Britain Told Italy Plans To Push War On Ethiopians

EDEN FAILS IN TALK WITH MUSSOLINI

British Peace Envoy Informed II Duce Is Determined To Carry War Into East Africa; Eden to Make Full Report of Peace Efforts to Cabinet Today

London, June 28.—(AP)—On this 21st anniversary of the assassination of Archduke Franz Ferdinand at Sarajevo—the shot which precipitated the world war—Britain suffered a setback in her role as peace-maker.

Her traveling salesman of peace, Captain Anthony Eden, was back from his continental tour today bearing a report on the avowed intention of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy to war against Ethiopia in East Africa.

Before reporting to the cabinet meeting, the only comment of the young secretary for the League of Nations affairs concerning the future security negotiations was "It is on the knees of the gods."

With the Italian-Ethiopian crisis relegating other questions of security to the background, the British diplomat discussed other prospective moves on the question of world peace.

These were for an eastern European pact, a Danubian act treaty and Locarno air and land disarmament.

Concerning his attempt to dissuade II Duce from an African campaign, it was understood that Captain Eden would tell his colleagues: Mussolini stood adamant against any other solution of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute than conquest of the East African empire.

Any attempt at Geneva to interfere with that plan would lead to a prompt withdrawal by Italy from the League of Nations.

Three Counties To Vote On Whiskey Tomorrow

Raleigh, June 28.—(AP)—With two North Carolina counties having already voted ten to one for liquor stores, three more—Vance, Warren and Beaufort—will vote tomorrow, the date having failed to forestall the elections in the courts.

Taking an opposite view from the two other recent decisions on the county control act passed by the 1935 legislature, Judge W. A. Devin at Henderson yesterday refused to grant injunctions restraining elections in Vance, Warren and Halifax.

Halifax does not vote until a week from tomorrow.

Soon after Judge Devin had made known his decision Judge Walter L. Small of Elizabeth City, made permanent his injunction restraining the dries of Beaufort county from interfering with an election there which is scheduled for tomorrow.

Another county, Franklin, was also to vote tomorrow but earlier in the week Judge Clawson Williams granted a permanent injunction restraining it from voting, holding the liquor act unconstitutional on the ground it was a revenue measure and was not passed on three separate days as required, and that it granted special privileges to some counties.

Judge Devin, on the other hand, ruled in his decision that the liquor control act did not confer special or exclusive privileges in violation of the constitution and asserted the act did not impose any tax or necessarily pledge the faith of the county for the payment of any debt.

He dismissed a restraining order of Halifax county dries obtained from Judge R. Hunt Parker last week and refused to grant temporary injunctions for Vance and Warren counties sought by the dry forces.

Wilson and Edgecombe counties where the dries did not oppose the elections in the court, voted 10 to 1 for liquor stores last week and plans were under way to open the dispensaries in a few days.

WORLD MONEY QUESTION TO BE DISCUSSED

South American Banker to Come to America to Talk on Stabilization Issue

London, June 28.—(AP)—The stabilization of the world currencies on a gold basis will be discussed with United States government leaders and bankers by Johannes Postmus, the governor of the South American Reserve bank who reported from London today to be hurrying toward the United States and Canada.

In London he had several long talks with Montague Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and will present both his own and Norman's views to the Americans.

It is understood they are mainly interested in obtaining more detailed information regarding motives underlying the recent statement of Secretaries Hull and Morgenthau of the United States regarding stabilization.

REVENUE LOSS NOT EXPECTED IN BILL ERROR

Maxwell Believes Previous Acts Will Take Care of Missing Clause in Bill

Raleigh, June 28.—There was no "million dollar error" made by the general assembly in the enactment of the 1935 revenue bill, as intimated in a news story in the Raleigh News and Observer here Thursday morning and the state will not lose a dime, despite the fact that one clause in the Appropriations Act was left out when it was enrolled.

Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell said today in a special statement replying to the article. He pointed out that what at first glance might appear to be serious mistakes or discrepancies in the revenue and appropriations acts were either corrected by amendatory bills passed later to cure these defects or by other laws already in effect and which were not repealed.

The News & Observer story intimated that the Revenue Department started collecting the 3 per cent sales tax on meals ten days before the law actually went into effect, also that the department was in danger of losing about $200,000 a year in appropriations for the operation of the sales tax division of the department as a result of the failure of the enrolling office to copy a section of the bill as it was passed.

"The statement in the morning press raising a question as to the validity of the new Schedule B taxes effective June 1 has some basis of plausibility but is wholly erroneous in the conclusion that there is any question of the validity of these taxes beginning June 1," Commissioner Maxwell said. He then quoted from the laws as actually passed showing that other sections made them amply effective and that all of the license taxes imposed under Schedule B, including the sales tax on meals in cafes and restaurants. He also said that no question concerning the validity of the gasoline filling station tax had been raised by the oil companies and that the only issue involved with them was concerning the interpretation of the law.

Commissioner Maxwell did agree that the section of the appropriations bill which set aside 2 per cent of the collections from the sales tax to cover the expense of collection and administration, was omitted in the enrolling office, but pointed out that this section of the 1933 law has never been repealed, so was still in effect, thus taking care of this error.

Nuisance Taxes Extended. Washington, June 28.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the resolution extending the $500,000,000 in "nuisance taxes" for a two year period. Otherwise these would have expired on Sunday night.

They impose principally excise taxes on commodities, such as gasoline, furs, chewing gum, automobiles other than trucks, cars and foods and refrigerators. It also includes continuance of the three cents postage and taxes on telegrams and securities transfers.

President Roosevelt also signed a resolution extending for two months the present temporary deposit insurance system.

Meanwhile congressional leaders sought to meet President Roosevelt's wishes on legislation abolishing unnecessary utilities holding companies and to bar suits growing out of dollar devaluation.

As the Senate took a week-end recess the House debated the Wheeler-Rayburn utility holding regulation bill. A high administration spokesman expressed confidence the President would win in his efforts to make the elimination of unnecessary holding companies mandatory instead of discretionary.

Chairman Steagall of the House banking committee, following President Roosevelt's message of yesterday introduced a bill withdrawing the rights of owners of gold clause government securities to claim damages in court following dollar devaluation.

The administration bill centering control over currency and credit in the Federal Reserve Board was approved by a Senate banking subcommittee and will be reported to the full committee.

Seek to Maintain NRA Principles. Washington, June 28.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor today proposed to President Roosevelt a federal licensing of industry to maintain principles of the former NRA.

The President preserved any decision whether to seek new and permanent NRA legislation at this session of congress.

Under the American Federation of Labor the government through licensing power would require business in interstate commerce to abolish child labor, maintain minimum wages and maximum hours of work and respect the "fair trade practices."

The substitute for the dead NRA code structure was presented by William Green, president of the federation, and George Berry, assistant administrator of NRA.

"We expressed the belief," said Green later, "that the industry of the country requires new NRA legislation at this session in the name of responsibility."

ALDERMEN TO MEET TONIGHT

Special Meeting to Be Held at 8 O'clock to Wind up Business of Old Year

The Board of Aldermen had two special meetings on today in an effort to get everything lined up for the first meeting of the new year next Friday evening at eight o'clock.

The aldermen decided to meet tonight to wind up business of the old year in addition to discussing petitions for paving in the western section of the city.

Another meeting has been called for Monday noon to install Mayor R. C. Flanagan and six members of the board re-elected in the municipal election the first of the summer.

In view of the fact that the next regular meeting date falls on July 4, it was said today at the office of the city clerk that the meeting scheduled for next Thursday night would be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The first meeting of the new fiscal year will find the aldermen giving attention to a new budget. Budget-making is one of the most difficult tasks facing the aldermen in the course of a year, and while the head of each department was looking forward to having new funds made available for his department's use, the long hours involved in budget preparation didn't bring any smiles.

NO ARRESTS IN MONEY THEFT

Confidence Men Who Duped Woman of $57.50 Here Still Remain At Large

While three or four suspects have been killed, police reported today that no arrests had been made in connection with the taking of $57.50 from Martha Johnson, colored, by three colored confidence men here last week.

Chief of Police George Clark said they had hoped to be able to make considerable progress in their investigation through descriptions of the men furnished by the woman, but these turned out to be so vague as to be of little use to them.

Pretending he had found a $1,000 bill on the streets here one day last week, one of the negroes, described by the woman as a "large black" man, called the Johnson's woman attention to his find. In a liberal frame of mind he told the woman and the other two men he would divide the $1,000 among them if they would pay him $57.50 each as reward for his liberality.

Police said the woman told them she then went to the postoffice and withdrew the required amount of money and turned it over to the "large black man." He then promised to meet her later and divide the thousand dollars.

The woman went to the place indicated, waited and waited, and when the men did not appear it began to dawn upon her that she had been duped. The police were notified, an investigation started, but identities of the men continued to remain a mystery today.

GRAHAM FOR RUM CONTROL

Candidate For Governor Favors Liquor Revenue In Place of Sales Tax

Reflector Bureau.

Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE.

Raleigh, June 28.—Political circles are buzzing here today, including the Young Democrats from all sections of the state beginning their annual statewide convention, as a result of the statement issued today by Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham, one of the four candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor next spring, in which he announced he would advocate a state-wide liquor control law in the next general assembly and the earmarking of the revenue from the sale of liquor in state liquor stores as the essential, basic foods and from meals. Lieutenant Governor Graham said he would favor a State Alcohol control law which would permit every one of the 100 counties in the state to vote on whether or not they wanted liquor stores established before any would be set up.

"I feel that such a state-wide liquor control plan would be a forward step in bettering existing conditions and would not only be an improvement in controlling the evil-present liquor problem but also a move in the interest of real temperance," Lieutenant Governor Graham said. "General conditions are certainly not satisfactory at the present time and I strongly favor taking steps to remedy the situation."

"Of course, there will be substantial returns in revenue from a State Alcohol Control system and this added revenue should, in my opinion, be used for the removal of the sales tax now levied on foods and the bare necessities of life. I would also permit a substantial reduction in the present rate of tax for as I stated at first, I confidently believe that the increase in revenue from improved business conditions during the next few years will provide funds for more adequate support and maintenance of our school system, our state institutions and all other state functions than in many years and that the sales tax will not be as necessary as it has been the last few years."

In prefacing his statement in which he advocated a state liquor control law and the use of the revenue from the sale of liquor to remove the sales tax from the basic and essential foods, Lieutenant Governor Graham said:

"As the close of the state's fiscal year and the end of the present biennium draw near, matters of state taxation are called to the attention of everyone. The income of the state for this fiscal year shows a substantial increase over the previous one and there will also be a surplus in the general fund for the first time in years. This is an encouraging sign and points to better days ahead."

"It is my belief that business conditions will continue to improve during the next few years and that this fact will enable the fiscal status of the state to continue its improvement. Accordingly, at the next session of the based upon the principle of local option, so that the voters in every county may have the opportunity of expressing their views on this question and State liquor stores be set up only in those counties where a majority of the voters have expressed themselves as favoring this method of handling the sale of whiskey and liquors."

The new president was chosen by the Board of directors several weeks ago after the directors had been selected by the club as a whole.

In accepting the post, the highest in the power of the club to confer upon a member, Mr. Lee expressed his appreciation of the honor, and declared he would do everything in his power to measure up to the high standards set by the retiring club head.

He said he had always been intensely interested in the work of the organization, and hoped to inaugurate a program that would result in continued progress during the new year which begins with the forthcoming meeting next Monday evening.

Accepting the past-president's button from the hands of Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, a former president, Dr. ReBarker expressed his appreciation of the splendid spirit of co-operation which had marked his administration. He told the Rotarians it would have been a matter of physical impossibility to carry the work of the organization to a successful conclusion without the whole-hearted co-operation of the entire membership.

Mr. Fleischmann extolled the work of Dr. ReBarker, declaring his unselfish efforts and unremitting toil and sacrifice in behalf of the work of the organization had been an inspiration to the entire membership.

The directors were called upon to give the clubmen some idea of what they intended to accomplish this year, and each member spoke briefly of his ambition to continue the program that has given the club an outstanding position in Rotary International.

The new president has long been active in the club. He having held a number of important committee posts in recent years. He is an insurance man, being a member of the firm of H. A. White & Sons, one of the oldest agencies in this section of the state.

His election at a previous meeting was received with interest not only by members of the club here but by other parts of the state where he is well known because of his activities both in business and club fields.

NEW FIGHTING BREAKS OUT IN MO. MINE AREA

Striking Lead and Zinc Miners Attack Men Attempting to Return to Work

Joplin, June 28.—(AP)—Striking lead and zinc field miners reported armed with guns, clubs and rocks attacked other miners headed for work today, 24 hours after the last of the national guardsmen sent to the field a month ago were withdrawn.

Half a hundred workers who returned to their jobs when operators began reopening after the strike called by the International Union May 9 seeking recognition and better working conditions were reported congregated near the Kansas-Missouri line armed and ready to battle with the strikers.

Several workers were badly beaten, rocks were hurled, cars were overturned and wrecked and shots fired at cars which refused to stop.

The outbreak is believed to have been instigated by the announced intention to open the Galena, Kansas, smelter of the Eagle Pitcher Lead Co., today. Galena is near Joplin.

LEE INDUCTED AS ROTE HEAD

Other Officers Installed at Regular Meeting of Club Here Last Night

Installation of officers and brief talks by incoming and outgoing officials marked the regular weekly meeting of the Greenville Rotary club here this week.

Those installed were W. W. Lee, president; L. A. Stroud, vice-president and Claude Gaskins, secretary-treasurer. In addition, members of the new board of directors also took office.

The new slate will take over their duties at the regular meeting of the club next Monday evening.

Mr. Lee, prominent Greenville business man, succeeds Dr. Herbert ReBarker, member of the faculty of East Carolina Teachers College, who served for the customary term of one year.

The new president was chosen by the Board of directors several weeks ago after the directors had been selected by the club as a whole.

PINE BEETLES BUSY IN CITY

Numbers of Valuable Trees in Chatham Circle Destroyed By 'Borers'

Pine tree beetles, or "borers" have made their appearance in Greenville, and were reported today to have done considerable damage to valuable pines in Chatham Circle, residential district in the eastern part of the city.

Nine huge pines on the lawn of the Harris on Library street were cut down today as result of activities of the beetles the last several weeks and it was reported numbers of other trees in the same district had been severely affected and will be cut down immediately.

Informed of prevalence of the beetles today, E. F. Arnold, director of the Pitt County Farm Department, said the only way to halt the inroads of the insect was to cut down all affected trees.

Thousands of beetles attacked the trees on the Harris' lawn, boring deeply into the wood and sapping the trees to death.

A white powder left on the outside of each hole by the borer leaves a definite trace of his activity. Thousands of such holes may be seen on the trees which were being cut down on the Harris' lawn today.

After the borers have gone all way up the tree, foliage begins to die, giving the appearance of having been ravaged by fire or extremely dry weather.

Although numbers of other trees, which contribute mainly to the beauty of suburban Chatham Circle, have been attacked by the insects hope was expressed that some of them might be saved, especially those in the incipient stages of the beetle attack. However, it is likely scores of others will have to be destroyed before the inroads of the insect is halted.

MERCURY ON UPWARD MOVE

Reading of 96 Recorded Here Yesterday With Continued Hot Today

Today was one of the hottest of the year but not as hot as Tuesday, June 18, when the mercury soared to 92 to hand the city the hottest day of the year.

B. T. Clark, local weather observer, said this morning the temperature here yesterday was 96 and it was just as hot today, if not hotter, although no official reading was available to justify the belief.

The temperature yesterday was very oppressive in the early afternoon, but late in the day a strong breeze came up carrying relief to thousands of sun-baked citizens. The breeze developed into a mild gale last night and continued today greatly relieving the intensity of the heat for those able to sit in the shade and take life easy.

The hottest day last week didn't seem much hotter than yesterday but there was a difference as the instruments at the weather station showed.

However, the community is in for higher temperatures later on in the summer, if the record of the past is to be considered an index for what is to come.

sistance to the new tax administration. The heavy sales were petite and ability to buy.

JUMBLE: Secretary Morgenthau's reluctance to assume FACA's authority over the alcoholic industry is not a mere whim. He doesn't want to mix regulation and enforcement. It has never worked.

Regulatory officials usually establish friendly relations with their customers. Avoiding "crackdown" tactics, they explain what can and cannot be done under their rulings.
Sometimes they modify them or look the other way when common sense dictates. But enforcement agencies must stick to the letter of the law, no matter how silly they think it may be. They must turn the slightest violation over to the federal cops.

The ICC's relations with railroad officials have never been so comfortable as they were before ICC-er Joe Eastman became overlord of the lines. Department of Commerce experts lost many helpful business contacts and advisers when Hugh Johnson's NRA was attached to two functions is like yelling "rats" at a meeting of timid ladies.

BREAK-UP: Administration foes
—and friends—see many implications in President Roosevelt's taxation proposal which they overlooked at first. It impresses them now as the keystone—or capstone—of a far-reaching attack against concentration of social, financial, industrial and political power.

Besides breaking down large fortunes the program would place a premium on small corporations.
They would pay less taxes, for one thing. Should industry find it advantageous to break up into smaller financial and physical units many of Mr. Roosevelt's dreams would come true—dreams which seem in no way elated to the problems of taxation or of industrial size.

Labor, for instance, can deal more advantageously for itself—with a small industry than it can with a great corporation. Smaller units—and even larger ones—might seek lower costs for land and labor by emigrating to towns in the country.
That might boost the President's pet program for a class semi-rural and semi-industrial—Dr. Tugwell's ideal. And "horse-and-buggy" industrialists could not wield the political power which they enjoy now.

STUNG: Huey Long recently got a lesson in practical politics from a Democratic leader whom he has threatened to defeat next year. For once the "Kingfish" was speechless.
When the President submitted his message on new taxation the Louisiana Senator whooped. Meeting the leader in the Senate cloakroom he asked: "What do you think of it?"
The President's spokesman growled:
"I think it's crazy." So Mr. Long tried it out on another supposed White House representative. He also branded the idea as insane.

Huey then retired to frame his letter offering to surrender his presidential ambitions if the President proved that he was serious. He planned to rush in where the two leaders feared to tread. But when he returned to the Senate chamber the two Democrats were demanding immediate action on the White House proposals. They were beating their breasts on behalf of the "share the wealth" program. Huey said:
"Well, I'll be damned!"

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: By pretending that she was married to Rex Moore, the atman, Laurie Moore has got herself into a mess. Rex, supposed to be dead in the Pacific, has returned.
To hold his job with Mark Albery, plane manufacturer, he and Laurie must keep up the pretense. The world pretends that Rex and Laurie the wrong way consistently.

Chapter Nine WORSE TANGLE

Laurie had made a kind of a cult for Rex, as she had made for Mark Albery. In her hero-worshipping way. She had heard so much about him from Belle Mason, who adored him and would have been his wife, if she had lived.

So much that she had seemed to know him. His gaiety, his kindness.
His bursts of temper, that were over in a moment; his restlessness when he was bound to earth.

As she had told him a few minutes ago, when she thought of how she and Glad had been saved and had prospered because of him, because of her at first innocent masquerade, she had told herself that, if he knew, he would forgive her.
He wouldn't mind. But, then, of course, she had thought he was dead, and she had felt the dead would understand.

How he must have changed! She remembered that he had been blind, and her warm heart went out to him for a moment. And that he had probably saved her life the other day.

But why must he force her into this odious position? Surely, he could have found a way out! The logical part of her mind saw the justice of it. But his last words had stung her on the raw—"When the time comes to pay, you don't like it, and you squeal!"

He was a selfish brute and he despised her. And she hated him for coming back and upsetting her life.
She would pay and she wouldn't squeal. But she would punish him, all the same, for those insulting words.

In the morning Laurie could almost have thought the episode had been a dream. She had slept surprisingly soundly after the shock and stir of the encounter.

There was no word from Rex Moore. By the post only a scrawl from Gladys, saying that their tour was being shortened, and she would probably be back in London in the middle of May. A "rest" was indicated. She hoped to goodness it wouldn't be for long.

Laurie waited, feeling a fool, a few minutes beyond her time before she left for the office, which was within an easy walk. But nothing happened.

So she set forth and did her day's work as usual, following the routine with a kind of intelligently vague mind. Nobody said anything to her.
Evidently the news of Rex Moore's return had not filtered through from above.

Mark Albery did not send for her.
She had half expected that he would.

When she got home, Rex Moore met her on the pavement.

"I found out when you left the office," he said. "I've been with Albery nearly all day. Everything went off first-rate. May I come up with you, Mrs. Moore?"

HIS grim chuckle had the usual effect on her.

"I suppose so," she said coldly.

"Are you determined to go on rubbing it in?"

He did not answer until they were up in her sitting-room. Then he looked at her, smiling in his unexpected way, but without mockery.
Then she saw that his face could be nice. He wore a new grey flannel suit, and his hair had been cut and trimmed to conventional smoothness.

"No, I won't do that," he said casually. "Why not treat it like a joke, which it really is?"

"I don't see it in that light at all, Mr. Moore."

"I should try to do you mind if I smoke?" He did not sit down without being asked.

She stood facing him, and suddenly felt foolish. She pointed to a chair, and sat down herself, refusing a cigarette.

"So you went to work as usual today?" he asked abruptly.

"Of course."

"You intend to go on with it?"

"What do you mean?" She stared in amazement.

"Only that Albery asked me. I said I didn't know. Perhaps it would look better if you didn't."

ator Duncan Fletcher on the separate passage of Titles I and III of the bill and the omission of Title II—the disputed section which would centralize banking authority in the Federal Reserve Board. Mr.
Glass was completely confident of victory and so informed his New York contacts.

But at that point Senator Fletcher—administration wheedler—pleaded for a compromise "to save the face of the White House." He told Glass in effect that he could rewrite Title II to suit himself if only he wouldn't insist upon such a brutal and obvious rebuff to the President. He further agreed to give his official support to Glass' version of Title II and asked only that the differences from the original draft should be as inconspicuous as possible—so it would at least appear to the public that Mr. Roosevelt had Laurie's eyes blazed.

"Nothing would induce me to give up my work. I would rather tell the truth. You haven't any right to ask me to."

"I won't, then. Don't hit the ceiling! It's only that he is offering me a very decent salary, and it might seem queer."

"I don't care what it seems." She saw amusement in his face and at once controlled herself. She mustn't get excited. "They didn't know at the office that you had come back," she said.

"Albery is going to announce it tomorrow. He's been very decent; he's used his influence so that the papers won't make any fuss. I've agreed to give one interview only, and that'll be the end. I never would stand publicly. Well, Albery has solved our domestic problem. He's lending us a furnished flat quite near his own, and he's asked us to dinner tomorrow."

Laurie was speechless for a moment; then she stammered out:

"You don't mean we've got to live in the same house?"

—She looked so much like an abashed child that he could not help laughing.

"Naturally. Don't husbands and wives—usually?"

"I never thought of that."

"You never seem to think of anything. But don't worry, we shall manage. It will give us a chance to stage quarrels and find out we hate each other. I don't suppose you want me to come and live here?"

"Oh, no, no! There's no room.
Besides—oh, no! But it's my home. I can't give it up. It's my sister's home. I made it for her."

"You can shut it up for the time being. I'll pay the rent. By the way, your sister—how does she stand in this little game?"

Laurie's face crimsoned once more with shame.

"Glad thinks I was married to you.
You see, she was unconscious, at death's door, when it happened. I couldn't face her afterwards. So I let her think it, like everybody else."

"You must have an ingenious brain," he commented.

"It wasn't difficult. She believes everything I say. I only had to tell her I'd met you near our home in the country, and we were married secretly after poor Belle died. Glad was away for six months, working on an orange plantation, before we went to Sydney. She didn't know Belle; she went to a different school.
She's five years younger than I."

He looked at her straight in the eyes. For the first time her antagonism faltered.

"I guess you've been through a bit," he said quietly. "Well, that's all right. You'll send the good news to your sister right away." His smile was mocking again.

"She will be coming to London soon."

"Then she can stay with us and watch our cat and dog life. Better to have a witness on your side, so it can be all my fault."

"You're perfectly disgusting!" Laurie exclaimed furiously. "I don't believe I'll do it after all!"

"It's fixed. You can't get out of it now. By the way, you know my first name. What's yours?"

"Laurie."

"It suits you. It's uncommon—like you. I say, must you look so glum? Can't you see the funny side of it?" There was quite a pleased expression on his face, a hint of the eager, happy, laughing young man of the photograph. "I haven't said I'm grateful to you, but I am. Albery is all over me. You see, I've got to make money. It's the main thing for me to make lots of money."

He stopped abruptly, as if he had forgotten himself in a moment of rare relaxation.

"I'll make it easy for you," he added. "And I'll get off now, and come back in the morning. Albery sent a message. You're not to go back to the office anyhow for a few days, until we're settled in. Can you move tomorrow?"

"I suppose so," she said ungraciously.

"Right! Good-night, then!"

Laurie was confused when he held out his hand, but she put hers in it. A tingling went through her that made her pull it hastily away.

Her "good-night" was a whisper, as she fought for self-control.

won his battle for the bill. It's understood that the Virginian accepted the proposition but delayed putting it into effect while he took time out to collect four honorary degrees.

He is said to be working on the redraft now—and this arrangement is the basis for his confident statement that there's no reason the Senate can't dispose of the bill quickly. New York bankers feel they have nothing to fear from any measure authored by Glass.

SURRENDER: This "compromise" also accounts for the belated explanation of Adolph C. Miller—member of the Federal Reserve Board since its beginning—as to what was wrong with the Federal Reserve system in 1927-29. Mr.
Miller is helping to set the stage for Senator Glass's ideas.

command of open market operations (buying and selling of government securities by the Reserve Banks) and against domination by the New York Reserve Bank. So far O. K. with both Glass and the White House. BUT he also favors representation of all twelve Reserve banks on the open market committee—which the bankers (and Glass) want and the White House and Ecclesiastical. Likewise he subtly registers the point that the judgment of the "political" members of the Board wasn't so hot, back in the boom days.

Put these items together and they shed quite a light on the Senatorial attitude towards the President. Fear in mind that Fletcher—who has practically authorized a vital surrender so long as it's camouflaged —has been one of the President's most loyal lieutenants. You can figure out how he rates the chances for compelling Senate obedience to the White House will.

CONSPIRACY: With the fate of the banking law in doubt the big New York banks are in receipt of sagging bills from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for subscriptions to its Class A stock in accordance with the present law.
These subscriptions are supposed to be paid before July 1st unless the new Act passes or the temporary plan now in effect is extended. The state-chartered banks are chucking their bills in the wastebasket. Penalty for non-compliance in their case is expulsion from the Federal Reserve System and they're ready and willing to take it—figuring they can always re-qualify later if advisable. All they would lose would be the redoubtable privilege—which they aren't using now anyway—and their power to cash out-of-town checks at par. The latter would cripple them in dealings with correspondents—but they rate that a cheap price compared to prospective assessments. Most of the Clearing House banks are state institutions —not national.

The national banks don't take the matter quite so casually. The penalty for them is appointment of a federal receiver! They can't possibly swallow that and the law offers no loopholes. So they will have to come across no matter how it hurts unless they get legislative relief before Monday. However, they do nurse strong hopes that at worst they will get their millions (literally in some cases) back later.

A director of a state bank which intends to do nothing about the assessments, remarks: "Of course we'll all be charged with conspiracy against the New Deal. But the only thing we're really conspiring about it how to remain solvent."

PIPES: Keen observers charac-terize the platform evolved by the New York Young Republicans as signalling abandonment of hope for 1936. All issues on which a genuinely popular appeal might be based have been extracted—leaving merely a firm conservative base on which to build for the future.

The Young Republicans also spelled the doom of a right-wing coalition movement next year. They are for "coalition" under the G. O.
P. label—but no Jeffersonian Democrats for theirs. That's that.

These developments fit into the growing conviction of backstage Republican leaders that there's no use putting up a real fight in '36. "We are licked in advance, so why not be practical about it." The idea rather is to plan to capture Congress in '38 and then on to the real triumph in '40. There are substantial pipe lines to be carefully laid and there's no use going all out

Lance Wooten Forges To Front As Cotton Grower

Lance Wooten, colored, who works at the local plant of the Carolina Sales Corporation as a vocation and farms on the north side of Tar river as an avocation, brought the fourth cotton blossom of the season to the office of The Daily Reflector this morning.

Lance was as happy over the blossom as a child with a new toy, and said he was looking forward to a good crop this year, even though growing things is a hobby with him.

The blossom, one of several brought to the office this season as a vanguard of the great crop to come later on during the summer, was placed in the window of the business office for the inspection of those interested in the agricultural life of the county—and that means about everybody because crops, especially tobacco, are the backbone of the section.

They lined up within the lanes roped off by the tables, on which were plates of barbecue, corn bread, slaw, pickles and platters of sliced ham, then filled by the tables where they could take their choice of punch or coffee, and add cake.

The delightful social hour was enjoyed as much as the refreshments. These barbecues have become a special feature of the summer school.

BREVARD BANKERS FINISH PRISON TERMS

Asheville, June 28.—Thomas Shipman, former president of the Brevard Banking Company, has returned to his home in Brevard after completing his sentence of two years in prison imposed in the Transylvania County Superior Court for criminal conspiracy in connection with the failure of the banking firm in 1930. C. R. McNeely, former county accountant of Transylvania County, convicted in the same case has also returned to his home at Brevard. Shipman served the last year of his term at the Craggy prison camp near Asheville and McNeely completed his term at the Halifax farm camp of the State Prison Department. Both men refused a parole offered them several months ago preferring to serve out their terms.

CONVICT DRIVER OF MANSLAUGHTER

Whiteville, June 28.—J. C. Adams, Chadbourn, was yesterday afternoon convicted by a Columbus county jury of manslaughter in connection with a fatal accident last fall in which two men lost their lives. Sentence has not been passed.

George Sweeney, Brunswick truck driver, an employee of the Brunswick Supply Company, who had been jointly indicted with Adams was cleared of the charge when the jury found him not guilty.

The indictments came as the aftermath of an accident which cost the life of Carson Mercer, well-known Chadbourn merchant, and Buster Evey, Brunswick lad. Evidence was presented to show that Adams, driving a terrific rate of speed, crashed into a truck on which Sweeney was hauling two bales of cotton. It was evidence that Adams was drinking, driving on the left-hand side of the road, and that he struck Sweeney's truck while the latter was trying to dodge him.

YOUNG STATE DEMOCRATS AT RALEIGH

Liquor and Patronage Chief Issues to Be Considered at Convention Today

Reflector Bureau.

By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, June 28.—Liquor and jobs again seemed likely to become the chief issues at the North Carolina Young Democrats opened their annual convention here today, with many old Democrats on hand to see what the Young Democrats would do and how they are thinking about political questions and how they favor the various candidates already in the field. Incidentally, almost every announced and prospective candidate for Democratic offices in the state, are already here circulating among them out and hinting that they would like to have the support of the youngers.

Most of the several hundred Young Democrats who have arrived here by this afternoon made no bones about expressing their disgust with the recent general assembly for failing to enact a state-wide liquor control law or at least to enact a law that would have permitted all of the counties in the state to vote on whether or not they wanted a state-wide liquor control plan and state liquor stores. Indications today are that the resolutions committee will bring a resolution before the convention tomorrow recommending a state-wide liquor control and liquor stores plan instead of the present old and general disregard state prohibition law, which was enacted in 1923. In fact, Wade H. Lucas, Raleigh newspaperman, who is chairman of the resolutions committee, said this afternoon that his committee would meet tonight and would include in the resolution to be presented tomorrow one which would condemn the present hypocritical attitude of the Democratic party with regard to liquor and prohibition and recommend the enactment of a sane and sensible liquor control and liquor stores plan for the entire state.

There were indications that the same group of conservative Young Democrats who fought the adoption of an anti-prohibition resolution in Wicksville Beach two years ago and in Asheville last summer would again oppose this anti-prohibition resolution when it is proposed tomorrow. But it is expected that the anti-prohibition element in the convention this year will be even stronger than ever and that the "wet" resolution will be adopted by a large majority, especially since the counties that have voted for liquor under the new Pasquotank county act, have gone wet by majorities of more than ten to one. But the conservatives and "drys" will probably put up a stiff fight, and some fireworks may develop before the resolutions are finally adopted.

Most of the Young Democrats, especially those who have been officers or who are candidates for office, are still hoping that they will win enough recognition to be in line for some sort of Federal job, despite the fact that most of the patronage seems to have been passed out already. But they have not forgotten that Tyre Taylor, the first president of the North Carolina Young Democrats now holds a Government job in Washington at a salary said to be about $8,000 a year, that Mrs. May Thompson Evans, another past president, is now Acting Director of the National Reemployment Service in the state and that even Fritz Smith, according to latest reports, is still on the Government payroll as are many other former Young Democrats. In other words, it is more or less privately conceded that any Young Democrats who have any aspirations to ever get a piece of Patronage Pie from the New Deal picture in Washington and who must hence win the favor of Senators Bailey and Reynolds and the Congressman in their district, must be members of the North Carolina Young Democratic Clubs and be active in them "for the party" even if the eventual objective may be party "pie." So all those who have been seeking Government jobs or who intend to seek them are right here with bells on though they, of course, are not talking about this angle of the convention. But plenty of them are thinking about it.

COLLECTION OF REVENUE SHOWS GAIN

State General Fund Money Nearing $24,000,000 Mark at This Time

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 27.—Revenue collections by the State Department of Revenue for the present fiscal year, which ends Sunday night, will probably amount to $24,000,000 or perhaps even more, department officials estimated today, while sales tax collections may possibly reach $8,000,000 or very close to that sum. Total collections through yesterday amounted to $23,537,306 and the belief is that enough additional revenue will be received between now and Monday morning to bring this figure to $24,000,000. Total collections for the fiscal year 1933-34 to this same date last year amounted to only $20,841,953 so that collections this year are expected to amount to at least $3,000,000 more than last year.

Sales tax collections so far this year up to yesterday amounted to $7,130,878 while collections from this tax to the same date last year amounted to only $5,783,364 although this was for only 11 months last year as compared with 12 months for this fiscal year. However, it is conceded that sales tax collections have run much larger this year, month for month, than last year. If all the merchants who are now delinquent or on the verge of being delinquent send in their sales tax collections between now and Saturday or Monday, it is expected that the collections for this fiscal year would easily amount to $8,000,000. But whether all of these back collections will be received by the time the books close for this year still remains to be seen.

For the first time in its history, the Department of Revenue will end this fiscal year with an unexpended balance of between $25,000 and $30,000 from its appropriation for operating expenses this fiscal year, according to George S. Scott, Director of the Division of Accounts. The figures for the revenue department through May, show that the department has spent $18,543 less during the first 11 months of this fiscal year than during the same 11 months last year and $884 less in May than in May of last year.

COLLECTION OF REVENUE SHOWS GAIN

State General Fund Money Nearing $24,000,000 Mark at This Time

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, June 27.—Revenue collections by the State Department of Revenue for the present fiscal year, which ends Sunday night, will probably amount to $24,000,000 or perhaps even more, department officials estimated today, while sales tax collections may possibly reach $8,000,000 or very close to that sum. Total collections through yesterday amounted to $23,537,306 and the belief is that enough additional revenue will be received between now and Monday morning to bring this figure to $24,000,000. Total collections for the fiscal year 1933-34 to this same date last year amounted to only $20,841,953 so that collections this year are expected to amount to at least $3,000,000 more than last year.

Sales tax collections so far this year up to yesterday amounted to $7,130,878 while collections from this tax to the same date last year amounted to only $5,783,364 although this was for only 11 months last year as compared with 12 months for this fiscal year. However, it is conceded that sales tax collections have run much larger this year, month for month, than last year. If all the merchants who are now delinquent or on the verge of being delinquent send in their sales tax collections between now and Saturday or Monday, it is expected that the collections for this fiscal year would easily amount to $8,000,000. But whether all of these back collections will be received by the time the books close for this year still remains to be seen.

For the first time in its history, the Department of Revenue will end this fiscal year with an unexpended balance of between $25,000 and $30,000 from its appropriation for operating expenses this fiscal year, according to George S. Scott, Director of the Division of Accounts. The figures for the revenue department through May, show that the department has spent $18,543 less during the first 11 months of this fiscal year than during the same 11 months last year and $884 less in May than in May of last year.

MAY PITCHES 5 TO 1 VICTORY OVER TARBORO

Playing their usual inspired brand of ball Greenville defeated the cellarite Tarboro club here yesterday afternoon by the score of 5 to 1. It was the last game of the series with the Edgecombe county club. Greenville having taken the one day before to the tune of 10 to 1.

In spite of having won only three games of the nineteen played this season, Tarboro played good ball, but the trouble lay in the powerful arm of Reynolds May, Duke University ace, who for the last two seasons has done some mighty effective work for Greenville on the firing line.

While his teammates were hammering out an impressive total of 13 safe cracks, May limited the Tar Bables to only six bingles, three of them coming in the eighth frame to give the visitors their only run of the day. Up to that time it appeared as if May was going to have a shutout to his credit, but his luck didn't hold although he retired sides without further threat of damage.

May, who pitched the final championship game here last season between Greenville and Kinston, enabling Greenville to capture the circuit flag, showed old time form yesterday, and the way he held Tarboro in check was considered a good index to what might be expected of him during the remainder of the season. Sick since the season opened, the stocky hurler hadn't participated in but three games until yesterday, but from now on, barring a recurrence of the illness that put him in bed before, he can be expected to do his part in keeping Greenville in the front of the Coastal Plain league race.

Yesterday's victory, along with Kinston's 7 to 2 triumph over Ayden, enabled Greenville to regain the apex of the standing of clubs. Although leading the race by a slight slim margin for about the third time this season, the Greenies are expected to put on full steam against Goldsboro this afternoon and try to keep the bacon rolling into the home lot.

"Ace" Parker, hard-hitting Greenville left fielder, who has lived up to his sobriquet throughout the season, continued to contribute his devastating stick attack yesterday, and when the thunder had rolled away he was credited with a double and two singles. It's unusual for Parker to go through a game without at least two or three hits to his credit, and generally each blow counts for more than a single base.

Coming close behind Parker was no other than Skipper "Bo" Farley, who had two hits chalked up to his credit as did Dean, May and Bostic. "Bo" like the remainder of his team is playing a brand of ball these days that is bound to keep them in the lead of the race. If they continue to keep murderers' row as active in the future as they have in the past, it is impossible to say how far ahead they will be the end of the season.

Inspiration counts in base ball as anything else, and anybody is bound to realize the Greenies are inspired by watching them go from game to game with errorless ball to their credit. This was the case again yesterday but they were equalled by the visitors who went through the game without a bobbie.

The Greenies bunched hits in four separate innings to gain their quintet of tallies. Bo Farley's boys put over a couple of runs in the fourth to start their scoring—and those ultimately were enough to win. Parker doubled to start the fourth inning doings. Johnson walked, and then Farley doubled to score Parker. Chubby Dean singled to score the second run.

Woods, starting Tarboro chunker, yielded 10 hits and four runs before being relieved by Rhymer in the eighth.

Short hit a double and a single to lead the cellarites.

Ellis Beasley, Pearl Beasley, Margaret Lee Keen and Nellie Beasley, the other four defendants accused a new trial on charges of kidnaping Ogola Barker and Josephine Smith as the Supreme Court held a grant deal of the evidence emitted against them was predicated on the invalid in the Wayne indictment.

New York, June 28.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened fairly steady, unchanged to three higher with unfavorable crop advices offset by liquidation.

Buying increased after the call and the more active months sold about 4 to 5 net higher. Business tapered off at these levels and the market was quiet but steady at the end of the first hour.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, June 28.—(AP)—Forward leanings were displayed by most financial markets today despite the apparently scarcity of tangible stimulus.

Selective buying lifted many stock fractions to around a point altho the trading pace was far from speedy and many issues were content to hold final prices to previous sessions.

Among the favorites were some of the alcohol and mining leaders. Grains improved along with cotton.

The majority of bonds were a little better than even. Foreign exchanges were unexciting. The late stock tone was steady to firm. Sales were 700,000 shares.

FOREST FIRES RAGE IN BEAUFORT AREA

Beaufort, June 28.—(AP)—Forest fires in this area continued to rage headway today, threatening homes and driving droves of deer, wild hogs and other wild life before them.

The fire in the Lenoxville community, which early in the week destroyed the Lenoxville Royster, killed thousands of young turkeys, spread to the North river road section and menaced the homes of several truck farmers.

The Beaufort fire department was called out in the afternoon to battle the flames.
