FOR TIGERSPitches Detroit Club
To Eight To Three
Victory Over Chicago Cubs

Detroit, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers, American League champions, avenged yesterday's loss when they defeated the Chicago Cubs, National League champions, in the second game of the 1935 world series by a score of eight to three.

A disastrous beginning on the mound by Charles Root for Chicago netted the Tigers four runs when only four men had faced the pitcher. At that juncture Henshaw relieved Root on the mound for the Cubs.

Tommy Bridges went all the way on the mound for the Tigers after the Cubs but six hits.

After Chicago suffered a three up and three down in the first inning Detroit sent White to the bat who singled. White scored from first on a two base hit by Gehrane. Cochran scored on Gehringer's single. Greenberg's homer with Gehringer ahead of him brought the inning's score to four. Henshaw entered the box for the Cubs and retired the next three batters.

The next scoring came in the fourth inning after two of Detroit's men had been put out. Owen was hit by pitched ball. Owens advanced on Bridges' single. White walked filling the bases. Owens scored on a wild pitch. Bridges and White advancing. Cochran walked again filling the bases. Gehringer singled scoring Bridges and White. Kowalik then took the mound replacing Henshaw for the Cubs. Greenberg went out retiring the side with the Tigers having gained three runs.

Chicago scored in the fifth inning when Carravate got on first by Greenberg's error. Advanced on a second error by Greenberg and scored on Hack's single. Chicago made two more runs in the seventh inning on a base on balls, an error and two hits.

In their half of the seventh Detroit made one run on a base on balls, a two base hit and a single.

A crowd of more than 46,000 witnessed the game.

Seawell To Discuss
Department Justice

Raleigh, Oct. 3.—Atorney General A. P. Seawell will address municipal officials of North Carolina on the subject "A State Department of Justice" at the annual convention of the North Carolina League of Municipalities at Sedgewick Inn Monday, Patrick Healy, secretary of the League, announced here today.

Coordination of law enforcement activities in a State Department of Justice was a favorite theme of the late attorney general. Dennis G. Brummitt, Mr. Seawell also advocates this step, and spoke on the subject at the recent convention of the North Carolina Bar Association during its cruise to Nova Scotia. The subject was first presented to municipal officials at the Legislative Conference of the North Carolina League of Municipalities held here last January, at which time city attorney Grover Jones of High Point presented the matter.

Several other speakers will address the delegates on other topics of interest to municipal officials. The list will include an address by J. J. Reeder, traffic engineer of the National Safety Council of Washington, D. C., following which the delegates will take part in a discussion on traffic problems in cities and towns.

COUNTY COURT
ENDS SESSIONMore Drunk Drivers
Had Licenses Revoked by Court Yesterday

Eight more automobile drivers had their privileges to drive taken away from them by the court yesterday when they appeared on charges of drunken driving or careless and reckless driving. In addition to the automobile driver cases Judge Dink James heard more than half a dozen cases involving other charges. Yesterday's session of court was a continuation of this week's court started Tuesday morning. There was no county court last week because of the term of superior court in session here and this week's county court dockets was a heavy one.

Cases disposed of yesterday were as follows:

Lamb Manning, white, was found not guilty on a charge of drawing personal property.

E. C. Cox, white, was fined $50 and costs and ordered not to drive an automobile for a period of six months when he was adjudged guilty on a charge of drunken driving. If case of failure to comply with the other terms of the judgment he will have to serve a 90 days road term.

J. R. Briley, white, on the charge of drunken driving received the same sentence as Cox.

Haywood Tucker, negro, drew a fine of $50 and costs and six months revocation of license for drunken driving with a four months road sentence for failure to comply.

Charlie Evans, white, drew $50 fine and 12 months revocation of license for drunken driving and 90 days on the roads if he fails to comply with judgment.

Herman Manning, white, received six months on the roads for assault with a deadly weapon.

Joe Roberson and Alex Bush were found not guilty of a charge of (Continued on Page Five)

ON POTATO
LAW TODAYWallace Says He Does Not Want to Enforce Potato Control Law

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—In a stormy hearing before the AAA today Senator Bailey and Representative Warren, both North Carolina Democrats, demanded that the Agriculture Department enforce the potato control act which Secretary Wallace said yesterday he would try to "avoid enforcing." Almost 600 farmers applauded Warren, author of the act, as he charged Wallace with "nullification" and a few minutes later broke into cheers as Senator Bailey insisted upon being heard in arguments for the Warren act.

Alva G. Nye, AAA counsel, presiding at the hearing demanded that Bailey abide by the rules of the hearing but Senator Bailey promptly served notice that he would not take orders from anyone whatsoever.

"I do not like this idea of a representative of a bureau commanding a representative of the people how he shall conduct himself before a hearing," Bailey said.

Bailey got into the discussion when John B. Hutson AAA director replied to Warren's nullification charge by saying that the hearing was not called for consideration of the potato act but to consider other means of handling the problem. Bailey rose and said he wanted to ask Hutson some questions but Nye told him under the rules of the hearing he would have to direct the questions to the presiding officer.

"I intend to follow the rules, keep my temper and conduct myself as a gentleman," the North Carolina Senator replied. "But that does not mean as an American citizen and representative of the people that I shall take orders from anyone whatsoever."

Warren said the amendment was the law of the land and potato growers expected the farm administration to enforce it. He denounced what he described as a wave of propaganda against the law.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The plebeian potato which almost overnight has become a symbol of might in political and economic quarters will be given hearing at the AAA today. The AAA called the hearing, officials said, to find out what the farmers and consumers think about the question of potato control, rapidly shaping up as a chief talking point for the 1936 campaign.

As the witnesses gathered, they found themselves confronted by a situation perhaps unique in recent annals of the government. Secretary Wallace was declaring flatly that he doesn't want to enforce the act passed by congress and that he is "going to do all I can to avoid enforcing it." The act referred to was the Warren potato control bill. The law seeks to clamp an iron bound system of compulsory control on potatoes. It provides for quotas for growers with prohibitory tax on production in excess of quotas and is armed with jail penalties for willful buyers or sellers of bootleg potatoes.

Low prices for the tubers, had brought strong demand from some of the chief producing areas that congress do something about it. The control bill was the move congress decided upon. It was supported by some Democrats and some Republicans including Senator Bailey, Democrats, North Carolina, and Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho.

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Dudley Bagley, of Moyock, North Carolina, came here today as Governor Ehringhaus' personal representative to urge immediate enforcement of the provisions of the Warren potato control act. The North Carolina governor due to previous engagements was unable to attend the AAA meeting here to discuss the control measure.

Bagley is a potato grower himself and has long interested himself in the potato control program.

Sentiment Swinging Back To Graham As The Most Likely Winner In Election

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Oct. 3.—Sentiment is gradually swinging back to Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham as the most likely of the three leading candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, according to reports heard here during the last few days. For while it is still agreed that Dr. Ralph W. McDonald will get a lot of votes and probably throw the contest into a second primary, also that his entry at first seemed to strengthen the chances of Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, by sending all the conservatives and ultra-conservatives scuttling for his camp, a large number of the "more experienced and thoughtful political analysts" over the state are now becoming convinced that Graham will be much more likely to defeat McDonald in a second primary than his Hoey.

Two factors have caused the betting odds to shift from Hoey to Graham within the past week or two, most observers agree. These two factors are:

1. The decisive victory of Lieutenant Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler in Kentucky over Thomas S. Rhea for the Democratic nomination for Governor, running on an anti-state machine, anti-sales tax and "Support Roosevelt" platform, despite the fact that Rhea had the support of Governor Ruby Laffoon and the so-called Democratic "machine" in Kentucky and supposed to be virtually unbeatable.
2. The gains which Dr. Ralph (Continued on Page Five)

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The political "whirligig" is spinning its wheels today. The market tucker these October days. Their speculations are political rather than financial. They seek an answer to the question of whether business and industry are recovering or simply sitting up for a look around. It will be one of the chief 1936 issues, for economics will dominate politics as never before.

Here's what the figures show. When Congress convened in January in an atmosphere of uncertainty, fifty average stocks compiled by the New York Times stood at 83. As against a top of 99.25 in 1934 and 98 in 1933. They slid up and down in response to new Rooseveltian proposals. One week after the Supreme Court's upset, they sagged from the low 90's to 88. They hit 84 after the gavel fell and 116 after the "breathing spell" proclamation. Now they hover around 100.

Brain trusters decide all the planning and growing by sitting in a steady upward movement. In his western speeches, they insist that business men were simply "waiting" for the capital to be "put to bed." But capital replies: "No. Things would have been better if you left us alone." The politicians will spill millions of words over this insoluble question from now on. (Continued on Page Four)

ROOSEVELT
HEADS SOUTH
IN PACIFICSays America Will Remain "Unentangled and Free" In Case of War

Enroute with President Roosevelt on the Pacific, Oct. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, cruised southward off the Pacific coast of Mexico today after a review of the United States fleet and a sharp notice to the world that America was determined to remain "unentangled and free."

The president boarded the navy cruiser Houston late yesterday at San Diego and from it watched the naval demonstrations that ended at sunset. It was one of the most complete tactical exercises of the fleet.

Off the Coronados Island just over the boundary from the United States and still in sight of the lights of San Diego, Admiral Joseph M. Reeves, commander of the fleet, departed to return to his flagship. Then the Houston turned back escorted by the cruiser Portland.

Suwanee, Tenn., Oct. 3.—(AP)—Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, eminent churchman and educator reached the end of his "training for Eternity" in death today. He died at 2:10 o'clock only a few days after entering upon his 80th year.

"Training for Eternity" was his own description of what life meant to him. Otherwise he said "It is hardly worth the living. The outlook is desperate if we have to grow up to manhood with all its trials and responsibilities and pass on into age with its feebleness and regrets only to come to an 'oblivious path.'"

Bishop Gailor, head of the United Methodist Church since 1908 and oldest active protestant Episcopal bishop in this country became seriously ill September 21 after an attack of indigestion at his summer home here.

Funeral services will be held at noon tomorrow in All Saints' Chapel at the University of the South. Burial will be made in Suwanee. Mrs. Gailor who died as a result of injuries received in 1931 is buried here.

ITALY DENIES
THE FIGHTINGWomen and Children
Reported To Have Been Killed When Villages Bombed;
Ground Forces Defeat
Italians

London, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Agency reported today that 1,700 persons had been killed and wounded in the Italian air bombardment of Addis.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 3.—(Copyright by AP)—The Ethiopian government today told Luigi Vindigigliucci, the Italian minister to Ethiopia, to get out of the country a few hours after official government advices told of the bombing of Addis by Italian airplanes with civilian casualties. The Italian minister was handed his passports and will leave tomorrow. (This action in international affairs usually is preliminary to the breaking of diplomatic relations between nations).

An official communique said that a battle was under way against the Italians at Agame province, the area that lies between Italy's colonial territory of Eritrea and Addis. Early in the day Emperor Haile Selassie proclaimed a general mobilization of his ten million subjects.

When Vinceli leaves the country he will go out on a special train guarded by the Emperor's troops armed with machine guns and rifles to prevent any possible reprisals by the Ethiopians who appeared enraged by the bomb raid news, against the Italian diplomat.

The three American mission hospitals here unfurled enormous red cross flags today while the U. S. legation put up its largest American flag as a warning to bombing planes.

Anti aircraft guns set up around the capital limits fired practice bursts using real bullets for the first time.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Fierce fighting and retreat of Italian forces was reported tonight from Tigre province, border between Eritrea and the interior of Ethiopia. The Italians who had advanced across the border were reported to be fleeing with their airplanes covering the retreat.

(By Associated Press)

Official Ethiopian reports of an Italian bombing raid into Eritrea today signified in the view of League of Nations circles the latest beginning of war in East Africa.

British sources characterized the alleged bombing as the "declaration of war—the only declaration there will be."

Although Italy officially denied the bombing it also announced Italian troops had moved into advance positions "beyond our lines."

Reports of fighting poured into Addis Ababa. The wild Danakil tribes were said to have engaged advancing Italian troops in Tigre province. There were reports of fighting in Ogaden province.

Emperor Haile Selassie was quoted by Reuters as saying Red Cross nurses had been killed and wounded in Addis. A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Addis Ababa said that Italian troops advanced toward Agame between Addis and Adislat had been defeated.

The Italian minister in Addis Ababa told the Associated Press he knew nothing of the bombing and that furthermore he had received no instructions from Premier Mussolini as to what he was to do next.

The Addis Ababa correspondent of the newspaper Paris 819 reported that Premier Mussolini's sons, Bruno and Vittorio were among the (Continued on Page Six)

HIGHS READY FOR BATTLE HERE FRIDAY

With three weeks of preparation behind them, the High School football team will be ready to meet the team from Morehead City, Friday. The local boys are anxious to beat Morehead, since they were the only team that won over our baseball team last spring.

The team this year seems to be well-rounded in the sense that they have two full squads at practice every day. Both backfields will probably see service in the game Friday.

The new bleachers, built by the local baseball team this summer, have been moved to the east side of the field, for the visitors, and those on the west for the home rosters. The High School band, under the direction of H. A. McDougle, will play before and during the game. The band has recently acquired new uniforms and will make their debut in them Friday.

College Grid Team To Begin Season Oct. 12

East Carolina Teachers College will open its 1935 football schedule on October 12, when they play Wingate College at Wingate.

The boys for the past week have been hard at work under the leadership of Coach Doc Mathis, who is coaching the athletics at the college for his second successive term.

Eight of the lettermen who played on the squad returned to school again this season, thus giving Coach Mathis a good nucleus with which to build his team. Among the linemen who returned this season are Johnson, tackle; Carpenter and Sinclair, guards; and Lindsey and Kapelle, ends. Backfield letter men who are back this season are Feccebe, Ridenhour and Northcutt.

New men who show great promise in practice thus far include in the line, Holland and Davis at tackle, and Chester at end. Backfield men include Stowe, Gibson, Cunningham and Foote.

Perhaps the greatest worry which Coach Mathis has is in the filling of center. Jolly, who played center last season has not yet returned to school but Coach Mathis stated that he was hopeful Jolly would return next week. Should he not return, however, Johnson, who plays at tackle will probably be shifted to the pivot position. The team has been doing mostly passing for the past week and will not hold their first scrimmage of the season until Saturday of this week.

The schedule as announced by Coach Mathis this morning is as follows with the open dates of October 19th and November 9th games pending:

Oct. 12: Wingate College at Wingate.
Oct. 26: Oak Ridge Institute at Greenville.
Nov. 2: Louisburg College at Louisburg.
Nov. 15: William and Mary Extension at Norfolk, Virginia.
Nov. 23: Appalachian State Teachers College at Greenville.

Wolfpack Leaves Friday Morning for South Carolina

College Station, Raleigh, Oct. 3.—Hunk Anderson's State College Wolfpack will leave Raleigh on Friday morning for Columbia, S. C., where Saturday afternoon it meets South Carolina in a Southern Conference game.

Coach Anderson said the 'Pack would reach Columbia in time for a practice there Friday afternoon. A lengthy session here this afternoon will end local drills.

With one exception, Anderson will start the same team against South Carolina that lined up last Saturday against Davidson. The one change is the placing of Connie Mack Berry, sophomore from Spartanburg, S. C., at left end. Jess Tatum, junior from McColl, S. C., will be the right end. The other line posts will be occupied by E. V. Helms and Carl Goode, tackles; Captain Barnes Worth and Alex Regdon, guards, and Steve Sabol, center.

The backfield will be composed of Joe Schwerdt, quarterback; Cowboy Robinson and Eddie Berlinski, halfbacks, and "Jumping" Joe Ryneka, fullback.

This backfield, although composed of three sophomores and one junior, is the most powerful and versatile State has. It marched to both touchdowns against Davidson behind the perfect quarterbacking of Joe Schwerdt. The three passes State completed against Davidson were completed by this backfield, and when State looked best against Davidson's passes, this combination was in the game. Ryneka is the junior.

The game with South Carolina is the first of four State will play in the Southern Conference. The others are with Carolina, Duke and V. P. I.

Carolina Line To Get Big Test Against Vols

By SMITH BARRIER, Jr.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 3.—Can North Carolina's week-end line check the stampede of the powerful an elusive Tennessee back Saturday on the Vols' home field? The answer to that question will likely determine the margin victory for either the Tar Heels or the Vols.

The first of this week Coach Snavely was banking on two letter tackles to halt the charging Vols in this important game which is being headlined as the outstanding contest in the South Saturday. Tom Evins and John Trimpey played jam-up ball in the opening game and were assured starting posts for the Vol encounter.

But in a light scrimmage Monday Tom Evins was injured and will not be in the starting lineup Saturday. An inexperienced sophomore, Henry Bartos, was called on to fill the shoes of the veteran star. Bartos, 205 pounds, has shown great promise in practice. However he is given the hard job of starting his first varsity game against probably the strongest foe on the schedule. The sophomore will have to play the greatest game of his life to halt the Vol drives off tackle. Another soph Ed Palmer, will get the call as leading reserve, followed by Marvin Ray, a senior.

For the second straight week the Carolina coaches are working overtime on pass defense. Against Wake Forest this defense completely bottled up Passer Walt Kitchin. But the Vols are reported to have a more devastating aerial attack. "Phantom Phil" Dickens does most of the tossing and the two ends, Gene Rose and Sonny Humphries, are deluxe pass snappers.

While planning a tight air defense, Coach Snavely is pushing work to perfect his own aerial attack. Don Jackson, rated as one of the best passers in the South, will be on the sending end of most of the tossers. Jim Hutchins, Dick Dashiell and Crowell Little can also heave if need be. For receivers Carolina has four good ends, each capable of pulling in the pigskin in fine manner. They are Dick Buck and Andy Bershak, the starters; and Buck McCarn and Bill Moore, letter reserves.

A large number of students, alumni and other Tar Heel followers in the State are planning to accompany the team to Knoxville in Coach Snavely's first invasion of Tennessee. Incidentally it is also Major Britton's debut against the Southern Conference. A special train and several buses are being filled rapidly with reservations from the University and from North Carolina towns all over the State. Reserved seats are on sale here at the University Athletic office.

DUKE COMPLETES WORK FOR CLASH WITH GENERALS

Durham, N. C., Oct. 3.—Going through their final workout this afternoon, Duke's Blue Devils with one Southern conference victory on their string, leave here tomorrow for their crucial test of the early season with Washington and Lee in Richmond, Va., Saturday.

Coach Wallace Wade has put his warriors through a series of hard workouts this week in his effort to have them in the best of shape for the Generals. Playing under wraps in the past two games but realizing this game will take all the Blue Devils possess, much of the time this week has been spent in installing new plays and working on them both on the field and in blackboard drills.

Duke supporters, who will follow their team to Richmond in swarms, are looking to the Blue Devil backs, who have performed in sensational fashion in the first two games, to furnish the running that will bring victory in this all-important encounter.

But the Duke ball-carriers and their blockers—which has been no small thing in the ground gained by the Devils this season—will be going up against one of the best defensive teams in the country—and one of the biggest—on Washington and Lee.

The game promises to be a thriller. Duke will have to be at their best to win, and then may not be able to. They will have to continue their final play of the first two games, especially their sensational blocking, in order to score and they will have to stop one of the best passing attacks they will face this season. With Bill Ellis throwing them, the Generals will be dangerous until the final whistle.

In addition to Duke supporters, many other fans from this section are going to the game. It will be the nearest battle in which a Big Five team is playing and will be top-ranking, bitterly fought battle.

SPORT SLANTS

One of the most impressive things about Dr. Jock Sutherland's record as head football coach at the University of Pittsburgh is his amazing consistency. Year after year he manages to come up with a real football club. In the past ten years his Pitt Panthers have won the eastern championship five times. Over the same period his gridgers have won 79, lost 16 and tied 8.

The kenote of the system which keeps Pitt in the front rank year in and year out is restraint. He scrimmages his teams sparingly, and during the season works his players only 45 minutes a day. His one thought is never to let the athletes become saturated with football and become stale or over-trained. He will replace any member of the team at the first sign of fatigue. At times he has been criticized for using too many players but he pays little attention to such criticism for it is his firm conviction that a tired athlete is most susceptible to injury.

Precision Does It. The fact that his Panthers are called on to learn an unusually large number of plays and generally execute them perfectly is the best indication that he must work with unusual skill, fashion his plays with care and thought, and impart them to his players with clarity.

Dr. Sutherland was a great soccer star around Pittsburgh before he entered Pitt. In fact, until he went to the University he had never played the collegiate brand of football in his life. First playing under Joe Duff in 1914, Sutherland made the varsity in his second game and was never ousted during the next four years.

Playing as he did under Pop Warner, when the "Old Fox" was turning out those undefeated Pitt eleven of the pre-war period, Jock became a firm disciple of the Warner system. When, in 1918, he moved to Lafayette as head coach, after serving a year in the army, he put this system into practice. In the five years at Lafayette his teams won 33 games, lost eight and tied two. In 1921 his Lafayette team won the eastern championship, his first title.

Doc Replaced Pop. When Pop Warner left Pitt for Stanford after the 1923 season, Jock was called to take his place, and, at the same time, fill an important position in the dental school faculty. Is was a tough spot for anyone to be in, and especially the quiet, reserved Sutherland. Warner's teams had been tricky and sensational. Many men who had helped make Warner's stay successful had graduated, and it was up to Jock to replace them. He made but fair progress until 1927 when his Golden Panthers went through the season undefeated, winning the eastern title, and then lost to Pop Warner's Stanford Indians, 7-6, in the Tournament of Roses game.

Dr. Sutherland holds no high hopes for his present squad which includes only two regulars from last year's great team. Bob LaRue, a junior, at right halfback and Verne Baxter, a senior, at right end. In the squad of 53 who reported for early practice, about half were sophomores. Sixteen of last season's top-notchers were lost through graduation. Still it is a good bet that the good doctor will send another well tutored team on the grid-irons. Even though it may not be a threat for the national title—he always has had one in the past.

Ayden Woman's Club Meets.

Ayden, Oct. 3.—The Woman's Club which met in the Rotary room of the Hotel Ayden Tuesday afternoon, had as special speaker Walter Scott Buck, local attorney and mayor of Ayden. The civics department, Mrs. William Quinerly chairman, was responsible for the program and the speaker was presented by her.

Mr. Buck chose as his subject, "Ayden and Its Civic Problems." He commended the women on the strides made along all lines with the last 70 years, and especially for what they had done to promote the welfare of the race. Among the things mentioned that he would like to see accomplished by the citizenship were: Street improvement, cleaning of vacant and back lots, beautification of approaches to the town, and of the home grounds, sanitary improvements, regulation of traffic and better police protection. He said he would like to see the townspeople do everything possible to bring in new industries and the cooperation of all civic organizations with the town officials to put over the program as outlined by him.

Two other town officers, S. M. Edwards and W. J. Boyd, were present, and the latter made a short talk in which he urged the cooperation of the club in carrying out the projects suggested by the mayor. Another feature of the program which was greatly enjoyed was the vocal selections rendered by Mrs. Knott Proctor of Greenville, who gave two numbers, "Sunrise and You," and "One Night of Love." She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Tyson, also Greenville.

Following the program, a brief business session was held with Mrs. M. T. Frizzelle presiding. Reports were given by the department chairman, names of members of each department were read out, and

The congregation of the Greenville Christian church was organized in Mr. Hooker's home and he had served as an elder in the church until his death. Mr. Hooker's unflinching loyalty and devotion to his church made him one of its most valuable members and his passing left in the life and work of the congregation a vacancy which will be difficult, if not impossible, to fill. As a tribute to his long years of service the congregation will meet next Sunday morning in a service dedicated to his memory. There will be an appropriate sermon by the minister, a message from B. B. Sugg as a representative of the laity and member of the faculty of the congregation. The choir will render an anthem and Mrs. J. Knott Proctor will be the offertory soloist. Mr. Hooker's

These amateur nights promise to be interesting and entertaining as quite a number have stated that they intend to register for a part on these series of programs.

A number of people have the wrong impression of the word amateur. Webster says "Amateur is one who cultivates the art or pursues a study from love and without reference to gain." For an example Boake Carter is one of America's best portrait painters, yet he is an amateur, for he paints portraits as a hobby and not to sell. If you have any talent for entertaining register at the Pitt tomorrow morning between the hours of 11 and 12 o'clock, at which time auditions will

TOUGH: Insiders at Washington have realized for months that the canny, restraining hand of Louis Howe was serious for the famed Roosevelt secretariat. Recent events—the Kentucky row, the letter to the clergymen and Marvin McIntyre's hobnobbing with utility lobbyists—simply throw the spotlight on the scene.

The loss of Howe has thrown new burdens on the already overworked "Steve" Early. The usually good-natured "Steve" has exhibited an irascible spirit in his dealings with the press and officials. Sometimes he flares up just after having seen the President, and the objects of his wrath, especially the reporters, conclude that he is echoing Mr. Roosevelt's thoughts. Thus the press contact man gives outsiders a glimpse into the presidential mind in bad moments.

Plagiarizing Phil LaFollette's letter was due to the pressure for time. Mr. McIntyre would never have sought to settle political problems in Kentucky, a feudist state, with a hasty telegram, if he had stopped to think twice. Then again, a White House secretariat is like a football team. It looks grand when it's winning but terrible when it's losing. You can't blame "Mac" and "Steve" too much.

TROUBLE: A leading munitions manufacturer has armed himself against the wrath of public and political opinion in the event of a war in Europe. He doesn't think that the armament makers got a fair break when they were quizzed by Gerald Nye's senatorial committee. He has hired a famous publicity man.

It will be the publicist's assignment to educate the public to the fact that fabricators of shot and shell are just like other people with sons who may become cannon fodder. This particular manufacturer will point out that he makes thousands of peace-time products which, so he says, are more profitable in the long run than munitions. He wants to disabuse folks of the idea that he is around praying for or stirring up a war.

He may or may not be right. Sense, sleuths submitted evidence designed to show that some armament makers didn't seem to mind a little war now and then. But the important thing is that someone who ought to know expects business—and trouble. Washington fears he's right.

HIDDEN: The Treasury faces a dilemma which it doesn't care to advertise. In fact, currently it is taking credit for creating the problem, which centers on the cost of carrying the $28,000,000,000 public debt.

Official pointers-with-pride, including the President, call attention to the lower interest charges on the debt. They average 2.75 as against 3.90 in 1930. But they always fail to mention that the 2.75 refers only to the long-time bonds. These total $14,700,000,000. In addition there is about ten billion worth of notes which pay even lower interest.

These notes mature within five years, $3,500,000,000 falling due next year. Treasury financiers plan to convert some of this short-term stuff into long-time bonds so as to defer the day of reckoning. But if the recovery they crave should come, interest rates will go higher than 2.75—much higher if private funds are to be coaxed into the market. Uncle Sam will have to shell out more money for the debt. It is a hidden item in all this talk about cutting the deficit and balancing the budget.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN
SKEPTICS: Chalk up move number three in the President's game to recapture industrial support. That's who New York interprets the announcement that the budget isn't nearly as badly off as previously reported and that no new taxes will be needed to keep the government machinery moving and take care of Uncle Sam's debt.

Perhaps the message carried conviction elsewhere—but New York

MORNING STAR

— BY MARIAN SIMS —

Chapter 44 BREAKFAST

DAVID woke just as dawn was dawning into his room. He made a valiant effort to go back to sleep, knowing that the household would not stir for at least an hour, but the effort was unsuccessful.

He felt much as he had felt as a child on Christmas mornings, when he had lain and tried to decide whether to rise in the cold darkness to a solitary discovery of his presents, or to wait until Judith should wake and share his delight.

At last he gave up the attempt, and slipping on a heavy dressing gown he went to sit on the window-sill and watch the sunrise.

Frost lay like a lace veil over the grass and shrubs, and the rising sun tinted distant fields with a faint pink glow. For the first time in his life David wanted to kneel at the window and pray, not to any God above him, but to the earth below.

He turned away and dressed quickly in riding clothes, then stole quietly down the stairs and out into the cold, still air.

He went straight to the stables and saddled Aubrey's big gelding, his fingers performing skillfully and automatically an almost forgotten task.

The gelding eyed him suspiciously, and blew warm clouds of mist into the crisp air. He was unaccustomed to working before breakfast, and he felt, moreover, that he should resent the attentions of this stranger.

But, like David, he sensed in the stranger a kindred spirit. He danced restlessly as David swung into the saddle, and David leaned over to pat his shining flank. "I feel the same way myself, fella," David chuckled. "Let's go!"

Head out, his powerful body extended, the big horse raced from the dusky stable into the advancing morning. David guided him into a narrow roadway that led across bare fields and through a thicket of pines, then into cleared spaces once more.

Mist lay heavy above a stream that wandered across the fields, and the delicate pink light of sunrise was merging rapidly into the pale gold of early morning.

Having worked off his superfluous energy, the big horse slowed suddenly to a walk, and David's mood shifted with equal rapidity from exhilaration to reverie.

His mind went back to the events of the evening before: to Judith and the feeling of peace and security that had enveloped him from the moment of his arrival at Morton Hall.

He came finally and almost reluctantly to the memory of Emily, descending the broad stairway and walking straight into his life again. A very different Emily from the child he had known before: a poised, mature woman, lovelier even than he had remembered her.

Not the sort of woman, certainly, that he could ask to share a lifetime, perhaps, of poverty and struggle. He had accustomed himself during the past weeks to the idea of life alone at Carrollton—for several years at least—and Emily's reappearance had deprived the idea of its charm.

Judith had meant well, bless her, but Judith should have known that it was impossible—

As for Carrollton itself: for some reason that he couldn't quite define he was waiting—postponing his visits of rediscovery. It was in terrible repair, Judith had warned him, and Carrollton in despair didn't bear thinking about.

He wanted a few days to fortify himself: after that he would go and see for himself.

He turned his mount towards the house, and the horse, mindful of his errand, began once more to run. At the stable David flung himself from the saddle and handed the reins to a grinning black boy.

"Give him a good rub-down, son, and no breakfast for half an hour."

The boy bobbed like an automaton "Yassuh, Mist' David."

The household had awakened during his absence, and was alive with sounds of activity: the purr of a vacuum cleaner, the tinkle of silver and glass as Dorinda set the table, the faint, distant crooning of Louella as she prepared breakfast.

He went upstairs and changed clothes, whistling softly as he went. On the way down again he stopped, as he had stopped so many times before, to bang loudly on Judith's door.

"This is a devil of a way to treat a grad!" I've been up for two hours."

Judith's voice, heavy with sleep, filtered through the door. "Of all the disgusting energy—I'll be down in a few minutes to have breakfast with you."

"It'll have to be a very few minutes," he warned her, "or there won't be any breakfast to have."

He turned away, glanced at Emily's door and realized suddenly that he was incapable, now, of resuming the easy familiarity of the past. He passed softly by and went downstairs.

But Emily was already down, reading a book before the library fire. He stopped short at the door.

"Another early bird! I've been priding myself that I was the only person on the lot who had any energy."

She laid aside the book and smiled at him, and David's heart began to misbehave.

"It's in the climate. I can't resist getting up for fear I'll miss something. Jude's given me up as hopeless."

He dropped into a chair facing her. "Do you feel that way about it too?"

"So much 'that way' that I resent every minute I spend in bed."

Their eyes clung together, and David, watching her, saw that a deep flush had mounted swiftly from her throat to her hair. He looked quickly away, trying valiantly to think of some casual remark that would shatter the intimacy of the moment.

It was Emily herself who found it. "Didn't I hear you stealing in from an early morning ride?"

He nodded. "I was as bad as a kid on Christmas morning. I lay and looked at the ceiling for a few minutes and then gave up the struggle. They don't have mornings like this anywhere else in the world."

She laughed. "Don't I know! I broke all precedents by having breakfast with Aubrey and then riding with him the first day I was here. Judith thought I'd gone crazy."

He said slowly, "Would you ride with me some day before breakfast?"

The flush returned. He remembered, unwillingly, the first letter he had written her: "To think of finding a girl who can blush! God knows I don't deserve it." She said quietly:

"I'd love it."

GUS appeared at the doorway. "Breakfast is served."

David stood up, relieved. "Let's go ahead. Jude's coming eventually, but I'm too weak to wait."

Actually he wanted the experience of breakfast alone with her: it would be something to take to Carrollton.

Aubrey would be late, Gus was explaining as they sat down; something about a calf that wasn't well. He had thought they might be "hungry."

"We are," David assured him. "You did exactly right."

Judith came in before they had finished the fruit. She was about to say, "What a charming picture!" but checked herself abruptly. This was the sort of thing you couldn't push—instead she complained to David:

"I hardly stopped to wash my face for fear you'd eat the napkins. You're worse than a plague of locusts—"

He grinned as he rose to seat her. "Sweet Kate! I feel as if I'd never been away."

"That's why I'm rude," Judith explained. "I want you to feel at home. May I have some of those grapes, or are you using them all?"

"I think," Judith announced, "that this would be a swell time to have a dance. I haven't had a real party for Emily since she's been here and certainly we ought to have an official welcome for David."

Emily protested laughing. "My whole visit has been a party. Let David have the undivided honors."

David shook his head. "Not with you here."

Emily couldn't trust herself to speak. She was remembering all too vividly the dance at Carrollton so long ago: remembering David in the garden with his hands on her shoulders: "Mimi being a farmer's wife, Emily?" She had told him then that she would be a ditch-digger's wife if he were the ditch-digger, and four months later he was in China. She stole a glance at him and knew from the sight of his set face that David was remembering it too.

Judith looked sharply at David and realized that he was afraid. David, who had never known the meaning of the word? The discovery decided her.

"We won't have it until Saturday night. I'm going to start calling people tonight!"

(Copyright, 1934, by Marion Sims)

Tenacious. Emily is carried over a precipitous hillside.

right wingers received it with an impolite and unapologetic horse laugh. They remark that in the first place the "assurance" was accompanied by two oversize hedges. There's to be no new taxation if processing taxes are not annulled by the courts and if further relief and recovery appropriations are not required. The first qualification is taken as a not too subtle attempt to induce cancellation of suits to prove processing taxes invalid. If that was Mr. Roosevelt's idea he is due for a disappointment. Plaintiffs in such cases are in no mood to sacrifice what they regard as cer-

"unemployables" indefinitely—or until some major readjustment not yet in sight is worked out. So the chances of escaping further relief appropriations are rated about on a par with those of flying to Mars. Of course conservatives would be delighted to see federal expenditures pruned to save taxes—but they are thoroughly from Missouri.

SMART: Reports from London this morning are seeking a big loan are confirmed by New York bankers. What's more they predict that he will get it. Couple that credit with even a minor military success and Il Duce would have reason to pat himself on the back.

British authorities are understood to be receptive to the proposition (as forecast here recently). Why wouldn't they be? Even if they put up the whole amount and never get a penny of it back it would be a darned sight cheaper than war. Mussolini would be required in return to tone down on the Roman Empire stuff—which would be a bargain for him. He would have to save his face on the side—but that could be easily arranged. And of course he could always play Caesar again later if he felt like it. The beauty of this solution is that it gets at the real root of the whole thing—the bad domestic financial situation in Italy from which Mussolini tried to distract popular attention by the Ethiopian adventure.

If the loan comes through England will put up most of the money—about 3 to 1. France will contribute on the short end. No American institution will participate directly though some may get in on it by the back door. Bear in mind that Il Duce's bellicose gestures will have made it possible. Otherwise he could have applied for credit till the cows came home without getting anywhere. Observers remark that he has learned to adapt strike suit technique to international relations. Not so dumb!

FINANCING: The Treasury has again begun to use its smoothest, and most inconspicuous system of raising additional funds. Last week it floated $50,000,000 in 90-day bills in addition to the $50,000,000 required to meet maturing securities of the same character.

There's never any argument about these bills. Hardly anybody knows they exist except the banks that take them. They are always rated desirable because of their extremely short maturity. If the Treasury wishes it can raise half a billion dollars of new credit this way in a ten-week period as easily as eating ice cream.

New York insiders believe that is just what it is going to do. The extra money would be a comfortable cushion against contingencies and make it unnecessary to do any more bond or note financing for some time. Financial men approve because this method doesn't disturb the bond market.

CLUMSY: If Securities Exchange Commission Chairman Jim Landis cherished any dreams that all would be sweetness and light between him and his holding company charges he is already disillusioned. The American State Public Service Corp. suit in Baltimore was the tip-off on their tactics.

It's neat at that—this business of framing a suit on a constitutional issue in such a way as to freeze out the government. Collusion is a perfectly fair name for it—yet it's entirely legal. The point is that the

EXPECT WPA TO SPEED UP EMPLOYMENT

Procedure of State WPA Tend to Stimulate Private Employment

Reflector Bureau.
By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Oct. 2.—The procedure being followed by the Works Progress Administration, under which the state and district WPA officials will select the projects to be undertaken out of a large list of approved projects, will not only provide relief work where it is needed most, but will tend to stimulate private employment as well, according to the familiar with the WPA program. There are many localities in the state where private industry needs labor, but where it has not been able to get the labor needed because so many have been on relief and so willing to remain on relief that they would not accept jobs when offered, according to reports received here.

"The first thing the WPA will strive to do, of course, is to put as many of the bona fide unemployed to work on WPA projects as fast as possible—and since we already know where the localities are that need these projects the most, we naturally will concentrate on these sections," a WPA official said here today. "On the other hand, we also know the places where private employment is available but where former relief clients have refused to accept private work as long as they were able to stay on relief."

"For instance, we know of one town where a cotton mill has been unable to operate for several months because it could not get sufficient workers, although it has plenty of orders and wants to operate. We also have several WPA projects requested from this town. And because we know the conditions and the background, we will of course not approve the projects for this town, whereas if the final decision had been left up to officials in Washington, they might have been approved. But we know that all those who really want work in this town can get it. And we believe that when they are cut off relief November 1 they will then be willing to go back to work in the mills."

There are many localities, however, in which the unemployment situation is acute and where WPA projects will afford the only means of providing employment through the winter, it is agreed. It is in these places where an effort will be made to start WPA projects at once. And since the State WPA Administrator and the district director will have the final say-so in selecting those projects which will be undertaken first and their location, it is believed that enough projects can be gotten under way in all of the neediest localities by November 1, the date when all direct relief is scheduled to come to an end. More than $5,000,000 has already been allocated to the state WPA and more is expected almost weekly.

But it is becoming more and more apparent that the WPA is going to be much more hard-boiled than the old Emergency Relief Administration and that from now on those who want relief are going to have to work for it, not just a few days a week, but six days a week, four weeks a month. Most of the WPA officials are also convinced that they will not have more than 50 per cent of the former relief clients on their lists as WPA employees, since they are confident that not more than half of the former relief clients have any desire to do any work. They are also confident that the number of unemployed would have continued to grow rather than decrease as long as the Government maintained direct relief or the "dole." But now that the Government is definitely going to abandon direct relief November 1, with the

Jefferson Memorial To Rise On Site Of Old St. Louis—'Gateway To The West'

An artist's conception of the proposed $30,000,000 Thomas Jefferson memorial on St. Louis' Mississippi waterfront. The city has voted bonds for purchase of the 73-acre site. The plan, however, is tentative and the final design will be worked out later.

By HAL BOYLE
ST. LOUIS (AP).—On the cobblestoned banks of the muddy Mississippi river here a 28-year-old dream to construct a $30,000,000 memorial to Thomas Jefferson and the winning of the west is approaching realization.

Fruition of a long campaign to beautify the city's unsightly waterfront, with a memorial dedicated to its historic past awaits only the extension of federal aid already promised.

A municipal bond issue of $7,500,000 has been voted and actual construction of the gigantic memorial, which involves the razing of 27 business blocks adjoining the levee now rests with the national government. Harry Hopkins, federal relief director, has approved funds for at least the first year's work, and other officials have said the financial problem could be "worked out."

To Take Three Years.
The memorial, built on the original village of St. Louis, once the nation's western terminus and center of river transportation, will take three years to complete and is expected to provide employment for 5,000 men. It will be dedicated to Jefferson, who made the Louisiana purchase, and to later explorers and pioneers of the inland way to preserve the two buildings. A national competition is planned to select a design for the memorial.

Civic leaders first conceived the riverfront improvement plan in 1907, but it was not until creation of President Roosevelt's "work relief" fund last spring that backers of the project could obtain promise of federal aid.

Under present plans the government will pay three-fourths the cost of building the memorial and maintaining it perpetually. The $7,500,000 bond issue will furnish the remaining fourth of the $30,000,000 it is estimated will be needed.

Plan To Buy 200 More School Buses

Reflector Bureau.
By Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 3.—The State School Commission will probably buy at least 200 new school buses at once from state funds and use these to replace old and unsafe buses in localities where they are most needed, Lloyd E. Griffin, executive secretary of the commission said today. The commission had been delaying buying any new buses in the hope that its request to the PWA for a grant of $450,000 to be added to $550,000 of state funds for the purchase of 1,000,000 worth of new school buses, might be approved. But now that this project has apparently been thrown out by the PWA, the commission will proceed to buy some buses with state funds immediately.

"We are greatly disappointed that we were unable to secure the grant of $450,000 for new school buses from the PWA, since without this aid we will not be able to purchase anything like as many new school buses as are actually needed," Griffin said. "However, there is still some hope that later on the PWA might consider a much smaller project than the one originally requested and which has been definitely rejected."

"Accordingly I am going to recommend that the commission purchase at least 200 new school buses immediately to be used as replacement

SENTIMENT SWINGING BACK TO GRAHAM AS MOST LIKELY WINNER

W. McDonald is conceded to be making in the Piedmont and western parts of the state and the fact that McDonald is running on an anti-sales tax, anti-state "machine" and a "support the President" platform, almost identical with Chandler's platform in Kentucky.

Several visitors here recently from the Piedmont and western sections of the state have maintained that McDonald is making steady progress in those sections and that if the campaign results itself in a "defeat McDonald" campaign, as many now seem likely, that the opposition will have to center on the most liberal of the other two candidates instead of the most conservative one. This means then that the opposition to McDonald will have to center on Graham rather than Hoyer, since Graham is conceded to be more liberal in his views with regard to the sales tax, liquor control and other questions than is Hoyer. In addition, it is pointed out that Hoyer is expected to have the support of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and the present administration, as well as of former Governor O. Max Gardner and the so-called Democratic "machine" in the state. And in the Piedmont and west the support of the present administration is going to be one of the biggest obstacles Hoyer is going to have to overcome, many agree, since it is conceded that in those sections Governor Ehringhaus is more unpopular than ever.

"If the gubernatorial contest goes into a second primary between Hoyer

THREE WHITE BOYS ARE TO BE EXECUTED

Will Go to Electric Chair Tomorrow; Negro Given Reprieve

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 3.—Three white boys from the mountains of Madison county will die in the electric chair in Central prison tomorrow for the murder of a 75-year-old storekeeper, William Thomas, who was the great-uncle of two of his slayers. Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus late yesterday declined to intervene before Commissioner of Prisons Edwin M. Gill, since there was no doubt of their guilt. The boys are Robert Thomas, Arthur Gosnell and Oris Gunter, and range from 19 to 21 years in age. Virtually the only plea for clemency was based on their age and lack of education, but these factors were not regarded as sufficient to offset the fact of their guilt, which they confessed before the trial. Each has since confessed to Commissioner Gill twice since they have been in prison here.

A fourth prisoner scheduled to be executed tomorrow, Robert Dunlop of Asheville, a negro convicted of poisoning a negro woman, was granted a reprieve to permit further investigation and study of his case.

This execution tomorrow will not only be the second time as many as three men have been executed in one day, but will be the last time the present electric chair in its present location, will be used. For workmen will begin Saturday tearing out the present electric chair and equipment in preparation for building the new lethal gas chamber, in which it will be possible to either execute felons by electrocution or by poison gas. It is estimated that at least six weeks will be required to install the new gas-electric death chamber, which will cost about $2,800 to build and install.

There was never much hope for clemency for the three boys who will be executed tomorrow, since the question of their guilt was never in doubt, all three having confessed to the murder of the old storekeeper before the trial. They robbed him of $77 and then split this amount three ways. They clubbed him over the head with an iron bar, then dragged him off the road into the bushes, where he died about two hours later. They were arrested in Shelby where they were spending some of the money they obtained in the robbery. The jury which convicted them was out only seven minutes and the State Supreme Court in a recent opinion, upheld their conviction.

MORE FIGHTING IN AFRICA

pilots in the alleged bombing squadron.

Crowds milled in Downing street in London talking out of war and speculating whether Great Britain would be drawn into it.

Demonstrations were reported in widely scattered cities. 50 Italian conscripts were mobbed at Toulouse, France. The Italian consulate at Sao Paulo, Brazil, was stoned.

The Greek government called out three military classes to report for service as a precautionary measure in view of the international situation. The war minister in Athens was said to be considering mobilization but it was announced "no decision has yet been made."

Italy was expected to go before the council of the League of Nations with the stand that Italy was fighting purely a defensive battle against Ethiopia claiming that her colonial boundaries were being menaced by the Ethiopian tribesmen.

Emperor Selassie threw thousands of men toward the Eritrean border from which Italian troops were advancing. He called all fighting Ethiopians to go to the defense of their country. The "King of Kings" charged women and children had been killed by Italian bombing planes not only at Addis but also at Adigrat.

Italy protested the mobilization to the league and ordered its high command to take defense measures and announced Italian soldiers were advancing "beyond the lines."

League council was officially convened for emergency session Saturday morning. The assembly it was said may also meet in extraordinary session.

Anthony Eden, British minister in charge of League of Nations affairs, was instructed by the British cabinet to throw the whole weight of British influence behind an effort to stop or at least isolate the conflict.

The French government reported assured by Premier Mussolini's promise that the war in East Africa would not mean a European war, was prepared to confer further with Great Britain as to what the two nations' joint attitude would be.

President Roosevelt, speaking yesterday at San Diego, said foreign war was a potent danger but that the United States would remain "unentangled" in such hostilities.

Will Not Permit Railroad To Stop Telegraph Service

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 3.—The State Utilities Commission has refused to permit the Norfolk Southern railway to discontinue commercial telegraph service at some 15 points in the state where this service was maintained in its stations, in an order handed down today by Utilities Commissioner Sanley Winborne.

The Norfolk Southern had asked for permission to discontinue telegraph service in its stations at Vanceboro, West End, Ellerbe, Sunbury, Mt. Gilead, Bailey, Roper, Oriental, Midland, Creswell, Bayboro, Blasco, Lillington, LaGrange and Oakboro.

The petition of the railroad was denied because it was developed at the hearings that the Norfolk Southern did not maintain commercial telegraph service at these points, but that this service was maintained and conducted by the Western Union Telegraph Company, the agent of the railroad also acting as the agent of the telegraph company, the order points out. It was also pointed out that the railroad was the only petitioner and that the Western Union Telegraph company did not join with the railroad in the request to discontinue service at these 15 points.

"The railroad company is not authorized by its charter to engage in the telegraph business and it has never and does not now hold itself out as engaging in the telegraph business except for its own convenience and that of the public," the order said. "It has allowed, for a consideration, the telegraph company to use its offices and its agent in carrying on the business of the Western Union Telegraph Company and this company is alone responsible for providing service at the several stations involved."

Cases similar to this one have been before the Utilities Commission many times, it was pointed out, and in each case it has indicated that the Western Union Telegraph Company rather than the railroad, is the agency which should seek this action. If the Western Union wishes to close these stations, it is now expected that it will file a petition with the commission.

Johnson Becomes Chief Engineer Water Resources

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 2.—T. S. Johnson, professor of industry at N. C. State College, who has served several months as consulting engineer with the division of water resources and engineering of the Department of Conservation and Development has now become chief engineer of the division on a part-time basis. R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the conservation department, announced today.

Mr. Johnson will retain his connection with State College, spending part time on his duties with the department. He will occupy the same status with the department, formerly held by Thorndike Saville, who served for more than a score of years in that capacity.

At the same time, Director Etheridge announced that C. L. Mann, Jr., of Raleigh, has been engaged as assistant engineer to spend full time with the department. Mr. Mann has already assumed his duties.

The new assistant engineer is a graduate of State College in civil engineering, later taking graduate work at Cornell University. He is the son of C. L. Mann, Sr., head of the department of civil engineering at State College. During recent months Mr. Mann has served with the U. S. Corps of Engineers on improvement projects on the Cape Fear river.

The division of water resources and engineering of the state conservation department is charged with promoting the most efficient use of the water resources of North Carolina through research, studies, and practical application. One of his most important duties involves the maintenance of records of the flow of various surface streams in cooperation with the U. S. Geological Survey.

RHODES CANDIDATES WILL BE SELECTED

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 3.—Candidates from the University of North Carolina for the Rhodes Scholarships must be chosen before October 26 according to announcement by Dr. C. P. Scrull, Jr., who is the Carolina representative of the awards.

The customary five men who will be chosen from among all University applicants must confer with Prof. F. K. Mitchell of Duke University, Secretary of the North Carolina selection committee, before November 2.

Four men will be selected from the twelve finalists who are chosen from six states, two coming from each of the six.

North Carolina is grouped for the final selections with Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Tennessee.

The twofold effect is absolutely necessary to the overcoming of Malaria. Besides being a dependable remedy for Malaria, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic is also an excellent tonic of general use. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle today at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1.
