

THINK STATE GETTING A RAW DEAL FROM WPA

State Officials Don't Think N. C. Is Getting What It Should From Relief Fund

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—North Carolina is getting a raw deal from the "New Deal" as far as getting any assistance from the WPA and the PWA is concerned, in the opinion of most state officials and other observers here. Whether this is due to incompetence, to arbitrariness or a deliberate intention to discriminate against North Carolina and the other southern states because officials in Washington believe they will go Democratic anyway next year, no one will say for sure. But several high state officials who for months have been laboring to get some WPA cooperation and more recently WPA cooperation, are becoming convinced that there is a woeful amount of inefficiency if not actual incompetency somewhere along the line between Raleigh and Washington and that North Carolina projects are getting little or no attention after they get to Washington, even if it is possible to get them by the state PWA and WPA administrators here.

The action of the PWA and WPA administrators in Washington in "cracking down" with a dead line for projects, the deadline first being set for Sept. 16 and then advanced to Sept. 10 for WPA projects and Sept. 5 for PWA projects, is going to mean that the state and many of its subdivisions will probably fail to get many worthwhile projects because of lack of time in which to prepare them.

"Some of the officials in Washington maintain that North Carolina has already had ample time in which to develop and prepare projects under both PWA and WPA regulations, but this has not been the case," a high state official said here today. "For the past year we have been putting in applications for PWA loans and grants and half of them have been coming back for one reason or another to be changed here and revised there, largely because they change their rules and regulations in Washington every few days, apparently, so that by the time an application gets by the state PWA office here it is out of date when it reaches Washington."

"Then the WPA came along with the reports that $100,000,000 would be available for North Carolina and that 100,000 former relief cases would be put to work on WPA projects. But no one could find out what the requirements were or how to make applications for projects until a few weeks ago. In fact, it has been only a few weeks since the WPA organization has been perfected here in the state and since the state WPA officials knew how to proceed. And now, just as they are beginning to find out what to do and how to do it, Washington slams the door in their faces by setting up these deadlines."

The blame for the situation undoubtedly rests in Washington rather than with the PWA or WPA administrators here in the state, according to most observers here. For those who have been working with PWA Administrator H. G. Batty in Chapel Hill and WPA Administrator George W. Coan, Jr. here are convinced they have been doing their best and as much as they have been permitted to do by their superiors in Washington. But they have been so tightly bound with red tape and regulations—and in the case of the WPA by highly politicalized, if not incompetent personnel—that they have not been able to do very much, many observers here agree.

They Live By Their Looks

By WILLIAM T. McCLEERY

New York.—(AP)—Scores of girls support themselves in New York by walking on a stage and looking beautiful for the customers out in front. They tell not, neither do they speak, sing or dance; just look beautiful.

In musical show vernacular they are "show girls," furnishing background for principals and chorines. The visiting revelers smile and maybe wink at them, or try unsuccessfully to send them backstage. Otherwise the show girls are as unsung as they are unsung.

Lucette Moirin and Juliette Porges are two examples. They walk around the stage at the Polles Beggere six nights a week in absolute silence.

Juliette is 21, dark-eyed, serious. She lives with her parents, rides to work on the subway and aspires to dramatic stardom. This is her first show.

"No, it doesn't bore me," she insists. "I'm learning things by watching the others."

She spends about an hour on the stage every night, although she's "on duty" from 7:15 p. m. to 10 p. m. and from midnight at 2 a. m.

The Polles Beggere is presented at a night club, so the patrons may either eat or look. When Juliette comes on the stage she watches very closely to see whether they're chewing or looking, and she concentrates on walking as attractively as possible.

Masters seldom molest her. Men have sent theatre and football tickets to her, but she doesn't acknowledge them.

For amusement she goes to matinees and reads rather heavy books. She gets $50 a week.

Lucette works the same hours, gets the same pay. She's 19 years old and blonde, comes from Chicago, lives at a hotel and walks to work.

When she walks on the stage she gets a kick out of "the funny fat men, grinning and looking very silly like kids away from home."

Lucette washes her own silk stockings, plays tennis and tries to spend one day a week in the country.

She's taking a course to improve her diction, because she wants to get in the movies. Rich playboys do not beleague her, she says, "alas."

Eddie Lewis, who is general manager of the Polles and has seen plenty of show girls come and go, says the silent beauties last only two years or so. The average age is between 18 and 21.

He picks show girls from the fashion model field "because they know how to walk."

Lewis says stage-door-Johnnies have disappeared, show girls aren't as hard-boiled as they used to be and that nice girls don't mind taking off practically all their clothes if they think the show is artistic.

GOVERNOR OF ROTARY GUEST OF CLUB HERE

Steve Thayer Speaker At Regular Meeting Of Greenville Club Last Night

(By WYATT BROWN)

Of the many problems confronting Americans today like the youth of the land Rotarians cannot start anywhere except right where they are and the responsibility as Rotarians is upon each individual placed there in the platform of Rotary International's president, Ed Johnson in the Rotary International Convention in Mexico this summer, declared "Steve" Thayer in his brief address to the local Club. Steve Thayer is the governor of the 57th District of Rotary in which Greenville is situated. Mr. Thayer was the guest of the local Rotary Club last night. He is a native of Ashboro, North Carolina. He and Mrs. Thayer were along with the Club Rotary-Anns the guests of honor at the meeting Monday night in the club building on Rotary avenue.

"It is not the meet that you eat, but the men that you meet" that count in Rotary quoted Mr. Thayer in indicating one of the significant things in this thing, the relationship of men, called Rotary. He emphasized the value of "folks" in one's life.

The speaker indicated the four main things in this year's Rotary platform: (1) Development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service which "Steve" looks upon as the "powerhouse" of Rotary. (2) Vocational service—each man making his line of value to his community. (3) Application of the ideal of service to community life. (4) Advancement of International good will. There are few countries besides Russia and Venezuela that do not have Rotary clubs.

With a word of commendation for the fine idea of the American Legion in promoting Junior Leagues of baseball all over the state, Mr. Thayer said the Rotarians needed to get to be worth more to the youth with a helping hand of counsel and advice for the wandering youth of our land which has not found its social or economic place and help the younger by going to the schools and letting them know that the men of the town are interested in them. He indicated that Sing Sing has never had an entrant who had had a helping hand from Scouting or counsel from civic organizations. Knowing these opportunities and others exist, each Rotarian must see it as his own responsibility though later collective action may be brought to bear or a short cut found, he said in closing.

Mr. June Rose led the group singing and sang two solos, "On the Road to Mandalay" and "When I Grow Too Old to Dream." His singing was very much enjoyed due to the robustness of his technique in handling the Mandalay number and the softer romantic rendition of the latter number.

Fordy Harding welcomed the ladies in his ready eloquent way. In his welcome he related how in going for Mrs. Thayer to bring her to the Club from the home of Miss Lella Higgs he told some people along the street who wanted to stop him that he could not stop at the moment since he was going to get the Governor's wife. On the return trip by that spot on Dickinson Avenue they witnessed many people waiting to see Mrs. Ehringhaus go by.

The response to the welcome was given by Mrs. L. A. Stroud whose grace and ready wit charmed her hearers. Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Kittrell were also guests of the club and Miss Lella Higgs.

The offer of the government to put a community building and armory here if Greenville will furnish the site was brought to the attention of the Rotarians by June Rose. Herbert Waldrop endorsed the idea and upon his motion the club went on record as favoring some action by the town. A committee composed of Herbert Waldrop, Lawrence Stroud and Wyatt Brown was appointed to call upon the Board of Aldermen at their next session to give this matter careful consideration and advise the city fathers of the feeling of the Rotarians.

NEW SURVEY TO BE MADE

gineer and then submit the matter to the chief of engineers with recommendations. There has never been any question about the justification of the development but for some reason or other very little progress was ever made until the Eastern North Carolina Association revived the proposition a year ago. At the hearing in Washington definite figures, which were substantiated by statements from receivers and shippers of freight in the section, showed that a minimum of 100,000 tons of freight would move over the river the first year at a saving of more than $135,000. The estimated maximum traffic in five years would undoubtedly exceed 300,000 tons at an annual saving of $500,000. It is now believed that when the survey is completed the actual cost of the improvement will not exceed $500,000.

Announcement has just been made at a meeting of the Tar river committee that a dinner will be given by the association under the supervision of the Tar river committee on Monday, Sept. 9, at 6:30 p. m., with Major Mills and one of his senior civil engineers as guests, and the personal representatives of Colonel Earl I. Brown, division engineer of Richmond, Va., who will be unable to attend. There will be other guests, invited from various part of the section, and further announcement will be made during the latter part of the week stating the place where the dinner will be given.

Doughton For Governor Is Not Taken Seriously

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—The talk to the effect that Congressman Robert L. Doughton is still considering becoming a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor and is by no means out of the race yet, is not being given much credence in political circles here. For while it is known that Doughton did have his announcement already typewritten and ready to give out to the newspapers and that he did not give it out because of the personal appeal which President Roosevelt made to him to remain in Congress, where he is Chairman of the powerful house Ways and Means Committee, the prevailing belief here is that the doughty Congressman from Alleghany county made his decision several months ago and will stick by it.

Nor is the report that has been going the rounds to the effect that former Governor O. Max Gardner tricked Doughton into deciding not to run by getting the President to intervene so that Gardner's brother-in-law, Clyde Hoey, would have a better chance, given any credence here although it is undoubtedly being believed in some sections. For those here who know Gardner and Hoey know that they do not play that brand of politics. Nor is it believed that the President would be a party to that kind of a political deal.

The prevailing belief here among those who know Doughton and the background of the entire matter, is that Doughton deliberately gave up his lifelong ambition to be Governor and virtually his one and only chance to win this office, at the request of the President in order to serve the President and the Democratic party where they thought he was most needed. It is maintained here that Doughton will be needed in the next session of Congress which opens in January and which will probably last until July or August, of next year, just as much as he was needed in this session, if in the orchard of Carl Fosson and not more so. It is further pointed out that Doughton is the only member of the North Carolina delegation tion of 11 Congressmen and two senators who voted for every Roosevelt measure presented in this session of Congress, and one of the few Democrats in either the house or senate with such a record. There is no doubt that Doughton has given the administration complete and whole-hearted support and that as chairman of the Ways and Means committee he has been of inestimable assistance to President Roosevelt.

There is another very potent reason why Doughton will no, now become a candidate for Governor, observers here believe. It is that Doughton would either have to conduct an absentee campaign or else resign from Congress, since it is generally agreed that Congress will remain in session from the time it meets in January until well after the Democratic primary in North Carolina, the first Saturday in June. Because of the weight of his duties as chairman of the Ways and Means committee, Doughton would not be able to get away from Washington enough to make a personal campaign for the nomination for Governor, with the result that he would be at a serious disadvantage. For the other candidates are already actively campaigning and have been for several months now. He could resign from Congress, of course, but it is agreed that Doughton is not the kind to quit in the middle of a fight or to change horses in the middle of a river.

So while it is agreed that Doughton could probably have won the nomination for Governor if he had announced several months ago and before he announced he would not be a candidate, many now doubt if he could be anything more than an "also ran" if he should again change his mind and be a candidate. For it is well known that a good many of those who had formerly promised Doughton their support have now pledged themselves to either L. C. Hunt, Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham, Clyde R. Hoey or to Dr. Ralph W. McDonald.

Twenty-one states by law require automobiles to be equipped with safety glass.

Warsaw.—(AP)—The recruiting of Poland's "war babies" has disclosed generally poor physical condition because of near-starvation during infancy and childhood.

They average 2 to 3 inches below normal in height, have narrow chests, poor teeth, and are prone to bone diseases. One newspaper said many of the youths born in 1914 to 1918, are tubercular.

Wedding Scheme Trips Playboy

Bucharest.—(AP)—Eighty marriages within five years is the record ascribed by the police of Rumania's capital to the 28-year-old former millionaire, Constantin Manca.

It is charged that after he dissipated his huge fortune, Manca decided to acquire new riches by marriage. He succeeded, the authorities say, because of an attractive personality, but each marriage lasted only until he could get hold of the bride's dowry.

Society circles were stirred by his arrest for some of his victims came from prominent families.

National Champion Chops Here Sept. 16

Peter McLaren, who claims the wood chopping Championship of America will stage a log cutting contest and demonstration here on Monday, Sept. 16, at 10:30 o'clock, Dickinson Avenue street; 11:00 o'clock, Fifth Street store.

This contest has been arranged by J. A. Watson who is to be congratulated for arranging for the visit of this colorful champion, McLaren, whose wizardry with an axe has carried him from a poor farm lad in Australia, to the peak of his profession.

In chopping tours covering a score of years he has chopped before hundreds of thousands, both here and abroad. McLaren who is nearly 50 years old, claims that outdoor chopping is a great physical developer. His own condition bears out this claim.

The contest is open to any local man who has not previously competed against McLaren. A prize of fifty dollars will be paid to any contestant if McLaren fails to chop through a log in two thirds of the time the contestant takes.

The handicap gives all good choppers a sporting chance to win the prize money, as it is just like giving 33 yards in a hundred yard dash.

The only restriction made is that no contestant be permitted to use a Plumb Axe. This is the only axe which McLaren himself ever uses, and he refuses to chop against a Plumb Axe and also allow the handicap.

Every one is cordially invited to attend the demonstration. Choppers wishing to compete should bring their axes with them. It costs nothing to enter the contest.

THE WORLD OF STAMPS

By QUINCY JAMES

Borderless and having a plain white background, the latest stamps from Germany mark a new note for designs of that country. The issue, of two values, is a tribute to the Nazi youth movement, and comprises the fourth special set within a month or so.

The drawing consists of a German youth blowing a trumpet, to which is attached the "you-h" flag. There is a 6-pennig green and a 15-pennig brown red. The design is by the painter Dieblich, who drew the recent railroad stamps of four denominations. The stamps will be available for foreign as well as domestic postage.

Lindbergh Stamp

The only stamp ever printed bearing a portrait of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came from Spain in 1930. It was one of an airmail set known as the Spanish-American union issue. Besides a picture of the colonel in an oval, it also shows the statue of liberty and the Spirit of St. Louis, the plane in which he crossed the Atlantic.

This stamp, together with some others issued about the same time, is classified as having been privately produced. The explanation is that the promoters of the stamps "presented a certain quantity of these labels to the Spanish postal authorities who placed them on sale and allowed them to be used for three days, retaining the money obtained from the sale."

Poland's First

Although Poland has been rather active in issuing stamps since it gained its independence again in 1918, that year did not introduce the first Polish stamp. It came in 1890 in one value, 10 kopecks blue and rose of the design of the then current Russian postal paper. It was put out when Poland was under Russian dominion. The stamp was in use a comparatively short time, being superseded by the adhesives of Russia.

Rumanian Addition

The word "postage" is being inserted in the design of the large label-type of postal paper of Rumania which bears the latest portrait of King Carol.

So far the only item received is the 2-lei light green. In the previous printing the only inscription besides the value was the name of the country, Rumania. Stamp authorities here, however, could not say whether this issue, which appeared early in the year, was intended for other than postal use.

World Notes

A brief glimpse into the history of France in the middle nineteenth century is available merely by looking over the stamps of those years. The 1849 set carried the inscription, "Repub. Franc." In 1857 this was changed to "Empire Franc." but in 1870 it again became "Repub. Franc."

During the world war, "occupation stamps," prepared by one country for use in the occupied territory of another, became quite extensive. In a large number of instances the current stamps of the country entered were used with a surcharge.

NEW BOOKS

By JOHN SELBY

You may treat the biographer's craft as something quite sacred, and produce works which explore your entire subject, offering all available evidence. Or you may begin your book with a predetermined destination and sort the evidence so as to reach the destination handily.

Stefan Zweig does the latter in his "Mary, Queen of Scotland and the Isles" (Viking). He has decided to concentrate his reader's attention on what he calls the two most dramatic years of Mary's life, the twenty-third and twenty-fourth years of murder of the adultery with Bothwell.

Everything before this period is pointed by one means or another toward this high spot; everything afterward is pointed toward Mary's pitiful death. Much of the background material usually considered essential is omitted; the reader has a very vague idea of the situation in Scotland, England and in France, for example.

But Herr Zweig is not writing a detailed biography. He is producing a good story. He is an artist with words if at times a little sentimental, and certainly his books is a literary tour de force of the first importance.

Thumbprint Reviews

"The Voice of Bugle Ann," by MacKinlay Kantor (Coward, McCann): delightful story of men and dogs in South Missouri setting; particularly of Spring Davis and one fine dog, Bugle Ann.

"The Inquisitor," by Hugh Walpole (Doubleday, Doran): the Cathedral and Town sets in Mr. Walpole's imaginary "Folchester" are typically at odds; the machinations of a miser, the madness of his brother and the economic urges of the riff-raff bring the climax.

"Vein of Iron," by Ellen Glasgow (Harcourt, Brace): the vein of iron which is largely trouble; the novel in Ada sustains her through a life set in the Great Valley of Virginia, the tempo is leisurely the ## Pictorial values great.

"The Oxen of the Sun," by Irving Bacheller (Stokes): a rather slight story about a boy who marries the wrong girl; and eventually marries the right one; the point really is to give Mr. Bacheller a chance to glorify the "American tradition."

Family Chronicle

"Dwell in the Wilderness," by Alvah C. Bessie (Covell, Friede): three-generation family chronicle which concentrates on the gravitational and other "pulls" between a father and mother, and their four children; a serious purpose commendably realized.

"All the Young Men," by Oliver LaFarge (Houghton Mifflin): short stories, most of the better ones being about Indians; workmanlike if not emotionally exciting.

"Slaves Cottage," by George Locke Howe (Coward-McCann): a study of modernity's impact upon a small New England village, perceptively done but with a few cracks in the plot mechanism.

"Collected Plays of William Butler Yeats" (Macmillan): just what the title says, and a volume to cherish.

Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tannic quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been a relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. For a year at least motorists will not be bothered with nine drivers convicted in County Court yesterday of drunken driving. Under the driver's license law enacted by the last legislature a person who has had his license revoked cannot make application for a driver's license until at least a year has passed since his conviction.

Now that Ayden has eliminated us from the baseball championship series and is to play it off with Kinston, it is to be hoped that our fans will be pulling for Ayden in the final series. Since we can't win the pennant, let's do the next best thing by hoping that our sister team, Ayden, wins it.

ONE WAY TO RAISE PRICES
After all is said and done probably the chief reason for lower tobacco prices this year is that the contracting growers were permitted to increase their acreage and were notified that by paying the government four cents a pound they would be permitted to sell any poundage that they may have produced above their allotment card. It stands to reason that when the crop is short and there is a scarcity of tobacco the price is higher, but when there is enough for every buying company to fill its needs and have some extra they do not have to worry about where their supply is coming from and there is little or no competition in the buying.

A small crop means competition between the buyers who need and want the tobacco with resultant higher prices, but a big crop means competition between the sellers. The only way for growers to get a good price for the present crop is to destroy the trashy grades thereby reducing the size of the crop and then take their government benefit on the basis of the smaller crop.

MORNING STAR
— BY MARIAN SIMS —

SYNOPSIS: Emily Felton has run away from Edwin Barnes on their wedding night. Emily never really wanted to marry Edwin, anyway. She had wanted David Carroll, and David had taken the loss of the family plantation so badly that he ran away to Istanbul and said he never would return. Emily's mother, Frances, and Edwin's dogged persistence finally wore down Emily to the point that she could marry Edwin as the easiest way out of a very bad situation.

Chapter 13
COLLAPSE

THE sleepy clerk at a downtown hotel looked mildly astonished when Emily asked for a room. He hesitated a moment, then succumbed to the quiet elegance of her clothes and luggage.

"If anyone asks for me," said the young woman who had registered as Miss Felton, "I am not registered here."

The clerk's eyes widened, then narrowed. "Very well," he said at last.

It might have been the significant look in the clerk's eyes, or it might have been the reaction from strain. But as Emily turned to follow the uniformed back of the bell boy she crumpled silently like a puppet when the string is released, into a pitiful little heap upon the tiled floor.

the nurse who came in answer to her summons.

"Not yet. Your breakfast will be here in a few minutes, then when you've had your bath it will be time for Dr. Warde."

She was more than ever curious about Dr. Warde; so curious that she ate all the breakfast and took the bath without a protest as a means of passing the time. She had just been settled once more in bed when he walked into the room.

He stood for a moment beside her bed looking soberly at her—an ugly, broad-shouldered little man with a big head. Then he grinned, a slow grin that began with his mouth and spread gradually to a lot of little wrinkles at the corners of his eyes.

Emily smiled back, secure in the knowledge that this doctor could probably do something about the horrible mess she was in. He looked like the sort of person who went through life getting people out of messes of different kinds.

THE nurse slipped out and Dr. Warde sat down, quite sociably, in the most comfortable chair.

"You've been rather pushing Rip Van Winkle for his record," he said. He hadn't spoken before that, and she thought that she had never heard such a nice voice. Low-

"If anyone asks for me, I'm not registered here."

THERE was a breeze that blew the immaculate curtains almost horizontal. There was a crack in the ceiling strongly suggestive of the Mississippi River and its tributaries. There was a pungent, clean smell of disinfectants.

And finally, there was a nurse whose uniform was as crisp and white as the blowing curtains. Emily addressed the nurse faintly.

"What is this place?"

The nurse's voice was as crisp and immaculate as her uniform. "The Lookout Sanatorium."

"How did I get here?"

"You fainted at a hotel last night and the house physician there decided that this was just the very place for you. She spoke cheerfully, as if this were the Ultima Thule of all the nice places in the world.

Last night, Emily could remember now that a great many people had been fussing over her, and that someone had made her drink something. At the memory of all that preceded last night her mouth quivered.

The nurse saw the quiver. "It's about time for you to drink this, I think," she gave Emily a glass with a straw in it.

The next time she awoke it was dark. She felt much stronger; able to smile at the crisp nurse and to drink some broth that was hot and smelled very good.

"I think I'd better get up now," she said when she had finished.

The nurse smiled. "Wait until morning, Dr. Warde would skin me if you got up before he said you might."

"Who is Dr. Warde?"

The nurse's face softened, and Emily was reminded of ice breaking on a river in spring. "Dr. Christopher Warde. He's one of the specialists here. He's the greatest doctor in the world," she added in a burst of confidence.

Emily began to be curious about Dr. Warde. "When will I see him?"

"Tomorrow morning. Now try to go back to sleep."

When she woke again it was morning, and the sunlight was a slanting golden shaft from the window to the floor. She felt better than she had in weeks.

pitched, like Charlotte's, with a drawl that made you feel that there was no hurry about anything in the world. She asked:

"What happened to me?"

He grinned again, and she felt that whatever it was, it couldn't be very bad. "You've been going on your battery for some time and it ran down on you."

She knew what he meant; there had been nothing to recharge it. "When may I get up?"

"That depends," he said deliberately, "on what you're going to do when you get up."

Her face went white. What would she do? Dr. Warde's keen eyes never left her face.

"Suppose you tell me about it," he suggested. "Then we'll know just where we stand."

Emily hesitated, wondering where she could begin.

"I've gathered a little of it," he went on, very casually, as if he had fugitive brides for patients every day in the week, "from a young man who has been here most of the time."

Edwin would find her!

"I can't see him!" she cried.

"You don't have to," Dr. Warde assured her promptly. "But I didn't want to send him away until I knew more about it. Let's go back to the beginning."

It was amazingly easy to tell him about it; far easier than telling her mother would have been.

She began with the street carnival and went bravely through to the nightmare of two days ago. And when she had finished his mouth looked grim. He was consigning all the Frances Feltons to perdition.

"It's my fault," Emily said. "It's ridiculous for a person almost twenty-five years old to blame anyone but herself for a mess like this. But loving people—your family, I mean—is like being caught in a web. Even if you break the web it still clings to your fingers."

"Suppose we leave them out of it," Dr. Warde suggested. "They'll manage to worry along. Let's talk about you and what you want to do next."

CABINET? Joe Kennedy may carry out his threat to quit the chairmanship of the Securities Exchange Commission but he may not leave Washington. Though he is plenty sore over the President's whirlwind appointment of J. D. Ross as public utility member of his commission—Joe had suggested four other men—it is known that a Cabinet post may appeal to him.

It won't be long before Jim Farley will give up the Postmaster Generalship for a full-time job as National Committee Chairman. Although Frank C. Walker is understood to be the President's first choice for the Post Office, the popular Boston boy stands second. Mr. Kennedy has long ached for Cabinet rank so that his name will be emblazoned on history's rolls.

Mr. Kennedy, however, is more valuable in his present job and the "Chief" would like him to settle down there. To Wall Street he is a symbol of regulatory sanity.

HOMES: Rex Tugwell has reorganized the subsistence homes program so completely that its first four parents—Mrs. Roosevelt and Louis Howe—wouldn't recognize it now. Besides finishing up the original projects he has scrapped many others without advertising it.

The primeval idea was to create villages where the settlers could eke out a small factory payroll with food raised in their back yard. Industry would have had to move to the country to make the scheme work. But manufacturers said, "No, thank you," and Congress blocked the establishment of government plants that would have competed with private interests.

Mr. Tugwell sees no future for that plan. What he proposes is to build inexpensive homes in suburban areas where the people already have jobs. He will build homesteads near the factories instead of trying to reorganize the industrial system. Yet Dr. Wirt thought he was a "red."

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN

PROBLEM: Utility leaders are studying two alternative methods of forcing the much-desired court test of the new holding company law at as early a date as possible. One would be for a holding company simply to refuse to register with the Securities Exchange Commission as required by the law. The other would be to register and then decline to obey the commission's orders. Either method would put burden of initiating legal action on the government.

Refusal to register has the advantage of offering a quicker and cleaner-cut route to a decision. The other way would undoubtedly be complicated. The Commission might follow the precedent it set in dealing with the exchanges—try to induce its charges to comply with its ideas by indirect persuasion instead of direct orders. If the Commission chose it might postpone the test indefinitely by these tactics. Obviously if no orders are issued they cannot be chaledged as exceeding constitutional authority. Neither the government nor the power people could sue until a definite attempt is made to enforce the law under threat of penalties.

If it is disregarded. That wouldn't please the interests who want a speedy showdown at all.

On the other hand, the penalty of $200,000 for failure to register would be a most painful pill for a holding company to swallow if the courts should by some mischance fail to share its assurance that the law is invalid. Prudent executives are leery of taking that risk—not only because of what Uncle Sam might do to them but because inclusion of the penalty would lay them wide open to stockholders' suits for damages resulting from grant failure to protect their interests. It's a tough problem for the power chiefs. Some groups will probably try one form of nose thumbing and some the other.

NERVOUS: The government for its part also has a choice between two courses of action (other than attempted assessments of fines) in proceeding against refractory power companies. It could try to deny them the use of the mails—as provided in the law—or it could shoot for indictment against their executive officers.

The utilities hope it's the former. They figure they could build up a beautiful martyrdom if this extreme penalty is demanded.

The indictment approach is more like'y. Officers who would be involved profess confidence in the outcome of such a move—but just the same time a lot of them are privately as nervous as a bridegroom.

TIMING: Teachers in general aren't a bit enthusiastic about FDR's National Youth Administration. Some leaders in the field bluntly characterize it as meaningless political ballyhoo at best.

NEUMANN WINS GREVE TROPHY

The National Education Association is inclined to be sore at Mr. Roosevelt anyway. Its members feel that he has done nothing constructive for education—which has suffered severely in the depression and which they naturally rate as a matter of paramount social importance. Salt was rubbed in the wound when they held their convention in Washington last year and the President was not only too busy to attend but didn't even bother to send a message.

Announcement of the National Youth Administration was made just before their Denver convention this year. They deduced that the timing was for their benefit—and that they were perhaps expected to respond with expressions of grateful appreciation. They didn't—even at the outset.

OBJECTIONS: Outstanding educators criticize the Youth Administration plan on three counts.

1. The existing Federal Bureau of Education is ignored and a rival organization set up. This organization is centralized in Washington. They interpret this as indicating that the NYA will be more interested in politics than in the welfare of youth. They also object to centralized control because of its fast-track implications.

2. The teaching profession has been virtually ignored in the selection of administrators and advisers. Critics admit that people like Aubrey Williams, Charles W. Taussig and Josephine Roche may be very able but insist that they lack the proper background of experience for the job.

3. The $50,000,000 appropriation is ridiculously inadequate. In '30 the national educational budget was about three billion dollars. This year it's a little over a billion and a half. "It looks to us as if Roosevelt were trying to get credit for helping youth at a bargain. He might as well pour a cup of water into a half empty barrel and claim it was refilled."

APPROACH: Insiders say that the recent arrest of Dr. Harold Otto of New York for alleged nude bathing disclosed something new in the way of lobbying technique.

The guests in Dr. Otto's party included Herbert Feis—government economist who is actively engaged in negotiations for the pending reciprocal trade treaty with France, Richard A. Vil of Paris—who is here to promote French interests in connection with the treaty, Arm and Schaub—brother of the head of the Lace and Embroidery Association of America (composed of importers), and Mortimer Lahm—another importer.

The negotiation rules provide that domestic manufacturers can't contact the treaty makers personally but are merely allowed to present their views to a fact-finding committee. Apparently the lobbyists for the importers found the alleged nude bathing party a more effective channel of approach to the negotiators.

RAIN BLOCKS FINALS PLAY IN COASTAL PLAIN

Rain blocked yesterday's scheduled opener—between Kinston and Ayden—of the Coastal Plain League championship finals. The teams will try again today, with Kinston as the battleground and 4 o'clock as the starting time.

Doc Smith, Ayden manager, right now is the king sportsman of the Coastal Plain territory. The Kinston club was handicapped for the series because of the sudden departure of Tommy Irwin, star shortstop, for his home in Pennsylvania. That left Bunn Hearn's team with a big gap in its infield. But Smith offered a helping hand—he and other officials of the Ayden club agreed to let Kinston select any infielder from the league clubs not involved in the series.

Hearn chose Ralph Williams, one-time performer for Raleigh's Piedmont League Caps. Williams played this season for Snow Hill and turned in jam-up work in assignments at third base and second base. He will be used at shortstop by the Eagles in the title series. Smith, a very steady defensive performer, is a bad man at the bat in the pinches.

Hearn probably will call on Long John Humphries, a rising sophomore at Carolina, for mound duty in today's game. Doc Smith probably will use Brownless, veteran right-hander, on the hill.

The title will go to the club winning four games. Kinston and Ayden survived the semifinals which inaugurated the league's queer play-off.

QUARTERBACK POST PUZZLE TO WOLFPACK

College Station, Raleigh, Sept. 4.—Hunk Anderson has no idea who is going to do the quarterbacking for State College's Wolfpack this fall.

Anderson is very much concerned over the quarterback post because, as he told Greensboro Kiwanians last week, the field general is the most important man on any football team.

He says if he has a good quarterback he feels much better than if he had four stars in his backfield. Anderson goes on to say that a quarterback must be a fellow the other boys will have confidence in.

"He is the big business man of the football team," Anderson says. "Folks often ask Anderson why his quarterback never runs with the ball from scrimmage. To this Anderson replies that it is the quarterback's job to run the team, not the ball."

There are four candidates for the quarterback post. One is Willie Dwyer, 150 pound junior who guided the 1934 pony backfield which made quite a name for itself. Willie, despite his size, is a good blocker and has fight and spirit to spare.

Another is Maurice Roy, a junior who was slated for the signal calling job last fall but who, because of an injury in the opening game with Davidson, had to sit the season out. Frank Reese, backfield coach, tutored Roy in high school and says the youngster has the goods. He is, however, still an unknown quantity. Not by his own choosing, but because injuries stepped in.

The remaining candidates are sophomores—Charlie Gadd and Joe Schwerdt—big fellows who still have to face the big test—varsity competition. Gadd, all-Southern high school quarterback at Charlotte for four years, is a fine punter, a fair runner and passer, and appears to block.

Schwerdt, larger than Gadd and perhaps a bit more steady, went ahead of Gadd in winter drills and did most of the signal calling for the No. 1 team. But that doesn't mean he has the quarterback job won. Not by a jug full. Schwerdt

Lloyd George Abandons League— Wants Geneva Body Refashioned

By CHARLES P. NUTTER

London (AP)—David Lloyd George, last survivor of the "Big Three" combination that forged the world's hope for a lasting instrument of peace in the crucible of ashing tempers at Versailles 16 years ago, has turned his back on the never-very-cherished product of his joint parentage—the League of Nations.

Adept from 45 years of fiery British politics at picking a wide variety of clubs with which to belabor his enemies, the silver-haired Welshman, now engaged in an attempted comeback to his wartime glory, has chosen the League's disarmament and peace failures as an instrument to embarrass the present national conservative group.

Calls League 'Blunted Sword'
Speaking as a sword, he says the conservatives "have blunted and notched and crumpled until it is almost worthless."

"Unfortunately," he told a labor group here recently, "there is only one thing to do, and that is put it back in the furnace and recast it. The conservatives have completely destroyed its power."

Contending that the League is "in the ditch"—put there by conservatives—Lloyd George, who sat in at the Hall of Mirrors when the League was moulded, blames his enemies for his present impotence.

"Look at the League today," he challenges, shaking his famed Welch mane like an angry bull preparing for the charge, "flouted by everybody, Japan, Bolivia and Paraguay, Germany and now Italy."

Reserves Campaign Plans.

Lloyd George has not yet informed the British electorate what he would do to revitalize it, but this is expected when he opens his speaking campaign for the elections which he hopes will sweep him again to the summit of power.

Where he wants to try out radically different attacks on the present unemployment and depression problems of Britain.

The tomb has claimed the other joint authors of the League, President Woodrow Wilson, world idealist, and the "Tiger of France," Georges Clemenceau, wearied by war but unbending in his aim so to fortify his France that Germany would not again trouble her.

Lloyd George himself, fresh from the power that saw him bring deservingly Britain through to a victorious peace, was, like most Englishmen of that day, impatient at all the talk of an idealistic family of nations, and anxious, like Clemenceau, to get on with the business in hand—hang the Kaiser, handcuff Germany and divide the spoils.

History records the queer march

Survivor Of "Big Three" Marches On

In the dim past are the days when David Lloyd George, Georges Clemenceau and Woodrow Wilson, the "big three" at Versailles, fashioned the League of Nations. The fiery Welshman, sole survivor of the notable trio, is shown (below) in a pose which he struck while arguing that the League has become impotent and must be made over.

of world affairs that later saw the League repudiated by the country whose President had sponsored it, while England and France, at first wholly cold to the idea and barely tolerant of its formation, became its staunchest and almost sole important champions.

Negro Bound Over To County Court Under Bond On A Charge Of Larceny

Willie Dudley, colored, charged with larceny, was given preliminary hearing in city court this morning and bound over to the next sitting of county court under bond of $100. He was unable to provide bail and was remanded to jail.

Dudley was alleged to have stolen a suit of clothes from another negro, who reported the theft to police and the defendant was taken into custody shortly afterward.

Willie House, charged with assault, was fined $5 and cost.

W. L. Griffin, appearing on a charge of drunkenness, was permitted to pay cost and go his way.

Marvin Mooring, colored, speeding, $10 and cost.

The docket was one of the lightest in the past month and work was completed in short time.

Several actions were completed during the sitting Monday morning, several of them being bound over to county court with disposition scheduled for either yesterday or today.

Police have been very busy since the opening of the tobacco market the first of last week. Always at this season of the year, when the influx of itinerants is at its height, violations are greater than customary, and police are kept busy day and night.

Chief of Police George Clark said the first of the week, however, that violations this year were at a minimum compared with recent years, and his men have been able to give more than usual attention to traffic conditions, also described as more favorable in spite of the constant increase in automobiles operating in this community.

Fearing kidnapers, police of western states started a far-flung search for Joseph W. Ady, Jr., Colorado Springs capitalist, who mysteriously vanished from his home while his wife thought he was dressing for dinner. (Associated Press Photo)

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady 5 to 8 higher in response to better Liverpool cables and trade buying.

Uneasiness over the weather brought some buying after the call and prices worked up a few points.

With October advancing to 10.39 and May 10.37 for net gains of 6 to 10 points the market was steady at end of the first half hour. The outlook for rain in the Eastern belt brought out more buying and prices held steady later in the October selling to 10.39 and May to 10.51 or about 8 to 10 points net higher.

Futures closed steady 7 to 15 higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Prices moved about indifferently in today's stock market. Small dips and rallies failed to enliven the session and during the morning hours the turnover was the smallest in some weeks.

Commission houses could find little stimulation for their bulls or bears. Grains were ragged with foreign recovery.

The dollar was up in some of the foreign exchanges. The late tone was irregular. Transfers were 700,000 shares.

Late News Flashes

Emergency Agencies Under Budget Bureau

Hyde Park, Sept. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today ordered all emergency federal agencies under control of the budget bureau for curtailment of personnel with the assertion that the peak of the emergency had passed.

By the executive order Mr. Roosevelt placed the following seven government units under the budget for control of administration expenditures. The AAA, the NRA, the TVA, the commodity crop and the Railroad Coordinator.

This move completed the placing under the budget control of all emergency agencies outside the regular executive departments.

The president announcing the order at his regular semi-weekly press conference held today in the family room, explained the action contemplating a prevention of over-lapping and reduction of unnecessary expenditures. He said it means the emergency work of the nation is over and that they must cut bureau expenses.

Capture Girl's Assassin

Raleigh, Sept. 4.—(AP)—John Kingham, negro charged with slaying a 12-year-old white girl near Creedmore early last night, was brought to state prison this afternoon by State highway patrolmen and placed in safe keeping in a cell on death row.

Governor Ehringhaus sent the patrolmen to Creedmore today after an influential citizen had advised him that he feared mob violence when Kingham was caught. The negro was sought by a posse all night. Captain Farmer, of the highway patrol, said Kingham was taken near Hester, small town seven miles north of Creedmore. The negro denied he was guilty of the crime, Farmer said.

Kinston Weed Sales Off

Kinston, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Rain kept down sales on the tobacco market here today but better sales were in prospect as the result of the block sales earlier in the week.

Official figures for Tuesday's sales were not available but weed men said they estimated them at 1,000,000 pounds at an average of $19.

Rescue Work Stalled in Florida

Miami, Sept. 4.—(AP)—Treachery squall weather whipping the rock-strewn Florida reef continued this afternoon to balk the rescue of 381 persons aboard the Morgan liner Dixie.

On several rescue ships standing by the Dixie life boats hung over the water as the crews were ready to launch them at any time. The storm moderated slightly but squalls arose and the long vigil continued.

Civil War Veterans to Hold Joint Reunion

Amarillo, Tex., Sept. 4.—(AP)—Confederate veterans agreed today to forget any difference that might have remained and met with the Grand Army of the Republic in a joint meeting with civil war veterans at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1936.

The fading remnants of the boys who wore the gray in the war between the states voted unanimously to accept an invitation to the proposed blue and gray reunion on the Gettysburg battlefield.

The vote on the joint reunion came after the Confederates had been assured that they would be able to carry the stars and bars of the Confederacy when and where they pleased.

TRAVEL FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE FOR TAXES

Smithfield, Sept. 4.—(AP)—R. U. Barber is going after delinquent taxpayers in earnest this week. Four new deputies, Charley Wellons, W. D. Boone, R. D. Massengill and Ed Abell, Jr., were put on Monday morning and sent out with instructions to make a house-to-house call on those who had not paid 1933 and 1934 taxes and either collect or levy on the necessary property.

BAR SLOT MACHINES IN CATAWBA COUNTY

Hickory, Sept. 4.—Slot machines which were banned from Hickory by action of the board of aldermen Friday afternoon, have also been ordered out of Catawba county, according to a statement issued by Sheriff O. D. Barrs.

According to a statement issued by Sheriff O. D. Barrs.

SALT WATER SOAKING AIDS WASHING OF HANDKERCHIEFS

If handkerchiefs are to be washed, soak in salty water for about 15 minutes before the actual laundering is to be done. This will be quite as helpful as soaking over-night.

Use a cloth wrung out in slightly warm water and add a touch of vinegar and wipe the wooden furniture carefully before using furniture polish. In this way the wood will be thoroughly clean and will take the polish better.

Never use a stiff brush for washing kitchen floor covering. Soap and water and the mop will be best.

Cleaning Tips

When washing the keys of the piano rub very lightly afterward with a soft cloth so that they are sure to be dry. Sometimes a slight alcohol rub will help the piano keys. The inside of a milk bottle can be cleaned easily by adding a tablespoon of soap to a quart of vinegar and then pouring it in the bottle and shaking it vigorously.

If your floor cleaning brushes have become dirty they can be given new life by rinsing them in lukewarm soapy water to which salt has been added. Do not let the hard part of the brush become soaked; only the bristles need it. After they are clean—and you can see the dirt leaving them—rinse in lukewarm water without soap or salt and dry in the sun.
