved lubricant is Gulfube Motor Oil, Multi-Sol processed. It is refined by a new process called the multi-sol process. By introducing two solvents, practically all impurities are washed out. Without any increase in cost, the motorist gets more mileage. He buys an oil which results in less carbon deposit. And regardless of the weather, his motor starts more easily and quickly."

"You can appreciate what this means," continued Mr. Allen. "Because of better all-around performance, motor repairs are reduced. The driver can operate his car much more economically. These are not mere statements of opinion. Engineers have tested and re-tested, checked and re-checked Gulfube before permitting this new motor oil to be placed on the market.

"Every effort is being made to acquaint motorists from Maine to Texas with the advantages of this premium grade motor oil sold at 25 per quart. One thousand leading newspapers will carry the message. It will be broadcast over scores of radio stations. It will appear on hundreds of prominent, easily seen highway posters. And Gulf dealers everywhere are preparing to share in this 'save your money' movement."
