

Britain Will Not Permit Exportation Of Armaments

BANS SENDING ARMS TO ITALY OR ETHIOPIA

Transit of Arms Across British Territory Will be Permitted; Government Doing its Best to Bring Peace to Warring Areas; French Government Takes Same Action

London, July 25.—(AP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary, announced in the House of Commons today that the British government for the present will not grant license for the exportation of arms from Great Britain to either Italy or Ethiopia.

He said that the transit across the British territory of arms destined for Ethiopia, however, would be permitted.

"The government," said Sir Samuel, "is doing its best to make possible the peaceful outcome of the present unhappy dispute and would not wish to do anything which might prejudice the situation so it will therefore for the present, not issue license for the export of arms from this country to either Italy or Ethiopia."

Said the foreign secretary: "The French government, I understand, interpreted its obligation under the treaty in the same manner."

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and leading members of his cabinet were represented as favoring full league action provided other powers agree as a last resort to avert war between Italy and Ethiopia.

The time limit for appointment of the fifth arbitrator to the deadlocked conciliation commission expires tonight, apparently killing all hope of settling the crisis by direct negotiation.

Some circles said that Anthony Eden will go to Geneva for a League of Nations council session about July 31, empowered to say that Great Britain is ready, if no other alternative can be found, to stand by all of its obligations under the League covenant.

Political circles said that Eden, an ardent champion at Geneva as minister of the League of Nations foreign affairs, had been given virtually a free hand to present Britain's views at the momentous session.

HELD AS WITNESS ON MANN ACT CHARGE

Kinston, July 25.—U. S. Commissioner W. H. Sutton announced today that he had ordered Julia Mae Autry, an attractive young woman, committed to the Wake county jail at Raleigh as a material witness against Burt Robinson, charged with violation of the Mann Act. Robinson is alleged to have taken Miss Autry to South Carolina for immoral purposes. Sutton said officers planned to investigate alleged mistreatment of the woman by a man in the Pamlico river section, where she spent some time after Robinson's arrest.

OFFICER BREAKS LEG CHASING PETTY THIEF

Fayetteville, July 25.—While chasing a negro charged with stealing a dollar watch, Constable W. A. Underwood slipped on a stick and broke a leg in the fall when the stick turned under him. He was taking the negro, Lawrence Gilchrist, from Magistrate J. A. Clifton's office to the county jail when the prisoner broke and ran, dodging into an alley behind the courthouse. Underwood will be in the hospital two or three weeks.

LABOR LEADER ARRESTED ON DISORDERLY CHARGE

Fayetteville, July 25.—Joe Dooley, well-known labor leader, was arrested and placed in jail here tonight on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. The arrest was made on the Lumberton road by rural policeman Raymond Edge. Dooley was released on bond furnished by J. R. Harrison.

Dooley has taken a prominent part in organization of labor unions in Eastern Carolina. He conducted a labor meeting here a few nights ago.

Fight On State Taxes May Delay Opening Of Georgia Tobacco Mart

Atlanta, July 25.—(AP)—A threat of delay in opening of Georgia tobacco auctions August 1 appeared today as a group of warehousemen moved to attack the state's right to regulate the industry by prescribing maximum fees to be charged growers.

Forty-four warehouse representatives prepared to go before the U. S. District Court at Macon today seeking an injunction against enforcement of the state act regulating fees.

As the litigation was prepared Commissioner of Agriculture Thos. Linder said he hoped tobacco growers will not put a single pound of tobacco on the market August 1 if the injunction is granted.

The warehousemen charged the fees fixed by the legislature will produce reductions of 20 to 30 per cent in their earnings and will put them out of business. They contend the act is unconstitutional and attacked it on various other grounds.

SMITH TO LOOK OVER FOREIGN COTTON MART

Georgia Statesman Denies Charges That Foreign Markets Are Taking American

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—Angered by statements which he doubts that foreign cotton growers are winning America's market, Chairman Smith, Democrat of South Carolina, of the Senate Agricultural Committee, said today he would "visit the cotton growing countries and find out first hand."

He listed India, Russia, Brazil and Argentina and said he might travel in part by air.

"Cotton growers have been told that if they force the price of cotton too high, other countries would come in and take the market," he said. "I don't believe it."

"America has a monopoly on the best cotton and should be in a position to set the price."

Some circles said that Anthony Eden will go to Geneva for a League of Nations council session about July 31, empowered to say that Great Britain is ready, if no other alternative can be found, to stand by all of its obligations under the League covenant.

League Again Asked to Stop War in Africa

Geneva, July 25.—(AP)—A new note again requesting urgently a session of the council of the League of Nations was received from Ethiopia today, a short time after the publication of an Italian note blaming Ethiopia for the breakdown in conciliation efforts.

The Ethiopian note, the text of which was not made public immediately by the League, protests against Italy's action and declares the League of Nations council should discuss the Italo-Ethiopian dispute in its entirety.

The case was not filed in the court but the petition as handed to Judge Deaver for his perusal apparently to determine if it can be filed properly in court.

The paper as prepared by attorneys for 44 tobacco warehouses, was designed as a petition.

Agree On New Tax Bill

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—A tentative agreement on a new tax bill to raise around $200,000,000 a year, but which does not include the inter-corporation dividend tax proposed by the President was reached today by House ways and means committee Democrats.

The tentative measure would put heavier taxes on all individual incomes over $150,000, inheritances over $50,000 left to close of kin, the profits that a corporation makes above 8 or 10 per cent on its capital and on corporation income.

The tentative decision to include the last, if it is not overturned subsequently, is a partial victory for the President. He proposed that the present flat 13-3-4 per cent tax on all corporation income be replaced with a graduated levy ranging from 10-3-4 to 16-3-4.

Chairman Doughton, Democrat of North Carolina, asserted that the range "probably will be much narrower than that—maybe from 13-3-4 to 14-1-4."

He added too that the Democrats had decided not to include an increase in the present one-tenth of one per cent tax on inter corporate dividends.

The inheritance tax rates would begin at 4 per cent on the first $10,000 above an exemption and reach 75 per cent of that part of inheritance over $10,000,000.

The individual income tax plan would raise from 53 to 54 per cent the present surtax on individual exemptions. The maximum rate on incomes over $10,000,000 would be 75 per cent against the present 59.

To all those rates must be added the existing normal tax of 4 per cent which applies to the first $4,000 of every taxable income.

AUTO TAKEN BY YEGGMEN IS LOCATED

Charred Body of Machine Stolen From Joe Brown Found at Sanford

Local officers today had abandoned the theory that three men arrested in Raleigh as suspects in the unsuccessful robbery of two stores and shooting of Policeman John Mobley here the early part of last week, actually had anything to do with the crime.

This statement was made following the return of Police Chief George Clark and Sheriff Sam Whitehurst from Sanford where the charred frame of the car stolen from Joe Brown, colored, and in which the bandits escaped, was found in the woods near Sanford. The machine was identified by the motor number.

The officers said they believed the bandits set fire to the machine and then disappeared into another state in a machine stolen at Sanford. Police at Sanford revealed a machine was stolen from there the night following the attempted robbery here, and concluded the bandits were responsible for the theft.

The men held for an automobile theft at Raleigh and questioned in connection with the attempted robbery here, were Ray and J. D. Chappell of Raleigh, and W. C. Beaman of Wilmington. They were given preliminary hearing this week in Raleigh and held for Wake county court.

With the Raleigh trio out of the picture, officers today turned their attention to other parts of the country for apprehension of the trio. Police in all sections have been notified of the crime here and have been advised to keep their eyes open for men answering the description furnished them.

After abandoning a machine which they stole at Wilmington, the bandits here stopped Brown on the Washington road, tied him to a tree a short distance from town on the Farmville road and then disappeared in the machine.

In two gun battles, one in front of two wholesale establishments on Railroad street, the bandits shot Policeman John Mobley through both arms and a leg. The officer was reported as improving rapidly at the local hospital where he was rushed by police immediately after the shooting. It was while Mobley was being carried to the hospital that the bandits halted Brown, took his car and came back through town and escaped out the Farmville road.

Although they blasted a safe in one of the wholesale houses, they were unable to reach the money boxes. They had just entered the other store when Mobley walked up and the gun fight ensued.

It is highly important that this matter be acted upon at once, Mayor Flanagan stated, in view of the fact that this will probably be the last chance the city will have in years to obtain funds through this source.

Under the plan the city pays one-third of paving operations and property owners on each side of the affected street a third each.

Quiet a number of petitions have already been filed with the board calling for both paving and curbing and gutter work in various parts of the city. All have been referred to the street committee for consideration and will be acted upon as soon as the total amount of such work required here has been determined and the loan and grant are received.

Although quite a number of such projects have been completed here in recent years it is impossible for the city government to take care of an enlarged program without applying for government aid. Part of the sum sought by the city is in the form of a direct grant and the other a loan.

CITY SEEKING IMPROVEMENT OF STREETS

Federal Grant and Loan Sought For Street and Curbing Gutter Operations

Mayor R. C. Flanagan has returned from Raleigh where he went Tuesday to ascertain details of the law providing for PWA loans and grants for paving operations in the various towns and cities of the country.

The Mayor who conferred at considerable length with officials of the local government commission said they were in sympathy with the plan of the city to obtain a grant and loan for such operations here and planned to co-operate with the municipality in every way possible.

In view of the movement to provide pavement in every part of the city where desired, the mayor said the board of aldermen was at this time considering petitions of this nature, and urged all persons desiring street paving or curb and gutter improvements to file their petitions with the board as soon as possible. This request is made, he said, so the aldermen will be able to determine the exact amount of money needed for such operations here. He asked that persons not familiar with the method of filing petitions apply to City Clerk J. O. Duval for advice.

It is highly important that this matter be acted upon at once, Mayor Flanagan stated, in view of the fact that this will probably be the last chance the city will have in years to obtain funds through this source.

NEW ATTACK DIRECTED AT GRADING BILL

Opponents Seek to Eliminate Compulsory Features of Flanagan Measure

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—An attempt to eliminate compulsory features of the Flanagan tobacco inspection grading bill was made today as the senate continued consideration of the measure.

Opponents planned an amendment striking out all compulsory features and provisions for penalties.

Lead by Representative Clark, Democrat, of North Carolina, the opposition based its attack on the contention the measure as now written would be unconstitutional. A colleague, Rep. Humstead, of North Carolina, was to offer the emasculating amendments.

"It is not interstate commerce to say this pile of tobacco is grade 4 and his one is grade 5," said Clark yesterday as he branded the measure "the most unconstitutional bill ever proposed in this house."

The measure would provide compulsory grading on markets designated by the Agricultural secretary but producers would be permitted by referendum to decide whether the majority wanted the service.

Reveries Charged With Slaying of Zibe Barnhill, aged Bethel negro, about a year ago and had been at liberty until he was taken into custody by Norfolk officers Monday.

He was returned to Greenville the next day in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Preston Pierce. He did not resist extradition, the officer said.

Reveries was said to have hit Barnhill in the head with a club during an argument near Bethel. Barnhill died several days later, and his assailant, who had been placed under light bond, disappeared.

The first warrant issued against the negro charged assault with a deadly weapon but this was changed to read murder before the local officer left for Norfolk to return Reveries to the county jail.

The defendant will be given a hearing during the latter part of the week, or the first of next.

ROOSEVELT TO SPEAK AT BOY SCOUT 'MEET'

Address by the President to be Feature of Opening Day of National Jamboree

Plans for the International Jamboree of Boy Scouts, assembling 30,000 boys here August 21-30, were discussed over a White House luncheon table recently by President Roosevelt and Lord Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout Movement.

President Roosevelt was said by the "Chief Scouts of the World" to have promised to address the boys on the opening day at the conclusion of a review during which the normal procedure will be reversed.

Instead of the boys marching for hours along sun-baked Pennsylvania Avenue under the broiling August sun, the President will ride down the avenue while 1,000 troops of Scouts from all parts of the world stand at attention and salute.

Then the boys will mass ranks on the south grounds of the White House—their chief said that the President called the place "the back yard"—where Mr. Roosevelt will address them.

Lord Baden-Powell inspected the camp site assigned for the Jamboree and pronounced it excellent. The encampment will spread over Arlington, Columbia Island, East Potomac Park and the cricket ground. Accommodations are being prepared for the 1,000 Scouts, one-tenth of the world membership, who will live in what is planned as a model encampment near the Memorial Highway, across the Potomac river, in Virginia.

"I found what I had not seen before, a camp ground ready at the time when it was supposed to be a field," Chief Scout said. "The site is perfect. The kitchen is almost luxurious with its dry ice refrigerator and running water."

James E. West, Chief Scout Executive for the United States, pointed out that, in contrast with many other conventions which have come to Washington, the Boy Scouts are paying for all the facilities they will use and have not asked for financial aid either from the government or the District of Columbia.

Lord Baden-Powell, who has just come from a Far Eastern Scout Jamboree in Australia, said that he could not promise to return here for the International Jamboree because he would have to sail from New York soon to attend a conference in Stockholm. In his absence the senior member of the Jamboree will be Uncle Dan Beard, who will be honorary chief of the encampment.

Beginning Monday this paper will print a special Question-Answer feature several times each week in regards to the "On To Washington" Scout Jamboree project.

DISORDERLY CONDUCT BRINGS 90-DAY TERM

Smithfield, July 25.—Just for lack of good sense, William Reeves, 40-year-old colored man, was held in the county jail today on a charge of first degree murder following his return from Norfolk this week by county officers.

Reveries was charged with slaying of Zibe Barnhill, aged Bethel negro, about a year ago and had been at liberty until he was taken into custody by Norfolk officers Monday.

He was returned to Greenville the next day in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Preston Pierce. He did not resist extradition, the officer said.

NEW FILLING STATION TAX YIELDS MORE

Belief in Raleigh is That Chain Tax May Now Bring in $400,000 Annually

Reflector Bureau.
Slt. Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, July 25.—The big gasoline and oil companies, as well as tire and battery dealers which operate chain stores and service stations, are going to have to "kick in" to the tune of about $500,000 a year in state taxes under the chain filling and service station section of the new 1935 Revenue Act as the result of the ruling just issued by Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell, interpreting the new chain filling station tax section, according to the number of state officials here. During the general assembly it was estimated that this tax would yield only about $300,000 a year at the most. But the belief now is that it will probably yield nearer $500,000 a year.

For as the chain filling station tax section is interpreted by Commissioner Maxwell, parent gasoline and oil corporations will be required to pay the tax on the following stations:

1. All the stations which the parent companies own and operate.
2. All the stations which they lease from the owners and from which they dispense only their own products.
3. All stations in which the parent companies furnish the equipment and require the operators to sign contracts requiring them to sell only such gasoline, oil and accessories manufactured or distributed by the parent companies.

There is not the slightest doubt but that the law applies to all filling and service stations either owned or leased by the parent companies. Mr. Maxwell said today. He also holds that the law applies to all stations controlled by contracts in which the operators are required to sell only those products manufactured or distributed by the parent companies and which prohibit the operators from selling other brands of gasoline, oils and accessories. Tire and battery manufacturers which have contracts with filling station operators prohibiting them from selling any other makes of tires or batteries will also be subject to the chain filling station tax, which also applies to "tires, tools, batteries, electrical equipment, automotive accessories or motor fuels and lubricants." The law further stipulates that "control of the brands of merchandise sold at any service station by the vendor of any one or more of these articles of merchandise constitutes liability for the tax."

Thus if a filling station is owned by the operator, but he has contract which requires him to sell only Gulf gasoline and Gulf products, Goodrich tires and Exide batteries, and no other brands, then the Gulf Refining Company, the Goodrich Rubber Company and the Exide Battery Company must each pay the chain filling station tax on this station. The tax to be determined by the number of owned, leased or contract stations over which they exercise control. But if this service station owner has a contract which permits him to sell some other brand of oil, or tires, or batteries, then the station is classed as an independent operator and the station is not subject to the chain filling station tax.

For several months now a good many of the large gasoline and oil companies have changed their contracts to permit station operators to sell other brands of gasoline, oils, tires, batteries and so forth, so that these smaller stations would not be subject to the chain filling station tax. But reliable reports here are to the effect that a number of these companies are going back to the iron-clad contracts, limiting the operators of these stations to the sale of their products only, regardless of the tax. The reason for this, according to those in a position to know, is that if larger gasoline and oil companies do not limit retail station operators and require them to sell only their own trademarked products, they will immediately open themselves up to greater competition from independent wholesalers and refiners and no longer be able to dictate retail prices and exercise control over retail prices. This loosening up of contract would also open up the field for price wars and price cutting. So in order to keep control of retail prices, which now admittedly amounts to a virtual monopoly, the belief is that the larger companies will pay the chain tax. They will then, in all probability, raise prices enough to pass it along to the public and make a little profit on it.

GLAZED QUILTED CHINTZ MAKES EVENING FROCK

London (AP)—One of the most remarkable models shown at the first summer dress parade this season was an evening frock of glazed quilted chintz. This material is likely to be used extensively, not only for dresses but for evening coats and short jackets.

Another show included evening frocks and coats of hand-blocked printed linen. Straps and belts were of dull silver set with semi-precious stones.

HOUNDED BY TRAGEDY'S JINX

There are not many more tragic tricks left for persistent ill fortune to play on George Umbach, an acquaintance of Marlene Dietrich, the film actress, when both lived in Germany. First, his baby died of malnutrition because of his poverty. When he lost his job as a janitor in New York, he and his wife, said to have been the daughter of a university professor, made their home in a huge storm drain pipe near Palisades, N. J. Then a terrific storm came up and two were drowned. On top of all that, the government is about to deport him to Germany for illegal entry. (Associated Press Photo)

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—In the whirl of congressional activity, which has engulfed Washington for the past several months, scant attention has been given two coming events of possible real political significance.

They are two congressional elections—one in Rhode Island and the other probably in Ohio—which promise to furnish the first tests of administration policies at the polls since they have been subjected to such withering fire from the courts and mounting opposition from opponents of the "new deal."

In the first congressional district of Rhode Island, on August 6, a special election is to be held for the purpose of filling the vacancy in the House left by the resignation of Rep. Francis B. Condon, Democrat, to become a member of the State Supreme Court.

Since Rhode Island has only two representatives in the House this election should afford a fairly good cross-section of the state's sentiment on administration policies. The last census gives the population of this district as 341,016.

Democrats Confident

While the result of the election itself might not be so important, the psychological effect can't be denied. The leaders of both parties with this in mind, are reported to be making an extraordinary effort to get out as large a vote as possible.

Democratic headquarters here appear confident. They point to the fact that in 1932 the Democratic majority in this district was more than 14,000 votes. In 1934 it was increased to more than 21,000. Their prediction is that a Democrat will win handily with the vote being normal for an off year.

Any appreciable Republican gain, however, would be certain to have repercussions in political circles. G. O. P. politicians would be quick to interpret it to their own advantage. Such things are difficult for the party in power to answer convincingly. Back in 1930, when the Democrats began their march to power by capturing such districts as that held for so long by former Speaker Gillett in Massachusetts and Joseph Fordney of Indiana, everyone seemed to sense that the skids had been put under G. O. P.

Republicans undoubtedly would endeavor to make political capital

should a reversal of form be shown in Rhode Island.

A Possible Ohio Test

Another test for the "new deal" in advance of the big show in '36 looms in the third congressional district of Ohio. Rep. Byron Harlan, a Democrat, is expected to vacate his seat soon for appointment to the bench.

The two Ohio senators—Bulkley and Donahey—have recommended that the President appoint Harlan to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

If Harlan is appointed, the plans are to hold a special election this fall to fill the vacancy. Such an election has all the earmarks of being a real test of administration policies. The third Ohio district takes in Dayton and Hamilton, two industrial centers as well as several farming communities.

The Chairman of the Board

MAKES A REQUEST

LAST September at a Directors' Meeting of the American Oil Company, the Chairman of the Board made a request. He said: "Gentlemen, I want to talk a few minutes on a subject very close to my heart. You know, next year—in July 1935—we celebrate the 25th Anniversary of our company.

"As we look back at our small beginning and the progress made in 25 years, we should realize one thing. We owe much of our growth to the motorists who bought and liked our products. I feel, in celebrating our anniversary, we should do something that further merits the continued support of those motorist friends.

"We have a new refinery that's the last word in every respect. Our chemists have a lot of new ideas. Let us put both refinery and chemists to work on some new things. Let's first try to improve Amoco-Gas—if that is possible. And then let us bring out a new regular gasoline—something modern, different from and ahead of any other regular gas on the market.

"Perhaps we will be asking a lot; I imagine most of our people think we are turning out just about the best products it is possible to produce. But for this important 25th Anniversary year, let us strive still further to better both of these products."

THE ANSWER... TWO SILVER ANNIVERSARY ACHIEVEMENTS!

MARCH 1935! GREATER AMOCO-GAS!

The opening achievement for American's 25th Anniversary! An improvement in the famous Amoco, the original special motor fuel that holds more official world's records than any other gas or motor fuel. Hundreds of thousands of motorists have proved to themselves that GREATER AMOCO-GAS is the biggest gallon of motor fuel on the market. It takes less fuel to get more results.

JULY 1935! ANNOUNCEMENT SOON!

In a day or two, announcement will be made of our second achievement for American's 25th Anniversary. It's a radical improvement in another famous American Oil Company product—Orange AMERICAN GAS. This new regular gasoline is different from and superior to any other regular gasoline on the market. Watch for our announcement! It means a lot to your motor and a lot more to you! It's a real new note in regular price gasoline!

She didn't promise to shovel coal...

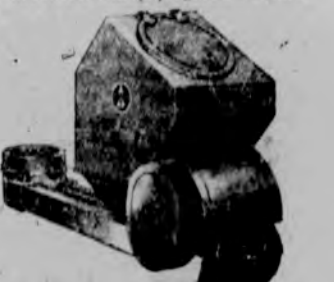

It's difficult to picture her as she looked that day—shoveling coal into a basement furnace or boiler. Few men care to have their wives stoking a fire—few wives care to do it.

Now they don't have to!

A Fairbanks-Morse Automatic Stoker will release you and your family from the distasteful task of tending fires. You fill the hopper at night and then can leave the next morning with the assurance that your family will enjoy even temperatures in the house all day long without going through the furnace.

And not only this greater convenience of living is yours, but a positive saving on your fuel bills—often as much as 45%. Even firing means less waste of coal. And this Fairbanks-Morse Stoker will use cheaper grades of fuel than you could use otherwise.

One of our experienced heating men, without obligation on your part, will be pleased to tell you all about this Fairbanks-Morse Stoker. And explain the convenient purchase plan which enables you to have the stoker while paying from income.

Correction in Frank Wilson's Ad.

The semi-annual shirt and pajama sale advertisement of Frank Wilson, the King Clothier, carried in the columns of this paper Monday, it was stated that $2.00 values were being offered for $1.85. James Fleming

Given Award In

Test In French

James L. Fleming of Greenville, member of the faculty of Guilford College, has been honored for his knowledge of the French language. It was revealed here today.

Fleming, who has been attending the French Institute of Emory University at Atlanta, Ga., along with three other students, was awarded what is known as the French "ambassador's medal," at special exercises at the end of the summer term at the Georgia university.

The medals were presented by Monsieur Charles Loridan, French consul, given by himself and by Monsieur Andre De Labrykaye, French ambassador at Washington, in recognition for excellence in the French language. Fleming and the other four young men made the highest grades in a competitive test.

Young Fleming is on a leave of absence of one year from Guilford College, where he is head of the department of French, and plans to spend much of his time here at the home of his mother, Mrs. J. L. Fleming, and in study in other parts of the country.

He started his educational career in Greenville public schools. From here he went to Wake Forest College, later going to France where he studied and taught over a period of three years. He was in Paris two years.

While in France he studied at the Alliance Francaise where he obtained his degree. He was also a "fellow" at the State Normal in Southern France. His third year was spent at the University of Paris where he received high ranking in the study of the French language.

BITE OF RATTLESNAKE

FATAL TO YOUNG MAN

Asheville, July 25.—(AP)—Funeral rites for Eugene Good, 22, of Swannanoa, who died yesterday less than 24 hours after he had been bitten by a rattlesnake, will be conducted this afternoon at the Riceville Presbyterian church and burial will be in the Hughey Cemetery.

Mr. Good, who was working on wire fence construction when he was struck by the unusually large snake, was given first aid by Scott Lilly, a Swannanoa College professor, who lives near the scene. The victim was then rushed to an Asheville hospital.

Mrs. Scales Club Hostess.

Wednesday morning at her home on West Fourth street, Mrs. W. M. Scales was a charming hostess to members of her bridge club.

A yellow color note was used in the decorations, sunflowers making an artistic setting for the bridge tables.

Concluding the game, Mrs. E. J. Garrett was awarded an attractive prize for high score.

Mrs. B. B. Sugg, Mrs. J. L. Kilgo, Mrs. J. K. Brown and Mrs. C. S. Forbes joined the other guests for the luncheon hour, when a delectable luncheon was served.

Watermelon Feast At College.

The fruit of this season had its day through the sponsorship of the college in the watermelon feast which was held on the west campus yesterday afternoon.

It was difficult to tell which was greater in number—the watermelons, or the students and other guests. The old rule of "the more the merrier" was applicable, however, to the gathering in general, and all left looking forward to the next of the watermelon feasts that will be part of this term's entertainment.

NEW BOOKS

By JOHN SELBY

The week's book shelf contains two excellent examples of puffing small material into large forms, the practitioners in question being persons of prominence in popular letters.

Louis Bromfield is one; Ursula Parrott is the other. Miss Parrott has expanded a short serial into a novel she calls "Next Time We Live" (Longmans), a very pretty story of a young couple whose jobs separated them and—so for it.

"Next Time We Live" is neatly written, although it shows where the padding was inserted rather clearly. Miss Parrott has a gift for light fiction, and she writes about young love as if she still believed in it. There always is a feeling of sprightly movement in her prose.

Mr. Bromfield's contribution is called "The Man Who Had Everything" (Harpers), and is "many will feel" rather a pot-boiler. It concerns a successful fabricator of plays who is bored by his wife and his mistress, tries to recapture the freshness of a long-gone love affair, and finds the latter difficult but educational. Many readers will compare Mr. Bromfield's successful playwright with a certain successful novelist named Bromfield.

Thumbnail Reviews

"Satan Was A Man," by Edward Hale Bierstadt (Doubleday, Doran): an extraordinary study of a man with homicidal mania; not a "mystery" but an explanation of a series of murders.

"Not Built With Hands," by Helen C. White (Macmillan): like her first book, "A Watch in the Night," this brings to life the actualities of existence in past times; the period is 11th century, the heroine Matilda of Tuscany, the scene the struggle between church and state.

"Everybody's Paris," by John Brangwyn (McBride): a Paris guidebook which rates 99 per cent; he tells how Paris is governed, what Paris eats, how the banks function, what and where are the industries—as well as the usual stuff.

"Besides, The Wench Is Dead," by Robert Ullin (Doubleday, Doran): a slightly clumsy novel about a sleazy Bohemian in post-war Pittsburgh; not for grannies.

Jalna Forever!

"Young Renny," by Mazo de la Roche (Little, Brown): the famous Whiteoaks of Jalna in 1906, with old Adeline still ruling, and all her clan 20 years younger; a daring experiment in going back to pick up loose ends, but a successful one.

"Ladies Whose Bright Eyes," by Ford Madox Ford (Lippincott): Mr. Hueffer-Ford flings a London publisher of today centuries into the past, with amusing results; part romance, part satire, and it all makes one wonder why the book has waited 16 years for an American editor.

"The Citizen and His Government," by Alfred E. Smith (Harpers): Governor Smith tries to show what is the matter with popular government, and what the citizen should do to better it; straightforward, as would be expected.

"Second Hoeling," by Hope Williams Sykes (Putnam): first and second generation immigrants in the Colorado beet fields; no "glamor," and no pretty writing, but a terrific impact.

COLLEGE SCIENTIST SEEKS

QUIETER SOUND-PROOFING

Ames, Iowa.—(AP)—A young Iowa State College scientist is conducting tests here he hopes will result in development of more nearly perfect sound-absorbing sound-proofing materials.

Donald E. Anderson has developed a gadget to record the length of time it takes sound created in a room to die down to one-millionth of its original intensity. Physicists call this the "vibration time" of a room.

With Anderson's gadget it is said to be possible to measure within one-hundredth of a second, the sound absorbing capacities of sound proofing materials. He is experimenting principally with cornstarch board developed by Iowa State College chemical engineers.

DUKE CHAPEL POPULAR AS WEDDING SETTING; 25 CEREMONIES THERE

Durham, N. C., July 25.—Twenty-five brides have walked down the long aisle of the Duke university chapel since the handsome campus edifice was first opened three years ago.

Eleven of the weddings have been in June. The busiest day of all was early last month when three ceremonies were held in one afternoon, each with its own flowers, decorations, and minister. Several keen wedding fans stayed for all three.

Each time the chapel's big pipe organ has filled the lofty arched nave and transepts with the strains of Mendelssohn's popular march, and most of the brides have been greeted by the mellow music of the carillon.

The chapel has been increasingly popular with alumni who wish to be married in their alma mater's outstanding structure, and even couples with lesser association with the university have chosen the chapel as the setting for their wedding.

Anton Brees, noted carillonneur who spends each summer at Duke, has played for a number of the weddings; and Edward Hall Broadhead, organist, and Paul S. Robinson, guest organist, have played for most of the ceremonies.

WHILE CARY SLEEPS BURGLARS ARE BUSY

Cary, July 25.—Said, contented Cary seems to be a garden spot for thieves. On a number of occasions, recently, they have entered the Corner Grocery, right in the center of town, by the simple, if noisy method of throwing a rock through the plate glass window. Each time they have escaped with their loot, while Cary slept. Perhaps the law got too close behind them for another attempt at the Corner Grocery, so they betook themselves to the edge of town. First they entered the home of Peter Powell, and carried away two shotguns. Who knows, they may be training to stage a few hold-ups. New with use of guns, they broke into a bedroom at the Log Cabin and stole money. As yet no arrests have been made, but Chief of Police J. C. Griffith said investigation had been started. Cary uneasily awaits the next attack of these would-be-bandits.

and money are beginning to fly.
Mr. Hopkins resents it when you refer to his type of projects as "leatraking" and "boondoggling," although he justifies them. So far he hasn't found a name for his new activities. He is putting people to work at repairing books at the library; grading baseball diamonds
and tennis courts; fixing up the old swimming pool; repairing the Simp-
sonville Street intersection; improving the public rest room; and adding to the grandstand in the park.
When Washington wants "action," it knows where to turn.

WHISKERS: Congressional veterans snicker at the suggestion that the railroads have devised a "new wrinkle" in lobbying. The novelty is supposed to lie in a system of assigning local railroad officials to keep local members straight—whatever that may mean.

It's an old Washington custom.
Every lobby group—the bankers,
utilities, legionnaires, A. F. of L.
and farmers—introduced that trick
long ago. In the old days the dyes tabulated the drinking, church-going and voting habits of friends and foes. When they wanted to bring pressure, they brought on the member's minister, school superintendent,
etc. In the utility fight the corporations mobilized respected citizens back home and paid their fare to the Capital. The bankers have always known the value of the honey touch.

So far the New York delegation is the only one parceled out among railroad officials for reform treatment. That's a bit of a joke. Tammany men always side with the railroads because it's good business for "the hall." New York Republicans are usually pro-railroad, anyway.

SENSITIVE: FDR has enjoyed more pleasant relations with the Washington press corps than any Chief Executive since the system of formal press conferences was devised in Taft's time. President and press, especially the President, have profited from these informal, free-
and-easy contacts twice a week.

Veteran writers have predicted for more than two years that the system of verbal question-and-answer could not last. They recalled that other Presidents—Wilson, Harding, Coolidge, Hoover—had restricted or abolished conferences
when it seemed desirable. Now it appears that Mr. Roosevelt may follow precedent.

He hints that some correspondents violated the rules when they published remarks on neutrality
that were supposed to be confidential. He may draw in and freeze up, as others always have done. But the important thing is that this him reflects a growing irritation toward what the White House regards as an increasingly hostile
press. FDR wasn't formerly so sensitive.

MOSES: These New Dealers don't believe in taking their licks quietly. And the hardest fighters in the lot are the AAA-ers.

They have compiled financial statements of New England mills opposed to the processing tax. They will use these figures to show that the corporations lost as much—or more—money before the tax was levied as they did afterward. This ammunition may not gain legal victories but it may prove helpful
on political battlefields.

The apostles of the "more abundant life" also indulge in personalities. They advertise that ex-GOP Chairman Butler initiated the successful Hoosier Mills suit. But their sickest game is passing out word that F. C. Dunaine is largest stockholder in another hostile corporation—the Amoskeag. You don't know it, perhaps. But he was political sponsor of ex-Sen. Moses. And it was Moses' "Sons of the Wild Jackass" appellation which embittered western farmers to the point of political rebellion.

READY MADE WIFE

BY CORALIE STANTON

SYNOPSIS: Rex Moore, with whom Laurie Moore is in love and to whom she has pretended to be married so that Rex's career
should not suffer, has flown the Atlantic both ways, but has crashed on the Irish coast. He was lost seen by some Irish farmers; then he vanished. Laurie is frantic and Mark Albery, airplane manufacturer, who employs them both, is trying to seek Albery also is in love with Laurie.

Chapter 22
DR. PRIEST

At that precise moment, Rex
Moore was closeted with Sir Fabian Priest, the most famous oculist in England, who had made a long and thorough examination of his eyes.

"It's a most unusual condition, Mr.
Moore," the doctor was saying. "It is quite impossible for me to make a definite statement now. I must have you under observation for a week or two. You say you were totally blind for more than a year?"

"Yes, and was cured by Professor Varick, of San Francisco."

"And after that cure, you never had a return of the blindness until yesterday."

"That's right. I called it crashing, but it had nothing to do with my engine, or any part of the plane. I simply lost my sight all of a sudden and, I suppose, my head, too. I went stone blind. I was lucky enough to make a fair landing—I couldn't tell you how. And, as it was a lonely spot, it was half an hour before anybody came near me, and by that time my sight was coming back. So that nobody knows anything about it but you, Sir Fabian."

"I quite understand," the great man reassured him. "Of course, I shall strictly respect your confidence. That is my job. These nervous conditions are hardly understood," he went on, with deep interest. "I have myself had three or four cases, and one almost similar to yours, but that patient did not follow a dangerous profession."

"I cannot say much for a week or two. I am of the opinion that the first temporary blindness was caused by a cranial injury when you crashed into the ocean. There may be some actual injury to the optic nerve. You said you had certain curious sensations in New York the other day?"

"Yes, but I didn't take any notice.
I put it down to the fumes and food
and speeches."

"Well, we must be thankful that you got over safely, Mr. Moore."

"You must tell me the truth, Sir Fabian. Do you think it might come on again at any moment?"

"I can't rule out the possibility. Of course, you must have been in a state of physical and nervous exhaustion."

"I don't want comfort; I want the naked truth."

"I have told you, I must reserve
my opinion for a little while."

"You think I might go blind altogether?"

"It is possible."

"But I must try the Pacific flight.
I've nearly made my preparations.
Can you do anything to help me
hold out a bit longer—a few weeks, even?"

HE was a pathetic figure, this tall
young man with the lean-jawed
face and the angry mouth, begging
in a harsh whisper for what perhaps even the greatest eye doctor in the world could not do.

"I will do everything I can. As your attack of yesterday was so slight, I have a good deal of hope."

"I must do the Pacific flight," muttered Rex Moore in an unreal, inspired voice. "I must do it. After that—I don't care!"

His handgrip, as he took leave of Sir Fabian, was as strong as a madman's. And there was a kind of madness in his mind, as he remembered suddenly that he must go and face Laurie.

The bottom of his world had dropped out, as if the earth had actually given beneath his feet.
He was dazed, as he drove through the streets towards Chelsea, his haversack and his flying coat and helmet on the seat beside him. He seemed to hang in space.

He suffered the pangs of hell, as he pictured himself in darkness
again. The agony yesterday had almost driven him mad. And then, the blessed relief, when the black world turned slowly grey. If he went blind, a bird that would never unfold its wings again, a blinded eagle? Far better death.

There was indeed madness in his mind, as he absently answered the porter's amazed and half-scared
greeting, and went up to the flat.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN
CHARM: New Yorkers with first-rate administration contacts learn of a proposed new phase of FDR's public relations program which is getting serious attention in high circles, although it has not been definitely approved.

The plan they hear about calls for an extensive speaking tour by the President this fall. This would replace the series of summer chats previously contemplated and would be frankly political instead of merely intended to show the nation that its Chief Executive is in good health and spirits—although the latter

Laurie opened the door.
She exclaimed at the sight of him.
"Oh! How ill you look! Are you hurt?"

"No, no," he said impatiently.
"What have you heard?"

"That you crashed. Oh, I'm sure you're hurt! Rex, your face is grey,
and, why, you can hardly stand!"

"I'm all right," he said gruffly,
and strode by her into the hall. "I had a shake up, that's all. Made a forced landing. It wasn't really a crash. I came back in the ordinary way without waiting to have my plane seen to. I wanted to dodge the newspaper men, and I've done it."

The length of this speech seemed to exhaust him. He stood, blankly staring at her, and leaning against the wall.

She poured out some brandy and brought it to him. She thought he was going to faint.

He gulped it down, and in a few moments the color came back into his face. She did not know that the shock of seeing her had unmanned
him. He loved her. It was true. It wasn't a dream. But what was the good now, when he might go blind?

Laurie was very pale. In her face
one emotion chased another—fear, relief, doubt. How more than beautiful she was in those moments that revealed her woman's heart and soul!

But Rex Moore was set on his in-exorable path. He must not weaken.
At any moment he might go blind and become a helpless loiterer. He must not forget that. Already he had treated one woman with rank ingratitude. He must not drag another one into his life.

LAURIE recovered herself, too.
"I am glad you are safely back,"
she said. "Mr. Albery said on the telephone just now that you had made a marvelous new record."

The name jarred on Moore's already taut nerves.

"You've been talking to Albery?
Where is he?"

"In the country." Her voice was cold because her heart ached so bitterly. It wasn't true that he loved her.

"What did he know?"

"Nothing, except that you had landed somewhere in Ireland, and then disappeared, and telephoned to the air field. I knew nothing but that you had left America. Mr. Albery told me that. You didn't send me a word."

"I behaved like the boor I am," he said shortly. "I apologize."

"You needn't. I am sure you must have been very busy."

"Laurie! He looked away from her. "There is something I must say.
Before I left the other day—I had no business to say such things to
you. Can you forgive me?"

Laurie went cold. Angry, humiliated beyond belief, she could have raged at him. She wanted to. But she said in a perfectly natural voice:

"I said we were mad. Of course,
you didn't mean it."

"It was a mistake."

"I know," she repeated. "I said
we were mad."

"You feel as I do, then—it was that we were carried away? You were feeling kind to me because I was going off on the flight, and you had an idea it might be dangerous?"

"Yes, it must have been that. It doesn't matter. We need not talk about it. Now that you're back, we can carry out our plans, as we always intended to. If you think—"

Her voice took on a sharp note of challenge—"If you think that I have paid my debt."

He gave a harsh laugh.

"Now it's your turn to rub it in!
You've more than paid your debt."

His whole being was in a turmoil.
He loved her with the whole strength of his manhood. But—blindness! The terror that might lie
before him through the long years.
He did not know. He did not know yet.

He forced himself into calm. His will was forged into steel through the constant companionship of danger.

"Laurie, be frank with me! Do you want to stick by me, so that I can carry on my job? Or do you want the truth to come out—that we've been fooling everybody ever since I came back? You said you hated me the purpose would also be served. The idea would be to ask the voters face-

mental abuses uncorrected and pay-

paced return to normal with enactment of reforms designed to strip
the money kings permanently of their power to control economic trends and force them to accept a much greater social responsibility.
The success of such an expedition would depend of course on many factors that cannot be foreseen—

dreadful premonition that most sections of the country will respond favorably to the more radical alternative—especially if presented to them personally with "that damned charm." They privately fear that their counter-appeal to preserve the Constitution as is may suffer by comparison in the popular mind.

IRRITABLE: Congress appears to have mislaid the Guffey coal bill
again in the excitement about taxes. July 31 is awfully close. Financial sharps predict that persistent sidetracking of the measure will lead to real trouble this time.

John Lewis can't go on, postponing his strike forever. The walkout mobilization has been called off at the last moment three times. The workers are becoming more and more impatient. They want action and unless their chief can get it for them pronto even his unusually able union leadership may be in jeopardy. It's a safe bet that Lewis will not risk his crown unduly just as a matter of cooperating with the White House.

The miners were in a fairly amiable mood when the first call to strike came along. But repeated stalls have made them irritable and suspicious. They have a feeling that somebody is selling them out. A strike now would be much more bitter and violent than if it had come off when originally announced.

CHAMPION: New York refuses to get excited about Senator William E. Borah's prophecy that the Patman bonus bill and the Fraser-Lemke mortgage moratorium bill are sure to be tacked onto some other piece of legislation. An astute observer was moved to remark: "I see that Bill is back at his old stunt of crashing the Monday morning headlines."

The Idaho veteran is commonly tagged as a liberal and there's a widespread popular impression that he favors reform. This isn't borne out by his record. Comment runs that he leads off pack for ninety yards of a hundred-yard dash for reform—but somehow he never covers the last ten yards. He is still privately in close and friendly contact with high financial circles
which would suffer if FDR's tax plan goes through. Borah wouldn't dream of shoving his friends off the deep end—and can be counted upon to contribute his quiet bit to block anything that looks seriously like distribution of wealth.

A number of New Yorkers rate
the Senator as Public Bor-er Number One. Comment runs that Borah might be a great man if he could ever agree with himself.

DETERRENT: Bankers speaking for publication naturally characterize as ridiculous reports that they are even dreaming of quitting the Federal Reserve. What else could they say? But the fact remains that this drastic move has been given careful consideration in the private councils of several large and highly-respected institutions. The question will become acute if and when the banking bill passes—even in the revised Glass edition.
Curiously the chief deterrent to such a bold step is not fear of what the government might do by way of reprisals—but what the stockholders' attitude would be. Bankers who have talked it over concede inevitable loss of prestige, of deposits, of earnings for a year or so. They figure that after that period they would be so much better off as to make the plunge worth while.

STRIKE PARALYSIS SUBSIDES

Normal life has been resumed in Terre Haute, Ind., after a two-day general strike, or "labor holiday," which closed stores, halted delivery of ice, milk and food and suspended public transportation.
The city was placed under martial law and national guardmen patrolled the streets, engaging in several encounters with strikers, some of whom are shown picketing the plant of the Columbian

GREENIES DROP 6 TO 3 GAME AT GOLDSBORO

By H. B. UTLEY
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville baseball club went to Goldsboro yesterday with the idea of tucking additional "pay dirt" under their belts, but instead of striking gold as they intended, they returned home with the small end of a 6 to 3 score.

The ball game was the highlight of a booster day program put on by the Goldsboro ball club with the idea of drawing large crowds from the countryside. They got the crowd and also the ball game, and although the league leading Greenville club played matchless ball as usual they couldn't rush enough runs over the plate to claim their proper margin of gold.

Big Pete Naktens, Duke star, allowed Goldsboro only four hits, but he issued ten free passes to first. In addition to hit batsman, and in the final analysis this counted for a total of six runs.

Fans returning from the Wayne capital reported today that Naktens, normally wild, was at his best yesterday and should have under any circumstances been on the winning side. But it seems, from these accounts, that Naktens had to deal with both Goldsboro and the umpire. The chief arbiter of the game was said to have been abnormally off on balls and strikes and enabled the majority of Goldsboro players to find the first sack because of rank decisions.

Greenville usually accepts such decisions uncomplainingly, but the "ump" was so far off yesterday that even Ty Wagner, Greenville catcher, who usually smiles and lets a bad ruling pass without comment, found cause to register protest yesterday. Had the decisions been different it is impossible to say what the final score would have been.

The game was the first lost by the league-leaders in several days, but with Goldsboro on their home grounds, they are expected to take up where they left off day before yesterday and continue to tuck something "tangible" under their belts.

Ty Wagner grabbed the spotlight in the first inning by slamming the ball over the fence after Ambler had singled. The feat placed Greenville in a two-run lead. The game moved along smoothly until the fourth frame when two Goldsboro men drew free passes to first, a third got on through an error and Michael double cleaning the sacks.

The Bugs added two in the fifth when Sutton singled, Patrick and Mewborn drew walks and Lambeth was walked to force in a run. Patrick then scored on an infield out, Michael's triple in the eighth scored Wilson who was hit by the pitcher.

"Chubby" Dean lead the stick attack for Greenville, chalking up three out of four trips to the rubber. Michael with a double and triple paced Goldsboro. Wilson and Suttfield made the others for the Goldbugs.

Wilson, former Eastern Carolina leaguer, pitched the route for Goldsboro, issuing three free passes to first. He was injured when hit by Naktens.

NEW HURLERS WIN

Williamston, July 25.—The Martins started a pair of new pitchers yesterday and took both ends of a doubleheader from New Bern. The scores were 6-3 and 6-4.
Doc Allen, formerly with Rocky Mount Mills, let the Bruins down with eight scattered hits in the opener. Errors by his mates blocked a shut-out. Gene Lyter, who had been pitching for Rocky Mount Purple Bluebirds, got credit for victory in the second game although he was relieved by John Gaddy. Lyter gave four hits, three of which came in the third when the visitors made their runs. Errors also figured prominently in the scoring off Lyter and two of the New Bern hits were scratches.
Gillespie led an 11-hit assault by the Martins in the first game. He hit two doubles and a single. Gaylord and Goodmon made two hits apiece.
Gaylord got two more in the nightcap, and Pres Chappell, Martin's new second sacker, had a pair of hits for his two batting turns in the second game. No New Bernians made more than one.

KINSTON WINS 6 TO 1

Kinston, July 25.—Lanky John Humphries held Tarboro to four hits yesterday as his Kinston mates piled up 10 safeties to win 6-1.
Kinston scored two runs in the first inning. Seals beat out an infield bouncer. Irwin's grounder was errorred, and Keller singled to score Seals. Morgan's fly sent in Irwin.
There was no more scoring until the seventh when Kinston added one. Greenberg walked and Seals and Irwin singled.
Jim Morgan's homer in the eighth scored Keller, who had reached base on an error. Patton then singled, moved up on an infield out, and scored on Strayhorn's single.
Tarboro's run came in the ninth when Chumbris, diminutive shortstop, slammed the ball against the left field fence for a double and Bassin hit to center for another two-bagger.

AYDEN BEATS SNOW HILL

Ayden, July 25.—Big Jim Tatum was the batting star in Ayden's 6-2 victory over Snow Hill yesterday. It was Booster Day at the old park and well over 1,000 fans attended the contest.
Brownlee pitched the route for the Aces and scattered eight Snow Hill hits.
Tatum hit a homer and two singles to bat in three runs and take top place in the Aces' nine-hit attack. Royal and Knowles each with two for three, came next. Bobby McPadden started for Snow Hill but was hit on the arm by one of Brownlee's pitches in the third and was forced to leave the game. The locals made four runs off his successor, Parmalee.

Ayden got a pair of runs in the second. Atkins hit a homer to open the inning. Royal walked, stole second and scored on Tatum's single. The winning run came in the third on a hit batsman, two infield outs and Knowles' single. Tatum's homer opened the seventh and two more tallies were made in the eighth.
Parmalee and Griffin, each with two for three, led Snow Hill.

STATE TO USE COAL MINED IN N. CAROLINA

Automatic Stokers Installed in State Institutions For Use of Pulverized Coal

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, July 25.—Automatic stokers, to use pulverized coal and with a view to using coal mined in North Carolina, are now being installed in two state institutions, according to R. M. Rothgeb, head of the engineering division of the Budget Bureau. The two institutions are the State Hospital for the Negro Insane in Goldsboro and the State Tubercular Sanatorium at Sanatorium. It is expected that the new installation at Goldsboro will save $4,000 a year in the operation of the heating plant and that the installation at Sanatorium will save about $4,500 a year as compared with the old boilers which had to be stocked by hand, Rothgeb said.

The installation at Goldsboro includes two automatic stokers for using pulverized coal and one new boiler and with other improvements being made in the heating system will cost about $27,000. The Sanatorium installation, which will be completed in about three weeks, includes two automatic stokers and two used boilers, formerly used at Chapel Hill but which proved too small there but suitable for the Sanatorium plant. This job will cost about $17,000. The installation at Goldsboro will not be completed until the last of October, Rothgeb said.

By having the automatic stokers which pulverize the coal and blow it directly into the fire boxes, it will be possible to use cheaper grades of coal, especially coal mined in North Carolina. About a year ago the State Highway and Public Works Commission purchased several hundred acres of coal lands in Moore county. So far no steps have been taken to mine any of the coal on this land, but there are indications that eventually the state may undertake to mine at least some of its own coal.

But even if the state should buy its coal from some of these mines here in the state, it is estimated that it could get this coal delivered to either Goldsboro or Sanatorium for a maximum of $2.50 a ton as compared with $5 a ton for West Virginia coal of the same grade. The North Carolina coal is ideal for use in pulverized coal stokers, since it is very soft and grinds up easily.

New York, July 25.—(AP)—The stock market today tipped cautiously through a mass of realizing and selective buying.

There were a few weak spots in the list but a number of issues backed up a trifle as some traders decided to cash in the gains.

At the same time the ability of scattered stocks to edge into new high territory for they are helped to maintain the optimistic sentiment of recovery proponents.

Grains were fairly steady but cotton dipped. There was a little better demand for utility and industrial bonds.

Although the gilder rallied other foreign exchanges were mixed. The late stock tone was irregular.

Transfers were 1,250,000 shares.

Claim Farmers Are Robbed By Tobacco System

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—Resuming debate on the Flanagan tobacco grading bill the house today was told that under the present auction system for selling tobacco farmers are subjected to "wholesale robbery and exploitation" by buyers.

"There is no class of people in this country victimized as the tobacco growers," declared Rep. Cox of Georgia.

"I feel outraged every time I go on a tobacco floor at the wholesale robbery I see committed against the helpless people. It is exploitation."

Cox said the purpose of the Flanagan bill which would establish government standards for tobacco was "simply to advise the growers to the quality of higher product and assume them a fair price."

"It will work toward stripping the tobacco buyers of the overlordship they have exercised over the growers for many years," the Georgian asserted.

Cox was joined by Rep. Boleyn Progressive, of Wisconsin, who said the proposal would give tobacco farmers the advantage of expert information as to the value of his crop.

Opposing the bill was Rep. Kerr of North Carolina, author of the Kerr-Smith tobacco control measure. He said "Tobacco farmers do not want it. They want to be left alone." Kerr declared North Carolina and Kentucky growers came to Washington last spring and "begged for the bill not to be passed."

Deadlocked Over Security Bill.

Washington, July 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's personal intervention failed today to break the congressional deadlock over excluding private pension laws from his social securities program.

Despite the President's expressed opposition to the proposal, House and Senate conferees were unable to reach an agreement on the disputed amendment and recessed until next week when another attempt is to be made.

House conferees not only refused to accept the amendment by Senator Clark, Democrat of Missouri, to exclude private pensions, but declined to consider compromise.

Of all the political snarls which have been born of depression and recovery—and they are many—the present tax tangle in congress probably is the strangest and most puzzling.

Taxation always is a prime political issue. It touches the individual as few other issues do. It constitutes a perennial cause for strife between the parties, whose conflicting viewpoints have been quite dissimilar.

Yet here is a congress which is overwhelmingly Democratic, and in which the small Republican minority is badly split, fumbling in bewilderment as it tries to translate into law the tax recommendations of a Democratic President.

If anyone had predicted such a situation a month ago, he would have been set down as a thoroughly unreliable prophet. How could it possibly have come about? A review of the facts may answer the question in part.

A Need For Action

An interesting sequence of events began with the blow to administration prestige struck by the supreme court in the NRA decision.

Following it, a sense of stalemate, almost of stagnation, settled over Washington. There was talk among administration men of the need for some swift counter-blow to renew the "new deal" psychology of forward motion.

Into that situation fell Mr. Roosevelt's unheralded message asking for higher taxes on wealth. Who advised him to send such a message remains a mystery, but it was not the party leaders in congress, who were preparing to wind up a trying session and had no desire to open so explosive a subject as taxation just on the eve of a general election year.

The feeling on Capitol Hill was that the President simply was talking for the record. No one appears to have suspected at first that he wanted action this session, and his message certainly did not ask for it.

Left-Wingers Acted

The matter probably would have rested right there but for one thing. That was the political alertness of the left-wingers, who saw an opportunity to put the Democrats on the spot.

This they proceeded to do by publicly putting up to the White House a proposition like this: If these taxes are a good thing, what is the objection to writing them on the statute books at once?

What could Mr. Roosevelt do? He scarcely could say the social objectives he had in mind were less desirable this year than they might be next year, and he certainly could not say the treasury did not need the money.

What he did was to ask for action this session. At first the administration leaders thought they might avoid further complications by jacking the new levies onto the excise tax resolution, and so dispose of the whole matter quickly. That, however, didn't work at all. The time was far too short. So work began on a new bill.

G. O. P. Seized Opportunity

Thereupon the Republican regulars saw an opportunity. In their turn, they put a proposition to the White House: If we are to have a tax revision, why not have a real one, and balance the budget?

The White House approached this development cautiously. A general tax increase—and that would be needed to balance the budget—never has been desired by any administration facing reelection.

It was disclosed that the President hoped the bill would be confined to the levies he had recommended, but when the treasury was asked for specific recommendations as to rates, it replied that that was up to congress.
