STATE HEALTH DEPT. EXPERT VISITS COUNTY

Dr. J. C. Knox Issues Statement on Infantile Paralysis Situation

Upon invitation of Dr. Ennett, the local health office was visited yesterday by Doctor J. C. Knox, State Epidemiologist, in connection with the outbreak of Infantile Paralysis in Pitt County. There are to date 7 cases in Pitt County, ranging from 7 months to 4 years of age.

Doctor Knox had been investigating cases of Infantile Paralysis in the Vanceboro section of Craven county and was anxious to learn something at first hand of the Pitt county situation.

Doctor Ennett, the local health officer, requested Doctor Knox to make a general statement on Infantile Paralysis as a State problem, which statement is as follows:

"For the State as a whole, there has been recorded for the month of May a total of 45 cases. This, by the way, was the same number of cases reported for the entire year of 1934. Since we have been keeping records, beginning 1918, this is the highest number of cases recorded in any single month. Previously, the highest number of cases recorded for the month of May was 6, which occurred in 1929.

The North Carolina State Board of Health and all of the local health departments are concerned about the undue prevalence of Infantile Paralysis at this particular time of the year, due to the fact that usually the highest number of cases occur in the months of July and August. We are not alarmed about the situation, however.

It is the advice of the State Health Department that children, particularly those under the age of 10 years, should avoid such gatherings as Sunday School picnics, vacation Bible school or picture shows. In towns and cities where there are public swimming pools, parents should see that younger children should not visit and use these pools.

All mild illnesses in children which might be confused with early Infantile Paralysis should be treated as a suspected case until proven to be something else. Prompt isolation of these suspected cases will be of value in helping to control the spread of the disease.

These milder cases may be overlooked until later it is found out that there is a partial loss of muscle function of either arm, leg or both. It is necessary even in these mild cases to keep the patient in bed and keep the affected part immobilized. In other words, place it in a splint so that the patient cannot move the affected part. Sand bags, when placed along the side of the leg or against the sole of the foot as a brace, is often a very satisfactory substitute for a splint. In so doing, it allows the part affected to regain its fullest possible amount of function after the illness.

While this rest for the affected part in the early stages of the disease is important, it is equally important, after the acute stage has passed, that proper exercises of the muscles be carried out. This muscular training should ordinarily be done 4 to 6 weeks after the onset of the disease.

LAUNCH CAMPAIGN AGAINST PEDDLERS

Albemarle, June 5.—A vigorous educational campaign against peddlers was started this week by the Albemarle Merchants Association coincident with the flooding of the city with peddlers who are selling almost every article imaginable. The campaign is designed to show local citizens the danger of buying merchandise from unknown dealers, and the desirability of cooperating with local merchants who aid in keeping up schools, churches, and other civic enterprises.

WEAVING COMPANY TO MAINTAIN CODE RULES

Fayetteville, June 5.—The Puritan Weaving Company here will maintain code hours and wages, according to a statement made by the local manager, H. O. Strupler. The Puritan is owned by the Burlington Mills, America's largest producers of rayon fabrics, and Strupler made public a letter from J. Spencer Love, president of Burlington Mills, stating that the company has no plans whatever for any increase in working hours or reduction in present wages and "will exert every possible influence toward the maintenance of the improved conditions which the NRA brought."

Among other companies doing business here which will maintain the code pay and hours is the North Carolina Theatres, Inc., operators of the Carolina, Broadway and State theatres in Fayetteville.

FOREST FIRE SYSTEM HALF COMPLETED

Fifty-Five Observation Towers in Place or Ready to Be Erected

Reflector Bureau.

Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 5.—With 55 forest fire towers already in place or on the ground ready for erection, North Carolina's primary forest fire observation system, according to plans mapped out several years ago, is virtually half complete. W. C. McCormick, assistant State forester in charge of fire control for the Department of Conservation and Development, said today.

All except three of the 55 towers have been assembled and these are on the ground ready for erection, Mr. McCormick said. Of the total, 26 have been furnished through the emergency conservation work program and 26 have been erected by the State.

Mr. McCormick stated that he had applied for the purchase and erection of 14 additional towers through the emergency conservation work program which he has hopes of being approved. Should this additional number of lookouts be provided, the total would be brought up to 69 and would complete more than half of the primary observation system originally set at 125 towers.

Emergency conservation work officials, Mr. McCormick continued, have recently approved the construction of 210 miles of new telephone lines to be used as part of the state forest fire communication system. Many miles of such lines have already been erected through the emergency program.

New towers and extended telephone lines are part of the improvements being made in the forest fire control system of the state. Practical use of these facilities in reducing the losses from forest fires in North Carolina have already been demonstrated. The most practical effect of the equipment is to enable wardens to make a speedier attack on flames in the forest. If fires can be caught in their incipency, he pointed out, their control is simplified and the cost of suppression is reduced materially. Flames, he continued, can be spotted immediately from the towers and the alarm given without delay by telephone to ground forces.

LAVAL FAILS TO ORGANIZE NEW CABINET

Veteran Foreign Minister Cannot Get Ministers to Complete Cabinet

(Copyright By Associated Press)

Paris, June 5.—(AP)—Probability that Pierre Laval, veteran foreign minister, would fail in his attempt to organize a new government of France was reported by reliable sources today when it was indicated he could not find sufficient suitable men who will accept the cabinet portfolios.

Laval is said to have reported his failure to President Lebrun and at the same time to have asked that Fernand Bouisson be charged again with the premiership. Bouisson and his ministers were thrown out yesterday after less than four days in power by an adverse majority of two votes in the Chamber of Deputies.

Laval undertook the formation of the cabinet against his own inclinations. Only last night he rejected the suggestion of President Lebrun that he accept the premiership on the grounds that his services were more needed than in the foreign office. He finally accepted after the President had tried in vain to persuade Jules Jeanneney to assume the responsibility. Laval told Lebrun he would accept the premiership "in principle" and report to him later after consulting his supporters.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alas Mesmerism and Hypnotism Denounced," was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 2, 1935.

The golden text was from Psalm 92:7: "When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish; it is that they shall be destroyed for ever."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson sermon was the following from the Bible: "No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord." (Isa. 54:17).

The lesson sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "We should become more familiar with good than with evil, and guard against false beliefs as watchfully as we bar our doors against the approach of thieves and murderers. If mortals would keep proper ward over mortal mind, the brood of evils which infest it would be cleared out. You must control evil thoughts in the first instance, or they will control you in the second. Evil thoughts and aims reach no further and no more harm than one's belief permits. Evil thoughts, lusts, and malicious purposes cannot go forth, like wandering pollen, from one human mind to another, finding unsuspected lodgment, in virtue and truth build a strong defense."

Johnson Wins Athletic Trophy.

Jimmy Johnson, a sophomore at East Carolina Teachers College, was presented with the Pitt Athletic Trophy, at a mass meeting of the student body, R. C. Dial, chairman of the athletic committee, made the presentation.

This trophy is presented each year to the best all-around athlete in the college, the winner being selected upon his ability, sportsmanship, and value to the team.

Jimmy is a Wake county product and is a graduate of Cary High School. He entered college in the fall of 1933, and since that time he has won six varsity letters, two in each of the three major sports of the college. He played tackle on defense and fullback on offense, on the football team, and did most of the punting. As captain and guard on the basketball team he took top honors in the scoring. He caught of last year's baseball team and led the hitting with an average of .350. This year he was shifted to first base, and although he did not lead the hitting, the end of the season found his average well over the .300 mark. Jimmy is probably the best athlete that has ever attended this college.

Incidentally, Jimmy is something of a boxer. He won the middle-weight championship of the N. C. National Guard in the summer of 1931, and the light-heavyweight crown in the Golden Glove Tournament sponsored by the Raleigh Y. M. C. A. in 1932.

Jimmy is a good swimmer and has been engaged by the Greenville swimming pool committee as lifeguard and swimming instructor for the municipal pool, where he will work and keep in shape for the coming football season.

The manager of the pool, Mr. McDougal, is very anxious that the "learn to swim" campaign be a huge success, and urges the cooperation of the entire community in this project. All those who cannot swim are urged to take advantage of this opportunity.

Standard Oil Men Hold Meeting Here

More than eighty employees and officials of the Standard Oil Company gathered in this city last night and attended a meeting on the company's 1935 advertising program.

This program is the greatest advertising campaign launched by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and has for its theme the slogan "Happy Motoring."

"Because," as George Newman explained, "Esso products and service has taken the uncertainty out of driving so that every motorist can always smile as he or she will be assured of happy motoring and of arriving at his or her destination."

F. T. Baynor, local representative of the Standard Oil Co., opened the meeting, announcing the 1935 advertising plans which include newspapers, radio and billboards.

He was followed by P. A. Mixon, sales supervisor of Esso stations for this district, who spoke on what happy motoring means to the motorist.

The feature of the meeting was the showing of the sound picture, "Happy Motoring."

Eighteen persons were injured, several of them seriously, when a powerful blast wrecked a four-story building on the East Side of New York city. It was feared at first that six persons had been buried, but firemen were unable to find any bodies in the ruins. A major catastrophe was averted when firemen prevented the blaze, which followed the explosion, from reaching a huge gas storage tank. (Associated Press Photo) herculean task. Any proposal to bar the court from passing on the constitutionality of an Act of Congress, in their opinion, would not be accepted. The court still has many friends. To re-define what constitutes "interstate commerce" in sufficiently precise terms to outwit the present philosophy of the court is a tough job.

But Mr. Roosevelt submits a clean-cut issue to his advisers. He regards the court's new attitude as an obstacle to orderly progress. He thinks the issue is the most, faithful since the Dred Scott decision helped to strew the land with bloodshed.
He wants to withdraw a vast field of social and economic problems from the court's jurisdiction. How to do it legally and promptly is the problem he has posed.

DEFIANCE: In his calm and calculating "lecture" on the court, Mr.
Roosevelt made political as well as legal history. Everybody who heard him, and listened to the subtle innuendoes of his voice, sensed it. Although he emphasized that the issue was too national and deep to be "political," he formed the lines for the 1938 campaign, and perhaps for many beyond that.

Administration men declared that he reelected himself with that platform. Historically and currently he threw the GOP on the defensive.
The Republicans were in line to capitalize on the court's sharp rebuke of New Deal experimentation and unconstitutionality. But Mr.
Roosevelt more than accepted both the rebuke and the challenge. He hurled them back at the court—and at the Republicans. The only two other Presidents to bark such defiance were Andrew Jackson and Thomas Jefferson.

Mr. Roosevelt has again revolutionized political trends. In the past the GOP has stood for a strong central government, and the Democrats for "states' rights." The Jeffersonian-Carter Glass, Al Smith, Owen Young, Newton Baker et al.—now have another grudge against the man in the White House.

DELICATE: Political wags suggest that the court timed its punches perfectly. They struck the administration within a few weeks of the expiration of NRA and the Blue Eagle's administrative brood. But they landed on the GOP at a time when the stalwarts were sighing for their guns for a barrage on the White House from their trenches at Springfield, Ill.

These tumultuous developments at the capital camp the Republicans style. There was fuming and phonics in GOP offices when the Supreme Court crossed their plans.
Higher-ups urged that the 11-state convention at Springfield be called off or at least postponed. Others begged that Mid-West Republicans mute their political instruments.
But the convention callers intend to go ahead with "politics as usual."

Chairman Fletcher is shivering.
The GOP must handle these new problems delicately, and the ex-diplomat shudders at the thought of what 3,000 delegates may roar and resolve.

SHIFTS: Probable Cabinet changes bear out Whirligig predictions of shifts to the left on fundamental questions with a few bones tossed to the conservatives.

Chairman Kennedy of the Securities Exchange Commission is understood to fancy a Cabinet post as Secretary of War—a position which belongs, historically, to New England. One of the new judgements now being created by Congress may be offered to the present incumbent, Secretary Dern of Utah. He has been no shining light as a military executive. Chief of Staff McArthur has run the Army.

Attorney General Cummings may also step out soon. His first love was the Governor Generalship of the Philippines, and he may go out-there. Frank Murphy, present Philippines chief, or Martin Conboy, former District Attorney at

ENEMY'S KISS

SYNOPSIS: Alison made faces
this dilemma: she is convinced that Daphne Sumers is marrying Robert Rede, Alison's father, for his money. She believes Daphne to be an adventuress, and in Guy West-burn she thought she had an ally.
But Daphne has sold Guy's real estate to Lumley, and Alison finds Daphne is correct. She catches Guy in other words. Now with her father, humiliated by Daphne, Daphne an enemy, and Guy apparently a liar, the harassed Alison hears Guy demanding to see her.

Chapter 33
DISMISSAL

"I WON'T keep her a minute—"
"What's all this? What's all this?"

Robert had joined in, drowning
Guy's voice and Peter's stately reply. "What? What? What're you doing here? Heh?"

"I want to speak to Miss Rede just for a minute."

"She's busy. She can't see you."
Her father's gruffest tone.

"I can wait."

"No need to wait. I tell you, my daughter can't see you."

"If you'll just allow me to see her for one moment and explain—" But Guy was not even allowed to finish
Robert exploded.

"Explain? Explain what? There's nothing whatever to explain. You came into this house on false pretences—yes, on false pretences—and you won't do it again! No, don't interrupt me! Most disgraceful conduct! Only what one might expect,
I suppose, but I can tell you, if I was a younger man—"

"Alison!" Guy took two steps across the hall towards her. She had come down the stairs and was standing at the foot of them, torn by her feelings, uncertain what to do.

"Alison, leave this to me!" and to Guy: "Now! Get out before I send for the police!" ordered her father.

Robert was red as a turkey-cock
and bristling; Guy looked so white.
so haggard and worried that it gave her a fresh shock. He had no hat on and was wearing the same clothes that he had had on when she left him in the street, but now he had a desperate air and he did not give an inch. Disregarding her father, he spoke to Alison in a quiet, incisive voice.

"I must speak to you."

"What do you want to say?" She glanced apprehensively at Robert,
who snorted.

"If you could spare me one minute alone?"

Robert broke in. "I forbid you to do anything of the kind! Go and wait with Daphne and let me deal with this thing—He choked, back
the last word, glowering at Guy.
But Alison stood her ground.

"Just a moment, father. And to Guy: 'If you've anything to say I think you'd better say it here.'"

They had the hall to themselves.
Robert, with the disconcerting look of a man who had retired from a fight, stood looking at Alison.

"Well," he said, "I only want to say to Alison: 'What's the matter with you? You're not the same girl that I knew. You're not the same girl that I loved. You're not the same girl that I married. You're

Mrs. Quacko Entertains
By MARY GRAHAM BONNER
"I THINK," said Mrs. Quacko Duck to Mr. Quacko and the other ducks, "that I'll give a party instead of going over and calling on Mrs. Quacko of Quackerville."

taken into an Indian tribe and about having Indians visiting Puddle Muddle.

"She'll be as curious as curious can be, and with a quack-quack here and a quack-quack there I'll give her a little information."

"Let's have a party, quack-quack," said the other ducks. "We haven't one in ever so long."

"We'll have special invitations," said Mrs. Quacko. So she waddled from the pond, where she had been talking, to Willy Nilly's house.

"Before you get started with your chores," she quacked, "will you be so good as to make me some very fine invitations? I want to give a party."

Willy Nilly was anxious to get at his work so he would be able to finish it and then get at his pointed, sticking-out ears.

"I haven't any more backbone than the wing of a butterfly," the little man answered, "but I do agree that it would be fun for you to have a party."

So Willy Nilly made invitations. He drew pictures of ducks on little pieces of paper and under the pictures he wrote:

"Come to the duck pond, Mrs. Quacko is entertaining."

Mrs. Duck sent the little ducks forth with the invitations and then she planned what food she would have. Oh, it was fun to entertain!

"WE should have some salad," quacked Mrs. Quacko Duck. "I think pond lily salad would be delicious."

So she set to work, helped by several other ducks, preparing a fine mixture of seeds and chopped leaves and on top of the salad, and edging it, were pond lilies.

"That looks like a real party, quack-quack," she said delightedly. "Now I'll have some dainty root sandwiches and then I'll make my lemon pond lemonade."

"We're having real party food, quack-quack," quacked the ducklings.

"Now waddle along," quacked Mrs. Quacko, "and don't get in my way while I'm so busy."

The ducklings waddled up the bank and watched.

"Oh, may I have a sandwich, quack-quack?" quacked little Quackles.

"Not now," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "If you're a good little duckling and don't bother me I'll give you some later on."

"Are we going to be allowed to come to the party?" quacked little Quacko.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "You may all come and help pass around the food and you'll be allowed plenty to eat, too. It has never been said, and it shall never be said, that Mrs. Quacko didn't have plenty to eat at her parties."

Now the food was all ready and Mrs. Quacko was in a great flurry.

"They'll be here any moment now and I'm not ready. Dear duck me! I must rush. Little Quack! Hand me that twig so I can brush my feathers! Dear duck me, will I be ready on time?" Mrs. Quacko was all of a duck flutter.

MRS. QUACKO was just ready on that time. She was thankful indeed that it was so, for Mrs. Quacko was the first to arrive. It would have been dreadful if her feathers had not been brushed by the time such a grand guest made her appearance.

"Quack-quack, how do you do," said Mrs. Quacko. "I am delighted to see you my dear."

"Quack-quack," replied Mrs. Quacko. "You're going to have a big party I see."

"Ah yes," quacked Mrs. Quacko. "I've been meaning for a long time to have one, but having Indians as guests and being taken into the tribe has kept me busy."

"What's that you say? I don't believe a duck word of it," answered Mrs. Quacko.

"Mrs. Quacko!" shrieked Mrs. Quacko. "Do you mean to say you come as a guest to my party and make a remark doubting my honesty and duck truthfulness?"

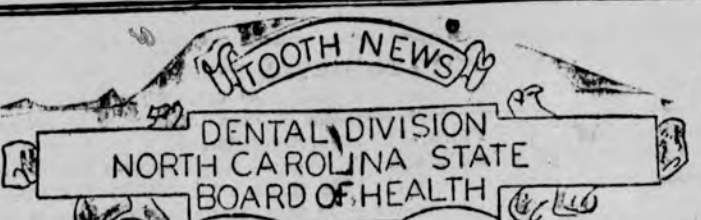

"Steady there," Mr. Quacko whispered in Mrs. Quacko's ear.

Mrs. Quacko knew Mr. Quacko was right. Mrs. Quacko would be getting the better of her if she allowed herself to lose her temper at her own party. So she added, smiling a sweet smile:

"Poor Mrs. Quacko! I am so fond of you but I do feel sorry for you. You really don't get around enough to know the news. I said to Mr. Quacko:

"We must have Mrs. Quacko over. She leads such a quiet life. We must share our excitement with her." Now Mrs. Quacko's feathers were ruffling, but at this moment all the other guests began to arrive.

Our Present Mouth Health Program In North Carolina

By PAUL JONES, D.D.S.
Chairman, Executive Committee, N. C. Dental Society

It is most gratifying to know that North Carolina is greatly interested and awake to the necessity of a mouth health program, especially among the children of our State. A few years back only the most alarming evidence of disease invasion was ever called to the attention of our government. In fact, those in authority were more attentive to the problems of agriculture such as hog cholera, cattle tuberculosis, and tick fever. Even now our farmers are ordered to destroy the farrowed hogs and turn under crops, showing the changing viewpoints under different stresses.

But miracles never cease, and the dawning of a new thought takes hold; today the health of the human animal is predominant. His bodily predisposition to disease and deterioration is of so much concern to our State government that today North Carolina has on the statute books laws insuring the rehabilitation of diseased bodies and the proper observance of hygiene, and our commonwealth is recognized as a most enthusiastic exponent of health for its citizens.

The indifference to oral health is still more noticeable than its observance or correction. Teeth, in the days past, were considered a gift from the Creator, like the fingers and toes, and like these should give no more trouble. In fact the digital organs were more fortunate and, consequently, healthier because of being seen. (Pride is a driving monster.) Sometimes the fingers and toes came into contact with soap and water; not so the teeth. Hidden from public display, they chopped and ground the material to sustain the body. With their duty done, the cleaning of the teeth was deferred to that more convenient time which never appears, and the mouth's arch enemy, fermentation, commenced its destructive work.

This, basically, with the attending evidences, was the cause of the beginning of mouth hygiene and health as we know it today. Persistently and effectually the sponsors of this health movement have labored for recognition. Our statesmen had to be educated in the belief that childhood was the beginning of manhood and womanhood, and that their health had to be considered before that of cattle, swine, and horses. Cooperation with the ones seeking a mouth health program for our children was a demand not to be denied—a utilitarian as well as an altruistic service. We are greatly indebted to those in our medical society and our dental society for this vision that seized and held them during the formative period of this movement which is now so well grounded and sponsored through our government. Often I have wondered if our intelligent citizens, as well as our State government, fully realize the debt owing the two professions of medicine and dentistry in their sustained efforts through all these years to make our people health conscious as well as healthy.

It is with much pride that I mention the present fulfillment of these aspirations in the operation of our mouth health program. Through the Dental Division of the State Board of Health Dr. Branch and his staff of dentists have done a noble and glorious piece of work solely in the interest of the health of our people. They have emphasized the need of mouth care among our school children, and they have carried the story of healthy teeth in healthy mouths in a telling and most effective way, so much so that we in private practice can note the improvement in the mouths of our young school boy and girl patients.

I am heartily in accord with the dentistry program as directed by Dr. Branch for North Carolina, and should like to see the activities of this department enlarged rather than any part of them delegated to inexperienced local units. I would like to see North Carolina the healthiest state in the Union and its people possess the best-treated teeth in the world.

COLLECTIONS OF REVENUE SHOWS GAIN

Collections For First Ten Months $6,051,662.47 Over Last Year

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, June 5.—North Carolina's revenue department collected the ten months $6,051,662.47 excess over the same period last year on $25,061.91 less than it cost to get the smaller amount, the revenue report shows.

For the improved six millions in tax collections the department is making no claim. It credits better business with all the gains. But it does claim 100 per cent the $25,061.91 item. The state is getting the larger amount of money and making it go a greater distance because the expense of getting it has been reduced, the departmentalists contend. They have reduced the collection costs 447 per cent, according to the figures.

The record is a great satisfaction to Governor Ehringhaus who took a good deal of punishment for the changes that he made, particularly in the appointment of special men to positions that required the payment of larger salaries than the state was accustomed to paying its regularly elected officials. This was particularly true of the creation of the position of executive assessment revenue commissioner and the director of the division of accounts. The reorganization caused many long-time workers to lose their positions and move many unfriendly persons to remark that these discharges in the "interest of economy" were quite offset by the large salaries paid the special employees. The department figures, showing reduction in the costs of collecting revenues will be used by the administration to show that the department is justifying the somewhat drastic policy of the state in the reorganization. Incidentally, it is observed that there is no slump in the revenues and that they are well above the estimates on which the general assembly wrote its revenue and appropriations bills.

State Schedule "B" Licenses Due

The Department of Revenue has mailed out notices to business and professional men that their schedule "B" license are due. All state license under this schedule expire on May 31st of each year. It is a misdemeanor to engage in or to continue any business or profession subject to a State license without first obtaining such license from the Department of Revenue. Failure to secure license is punishable by a fine or imprisonment or both within the discretion of the Court. In addition a penalty of 5 per cent for each 30 days the tax remains unpaid. When the Department mailed out the notices they enclosed a printed partial list of schedule "B" license tax showing the amount due.

A number of persons are under the impression that they do not have to pay these license until the Field Deputy calls on them, but this is a mistake, the license are now due and you are required by law to secure them. You may either send your remittance to the Department of Revenue or call at the office of J. C. Herring, Field Deputy, on the second floor of the U. S. postoffice building in Greenville, and secure your license.

Dog Clinic Here Friday

Paul Fitzgerald, Jr., Greenville township inspector announced that the first dog clinic for giving the rabies treatment will be held at the court house Friday beginning at 8:30 in the morning. Dog owners living in the first and second wards in the city of Greenville are urged to bring their dogs to this clinic and have them vaccinated.

The fee for vaccinating the dogs is 50 cents each if brought to the clinic but if the inspector has to visit the home of the dog owner the fee will be 75 cents. The 50 cents fee for treating the dogs will be credited on the dog license when purchased by the owners.

WHITEHURST CHARGE PUT ON COURT DOCKET

New Bern, June 5.—The bill of indictment charging Henry P. Whitehurst with embezzlement during his receivership of the Bank of Vanceboro, which was closed in 1923, was placed Monday on the Craven county docket, by order of Judge M. V. Barnhill, of Rocky Mount, in opening a week's term of criminal court. The $500 bond for Mr. Whitehurst was retained in force.

Though the bill is thus formally on the docket, it will not necessarily be included on the week's calendar, though Judge Barnhill might call the case this week if he so desires. A continuance is likely, especially as an extension of time was secured recently for the filing of his receivership report.

FAREWELL TO RUTH

Sans a smile, Babe Ruth is shown as he bade farewell to his former manager, Bill McKee, upon leaving Boston for New York after declaring he would never play for the Braves while Emil Fuchs was in control of the club. Given his unconditional release, the Babe said he didn't know what he was going to do, but he added he wasn't through with baseball. (Associated Press Photo)

New York Cotton

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely a steady 13 to 18 decline on lower Liverpool cables and owing to the fall of the French cabinet. Trading tapered off after October had sold from 11.13 to 11.07 and later recovered to 11.10 with the general market at the end of the first half hour about 12 to 18 points net lower.

After advancing to within five to nine points of the previous closing levels renewed local selling appeared and prices generally at midday showed net losses of 14 to 19 points. Futures closed steady nine to 12 lower. Spots quiet, middling 11.60.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 5.—(AP)—Wall Street cast a critical eye at mid-week business statistics today and found them moderately reassuring. Stocks and staple markets, however, paused after yesterday's brisk rally. Business statistics indicated the collapse of NRA had cut into trade less than expected but bulls decided to proceed cautiously. In bonds some of the lower priced rails attracted speculative demand.

The late stock tone was firm. Transfers approximated 900,000 shares.

LIQUOR STUDY BODY NOT YET COMMISSIONED

Governor to Appoint Commission to Make Report to 1937 Legislature

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 5.—Governor Ehringhaus has given small consideration thus far to the selection of his commission to study the liquor question for the purpose of making a report to the next general assembly.

The Governor has a few names before him, suggestions made by friends of the men suggest. One of these names is Victor S. Bryant of Durham, author of the House bill which was passed; Rev. Dr. J. W. Lynch of Wake Forest who is presented as a man who has lived much of his mature life about colleges; Wade Lucas, Raleigh newspaper man who represents the Young Democrats; O. M. Mull of Shelby, great dry and former State Democratic Chairman; and Major L. P. McLendon. There are several pieces to be filled.

Mr. Bryant championed several bills before the general assembly looking to some form of state control. He is a very generally acceptable sort of individual. There is apparently no effort to put wets or dries on the commission simply because they are wet or dry. The purpose of this measure is to make some sort of study on which a future legislature might rely. There was such a national study made under the direction of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who became on the strength of those findings a believer in governmental control.

The name of Dr. Lynch, so many years Bible teacher and pastor to great university congregations, comes to Raleigh through persons who believe he would make a great addition to the commission. Whether he would consent to serve if appointed, nobody seems to know. He has the habit of study and is understanding.

Hollywood—Motion pictures have become such a technical business since the talkies that there is not much of that old spirit of fun and in-charge that characterized the making of a movie in the old days.

It still exists, however, in the comedy plants, and nowhere more so than on a set where Laurel and Hardy are holding forth.

Scotland In India
Stan and Babe are well along in their production of "Bonnie Scotland," which is the same "McLaurel and McHardy" over which Stan and his producer, Hal Roach, had a temporary "misunderstanding." They are so far along, in fact, that the locale now has shifted to India, and the pair already have achieved the status of privates in the Scottish soldiery.

On a Laurel and Hardy set in none of the strain that sometimes distinguishes your more serious artists at work. Everybody is having a bonnie good time, including the comedians.

Stan Laughs At Laurel
This set represents the soldiers' barracks, and big Babe is busy, seated on his cot, polishing the buttons of his uniform. On the adjoining cot sits Stan, polishing his rifle. Director James Horne is lining up the shot, prop men are running around with props, electricians are fiddling with the lights, cameramen are trying out effects.

They have a perfectly good script, but Laurel and Hardy's scripts are subject to change on the set. Stan is always thinking of a new gag, which must be tried out immediately. Director Horne has an idea, or Babe comes forth with an inspiration. Right now they are striving for a sound effect as Stan whistles into the barrel of his gun. Horne suggests the peculiar piping strains of the pair's "cuckoo song," the snatch of melody that always identifies a Laurel and Hardy film. He gives such a funny interpretation of the melody that the set has mild

In the projection room, at the daily rushes, the loudest laughter comes from Stan Laurel. He thinks Babe Hardy is excruciatingly funny. And he even doubles up—quite impersonally—when Stan Laurel has a funny line.
