Airplanes Hover Over Ethiopian War Area Today

Roar Over Strategic Points Like Harbingers Of Death

ARAR POPULACE EVACUATES CITY

Fear For General European War Is Expressed As Efforts Made Restore Peace

(By Associated Press)

Italian armies formally occupied the holy city of Aksum today and her planes roared across northern and eastern Ethiopia.

A League of Nations sub-committee on sanctions decided, in principle, to recommend an embargo on coal, zinc, wool, nickel, gasoline and other "key materials" of war to the Fascist leaders.

Ethiopia began to receive her first shipment of arms after the lifting of the embargo on the country.

Italy hailed the occupation of Aksum "a victory for its cause." Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia wept and summoned his people to a holy war.

Great Britain abruptly canceled the cruise of her grand fleet to Greek waters and military quarters believed it to be kept around Gibraltar and the Suez Canal.

Authoritative circles in London declared any proposal for Italian-Ethiopian peace must be submitted to the League of Nations.

(By The Associated Press)

Italian planes roared over two strategic areas yesterday and today like harbingers of death even as Emperor Haile Selassie proclaimed a holy war for the recapture of Aksum, shrine of coptic Christians.

The populace of Harar "garden of Ethiopia" fled to the hills for safety as planes swooped down on the city, goal of the Italian Somaliland army, which lies on the line of march toward the capital city of Addis Ababa.

Other planes bombarded and dispersed Ethiopian troops in camp south of Makale. Emperor Haile Selassie pledged to retake the city, said information from Rome contained in an official communication.

Scouting planes flying high ere a half apprehension at Dire Dawa, half-way along the only railroad running from Addis Ababa to Djibouti, French Somaliland. An air bombardment which might cut off this only outlet to the sea appeared imminent. More of the black-faced barefooted Ethiopian troops moved toward the Italian army front for an engagement which may be the first major battle of the war.

While further reports of armed clashes, coupled with preduous of the first major battle, trickled in over over-heavily burdened telephone wires, sharply contrasting stories of Mussolini's attitude toward peace originated in Rome and Paris.

Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas and nationally known newspaper publisher, related after an interview with Du Cane that the author of the black shirt movement was resigned to a general European war.

"Apparently he believes England means war," Allen, former United States Senator, said.

At the same moment in Paris, Premier Pierre Laval, whose efforts to solve the riddle of African peace have been noteworthy in contrast to the militant attitude of Great Britain, talked with ambassadors of London and Rome. He reported some encouragement.

E.C.T.C. Prexy Receives Bid

Meadows Asked to Represent College at Ceremonies in Ohio

Dr. L. R. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers College here has received an invitation to represent the college at the inauguration of Dr. Herman Gerlach James, as twelfth president of Ohio University.

The inauguration will take place November 15 at Athens, Ohio. The inaugural program will include several speakers of national prominence.

The first colony in Central America was founded by Columbus in 1502 in Costa Rica where he left his brother Bartholomew.

SCOUT WORK BE REVIEWED

B. B. Sugg To Give Resume Of Work During Year

Citizens of Greenville and vicinity are invited to attend a meeting at the high school library tonight at 7:30 o'clock, at which time B. B. Sugg, local tobaccoist and a director of scout work, will give a resume of the year's work of the Greenville district of the East Carolina council of Boy Scouts.

The meeting was called by Chairman Gilbert R. Combs. Greenville and Pitt County became an administrative center of the East Carolina council last November and since that time scout activities in the section have achieved a number of undertakings.

John J. Sigwald is scoutmaster and Ralph H. Mose is assistant. Boy Scouts here attended the state jubilee in April and 11 of them were prepared to attend the national jamboree in Washington. The national affair, however, was called off by President Roosevelt on account of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in the country, chiefly in North Carolina and Virginia.

Scout units have been boosted from four in the county to eight troops and one cadet pack. An increase from 81 boys to 184 or an increase of 103 percent has been realized within the past 12 months. Last fall a training school for scout leaders was held and attended by a large number. Pitt county scouts now feel they have the best leadership available.

Federal Housing Agent Here Wed.

Aubrey McCade to Be Stationed in Postoffice Building

Aubrey McCade, district representative of the Federal Housing Administration, will be here Wednesday to discuss the details of the federal unit with anyone interested. The representative will be located on the second floor of the Postoffice and will spend the entire day in Greenville.

Herbert Waldrop, cashier of the Guaranty Bank and Trust company of this city, explained the operations of the federal housing administration at the regular weekly meeting of the Rotary club last night.

Tree In Bloom At Tyson Home

The present balmy weather is evidenced by the appearance on a pear tree of blossoms and pears at the same time.

In the yard of J. C. Tyson of West Fourth Street stands the tree with pears ready to be picked. Also on the tree appears a number of blossoms indicative of the warm weather in evidence here.

Republican Of Raleigh May Seek No. Two Post

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 14.—Calvin Zimmerman, Raleigh merchant and sometimes Republican candidate for Utilities commissioner, is in the mood to run for lieutenant governor, according to the merchant's close friends.

Zimmerman had been on the point many times of trying for the national commissionmanship now held by Charles A. Jones of Lincoln, former district attorney and one-time congressman from the old ninth and he new tenth. But Jones came here last spring and put up a big fight on the sales tax and the general liquor bills which were pending at the spring term of 1935. As Mr. Zimmerman did not object to the sales tax and positively liked the liquor proposals the Republicans were not going to cut him up any such here.

But the 1935 legislature gave Zimmerman something to work with. It put the tax on "primary foods" and Zimmerman, who deals

Many Drunken Drivers In County Court Today

Judge James Revokes Licenses of Drunken Drivers and Metes Out Sentences

Judge Dink James in Pitt County court today meted out sentences to an unusually large number of drunken drivers, fined five defendants guilty in connection with the operation of a number of cases on other charges.

The docket this week was larger than usual, as there was no court last week. The court will continue in session tomorrow. Robert Cade and Lacey Gade were charged with illegal possession of whiskey for sale. Robert Cade was given six months on the roads, and Lacey Gade 90 days, with sentences suspended for three years on good behavior. Ab Barrow was given thirty days on the roads for drunkenness on highway, and H. H. Carrow, on the same charge, paid the cost, amounting to $18; Albert Carney, charged with drunken driving, was fined $50 and cost, had his driver's license revoked for six months, and a three months road sentence was suspended on condition he meet the other terms of judgment.

Pete Malafas was fined $25 for operating a lottery, had a 60-day jail sentence suspended upon good behavior; Dan Pigott, charged with selling lottery tickets for Malafas, was fined $15, and received a 60-day suspended sentence.

In another lottery case, O. T. Boney, operator of a lottery, was fined $25 and had a 60-day road sentence suspended, while Wortham Norcott and John Langley, negroes, charged with selling tickets for Boney, were fined $15 each and had 60-day road sentences suspended.

Howard Smith, charged with drunken driving, was fined $50, had his license revoked for 10 months with a four months road sentence suspended for two years. Robert Koonce, also charged with drunken driving, was fined $50, his license

HAUPTMANN GETS REPRIEVE
Trenton, N. J., Oct. 15.—(AP) Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution was stayed today when the court of errors and appeals granted opportunity to appeal the conviction to the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court gave Egbert Rosecrans of the defense counsel, 30 days in which to ask the court to review allegations that Hauptmann's constitutional rights were violated in the trial.

The procedure which would have returned the case to superior court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, trial judge, for re-fixing of the execution date was stayed by the court of errors and appeals, but will automatically take effect November 14 if the appeal is not perfected by that time.

Six days ago the court of errors and appeals in an unanimous opinion upheld Hauptmann's conviction.

WEED CROP IS 3RD LARGEST IN HISTORY

Favorable Conditions Big Factor In Heavy Growth of Leaf

CORN YIELD ALSO LARGEST LATELY

Good Stands of Peanuts Reported By Federal-State Crop Reporting Service

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Oct. 15.—Favorable conditions combined to make this year's North Carolina tobacco crop the third largest in the history of the state—538,369,000 pounds—according to the crop report just issued by the State Federal Crop Reporting Service here.

At the same time, it was announced that the corn yield this year has been one of the best in many years. Combined with the increased acreage, the total production promises to be 24 per cent above the 5-year average and 2 per cent above the 1934 yield. The October 1 condition of 82 per cent indicates about 20 bushels to the acre. A total crop of 48,320,000 bushels is indicated at this time.

Stands and growth of peanuts have been good. This year's total production of 273,000,000 pounds is almost 4 per cent more than last year's. Harvesting is now well under way. With little disease complained of, this also has proved a good season for soybeans. The present yield appears about 16 bushels, from the 84 per cent condition reported.

The peach crop, now marketed, was fairly good. Apples are above the average yield as well as size. The 1935 commercial production is indicated at 12 per cent above last year and 21 per cent better than the 5-year average.

With regard to the 1935 tobacco crop, the report said:

"Most all of the conditions affecting the tobacco crop this year combined to produce a heavy yield of a light, low grade leaf. Heavy applications of fertilizer were general. Most growers either did not top their plants or topped unusually high; also heavy rains occurring about harvest time started a second growth in some sections, delaying the ripening of the crop and adding leaves of light weight and inferior grades. However, the growing season generally was quite favorable. While the state's 1935 tobacco acreage is little more than the past five or ten year average, the 840 pounds per acre yield indicated by the October 1 report on condition is one of the heaviest on record, and the prospective total production of 538,369,000 pounds is the third largest crop ever produced in North Carolina."

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

SKETCH: President Roosevelt highlighted future administration policies for a conservative Democratic Senator before leaving on his western trip. It was the first of many conferences to be solicited by Mr. Roosevelt as a means of reconciling the faction he has alienated inside and outside Congress.

The President picked his weak spots with uncanny accuracy—business hostility and popular unrest over expenditures. He sought to impress on his visitor that he meant to turn over the responsibility for recovery to private interests. Besides launching off fears that business and industry had anything to fear from him, he gave three specific pledges.

He said he did not intend to seek a constitutional amendment enlarging the power of the federal government. He declared he hoped to balance the budget at the earliest opportunity (though not for several years), counting on increasing revenues and diminishing expenditures. He said the major objective of future relief moves would

OFFICIALS OF SCHOOLS MEET

Teachers, Principals and Superintendents To Gather Here

Clyde A. Erwin of Raleigh, state superintendent of public instruction, and Albert Coates of Chapel Hill, director of the Institute of Government, will take part in a meeting here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the High School building of superintendents, principals and social science teachers of the eastern district.

The district is composed of Pitt, Greene, Lenoir, Jones, Onslow, Carteret, Craven, Pamlico, Hyde and Beaufort counties.

The purpose of the meeting, announced by J. H. Rouse, superintendent of Greenville schools, is to discuss and make plans to inaugurate the study in the various schools of civics as now practiced. At the request of and under the supervision of members of the state Textbook commission, the curriculum revision committee and high school teachers, members of the staff of the Institute of Government for the past several months have made a study of the structure and workings of government in theory and in practice, in books and in action. The results of these studies are now available for use in the schoolrooms of the state.

Special Few Are Favored

McDonald, Candidate for Governor, Says State Policies Favor Bondholders

Carthage, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, anti-sales tax gubernatorial candidate, opened the Moore county fair here today with an address in which he called for immediate refunding of state and local bonded debts at lower interest rates.

"When the policies imposed upon the state in recent years by representatives of special interests are carefully analyzed," the conclusion is inescapable that the chief beneficiaries of these policies has been the bondholders or special interests.

"Since January, 1933, the appreciation in bond values has gone far above the $100,000,000 mark. The huge profits to holders and special interests has come as a dire result of sales taxes, the reduction of school facilities, the curtailment of state service and the reduction of wages of state employees," the candidate for governor said.

Countess Admits She Expects a Baby in February or March

Paris, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow announced today that she expected to become a mother in February or March.

"Yes, it is true," she said while being fitted for a new wardrobe, "I expect to become a mother by the end of February or the first of March."

Onslow Representative Predicts Special Term

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 15.—Representative Nere Day of Onslow, who faced the first general sales tax measure of 1931 and came back to consummate the daring in 1933, still thinks he will serve in a special session and that it won't be long now.

He doesn't mean to say the sitting itself will not be long, but he thinks the interim between now and then will be brief. Mr. Day sees two wherefores for the extra session. One of them is Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, the other is a joint state and national necessity.

Rep. Day doesn't express it that way, indeed, he says it is plausibility. There is a social security legislation which must be enacted. There is something of a state-wide liquor situation. And if the regular session should be done legally before the governorship race gets very old.

Mr. Day isn't stringing with Mr. McDonald and sees nothing like a

EXPOSITION MAKES READY

Fairgrounds Put In Shape; To Open Monday

Preparations are about completed for the opening of the Greater Greenville Fair next Monday night at six o'clock. Secretary N. G. Bartlett said today.

Bartlett stated that the exhibit hall is being put in "tip-top" shape for the agricultural exhibits and that indications are there will be plenty of exhibits for the visitors at the fair. The old dangerous grandstand which was in use last year, will be replaced with cool open air bleachers, which will be erected to take care of the grandstand attractions. This is the opinion of the management will be far more satisfactory than the use of the old grandstand as it was last year.

Those interested in securing space for cats and drinks or space for exhibits should get in touch with Miss Mary Lou White, assistant secretary, or telephone 955. The old fair spirit will be in evidence next week by the territory served by the Greater Greenville Fair.

New High Mark Of $25.78 Per Hundredweight

NEW HIGH PRICES PLEASE FARMERS

More Than $350,000 Paid Tobacco Growers On Local Markets Yesterday

Prices on the Greenville tobacco market touched a new high for the season yesterday when the day's sales averaged $25.78 per hundred pounds. Yesterday's operations likewise set a new record for the total amount of money paid out in a single day.

Official figures on yesterday's sales were 1,393,272 pounds for $35,210.97, an average price of $25.78. The previous high day's average for this season was $24.85 established here on Monday of last week.

Yesterday's offerings were the largest of the season and considerable block was carried over for sale today. Very little tobacco came in during the night, however, and indications were that all floors would be cleared during the afternoon in readiness for tomorrow's sales.

With October considered the best month in which to sell tobacco warehousemen are looking forward to continued heavy sales throughout the next few weeks and growers are anticipating a continued rise in prices.

Better prices on the market here last week brought the season's average price to $20.08 and this week's operations are expected to bring the season's average nearer the parity price of 21 to 22 cents a pound.

School Students To Attend Fair

Winterville Agricultural Classes to Go to Raleigh for Exposition

The members of the Winterville Agricultural classes are planning to attend the N. C. State Fair, Friday. In addition to enjoying the many amusements and general entertainments of the Fair, the boys will meet as a class to study various agricultural enterprises. This will enable them to see many classes of animals in their natural settings, many of which are not found in this locality.

The students have been concentrating on the study of livestock, breeds and varieties of poultry, their classroom, so special attention will be given to their identification at the Fair.

Some of the boys are planning to remain until Saturday and attend the State—University of Georgia football game. All school children will be admitted to the Fair free of charge on Friday.

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The fall crop of 1936 election predictions is so abundant that it seems appropriate to recall how little these long-range forecasts have amounted to in the past.

A year or so in advance it is customary for each party to begin announcing that the election is won. Why this is done so consistently must remain a mystery to the layman, particularly as both sides invariably follow up their assuring words with renewed outbursts of campaigning.

There is reason to doubt whether anyone is greatly deceived by the process. Obviously both parties cannot be right, and the reader of the manifestos is left exactly where he was before—free to do his own guessing.

It must be apparent to even the dullest that a great deal can happen in national politics in a year, or even a much shorter space of time.

It is generally believed that William Jennings Bryan was turned back from the Presidency in 1906 in the final month of the campaign; and two distinguished Republicans—James G. Blaine and Charles Evans Hughes—are supposed to have forfeited victory within a matter of days before the polls were opened.

Yet all the time both sides were claiming it was all over but the shouting.

View One-Sided
The special hazards of making forecasts about what will happen in November, 1936, also should be easy to see.

For one thing, unlike many other presidential years, 1936 permits of only a one-sided preview. It seems pretty well agreed Mr. Roosevelt will be the Democratic candidate, and that he will campaign for the "new deal." Who the Republican candidate will be nobody pretends to know, nor is there any assurance for what principles he will stand.

A third party now appears unlikely to develop, although that possibility alone surely forecloses any hard-and-fast conclusions at this stage of the proceedings.

A new session of congress meets in January, and it is proverbial that the session preceding an election often has much to do with making the issues.

In particular, a new budget must be submitted and passed. No one would deny that a great deal depends on which way the administration turns with respect to relief and unemployment, and spending in general.

If only these elements of uncertainty were considered the task of making a dependable prediction would be hard enough. It might possibly be done by a shrewd guesser, but there remain at least three other complications, the outcome of which no man can be certain about.

Recovery Trend Vital
First of all there is the question what course the present recovery trend will take. Every practical politician knows it will make a vast difference whether, in the closing months of the campaign, the country is riding the crest of an engulfing business boom, or sinking deeper into depression.

Secondly, there is the question of the supreme court. Its decisions during the present term may settle issues which have come to have the highest political importance, or may create new issues so fundamental that both sides will have to recast their entire strategy accordingly.

Finally, there is the war in Africa. Who would have supposed in 1914, when Austria and Serbia quarreled, that the presidential campaign of 1916 in the United States would turn almost completely on issues growing out of the reverberations of that little war? Who knows what questions of neutrality may now arise to blanket 1936 and relegate to secondary place all of the domestic issues which seem to large today?

In any ordinary campaign, any one of these three elements of uncertainty would be sufficient; to call into question all predictions made a year ahead. The year 1936 will be a good year to "wait and see."

Purchase Land Near Raleigh For Public Park

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 12.—Purchase of 6,000 acres of land in Wake county between Raleigh and Durham, to be developed as a recreational area has been announced today by James M. Gray, Regional Director of the Division of Land Utilization, Resettlement Administration.

An allocation of $84,000 has been made for this project and options are now being accepted on the acreage selected for purchase. All land being acquired has been voluntarily offered for sale to the government by its owners, who will be paid for their land when the titles are approved by the office of the U. S. Attorney General.

The project, known as the Crabtree Creek Industrial Recreational area, is being undertaken by the Resettlement Administration as part of its program demonstrating better uses for land. Most of the land selected for the Crabtree project consists of farms which have been reduced to an unprofitable condition by severe erosion. The co-operation of the National Park Service will be enlisted in the development of the project.

Three Bible Courses At The University

By LORIS DOVER
Chapel Hill, Oct. 12.—Three courses in Bible have been added to the curriculum of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as a result of action pending since 1928 when the trustees provided for the establishment of a department of religion. These new courses mark the beginning of the shaping of this new division.

The classes added are: "Archaeology and the Bible" taught by Dr. J. P. Harland whose field is archaeology; "History of the Hebrews in the Old Testament Period" to be taught by Dr. W. E. Caldwell whose major is ancient history; and "The Bible as Literature," to be taught by Dr. A. C. Howell, who is a member of the English faculty.

Credit for the new studies will be given this year in the department from which the professors who teach them come thereby making the courses strictly Biblical and not instruction in religious matters.

In 1928, "The School of Religion at Chapel Hill" was established but no credit was given to students undertaking in this institution since it was not allied with the University in any manner.

In 1928, the faculty of the University recommended to the trustees that a department of religion be set up as soon as funds became available, but due to the depression no action was taken until this year when the three courses were added.

Harry F. Comer, General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of the University, says, "These courses are a modest beginning for the department provided for in 1928 with our own staff already paid for who are qualified to teach in the fields in which they are found."

There is no special administrative office for the new courses as yet, but there are plans for expansion into a full department of religion as was specified in 1928 as soon as the necessary funds are available.

Development of the recreational features of the project.
"Crabtree Creek provides an excellent example of how poor land can be utilized for benefit of the community," Gray said. Farmers now living on land selected for purchase are glad to sell out and move to more productive lands. Needless to say, the people of Raleigh and Durham will appreciate this addition to their recreational facilities which are now so inadequate."

Special efforts will be made by the National Park Service for the development of the Crabtree Creek area for families of lower income in the surrounding industrial towns. Co-operation will be sought from the various social agencies in these cities through which arrangements may be made to help families enjoy shore vacation periods in the new park area.

Recovery Trend Vital
First of all there is the question what course the present recovery trend will take. Every practical politician knows it will make a vast difference whether, in the closing months of the campaign, the country is riding the crest of an engulfing business boom, or sinking deeper into depression.

Willie Spill
The defendant above named will take notice that an action, entitled as above, has been commenced in the Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, for the purpose of securing an absolute divorce; and the defendant will further take notice that she is required to appear before the Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, at his office in Greenville, North Carolina, within thirty days from this date, and answer or demur to the Complaint filed in this action, or the Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

Periously Long Supply Line In Ethiopia Seen By British As Italy's Chief Worry

The Italian soldier at the left, grim as he left home for northeast Africa, went to face more subtle foes than the typical Ethiopian warrior shown at the right. Military experts say that as Mussolini's men move away from the front line they must depend upon mule transport, such as that shown in the middle photograph, for food, ammunition and other supplies.

By CHARLES P. NUTTER.
LONDON (AP).—Recognized by British military strategists here as the greatest weakness in any Italian effort to subjugate Ethiopia is the perilously thin and dangerous long line of Italian communications.

Modernizing the old adage that an army moves on its stomach, observers here point out the almost staggering problems of transport, communications and supply involved in Mussolini's East Africa campaign.

A single break in this long line of communications, which stretches back from Eritrea nearly 3,000 miles to Italian ports, might turn a victorious march of blackshirts into the stupendous debacle of a retreat of 250,000 starving, thirsty men.

Suez Canal Called Vital.
Up to Eritrea the line of supplies stretches through peaceful friendly waters and country, provided the vital Suez canal is not closed. Observers believe such a step would turn the East African campaign into a nightmare of rout.

At Eritrea, however, Mussolini's real problem of keeping his line of supplies open through enemy country, begins. It is well beyond 500 miles from Asmara to Addis Ababa—and the route lies through swamps and across deserts, high mountains and deep canyons. Use of wheeled vehicles through this country is impossible, and probably could be accomplished only after years of labor.

Afrot and upon mules, horses and camels, Mussolini must be prepared to move supplies along this perilous route toward the Ethiopian capital. Every foot of the ground is certain to be contested by savage fighters, challenging not alone the army vanguards but the thousands of troops who must be left at periodic intervals to guard the line of supply.

Lesson Found In Old War.
Military experts say that for every man an army has on the firing line, there must be ten behind the lines to keep supplies coming up. This ratio must automatically be increased in Ethiopia by the staggering difficulties of nature and lack of modern transport.

An index to what the Italians may expect is encountered in a survey of the campaign directed by General Sir Robert Napier who defeated Emperor Theodore in the Anglo-Ethiopian war of 1867-1868.

At that time armies needed few of the supplies necessary today and Napier moved away from the Red Sea with 42,000 soldiers, and about 10,000 baggage carriers and men of all work.

He reached and stormed Magdala with only 3,500 men, less than 10 per cent of his original strength. The rest were claimed by rigors of the campaign, enemy attacks, or strung back along the long line to the base.

NOTICE OF APPEAL FOR PARDON
Application will be received by the Commissioner of the Department of Corrections, State of North Carolina, for pardon or parole of any person who was, at the October Term, 1935, sentenced to prison for a term of not less than six nor more than fifteen years for the crime of second degree murder.

All persons who oppose the granting of said pardon or parole are invited to forward their protest to the Commissioner of the Department of Corrections, Raleigh, N. C.

Social and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Shuff and Miss Phyllis Shuff spent Sunday in Durham.

Marvin D. Sugg of Charleston, S. C., spent a short while here this week-end en route to Detroit, Mich., where he went on business.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Archbell of Washington, were here today.

Mrs. Gus Roebuck, Mrs. Paul E. Jones and Mrs. I. E. Satterfield of Farmville, were here today.

Mrs. Marvin Tucker and Mrs. M. Britton Hardy of Maury, were here today.

Ricks Cook of Richmond, Va., spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Cook. Mrs. Cook returned with him for a week's visit.

Rev. and Mrs. Fred W. Helfer of Hiram, Ohio, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Ryan.

Birth Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Little announce the birth of a daughter, Wida Fay, on Monday, October 14, 1935.

Miss Tunstall in Hospital.
Friends of Miss Katie Tunstall will be sorry to learn that she is in Pitt General Hospital, where she underwent an operation.

Workers' Conference.

The Workers' Conference, teachers and officers of Eighth Street Christian Church, will meet in the church for supper Wednesday evening at 6:30.

Grimesland P. T. A.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Grimesland school will meet Wednesday evening, October 16th, at 7:30.

West Greenville P. T. A.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the West Greenville School will meet in the school auditorium on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30.

Rev. W. A. Ryan will be the speaker for the afternoon. All parents and friends are urged to be present.

Birth Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Godley announce the birth of a son, J. Reid, Jr., on Sunday, October 13th, 1935.

Pictures at Presbyterian Church.

In the First Presbyterian Church tonight at 7:30, motion pictures of the Barium Springs Orphanage will be shown. The local church through its Sunday school departments has always taken an interest in the work of this orphanage, which is under the jurisdiction of the Synod of North Carolina. The showing of the pictures, which will reveal life at the orphanage and activities concerning the orphanage, will be in charge of Ernest Milton, treasurer of Barium Springs Orphanage.

Mr. Milton will deliver interesting and informative comments as the pictures are screened.

Although the pictures will be of particular interest to young people, the membership of the church and public generally are invited to attend. No admission is to be charged. The orphanage pictures will be shown in lieu of the mid-week prayer meeting, which is regularly held on Wednesday evenings.

Party at College.

Ragsdale Hall was the scene of a most hilarious, delightful party last night at the College, which was in the nature of a family party when the teachers who reside there entertained the boys who are now occupying the new-completed ground floor. It was somewhat of a housewarming for the boys.

If the purpose was to get acquainted, it was a success. There was not a dull moment in the evening. A rapid succession of novel entertainment features, singing, and games made the time fly. All of these were such as would bring guests and hostesses together so they could get acquainted.

Mr. Mathis, the coach, who is head of the house in the boys' quarters, assisted by George Willard, who knew them all, introduced the boys to Miss Wilson, who is the head of the house for the teachers. Others in line who received the boys, introduced them to the other teachers.

At signals from Miss Hooper, chairman of the committee in charge of the party, different teachers announced the features. The teachers were introduced individually or in picture groups, by silhouettes, or shadow pictures, Miss Mack, in announcing the features, said she would show the teachers as she saw them when she first came, as mere shadows.

Miss Ann Redwine, gave very clever introductions of the teachers in jungles that brought out the characteristics of each and told where each was from.

Miss McKay had charge of a celebrity stunt, planning the name of some celebrity on the back of each person and having him guess who he was.

The singing of comic songs, action songs, and rounds, was perhaps the most popular stunt of the evening.

The conductors were Misses Norton, Charlton, Rainwater, and Patchell.

The crowd was then broken into small groups. Six leaders progressed from room to room and conducted games.

The refreshments were ice cream and home-made chocolate cake with peanuts.

6:30 p. m.—The Woman's Club will have a get-together dinner in the club building.

SATURDAY

9:00 to 12:00 p. m.—Mr. and Mrs. James S. Ficklen will give a dance in the Woman's Club, honoring Mr. and Mrs. James T. Little.

Brown-Mutch.

Rev. and Mrs. Andrew Mutch, Manse, Bryn Mawr, Pa., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Petrice Young Mutch, to Mr. Wyatt Livingstone Brown, son of Mr. Wiley Brown and the late Mr. Wiley Brown, of Greenville, North Carolina.

Rouse-Levin.

Miss Sophia Levin of New York, and Linwood I. Rouse, formerly of Winterville, now of Long Beach, California, were married here yesterday by Justice of the Peace H. L. Jenkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Rouse are visiting his brother, George Rouse, and other relatives in the Winterville community.

Cahoon-Jones.

Miss Frances Jones and Karl Cahoon were married quietly Sunday morning, October 13, at the home of Rev. L. Newman in Bethel. Intimate friends attended the ceremony.

The bride, dressed in a brown suit with brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of tallman roses, entered with the bridegroom. After the ceremony they left for a wedding trip to unknown points.

Mr. and Mrs. Cahoon will make their home in Greenville, where Mr. Cahoon holds a position with the A. & P. Company.

Woman's Club Get-Together Dinner.
The Woman's Club of Greenville will have a get-together dinner on Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock, at the club house, resuming its activities following the summer vacation. The entire membership of the club is expected to attend. Mrs. W. H. Woolard and members of her social committee are in charge of arrangements for the dinner and an interesting program of entertainment has been planned. Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president, will preside.

Officers of the club are: Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, president; Mrs. J. B. Spilman, first vice-president; Mrs. W. H. Woolard, second vice-president; Mrs. I. J. Bell, recording secretary; Mrs. R. L. Powell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. I. Wooten, treasurer; Mrs. J. Key Brown, reporter.

Heading the various committees and departments of the club are: Mrs. E. W. Harvey, Mrs. C. O. H. Horne, Mrs. E. W. Henderson, Mrs. O. G. Guley, Mrs. Hortense Moe, Mrs. M. L. Wright and Mrs. D. M. Clark.

It is hoped no member of the club will fail to be present at this dinner, to hear once again the splendid things planned by the chairman of all departments for the coming year. The program promises to be one of the broadest and most helpful ever undertaken by the club.

It will be remembered that the Greenville club won two lovely prizes at the State Federation in the spring—a beautiful painting in the Art Department for their varied activities, especially the Fine Arts Festival put on in the spring. This one thing, besides helping to win the prize, brought numbers of people here and also gave our club and town some good wholesome advertising.

The other prize, a silver loving cup, was won by the Garden Department for the many worthwhile undertakings of that department, one of which was the planning and planting of the city park.

At a most enthusiastic meeting of the executive board on Saturday, the members were told that the financial condition of the club was

First Church of Christ, Scientist.
"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 13.

The golden text was from James 5:15. "The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "We then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For he saith, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.)" (II Cor. 6:12).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Now cried the apostle, 'Is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation.'—meaning, not that now men must prepare for a future world salvation, or safety, but that now is the time in which to experience that salvation in spirit and in life. Now is the time for so-called material pains and material pleasures to pass away, for both are unreal, because impossible in Science. To break this earthly spell, mortals must get the true idea and divine Principle of all that really exists and governs the universe harmoniously." (Page 39).

Season Tickets Offered.
Season tickets for the entire series of entertainments offered by the college are on sale at the same place as the special tickets for La Argentina.

Whenever there are two prices advertised for an attraction, the holder of a season ticket is entitled to the higher priced seat, and the special reserved seat ticket is obtained by the presentation of the season ticket at the place where the seats are on sale. This means that for La Argentina on next Monday night and for Cornelia Otis Skinner on Nov. 13, the season ticket holders must get seat tickets.

There is great interest in the coming of Argentina. Those who have been so fortunate as to see her are wildly enthusiastic. One man who saw her in Berlin, tells of the ovation she had there and could not believe it possible that she was coming to Eastern North Carolina, or anywhere outside the largest cities.

Y. W. C. A. Vesper Services.
Rev. R. C. Grady, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Greenville, put before the College students at their Y. W. C. A. vesper services Sunday night the pertinent question, "Where do you stand in your religious life?" He stimulated them to think through the answer by suggesting test questions about their relation to their associates, such as their roommates and teachers. The question that formed the climax of the series was: "How do you stand in your relation to God?"

The music this year is in charge of Miss Nola Walters. The Y. W. C. A. has an excellent choir this year, made up of carefully selected voices. They sat on the stage last night for the first time this year. Miss Walters was at the piano, while Miss Gurrell played a violin solo and accompanied all the other songs on her violin.

of some help, but whether "border-line" cases for embargo purposes should be included is the real problem puzzling Green's office and the munitions control board.

In the case of Italy, for example, the United States last year sold close to $65,000,000 worth of goods, while sales to Ethiopia amounted to a fraction over $19,000.

Il Duce's list of purchases included roughly everything from lard to industrial chemicals. On the other hand, Emperor Selassie bought principally trucks and automobiles, machinery, irrefragable vegetable products and a few chemicals.

The question of whether materials, not directly arms or munitions, but which are capable of quick transfer into implements of war, should be barred from belligerents under the American neutrality policy, is one that must be decided.

Lists Were Long.
As far back as 1909 attempts were made by various nations to agree on what is contraband during times of war.

In 1915, Great Britain published a list of 299 articles of absolute contraband and 78 articles of conditional contraband. Shortly thereafter, however, it did away with the conditional list and drew up 170 categories of absolute contraband, containing in reality more articles than were on the first list. France and Germany did the same.

The United States had its own contraband list when it entered the war, covering the most important articles of trade. If the munitions control board looks to this list for suggestions now, it must take into consideration the effect on foreign trade, especially with Italy.

Stop Chills and Fever!
Rid Your System of Malaria!

Shivering with chills one moment and burning with fever the next—that's one of the effects of Malaria. Unless checked, the disease will do serious harm to your health. Malaria, a blood infection, calls for two things. First, destroying the infection in the blood. Second, building up the blood to overcome the effects of the disease and to fortify against further attack.

Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic supplies both these effects. It contains tasteless quinine, which kills the infection in the blood, and iron, which enriches and builds up the blood. Chills and fever soon stop and you are restored to health and comfort. For half a century, Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic has been sure relief for Malaria. It is just as useful, too, as a general tonic for old and young. Pleasant to take and absolutely harmless. Safe to give children. Get a bottle at any drug store. Now two sizes—50c and $1. The $1 size contains 2½ times as much as the 50c size and gives you 25% more for your money.

A LITANY FOR THE HIGHWAYS

Neil Battle Lewis in her column "Incidentally" in last Sunday's News and Observer carried the following
"Litany for the Highways"
which is well worth while,
and below we reprint it in the hope that our readers
will not only commit it to memory but put it into practice.

Miss Lewis' article says:
"The title of the article by J. S. Furnas describing with gruesome and gory realism
an automobile accident,
which appeared in The Reader's Digest and has been widely circulated as a warning to motorists, comes out of the Litany of the Episcopal Church. One petition of this Litany runs:

"From lightning and
tempest; from plague, pestilence and famine; from battle and murder, and from
sudden death, Good Lord,
deliver us."

"Mr. Furnas headed his piece, '—And Sudden Death.'"

"This suggests that without irreverence we might compose a litany for the highways, as follows:

"From all joy-riders; from all drunken drivers; from
all road-hogs, Good Lord,
deliver us."

"From the driver who
passes others on a curve;
from the speeder who shoots
by another car under the brow of a hill where approaching machines cannot be seen; from the imbecile
who wants to race another
on a busy road, Good Lord,
deliver us."

clouds our judgment; from foolish insistence upon our own road-rights at any cost;
from all temptations of the whole story won't be let out "until after we leave office."

PLANS: The Democrats have just voted on the fact that they haven't any rabble-rousing orators for the 1936 campaign. Herbert Hoover makes a better speech than any member of the Cabinet and the "brain trusters" can't thrill an audience. All the oratorical stars—
Al Smith, Newton D. Baker, Al
Bullock, John W. Davis, Joe Ely,
etc.—are in the opposite corner,
and the GOP has Boral.

Mr. Roosevelt was the first to own the lack of whoop-it-uppers.
He talked it over with several advisers, and a quiet canvass disclosed
that the party is oratorically bankrupt. So the undercover plan is to let Claude G. Bowers as head of

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth
has managed to survive the sudden death of her parents—with the help of her housekeeper, Rob Crocker. Rob is away settling some trouble in the Farnsworth country, and Anne is alone in her big Portland home attended with a plague of hysterical servants and relatives. The four Farnsworth servants have just decided to see her, she asks them
lightly if it is mutiny.

Chapter Nine BODY BLOW

"It is that," declared Maggie. "It's mutiny again. I'm sure there's trash below stairs. It's just one word I'm wasting and I'll run 'em out."

"I'd consider it a privilege, Miss Anne, if you would allow me to suggest their rooms are needed for friends," broke in Buttons.

"You can't any of you do that,"
Mrs. Harney interposed sharply.
"They're staying for good and always."
Mrs. Lee Farnsworth just fired me
for talking back to her."

Anne sat before the four who had served her parents so faithfully. She felt incapable of handling this situation. She must talk to Rob. Perhaps he could reason with Aunt Charlotte,
who seemed to like him unusually well. But by what authority did she dismiss Mrs. Harney?

"Please be patient," she begged of them. "I'm going out for a few moments. When I come back we'll talk things over. Harney, I don't know what to say, but don't leave the house until I return. Buttons, will you have Carl drive my car to the servants' entrance, and Yvonne, I want the coat to this, the black hat,
and you'd better bring my silver fox
throw."

Maggie and Buttons left the room
but Mrs. Harney remained. "Anne, see these bills? All made out to you for things those people have bought.
They even had the nerve to charge
their floral pieces to you . . . and you're not going to pay them. I know you've been using that five thousand
your father gave you for your birthday."

"Harney, I'd sooner pay them than fight about it. As soon as the estate's settled I'll have plenty. You know I can't draw on any of Dad's money
until then."

"If you can draw on it then," declared the housekeeper gloomily.
"What do you mean?" asked Anne, alarmed at her manner. "Tell me, what's wrong?"

"I'll tell you what I've heard and for the first time in my life I've eavesdropped openly. Tom Farley's folks have sent for their belongings.
That's why Tom's away; but Mabel
and Charlotte are arguing over which floor they're to have for their own. So I imagine the Lee Farn-sworths are staying on too."

"Miss Sharlee put in a bid for your suite and when her father spoke up sharp for him, and told her you were
to have that for your share, always,
she says 'She won't stay here' when she finds out."

"Finds out what?" questioned the girl.
"I don't know, but at that Mabel says in her good natured way 'well
let the child have it until she marries.' And then Sharlee says 'if she marries.'"

ANNE was frankly bewildered. "I can't imagine what they mean.
Perhaps father left them the house
knowing I'd be moving into my own soon."

"It's something deeper than that;
something about a disgrace."

"But what possible disgrace could be in it?"

"You couldn't be in any disgrace,"
the housekeeper defended stoutly.
"We've all of us known you from the day your mother came home from the hospital, all pale and trembly
and proud with you in her arms.
Never once Miss Anne, have you been guilty of even an unkindness."

"Harney, Anne mused after smiling her gratitude. 'I believe I'm going to know what this is all about shortly. A friend of Dad's telephoned a few moments ago and I'm going to see him now.'"

"No," countered Mrs. Harney. "I'll go, then if Miss Anne faints I can tend to her. She'd knock you over fainting, you're that much of a wisp."
Anne looked at Mrs. Harney's bulk and at Yvonne's slim prettiness and smiled. "That's nice of you both, but I never faint, and I'd better face this alone."

Mrs. Harney left, but when Anne,
dressed in street clothes, slipped
down the back stairway to her coupe,
her father's gift to her at Christmas,
she found Mrs. Harney settled in the car, a look of defiance on her face.

the speakers' bureau and director

diplomat Mr. Bowers once surprised close friends by a demonstration of rabble-rousing variety enacted at the Capital. That was at the 1931
Jackson Day dinner.

The Democrats are going to bank
a lot on the spoken word in the next campaign. Whenever anybody met-tions Republican gains to a Farley-ite, or suggests that the President is slipping the inevitable reply is
"Wait until we open up!"

REGISTRY: The hardest task

"I'm going along," she announced firmly.

"Good of you," the girl assured
her absently.

What on earth could Ansel Kellogg have to tell her that must be told to her at once, and before she met either Rob, or any member of the family?

She wheeled into the curb—"Wait
here a moment, Harney," she said.
"I want to run up and see Judge Kellogg. If a policeman comes along with a tag, smile, Harney, smile."

She left the woman sputtering, went into the building and as the elevator shot up its shaft, her apprehension mounted with it.

The judge was awaiting her. It was too early for his office help to appear so he conducted her to an inner room.

"Anne," he began seriously, "you were with Luke and Lucinda on that last trip, weren't you? Do you happen to know what caused them to try to rush back here?"

"No, I don't," she answered. "Dad
was disturbed over the cannery buying from fish traps, in preference to fishermen, but I don't think that was
it. He told Uncle Lee and the others that he wanted the fishermen given first consideration. However, that was all settled before he left. Why do you ask?"

"Because Luke telephoned me
long distance from the cannery, about five-thirty that afternoon. He told me he wanted me to meet him
at the house; said he wanted me to draw up a new will."

"A NEW will?" repeated Anne questioningly. "I suppose that would have explained the trouble."
"It hasn't," Kellogg said, bluntly.
"He made it. He forced himself to live until some attorney down there in the country had prepared the thing and he'd signed it, and if he hadn't telephoned me of his intentions I'd be willing to swear that accident had affected his brain."

"Anne, girl, he's done the queerest thing. He's cut off from everything, with only an allowance of one hundred dollars a month."

Anne looked at Judge Kellogg inquiringly, and then she thought of her father. If he had done that, he had had some underlying reason.
Brow furrowed, she tried to see this reason.

"That's my regular allowance,"
she mused, then brightened. "I know, Judge Kellogg. You see I'm engaged to Rob Crocker, we're to be married next month. Rob has always said he wished I were poor, so we could build our future together.
That's what Dad was trying to do
to give us a chance to grow, together, as he and mother did."

"But Anne, he left you home to Lee and Mabel and their families."
"That's all right. Rob and I have a home of our own. He knew wouldn't want the big house, and he knew of course that I could live on
with Uncle Lee and Aunt Mabel until my marriage."

"How much money have you?"
Kellogg asked, abruptly.

"About two thousand, I guess—"
"Where's the five thousand Luke gave you on your twenty-first birth-
day?"

"I've been paying household bills
with that. You know I couldn't draw on the estate money and there was the doctor and those other things."
Her voice trembled. "I only made partial payments there, then with all the relatives living at the house, the bills have run."

"Do you mean to tell me that they are letting you pay things like that?"
stormed the judge.

Anne looked up in surprise. "Yes,"
she answered, and added, "they probably thought as I did that could draw from the estate."

"They did not!" Judge Kellogg shouted. "Tom Farley's known all along. He reached the doctor's office in time to listen to part of the new will—"

"Well . . ." at the mention of Tom Farley's name, Anne shuddered.
"Well, what's so so queer about the will, don't you know any of the whatever you call them?"

"The provisions? I don't know much," the judge admitted. "Most of the provisions are to be kept secret
for five years. The estate is to be carried on as an estate for that length of time and then it is to be divided among the heirs."

Anne's hidden smile burst out.
"And isn't a daughter kin?" she inquired whimsically.

The old man looked down at her,
eyes shadowed with tenderness and
pain at the cruelty of the message
he was forced to deliver.

"Yes, Anne," he answered, softly,
"daughters are kin. But you are not the daughter of Luke and Lucinda."

Anne's predicament became more desperate, tomorrow.

working in one state and then move
on to another in a remote section of the country. How to record their contributions and benefits as to insure full payment seemed an impossible problem. What made it worse was discovery of the number of foreign-born who often change

their names, anglicizing and beautifying them year after year.

But two young Treasury sharks
have figured out a fool-proof system. Every employee will be given an identification card and a number based on the date of birth.
The key number is 00-00-00-00. Now suppose the birthday was August 28, 1893. Then the identification number would be 08-28-93-00. The first "8" is for the eighth month of August, the "28" for the day of the month and the "93" for the year.
If others happen to have the same birthday, the last two zeros can be replaced by distinctive numbers. All
a man has to do is to remember the day he was born. Seems simple but it took a lot of heavy thinking.

LUCKLESS: The only animal on a farm which can't enjoy a "more abundant life" because of electricity
is a pig. You can milk a cow, curry a horse, permanent-wave a poodle and heat a pond for anemic
ducks with electric appliances now in use or being developed. You can determine the luxuriance of flowers
or the size of tomatoes by regulating the flow of current into pans
where they sprout without roots.
And a well-known "brain trust" gets more eggs out of his hens by keeping electric lights on so as to fool them into thinking that the sun doesn't work under a code.

This may sound like fiction, but it won't be long before a Virginia
farmhouse will be the stage for these magical tricks. Administration power planners are looking for a place to install every old and new appliance that can make life on a farm only a preparation for paradise. They say there are 200 ways of utilizing electricity to benefit agriculture, and that only about 20
are used on the best equipped farm.

The exhibit will be a feature of the International Power Conference
to be held at Washington next year.
But it will be constructed long before that as a means of making everybody electrically minded—except the pigs.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

SETTLEMENT: Informed New Yorkers figure forthcoming developments in the war crisis as follows.
Mussolini has vindicated Italian
military prestige and occupied a strip of Ethiopia useful for bargaining purposes. There is reason to believe he is ready for a compromise
—but he has to present the world situation to his own people in such a way that they will realize it is wise to compromise. He can't afford to yield openly to League of Nations pressure—yet the overwhelming League vote in favor of sanctions offer an opportunity for a diplomatic hedge without losing face. Meanwhile sanctions will be gentle enough to avoid any pretext for a general war. France will see to that.

The next step—after Italian military gains are consolidated—will probably be negotiations between Italy, France and England for a settlement of the Ethiopian controversy. Ethiopia will have very little to say about it. If Haile Sellassie should try to act stubborn France and England will bring pressure enough to change his mind.
He will be allowed to save his apparent independence but Italy will have a good solid foothold in his country under the guise of protectorate or concessions or some similar euphemism. In general Mussolini will get most of what he wants.
Britain and France have another incentive for engineering a speedy settlement in addition to their desire to prevent a European conflagration. Race tension is increasing in some of their colonies. They need to appease irritation based on color before it becomes too acute.

EMIGRANTS: The outcome outlined above would cease one of Mus-solini's most pressing problems—his overcrowded population. There will be room for a couple of hundred thousand Italian emigrants in the new African territory to be exploited.

ASTUTE New York observers remark
that if Duce probably would not be in Africa now if United States had not enacted the immigration restriction law of 1922, 1924 and 1929. An average of over 137,000
Italians a year came to this country from the turn of the century
until the first quota acts were signed.
Since then there has been small satisfactory outlet for surplus Italians. They are practically barred from sparsely settled British dominions also. It isn't just rhetoric
when Mussolini says that Italy
must expand or explode.

The prospective emigrants to be shipped to Africa will doubtless be handpicked from among those most likely to make trouble at home. That always used to be the system when they were pouring in to the U. S. by every boat. Comment runs that Mussolini made a virtue of necessity when he subjected all his young men to hard-boiled military regimentation. But when you have your restless youngsters regimented you must take them somewhere—or they are likely to take you somewhere.

FORTIFIED: New Yorkers believe a cagy German hand was pulling the strings when Austria and Hungary refused to join the other League members in voting for sanctions against Italy.

This sets a precedent that may be very useful to Germany later. If and when she chooses to try military measures as a means of achieving her own ambitions. Also —since no League member is bound to apply sanctions against a will
—it keeps a valuable trade route
open between Germany and Italy.

Meanwhile the cultivation of friendly Anglo-German relations goes on assiduously. The Nazis are doing a sweet job of diplomatic

and economic foraging on both sides.

ALIBIS: New York was amused
by the earnest efforts to Stock Exchange president Charles R. Gay and Securities Exchange Commission chairman Jim Landis last week to disavow in advance any responsibility for the consequences of an inflationary boom.

Insiders agree that both are right
in anticipating some form of inflation and in claiming that it's up to the Federal Reserve Board rather than the Exchange or the SEC to apply the brakes before the economic machine gets out of control.
But they don't think it was quite tactful of the Exchange boss and one of Mr. Roosevelt's own appointees to remind the President so bluntly that he'd better name darn
good men to the new Reserve
Board—or else.

Moreover, they doubt that the forefront of Messrs. Landis and Gay
in setting up alibis before the event will do them good if the public does get burned in a replica of the '29 debacle. It's the public na-bit to pin the blame for its losses
on the handiest target without bothering about fundamental causes
—and Gay and Landis will be right in the line of fire if anything goes wrong.

The gains (trace chiefly to stepped up industrial consumption—which is now close to 1929 peak levels. And yet—although recovery is rapidly
gaining momentum—industrial activity itself hasn't begun to approach its former peak. This apparent riddle has a very significant answer—the greater proportionate
use of electric power as against man power in manufacturing.

So electric statistics—encouraging
in themselves—reflect vividly also
the major reason why reemployment isn't keeping pace with the business comeback. It's hardly possible to scrap the technological improvement indicated by these figures. Even conservatives are more and more inclined to admit that further shortening of the work
week is the only possible solution.

University Library Exhibits Valuable Collection Bibles

Chapel Hill, Oct. 11.—In commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the first translation of the entire Bible into English, the University of North Carolina Library
is exhibiting its valuable collection
of Bibles of various periods and countries.

Shown in the exhibition are rare
versions of the Bible printed in Europe in the 15th and 16th centuries, translations of the Bible into queer languages and dialects of Asia, Africa and Europe, and early English and American editions.

Myles Coverdale, the translator of the first complete Bible into the English language, published his work in 1535. This was the year in which William Tyndale was accused of heresy and burned at the stake for translating the New Testament into English. Coverdale took precautions to avoid a like fate by dedicating his Bible to Henry VIII,
the reigning monarch. Both the Coverdale and Tyndale versions are shown in the exhibition.

World-Wide Red Cross Forces Ready To Aid Victims Of Italo-Ethiopian War

By ALEXANDER GEORGE

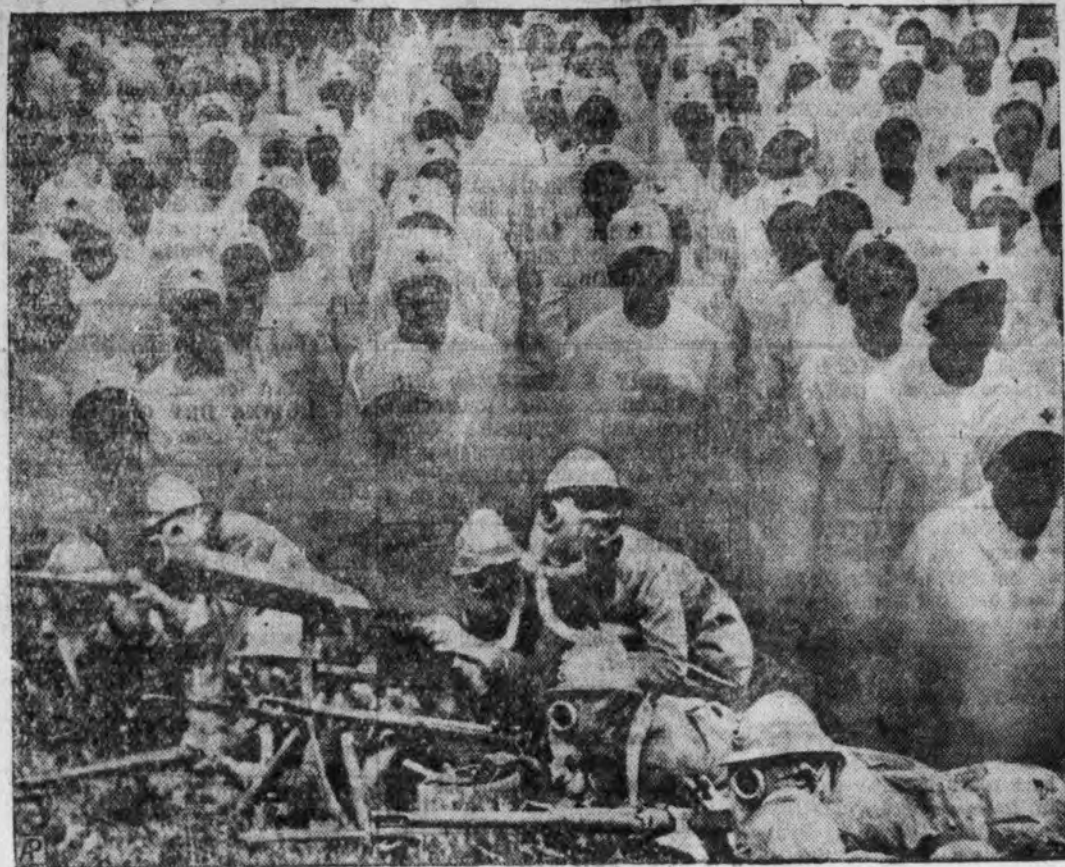

WASHINGTON (AP)—Battalions of mercy, enlisted throughout the world under a common, international banner, come to "attention" as they see the war dogs of death and devastation on the loose again. The American Red Cross and Red Cross societies in some 60 other neutral nations await word from the international committee of the humanitarian organization as to possible assistance they may be called on to give in alleviating suffering caused by Italo-Ethiopian warfare.

The American society—the death-defying service of whose nurses, stretcher bearers, ambulance drivers and canteen workers was a World War classic of courage—is so organized that its full resources in time of war are available only when the United States is a party to the conflict.

Neutrality Limits Activity
Maintenance of strict neutrality causes a limitation of its activity in wars in which this country is not a participant. Consequently, the organization has made no appeal for funds or supplies and has taken no definite preparatory action in relation to Italo-Ethiopian hostilities.

Admiral Cary T. Grayson, head of the American Red Cross, says "constant communication is being maintained with the international committee at Geneva so that the society may have the best information and advice as to the action to be taken." A similar situation is said to prevail in other neutral countries.

Italy has a Red Cross society described as a "well established and highly efficient organization" with considerable experience obtained in disaster relief work. Ethiopia recently started to organize a Red Cross society of its own. Sixty-two nations have societies affiliated with the International Red Cross, the first society being founded by Swiss philanthropists in the middle of the nineteenth century.

Wide Range of Relief Work.
While service of the "world's good godmother" may be curtailed to some extent by the remoteness of the East Africa war zone from large supply centers, the multiple activities of the Red Cross in the World War indicate its potentially tremendous range of relief work.

Besides ambulance drivers, who piloted their cars through raining shells and every menace of the fire zone, the Red Cross had workers in the field for the soldier at every point where they could, by any chance serve him. It supplied ambulances with operating equipment, dental operating rooms, plants to make ice to pack head wounds, shops to manufacture artificial limbs, and communication bureaus to search for "the missing man" and give his family news concerning him.

Serve Despite Dangers
Girls in the canteens, while the soldiers were at the front and when the windows of their huts cracked from shellfire and the roof fell to pieces stayed on duty through nights of horror. In the zone of war, the Red Cross worker does not think of safety beyond the same precautions of the soldier. The American Red Cross war council alone expended $272,000,000 in the 29-month period between May, 1917, and February, 1919. It provided incalculable amounts of supplies of all kinds ranging from beans to serum and from woolen socks to plants overseas which manufactured nitrous oxide gas for use as anesthetic in emergency operations on maimed soldiers.

pressive. And to put a lot of credit in the proper place, a Duke senior named Sam McCaskill, sub for the past two years, is the boy who leads this array of backs. He's one of the best blocking backs Duke has ever had.

Outside of Addis Ababa, there are no roads for wheeled traffic in Ethiopia. Transport is by mules, donkeys, pack-horses and camels.

The United States, with a per capita consumption of 2.85 pairs a year, is the world's largest consumer of leather shoes.

Tar Heel Stars Will Play At Davidson Sat.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 15.—Their performances in Carolina's highly successful invasions of Tennessee and Maryland place several Tar Heels among the leading prospects for All-America honors. Old North Stars will get their first chance to see these players since they have made such a name for themselves when the Tar Heels clash with the Fighting Wildcats of Davidson at Richardson Field Saturday.

North Carolina gave the Vols and the Terrapins two of the worst zapping either had ever had. In doing this, the Tar Heels elevated themselves right up into the national spotlight.

Individual stars, outshone others in the Carolina constellation. And Tar Heel followers who were unable to see the Carolina team at either Knoxville or Baltimore will get their big chance Saturday when the Big Five tilt is played at Davidson.

Frances, among the Tar Heel stars is probably Don Jackson, ace punter-pusher-runner. Jackson is the high center of the Tar Heels with four touchdowns for the three games. His punting percentage is well over 600 and his punting is about 38 yards per. Knoxville and Baltimore sports writers praised Jackson above the rest of the Tar Heel stars. Coach Faber of Maryland said the Tar Heel halfback was one of the best backs he had ever seen.

Dick Buck shares honors with Jackson in the deadly passing attack of the Blue and White. The rangy flankman can snag the passes from about any angle. On defense he allows only a few yards to be made around his left end during the entire game.

Jim Hutchins is the human battering-ram in the Carolina fullback position. He has scored three touchdowns by his line plunging alone. His partridge per try against Wake Forest, Tennessee and Maryland is five yards. And he can pass with the best. He punts if need be.

Andy Bershak is the sophomore on the other end and all the experts have nothing but praise for his fine all-around playing. His performance at Maryland was the best he has ever turned in.

Herman Snyder continues to shine as probably the best blocker in Dixie. His 190 pounds never let up when a path has to be cleared for the Tar Heel ball-toters. It seems to be a habit to take on two or more men on one play.

Harry Montgomery reminds the experts of brother Cliff, the All-American. His field generaling is without fault. Not one single mistake was chalked up against him in the Vol massacre, and the same applies to the Maryland game.

Boo Daniel has the educated toe. In three games he has scored 11 points with his placements. He converted 8 straight points after touchdowns before missing against the Terps.

All the rest of the team has starred. Old North Stars will get their chance to see this constellation of brilliant Tar Heel stars when they clash with the vicious Wildcats in Davidson Saturday.

State Prepares To Meet Georgia Gridiron Team

College Station, Raleigh, Oct. 15.—Carolina and Duke are ahead of the State College Wolfpack, but right now the echs are thinking about the big and fast Georgia University team which is coming to Liddick Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The Bulldogs have hit a fast early season clip and according to Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, the Georgia team is the most powerful aggregation in the Southeastern Conference.

Undeclared in three games, and all of them won by one-third scores, the Georgia Bulldogs will meet State more than anxious to keep their record clean and regain some of the Southeastern Conference prestige which has been lost to Southern Conference teams. The rivalry between teams of the Southern and Southeastern Conferences is gaining momentum with each season.

The Georgia Bulldogs, like the State Techs, have been pointing for this particular game. The Techs are all raved up over the besting handed them in 1933 and 1934 by the Bulldog teams of those years. State and Georgia have met on just these two occasions. The games were played in Athens, Ga.

Georgia will be favored to take the Techs again when they meet Saturday. The only disadvantage the Georgians face is playing away from home. But, with such backs as Al Minor, Johnny Jones, Bond, and Treadway, to mention a few, the Bulldogs believe they will overcome this one handicap.

Duke Determined To "Carry On" In Atlanta Saturday

Durham, N. C., Oct. 15.—Undeclared and untied in four games this season, Duke's fighting Blue Devils are determined to "carry on" when they meet Georgia Tech in Atlanta Saturday and at the same time to get final revenge for that defeat on the same field back in 1934.

Having been treated to four exceptions of great blocking, great

ball-carrying and great defensive play, the experts are hailing the small but battling 1935 Duke outfit as another in the series of great Wade-coached teams.

Aided by great blocking but at the same time offering some fine running themselves, Duke corps's of ball carriers, undoubtedly the greatest troupe of leather-luggers in the history of the institution, have piled up a total of yards gained from scrimmage this season that is probably the best in the country.

From scrimmage, with losses deducted, the Blue Devils have gained 1364 yards in their four games, an average of 336 yards each game. They have scored 21 touchdowns.

From a running standpoint Duke Ward, senior halfback, offers the best average. Turning in a 20.7 average against Clemson last week his average shot to over 13 yards each time he has carried the ball this season.

The great Ace Parker, unable to play last week against Clemson, has an average of 9.9 yards each time he has carried the ball and the averages of Jack Alexander, veteran fullback, Herbert Hudgins, soph halfback, and Silver Smith, soph fullback are equally as impressive.

And to put a lot of credit in the proper place, a Duke senior named Sam McCaskill, sub for the past two years, is the boy who leads this array of backs. He's one of the best blocking backs Duke has ever had.

Outside of Addis Ababa, there are no roads for wheeled traffic in Ethiopia. Transport is by mules, donkeys, pack-horses and camels.

The United States, with a per capita consumption of 2.85 pairs a year, is the world's largest consumer of leather shoes.

Movement Gets Started To Enlarge High Court

Work Described As Too Heavy For Five Members Supreme Court

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 15.—One of the surest movements ahead for the amendment of the North Carolina State constitution, it is believed, will be enlargement of the supreme court.

Justice Willis J. Brodgen's long absence this fall and Judge Heriot Clarkson's the past spring, not to mention the death of Justice W. J. Adams two years ago, renewed the issue. Had the late substitute constitution been adopted it is very probable that there would have been two new members by now. There was an elastic provision in the draft for an increase by legislative enactment. The court has had five members and then three, then five again. But litigation is ten times as heavy now in highly industrialized North Carolina as it was in the old days with either the five or the three.

The overwork of reviewing the infinite number of appeals is almost universally regarded as the cause of the Brodgen and Clarkson illness. And these litigations increase as the state gets more populous. The amendment covering the judiciary was imbedded in the new constitution which never came to a vote because the court held that this draft could not be adopted at the 1934 election. The legislature of 1935 could have resubmitted the amended draft, but did not.

The next proposal to amend this section of the state constitution probably will be submitted solely on the issue of two justices. If there were seven the work would be greatly lightened and if there could be a flexible constitution whereby new judges would be named as necessity demands, the situation would be simplified.

The entire court under its present organization has to sit on all cases, no present provision for a circuit court of appeals having been made. There is likewise no rotation feature. All appeals must be presented in Raleigh. The organization is such as to require the largest amount of work and the greatest waste of time.

How much more the average big lawyer works as a justice than he did as a practicing attorney may be seen from the way they avoid the service. Judge L. R. Vassar sat barely more than a year. Judge James S. Manning was defeated, but he never would consider a reappointment. Major L. McLendon of Greensboro declined to accept a tender. Chief Justice Hoke resigned. Justice George H. Brown refused to stand for renomination. All this happened in this generation.

Judge Brodgen considered resignation many times, but always he was conscious of the work that would pile up on his associates no matter how good a new judge would be. There have been attacks on the court because some of its members have lectured at state institutions or served on extra court assignments. But these came during the lull in litigation, in the recess period when appeals had not been received.

It is generally considered early death for any lawyer to go on the bench. If he stays long he goes back to an abandoned practice provided he does resign. If he does not, his chances of long life are small indeed.

Record Nine Deeds In Pitt

Nine real estate transfers have been recorded in the Pitt county register of deeds' office since they were last published in The Reflector.

The largest transfer made during the period was the purchase of 75 acres by Lonnie Briley from Mrs. Lula W. Fleming.
Deeds recorded follow:
Eddie Edwards to Richard Stewart, 1 lot $10.
O. O. Britt and wife to Hugh T. Smith, 1 lot, $100.
Jas. A. Smith to B. T. Carraway, 1 lot, $50.
Mrs. Lula W. Fleming to Lonnie Briley and wife, 75 acres, $2,000.
I. J. Edwards and wife to G. V. Smith and wife, $3 acres, $10.
W. A. McLawhorn to B. F. McLawhorn, acreage, $1,250.
Joe Worthington to Legnan Carmon, 1-2 acres, $60.
John H. Paylor and wife to Joseph A. Blount and wife, lot, $50.
Town of Farmville to Louis Baptist et al., lot, $100.

DURHAM OFFICERS SEIZE PORTIONS OF LIQUOR STILL

Durham, Oct. 12.—Patterson town ship bootleggers were just a little too slow in moving their 60-gallon copper still to a more secluded spot. Detectives L. L. Morgan and J. M. Manquon captured the party dismantled still and 76 gallons of whiskey mash Thursday. Only 16 gallons of the mash was at the still. The remaining 60 gallons being found in nearby bushes.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Selective buying in the industrial, commercial and specialties kept bullish buyers aglow in today's stock market.

The list weathered heavy profit-taking in the first hour with gains ranging from fractions, to several points. The ticker tape fell behind as black of several thousand shares changed hand at the start. Many new highs for the year were recorded. There apparently was as much short covering as fresh short selling.

Wheat rallied moderately along with cotton. Bonds showed a firmer tone than in the previous session. The late stock tone was strong. Transfers approximated 2,350,000 shares.

To Air Tobacco Act In Wilson

Government Ordered to Show Why
Collections Should Not Be Restrained

Wilson, Oct. 15.—An order directing the government to show cause why it should not be restrained from collecting tobacco taxes from non-contract signers is returnable in Federal court here October 23. The order, issued by Judge I. M. Meekins of the Federal court, also restrains the tobacco warehouses from turning over to the government money already collected from non-signers. The taxes were provided for in the Kerr-Smith tobacco act.

In granting the order in Federal court in Elizabeth City last Saturday, Judge Meekins commented that his order could not be construed as holding the act invalid. The order merely directs the government to show cause why a permanent restraining order should not be issued.

The action was brought by Robert McLawhorn of Halifax county. Judge Albion Dunn of Greenville and J. C. Meekins of Washington are counsel for the plaintiff.
