PLAN ANNUAL CAMPAIGN ON TYPHOID HERE

Health Department To Also Inaugurate Fight on Diphtheria Monday

The annual battle against typhoid fever and diphtheria will begin in this county next Monday morning, it was announced today by Dr. N. T. Ennett, director of the Pitt County Department of Health.

The first clinic will be held at Bethel and Bruce schools Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Health offices will move into various sections of the county until July 12 when the final clinics are to be held.

The schedule released by the health officer yesterday provides clinics in virtually every section of the county, and notices of clinics mailed out today contain information for the convenience of those desiring this service.

Dr. Ennett said other vaccinations centers of the county were served last year and do not need it again this year.

He also stated persons over three years of age need typhoid vaccinations every three years, and that children need diphtheria vaccinations at six months of age.

Attention was called to the fact that only three visits can be made to each of the clinics contained in the schedule. Patients were advised that when they come for their third dose to bring their names and addresses on a slip of paper.

"You owe it to your family to be protected against typhoid fever," said Dr. Ennett. "It is your duty to protect your baby against diphtheria."

Although typhoid vaccinations are free of charge, it was stated on the schedule that a charge of 10 cents would be made for diphtheria vaccinations.

The schedule of clinics follows:

June 24—Bethel School, Bruce School, 9:00; Stokes School, Corbett's Farm, 10:00; Pacolus School, King's X Roads, 11:00.

July 1—Falkland School, 1:00.

July 8—Oak Ridge School, 2:00; Fountain (Owen's Drug Store), 2:30.

July 25—Griffith School, Paul's Chapel, 9:00; W. W. Young's Store, Quinerly's Store, 10:00.

July 2—Arthur School, 11:00.

July 8—Nichols School, 1:00; E. C. T. C. 4:00.

July 27—Winterville School, Sally Branch School, 9:00; Ayden High School, Belvoir School, 10:00.

July 3—Holly Hill School, 11:00.

Jenny Hill (W. Z. Robinson's), 2:00.

July 11—Piney Grove School, 1:00.

July 28—Grimesland School, Moye's Chapel, 9:00; Farmville School, 10:00; Chidlow School, 10:30.

July 5—Jack Lewis' Farm, 11:00.

July 12—Joyner's X Roads, 1:00; Broad Branch School, 2:00.

Negro Lynched In Mississippi In Assault Case

Wiggins, Miss., June 22.—(AP)—It was reported here today that an unidentified negro was lynched last night near Wiggins by a mob of white men. The negro was accused of attacking a white girl.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH. IS PRONOUNCED SUICIDE

Plymouth, June 22.—Funeral services were held Friday for Woodrow Peacock, 23 years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McD. Peacock, who was found slumped on the floor dead at 3 a. m. Thursday morning after reports of a shotgun had been heard.

Officials called it a clear case of suicide. Beside his body was found the shotgun with an empty shell. The shot entered the right side of his skull, causing immediate death. His brains were scattered about the room and the top of his head blown off.

He was heard by his parents to enter his home a few minutes before the report of the weapon. His father suspected his intentions when he asked him if he didn't have the gun to which the young man replied in the negative. Before he could reach the bedroom of his son he heard the gun fire. No reason for the deed could be determined.

DONKEY BALL GAME LARGELY ATTENDED

The donkey baseball game at Third street school athletic field last night was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed by both youngsters and grownups.

With players representing the local baseball club, the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, riding donkeys in the field, many comical situations developed that brought screams of laughter.

The field was electrically lighted. The attraction was staged in behalf of the baseball club.

FIGHTING FOR NO'S LIFE

Whether Bruno Hauptmann will get a new trial for the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby depends on the decision of 14 judges constituting New Jersey's Court of Errors and Appeals. Hauptmann's attorneys are shown leaving court in Trenton after arguing to the jurists that he did not receive a fair trial when he was convicted and sentenced to death and should have a new one. ITALY AWAITS CONFAB WITH ANTHONY EDEN

Britain Expected to Settle Misunderstanding Over Ethiopian Question

Rome, June 22.—(AP)—An attempt to assuage unprecedented bitterness between two world war allies, Great Britain and Italy—over the latter's move in Ethiopia, depended largely today upon a forthcoming visit of Britain's Anthony Eden.

Moreover a soft pedal on Italian press attacks on the nation's erstwhile war allies had been put into effect.

Preparations are being completed for the arrival of the young British statesman, secretary of the League of Nations's affairs, who probably will sit in conference with Benito Mussolini Monday in a further attempt to quiet the discord.

Britain's openly voiced proposition to halt the possible Ethiopian conflict and halt efforts to settle the differences have aroused the sharpest resentment in Italy.

Four Quart Section Of Liquor Bill Under Fire

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hoel.
Raleigh, June 22.—The Pasquotank act has had its hearings, and as Judge Clawson Williams many times has said, off the record, that it had little to do with any superior court judge ruled on this question, but there is one section in that bill which is tremendously far-reaching, if it stands up.

Two mornings after the general assembly adjourned, it was discovered that all these county liquor bills, New Hanover excepted, carry a provision that any one coming into North Carolina may bring not exceeding four quarts of alcoholic beverages. Instantly the wets pounced upon that rider and went after it. Test cases were looked for, but they have not come. In general officers have not tried to run down those cases.

On second reading one is disposed to agree that the four quarts provision is unavailable without, at least one of the county elections may validate, if the law itself is constitutional, that section, since the provision gives license to every county in the state. So clumsy is the context at places that even this feature is subject to controversy. One of the sections refers to the "determining" of the election and then fails to say whether a failure to carry the proposal would be a "determination" of that issue. The election would "determine" something no matter which way it goes. But the language does not indicate what the issue must be determined. It is this dreadfully drawn bill which may make judges throw up their hands and ask the highest court to read into the act what it seems to mean. There is abundant provision in the act, too, for salvaging such sections as are now unconstitutional. And it appears after the hearing yesterday that if one county votes wet that four quarts section may stand up in every county in North Carolina.

Strong drys regard this as such an irrational provision that they incline to believe the courts would overthrow that part of the act whatever else is preserved.

LEAF GROWERS BALLOTING ON CONTROL PLAN

Pitt Tobacco Farmers Express Sentiment On AAA at The Polls Today

Pitt county tobacco farmers went to the polls today to express their sentiment on the crop control program inaugurated by the federal government two years ago to relieve congested markets and improve the price situation.

Voting was being conducted in every township of the county and committees of the control movement were acting in the capacity of poll holders. The object of the election is to determine whether or not the growers desire the triple A program continued in 1936-37.

Balloting in Greenville was being conducted at the courthouse and at regular polling places in other sections of the county. Notices of the election were mailed out by the farm department here several days ago and contract signers were urged to see that share croppers and tenants go to the polls in large numbers to express their opinion of the crop control program.

The election was called by the AAA as a means of sizing up the sentiment of the growers after they had been given ample opportunity to see what their cooperation with the government meant to them.

E. F. Arnold, director of the farm department, said he believed the vote would be overwhelmingly in favor of the campaign in view of the favorable expressions coming from growers in all parts of the county.

He expressed opinion that 8,000 ballots would be cast. Complete reports of the election will not be available before Monday although it was said the farm department would compile as many reports as possible tonight in an effort to get some idea how the election panned out.

Price conditions on the tobacco markets of the nation have been much improved since inauguration of the control movement, and farmers here as well as elsewhere in the various tobacco belts are in much better financial condition than they have been since the boom period immediately following the war.

LAWYERS OFF FOR BAR MEET

Greenville Attorneys Seek Re-Election of Judge Dunn as Councillor

Several members of the Pitt County Bar Association went to Morehead City today to attend a meeting of the Fifth District Bar Association of which Colonel Albion Dunn, of Greenville, former superior court judge, is councillor.

The object of the local bar members when they left Greenville this morning was to re-elect Judge Dunn to the same post. He has held the office for the last two years, and if elected this time will serve for a term of three years.

It was understood several other towns of the district were attempting to place candidates in the office, considered the most important of the organization.

The association is scheduled to convene this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and election of officers will take place during the late afternoon.

Although it was not known how many representatives of the local bar would attend it was indicated early today that the county would be well represented.

NINE CASES OF GIN SEND MEN TO ROADS

Charlotte, June 22.—(AP)—Two men who gave their names as B. F. Deaton and W. M. Jones of Gastonia, were convicted in recorder's court here today of violating the state prohibition laws and were fined $150 each. They filed notice of appeal.

Deaton identified himself as a taxi driver and asserted his companion's correct name was W. L. Whitlow.

Police testified to arresting the men last Tuesday in an automobile loaded with nine cases of gin.

Deaton claimed the stuff had been purchased by his co-defendant and that he was told it was wine.

Jones, or Whitlow, testified he came to Charlotte with Deaton just for the ride and did not know what the cases contained.

Five Convicted After 'Trying' Four Quart Law

Gastonia, June 22.—(AP)—Five Gastonia men who claimed they were within their rights in transporting a pint of whiskey each from York, S. C., to Gastonia under the "four quart" section of the new liquor laws passed by the last General Assembly, were convicted of violating the prohibition law in municipal court here this morning and ordered to pay $10 each. The five men filed notice of appeal to Superior court.

MCLEAN TO BE BURIED SUNDAY

Funeral for Former Governor to Be Conducted at Lumberton Tomorrow

Lumberton, June 22.—(AP)—The body of A. W. McLean, former governor of North Carolina, who died in Washington yesterday, will leave the capital at 3:05 p. m. today for funeral services and burial here tomorrow, according to word received here.

The body is expected to arrive at Fayetteville over the A. C. L. railroad at 10:40 tonight and will be brought to Lumberton from there.

Funeral services will be conducted from the home at 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon by Rev. R. L. Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Lumberton, of which Mr. McLean was an elder. Burial will be in Meadowbrook cemetery.

J. C. LANIER CLUB SPEAKER

Former Tobacco Code Administrator Addresses Kiwanis in Monthly Meeting

Declaring he did not believe tobacco growers of the nation would go back to the old plan of "unrestrained production" after seeing what the federal crop control program means to them, J. C. Lanier, of Greenville, executive secretary-treasurer of the National Tobacco Warehouse Association, delivered the address at the regular meeting of the Kiwanis club here last night.

Mr. Lanier, former code administrator of the flue-cured tobacco industry, and expert with the tobacco section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration told the Kiwanians of the effect of the Supreme court decision on NRA and what such a decision would mean to the AAA and other legislation affecting the government recovery program.

Should the Supreme court invalidate the AAA, Mr. Lanier expressed belief the government would bring into play its right of taxation in an effort to continue the crop control program.

He said he believed that a tax program affecting overproduction after the farmer had been allowed a base acreage, would prove quite effective in continuing the control movement.

The speaker asserted he did not believe growers would go back to the old method of unrestrained production after seeing the good effect resulting from co-operation with the government control program.

He said farmers should adopt the same plan as manufacturers and regulate their supply according to demand, thereby preventing glutted condition of the world market.

He pointed to work of the AAA as an outstanding example of what can be done between the farmer and the federal government, and declared the man that works out a better system of control will be a great benefactor to humanity.

Only brief reference was made to the Supreme court decision on the NRA, although he discussed phases of the ruling and their effect on the recovery program.

The speaker was presented by Rev. W. A. Ryan, who was in charge of the program. President Dink James presided.

Two numbers were rendered by a quartet composed of Johnnie Overton, John Clark, W. W. Lee and Manley Sellers. Mrs. R. A. Tyson, Jr., was the accompanist.

J. C. Gallows was awarded the attendance prize given by G. V. Smith.

PARALYSIS IS STILL ON JUMP IN THIS STATE

Eight Additional Cases Reported Today Swells Total for 1935 to 194

Raleigh, June 22.—(AP)—The number of cases of infantile paralysis in North Carolina this month swelled to 135 as eight additional official reports reached the State Board of Health today and the 1935 total reached 194.

From every part of the state came reports that county and city authorities are taking steps to check the spread of the dread disease but health board officials here said there were no plans under way to quarantine the state.

Dr. J. C. Knox, epidemiologist, said no instruction of any general quarantine except the usual isolation of each case and the person who had contacted each have been issued.

Public gatherings of many kinds have been cancelled.

Randolph county reported the first case today but the others came from the east and central counties. Two were from Granville and one each from Cumberland, Edgecombe, Franklin, Nash and Wake, in the sections where the disease is centering.

NEGRO WOMAN FLEEDED OF $57.50 HERE

Martha Johnson Victim of Slick Confidence Men Operating Here This Week

Martha Johnson, colored, employed as a maid at the Vines house, was fleeced of $57.50 by three colored confidence men operating in this city during the middle of the week, it was revealed today by police.

Although the department was without information as to the identity of the film-flamers, they were working on the basis of description furnished by the woman and hoped to make arrests shortly.

The woman told police she was walking along Dickson avenue when she was accosted by one of the men, described as large and dark complexioned, and told that he had just found a $1,000 bill. He displayed a bill of that denomination and told her if she along with two other men, would part $50.57 each, he would divide the bill among them.

Martha, who said she kept her savings in the postoffice, withdrew the required amount and handed it to the large negro who awaited her on the street as she withdrew the money.

When the money was delivered, the woman was told to meet the three on Fourth street a short time later and she would receive her part of the $1,000.

She went to the place indicated and waited and waited, but the confidence men failed to make their appearance. Convinced she had been made a victim of a film-flam scheme, the woman reported the loss to police who immediately began an investigation.

Although Chief of Police Clark said this morning he was without any definite clue, he expressed the opinion he would be able to make arrests probably during the day.

HOIST: An unexpected discovery may turn the voluntary bankruptcy act into a boomerang for Uncle Sam.

The measure was designed as one way of leading us out of the depression—especially the railroads. It permitted corporations borne down by debt to go to court and reduce their obligations to a point where they could pay out. It is known as the process of "going through the wringer."

Now come almost 1,500 corporations with a plea for relief under this act. But it so happens that the great bulk of their debt consists of income and processing taxes owed to the government. The question confronting government lawyers is: Will Uncle Sam be as generous as he expects private creditors to be?

ANNUAL UNION SERVICES TO BEGIN SUNDAY

Rev. W. A. Ryan to Deliver Initial Sermon at Memorial Baptist Church

Annual union services held by city churches during the hot summer months will begin tomorrow evening at Memorial Baptist church with Rev. W. A. Ryan, pastor of Eighth Street Christian church, delivering the initial sermon.

The services during the remainder of the summer will be held on the courthouse square barring rain when they will be carried to Memorial Baptist church. It had been planned to hold the first service on the courthouse lawn but arrangements could not be completed in time.

The services are sponsored by the Greenville Ministerial Association and sermons are delivered by ministers representing the various denominations.

Special music provided by various church choirs will be a feature of each service.

Members of all congregations and the public generally have been given a cordial invitation to be present each Sunday evening and help make the services a great success.

WASHINGTON SUFFERS BIG LOSS BY FIRE

Fireman Dies From Heat Prostration as Fire Does $200,000 Damage

Washington, June 22.—(AP)—Fire destroyed a lumber plant, two machine shops and four dwellings here today causing loss estimated by the fire department at $200,000.

Gene Jackson, fireman, died of a heart attack in the lumber shed of the Moss Planing Mill Co., about 3 a. m. Fanned by a stiff breeze the flames burned the machine shop of the Mutual Machine Co., and the dwellings before they were brought under control. During the height of the blaze sparks ignited houses half a dozen times but none was damaged to any extent except the four destroyed. The Greenville fire department sent a truck here to aid in fighting the fire.

Late this forenoon the firemen were still playing water on the smouldering ruins. Firemen said the ashes would probably smoulder throughout the day.

The Greenville fire department returned home this morning about 9 o'clock after going to Washington shortly after 3 o'clock to assist in combating a blaze on the water front that destroyed several buildings with a loss estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. The fire for a time threatened the entire business district but with the combined aid of the Washington and Greenville departments, the blaze was controlled about 8:30 today.

Gene Jackson, Washington fireman, was reported to have been overcome by heat while operating a steam pump, collapsed and died shortly afterward.

Buildings destroyed were the Moss Lumber Company, Warner Bottling Works, five residences occupied by white people and a machine works plant.

The buildings were located on Water Front Street in the heart of the Washington business district and for a time it appeared as if the entire business and residential districts were doomed.

George Gardner, chief of the local fire department, said they received the call for aid about 3:40 and immediately sped to the Pamlico city after sounding the local alarm. The fire originated about 3 o'clock.

Motorcade From E. C. T. C. Arrives In Canadian City

Quebec, June 22.—(AP)—A group of 100 pupils from the East Carolina Teachers college of Greenville, N. C., arrived in this city today by auto.

The party making up a motorcade of more than a dozen cars is in charge of Professor M. Hicks of Waterville, Me. From here they will proceed to Toronto, Kingston and Niagara Falls.

ATTEMPTS TO MURDER HIS WIFE AND CHILD

Sylva, June 22.—(AP)—Charles B. Hensley, 23-year-old mill worker, was held in the county jail here today on charges of setting fire to his home and attempting to kill his wife, young child and brother-in-law, Hubert Massey.

Officers quoted Massey as saying he was asleep in the house when he was hit over the head with a heavy instrument. Regaining consciousness, he found the house afire. He called to Hensley, he said, but when he received no answer, he went and awakened Mrs. Hensley.

After removing the household goods, Massey said, he started to go for officers, but before he left Hensley climbed in the automobile and cut him about the neck and head. Mrs. Hensley came to the car, he said, and Hensley then slashed her and their four-year-old son in the same manner.

They are expected to recover.

ARRIVES FOR DANCE SERIOUSLY WOUNDED

Rocky Mount, June 22.—A shooting affair late Wednesday night near Langley's Cross Roads resulted in placing Thomas Langley, 19, of the section, in a local hospital with pistol wounds through his lungs and his arm, and James Taylor, 18, also of that part of the county, in Nashville jail. Taylor is held without bond pending developments, sheriff's officers revealed.

Young Langley is given rather slender chances for recovery, officers who arrived at Taylor said, while the hospital report stated "he is holding his own."

Deputy Sheriff J. R. Tanner, who with Nash Deputy P. H. Johnson and Nash Constable Mark McLean arrested Taylor Wednesday night after the shooting.

Seven married couples received degrees this spring at the University of Oklahoma.

Members of all congregations and the public generally have been given a cordial invitation to be present each Sunday evening and help make the services a great success.

cision. It is almost like a gold rush to the Klondike.

They toil laboriously to discover weaknesses in the new laws. They read from morning till night to dig up precedents against the new NRA, the AAA, the pending measures before Congress and several old-established agencies. If they find any they will seek some affected individual or corporation and point out how he can recoup by hiring them. In such instances the best advice is: "See your lawyer."

REVOKED: On the advice of a subordinate Postmaster General Farley recently discontinued a post office in an Indiana town consisting of thirty-five homes, a general store and barber shop. It meant only the scratching of a pen signature to the P. G.

Next day the P. G. got a letter from a former resident of the Indiana town. It told what the post office meant to the natives. It told how the writer's "Aunt Emma" lived only for the hour when she could go for the mail and gossip with her cronies. It explained that the barber shop was open only one day a week, leaving the Post Office as the only place where informal town meetings and political debates could be staged. The letter told about the humble comings and goings in a little town in which a tiny post office was a fountain of memory, conversation and adventure.

Jim may be a hard-boiled Tammany leader. But he immediately revoked the order discontinuing that forgotten post office in an Indiana town.

FAVORITES: The ouster of Ewing Y. Mitchell as Assistant Secretary of Commerce emphasizes the quiet efforts which the administration is making to warm up to old-line Democratic machines. No matter how popular the President may be next year he will need the party mechanics.

Mitchell was anathema to Tom Pendergast, who controls Missouri as Mussolini does Italy. In Ohio Harry Hopkins composed his differences with Gov. Davey. In Indiana the patronage givers try to steer a safe course between Gov. Paul McCurt and Senator Fred Van Nuys. In Pennsylvania "Joe" Guffey gets everything he asks for. "Jimmie" Roosevelt, who lorded it over the mechanics in Massachusetts, has been moved to Hyde Park to look after the cows and pigs. And so on in political baronies where the old-fashioned nobility still holds the castles—and the pawns.

As 1936 approaches the practical politicians become favorites. They know where votes grow. The "brain trusters" think votes come in doctors' bags—or under rose bushes.

ENTENTE: Informed American diplomats are secretly amused at Stanley Baldwin's announcement that cultivation of Anglo-American friendship will be the keystone of his foreign policy. They think that John Bull is simply making the best of a couple of bad situations.

To understand this latest move—or move—you must realize that England's foreign interests (not her foreign policy) hinge upon three things. They are (1) A system under which no single power shall dominate continental Europe; (2) Open sea lanes through the Mediterranean to the East; (3) An appearance of amity with the United States which she can capitalize in her dealings with other nations.

Today France dominates Europe; Mussolini stands astride the Mediterranean; and if he grabs off Abyssinia he may have above the Suez Canal. So Mr. Baldwin's desire for a closer entente is quite understandable—to Secretary Hull.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Laurie Moore was made a widow when her husband was lost trying to fly the Pacific. Mark Albery, owner of an airplane factory, is interested in Laurie, and Laurie admires him. Now she is returning to London from Liverpool, where she has gone to see her sister. She has been saved from falling out of the train by a girl friend, whom she is trying to thank.

Chapter Three THE TRAVELER

"DON'T bother with thanks," the stranger returned. "I didn't know there was a girl left who would admit that she didn't do everything properly."

Another slap in the face. What an odious man!

She could not help looking at him, as he sat in his corner, reading. He held the paper in a curious way, far from his eyes. So she could see his face.

It was an unusual face, cast in a rough mould, though lean. The brow square and rugged; the nose bold, with a slight upward tilt; the mouth long, firm, angry-looking.

But his eyes gave her a little shock when, accidentally, she caught his direct gaze. They were the strangest going to pieces. Women running the country—women in Parliament, swimming the Channel, winning the King's Cup, racing at Brooklands!

Really, he was impossible! Laurie gave him a sarcastic look, and laughed coldly.

"You don't seem to like women," he said, and meeting her blue eyes, his own strange pale ones lit up with an unexpected smile. "Dare say they're all right in their place, but not running the country and setting the pace."

That smile gave Laurie another shock. It was only in his eyes, not on his lips, and just as if a bright light had been lit behind them. It was smug, challenging, but it was human, which, up till then, he had not seemed to be.

"You prefer living abroad?" she asked rather stiffly.

"I've had no choice lately. No, I don't prefer it. I think the whole world's a pretty rotten place."

"You seem to have a grudge against all the world," remarked Laurie, ruffled, although she did not realize it, by the fact that he did not take the slightest interest in herself.

"I guess I have," he replied curtly. "You see, I've only just lately

"Have you been away from England long?" she asked.

eyes she had ever seen. Light, clear eyes, grey, startling in his deeply tanned face. Steel grey she thought at first, but when he looked up they seemed almost white, like snow with a shadow on it.

His hair was dark brown, growing squarely back from his forehead, and was rather untidy.

His face went with his manner, Laurie thought. A pity he was such a boor. It might be quite a nice face. Especially when his eyes were bent down on his paper, and his thick dark lashes shadowed the high cheek bones, it looked as if it might be a very nice face. But he evidently had a horrid disposition.

Presently he put down his newspaper and got up.

"I'm going to have some tea," he said. "Would you like some?"

"No, thank you," answered Laurie, on her dignity.

"But don't you want any? You were trying to buy a tea basket!"

"I know. But I don't want any now." She emphasized the last word.

"All right!" He slipped off his overcoat, and went out.

He was tall. His figure expressed abstract qualities, as his face did. His mouth was sunny. His broad shoulders were impatient. His clothes were very shabby and looked foreign. She supposed he was a traveller from abroad.

SEVERAL people passed going to the dining car. Laurie was dying for a cup of tea. But pride forbade it. The man had asked her and she had refused.

She could not help getting up and looking at his suit-case. But there was no name on them, not even a label with his destination.

He came back.

"Tastes good, one's first cup of English tea!" he said in the same abrupt, impersonal way. "About the only thing that hasn't changed in the old country, I expect."

Laurie resented his manner so much that she tried to prevent herself from answering. But her interest was too strong.

"Have you been away from England long?" she asked.

"Ages since I was home. It was bad enough last time. Everything of keeping faith—not really expecting it to get anywhere. Bills sponsored by freshmen Senators ordinarily die young and there was no reason to anticipate an exception. The administration was at best benevolently neutral. Labor of course was for it. But Labor doesn't expect—and rarely gives—quick action on measures it supports.

Then the idea of limiting production by purchasing marginal coal lands was introduced and that intrigued the operators. This put the bill at once in a class by itself. Legislative projects desired by both management and workers in a given industry are scarce as snakes' toes.

The operators were invited to recite a bunch of the measure in their own language without objection from the union.

But even with all interested parties in favor the bill's chances were none too great. There were too many items ahead of it on the Congressional calendar. It got added attention in March when a threatened coal strike was postponed until the understanding that Congress would take it up shortly, but still no action. Now it is suddenly thrust to the center of the stage. Partly this is due to skillful tactics by John L. Lewis—whose well-timed strike calls have stimulated public and Con-recovered my sight. I've been blind for—for a long time."

"Oh!" She melted instinctively. "I'm sorry. That must have been dreadful. But aren't you glad that you've got your sight back? I should think that would make you like the world."

"I'm an ungrateful devil, I suppose. I grudge the time when I couldn't see—the waste! You don't know what it's like to be helpless, all in the dark, not to be able to move, when you're used to an active life."

"Of course, it must have been awful for you," Laurie assented. It was as if an invisible wire were stretched between them, and on it a tiny tone had been struck that rang with an unknown but pleasant sound. "Are you quite cured?" she added gently.

"They say so. It was a kind of nervous trouble. But who knows? It may come back."

"You mustn't think so." There seemed to be nothing more to say. He took up his paper again, and Laurie, overcome by a sudden shyness in his presence, decided that, after all, she would go and have a cup of tea.

The train was rushing through the Northern suburbs. In a few minutes they would be in St. Pancras, and the great world of London would swallow them both up.

Laurie had lingered over her tea as long as possible. When she came back, her fellow traveller was in the corridor, smoking a cigaret that smelt very nice.

He stayed there for some time, and when he entered the carriage again, Laurie was gathering her things together.

"Funny, isn't it," he said in the same abrupt way, "when I was blind I didn't care about smoking a bit?"

"Yes, very strange," she agreed. She could not understand why, as he so obviously disapproved of his fellow creatures, and particularly of her sex, he should take the trouble to talk to her at all.

She looked up and found his eyes fixed on her with an intent, penetrating glance.

gracious attention. Still more important is the possibility that it will serve as a stepping-stone to a future substitute for NRA. Theoretically there's no opposition (except from the Mellon interests) but watch for a lively battle on Constitutional grounds. The New Deal would have its foot in industry's door again if the Guffey bill is enacted and stands up in court.

MINIMUM: One thing the Interstate Commerce Commission is supposed to do is to regulate rates so the railroads can earn a fair return on their investment. Yet it never has—and here's why.

The Commission has been very particular about rate increases but not nearly so fussy about cuts. Time after time a road has applied for permission to reduce its charges.

Naturally its contention that the lower rate would be fair and reasonable would be warmly sup-

SYNOPSIS: Laurie Moore, widowed when her husband disappeared while trying to fly the Pacific, works for Mark Albery, the London airplane manufacturer. Albery is interested in Laurie, and Laurie admires him. Now she is returning to London from Liverpool, where she has gone to see her sister. She has been saved from falling out of the train by a girl friend, whom she is trying to thank.

Chapter Four REX MOORE

"WE'RE nearly there," the stranger said. "Do you live in London?"

"Yes, I work in London," Laurie spoke defiantly, and her blue eyes were brilliant, as she looked at him.

They accused him of his uncouth rudeness, which seemed so deliberate to her. Her little straight nose was in the air. Her red-brown waves of hair shone richly under the lamps of the carriage, that were now lit. Her vital face took on one of its beautiful moments, framed in the high dark collar of sable-dyed fur on her black coat.

The man's eyes blazed back his own strange defiance.

"So you work?" he said. "Taking a man's job, I suppose, like the rest of you girls!"

Laurie gasped at this deliberate insult. She could not answer it at the moment. She was struck dumb.

The train slowed down and entered the station.

"I don't suppose we shall meet again," the man said casually. "So I'll say good-bye."

Laurie found her tongue.

"Good-bye!" Her voice trembled. "I think you are abominably rude and unfair. And I certainly hope we shall never meet again!"

She took up her suitcase and marched indignantly down to the other end of the corridor.

MARK ALBERY was alone in his library after dinner, just a week later.

When in London he occupied a spacious flat on the first floor of a building on the Chelsea Embankment. But the time when his presence was not actually needed in London, and he was not abroad, he spent in the country, in an old, roomy house not far from his factory in Cambridgeshire.

In spite of his sophistication and his eminently worldly tastes, he was happier in the country. He liked wide vistas and vast skiescapes. He was never tired of looking up at the sky, where the creations of his brain broke records and conquered distances, and were rapidly making of the world a much smaller place.

That was why he lived in Chelsea, where he could look out on the river and a stretch of sky. The slow movement of the Thames barges and lighters, compared with the speed of his red-winged birds that skimmed over them, that was the kind of sight that delighted his soul.

On this evening in late April there had been a lovely rose-pink sunset, and now filmy lilac veils were streaming across the sky in the West.

He could see the river from his big windows, with the lighted street lamps shedding a faint radiance, and the trees of Battersea Park opposite, like lake work, silhouetted against the sky.

But it was not of planes that he was thinking just then.

It was of young Mrs. Moore, whom he had seen only once since Easter, when she met him on the stairs of the office building and thanked him again for her holiday.

Miss Dixie was back at work. He was sorry for it. That girl with the blue eyes and the chestnut hair would stay in, his thoughts. He could not upset the accustomed routine of the office. He had no fault to find with Miss Dixie. But—still—

His butler came into the room.

"A gentleman is asking to see you, sir."

"What name?"

"He wouldn't give his name, sir."

"What is he like? Anybody you know?"

"No, sir. A tall young gentleman."

"Anything special about him, Dawson?"

"He looks as if he had had an illness, sir, and he has rather peculiar eyes." Dawson was used to these questions. His master was apt to be pestered by all sorts of people who wanted something.

"Go and ask him, please, why he won't give his name."

THE butler came back.

"The gentleman says he is quite willing to give his name, but he would rather give it to you, sir. And he says you know him."

"Rather cool," commented Albery. "But, all right, show him in, Dawson."

A tall thin youngish man, with a rugged face and rather startling pale grey eyes, walked into the room.

Albery stared at him for a few moments without recognition. Then a look came into his face as if he saw a ghost.

He started to his feet, exclaiming: "Moore! Rex Moore! It's Rex Moore, isn't it? You're alive!"

Contraalto and Tenor At College.

Those who have enjoyed the recitals by Ethel Wright and Tom Fuson, the contraalto and tenor, who have given several concerts here in past summers, will be glad to hear them again on Monday night at eight o'clock, when they will give a joint concert in the Austin Auditorium of the college.

These two artists are in real life Mr. and Mrs. Fuson and have had the best of opportunities to train themselves in that rare art of singing duets that not only bring two voices into harmony but that also have the two types of voices blending as one.

Their programs will be made up of selections that are best suited to their voices and to duet singing, and they are chosen from the sources that give an attractive program made up of music from the old masters, grand opera, light opera, contemporary composers and folk melodies.

Miss Shindler, who is teaching public school music in the college during the summer school, will play the accompaniments.

DRAG RIVER FOR YOUTHS' BODIES

Kinston, June 22.—Neuse River, a mile from the Caswell Training School was dragged yesterday for the bodies of Will Pleasants, 18, and George Harrington, 13, missing inmates of the State institution for mental defectives. They disappeared Thursday afternoon.

Today officials concluded, after their clothes had been found on the bank of the river, that they drowned while bathing. It was learned Pleasants, Harrington and two other youths left a bean field in which they were working and went to the river. Inmates, officials said, are repeatedly warned not to go to the river.

LIGHT WORK FOR GOVERNOR

Both Ehringhaus and Waynick Face Light Tasks While on Vacation

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, June 22.—Senator John Tilden Burrus, according to information reaching Raleigh, is going to announce for the governorship "on or about July."

The Senator can confound the gossips a great deal, but there is an impression that he won't. About that time, as the almanacs say, too, for the publication of Willie Lee Lumpkin's candidacy for lieutenant governor. There will be a perfect team of anti-sales taxers, though it is not the least certain that Dr. Burrus will be the only governorship candidate who will smite that tax.

The Burrus candidacy naturally will be anti-administration and the assault on Clyde Hoye will take somewhat the form of an attack on the Gardner administration, a four years rule, which despite its straits seems to abide. None of that governing ever has been repealed and recently the virtual completion of University consolidation served to emphasize the caliber of the Gardner doings. Under him the state got all the county roads united into a state system and the schools were taken over entirely by the state. The greatest of his achievements may turn upon the University consolidation.

Then, he defeated the sales tax in 1931, helping Dr. Burrus to do a very difficult job. If the fight upon Mr. Hoye should draw Mr. Gardner into the race it is not conceivable that it would utterly wreck the Shelby lawyer's plans.

Dr. Burrus has not announced; but he has said definitely that if Mr. Hoye runs Dr. Burrus also will. And with the sales tax as an issue nobody but a blind man will pretend that Senator Burrus will not get a lot of votes. Every day in every way the governorship race gets to be more and more interesting.

Madame Lupescu Leaves Bucharest

Vienna.—(AP)—Magda Lupescu, King Carol's ginger-haired confidante and frequent companion, has "disappeared."

Confidential information reaching diplomatic circles in Vienna reports that "Bibi" as the romantic king calls his Jewish friend, is no longer seen shopping along the fashionable boulevards of gay Bucharest, accompanied by one of the King's aide-de-camps in civilian clothes. And King Carol, who previously made regular visits to this most talked of woman in the Balkans, is no longer seen making his way clandestinely to her palatial home in the fashionable Chaux section of the capital, tucked away in the back seat of a ramshackle automobile, effectively disguised in nondescript civilian attire, with his hat pulled down over his eyes to defeat detection.

Some say Madame Lupescu, described by many as the most powerful feminine figure in the Near East since the days of Cleopatra, has sold her magnificent home in the Rumanian capital. It is said she

KATRINA McCORMICK WEDS

The national capital temporarily forgot the New Deal, Huey Long, congress and the like when Katrina McCormick, grand daughter of the late Mark Hanna, was married to Courtlandt Dixon Barnes, Jr., of New York. The bride, whose family long has been in the political and social spotlight of the nation, is shown with her husband just after the wedding in the National cathedral at Washington. decided, in agreement with the King, to keep entirely out of the public spotlight and to live permanently in Sinaia, 75 miles north of Bucharest, the summer home of the Rumanian royal family. She wishes in this way, it is said, to save the King the embarrassment she has caused him in the past by living in the capital.

Others deny that Madame Lupescu has sold her house, explaining that her non-appearance in public is due to her desire to avoid publicity and to spare her royal lover undue publicity. They say that Carol recently installed in Magda's home in Bucharest one of three magnificent radio-phonographs which the King purchased from a manufacturer of super radio sets in Indiana, at a cost of $1,400 each. The Rumanian sovereign also provided his devoted friend with a superb grand piano. In order to relieve the tedium of Magda's isolated life in her self-imposed isolation in the capital.

Those who recently visited Madame Lupescu at her home in Bucharest describe the house as fit for the Queen if Sheba. The walls are covered with priceless Boebis tapestries and masterpieces of painting, while the floors are laid with superb Oriental rugs of the "museum-piece" order, and the mantelpieces and tables bristle with bronze and marble works of art. Princess Helen, the rightful Queen of Rumania and King Carol's divorced wife, never had such an elaborate palace during all the years she was in Bucharest.

In order that "Bibi" may not be too lonely when Carol is away, the King has assigned to his Jewish mistress, as a protector and companion, one of his aides.

By QUINTON JAMES

In honor of Jules Paul Benjamin Delessert, founder of the first savings bank in France, the French government has issued a 75-centime engraved stamp in dull green on the occasion of the annual International Savings Bank congress held in Paris.

Baron Delessert is represented holding a piece of parchment on one hand, a quill pen in the other. Across the bottom runs the inscription, "Benjamin Delessert, 1773-1847 Fondateur des Caisses d'Epargne."

When the revolution broke out, Delessert, who was born in Lyons, was traveling in England. He rushed home to join the Paris National Guard—that was in 1790—and became an officer in 1793. His father, Etienne Delessert (1735-1816), bought him out of the army two years later to manage his bank.

Besides his fame as a banker, Benjamin Delessert was known as the founder of the first cotton factory at Passy in 1801, and of a sugar factory in 1802, for which he was created a baron of the empire. He sat in the chamber of deputies many years, frequently backing humane measures.

Czechoslovakian Hero General Rostislav Milan Stefanik, the Slovak astronomer who served as an aviator in the French army during the world war, is depicted in French uniform on a new 50-halere dull green stamp from Czechoslovakia.

With Masaryk and Benes, Stefanik helped achieve Czechoslovakia independence. He was killed in a plane crash in 1919 near his native village of Koscarisky.

Also from Praha hail a set of two commemoratives, honoring Czech soldiers who fell in the world war. Denominations: 1 korona, rose; 2 korona, blue. Picture: the Czechoslovakian war memorial at Arras, France. Inscription: "1915-1935 Arras."

Liechtenstein Eagles

Augmenting the latest airmail set of Liechtenstein, which started with the issuance of a 50-rappen emergency stamp about two months ago, are four attractive new stamps from the central European principality. The new quartet consists of: 10-rappen, violet; 15-rappen, red-orange; 20-rappen, carmine; and 30-rappen, dark blue. Each of these stamps bears a different picture of one or fore eagles—mostly in flight.

Senator Expected to Announce Candidacy For Governor On or About July

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 22.—For light reading Governor Ehringhaus has taken the record in the Lake Lea case to Mount Mitchell conservation camp, and for light road work as prize fighters call it, Chairman Capus M. Waynick of the state highway and public works commission, has set sundry hearings in the mountains.

Both left yesterday afternoon in the governor's chariot. Mrs. Ehringhaus and Mrs. Waynick accompanied them. The party will be gone a week and maybe more. Rest is the primary purpose of the trip, but reading the Lea record, will not allow Governor Ehringhaus much time for loafing. Mr. Waynick would have to make some of those trips in time. He will go to Morganton first and pick up some loose road ends that he had while he was in Raleigh.

Neither official has had any rest since the year began. Both had the legislature on their hands. Mr. Waynick went into the full chairmanship at the beginning of the year. He found the legislature just as tough as the road people. Both farmed well at the state's hands, but the work laid on them has slowed them up.

While he is away Governor Ehringhaus is expected to reach some conclusion as to the force of the Lea sentence, newly turned up, on which the Tennessee prisoner now, in North Carolina, hopes for a pardon. The testimony laid first before Parole Commissioner Edwin M. Gill, has been read by him and he will make recommendations as to the treatment of the evidence, some of which admitted was not available at the Buncombe trial of the defendant. Mr. Gill has not intimated what he thinks of that discovery.

Although arson is a capital offense in North Carolina, the state has never executed any one for that crime.

LOCALS TAKE CLOSE TILT FROM S. HILL

Greenville defeated Snow Hill 6-5 yesterday by taking advantage of the visitors' miscues. Snow Hill out-hit the locals 13 to 10.

Great fielding of Ambler, Greenie second sacker, featured the contest. He accepted seven chances, several of them very difficult, in tip-top fashion.

The locals scored in the third—on hits by Bostic and Ambler, a sacrifice by Hushkamp, and Wagner's infield out. Snow Hill matched it in the fourth when Williams walked, Griffin singled, and Crump grounded out. The Greenies put on a three-run party in the fifth, and then added one in the sixth when Bostic's slash through the box went through Snow Hill centerfielder's legs and the speedy Runt circled the bases.

The winning run came in the seventh on a walk to Wagner, singles by Johnson and Farley, and an error. Briggs, who started on the hill for Snow Hill, was yanked in the seventh after yielding five runs and eight hits.

Snow Hill counted twice in the seventh when an error was mixed with hits by Parrish, Perry, and The visitors started a rally in the ninth, and Chubby Dean succeeded Barley on the mound. The visitors made five hits in the ninth, three of them off Barley, to count for two runs.

Score: R H E
Snow Hill 100 100 202-5 13 7
Greenville 101 031 105-6 10 1
Briggs, Harrington and Parrish, Barley, Dean and Wagner.

MARTINS TO PLAY LOCALS HERE SUNDAY

Williamston, the team that defeated Greenville twice this week, will appear here tomorrow to make up for the game rained out here on Wednesday and a royal battle is expected as the local club seeks revenge for the double-header licking Thursday.

Although only one of the games lost to the Martins counted in the standing of clubs, the local club was still chafing under the memory of the loss of the first game at Williamston and the second game, an exhibition affair, at Rocky Mount.

With the Martins only a short distance away in the standing of clubs, the locals will throw their strength in the field in the hope of showing them further down the ladder, while the Martins will do their utmost to add to the string of victories chalked up this week.

Last Sunday saw the first scheduled game played here during the largest attendance of the season, and barring unfavorable weather conditions tomorrow will see a crowd as large, if not larger. The game has been called for 3:30.

AYDEN BEATS GOLDBORO

Goldboro, June 22.—Ayden broke a 3-1 tie by scoring two runs in the seventh—on two walks, a stolen base, and Knowles' double—to defeat Goldboro 4-2 yesterday and take full possession of the Coastal Plain League lead.

Doz Smith's boys gained their sole occupancy of the top when New Bern lost to Tarboro. The defeat dropped New Bern to third place, behind Greenville. The Greenies and Ayden are in a virtual tie for the lead—even in games, but with Ayden holding an advantage of 35 in percentage.

Knowles, with three for three, paced Ayden's attack. Turbeville made a pair of hits.

Goldboro's runs, in the fourth, came on a pass, Roy's double and Herring's single.

Score: R H E
Ayden 100 000 200-4 9 1
Goldboro 100 000 200-2 6 1
Turbeville and Suttentiff; Herring and Roy.

TOM MORRIS HURLS WIN

Kinston, June 22.—Tom Morris, right-hander with a perpetual smile, held the Eagles to five hits today while Williamston batters were making 15—and the result was a 9-2 triumph for the visiting Martins.

The teams were tied for fourth place prior to today's game.

The Martins batted around in the first inning to score five runs. Doubles by Jimmy Marable and Henry Gaylord, a couple of walks, and singles by Herbert Leary, Bradley, Slagle and Morris produced the runs.

Kinston scored in the first on singles by Joe Greenberg and Charlie Keller, with a walk in between. Greenberg hit for the circuit in the third.

A sensational catch by Slagle was the best fielding bit of the season here. It turned an apparent double into a putout.

Score: R H E
Williamston 510 000 021-9 15 2
Kinston 101 000 000-2 6 3

TARBORO WHIPS BEARS

Tarboro, June 22.—Tarboro's eighth place club gained its third win of league play and its second over New Bern by clouting a 9-4 decision against the Bears yesterday. The result dropped New Bern from a tie for the lead to third place.

The Bears counted in the third to take a 1-0 lead, but Tarboro scored three in the fourth. Successive singles by Knobe, McArthur, and Charchees resulted in two runs as Charchees' hit was error by Webb. McArthur's fly scored Charchees. Short doubled, and this sent Lighter, New Bern's starter, to the showers in favor of Andreoli. Rhymer grounded out, after Chumbriss had walked, Bassin popped out.

New Bern went ahead with a three-run fifth-inning. Doubles by Farmer and E. Ferebee, a safe bunt, and Norwood's triple scored the runs.

Score: R H E
New Bern 101 000 000-4 7 4
Tarboro 100 030 005-9 13 2

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 22.—(AP)—The stock market continued to push forward in today's brief session and many new highs for the year were reported. Week-end realizing in the first hour was overcome with little difficulty and bullish activity later broadened.

The close was firm. Transfers approximated 600,000 shares.

Optimism apparently ruled in the board rooms and profit taking was not urgent at any time. Strength was displayed by a few specialties but the general gains ranged from fractions to around a point. Washington developments on the whole did not seem to disturb the sentiment. Grains were unresponsive with the major cereals, sagging on improved crop weather reports. Cotton was steady. Foreign exchanges were narrow. Secondary bonds advanced.

Two Counties Vote on Liquor
Raleigh, June 22.—(AP)—Voters of Wilson county were reported as balloting briskly this afternoon while those in Edgecombe were voting slowly as the two counties held elections on the question of legalizing county liquor control systems.

At Wilson observers and the Daily Times said the vote would be heavy and it appeared the wets were leading about four to one about the middle of the forenoon when it was estimated that about 4,000 or 5,000 votes would be cast.

At Tarboro interested persons and the Daily Southern figured the wets were also ahead but considered the voting rather slow. As all balloting was secret the estimates had to be nothing but guesses.

The election in Wilson and Edgecombe counties were the first of the 18 authorized by the 1935 legislature.

Meanwhile drys in a number of other counties were seeking to have the courts restrain other elections on the grounds that the law under which they were authorized was unconstitutional. The Wilson and Edgecombe elections were not contested in the court.

A hearing on a temporary injunction to block the Franklin county referendum June 29 was held in Raleigh yesterday before Judge Clawson Williams who reserved his decision.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle also had under advisement the question of the constitutionality of the extract whereby New Hanover county seeks to hold a referendum July 2.

He indicated he would render his decision at an early date.

Today Judge Frizzelle was at Snow Hill to hear proceedings to block the Greene county election set for July 29.

John G. Langston of Goldsboro, and K. A. Pittman of Snow Hill, presented the case for the dry forces and W. G. Sheppard of Snow Hill, appeared against them.

Judge Frizzelle declined to hear lengthy arguments and said the same issues were involved as in the New Hanover case which he is already studying.

At Roanoke Rapids yesterday, Judge R. Hunt Parker issued an order temporarily restraining Halifax county from holding a liquor referendum. The order is returnable before Judge W. A. Devin June 27.

Pushes Passage of Tax Program

Washington, June 22.—(AP)—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader said today he felt President Roosevelt's tax recommendations should be disposed of at this session of congress even though it meant a prolonged session.

Negro Lynched

Wiggins, Miss., June 22.—(AP)—A 25-year-old negro identified by officers as R. D. McGee accused of attempting to attack the 11-year-old white girl two miles east of Wiggins was lynched by a mob estimated at between 200 and 400.

The alleged attack on the white girl occurred yesterday afternoon and a posse of citizens which developed into an infuriated mob in Stone county seized the negro from his bed last night at his home near Wiggins and carried him into the woods.

There McGee was hidden away from the officers it was declared, and was identified by the girl and also a negro girl who said she had seen him "hanging around."

The girl was reported attacked while out picking blackberries in a pasture near her home. She bore bruises on her face and her neck as evidence of the attack.

The mob handed the negro from a wooden tree this morning between 8 and 9 o'clock and riddled his body with bullets from shotguns and pistols. They left the body hanging from the tree and dispersed.

Lionie S. Jones of Richmond, Va., possesses a copy of the Maryland Journal, printed in 1773, which contains an advertisement by George Washington, offering to lease his lands in Ohio.

Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky recently pardoned 278 state convicts in a body conditional upon their future good behavior.

ED WYNN'S SON MAKES DEBUT

Another member of a famous stage family became a full-fledged actor at Showhegan, Me., when Keenan Wynn, son of Comedian Ed Wynn and grandson of Frank Keenan, veteran of the footlights, made his debut in the play, "Accent of Youth." Young Wynn is shown in front of the Showhegan theater with Will Rogers' daughter Mary, who also had a role in the show. (Associated Press Photo)

(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The important question about the Springfield Republican conference, from the viewpoint of the practical politicians, is whether it helped toward consolidation of "conservative" sentiment in opposition to the re-election of Mr. Roosevelt.

That such a consolidation is highly to be desired by the opposition is recognized generally now by anti-Roosevelt leaders. Almost without exception they voice conviction that the President can be defeated next year if all those who distrust his experiments, and believe his policies depart from sound American principles can be induced to vote together for one opposing candidate.

Whether that estimate of the situation is correct or not, it is the actuating factor behind the present maneuverings in the opposition camps.

The thought of the leaders is that a preponderance of public sentiment hardly can be mustered to the left of Mr. Roosevelt, and that to oppose him with a middle-ground candidate, looking both to the left and to the right, would be suicidal. They see their hope on the right.

Their problem is to find a means of attracting "conservative" republicans and "conservative" democrats to a single opposition ticket; and none denies that it is a serious problem, indeed.

No Abandonment of G. O. P.

The meeting at Springfield gave ample evidence of the desire for union which burns in the breasts of so many republicans.

Parts of the conference declaration of principles read like a defense of the democratic party against its present leader. The democratic platform of 1932 was quoted from liberally, in a scarcely-concealed effort to show that Mr. Roosevelt had bolted his party organization. At Smith was applauded, and the conference spellbinders spoke sweetly of other outstanding democrats who have refused to go along with the "new deal."

The flirtation even reached a stage where one or two speakers openly invited dissatisfied democrats to come over, and hinted that substantial rewards—such as second place on the ticket—might be expected.

On one point, however, there was not the slightest sign of a concession. There was to be no thought of abandoning the republican label, which most of the dissenting democrats detest so heartily. On the contrary, the G. O. P. was to be given a re-birth, and reestablished in greater grandeur and glory than ever.

That is precisely the point at which the big difficulty comes in.

A 'Summer Flirtation'

Insofar as the conference rekindled enthusiasm for perpetuation of the republican party, it disappointed the hopes of those who want to accomplish a union by founding an entirely new "coalition" party.

Indeed, there is a question whether the events at Springfield may not have made a "coalition" party impossible; although the leaders of the American liberty league—most of them democrats—did not appear to think coalition dead when they assembled at Chicago a few days after the Springfield conference adjourned.

Springfield was, after all, primarily a sounding-board, much remains to be said before the fate of a right-wing union, under one label or another, is determined. The efforts to effect such a union undoubtedly will continue along the various lines; and the question will be whether these various endeavors will or will not kill each other off in the end.

Thus far all that it amounts to is a summer flirtation. Sometimes that leads to wedding bells. Sometimes it does not.

RANDOLPH PLANTER KILLED ON HIGHWAY

Asheboro, June 22.—(AP)—Doris Williams, 65, farmer, was struck by an automobile and fatally injured yesterday while walking along Highway No. 7 near Urah, five miles south of here.

Mrs. Pearl Brown of Asheboro, driver of the car, said Williams an da companion were walking together and as she started to pass them after blowing her horn Williams stepped in o the path of the car.
