Charge Frontier Incidents Seek to Complicate Situation Between Nations

Moscow, July 2.—(AP)—The official press charged today that incidents along the Soviet frontier in the Far East have been provoked deliberately by Japanese militarists to stir Russian forces to country measures and thus bring on grave complications.

The note of protest concerning the series of alleged violations of Soviet territory by Japanese and Manchukuo troops during the last two months was delivered yesterday to Tokyo. “These incidents may be explained only in the sense that there is a definite plan by Japanese militarists to create complications on the frontier,” asserted the communist party organ Pravda.

Tokyo, July 2.—(AP)—The stern tone of Soviet Russia's latest protest to Japan alleging Japanese troop violations of Soviet territory evoked sensational headlines in the Tokyo press today but officials professed little concern.

Vernacular newspapers stressed the seriousness of the protest.

One called it “threatening,” emphasizing a reference to grave consequences. Officials asserted that such a grave tone was absent from the note in the Russian language which Ambassador Constantine Yureneff handed to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota Monday night.

SEEKS TO PEG COTTON PRICE AT 15 CENTS

New York Broker Presents Secretary of Agriculture With New Plan

Washington, July 2.—(AP)—A 15-cent pegged cotton price and abolition of the cotton processing tax has been requested to the Secretary of Agriculture by Joseph O'Donnell, New York cotton broker. O'Donnell said he presented to Secretary Wallace a detailed recommendation for a permanent cotton program in which his brief warned: “To go along haphazardly without forming some final plans is extremely dangerous and to begin consideration of a new intervention plan such as export bounties, increased processing taxes and etc., should be unthinkable. We should not forget the history of intervention of other countries in rubber, coffee, sugar and other commodities and their disastrous consequences when carried too far.”

The Finance chairman gave the impression that his figures were official Treasury proposals backed by the White House. Although they antagonized intended victims they did not suit the liberals. ### Fifty-five of 100 Counties Reported in Grip of Rapidly Spreading Malady

Raleigh, July 2.—(AP)—Fifty-five of North Carolina's 100 counties have reported cases of infantile paralysis this year in a record flare of the disease and five new cases today raised the total number of sufferers in 1935 to 278 with 213 of them since June 1.

Ashe county in the western mountainous section reported two cases today as its first and Dr. Carl Reynolds, state health officer, said the occurrence in the western resort section and eastern seashore section continued about normal.

Wake county where the disease is centering in the middle of the state, reported its 49th case and Johnston its 25th. These two counties are leading in incidence of the malady. The fifth case today came from Anson which was listed late yesterday in a telegraphic report.

There were five new typhoid cases listed today, making 158 this year and 95 since June 1. Counties listing fever sufferers were Anson, Caldwell, Forsyth, Lenoir and Nash.

NO HOLIDAY ON TOMORROW

City Stores to Remain Open in View of the Whole Holiday on Thursday

Greenville business houses will give up their usual half holiday tomorrow to take all day off Thursday, the Fourth of July.

The Chamber of Commerce announced the latter part of last week that merchants thought it advisable to remain open all day Wednesday because of July 4 falling on Thursday, and immediately notified employees the usual Wednesday-half holiday would be abandoned this week.

The half holidays, however, will be continued next week during the remainder of the summer or until a few days prior to the opening of the tobacco market when stores annually begin preparation to take care of the demands of their customers.

Following its usual custom, the Daily Reflector will be closed all day July 4th and will also close shortly after the noon hour tomorrow as customary during the summer months.

CLARK AGAIN IN HEADS POLICE

J. O. Duval, City Clerk and Other Department Heads Re-elected by Board

In a brief session following the induction of new members, the Board of Aldermen in special meeting at the city hall yesterday at the noon hour, re-elected heads of the various departments of city government but left the selection of other employees until the next regular meeting scheduled for Friday evening.

Those re-elected were: George Clark, head of police; J. O. Duval, city clerk; Chester Harris, treasurer; and George Gardner, chief of the fire department.

I was the first meeting of the new fiscal year, held especially for the purpose of installing Mayor R. C. Flanagan and six members of the board re-elected in the municipal election early in the summer. The next regular session of the board will be held Friday evening instead of Thursday as customary because the Fourth of July falls on Thursday.

The aldermen had met last Friday at last week to clear away odds and ends of old year business with a view of entering the new year with a clean house.

Several matters of importance will face the board when it meets Friday. Budget making time is on hand and the aldermen are expected to turn their attention to this important matter when they have cleared the deck of more pressing matters.

After induction of the new members yesterday the board also re-elected Aldermen H. H. Duncan as mayor pro-tem.

Mayor R. C. Flanagan, who has been confined in a Washington, D. C. hospital for several weeks, presided over yesterday's session, and was cordially welcomed back by the board members as well as other city employees who were on hand for the induction ceremonies.

GRANVILLE COUNTY TO HOLD HOSPITAL BOND ELECTION

Oxford, July 2.—The board of commissioners of Granville county yesterday ordered a special election on October 1 for the purpose of voting upon a $50,000 bond issue for the establishment of a county hospital.

NEGRO MAY BE CALLED TO WILSON JURY DUTY

Wilson, July 2.—The name of F. H. Haskins, 58, Gardner's township negro, will be among the brymen who may be empaneled Friday to hear charges of drunken driving brought against Sheriff W. A. Haskins.

Haskins is the first negro ever to be called for jury duty in Wilson county. At their June meeting, the commissioners ruled negroes should be included in jury lists.

STATE'S FIRST LIQUOR STORE THROWN OPEN

Crowd of Purchasers On Hand As Wilson Begins Legal Sale of Intoxicants

Wilson, July 2.—(AP)—North Carolina's first liquor store in more than 20 years opened here at 11:05 this morning with a crowd entering the building in orderly fashion to view the variegated stock and make initial purchases.

Carpenters and painters had worked until morning completing renovating the store which was legalized under legislative authority voted by heavy majorities two weeks ago in favor of legal whiskey sold under county supervision.

The opening originally set for noon was moved up briefly as several score persons gathered about the streets during the morning. A car load of liquor valued at $12,000 and on a siding here over the weekend was unloaded and the shelves stocked with bottles of many shapes and sizes.

There was a rush order business and purchasers in orderly fashion surged forward with money in hand. The first buyer was R. L. Opey of Raleigh who purchased a pint of liquor to be quickly followed by William Bunn of Wilson who selected a pint of gin.

COUNTY BOARD TALKS BUDGET

Delegations Seeking Uniform School Tax Rate Also Heard by Commissioners

The Board of County Commissioners met here in the first meeting of the new fiscal year yesterday, considered the tentative budget with members of the various governmental departments and adjourned until tomorrow when the budget will be given further consideration.

In addition to his matter, the commissioners heard representatives of school boards from several sections of the county on a proposed uniform school tax rate, to enable the county to obtain governmental aid for school building improvements. It was understood nothing definite was accomplished although the board is expected to take up the matter again during the later part of the week.

The rates in some school areas are higher than others, and it is the object of the delegations to obtain a uniform rate for all so that they will be able to obtain a government grant for badly needed improvements.

The board was scheduled to complete revision of the jury box started at a previous meeting, but this also was delayed until a later date.

Budget-making is a big job for the commissioners and the office of Auditor John Coward, but it was hoped the various departments would be able to complete their lineup when the commissioners gather again tomorrow. As soon as completed the budget in tentative form will be placed on display.

CHAUFFEUR SLEEPS. COLONEL BRUTON HURT

Wilson, July 2.—Colonel John P. Bruton, 75 prominent local attorney and Wilson's first citizen, received a broken nose and cuts about the face yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding ran into a car parked on South Bynum street here and threw the Colonel against the windshield of his car. Damage to the two cars was placed at around $200.

Sam Perry, the Bruton chauffeur, told police that he must have gone to sleep while driving and run into the parked car, which the police report was parked correctly on the right side of the street.

HAIL DAMAGES TOBACCO CROP

Stones Strike in Scattering Sections as Terrific Storms Sweep County

Hail, riding one of the most terrific thunderclouds visiting this part of the county this summer, struck in scattering sections of Pitt county late yesterday afternoon, inflicting considerable damage to the tobacco crop, according to reports trickling into Greenville today.

The hail struck between Greenville and Grimesland and south of Ayden, doing damage on the farms of Ben Buck and L. W. Tucker near Grimesland and on the farms of Doc Loftin and Sam Manning south of Ayden. Ben Buck was reported to have lost five acres of tobacco as the hail stones ripped the leaves from the stalks. The full amount of damage could not be determined in the other areas, but it was known that several acres were damaged.

The storm in Greenville was accompanied by a terrific electrical display and heavy rain. Lightning struck in several parts of the county, damaging trees and telephone poles, but no loss of life had been reported from any section.

Lightning struck a pole in the eastern part of the city, causing balls of fire to play along wires in a number of homes, frightening the inhabitants, but doing very little damage except disrupting electrical service in some of the homes.

Precipitation was the heaviest of the summer and was valued at a million dollars by crop observers throughout the county. Although no rains have visited various sections the past two weeks, tobacco and other crops were suffering from lack of moisture. One area east of Ayden was reported to have gone without rain for nearly two months.

In spite of the hail damage, farmers generally were rejoicing over the heavy precipitation and looked forward to more body to their crops because of more moisture.

Reflector Will Observe July 4: Close Early Wed.

The same request is made to contributors of news stories or other articles which they wish published in tomorrow's paper. The paper will observe the usual Wednesday half holiday, although the remainder of the business houses will remain open throughout the day, but will close Thursday, July 4, for the entire day.

The Reflector has always observed July 4 as a holiday, and the early closing tomorrow will give employees a few more hours of rest and recreation before resuming the regular grind Friday morning.

PITT BALLOTS SOLIDLY FOR CONTROL PLAN

Only One Vote Cast Against Federal Crop Movement In Referendum Here

With all townships of the county reporting, Pitt county farmers voted nearly one hundred per cent for continuing the tobacco crop control program. It was announced today from the office of E. F. Arnold, farm director.

Out of the 7,791 ballots cast in the thirteen townships of the county, Mr. Arnold said today one was against the federal government program. The dissenting ballot was cast by a farm tenant in Beaver Dam township.

It was stated several days ago on the basis of unofficial reports from 11 of the 13 precincts that approximately 12 persons had voted against the control movement, but the official county proved that only one had been placed in this column.

Farmers were given until last Saturday afternoon to complete filling ballots with committee men in various sections of the county. The election was held the previous Saturday, but owing to shortage of ballots the growers were given to the following Saturday to complete expressing their sentiment.

The farm director expressed gratification over the fine vote given the federal government program in this county. It is believed the vote probably is the best of any single county in the five cured area, especially in view of the fact that Pitt county is the largest bright leaf producing county in the world. The ballot from all townships follows:

Pactolus 334, Farmville 713, Winterville 659, Carolina 407, Bethel 374, Beaver Dam 354, Ayden 831, Chisolm 1,223, Greenville 1,335, Swift Creek 627, Belvoir 271, Polkland 313, Fountain 290.

JUDGE WOOTEN CLUB SPEAKER

Tells Rotarians of Effort on Foot to Open Tar River to Navigation

Judge F. M. Wooten, member of a delegation which recently went to Washington, D. C. regarding the opening of Tar River to navigation, delivered the principal address at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary club here last night.

Judge Wooten told of the trip to Washington, the presentation of facts regarding the benefits to be derived by this community from the deepening of Tar river, and expressed optimism over success of the movement. He said the delegation was well received by the War Department board and while no comment was made by any members of the board, Judge Wooten said it was his personal opinion the project would receive favorable consideration.

He enumerated for the benefit of the Rotarians the advantages which would accrue to the community if the stream were opened to navigation, declare thousands of dollars annually would be saved by shippers because of lower freight rates. A deeper channel would give Greenville a direct opening to the sea, greatly speeding up the handling of freight between this city and other sections of the country.

New officers inducted at a former session of the club were in their places last night. W. W. Lee, the newly elected president, wielded the gavel rebuked by Dr. Herbert Elvorker at the previous meeting. The Rotarians have an ambitious program ahead of them this year and President Lee in thanking the clubmen for the high honor conferred upon him, pledged his best effort to carry the program to success.

SUES FOR RECOVERY OF PROCESSING TAX

Greensboro, July 2.—Still another suit for recovery of cotton processing taxes has been filed in United States District Court. The Cotton Mills of Marion, yesterday filed suit asking the court to order the Collector of Internal Revenue to return to the mills the sum of $156,315 which has been paid in cotton processing and cotton floor tax. The mills also ask the court to restrain the collection of the taxes for April, May and June and henceforth. They claim the Agricultural Adjustment Act is unconstitutional and the taxes provided by it illegal and unfair.

SALARY BOOST FOR TEACHERS VARIES IN N. C.

Some Will Not Get Full 20 Percent Increase and Others Will Receive More

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel,
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, July 2.—While the general assembly increased the appropriation for teachers' salaries 20 per cent for this year above what it has been for the past two years, the increase was based on the total expended for salaries last year of $13,464,000. As a result only $2,682,800 more will be available with which to increase salaries this coming school year, with the result that it will not be sufficient to give every teacher a salary increase of 20 per cent, since this amount does not take into consideration any increase in salaries due either to better certification or to the increased experience of teachers. LeRoy Martin, secretary of the State School Commission pointed out today. As a result, the average increase in teachers' salaries, allowing for the normal increase in salaries due to better certification, experience increments and the increase in the number of teachers, will probably not amount to more than 18 per cent.

"The School Commission, of course, could again discontinue allowing the experience increment, under which the salary of a teacher automatically increases each year she teaches, up to eight years," Martin said. "But, the commission does not believe it would be fair to discontinue the experience increment—in fact it considers this a very valuable feature of the present school system and thinks that all teachers should be guaranteed an increase in salary based upon length of service. So the experience increment undoubtedly will be retained."

But some of the money set aside for salary increases will have to be used to take care of the increases that would have resulted any way from the experience increment, Martin pointed out. Some of this money will also have to go to teachers who have raised their teaching certificates and thus have raised their salaries accordingly, without regard to the legislative increase.

The teachers who get an automatic increase due either to the experience increment or to better certification, however, are in line to get salary increases considerably in excess of 20 per cent and in some cases ranging as high as 30 per cent or even more, Martin pointed out.

A teacher who last year held a Grade B certificate but who had taught for eight years, received $75 a month. If she can raise that certificate to Grade A this summer, she can automatically increase her salary to $90 a month—an increase of $15 a month—and still be in line for an additional increase of $15 a month from the legislative increase, so that her entire salary increase would amount to $30 a month—an increase of 30 per cent over what she got last year.

It is this question of certification which has the School Commission worried right now and which may prevent teachers in the lower

Correlation of Mouth Health With Everyday Teaching

By MRS. RUTH HEILIG McQUAGE
Principal, John S. Henderson School, Salisbury, N. C.

SINCE a child must be healthy to learn, we have found from experience that the oral hygiene programs conducted by the State Board of Health have been of decided assistance in solving the problem of the development of the child in our schools. Dental work in the schools, as supplied by the State Board of Health, in cooperation with local county and city authorities, has enabled many a child to remove a physical handicap that otherwise would have been prolonged on account of lack of money in the individual homes. The task has been not only to do a thorough job of mouth cleaning, but also to instill oral hygiene into the youthful child by actual demonstration. The teacher, while this subject was habitually stressed, could not solve the problem alone.

Dentists in the public schools have been able to visualize to the child the things the teacher sought to impress, such as teaching food values, proper health habits, and the necessity of a clean mouth.

Children, as well as parents, have listened to the dentist, since he has a medical background from which to speak with authority, and the result has been that the teacher has been able to correlate this information with all the subjects taught to the child through the elementary school. The natural result has been a continued emphasis on health in all of the work taught which tends naturally to produce on the part of children a more wholesome attitude both towards study and their classmates.

It has not been so many years ago that it was impossible for parents of limited means to have this portion of the health of their children handled through the schools. Many children were thus denied treatment of a condition which grew progressively worse and handicapped both the certificate grades from getting an increase of as much as 20 per cent, Martin admitted. It has also been learned that some county superintendents have already sent out instructions to principals and school committeemen not to employ any teachers who do not hold Grade A certificates, and if possible to insist that these teachers also have eight years teaching experience, thus entitling them to the highest salaries paid by the state of $90 a month plus whatever increase is granted. A 20 per cent increase would give these teachers a salary of $108 a month.

At the present time there are 9,367 white teachers with Grade A certificates, 3,974 with Grade B cerhas been done through the State Board of Health has aided in helping children regain normal health, and has improved the morale of the classroom. At the same time, the thorough work has spread the gospel of good health to other children, and the cost, being divided between the local communities and the State, has been very little per child.

The teaching of oral hygiene in the schools has, consequently, proven to be an effective subject in true education in the schools of the State.

The tribute to the usefulness of this work done by the conscientious group of State dentists under the direction of Dr. Ernest A. Branch is seen not so much by the thousands of grinning youngsters who are yet unable to appreciate their betterment, but by the fact that in communities where the work has been carried on for several years, school patrons of means and local governing bodies have praised the work and gladly appropriated the small amounts necessary to continue it.

certificates, 1,690 with Grade C certificates and only 795 with elementary or temporary certificates below Grade C. But if all of the Grade C teachers should be eliminated or raised to Grade A, their salaries alone would be increased $100,000 a year while if 3,974 Grade B teachers should be eliminated or be raised to Grade A, the salary increases that would result would require $476,430 a more this year than last, without granting any of the increase authorized by the general assembly. So if all of the teachers with certificates lower than Grade A should be eliminated, this would increase the salary cost for teachers at least $1,500,000 a year, Mr. Martin estimated. This increase would have to be taken out of the $2,692,800 a year which the general assembly set aside to increase the salaries of all teachers and hence leave only about $1,922,800 to increase all salaries or only enough to grant a horizontal increase of about 8 per cent. The commission is going to try to spread the increase as equitably as possible, however.

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—(AP)—It required exactly 10 lines in the Congressional Record to note the fact, but behind that brief mention of a move inaugurated in the Senate lies what may result in one of the most significant changes in this country's history.

Nebraska's famous campaigner for constitutional amendments—George W. Norris—is launched upon a fifth attempt to revise the legal charters of the federal government and his home state.

Already successful in two of his four efforts—eliminating the "lame duck" short sessions of Congress and providing for a one-house legislature for Nebraska—the white-haired Republican independent who will be 74 in July, believes his fifth move had a good chance of succeeding.

His newest proposed amendment is aimed at speeding decisions on the constitutionality of congressional acts, preventing 5-4 decisions by the supreme court and making that tribunal the sole arbiter as to whether Congress exceeded its authority in framing legislation.

It also would prohibit any act being held unconstitutional except by more than two-thirds of the court, or seven of the nine justices, or where the cause of action was started within six months after enactment of a law.

Norris has no hope of his proposed amendment being acted on at this session, but he thinks two-thirds of each house might vote to submit it to the states next year.

He denies arguments of critics that the amendment would have prevented a day in court for the Schechter brothers in view of the fact they were not indicted until more than a year after the recovery act was passed. Also, he charges that the amendment would have prevented a day in court for the Schechter brothers in view of the fact they were not indicted until more than a year after the recovery act was passed. ## 'BABY MIXUP' BOYS CELEBRATE

On their fifth birthday George Edward Bamberger (left) and Charles Evan Watkins (right), principals in the famous Chicago hospital "baby mixup" of 1930, came together and did a little "mixing" of their own in celebration of their anniversary. Their parents, who once protested that George was Charles and Charles was George, were present and a pleasant time was had by all. (Associated Press Photo) acterizes as "silly" the contention that an administration might utilize his amendment to make all of its congressional acts constitutional by suspending operation of a new law for six months.

"Most injunctions are granted on pleas of persons who claimed they would be injured," he says, "and an individual would not have to wait until an act took effect before he tested its constitutionality."

Norris' "lame duck" amendment took effect last year. It not only eliminates the three-months session with defeated senators and representatives prohibited from returning to participate in framing legislation, but starts the presidential term on January 20 instead of on March 4.

The Nebraska is undaunted by his two defeats of past years. The Senate last year rejected his proposed amendment to abolish the electoral college and the House, while Norris was a member there, turned back his attempt to provide four-year terms for representatives and a single eight-year term for Presidents.

trust law evasion, price-fixing and production control?

Blue Eagle codes, as General Johnson taught them to an inspired country, are dead by mandate of the Supreme Court.

The law now says the President may approve voluntary agreements "between and among persons engaged in a trade or industry, labor organizations, and trade or industrial organizations, associations, or groups, relating to any trade or industry" if in his judgment such agreements will relieve unemployment or improve labor standards or otherwise rehabilitate industry.

Just as in the palmy days of "government partnership with business" the nation's industrialists may come to Washington and work out codes (a) fixing minimum wages to labor, maximum hours of work, and prohibiting sweatshops and child labor; and (b) prohibiting "unfair practices" which offend existing law, including the anti-trust laws, or which constitute unfair methods of competition under the federal trade commission act.

The situation turns, however, on by whom and in what way voluntary codes are to be enforced. There is nothing "little NRA" can do about it. There is no legal weapon to enforce agreements on wages, hours, child labor and the sweatshop. The federal trade commission could exercise its "cease and desist" orders for violations of trade practices, but those practices would have to be of the nature courts have declared to be "unfair."

That revives the anti-trust law issue. Congress declared the anti-trust laws back in full force when the Supreme Court denied the government authority to enforce codes under which they had been suspended. In that connection President Roosevelt has said he cannot change statutory law.

The Sherman act (1890) declares contracts, combinations, or conspiracies in restraint of trade or commerce to be illegal. It prohibits any form of monopoly injurious to the public welfare. The Clayton act (1914) prohibits price discrimination and various schemes that lessen free competition.

Frankly, officials say, it is a moot question whether price-fixing will be countenanced under voluntary codes in which the government has no regulating hand. It is the federal trade commission's assumption that price-fixing involves restraint of trade, but it has been predicted that each and any form of it that is undertaken in the future will be treated on its own merits.

REVIVAL: President Roosevelt is keeping it quiet, but he may ask Congress for a law to revitalize the anemic NRA. Employer and employe groups have steadily applied pressure for such a move since the court caged the Blue Eagle.

Although it is an unknown chapter of the NRA's last days, legislation to revive the codes in a big way has lain on the President's desk for some time. It was drawn by Don Richberg in anticipation of a judicial setback. It re-defines interstate commerce and delegates specific authority, thus meeting the Supreme Court's two objections.
House leaders had agreed to sponsor it on the very day the nine judges cracked down.

Mr. Richberg pleaded with the President to take this way out of the dilemma. He argued that the court had shown how the NRA could be legalized. But other advisers prevailed. They persuaded Mr.
Roosevelt to paint the blackest possible picture. This explains his so-called "court lecture" and absolute abandonment of any revival effort.

TACTICS: Some administration aides won't wear mourning if the holding company bill does not become law at this session. They have hatched a scheme for forcing a record vote in the House or else—

Senator Wheeler holds the key.
He is quite willing to let the measure die unless he can retain the "death clause" passed by the Senate. He can administer the death-blow by refusing to let the Senate consider any proposal except his own. He can do this by refusing to put to a vote any mild compromise worked out in conference.

This desperate strategy is expected to have two results. Utility stocks will suffer from uncertainty caused by delay and doubt. Progressives will take the issue to the country during the summer recess. They will threaten to campaign against members suspected of enasculation the Senate measure. The fur will fly if this Senate-House duel reaches that stage.

POLITICS: Work relief jobs and funds have finally been parcelled out to the politicians. They will dominate under the present setup.

In spite of President Roosevelt's warnings, state and national bosses have apparently won their long fight to distribute the $4,000,000 fund. All but a few state directors have been appointed on recommendation of Senators and National Committeemen. The new chiefs are rapidly scrapping old and experienced relief workers. Where a Senator is in bed, the Democratic Governor runs the works.

New Deal idealists are disillusioned and admit it. They have protested in vain to Harry Hopkins. Now they are trying to muster up courage to present their fears and complaints to the President.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: The unexpected return to London of Rex Moore, the airman supposedly lost in the Pacific, has exposed the desperate life of Laurie Moore, told to save herself and her sister from a still more desperate situation. She has told her employer, Mark Albery, that she is Moore's widow, now she is forced to pretend to be overjoyed, although she does not particularly like him. Rex and Laurie must pretend to be happily married for Rex to hold his job.

Chapter II MOVING IN

A PORTER brought Laurie's bags up in the elevator to the third floor. As she opened the front door with her key, a panic seized her.

Was Rex here?

No. He had dressed and gone out.
She was rather late. Her friends at the office had kept her talking, congratulating her on her husband's miraculous return. She had smiled and thanked them. How often in the last twenty-four hours she had with a driven fatalism burned her boats behind her!

Her husband. It was a joke, of course. It was a very humorous situation. But it did not seem a bit like one now that she was alone in the flat and would be alone until Rex Moore came back.

How could she have been so crazy as to consent to this impossible position? Where was her pride, her independence, her self-respect? She went over all the arguments toll-somerly, as she put a kettle on to boil on the electric stove and made a pretense of getting herself some supper.

She owed it to him. She had stolen his name; she had lived on it for two years. So she had, through her.
It was the least she could do to pretend to be his wife for a little while.
She drank her tea, but could not eat anything.

She went into her bedroom and unpacked. It was an austere apartment in dull blues, with a large built-in walnut wardrobe and a man's high dressing-table. All polished wood and plain coverings. No feminine touch. Her rose-colored dressing gown looked almost indecent, she thought, with a twisted smile.

She looked into Rex Moore's bedroom opposite, at the other end of the flat. It was intended for a man-servant. Very comfortable too, but plainer than hers.

He seemed to have no luggage but the suitcases she had seen in the train. His day clothes were neatly piled on a chair.

Could it be possible that she was going to share this flat with that man of the train? She was filled with a fierce hatred of him again.
He was cruel, inhuman; a monster.
He must have been able to find some other way than this.

She went out for a stiff walk for an hour and could hardly bring herself to go back. When she did, she fetched her sewing into the livingroom.

It was a little before eleven when Rex Moore came in, and saw Laurie's chestnut head bent over the shimmering sky-blue material of Glad's evening frock, a patch of color that looked joyously fantastic in that severe brown room.

Every light was on in the flat, which he noticed at once.

"Good evening! Afraid of being alone in the flat?" he asked. "Why didn't you keep the woman?"

"I'm not afraid." She raised her head and gave him a startled glance.
He looked so different in evening dress, so much more sophisticated.
She hadn't noticed it last night at Mark Albery's. She had been too confused to notice anything, too busy fighting to keep her composure, to appear natural, to say the proper thing.

"Everything went fine," he told her. "It won't take long to fix things up. Albery is keen on my trying the Pacific again. So am I. When you've crashed badly, it's no good funking the same trip. It's a secret, mind! Even from you. Would you like a drink?"

"No thanks." Laurie was quite cool now.

"Mind if I have one? A toast to our new home!"

He laughed, but not mockingly. He was evidently very pleased with his evening.

He thought only of himself, the girl told herself.

"Tomorrow night we'll go out to dinner and a show, if you like," he went on. "You mustn't be bored. And we shall have to have a few people here. I hope this woman can cook, and will deal a smashing blow to FDR's prestige. They only fear had been that the publicity of a record vote would cost them a lot of Congressional supporters who wouldn't care to be quoted as such.

The Tammany boys are certainly doing their damndest to keep Mr.

Roosevelt on a hot griddle. Their silent allies in financial and utility circles have no cause to complain.

DIM: Wheels continue to spin within wheels on the holding company bill argument. The Committee of Public Utility Executives—headed by Philip Gadsden—was set to celebrate the death and burial of all federal utility legislation when along came Harper Sibley and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce to spoil the party by endorsing enactment of the modified bill sponsored by the House Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Why should such old friends as

OFFSET: At the end of March the Chamber of Commerce and the utilities fail out? The answer is they haven't really. They differ only as to tactics—not as to principle.

The Chamber crowd doesn't want legislation any more than the power men themselves. But they feel it would be playing into the enemy's hands to block all action and give Mr. Roosevelt a chance to dramatize the issue in '36. They would rather have some innocuous regulation which will satisfy public opinion that something has been done and thereby dampen FDR's ammunition. Power leaders call this attitude weak—which shows how cocky they are. Mr. Roosevelt's chances of getting his pet enacted are much stronger since the conservative doctors have split on the proper prescription—though the outlook for the death sentence is still pretty dim.

There are some men in my own job, and I met a man today who was very decent to me in America. We must keep the game up. But most evenings I shall be working."

"It does not interest me in the slightest what you will be doing, Mr. Moore," Laurie said.

"By the way, Albery tells me you are going to do his personal correspondence again." There was a new note in his voice.

"Yes. His private secretary has to go away again for three months. He was kind enough to say that I did the work all right."

"He's very keen on you, isn't he?"
"What do you mean?"

"What I say, I saw it last night.
And the way he talks about you. He doesn't know he's giving himself away. He has an idea he's a regular Sphinx. I suppose you've been about with him a bit, out of office hours?"

"How dare you say such things?
I've never been anywhere with Mr.
Albery. I hardly know him. He has only been kind to me—because of you!" Her eyes shot blue lightning at him.

"I see. Sorry I spoke. Of course, it's nothing to do with me. You must be a difficult person to get on with.
You seem to have such a temper."

Laurie was on her feet, gathering her needlework together.

They glared at each other across the table. Her eyes fell first.

"It's time you went to bed," he said in a detached voice.

It was the climax of this impossible situation.

Panic seized her again. She cast a look of terror at him. It was the same unreasoning fear of being in the room with him. Just as she had felt in her own little home that there was no space for the two of them.

She tried to hurry past him out of the room, but his voice held her.

"You can't be afraid of me? Surely, it's not that? Why do you look so queer?"

"I'm not afraid of you. But you're a brute."

He looked at her uncomprehend-ingly. There was no pretense about it.

"I don't understand you. Haven't we made a bargain?"

She forced herself to face him boldly.

"Mr. Moore, I can't stand it. It's too impossible—too crazy! Shut up here alone with you, a perfect stranger! I can't go on. You must find some way to end it at once!"

"But what's happened since you agreed, since you took it on? You knew what you were doing. Now, for goodness' sake, go and get a good night's rest, and you'll feel quite different in the morning."

She was shaking so that she could hardly stand. Her hand, balanced self, the side of her that had fought through tragedy into safety, was in abeyance. She was all quivering nerves. Again she tried to pass him.
If he saw that she was crying, she would die of shame.

His face changed to hardness again; his angry mouth smiled in ridicule.

"You are afraid of me?" he said, with rough impatience, hiding some deep hurt that did not reach her ears. "You think I have got you here and am going to make love to you!
You little fool, do you think I've got any room for women in my life?
Good-night! If you're the girl I took you for, you'll play the game."

Laurie woke with a bewildered start, as people do who find themselves in a strange bed in a strange room.

She jumped up, and remembered, and started the day with a bad burst of anger, against herself, against Rex Moore, against life in general.

She had overslept, to begin with.
She would have to rush, or she would be late for the office.

She had made a fool of herself last night in that ridiculous fit of nerves. She was angrier than ever with Rex Moore because he had thought she was afraid of him.

As she dressed, skipping a bath in her hurry, the sensible side of her took the upper hand. He had been hateful to her and she was going to punish him. But she must keep her temper. She had got to live her own life. And she had now been given this wonderful chance by Mr.
Albery. This ridiculous game was only for a short time; but being Mr.
Albery's personal secretary might mean a career.

the nation's public debt amounted to $28,042,870,220. Average annual interest charges were figured at $798,355,700—or 2.85 per cent. This is the lowest average rate paid by the Treasury since 1916—and a drop from 2.95 per cent at the end of '34.
It's worth noting that annual inter-steady pressure for cheaper—borrowing is getting results.

The President's share-the-wealth tax program gains importance from the fiscal viewpoint if you look at it as applied to the cost of carrying the national debt. $340,000,000 seems picaresque compared to $28,000,000, —but it's almost 44 per cent of the yearly interest charge. That's quite a burden to lift from the shoulders of smaller taxpayers. New York insiders are confident the White House had this angle in mind and will emphasize it for the public's benefit when the time is ripe.

From another slant the proposed levies on the wealthy would be an approximate offset to the interest we will never collect on $11,000,000,
—of defaulted war deb.

HERRING: People in the higher income brackets have never been what you could call keen for the soldiers' bonus. But they are likely to have cause for gratitude to the vet's pet issue before they're through.

Reports that the Patman bonus bill will be revived trace to opponents of the tax plan. Conservative string-pullers see it as a useful herring to divert Congress from the soak-the-rich trail. The legislators are usually willing to forget other game when their favorite political quarry is in sight. Strategists behind this maneuver have no fear whatever that the Patman measure will become law. They figure there's no more chance than before to get it past a veto. Their purpose is simply to stir up an argument that will keep the tax question on the shelf until Congress is ready to go home.

A couple of months ago conservatives would have rated it dangerous to juxtapose the ideas of an inheritance tax and a bonus—as Secretary Morgenthau once did. But not now. FDR wants the tax for o'er purposes and they count on friction between him and Congress to prevent positive action combining it with the bonus—or for that matter positive action on either issue alone.

THE PIG IN THE BAG

The proposed so-called liquor control measure that some of the counties in North Carolina are asked to adopt is a pig in the bag.

What You Find When You Open the Bag

1. It is not a liquor control measure in any sense of the word, but it will increase the consumption of liquor with all its attendant evils at least fifty per cent.

2. It will not stop bootlegging, but encourage it, as the bootlegger can sell his product at least $2.00 per gallon cheaper than the saloons and make more profit on it.

3. It will put the county into the business of running saloons and all who vote for it will share the responsibility. "Woe unto them that justify the wicked for a bribe."

4. It will give to the liquor board unlimited power to spend the county's money in establishing and running these saloons. They may establish as many as they please, where they please, even beside every church and school. They may pay any price they please to any person they please for any lot or building they please, and the taxpayers must furnish the money.

DOUBLE HEADER SCHEDULED FOR FOURTH OF JULY

After the game with Williamston had been rained out here yesterday, The Greenville Coastal Plain league club moved to Kinston today to attempt to give their rivals a setback in their second place position.

The league leaders will meet Kinston with "Ty" Wagner, the new manager, playing his first game in that capacity, and the fight is expected to be a great one. Wagner was scheduled to make his debut as manager against Williamston yesterday, but rain interfered.

The team has been idle since last Saturday when they beat Goldsboro with "Bo" Farley, retiring manager playing his last game at the third sack.

No indication had been given out today who would take up Farley's place at the hot corner, but club leaders have been scouting around for several days attempting to fill the place with a fast fielder and good batter.

Tomorrow will find Kinston playing here. The Fourth of July will see a double header with Greenville playing at Ayden in the morning and Ayden here in the afternoon. These old rivals always reserve the Fourth for renewal of hostilities and the two battles are expected to be among the best of the year.

AYDEN BEATS TARBORO

Tarboro, July 2.—Doc Smith's Ayden club bunched its offensive in two innings to defeat Tarboro's cellarites 6-5 in the only game played yesterday in the Coastal Plain League.

Rain blocked two scheduled contests, while the New Bern-Goldsboro game previously had been switched to July 14 as a Sunday attraction.

Tarboro rallied in the ninth to score three runs, but the rally was halted, in time to permit Ayden to come off with victory.

Woody Upchurch, southpaw, pitched the route for the winners, yielding seven hits. Upchurch was a true left hander in the fifth, an inning in which he walked three and fanned three. Pinch-hitter McArthur opened the stanza with a single and then stole second. Upchurch fanned Chumbris and Male, and then walked Bassin, Knobe, and Burnette to force in a run. He fanned Averette to end the inning.

Ayden won with a two-run party in the eighth. With one away. Check staged and went to second when Burnette errored. Collins filed out. Doc Smith was purposely passed, and Upchurch drew a free ticket to fill the sacks. Dallas Morris lifted a fly to left, two runs counting when Averette errored.

The visitors made four in the third by bunched hits. Wall tripped after Morris had fanned Faust, Johnson, Knowles, and Atkins delivered successive doubles, and the barrage meant the end of the day's work for John Epple, starting Tarboro hurler. Epple this spring was the ace of the Amherst College team. George Wood, University of Maryland hurler, replaced Epple. Wood fanned Check, but Collins singled to bat in Atkins.

Wood went out for a pinch-hitter in the fifth, and Guan took over the hurling assignment, for Tarboro at the start of the sixth.

Tarboro counted in the first, on a walk to Chumbris and a triple by Bassin. The locals' ninth-inning rally was started when Diggs, a pinch-hitter, singled. Chumbris walked. Male hit a long double to send in two tallies, and Male scored on Bassin's single. Bassin was thrown out when he tried to stretch his blow to a double. Knobe grounded out to end the game.

Dwight Wall of Ayden and Harry Bassin, rival centerfielders, were the fielding stars. Collins, with a double and a single, led Ayden's attack. Bassin, with a triple and a single, led Tarboro.

Barley and May Lead 'Flingers' of Local Club

George Barley, "fireball" flinger of Duke University, led the local Coastal Plain league club on the mound today with five wins and no losses to his credit.

He was equaled by Reynolds May, also crack Duke University moundsman, from the standpoint of percentage, although May has not taken part in as many games because of illness. Out of the three games he has pitched May is credited with as many wins.

"Chubby" Dean and Williams, the latter a recent acquisition to the club, had an average of 1000 to their credit. Dean having won both of the two games pitched and Williams ranged all the way down to the bottom, one or two being near the perfect mark and other registering zero.

Greenville, without boasting, has one of the best pitching staffs of the circuit, this season, and although some of the boys apparently haven't been able to unlimber very well so far, they are expected to get going at full speed ahead in the near future.

The pitching record as compiled by R. O. Moye, official scorekeeper follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Barley	5	0	.1000
May	3	0	.1000
Dean	2	0	.1000

MAY STILL LEADS CLUB WITH STICK

Reynolds May, crack hurler of the Greenville club of the Coastal Plain league, continued to hold the lead with the bat today, although he was followed closely by "Ty" Wagner, catcher, and newly elected manager of the outfit. The entire team average is 300.

Participating in five games, May Teams average..... 726 218 300

Ladies' Golf Tournament Begins Here

Pairings for play in the annual ladies' tournament at the country club were announced today and those taking part have been urged to play their matches during the week. Handicaps will be posted at the clubhouse.

The play which takes place annually for the president's cup always draws much interest among the ladies and the outcome is being watched with interest.

The following pairs have been drawn:

Miss Bessie Brown vs. Mrs. J. Knott Proctor.
Mrs. J. J. Summerell vs. Mrs. Curtis Perkins.
Miss Estelle Greene vs. Miss Elizabeth Kasey.
Miss Nancy Lee Summerell, bye.

SPORT SLANTS

It has taken Hank Leiber some time to live up to the promise he showed when he first reported to the Giants in Los Angeles three years ago. The husky Arizona made a fine impression on John McGraw with the way he stood up there at the plate and took his cut. One peek at Leiber in action even then was enough to convince anyone that he was a natural slugger.

There isn't a right-handed batter in the National league today who hits the ball harder than Leiber does. He seems to have found his real stride and his average is going to soar if he keeps on getting the two and three hits he has been pounding out per game of late.

Hank hits the ball on a line, but in the early games was not getting many greases. Many of his drives that went for put-outs would have been extra-base hits had they been placed a few feet to either side. Outfielders and infielders were robbing him of hits with spectacular catches.

The law of averages now seems to be working in his favor for his drives are dropping where the fielders cannot lay a hand on them. One-fourth of his hits to date have been extra-base clouts.

Arizona Varsileer

To make his hitting more deadly Leiber seems to have found the range of the park walls. In a recent game against the St. Louis Cardinals he hit a pair of home runs, one of them just about the longest ever hit in the Polo grounds.

It struck the balcony railing some 425 feet from home plate.

Leiber was a great athlete at the University of Arizona and no shrinking violet when it came to estimating his own ability. Hank thought he was a good ball player when he first struck the Giants' training camp and wanted everyone to know about it. He is one of the most powerful men in the game.

Their Honeymooning Delays Legislature

rather than interfere with the honeymoon of House Speaker W. B. Wilson (bottom) and his bride, the former Lottia Saxon Myers of Memphis (top), Gov. Hill McAlister of Tennessee postponed the opening of the state legislature from July 8 to July 15. (Associated Press Photos)

It has taken him quite some time to polish off the rough edges and to develop the balance and steadiness necessary to a big league regular. Now that he has finally begun to click in a big way it is a feather in Terry's cap for the Giants' manager was confident that Leiber would come through if given enough time.

Better Against Cards

The league leading Giants have shown considerable improvement over their last year's showing against the Cardinals, at least in the first seven games. Last year the Giants managed to win only one game out of the first seven played but this year the situation is reversed for they have taken five from the St. Louis world champions.

The Cardinals still look like the one team capable of making it interesting for the Giants. If the Cardinals are counting on another garrison finish to pull them through again this fall they had better get that idea out of their heads. The Giants pack more power and have not been playing under the terrific pressure that broke their backs last year and so are hardly likely to crack wide open again.

In ringing up his ninth victory of the season at the expense of the Cardinals, Carl Hubbell can boast of a victory over every club in the league except Brooklyn.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE OF LAND

Under and by virtue of an order of the Superior Court of Pitt County, made in the Special Proceeding entitled "Frank Wilson, Administrator of W. B. Wilson, deceased, vs. Lizzie B. Wilson, Widow, and Francis Q. Wilson and others, heirs-at-law of W. B. Wilson, deceased," the same being No. 3514 upon the Special Proceeding docket of said court, the undersigned commissioner will on Saturday, July 6th, 1935 at 12 o'clock Noon before the court house door in Greenville, N. C., offer for sale to the highest bidder for cash those certain lots or parcels of land lying and being just south of the corporate limits of the town of Greenville, N. C., in that suburban section known as the "Bama," said lots being more specifically described as follows:

FREE ROAD TO M. T. MITCHELL NOW PLANNED

State Highway Commission Considering Opening Up Mountain Top to Visitors

Raleigh, July 2.—A free road to the top of Mount Mitchell, the highest mountain peak in eastern America and on the summit of which the state has set aside one of its few state parks, is the next objective of Chairman Capus M. Waynick of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, he indicated here as he left for Manteo to confer with Dare county commissioners with regard to removing tolls from the last toll bridge in the state—the Dare county bridge leading from the Nags Head highway across to Roanoke Island. Negotiations have already been completed for the purchase of Wright Memorial Bridge by the State Highway and Public Works Commission and the tolls will be taken off that bridge the night of July 3, so that it will be free to the public on the morning of July 4. Chairman Waynick also hopes that the tolls may be removed from the Dare county bridge at the same time and the state thus remove all tolls from the last remaining bridges at this time.

But it is still necessary to pay a heavy toll to drive over the road from Black Mountain to the top of Mount Mitchell, since this road is still privately owned. It is also a one-way road so that it is possible to drive up in the morning only and to come down in the afternoon. Many believe it is just as essential to have a free road to the top of Mt. Mitchell as to have free bridges to the beaches in the east and Chairman Waynick is in agreement with this view.

State Highway 103, leading from Marion to Micanville and Burnsville, runs within five or six miles of the top of Mt. Mitchell and people of that section have long wanted the Highway Commission to build a state highway to the top of this mountain and to the state park on its summit which cannot now be enjoyed unless people can afford to pay the excessive tolls on the toll road. Some believe that those who are financially interested in the toll road have been active in fighting any move for a free state highway to the top of Mt. Mitchell. But Chairman Waynick spent almost a week last week up in Yancey county and at the state game refuge maintained by the Department of Conservation and Development on the South Toe river, only five miles from the top of Mt. Mitchell.

As a result, Chairman Waynick for the first time came into direct contact with this particular section and had a first-hand opportunity to study the needs and see the possibilities of this section. At the present time there are two National Forest Service foot and horse trails leading from the state game refuge to the top of Mt. Mitchell and the forest and game wardens tramp over these trails almost every day or ride over them on horseback. But there are thousands of people who would like to visit the top of Mount Mitchell who do not feel able to make the long hike to the top or even to ride up it on horseback. These people would like to see a state highway built to the top so they could drive up in their automobiles.

BRIDGE TOLLS TO BE TAKEN OFF JULY 4

Highway Commission Sees Removal of Fees on Two Bridges in East Section

Raleigh, July 2.—Efforts are to be made by the State Highway and Public Works Commission to remove all tolls from the Dare county bridge, leading from the Nags Head highway across to Roanoke Island and Manteo, as well as from the Wright Memorial Bridge by July 4, Chairman Capus M. Waynick of the commission said here today. He is going to Manteo Tuesday for a conference with the Dare county commissioners in an effort to reach an agreement for the removal of the bridge tolls on this bridge which was built by the county. The 1935 general assembly, however, passed an act to permit the highway commission to negotiate an agreement with the county to take over the bridge and remove the tolls.

The commission has already completed its agreement to purchase the Wright Memorial Bridge for $150,000 and the tolls will be removed from this bridge at sundown, July 3, Chairman Waynick said today. It is hoped that the conference with the Dare county commissioners Tuesday will result in the working out of a plan that will make it possible to remove the tolls from the Dare county bridge so that by July 4 it will be possible to drive all the way from Currituck to Manteo, across both the Wright Memorial and Dare county bridges, without having to pay any tolls. When these tolls are removed, there will be no other toll bridge left in the state and it will be possible to drive to any section of the state without having to pay any bridge tolls.

Last summer the State Highway and Public Works Commission purchased the toll bridges leading from Wilmington to Wrightsville Beach and from Morehead City to Atlantic Beach and made them free to the public so that people could drive to these two leading beaches without having to pay any tolls. It will now be possible to drive to Kill Devil Hill, Nags Head and Manteo without having to pay any bridge tolls. The highway commission has been negotiating for the purchase of the Wright Memorial bridge for more than a year.

YOU'LL LIKE THEIR MILDNESS TOO!

Because Camels are so mild...made from more costly tobaccos than any other popular brand...you can smoke all you please. Athletes are agreed that Camels do not jangle the nerves or get the wind. You'll never tire of their appealing flavor.

SO MILD YOU CAN SMOKE ALL YOU WANT
