Hutson Says Government To Continue Tobacco Program

PUSH PLANS IN FACE HIGH COURT ACTION

Head of AAA Tobacco Division Says Control Movement Will Continue In Spite of Supreme Court Action; Address Growers in Annual Gathering at Tifton, Ga.

Tifton, Ga., June 18.—(AP)—J. B. Hutson, of the tobacco division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, announced today that the government planned to continue its tobacco program even if the Kerr-Smith act is declared unconstitutional.

In a prepared address before the Georgia tobacco growers in their annual summer meeting here, Hutson said:

"The program will be formulated with the thought that the tax provided in the Kerr-Smith act would be effective; if this should be declared unconstitutional effort will be made to devise some other plans under which growers can maintain the program and would receive more than non-participating growers."

The tobacco director said that prospects seemed favorable for a reasonable income from the flue cured tobacco crop this year.

"Due to the splendid cooperation of growers in all parts of the tobacco belt which resulted in reduced crops last year, the excess supplies of this type of tobacco have been eliminated."

"World consumption is being maintained at around last year's levels; it is larger in the United States and in the United Kingdom, which are the leading consuming countries."

Hutson said indications are that the consumption of American grown flue cured tobacco during the year now closing will be between five and six million pounds more than any other year since the high years of 1929-30 and 1930-31.

LIGHT DOCKET BEFORE COURT

County Court Expected to Complete Work Here During Late Afternoon

County court was sitting again today after a week's postponement because of the lack of jail cases and the attendance of city and county officials along with a number of lawyers upon the Institute of Government which held forth in Chapel Hill last week.

The docket, after a week of idleness, was one of the lightest in months, containing slightly over a dozen cases originating in different sections of the county. Usually after a week off the court is faced by from 20 to 30 cases and two days are required to complete the docket.

Activity on the farms where thousands of people are employed at this season of the year is considered largely responsible for the lack of cases. Always at this season of the year Superior court is in recess because of the trouble incurred in obtaining witnesses and a desire not to interfere with general farming operations.

If everything runs smoothly, the court was expected to complete work during the late afternoon. Judge James was on the bench.

Roosevelt Asks Checkup of NRA On Code Question

Washington, June 18.—(AP)—The new NRA was directed by President Roosevelt today to examine closely any changes which occur in labor standards or fair trade practices following abolition of the codes.

In a letter to James L. O'Neill, acting administrator, the president stated "It is of primary importance that this work should be done very carefully and under the supervision of an impartial committee."

A proposed committee including an impartial chairman, a representative of management and of labor and members designated by the Department of Commerce and Labor.

STATE LAWS ARE STUDIED BY GEORGIA

Commission Sent to North Carolina For Study of State Statutes Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 18.—Georgia likes North Carolina's laws well enough to send a commission here to study the statutes.

Senator W. M. Lester of the Eighteenth Georgia district, Augusta, the biggest city, is in the state. He visited High Point last night after spending the day in Raleigh. He interviewed Governor Ehringhaus who had just returned from Biloxi, Mississippi, where the governors' conference took place last week, and the executive was in good mood to talk North Carolina after he had heard other governors acclaim their commonwealth.

Senator Lester, a great friend of Governor Talmadge, is chairman of the commission on "Economy and (Continued on page three)

RELIEF FROM HEAT ARRIVES

Breezes Remindful of Seashore Brought Respite Last Night And Today

B. T. Clark, local weather observer, said today was the hottest of the year, although cooling breezes greatly relieved the intensity of the heat wave. The temperature stood at 98.

Relief came to Greenville last night as the city had parched under a withering sun for three days. A breeze, reminiscent of the seashore, whipped across the sun-baked section last night and early today, causing thousands of people, many of whom felt like they were on the verge of prostration, to feel much better, both mentally and physically.

Although Sunday was considerably more depressing, Saturday with a temperature of 95, was described by the weather man as the hottest day of the summer. The temperature Sunday was given as 94.

Although the hot blast was a long time coming, it came with gusto when it finally decided it was time to put on steam. The weather man, prior to last week, had been unusually merciful on the community, and today found everybody paying for the many cool days enjoyed when it should have been normally hot.

The breeze was accompanied by clouds last night that failed to give forth rain in this immediate area, but it was believed other sections had good rainfalls.

Although the weather man held out hope of more comfortable temperatures today and tomorrow, this condition is not expected to last long because summer is far behind and is believed to have just hit its stride Saturday and Sunday.

BRITAIN HOLDS FOR PAYMENT OF WAR DEBTS

Neville Chamberlain Says Lausanne Agreement Not Valid Until Debts Paid

London, June 18.—(AP)—Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the house of commons today that the Lausanne agreement virtually cancelling the German war reparations cannot be fairly ratified by the world war allies until their war debts to the United States are settled.

William Mabane, liberal member, asked whether the chancellor would propose to France, Italy and Belgium that this condition be waived precedent to the ratification of the Lausanne agreement, giving final authority to the instrument which is not capable of being disturbed by the independent acts of anyone of the six governments.

Chamberlain replied: "No, his majesty's government is not prepared to depart from the view that ratification of the Lausanne agreement is bound up with the problem of war debts as a whole."

Pressing his point, Mabane asked: "In view of the international situation would not the position be eased if this anomaly were regularized?" Chamberlain replied: "I do not think it possible to regularize in that way."

MOTOR CLUB IS WAGING SPEED TRAP CAMPAIGN

Charlotte, June 17.—(AP)—The Carolina Motor Club, waging a campaign against "speed traps" it claimed to have found in the two Carolinas, today provided its travel bureau with detailed routines showing its members how to avoid Langley, Gloverville and the Horse Creek Valley section of South Carolina.

At the same time it warned all motorists "to keep well within the speed laws in Aiken County, S. C., particularly in the villages of Langley and Gloverville." Motorists were also warned to watch their speed in the vicinity of Grimsland, Pitt County, North Carolina, on U. S. No. 264 between Greenville and Chocowinity.

SLEEPING ON TRACKS IS FATAL TO NEGRO

Selma, June 18.—John Cameron, negro man 45 years old, was instantly killed Sunday night about 10 o'clock by Southern passenger train No. 22, eastbound, two miles east of Selma.

It is reported that the negro had been drinking and it is thought he went to sleep on the railroad tracks with his head on the rail. The top of his head was cut off by the train.

Cameron came here from South Carolina a few weeks ago and had been farming for Allison Cole. No inquest was held. The county coroner, Dr. E. N. Booker, after examining the negro's body, found no evidence of foul play.

News Behind The News.

Washington

By RAY TUCKER

DUEL: Hugh Johnson cannot bear to quit the Washington scene where he thundered and glared as the curator of the Blue Eagle. He has made several moves to cut back into the national picture, though he denies it.

His latest was to ask support for appointment to the job of counsel in the A. T. and T. investigation. Friends thought it significant that he did not seek the post until Donald Richberg was favorably mentioned for it. Mr. Johnson privately accuses Richberg of stabbing him in the back when the two controlled NRA policies. On the night the headlines proposed Mr. Richberg for this important inquiry General Johnson got busy on his own behalf.

Mr. Roosevelt's private advisers have begged him to get him or both men. Both are able in particular fields, but their rivalry bodes no good for any man they both serve. The New Deal suffers enough embarrassment from family feuds without perpetuating this duel on its doorstep, according to the President's long-headed friends.

QUARREL: Secretary Ickes has quietly revived his movement to strip the Department of Agriculture of control of birds, forests, soil erosion and other conservation projects. The quarrel seemed settled long ago, but the relentless Mr. Ickes won't let up. He never does.

Mr. Ickes is slowly pushing his bill to transfer the Forestry Service, the Biological Survey and the Soil Erosion Bureau from Agriculture to Interior. In a recent appearance before a Congressional committee he scoffed at certain agricultural activities. He declared that Secretary Wallace and his experts were taking in territory which be-

To Investigate Charges.

Washington, June 18.—(AP)—A Senate investigation of charges made against the new deal by Ewing Y. Mitchell, deposed assistant secretary of Commerce, was directed today by the Senate commerce committee as another branch of that body—the ocean mail committee—sharply criticized ship subsidy policies.

While the Senate itself continued to drive ahead on the administration social security bill in hope of passing it before nightfall, the commerce committee order by unanimous vote an airing of Mitchell's allegations that "favoritism and graft" abound in the commerce and other departments. Mitchell recently was dismissed by President Roosevelt after his refusal to resign.

The ocean mail report which detailed results of a lengthy probe charged that ship subsidy policies led to a "saturnalia" by men bent on "robbing the taxpayer" and that some public officials "flagrantly betrayed their trust."

The House meanwhile devoted itself to consideration of the controversial AAA amendments.

Foreshadowing breakers ahead for the administration utility holding bill, a House interstate commerce committee was understood to have voted to delete the section to abolish the unnecessary holding companies and it was believed the full committee would uphold its action.

TAYLOR HELD IN CAR WRECK

Walstonburg Man Faces Court Today For Running Into Mule-drawn Vehicle

Berry Taylor, of Walstonburg, was held today on a charge of transporting liquor and reckless and careless driving after his automobile crashed into a mule and wagon on the Ballard's bridge, about six miles west of Greenville, late yesterday afternoon.

Taylor was allowed to give bond for his appearance in county court here sometime today.

Highway officers who investigated the accident said Arthur Barber and John O'Neill, occupants of the wagon, escaped without injury as did L. M. Holder, of Farmville, and Mark Taylor, occupants of the car. The mule was reported to have been badly injured. Both wagon and automobile were damaged by the impact. The mule and wagon were said to be the property of Blount-Harvey Co. of Greenville, and were occupied by farm tenants.

Officers said they discovered a half gallon jar half full of liquor in the automobile, although it was said none of the occupants were drinking.

The automobile was reported to have been far over on the left hand side of the bridge when it struck the mule and wagon head-on.

WHERE 14 PERISHED IN ENGLISH TRAIN WRECK

Described as England's worst train wreck of many years, a fast special loaded with newspapers crashed into a stationary section of the London Newcastle Express at Welwyn station, a London suburb. Fourteen persons were killed and 29 were injured seriously. LIQUOR TEST CASE AWAITS JURIST ACTION

Judge Frizzelle Gives No Indication When Decision Will Be Handed Down

Wilmington, June 18.—(AP)—The first case to test the constitutionality of the North Carolina act permitting certain counties to hold liquor elections was in the hands of Judge J. Paul Frizzelle today. No indications would be reached.

After hearing eight hours of arguments with drys attacking the legality of the New Hanover bill under which a referendum has been called for July 2 and city and other attorneys upholding the validity of the act, Judge Frizzelle took the matter under advisement.

While the New Hanover case was being argued here drys moved to block proposed elections in three other counties. They were before Judge W. A. Devin in Henderson and obtained a temporary restraining order returnable June 27 where by authorities of Vance and Warren counties were directed to show cause why they should not be enjoined from holding elections set for June 29.

Judge Frizzelle signed an injunction by Beaufort drys temporarily restraining the plebiscite there on June 29. The injunction was returnable before Judge E. H. Cramer, who will be in Elizabeth City June 20.

In Pasquotank opponents of ratification announced they would wage a battle against the contemplated action.

The Franklin county case is scheduled for a hearing before Judge J. Clifton Williams in Raleigh tomorrow afternoon and similar proceedings are slated for Swain Hill at which the O'Neale county election will be at issue.

Two counties, Wilson and Edgecombe, have called elections for next Saturday. So far no action has been taken to prevent balloting there.

ABSOLVED OF BLAME FOR DEATH OF BOY

Fayetteville, June 18.—A coroner's jury here yesterday afternoon exonerated Jesse Wellons, well-known Fayetteville young man, of blame for the death of Herman Burns, 10-year-old son of H. L. Burns, who was fatally injured by Wellons' automobile on the Rectoria Road Saturday afternoon.

Wellons testified that he saw two little boys crossing the road pulling a tin wagon; that he feared his horn and applied his brakes; released them when it was evident the children saw him and started to the right, running one wheel off the road. But just as he feared the younger had run back and was struck by his left headlight.

Harold Burns, a bright lad of seven years, said he warned his little brother not to run back, but he would do it.

Those attending the hearing from Greenville were:

Mr. J. H. Spelman, C. W. Howland, O. V. Smith, E. L. Powell, Jesse Wellons, E. W. Mosley, E. R. Askins, M. K. Blount, N. O. VanNort, H. L. Ornduff, J. J. White, Herbert Waldrop, Frank Wooten, H. Blount, S. A. Whitehurst and H. H. Duncan.

COTTON CHECK RUSH IS OVER

200 Checks Still On Hand at Farm Office Awaiting Their Owners

The rush for cotton rental checks was over at the farm office today, but there were still some 200-odd checks on hand awaiting the appearance of their owners.

The checks represent the first half of 1935 payments to growers who are taking part in the government campaign to control production and are playing an important part in the economic life of the growers at this time who always find this season of the year rather lacking in finances.

There were 1246 checks in the hands of the Farm Department when the rush started, and for several days last week the office was crowded to overflowing as farmers tried to be among the first to get their hands on the government money.

The checks called for a total of $24,782 and came in the midst of a check-up on storage of cotton bolls and seedlings started several days ago by the supervisors.

LOCAL BODY GOES BEFORE RIVERS BOARD

The local delegation from the First Pitt County Association, which will be in Washington Tuesday to appear before the Rivers and Harbors Board today was scheduled to confer with Senators Bailey and Rev. Warren this morning before appearing before the board later in the day.

The board, at which the delegation will ask for the dropping of Tar River as a threat to the stream used to irrigate the area, was scheduled to begin at 11:00. It was expected to consume several hours as a great batch of information regarding the river was to be presented to the board.

Those attending the hearing from Greenville were:

Mr. J. H. Spelman, C. W. Howland, O. V. Smith, E. L. Powell, Jesse Wellons, E. W. Mosley, E. R. Askins, M. K. Blount, N. O. VanNort, H. L. Ornduff, J. J. White, Herbert Waldrop, Frank Wooten, H. Blount, S. A. Whitehurst and H. H. Duncan.

PITT TOBACCO GROWERS TO VOTE ON AAA

Election to Determine Sentiment on Control Movement Called For June 22

Pitt county farmers will be given an opportunity to express their sentiment on the tobacco program of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in an election to be held in this county on Saturday, June 11. It was made known today by E. F. Arnold, director of the local farm department.

The farm director said voting places would be set up in every township of the county to give farmers an opportunity of saying whether or not they desire the program continued.

The election was called by the AAA to determine the sentiment of the growers in the face of the Supreme court ruling against the NRA.

Mr. Arnold said contract signers, share-croppers and tenants are eligible to vote in the forthcoming election. Every contract signer, he said, is expected to sign; his share-croppers and tenants are at the polls the day of the election. A vote of 8,000 or more is expected.

"I consider this one of the most important elections we have ever had," said Mr. Arnold. "Due to the fact that the Supreme court has ruled against the NRA, it is more important than ever that the administration be informed as to whether you desire your program to be continued or not. It is your responsibility to see that all growers under your contract are at the polls."

Ballets will be cast at the following places with committeemen acting as poll bearers:

Chilcote—Spencer's Store at Black Jack.

Wilmington—Mayor's office. Arden—Bradley's Radio Shop. Swift Creek—Hugh Stokes's Store. Greenville—Cour. House. Farmville—Askew's Garage Building.

Fountain—Redick's Filling Station. Folkland—Post Office. Bethel—E. L. Mayo's office. Pictou—J. P. Davenport's Store. Belvoir—B. L. Cross Roads. Carolina—Woodard's Store. Beaver Dam—Mack Smith's Store.

MEN FROM 12 COUNTIES GIVEN EMPLOYMENT

Wilmington, June 18.—Approximately 270 white and negro men and a few war veterans, all from 12 eastern North Carolina counties, were enlisted in the Civilian Conservation Corps for several months service by a recruiting detail in charge of Colonel Talbot Smith of Charlotte and Lieutenant S. S. Koszewski of Fort Bragg, at a customhouse Saturday.

The men left late in the day for Robt. E. Boyd to Bruce E. Boyd, 5971 acres, $50.

NO DEMANDS YET MADE BY THE STRIKERS

All Telephone Communications With Prison Officials Broken as Convict Miners Hold 15 Officers Underground; Purpose of Mutiny Not Known; Seek to Make Contact With Strikers.

Lansing, Kan., June 18.—(AP)—Holding fifteen mine officers as hostages, more than 300 Kansas state penitentiary convicts mutinied today in the prison coal mines.

All telephone communications with the prison officials were broken by the strikers shortly after they went down into the mine at 7 a. m.

Warden M. Lacy Simpson's office said the purpose of the strike was not known yet as no demands had been received from the convict miners.

Plans were made to send officers armed with gas into the mine. The 15 mine officers held were without arms, the warden's office said, so unless firearms have been smuggled in, the mutineers were without any weapons, other than clubs and knives.

Ronald Finney, bond forger, and hub of the 1933 Kansas bogus bond scandal, who reputedly acted as mediator in a previous mutiny, was in the mine.

Robert Murray, mine superintendent, and three officers went into the mine to contact the prisoners. After reaching the bottom of the shaft, Murray went alone to the face of the mine to talk to the convicts.

R. D. Payne, secretary to Warden Simpson, said there had been no trouble before the strike. Other prisoners were at their regular jobs and the mine was the only scene of disorder, Payne said. The total prison population is 1,978.

One of the most serious mine riots began barely eight years ago when on June 24, 1927, 328 convicts mutinied and stayed 720 feet down in the mine for 72 hours because they were denied cigarettes.

After a fight in which lumps of coal, clubs, picks and lanterns were used, loyal convicts overcame the rebel strikers, released imprisoned guards and ended the riot.

Protest over food being served there was another cause of the 1927 mine mutiny.

While holding out in the depths of the mine, the prisoners threatened to kill the mine mules and eat them, but did not carry out the threat. Some of the convicts had become attached to the animals and refused to permit them to be slaughtered.

REALTY MOVES SLOWLY HERE

Apathetic Condition Prevailing on the Local Market at Present Time

An apathetic condition prevailed on the Pitt county real estate market today, but it brought surprise to no one because of the state of general uncertainty prevailing over the country as result of the changes being made in the recovery field.

Only seven deeds of transfer have been filed here the last several days it was revealed today by records in the office of the register of deeds. All of the transactions except one involved lots in this and other sections of the county.

The largest of the deals involved only $1,000, that being for a lot from D. L. Mangum and wife to Home Building & Loan Association. The remainder of the transactions follow:

M. Woolard and wife, to Raymond P. Woolard, 1-2 interest, $150. Paul A. Scott and wife to N. W. Jackson, 1 lot, $10. S. M. Hadley and wife to Ida W. Godwin, 1 lot, $500. J. B. Eare et als to M. T. Frizzelle, 1 lot, $100. The Mrs. Mary E. Barbee to L. J. Smith, 1 lot, $100. Robt. E. Boyd to Bruce E. Boyd, 5971 acres, $50.

Secret reports of the testimony caused consternation at the Department of Agriculture. They hear that Mr. Ickes said their department should become only a "research department" whose chief function should be the distribution of information and seeds to farmers. What bothered the Wallaces most was that Mr. Ickes said the President favored his bill. A serious mixup is in the making.

EXCESSIVE: Wallace's scouts insist that Mr. Ickes has mobilized his famed OGPU in this quarrel. They say they have discovered at least one instance where Louis Glavis used his agents to check up on anti-Ickes activities by the agricultural boys. There have been similar but unproved reports that the Secretary of the Interior keeps a sharp eye on some of his colleagues.

Mr. Wallace may give Mr. Ickes a harder battle than some of the more swash-buckling figures Har- old has downed. The Secretary of Agriculture is a patient, quiet-spoken fellow. But he never lets up on ideas any more than Mr. Ickes does on rivals. He speaks out as bluntly as any member of the Cabinet when sufficiently riled. As editor of a farm newspaper he attacked the administration's agricultural policies while his father was Secretary of Agriculture.

A man can take on so many enemies, and no more. Maybe Mr. Ickes better leave the birds, the trees and the drifting dust to Henry.

CONTROLS: President Roosevelt has apparently backed away from his tentative suggestion for constitutional revision. But he is still testing public sentiment, although the first reaction was bitterly critical. Republican strategists are eager to make it the major issue next year.

Three men close to the Chief Executive are keeping alive the issue. They are Chief Brain Trusters Tugwell, James and Elliott Roosevelt. The two sons' remarks have been generously reported, but the more sensational statements of Mr. Tugwell have had little notice. He goes even further than the President, who did not commit himself definitely to a constitutional amendment. Says Mr. Tugwell to his audiences:

"Your country in the years just ahead will be deciding in what sense of the word it is a nation; and whether it shall control the exploitation of human beings and of natural resources, or whether it shall succumb to the anarchic economic forces which are loosed in the absence of those controls." He declares that reorientation of the government to modern forces is more important than the "preservation of a fiction."

CHART: In the next depression—and for the balance of this one—the federal government will know what kind of projects provide the most man-hours of direct and indirect employment.

Statistician Isidor Lubin of the Bureau of Labor Statistics has undertaken this novel survey. He has assigned a large force to ascertain how many people have been given work by the multitudinous projects undertaken by PWA and other emergency agencies. He has finished his inquiry of the steel industry, but the results for other basic industries have not been computed.

Past spending has been done on a hit-or-miss basis. Figures on the numbers employed through expenditures of billions have been guesswork. But now the government will have a chart showing whether we kick out of an economic tailspin the quickest through building schools, bridges, roads, battlefields, tunnels, railroad engines—or boom-doggling.

ENEMY'S KISS

Chapter 44
DEAD DOG

THE sergeant gave a sign of satisfaction.

"That's the car wanted in connection with the Warley case," he said importantly.

"I want to ring up my solicitor, please," said Guy firmly. "And I'd like you to get in touch with Chief Inspector Grice at Scotland Yard, he knows me. Can I speak to him from here?"

"You'll have plenty of time to speak to him," said the sergeant grimly. "Take him along to the cells, Fletcher, I'll ring up headquarters."

It was exactly one-third that a car stopped at the police station and Chief Inspector Grice himself, lean, ferret-faced and red-haired, got out.

"Grice!" Guy started with relief as the door opened. The inspector held out his hand.

"Well, now, sir, what's all this?" he asked.

Guy's statement of the facts took just three minutes.

"Quite so, quite so," said Grice soothingly. "I understand! But of course, whatever he did you shouldn't have pushed him, sir."

"I know but well—I was in a hurry. I'll apologize, anything, but can you get me out of this?" urged Guy.

"I tell you, Grice, I'm scared blue! This lady—the young lady I'm telling you about, who was with me, has gone to Mrs. Poynter's flat now and Lord only knows what's happening!"

"I'll do what I can," Grice promised, "but I'll have to ask you a few questions first."

"Make 'em snappy, then!"

"I'll try to," Grice conceded. "Put in a nutshell, the position's this: Mrs. Summers or Poynter, or whatever her name is, came round to see us this morning. Mrs. Summers had said that she knew nothing—that her furniture had been moved, that she'd only been down there to see it out and that she'd not been near the cellar. That was confirmed by the movers' men, who said the door was locked and the key gone. Anyway, there wasn't any doubt she had an alibi."

"Well?" Guy's eyes were on his watch; he was sweating lightly.

"Well, this morning she came round with a tale that she had the number of the blue car that was seen up on the downs. Said her gardener had spotted it coming by his cottage round about nine-thirty the next morning and had written to her—though why I don't know!"

"I see," agreed Guy. "What do you want me to tell you?"

"Can you explain, sir, what your car was doing down at Warley that night?"

Guy hesitated. "Officially?" he asked.

"Yes," said Grice.

There was a pause that lasted a bare fraction of a minute and their eyes met.

GUY took out a handkerchief and wiped his face. It had a set, grim look.

"By the way, how's your wife?" he asked pointedly. "All right again?"

"Getting on fine now," said Grice reproachfully. "But that's not cricket, sir, if I may say so."

"I know it's not," said Guy. "But for Heaven's sake be human!"

Grice looked at the door and at the captive. But he saw neither. He was thinking of a woman who had lain ill, despaired of, and this man beside him who had saved her life.

"Go on, sir!" he capitulated.

So Guy told for the second time that day the story of his movements on the night he went to Warley, and of his meeting with Allison.

Grice heard him through without expression.

"You yourself saw no one in the house that night except the young lady?"

"No one," agreed Guy firmly.

"Could you tell me a little bit more clearly what you did down in the cellar?" he asked.

"As far as I remember, Miss Rede and I went through it, very carefully, flashing the light about and looking into all the corners. We found the main switch and turned on the electric light."

"Just a moment, sir—you didn't do anything before turning on the light? Didn't shift anything?"

"No," Guy looked at him wonderingly. "Oh! Yes! There was one thing."

"What?" Grice was leaning forward, his small pale eyes glittering eagerly.

"There was a big roll of linoleum in one corner, near the recess under the stairs," said Guy. "It fell over. A rat ran out—I suppose he'd got ment on Somaliland along these lines. Naturally Germany is delighted. Conversely Britain accepts a German navy 35 per cent as large as her own—and therefore almost as large as France's—to warn the French that they'd darn well better not cast their lot with Mussolini at England's expense. France is in a tough spot. She doesn't give a hoot about Abyssinia or the Red Sea but she gives plenty about Germany. And here the united front against Germany she has nursed along so carefully is threatened with a damaging split no matter what she does. By the same token, Germany stands to gain whatever happens—thanks to Italian ambition and British apprehension. Keep your eyes on this African checker game—the face of Europe may hang on it too.

PREMATURE: The J. G. White "contract" to build a dam at Lake Tsana in Abyssinia has its trick angles. The project dates back to '27. Britain pushed it then and King Menelik-Ras Tafari's predecessor agreed to a survey provided an American concern handled the job. He wanted no imperialistic Britishers or Frenchmen nosing around his kingdom. (Italy wasn't a factor then.)

The White firm filled the bill to Menelik's satisfaction. Perhaps he hadn't heard of its London connections. And certainly England was satisfied too. A credit of $160,000 was placed to the White account in a New York bank for expenses of an engineering expedition—technically by Abyssinia, actually by Britain. The survey was completed at a cost of $145,000 and there the matter rested. England lost interest and no more funds were forthcoming.

When the project was revived a couple of weeks ago—with Egypt thinly screening British initiative—the White people knew nothing about it until they read it in the newspapers. Why? Because the announcement was sprung prematurely. Britain wasn't ready for it and was much annoyed when it leaked out. Even yet there's nothing resembling a definite contract—but White will get it, when there is.

GUESSING: Joe Kennedy of the Securities Commission has tackled a job that might well have broken Hercules. He aims to establish a uniform system of corporate accounting so that investors will be able to make sense out of corporate financial statements—which they can't do now unless gifted with second sight.

New York experts agree it would be helpful if this could be done. They concede that progress is possible in substituting understandable classifications for accounting jargon. They also figure it won't be so hard to simplify profit and loss statements. But they rate uniformity of balance sheets an achievement beyond the reach of a corps of Solomon.

Every company has its own system for figuring depreciation—and who's to say which one is correct? Ditto for valuation of assets. Should they be carried at original cost, replacement cost, or farm-producing words—and why? These questions can be argued eternally—and will be if Kennedy insists on trying to dope out a formula. It looks as if inquisitive investors will still have to do a lot of guessing despite his best efforts.

MANAGEMENT: When the bankers used to run the railroads they ran them and no fooling. Executives and directors for roads all over the country were chosen in New York. The mass of stockholders had about as much say as zoo animals have in the choice of a keeper.

But now that the bankers have largely lost interest in their former pets an odd situation has developed. Admittedly second-rate managements still hold their jobs, and there's no machinery for throwing them out.

This is one reason why a number of necessary reorganizations have been held up. Security holders are not organized and executives in charge won't take the initiative in a move which would probably dump them out in the cold. The RFC probably will have to step in and expunge. Its management prerogatives in some of these cases whether it wants to or not.

Aviation Mixed With Romance In New Serial

Many planes have been lost in futile attempts to span the oceans, but no tragedy of the air has had a stranger sequel than that in "Ready Made Wife," the Reflector's new serial starting tomorrow.

Coralie Stanton tells the story with an appreciation of dramatic values which sustains throughout the story the interest aroused at its start, when Laurie Moore is introduced as the attractive widow of Rex Moore, never heard from since his take-off on a Pacific adventure.

His name is barely out of the headlines when Laurie Moore arrives from Australia and soon is in the employ of Mark Albery, whose plane factory had backed Rex Moore's flight. Albery and her few employees pay Laurie the respect they feel due the widow of the renowned flier, still honored at the factory for his technical ability and his daring as an aviator. Yet to Albery there is something strange about this young woman who withdraws into a silence and a reserve whenever, blunderingly, or with a confused attempt at tact, he refers to Rex Moore and Laurie's widowhood.

Albery's interest in Laurie rests not only on his appreciation of her business ability, but also on a regard more personal. While he musters his courage, hoping to tell Laurie of this feeling, a fateful coincidence brings her into a chance meeting with a stranger who tells her something about Rex Moore that fills her with despair. The discovery complicates all of her relationships, present and prospective, and until her problem at last disappears in a happy solution her life is under a cloud.

This, briefly, is the story of "Ready Made Wife." Readers who start with the first chapter tomorrow in the Reflector will find it throughout an exciting combination of romance and adventure.

MAN CALLED TO DOOR IS SHOT FOUR TIMES

High Point, June 18.—(AP)—Paul Jordan, about 35, of Trinity, was in a serious condition in Burrus Memorial Hospital this afternoon as a result of being shot four times while he was at his home about 9:30 Sunday night. He was shot in his head, his side, his stomach and one of his legs.

Jordan told officers this morning that when he answered a knock on his door he was confronted by two men who demanded that he stick up his hands. He refused to comply with their demands he said, because he thought the command was a joke.

Two men, John Kennedy and Carl Meyers, and their wives are being held in jail at Asheboro for investigation in connection with the affair, deputies announced.

Hayesville, June 17.—(AP)—Nineteen-year-old Everett Shelton was held in jail here today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of his 82-year-old grandfather, G. W. Shelton.

The body of Shelton, with a rifle bullet hole in the back of the head, was found late Saturday night by Sheriff John Tiger in Tusquitee Creek, about four miles from Hayesville.

NURSE WAKES TO FIND NEGRO MAN IN ROOM

Rocky Mount, June 18.—Local police were vigorously searching the nooks and crannies of the city in hopes of finding a negro whom they believe entered a local nurses' home yesterday, choked a nurse and escaped through the window of an other room containing several nurses, before anyone stopped him.

The negro, it is said was standing over the girl's bed early yesterday morning when she awoke, and as she attempted to scream he grabbed her throat. She broke his hold and screamed, and he left by means of a window in another part of the building.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. "God the Preserver of Man" was the subject of the lesson-lesson in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 16.

The golden text was from Prov. 2:6-8: "The Lord giveth wisdom, He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-lesson was the following from the Bible: "And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud, and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire: And he had in his hand a little book open." (Rev. 10:1-2).

The lesson also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "It is vain to speak dishonestly of divine Science, which destroys all discord, when you can demonstrate the actuality of Science. It is unwise to doubt its reality in perfect harmony with God, divine Principle—if Science, when understood and demonstrated, will destroy all discord—since you admit that God is omnipotent; for from this premise it follows that good and its sweet concord have all-power."

Taxation. He came to North Carolina particularly to study the state highway system, both the construction portion and the prison features. He also goes through the school system, and makes a specialty of the revenue study. He admits a deep dislike for the sales tax, but he does not go so far as to commit himself unalterably to it. He is pure North Carolina there.

"We have so much to learn from North Carolina on roads and schools that they are our chief concern," Senator Lester told this correspondent. "I have enjoyed my stay greatly. I think you have done a wonderful thing with the highways and prisons. And of course you have made marvelous progress in education. Our states are very near the same size in area and in population. Naturally what would work well in North Carolina might work with us too. You certainly have a wonderful system of roads and schools."

"We are also interested in your local government commission and it has done a great deal to curb unrestricted spending. I have been studying that act and like it. My visit to North Carolina is purely for the purpose of getting the best from your system and reporting it to the next general assembly."

Senator Lester does not think that the smallness of Georgia's bonded debt—only about $4,000,000—will make any great difference in the kind of laws which that state will need.

"You have gone about your highway system right, I think," he continued. "You have a perfect system of financing and it has not been necessary for you to pay as you go. We have been doing that in Georgia and we have not been making the use of convicts that you are making now. I think that was a great step that you took when the state merged the prison and highway departments."

Senator Lester was asked by Governor Talmadge, his friend. The executive records that North Carolina's record shows Mr. Talmadge at least to be "half right." The Governor's opposition to the Roosevelt administration, Senator Lester said, has been made to look worse than it is. "But North Carolina has been able to make these wonderful strides under its own powers," he said. "You have not found it necessary to get the federal functions to working for you. And you now have a marvelously developed state. We think we can do the same thing. And we think there is too much usurpation of state's rights. If that tendency is not curbed I do not know where I will end."

The Georgian, member of a senatorial committee, said:

MACHINIST BUILDS $1,200 TELESCOPE IN BACK YARD

Oklahoma City—(AP)—The largest reflecting telescope in Oklahoma stands in the back yard of A. M. Hearn, Oklahoma City machinist—a monument to his lifelong ambition to study astronomy, built despite the handicaps of earning a living for a family of six.

With materials costing about $25 Hearn himself constructed the telescope, a compound Gregorian type reflector with a 121-2 inch primary mirror, accurate to one-quarter of a light fringe. Such an instrument would cost $1,200, he estimated.

It shows splendid definition of Saturn and its system of rings," said Hearn, "and even Neptune can be seen as a disc."

Increasing her portrait gallery of famous characters, Spain adds Gaspar Melchor de Jovellanos (1774-1811) on a 30-centimos rose stamp and Mariana Pineda on a 10-centimos green. The 50-centimos (Nicolas Salmeron, 1838-1908) has been changed from orange to blue.

Jovellanos led a varied career as statesman and author. His prose works (he and also a poet) on political and legislative economy gave him literary fame. He became a criminal judge at Seville in 1787, a judge in Madrid in 1778 and was banished for seven years to his native Gijon with the turn of political fortunes. For a time, he was minister of grace and justice under Godoy, whose dismissal he helped procure. But with Godoy's return to power, Jovellanos again was banished to Gijon and later imprisoned on Majorca.

Mariana Pineda (1801-1830) is one of the heroines of Spanish history. A beautiful and spirited young woman from Granada, she was executed when caught making a flag for the revolutionists.

The "Salon International de Timbre et Exposition Internationale de Timbres de Belgique et du Congo Belge" was held recently at the Palais des Beaux-Arts in Brussels.

The exhibition issue of this single stamp (each printed in the center of its own small "sheet") sold for 19 francs, or 5 francs above face value. Its purchase admitted the buyer to the exhibition. Incorporated in the design are "1935" and "Messire Fr. de Tassis."

Springbok Rampant
South Africa's contribution to the silver jubilee galaxy is rather impressively designed with the union's well-known gazels stylized and poised on either side of the central medallion—George V's head with "Silver Jubilee" and "Silver Jubileum" encircling it. The dates "1910" and "1935" are included, and every other stamp transposes the English and Afrikaans inscriptions.

Denominations are 1-2d green and black, 1d carmine and black, 3d blue and dark blue, 6d orange and green.

LOCALS AGAIN REGAIN LEAD OF CIRCUIT

Without striking a lick in their own defense, the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain league today again climbed to the pinnacle of the standing of clubs.

The trick was turned by the cellar Tarboro club which licked the league leading New Bern Bears by the margin of 9 to 6, causing Greenville to automatically go to the top and New Bern to drop into second place with Ayden.

Greenville and Snow Hill played their scheduled Monday game on Sunday, the Greens winning to the tune of 4 to 2. Hostilities were renewed on the Greene county local grounds this afternoon and the fight promises to be a royal one with Greenville attempting to retain the advantage at the top of the standing of clubs and Snow Hill seeking revenge for the drubbing handed them before one of the largest crowds, if not the largest, ever to see a ball game on the new Third Street school athletic field.

After a day of rest both clubs are expected to go into the field in much better shape than Sunday, and if somebody doesn't keep a keen lookout the contest is going to be featured by lots of slugging. The big guns of the batting artillery have had time for oiling and promise to kick up plenty of disturbance. With the locals back on the top rung, another large crowd is expected to turn out here Wednesday to see what can be done in the way of keeping the bacon at home. Eyes today, however, are turned toward Greene county and results of the contest will be awaited with interest.

TARBORO LICKS BEARS

Tarboro, June 18.—Tarboro's cellar club honed all over the pitching offerings of Mason Burg, big State College athlete, and surged a 9-6 victory over New Bern here yesterday afternoon.

The defeat dropped New Bern from the league pinnacle. The idle Greenville's Greensies, who won Sunday in a game advanced from yesterday took over the league top. New Bern fell into a third-place tie with the idle Ayden outfit, which moved ahead of Williamston when the Martins lost yesterday to Kinston.

Six double plays by the Tarboro infield snuffed out various New Bern threats and enabled Steve Physice, local flinger, to go into the ninth inning with a 9-3 lead. The visitors out over three runs in the ninth and chased Physice to the showers. This rally too was halted by a double play. The busy Tarboro infielders were: Chimbrie, McAbow, Joe Fay, ss; Baslin, lb.

Tarboro cut one run in the third and a pair in each the fourth and fifth, and then scored up the contest with a four-run outburst in the sixth. McAbow started this with a single. He stole second as Physice formed and moved to third on Chimbrie's outfield fly. Baslin's hit scored McAbow, and Baslin went to third on an error. Chimbrie's slotted to send Baslin home, and then Tom Burnett hit a homer over the left field fence. The homer was the eleventh for Burnett's left. Lefty Kennel blanked Tarboro the rest of the way.

EAGLES FLY HIGH

Kinston, June 17.—The climb Kinston Eagles launched three Williamston pitchers yesterday to defeat the Martins 18-5. The locals made 21 hits, every member of the team connecting at least once.

Joe Greenberg, third sacker, and Charlie Keller, centerfielder, made four hits apiece to lead the Eagles. One of Keller's hits was a homer. Shortstop Tommy Irwin marked a pair of homers. Each of the three circuit blows came with one on.

Kinston made quick business of chasing Slim Gardner and Freddie Edmonds to the showers. Tom Morris took over the pitching burden for the Martins in the third and he took a lot of punishment during the remainder of the game.

Charlie Harris, Davidson College star, held the visitors to eight hits. Kinston's biggest inning was the third. Keller walked, Jim Mordan doubled, the Farmer was handed a hit-batman ticket, Elmo Patrick walked, Harris doubled, and Jack Stenebaker doubled. The total result was five runs.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 18.—(AP)—The stock market groped for higher levels today but bullish forces were more than offset and buying continued selective. Many traders stood aside on the theory that some sort of technical reaction was due. At the same time sellers were timid. Grains rallied as heavy rains were believed to be delaying harvest. Bonds were mixed. The French franc was firm in foreign exchange dealings. The late one was steady. Transfers were 850,000 shares.

Ask Improvement Tar River.
Washington, June 18.—(AP)—Business men of Greenville, N. C., today presented to the Army Rivers and Harbor Board pledges of enough tonnage to justify federal expenditure of $462,539 for opening a deep water channel up the Tar river to their city.

Senator Bailey, Representative Warren and nineteen representatives of the Tar river section appeared in an appeal from an unfavorable report on the project presented by the district army engineer.

Warren announced to the board that Greenville shippers and merchants had skinned pledges guaranteeing 94,000 tons would be shipped over the waterway annually. The figure was twice that of the 49,000 tons estimated by the district engineer.

There is a potential tonnage of 267,000 tons in Greenville alone," Warren said.

He estimated the annual saving at $522,000 while the district engineer put the figure at $42,000.

The project included a 12-foot channel from Washington, N. C., to Greenville, 22 miles away, with a navigation lock three miles below Greenville.

Senator Bailey joined Warren in presentation of a bright picture of conditions in Pitt county. The sen-
