Arthur P. T. A. Meets.

Bel Arthur, Oct. 18.—The first regular meeting of the Bell Arthur P. T. A. met October 15 with the president, Mrs. Mamie Ruth Hol-loway presiding.

Ways of raising money were discovered. It was suggested that each child bring two or three bundles of tobacco. Also, the P. T. A. is planning to sponsor a negro minstrel soon.

In the room contest, Miss Owens' room won in the primary group. Mrs. Phillips' room in the grammar grades, and Miss Harris' room in the high school.

The features of the new report cards were explained by Mr. Hunsucker.

A Halloween play was presented by the third and fourth grades.

Literature Department.

The Literature Department of the Woman's Club held its first meeting of the new club year on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. P. G. Dennis on Pitt street.

Mrs. Charles Horne, chairman of the department, called the meeting to order and then graciously brought greetings, after the long absence, and asked the sympathy and the cooperation of members for another year.

Following the usual business procedure, during which the chairman of the program committee, Miss Elizabeth Hyman, outlined the course of study for the year, "Recent Trends in Human Progress," Mrs. J. H. B. Moore made a spirited talk about the work and the plans of the club in general, suggested that we consider ourselves members of the Fine Arts as well as the Literature group, and asked that chairmen be elected to sponsor any fine art exhibit or musical concert that deserved our backing.

Miss Eunice McGee was elected art chairman, and Mrs. Agnes Settle, chairman of music, to act in this capacity.

Mrs. Horne then turned the meeting over to the program committee. Miss Frances Wahl, of the college, charmingly presented an interesting and instructive paper on "The Awards of 1935." The subject was covered so completely it was evident that much time and research had been used in its preparation.

Miss Wahl first explained what the awards are, why they are given, and by whom they were made possible. The Nobel prizes, an international award, was made possible by Alfred Nobel, a Swedish literary and scientific man, who died in 1896. He left the bulk of his fortune in trust for the establishment of these prizes. Sinclair Lewis is the only American to have won the Nobel prize in Literature. The Nobel prizes are given as a rule to those who have already won distinction in their chosen fields. A group usually is as a crowning reward to their efforts.

Miss Wahl then took up the National awards, chief of which are the well-known Pulitzer prizes, made possible by the Jew, Joseph Pulitzer, American journalist, who died in 1911.

The Pulitzer prize winners for 1935, given for work achieved in 1934, were announced at the dinner of the Columbia University School of Journalism in New York. The awards were won by:

Josephine Johnson, of Missouri, 24 years old, for the outstanding novel of the year. Her book "Now in November" is written in the form of a recollection by one of its characters of ten years spent on the mortgaged acres of a mid-western farm. The author, despite her youth, has become widely known for her production of poems and short stories of high grade. Besides her novel, which will not be soon forgotten.

The poetry award went to Audrey Wurdemann, a girl prodigy, also 24 years old, who is the great-granddaughter of the immortal Shelley and the wife of Joseph Auslander, also a poet. Her volume of brilliant verse "Bright Autumn," is being widely acclaimed. Her first volume "The House of Silk," was published while she still was in her middle teens.

The author of the play adjudged outstanding in the past year was Zoe Akins, whose dramatization of Edith Wharton's "The Old Maid," a story of New York a hundred years ago, gave her a Pulitzer prize for the first time.

The recipient of a prize for the best example of a reporter's work went to William H. Taylor of the sports department of the New York Herald-Tribune, whose stories of the America's Cup races were praised by the committee.

One of the leading authorities on the history of the American colonies, Charles McLean Andrews' work, "The Colonial Period in American History," won for him a place among the Pulitzer prize winners.

Arthur Krock, chief of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times, was rewarded for distinguished service as a correspondent, receiving the prize for his articles reflecting events in the nation's capital.

Douglas Southall Freeman, the author of the outstanding biographical work of the year, received the award for his four-volume "R. E. Lee—a Biography," which was the result of twenty years work and thousands of dollars spent in research. The work contains a wealth of previously unpublished material, and traces the life of the great general in detail the while it manages superbly never to be dull. At the close of this delightful program the hostess, Mrs. Dennis, assisted by Mrs. Horne, served a delicious 13 course.

The club was glad to welcome Mrs. C. S. Lamb as a new member, and Mrs. Ames and Mrs. R. C. Grady as visitors for the afternoon. —Reprinted Argentina Here Monday.

A program introducing Argentina to the college students' this morning at the assembly hour aroused their enthusiasm so that they can hardly wait until Monday evening to see the great dancer.

Miss Mary Green, of the English department, gave excellent explanations and interpretations of the different dances that the artist will give on her program. She showed that the pattern of the dance, the costume, the lighting, the manipulation of the cast-ets, and everything that the dancer does, help to bring out the meaning of each dance. She reviewed the career of the artist and quoted press reports showing the world-wide reputation she has made.

Miss Ellen Jenkins, president of the Student Government Association, and a member of the entertainment committee, announced the attractions that would appear during the year and introduced Miss Green.

At the end of the half hour, Miss Mamie E. Jenkins, who has charge of the publicity for entertainments, told the girls and boys how they could help make a success of the entertainments by telling their families and friends about them, and interesting them so they will come to see for themselves what the college has to offer. There is not a town and hardly a cross-road in Eastern Carolina that is not represented at East Carolina Teachers College this fall and she believes they can make the college the center to which people will come from every direction.

Not only the students, but people throughout this section are looking forward with eagerness to the coming of La Argentina.

The hour of the dance recital on Monday evening is 8:30 o'clock.

Students of the Greenville high school will be offered tickets for the dance recital by Argentina, to be given at East Carolina Teachers College on Monday night, at a greatly reduced price, but they must secure their tickets at the high school. They cannot get them at the door on Monday night except at the regular price.

Mr. Grady of Greenville, preached Sunday. Sunday school afterwards.

Mr. and Mrs. Golf of Falcon, are holding a revival meeting at Ballard's community building.

Miss Marjorie Planagan, who is attending Meredith College, was home for the week-end.

Mrs. Sue Pollard of Martin county, is visiting Mrs. Ed Dickerson.

Messrs. Ralph and Madison Galloway accompanied by Misses Verna and Mary Emma Joyner, went to Bath Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. A. Joyner and children visited Mrs. Tom Harris at Farmville Sunday.

You are cordially invited to attend the play, "Deacon Dubbs," to be presented by the H. D. C. at Arthur school building. You will scream with laughter when Flanagan Tyson (Deacon Dubbs) proposes to Mrs. Charlie McArthur (Miss Popover).

SCOUT TROOP IN MEET HERE

Boy Scouts Awarded Medals for Accomplishments

The Greenville District of the Boy Scouts held their regular monthly Court of Honor this morning at 10:45 in the High School auditorium. Sherwood Brockwell, Chief Fire Warden of North Carolina, was scheduled to be the principal speaker of the morning, but he wired his regrets that he would be unable to reach Greenville, from Richmond, in time for the program. The Court opened with the singing of America led by J. H. Ross, the program was then turned over to John J. Sigwald, Scout Executive of the East Carolina Council.

The following awards were made: Billy Combs, Tenderfoot to Second Class, his pin was presented by Dr. G. R. Combs, chairman of the District Committee of the Boy Scouts.

Clifton Evans, Second Class to First Class, presented by Ed. Bachelier, the local outfitter for the Boy Scouts.

Kenneth Henderson, First Class to Star, this is his Merit Badge for the road to Eagle Scout, presented by Dr. Howard J. McGinnis of the Eastern Carolina Technical College.

Since last week was National "Fire Prevention Week" it was very appropriate that four boys should get their Merit Badge for Firemanship. The boys were: Charles Bailey, Kenneth Henderson, Earl Holman, Jr. and Clifton Evans. Kenneth Ryan received the Merit Badge for Electricity. Vernon Tyson received the three Merit Badges for Public Health, Scholarship, and Athletics. The Merit Badges were awarded by Ralph H. McLean, Assistant Scout Executive of the East Carolina Council. All of the boys given awards were from Troop 30 of Greenville. Their Scoutmaster is Jack Skinner, and the Assistant Scoutmaster is Murrells Hearn. Under the leadership of these men Troop 30 has become one of the most efficient Troops in Eastern North Carolina.

After the presentation of the awards Executive Sigwald told the story of an unnamed Doctor who several years ago visited an orphan asylum and, upon the request of one of the boys, visited a boy in the asylum that was in great pain due to his infection with infantile paralysis. For three months the boy was required to wear a cast with his leg suspended in the air, so that he might have his request to be as other boys with one leg as long as the other. Soon this boy was up and helping other boys to get the greatest joy from life by working in the library helping them to select books to read that would give them the clean wholesome knowledge that they wanted.

A few years ago this same Doctor had the pleasure of meeting this boy, he had helped out of charity, as the leader of over six million boys that have been Scouts. He is the Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, Dr. James E. West.

The Court of Honor was closed by the boys dedicating themselves by taking the Scout Oath:

1. On my honor I will do my best to do my duty to God and my country, and to obey the Scout Law;
2. To help other people at all times;
3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight.

IT MUST GO OVER

Reports of canvassers this morning showed that the drive for funds to carry on the Boy Scout work here for another year lacked $500 of reaching the required $1,500. Greenville cannot think of dropping this important work among the boys now and this drive for funds must go over, the required $1,500 must be raised. We repeat money given to the cause of Boy Scout work is not a donation but an investment in the future citizenship of Greenville and this community that will pay big dividends.

If one of the solicitors calls upon you to aid in the cause be sure that you give all you can afford to the cause. It is possible that in the short time allotted to complete the drive for funds, that the solicitors may not get around to you but you still have the opportunity to share in this great work for the boys. If you wish to donate to the fund you may send your pledge or check direct to J. H. Waldrop or J. W. Overton at Guaranty Bank and Trust Company, or give them a call and they will see to it that someone brings you a pledge card.

Every citizen in Greenville should have a part in helping to carry on this work and we urge you to do your part now.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

dog complex), there is an almost unanimous conviction that we should keep our head—and our heart—where they belong and not wear them on our sleeve. For all Henry L. Stimson's urging that Mr. Roosevelt assume a Messianic role, the administration will not rush in where so many angels are treading. Mr. Stimson's Manchurian experience was a warning.

COLORING: Although observing official proprieties, European nations have already begun to maneuver for the good opinion of Americans. Certain despatches from Addis Ababa have furnished international evidence that a publicist who understands American psychology is advising Emperor Haile Selassie. Great Britain's denial of trans-Atlantic facilities to Baron Poincaré, Italy's delegate at Geneva, was a mistake. It violated the American spirit of good sportsmanship. It earned Britain no good will around the State Department. It is doubtful if there will be a repetition.

To thinking Americans it turned back the curtain to 1914, when sensational stories of German atrocities in Belgium had small factual basis. More than official investigations having absolved the Germans of the charges, the suspicion arose that Great Britain will use its control of news-distributing agencies to color facts in her favor.

WOMEN: FERA investigators have uncovered a curious development which may have a definite effect on the unemployment problem. They are not making any announcement of their findings until they have checked it on a larger scale.

HIGH COURAGE

by Jeanne Bowman

SYNOPSIS: Anne Farnsworth just has been told by her friend, Judge Kellogg, that she is the daughter of the wealthy Farnsworths, and that therefore she cannot share in their large estate, under the provisions of Luke Farnsworth's will. Anne does not know who she is; she anticipates comfort from Rob Crocker, her fiance and general manager of the Farnsworth ranch, however. She is telling him the situation, sitting in his car in front of the house they have built.

Chapter 12

CAD IN ACTION

"Why, he can't do a thing like that," began Rob, belligerently. "We'll take that to court. It won't be hard to prove that accident impaired his reason. Why Anne, no father who adored his daughter as Luke seemed to adore you would leave his own flesh and blood with nothing but a hundred dollars a month when he had millions."

"I know Rob, but this is different. You see," she hesitated because she herself did not clearly see what lay behind Luke's sudden desire to change his will. "You see, dear, I'm not his daughter. I'm not even legally adopted. Rob," the sob she had suppressed throughout the entire morning burst in her throat. "Rob, I don't know who I am. Just nobody."

Fumbling in her bag for a handkerchief, shoulders shaking with sobs, she waited for the comforting arms. Started into calm by their absence she dried her eyes and looked at him. He was staring straight ahead, a baffled, bewildered expression on his face.

"Rob!" she cried, "don't, don't look like that."

"It's been a shock," he muttered. "I don't know what to say."

She must be understanding, must not crowd him with the questions, with the demands for reassurance of his love, which came rushing to her lips.

She must... perhaps if she thought of something else. He was lighting a cigarette. She heard the click of the lighter as it snapped back in place. She would think of the horse.

She looked towards it. A carpenter had appeared at the windows of the breakfast room. She thought of the curtains she had chosen for them, golden yellow, so that always the light filtering through would seem like sunlight; so that always they would start the day off—

"Rob," she could be silent no longer. "Say something, anything."

"I don't know what to say," he repeated, then turned to her sternly. "Anne, you've known this all along. You've let me believe you were their daughter."

"Rob, I didn't. I didn't know, didn't have any idea of such a thing until this morning."

"So this is what Sharlee meant," he mused. "Lord, what a break!" Bitterness now. He tossed the cigarette away, reached for another, ignored the lighter, dived for a match, struck it viciously, then crumpled the stem under tense fingers. "What a break," he repeated.

"But Rob, I don't care as long as I have you. The other doesn't matter. Remember how you've always said you wished I was poor so you could really care for me?"

"Care for you," he gave a short laugh. "On three hundred a month, after what you've been used to? Good heavens Anne, have you any idea what it costs to run a home?"

"But I'll have my allowance and I can cook, Rob. Maggie's been teaching me for years. And Mrs. Harney has taught me all about housekeeping, mother insisted I should know so I could manage servants properly."

SHE talked in feverish haste and hated herself for doing so. Was she trying to force Rob into marrying her? He didn't seem to want her. But he must, she couldn't lose this last hold on happiness.

"Rob, Rob, listen, I think Dad did this to give us a chance to start out in married life the way he and —"

"Oh no, he didn't," Rob was bitterly angry. "I know what he did and I know why he did it. Well, we'll see... tried with his last breath."

"I'd like to go home now, please," she said softly.

Rob didn't answer. He started the motor, backed away, then with a savage meshing of gears sent the car hurtling down the steep hills to the great grey house which spelled a monument to all his hopes.

"I won't come in," he said as he helped Anne to alight.

"But I'll see you tonight!" the sudden doubt, caused Anne's voice to falter.

"I don't know Anne," he answered, frankly. "This has about knocked me for a goal. I'll telephone."

She watched as he turned to the car. Not a word of sympathy for her. He went down the driveway and disappeared around the turn without waving. She mustn't cry. Sharlee would be watching from behind the curtains.

"Glad you're home, Miss Anne!" Buttons greeted her warmly as he opened the door.

"Thank you, Buttons." Her voice trembled. "Will you come up to my room in half an hour and bring Maggie, and if Mrs. Harney comes in tell her I want to see her, also."

Realization of their impending troubles made her own of less importance for the moment. She must put off the luxury of tears until she had forewarned them of the change.

Yvonne was waiting for her, a velvet lounging robe and slippers warmed, a hearth fire crackling.

"Maggie's sending up a tray. She says she has made the scones you like. And Mrs. Harney came in a moment ago and very mad about something. She has already had the bad words with Mrs. Farnsworth."

Yvonne smiled in memory of the fray. "Mrs. Harney has such excellent language weeth which to silence that woman."

THE tray arrived with Maggie protesting volubly behind it. "Won't be bossed about by that woman. Miss Anne, she had the unbounded nerve to be tellin' me, Maggie Kearny, that I was not to bring this here, that you could come down for your meals. And I up and told her you'd have your meals wherever you saw fit, that I'd carry them to the top of a flag pole if you took to sit in there."

Anne smiled at the thought of Maggie scaling a flag-pole. "Thank you Maggie, but don't quarrel with them."

"I won't be needin' to," Maggie declared. "It's quarrelin' between themselves they are. Mrs. Farley, she wanted them scones, she said to make you toast she was that fond of scones, and Mrs. Farnsworth told her she looked like a Poland China already and she wouldn't be havin' the cook warkin' overtime tryin' to fill her up when it couldn't be did, and while they scrapped, I made away with the scones."

Because Maggie was watching, Maggie who had made the scones and fought for their safe arrival, Anne ate them dutifully, wondering with each mouthful if the next would pass the painful constriction of her throat. The scolding tea made it possible, and when the cook had relaxed her vigilance, Anne turned to Buttons and Mrs. Harney who had come in.

They gathered about her, wonder and worry in their faces, only Mrs. Harney realizing, in part, what was coming.

Anne told them of Luke Farnsworth's will, and of the small part she played in it.

"I wanted to tell you right away so you wouldn't jeopardize your positions," she said. "It isn't always easy to find employment and I'm sure, as soon as I am away from here, you can get along with the two women."

There was silence for a moment when she concluded, then Buttons spoke. "That wasn't like Luke Farnsworth," he said.

"Divil a bit like him," agreed Maggie, "and his own daughter, too."

"I'm not his own daughter, Maggie," began Anne, then was surprised to see the big woman heave up from the chair she had taken and, arms akimbo, stride towards her.

they didn't explain that a deep cleavage exists between the State and Commerce departments, dating back from Hoover's time. Hull and Roper are both right, from their viewpoints—Roper is right in saying that non-war exports should go forward, and Hull follows national policy in discouraging all commercial intercourse with belligerents, for safety reasons.

The State Department holds a death-grip on commercial policy abroad. It even supervises attaches sent out by the Commerce Department, and routes their mail through embassies and legations. Several Secretaries of Commerce have fretted and fumed and complained to the President, but since foreign policy is under direction of the Secretary of State it has been ruled that commercial activities should be subordinated to this policy.

Secretary Wallace has occasionally put one over on Secretary Hull, but Roper's department has been less successful. The situation needs "coordinating."

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN
FIGHT: New York is taking Herbert Hoover more and more serious as a candidate. It's becoming increasingly apparent that the ex-President has a lot of money quietly lined up for his cause. Enough big industrialists evidently still believe in him to create a serious obstacle to the nomination of anyone else.

Now it can be told that one of the main reasons Calvin Coolidge did not choose to run in 1923 was because his Secretary of Commerce had rounded up all the campaign funds in sight by using the facilities of his department to do favors for leading GOP contributors. By the time they had pledged their gratitude in cash there was little left for any other Republican. There is excellent reason to believe that Mr. Coolidge was not overly pleased by his subordinate's zeal.

Mr. Hoover's attitude—as described by insiders who have talked to him recently—is decidedly more than receptive. He will have a surprising number of delegates sewed up when convention time comes around. If things go badly he will use them—as we have indicated previously—to dictate another nominee. But if there is the faintest chance for his personal nomination he will fight for it to the finish.

ALLURING: A number of Republican chieftains privately figure the 1936 campaign should aim at capturing Congress rather than the Presidency. They frankly concede there's little hope of the latter anyhow. But if the GOP controls the House they can block Mr. Roosevelt's appropriations and thus maneuver to discredit him thoroughly in the nation's eyes by 1940. They haven't the slightest doubt that they can do an effective job.

From that angle even Hoover's opponents within his party see sense in selecting him as their '36 standard-bearer. They are confident he would take a bad beating—and his backers might then be convinced at last that he can't win. That would eliminate him for the future—a consummation devoutly wished by many Republican leaders. The situation reminds a New York observer of an incident at a private meeting of GOP chiefs early in the '32 campaign. A prominent and respected leader arose and said: "There's just one reason why we should work our heads off to re-elect Hoover—but it's a very alluring one. If he wins he can never run for the presidency again."

VOTES: Informed New Yorkers understand that a complete reversal of AAA policy is in prospect.

AAA officials have intimated that scarcity induced by war conditions will make it unnecessary to impose further crop restrictions. Actually they intend not only to take off the brakes but to step on the gas. They have the kind of fuel available that gets results. The new AAA law contains a little-noticed provision that enables payment of bounties for increased agricultural production at the administration's option instead of merely for curtailment.

Political Observers See Little In Bly's Campaign

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, Oct. 18.—Research by political observers finds nothing plausible by way of ascertaining the inspiration of Joseph B. Bly's candidacy against United States Senator J. W. Bailey.

Some years ago the Rev. G. W. Dorsett of Wake Forest offered for the United States Senate in a Republican primary. It had been pretty well settled that the Republicans would meet in state convention, nominate their candidate, have him certified in the state primary and give the Democrats the usual laugh. But the Rev. Mr. Dorsett came out, put up his $50 fee and gained the nomination in a very tight vote. But Mr. Dorsett did the Democrats a big service by precipitating a contest. A western man had to run against an eastern incumbent and it so happened that Mr. Pritchard lost all the votes among the negro leaders that at least two of the primary opponents, Major George Butler and Irvin B. Tucker would have received, had either been nominated. The anti-Bailey feeling growing out of the 1928 campaign, was offset by the anti-Pritchard bias.

Mr. Bly isn't anything like so well known as Preacher Dorsett was and the stranger probably won't be able to help Mr. Bailey by giving him a fight. The assumption is that Mr. Bly is a veteran of the world war and that his grievance is the Bailey position on payment of adjusted compensation, otherwise known as the bonus. And the gentlemen may have been brought in by some friends of somebody else. Congressman William B. Umstead seems quite the beneficiary of such a piece of strategy several years ago. His opponents got a pair of candidates into the race in Durham and Orange. Mr. Umstead got the votes and is still getting them.

Soil erosion is costing North Carolina farmers an estimated $274,000 a day, according to Dr. J. P. Lutz of North Carolina State college.

Mineral production of Nevada county, California, totaled $7,488,966, mainly in gold, in 1934.

Local Store Offers Big Inducement

The well known Quinn-Miller Co., one of the liveliest, wide-awake furniture stores of this community, has cooperated with a well-known manufacturer, the G. I. Sellers & Sons Co., of Elwood, Ind. to offer to the ladies of Greenville and vicinity a special inducement for them to modernize their kitchens.

This is of especial interest to ladies who are desirous of retaining their youthful appearance, of saving themselves many steps daily. Many hot, tiresome hours are spent in the kitchen, and all who would like to spend an extra hour each day doing more pleasant things than drudging way in the kitchen are welcome to the Quinn-Miller store where they may talk over their kitchen problems and learn how their burden may be lessened.

The present administration took office at a time when business was at a standstill. In contacting hundreds of housewives, asking them what they would buy if they were to receive an unexpected sum of money, a large percentage said, "We would fix up our kitchens. We spend more time there than we do any other room in the house."

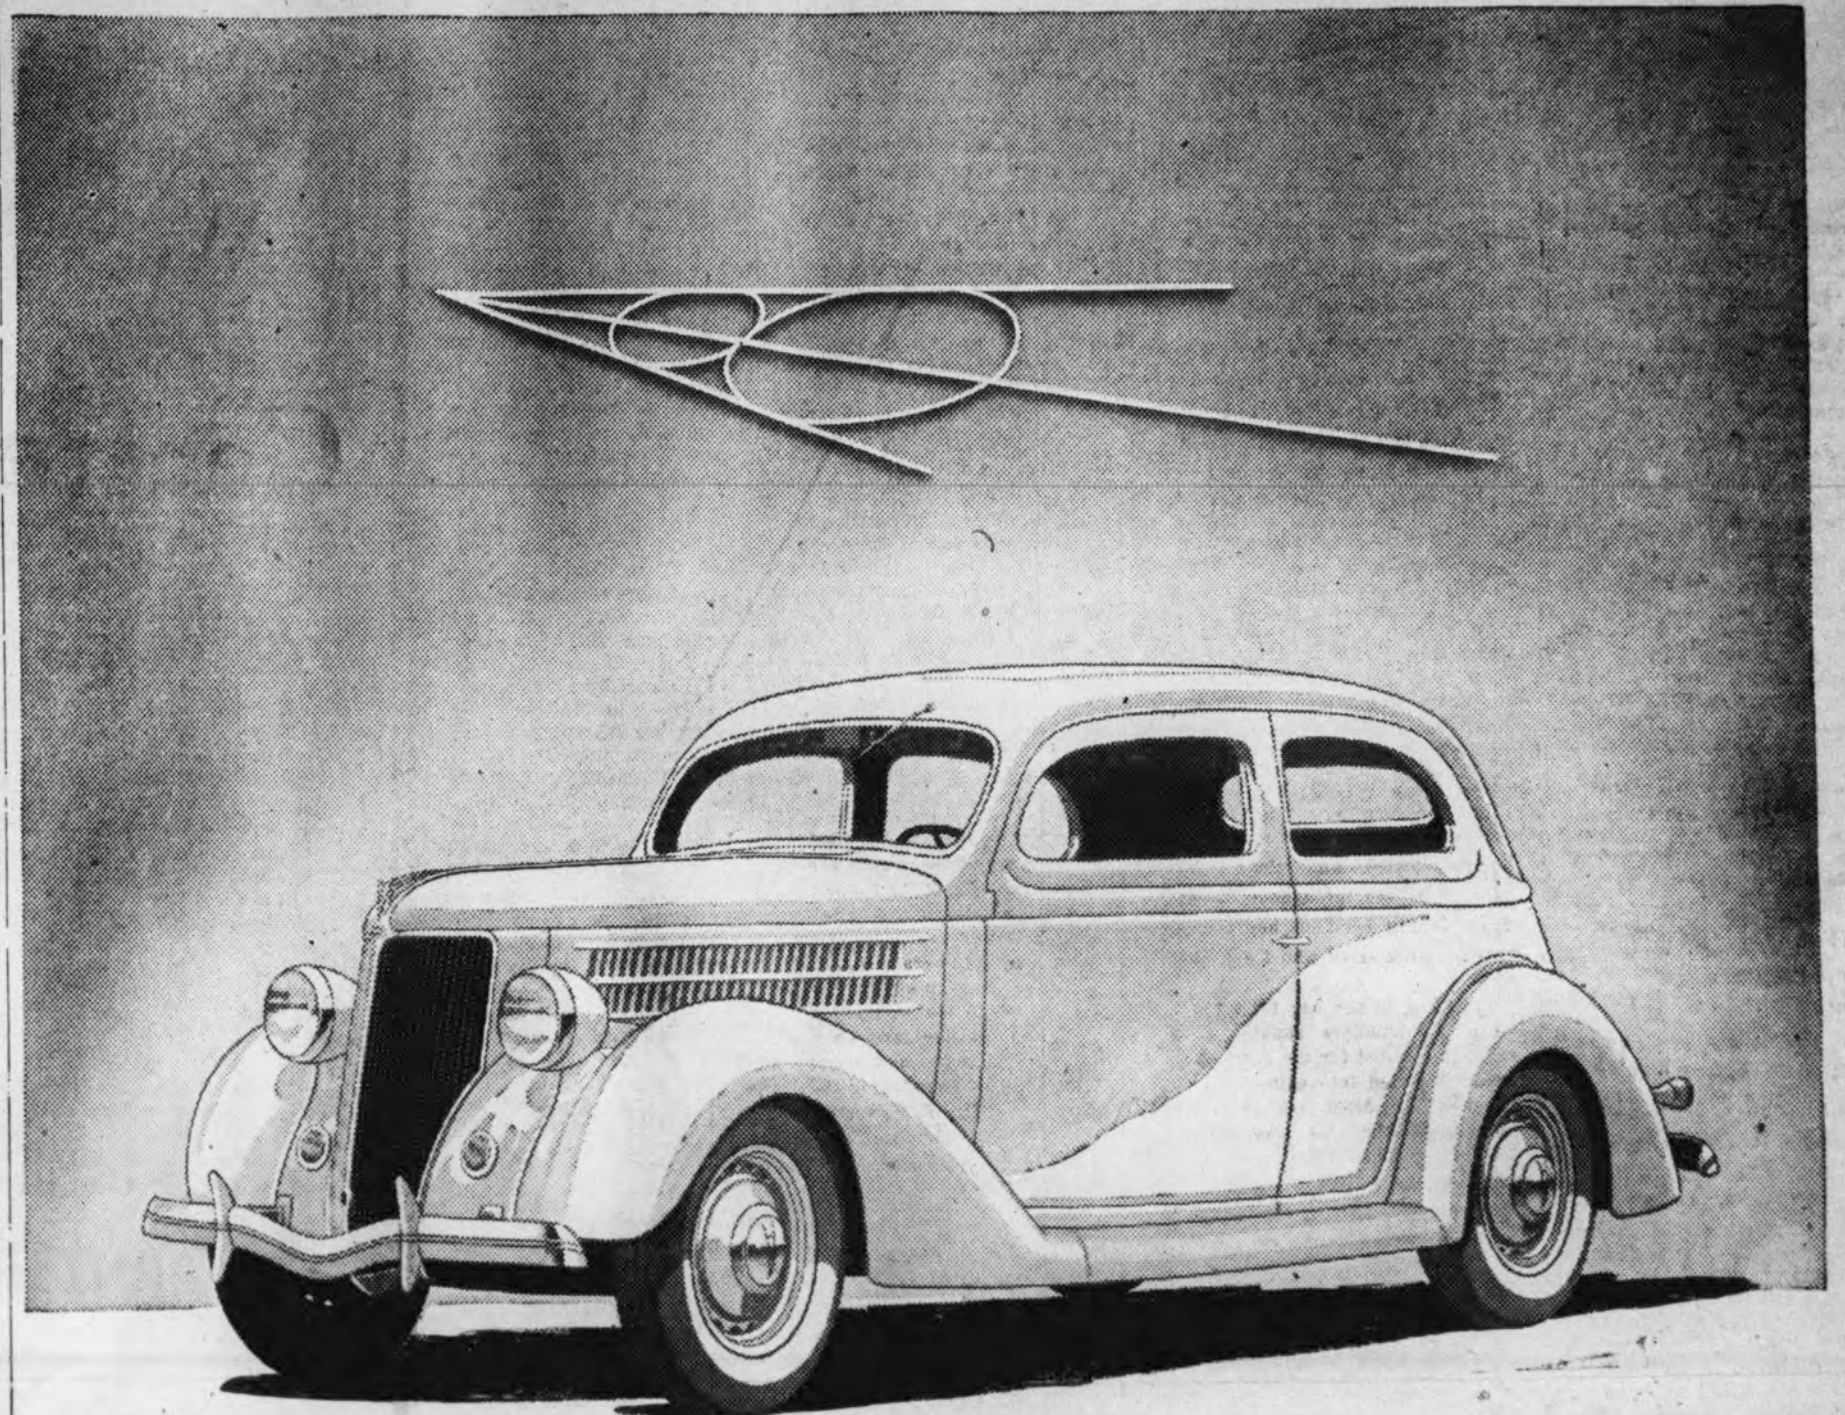

The G. I. Sellers & Sons Co., who are the largest manufacturers of Kitchen Furniture in the world, immediately cooperated with the administration, manufacturing even more beautiful labor-saving Kitchen Cabinets, which will save them many hours of labor, as well as brightening up drab, cheerless homes, making home life more to be desired.

As a special inducement the Quinn-Miller Co. cooperating with the G. I. Sellers & Sons Company are offering a fine 32-piece set of chinaware and a fine 18-piece set of stainless cutlery with each Sellers Kitchen Cabinet sold during this special bargain event, and a 32-piece dinner set with each Sellers Breakfast Suite sold at this time.

INTRODUCED TOMORROW

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-siphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. On display tomorrow by Ford dealers.

McDonald's Chances Of Being Governor Are Slight

Political Talk In Raleigh Unfavorable To Candidate

HOME ATTACKS HURT CAMPAIGN

Many Gubernatorial Candidates Visit Raleigh In Interest Of Campaigns

Reflector Bureau.
Raleigh, Oct. 18.—State Fair visitors this week have talked politics and from the back country they bring the story that Candidate Ralph W. McDonald's best bet is plenty of opposition.

The Forsyth gentleman, who almost has made himself a state figure on opposition about home, isn't going anything like so well now, many of these travelers say, as he did some weeks ago when he found home folks writing letters all over North Carolina telling why Dr. McDonald will not do. Many of these epistles are received in eastern North Carolina where tobacco was off color a brief season. It is well settled political psychology that Forsyth attacks will help in the East.

Senator W. M. Hendren of Forsyth, after trying a murder case in Davie county several years ago concluded that his client was convicted because the lawyer at times had represented the Reynolds Tobacco company. The old man who was sentenced to the electric chair never went there and never will. But Senator Hendren was speaking a parable all the same. Even in Davie county which adjoins Forsyth, there is enough hatred of a big corporation to hurt a defendant represented by a "corporation" lawyer. And Davie doesn't grow so much tobacco at that.

The handling of Dr. McDonald, it is admitted, will have to be cautious. He is an exceedingly polite man and rough stuff used on him would help. There are many of his townspeople who feel unkindly toward him, but they must not talk. The doctor has many political and economic opinions that his contemporaries regard very unsound, but it seems to be historically true that anybody can be cussed into commendation.

The Forsyth teacher got to Raleigh because his friends shrewdly stimulated a feud between him and some of the business interests of his home city. And even in Forsyth there are so many more people who have nothing than there are those of substance that drawing the issue between them was advantageous to the representative. It always has been so except in the story books. Some good friend of Dr. Howard Rondthaler told him that Dr. McDonald's views were objectionable to some might good friends of Salem College. Results: somebody told Dr. McDonald and he told the world which helped to make him a legislator.

The late W. W. Kilchin had exactly the same luck. He was quite persona non grata to Durham people, a few of them. West Durham denied its hall to him for a political speech. He got the bigger court house and busted loose with the result that he took 30 of every 100 votes in Durham and Durham had all the riches east of Winston-Salem.

If the opposition of Dr. McDonald could employ about 15 good boosters and sent them out they could soft soap the genial gentleman to death, many people believe. At any rate, if such an arrangement might be made there never would be any fear of him, so they say. The propulsive power of that campaign will be abuse. And that administered by people who have money would be certain to nominate him.

All the candidates for Governor have been here recently. Clyde Hoey and Sandy Graham come to the supreme court and Dr. McDonald, whose client is North Carolina, looks after the state's interest so they say.

Dramatic Conference Opens At University

Chapel Hill, Oct. 18.—Beginning a two-day session, the State Dramatic Conference got off to an auspicious start here this evening when delegates were tendered an informal reception in the Playmakers Theatre.

The Conference, a semi-annual meeting of the Carolina Dramatic Association, is under the directorship of Mrs. Irene Fussler, of Chapel Hill, secretary of the Association.

Immediately after the reception, delegates were invited by Prof. Harry J. Davis to a rehearsal of a coming Carolina Playmaker production, "Three Corners Moon," which he is directing.

Outstanding features of the Conference will be a concert by the Se-dalla Negro Singers from Palmer Institute, under the direction of Charlotte Hawkins Brown; a play, "Sweet and Twenty" to be presented by the Charlotte Little Theatre Work Shop under the direction of Thomas Humble; and a propaganda puppet play, "Circus of Bust," presented by the North Carolina State Board of Health and the Carolina Playmakers.

All three programs are scheduled for Saturday night.

State and Georgia To Meet Saturday On Riddick Field

College Station, Raleigh, Oct. 18.—The greatest array of football players ever brought together in Riddick Stadium at State College will perform Saturday when State and Georgia meet at 3 o'clock.

The Georgia squad arrived today and this afternoon will take a workout in Riddick Stadium. Coach Harry Mehre has brought from Athens some of the finest backs in Dixie, headed by John Bond, co-captain and seriously being considered for All-American honors. Bond is a triple-threat ace and passer, kicked and ran Georgia to a 27-0 win over State last year at Athens. Still another fine Georgia back is Al Minor, right halfback, past catching sensation. Minor has been good enough to hold down the No. 1 position since he joined the varsity club as a sophomore three years ago.

The Georgia fullback is a sophomore named Bill Hartman. Hartman weighs over two hundred pounds and is the fullback sensation of the Southeastern Conference.

Georgia offers an exceptionally fine blocking quarterback in Charlie Treadway, veteran of three years. Andy Roderberry is another Georgia quarterback star.

Against these stars, State offers such backs as Cowboy Robinson, Eddie Berlinski, Joe Ryneska, Joe Schwerdt, Howard Barnes, Charlie Gadd, Ren Hook, and Eddie Entwistle.

Carolina's Title At Stake Saturday In Game With Cats

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 18.—Tomorrow afternoon at Davidson the Tar Heels are going to try to advance a second notch in their climb to a State championship of which they are defending champions.

Possibly the largest crowd of the year will pack Richardson Field for the kickoff at 2:30. It will be North Carolina's only appearance in the Piedmont section of the State this fall, football fans in this section will thus get their big chance to see in action a team which has gained a national name with impressive victories over Tennessee and Maryland.

With the exception of Fullback Jim Hutchins, the "human battering ram," Carolina's first string will remain intact. In Hutchins' position will be either Bobbie Stewart or Art Ditt.

Don Jackson will lead the offense of the Tar Heels. His spectacular play against Tennessee and Maryland has earned him a place among the leading All-American prospects. His passing, punting, running and defensive play have been superb. With Jackson on the sending end Carolina is expected to unleash a devastating aerial attack to match the highly rated Wildcat passing. Dick Buck, brilliant flankman, will be on the receiving end of most of the tosses. This year this combination has completed 6 of 7 attempts, averaging 20.7 yards per completion.

With Davidson expected to flash its effective air attack Coach Carl Snavely has worked hard on the Carolina defense. So far this season no team has worked a passing offense effectively against the Tar Heels. Only 15 of 46 tries have been completed by opponents. Carolina has intercepted 15. However, quite typically, the only scores against Carolina have been made directly via passes.

Sydney Police Become Art.

Sydney, Australia.—(AP)—Sydney police have become students of sculpture. They are learning to model the features of great men of history. Such training, it has been decided, will aid them in identifying criminals. Latent artistic talent is meanwhile being developed, with a possibility that some of the policemen may find a new profession.

"IF YOU DON'T SELL WITH US SELL IN GREENVILLE"

JACK LLOYD GLOBE TROTTER GREENVILLE VISITOR TODAY

Jack Lloyd, 67 year old soldier of fortune, adventurer, veteran of several wars and numerous revolutions, known throughout the world as "Burning Daylight" and hailed by newspapermen the country over as the "Original Globe-trotting Reporter," was a visitor in Greenville this morning, and while in the city, the veteran called on the office of the Reflector, showed his hundreds of clippings, gave an interview, and announced that he was on his way again, as he departed for other sections of the state.

Unlike many of the people who visit news offices the world over, Jack is a character that is quite different, he carries himself with the typical Texas southern poise, and he can talk to you of many of the leading "big shots" of the country, just as though they were "buds" of his, for he claims to know men of every walk of life from every country of the world.

According to the veteran writer, he has written copy for papers the world over in his days, and he claims that he has written copy for more than 4,000 individual papers, that he has edited more than a dozen, and has published nine papers of his own in various boom towns of the west and the south.

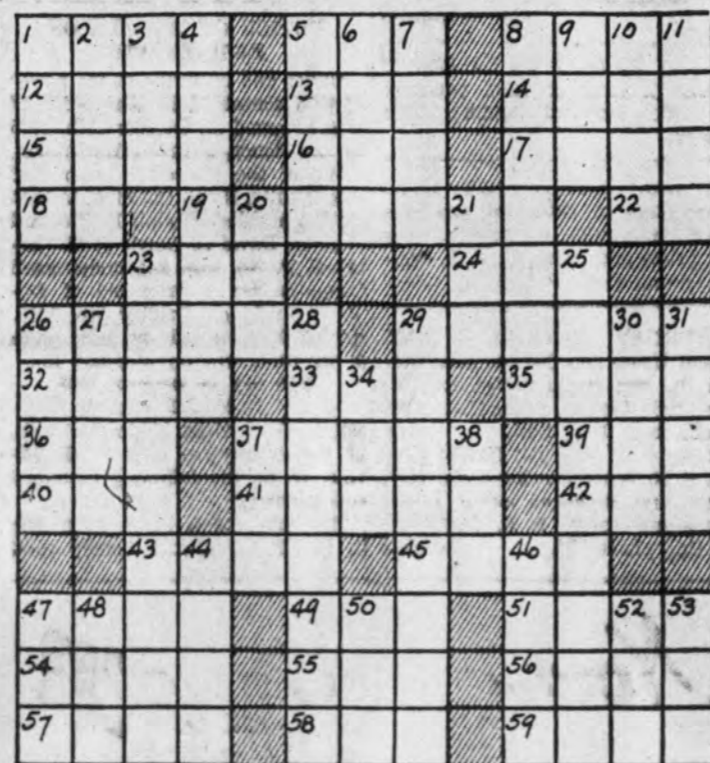

Booms the world over, have called Jack to their midst, and he tells you many interesting yarns about the various booms that he has made in the past 50 years, when the "little bits of glass" were found on the fields of the Kimberly, Jack made that famous rush, and like many of the rest of the crowd, he walked the entire distance from Cape Town to Johannesburg, then after arriving

In the Capital City, he landed on the Times, and wrote many features for the leading American and European papers, regarding the greatest diamond rush ever known to man.

It was during the famous rush in Alaska, that Jack broke into the "limelight" of the world, for at that time, when the world was wild over the cry of gold from the great Yukon and Klondike—Jack became one of the colorful characters of the boom—being a writer and man about town, the crowd began to know the stranger, and the "sourdoughs" nicknamed him, "Burning Daylight"—and at the same time, the famous western and rambling writer, Jack London—used the life of Lloyd in the Great North country for the story of "Burning Daylight" a story of the north country that will never be forgotten by those who made the famous rush.

Jack laughs as he tells you of how several of the famous celebrities of latter days, "hit the country broke" and he recalls especially of Tex Rickard—when he hit the country—chopped and sawed wood for his cabin—how Alex Pantages was a bouncer—and how Rex Beach the great writer of today was on his "uppers" in that country.

All of the great mining booms of the West knew Jack, and he tells you of the many hectic days that he put in—in these towns and camps—he tells you of the famous "Silver Dollar" Tabor—and Leadville—of Cripple Creek and its hundreds of camps—the famous Custer d'Alene country in Idaho—the Black Hills and its colorful characters of Deadwood Dick—Calamity Jane and Poker Alice.

Wars and revolutions also know the veteran, and he has taken part in the major wars of his days, in all sections of the world, in the Spanish-American war he was with the famous Rough Riders under Roosevelt and went through Cuba with that outfit, in the Boer war he was with the outfit that was led by the one and only Lord Kitchener, in the Russian and Japanese war he was with the Cossack outfit that was known as the "Legion of Death" and in the World war he was with the Intelligence department of the Federal government.

Revolutions also know Jack—and he tells you that the greatest thrill that he ever had in his life was the time that he was with the famous Pancho Villa for more than 3 years, and like all the rest of the men that were with Villa, claims that there was never a man of the outfit that took any part in the raid on Columbus, New Mexico. In the "banana" revolution, in Nicaragua, Jack was with that great rebel leader Sandino—and tells you of being injured almost seriously the morning of the terrible earthquake.

Almost all of the Latin American countries that have had revolutions or uprising have seen the veteran as a fighter, and he has also served as a runner of arms and ammunition.

In the last war in Ethiopia, Jack was a member of the famous Caucasian Legion that went in under the famous "king of Kings" and he tells you of the time that the great Italian massacre took place—like all others that took part in that affair, Jack claims that no army in the world can ever take Ethiopia, for, an enemy can advance only so far, then the real war will take place—for in trying to advance to the interior, no army of white men could ever endure the hardships—and in that section, they would be ambushed by the natives—and their water supply would be greatly dwindled—again—Jack states that thousands, hundreds of thousands of Italians will succumb from the various tropical diseases—which claim the average white man that has never ventured the great unknown lands of Ethiopia.

Like all soldiers of fortune, Jack has done his "hitch" in the famous Foreign Legion, and he tells you—like all the rest that have ever done their bit in that organization of Beau Geste—that it takes a man to stand the gaff of that 5 years of hell.

For the past eight months, Jack has traveled in 31 states, stopping in the principal cities, towns and villages, and he claims that the tobacco section of Carolina and the Southern section of Virginia, are in a much better shape than many of the other sections of the country.

According to Lloyd, Roosevelt will be re-elected, because the "little man" will re-elect him, for he has done more for the "little people" than any other man that has ever sat in the great office of President. People the country over, from California, to the Atlantic, and from the Canadian border to the Rio Grande, praise the work of the great leader, and only a few "ore heads" are trying to start a "whispering campaign" against the man that has almost revolutionized the country, Greenville, according to Jack, with its great tobacco market, has the appearance to the traveler and stranger as a real city of activity—and throughout the entire town—people can see life—no paupers, begging on the streets—no bread lines—and smiles on the faces of the most of the people that you come in contact with on the streets.

Professor At Duke Writes On Mexico

Durham, Oct. 18.—The Journal of Geography for October contains as its leading article an article on "The United States and Mexico," by Dr. Ben F. Lemert, of the economics department of Duke university, and Mrs. Lemert.

The article is illustrated by pictures taken along the route of the Pan American highway, and the authors have also prepared for the article an interesting map of Mexico.

In recent summers Dr. and Mrs. Lemert have visited Mexico with parties of Duke students and have studied the economic and geographical conditions of that country.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A little more speculative froth was blown off the stock market today but selective demands was an effective restraining factor. Trading was quiet during greater part of the session. Foreign war rumbling engendered caution but were not exceptionally disturbing. Commodities were a neutral influence to stocks. Cotton fitted and grains were backward. Bonds exhibited no definite trends. The late stock tone was firm sales approximately 1,350,000 shares.

ATTEMPTS MADE TO CURB ILLEGAL SALES OF TOBACCO

gained selling any type of tobacco without marking the sales on their cards. The Washington office has advised that it is going the full limit in penalizing farmers who sell any types of tobacco and fail to put the sales on the contract cards. Arnold said that, if necessary, the government was going to the extent of cancelling violators' contracts and requiring that all benefit and rental payments be returned to the government.

Cardui During Middle Life

While she was going through the change of life, Mrs. Susan Price, of Hallsboro, N. C., was "very weak at times, and had to go to bed," she writes. "I couldn't sleep well and didn't have an appetite. I was so nervous, I was always looking for something bad to happen. I read of Cardui and took it. It helped my nerves so much and gave me strength and built me up. I took Cardui off and on for two years. I have recommended Cardui to other people, hoping they would be helped and given strength as I was with this good remedy." Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)
