Four Armies Appear
About To Come
To Grips

HAILE SELASSIE
ACTS CONFIDENT

Harrar Reports 12-
000 Well-Equipped
Ethiopians Start for Front

(By The Associated Press)
Uncounted thousands of Ethiopian warriors converged on two fronts today to repel further advances by Italy's Fascist legions.

Four armies seemed about to come to grips in two big battles, which may decide the fate of Emperor Haile Selassie's desert and mountain empire.

The town of Makale on the northern front and Gorrabel on the south, were the rallying points for major bodies of Ethiopian Italian air scouts reported.

In the north, General De Bono had thrown his lines somewhat forward of Adigrat, Adwa and Aksum, his three big columns totalling more than one hundred thousand men in the last advance.

In the south General Graziani straightened his front along a line from Walwal, site of the famous border incident, to Dolo.

The methodical Italians apparently entertained no doubt as to the outcome of the fresh offensive whose ultimate objective is Harrar, strategic cross roads of the Ethiopian empire.

In the capital city Addis Ababa the lion of Judah gave every evidence of renewed confidence that his armies can withstand the assaults of the enemy.

From Harrar came word that 12,000 well-equipped Ethiopian infantry, cavalry and anti-aircraft troops, the main body of the Harrar regulars, had started for the southern front after a review by Ras Tafari in Ethiopia's only walled city.

Ethiopian government officials expressed lack of interest in individual diplomatic regulations for peace and in London King George's speech from the throne in proroguing parliament expressed "my gravest concern" over the Italo-Ethiopian crisis. The king cited that his government and exercised every effort to attain peace.

Rome, like Addis Ababa appeared to be only faintly interested in peace moves. Premier Mussolini put up to Great Britain the next move in the negotiations for peace in East Africa.

Brush Fire Roars Down Coastline Of California

Blaze Leaves Malibu Beach Film Colony Apparently Safe as It Continues on Out of Control

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Leaving the Malibu Beach film colony apparently safe behind a brush fire today swept on down the coast line into heavily wooded mountain strip which for 20 years has been regarded as the most dense and menace in Southern California.

Gravest concern was felt as the fire, sweeping southward, a mile or so off the coast highway, went out of control.

Living in its path were an 18-mile route are Las Flores, Tibbago and Santa Monica Canyon and then the wooded country embracing the fashionable Riviera, Brentwood, Belair and Beverly Hills.

Members of the exclusive Malibu Beach colony breathed more easily as the flames changed direction and rushed southward leaving everywhere a blackened area between the homes and the fireline.

Firemen fought to hold the roaring advanced flames, barely 100 feet away from the end of the beach resort. Four hundred fighters started a backfire, herded in back to meet the rolling wall of flames and with a fire that reached high in the air against a billowing background some of the menace to the Malibu Beach property was ended, at least temporarily.

Only 17 Per Cent of Drivers' License Out

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Only approximately 17 per cent of the applications made by automobile drivers for license permits have been handled by the Highway Division this far.

Arthur Fulk, director of the division, said today that 121,000 licenses have been mailed and more than 700,000 applications have been received.

WEEK'S SALES TOP 5,000,000

Offerings On Market
For Season Total
44,000,000 Pounds

More than five million pounds of tobacco sold on the Greenville market this week brought the season's total sales above 44 million pounds with the season average price passing the 21 cents a pound mark.

The average price during the week ending yesterday was $23.96 per hundred pounds. More than $9,000,000 has been paid out to growers on the local market this season.

Official figures for yesterday, the week, and season made public today were as follows:

Sales yesterday, 829,968 pounds, for $19,081.27, an average of $23.96.

Sales for week, 5,354,680 pounds for $126,804.04, an average of $23.96.

Season's sales, 44,226,464 pounds for $9,304,204.53, an average of $21.04 per hundred.

Heavy sales were anticipated for next week and the total poundage is expected to pass the 50 million mark by the end of the week. With the crop approximately 75 per cent sold the early estimates of 60 million pounds for the Greenville market this season will likely be reached before the season comes to an end.

Griffin Upholds North Carolina School System

Says Janitors May Run School and Get Higher Pay in State
But Not So in This State

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Oct. 25.—While school janitors in New York may make as much as $64,500 a year—more than superintendents or principals—and be more powerful than the teachers, principals and city board of education, this condition can never arise in North Carolina, where the state system of school operation and the close supervision of expenditures by the State School Commission makes it impossible. Executive Secretary Lloyd E. Griffin of the commission pointed out today.

In New York City, the janitor, instead of being paid salaries, are allotted a lump sum with which he buys school supplies, such as towels, soap, sweeping compound, fuel, hires assistants and pockets what is left as his salary. Some janitors, by skimping on supplies and maintenance items, manage to pocket tremendous sums as their "profits" for the year, these "profits" in some cases amounting to as much as $64,500 a year, according to an account of this practice in the October 21 issue of Time.

This system has several times been attacked by Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia, who just week appeared before the city school board with a representative of the United Parents Association to protest that school washrooms in New York are without soap and towels.

"Anytime the board of education has the courage to cut out its rotten, dishonest custodial system, we will be able to give the children what they need," Mayor LaGuardia said. "But now, if you go to any principal and point out uncleanliness, he'll turn pale and say: 'My God, I can't help it. I have no power over the janitors. I never saw such a gang running anything.'"

This situation could not develop in North Carolina under the present system where janitors are paid salaries and where all school janitorial supplies are purchased on orders approved by the School Commission, Griffin pointed out. All school janitors are also subject to direction by the school principals and superintendents and can be discharged on complaint from either. Before all the schools were put under state control, a few janitors might have held their jobs because of local political connections, but this is not true now, Griffin declared.

COTTON SALE CERTIFICATES HAVE ARRIVED

Necessary For Producers
To Qualify
For Adjustment

PROVISO MADE FOR LINT SOLD

Certificates Available
At Offices of County
Farm Agent E. F. Arnold

E. F. Arnold, Pitt county farm agent, reported today he had received cotton sale certificates which are necessary for producers to qualify for the 1935 cotton price adjustment payments.

A regulation of the Agricultural Adjustment administration provides that in cases of cotton sold prior to October 23 the certificates for such sales shall be delivered to the office of the county agent not later than November 1, Arnold said there was very little sold in this county prior to October 23, however.

The farm agent also pointed out that all certificates should be presented, regardless of the price the staple brought as the basis for figuring the average price is 7-8 inch middling and often cotton measures up to a better grade. In no case, however, will adjustment payments exceed two cents per pound.

Agent Arnold issued the following statement in connection with the certificates:

Cotton buyers, and producers interested in receiving the Government Adjustment Payments on the 1935 crop cotton sold, are advised that the first forms necessary for this are now in the office of the County Agent and may be had on request.

These forms are to be prepared in triplicate by the purchaser, who keeps the triplicate, and gives the original and the duplicate to the producer from whom the cotton is purchased. Farmers who purchase their tenants' cotton are required to execute these forms also.

On receiving these forms, the producer required deposit of the original in the office of the County Agent, where it will be filed until the proper forms for completing the application are available. This should be done at once, as only seven days are allowed for this.

Buyers and producers both should understand that all work done on these forms must be in ink or indelible pencil and that any erasure will make the form worthless.

A. C. L. Railroad Ordered To Issue $4,000,000 Bonds

Issue To Be of 50-Year Series Four and One-Half Per Cent

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Atlantic Coast Line Railroad was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to issue $4,000,000 of bonds and to apply a portion of a $12,000,000 note issue of last May to payment of certain underlying bonds.

The issue is to be general unified mortgage 50-year series, a four and one-half per cent bonds. These are to be used to reimburse holders of a similar amount of general first mortgage bonds of the Wilmington and Weldon railroad company which the road has either paid or provided for payment of. These bonds retired on July 1.

Cotton Ginnings Under Last Year by 743,904 Bales

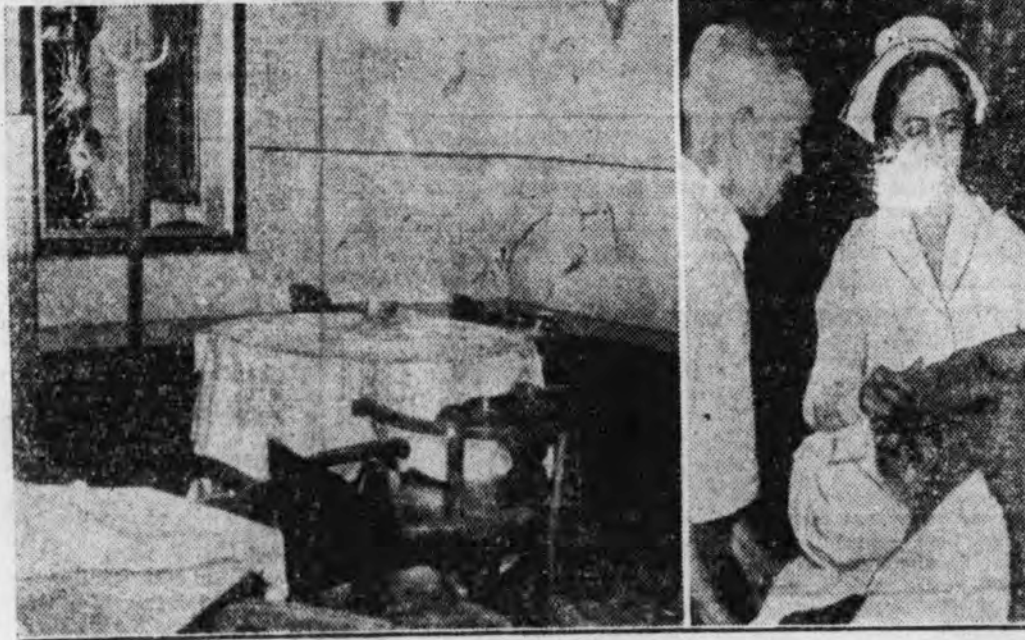

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Cotton of this year's crop ginned prior to Oct. 18 was reported today by the census bureau to have totalled 8,589,799 running bales, compared with 9,333,703 a year ago and 8,608,090 two years ago.

Local Boy Places On College Band

College Station, Raleigh, Oct. 25.—The personnel of the 1935 edition of State College's concert and military band is the largest in the history of the institution and is one of the largest, if not the largest, in the state. Last year's membership of eighty-two has been boosted to the grand total of 104 this year. Major C. D. Kitchinski, head of the college music department, has planned an enlarged program for the ensuing school year.

The band personnel includes M. M. Dail, Greenville.

DUTCH SCHULTZ, 4 HENCHMEN SHOT IN GANG WAR

Arthur (Dutch) Schultz, notorious beer baron, and four lieutenants fell victims of a violent gang outbreak over rivalry for control of New York city's numerous rackets. His hands clasping his head in agony, Dutch is shown on a hospital bed (upper left) after machine gunners sprayed him and his henchmen in a Newark cafe. Leo Frank, one of Dutch's bodyguards, nonchalantly smoked a cigarette in bed (upper right) despite his wounds but died shortly afterwards. The blood-smeared dining room where the attack was made is shown at lower left and at lower right is Otto Berman, another bodyguard, on the operating table a few moments before he died. ## Reckless, Not Drunken Driving Causing Wrecks

Reflector Bureau,
Raleigh, Oct. 25.—Reckless driving of various sorts caused the greater number of the 697 accidents in September in which 116 persons were killed and 763 injured, according to the completed figures obtained today from Director Dick McLaughlin of the Motor Vehicle Bureau.

Out of the 141 fatal accidents and 809 non-fatal accidents reported during September, reckless driving was given as the cause of 105 fatal and 502 non-fatal crashes, the figures show. Drunken driving was listed as the cause of only 10 fatal and 82 non-fatal accidents. Two drunken pedestrians were killed and one injured in motor accidents.

Excessive speed was given as the cause of 17 fatal and 69 non-fatal accidents, cut-and-out reckless driving as the cause in 22 fatal and 201 non-fatal crashes, hit-and-run driving, a form of reckless driving, as the cause of six fatal and 26 non-fatal accidents, driving on wrong side of road as cause of 6 fatal and 41 non-fatal crashes, while loss of control, probably due to excessive speed, was given as the cause of 10 fatal and 26 non-fatal accidents. Attempting to pass on hills and curves caused four fatal and 17 non-fatal crashes.

Pedestrians suffered heavily again in September, with 37 killed and 64 injured. Of these pedestrians killed and injured, 14 of the killed and 27 of the injured were children under 14 years of age, playing in streets and roadways. Collision accidents again were the most numerous, with 39 fatal and 476 non-fatal accidents being collisions of various types. Only 31 fatal and

Roosevelt Talks AAA Program At Conference

Long-Time, More Permanent Program For American Agriculture Is Object

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—President Roosevelt sought today to point the farm program away from an "emergency phase" application to a "long term" plan, asserting that the latter is "developing naturally out of the present adjustment efforts."

In a statement issued at his first post-vacation press conference the President remarked it was not the intention of Congressional framers of this act nor of the administration to let the AAA be "either a mere emergency operation or a static agency."

"It was their intention as it is mine to pass from the purely emergency phases necessitated by a grave national crisis to a long-time more permanent plan for American agriculture," he said.

"As I see it, this program has two principal objectives: First, to carry out the declared policy of Congress to maintain and increase the gains thus far made, thereby avoiding the danger of a slump back into the condition brought about by our national neglect of agriculture."

"Second, to broaden present adjustment operations so as to give farmers increasing incentive for conservation and efficient use of the nation's soil resources."

Reply Promised By Roosevelt On League Attitude

President Indicates There Is Little Room For Discrimination In Government's Position

Washington, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A prompt reply was promised by Mr. Roosevelt today to inquiries about the American attitude toward the League of Nations sanctions applied to the Italian-Ethiopian conflict.

The President indicated a feeling that there is room for little discrimination in the matter of an answer because the government's position is strictly dictated by the neutrality law.

That strengthened the feeling in some quarters that the reply would be used as a vehicle for a restatement of the United States attitude of keeps hands off things which do not concern it.

The resolution on which this country now operates under does not permit the application of economic sanctions like those used by the League.

The President said, however, that he would not make the reply to the League's inquiry but that it probably would come from the State Department. Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have discussed the question at length since the President's return.

WIDOW HELD IN SCHULTZ DEATH

Officers in Hopes Woman Can Supply
Some Clues

Newark, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Newark police held the young widow of Arthur (Dutch) Schultz today in the hope she can supply some clue in a sweeping search for the assassination of the gang chief and three henchmen.

The 21-year-old woman, Mrs. Frances Flegenheimer, was booked as a material witness last night, less than three hours after Schultz died of the wounds inflicted by rival gang bullets.

The racketeer, himself one of the last of the big time underworld leaders who became notorious during the prohibition era gave the police no help. He died at 3:30 last night, mumbling words whose by his death could not understand.

Bernard Rosenkrantz, Schultz' chauffeur and one of the quartet mowed down in the cafe gun battle, died early today.

New York detectives pressed their search for Albert Stein 21-year-old mobster suspected of several recent killings in the outbreak of gang warfare in the Metropolitan area.

Charles Luciano, described by New York officials as "the most powerful gangster in Manhattan also was sought for questioning."

Portraits Given County by Bar In Ceremonies

Eight Deceased Members of the Pitt County Bar Association
Honored in Ceremonies Here

In ceremonies appropriate to the occasion, portraits of eight deceased prominent members of the Pitt county bar association were presented to the county last night by the local bar.

The pictures, already placed in the courthouse, were the object of much admiration as approximately 300 persons gathered for the presentation ceremonies which were presided over by F. C. Harding of the local bar association.

Each picture was presented by a prominent North Carolina who made a brief talk paying tribute to the man, once famous in the history of the county and state.

The portraits were presented to the county by the Pitt bar association and the courtroom had been painted and new linoleum laid on the floors in preparation for the ceremonies.

The portraits of Thomas J. Jarvis, Pitt's only governor, was presented by Judge I. M. McKim of the United States District court. Other portraits presented and the one making the presentation follow: Harry Skinner by H. H. Phillips of the Edgecombe county bar, F. G. James by F. D. Winston of the Bertie bar; J. L. Fleming by Judge H. A. Grady of the Superior court; Harry W. Whedbee by Albion Dunn of the Pitt bar; L. L. Latham by H. S. Ward of the Beaufort bar; A. L. Bown by D. M. Clark of the Pitt bar; and W. H. Lore by Dr. L. P. Meadows, president of East Carolina Teachers college.

Across the broad Hudson in another hospital were Martin Krompfer and Sam Gold, Schultz' gangster shot down in a Manhattan harbor shop just off Broadway two hours after their chief fell.

The tax warrants received also showed that contract signers planted 38,038 acres in the county. The basic acreage for the county is 47,774 acres and under the terms of the contracts the farmers could have planted 85 per cent of the base acreage, or 40,778.6 acres.

Under an additional provision to the terms whereby farmers would have to surrender half of his rentals, the county has planted 90 per cent of the base acreage, or 42,177.4 acres.

The farm agent figures that if the farmers of the county average 300 pounds per acre, they would have a total of 30,430,800 pounds to sell this season.

Based on these figures, only a little over half of the tobacco in the county had been sold up to October 4.

Figures As of October 4 Show Farmers Received Nearly Two Million Dollars for Golden Leaf

E. F. Arnold, county farm agent, announced today that tax warrants from Washington revealed that up to October 4 tobacco contract signers in Pitt county had sold on the various markets a total of 15,269,422 pounds for $2,957,718.17 gross, or $2,836,001.88 net.

Considerable Delay Seen To Delivering Licenses

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Oct. 25.—While there will undoubtedly be considerable delay in getting the drivers' licenses back to applicants, there is nothing to prevent all those who must have drivers' permits to get their applications in before November 1, Commissioner of Revenue A. J. Maxwell said today. He also pointed out that the law requires the department to collect $1 from every applicant for a license to drive a private car after November 1, now only six days away. A charge of $2 is made for a chauffeur's license, regardless of whether the application is made before or after November 1.

All drivers who make application for their licenses before November 1, even though they do not receive their licenses by that date, will be protected against arrest or against paying the $1 fee, Commissioner Maxwell pointed out. He also made it clear that every person who ever drives a car, either a private passenger car, truck, bus or taxicab, regardless of whether he or she owns a motorvehicle, must have a driver's license under the 1935 law. The application blanks may still be obtained from automobile dealers, police stations, sheriff's offices, from highway patrolmen and motor club offices. In addition, application blanks have been mailed to all present automobile owners.

Serious delay in getting the drivers' licenses back to the applicants has resulted from the inability of the department to get delivery on the automatic photographic machine necessary to make the license, Commissioner Maxwell said. As a result, two hand machines are all that are available. And while these are being operated 24 hours a day and have been for several weeks, they have a capacity of only about 15,000 licenses each 24 hours, while the automatic machine can turn out 50,000 licenses every 24 hours. The automatic machine is still expected daily and when received will make it possible to get out at least 65,000 finished licenses every 24 hours. But even then, many cannot get their licenses until late in November.

Peace Apostle Joins Call For New Defenses

"Britain Awake" Cry Tells Nation of Dangers Near at Hand

By ROGER D. GREENE
London, (AP)—Full-blast, British government propaganda guns are pounding England's traditionally slow-awakening millions to a realization of impending danger.

While a voluntarily subdued press plays down the war scare, to avoid creating general alarm, other channels are being brought into play to inform the people of possible jeopardy arising from what Ramsay MacDonald has termed "the gravest crisis since 1914."

For example, huge type in a series of quarter-page newspaper advertisements declares:

"The Navy League is working to arouse a slumbering people to the danger of its situation."

And at the same time, with a suddenly united voice, speakers of every political party have submerged factional differences to rally support for Stanley Baldwin's government in its crusade to preserve peace—even if that policy means war.

Party slogans are forgotten. Attacks on the government in power, ordinarily flaming at the approach of a national election, have ceased almost overnight as the European crisis momentarily threatens to boil over and engulf Britain in another mighty conflict.

A typical example was the speech of Sir Edward Grigg, M. P. in which he said:

"We are told that the demand for strengthening Britain's defense forces is not a good cry at election time. Who cares whether it is a good cry? It is a great call!"

Naval Building Fund Asked
A nation-wide appeal for funds to build up Britain's once-mighty navy now antiquated navy further drives home the warning of potential danger.

"Your fleet is still your life!" declares the Navy League. "Consider the facts. In our battle-fleet of fifteen capital ships, eleven will be over-age on December 31, 1936. If war were to come then, our sailors would have to fight in ships 20 years behind an enemy."

"For the support of our battle-fleet and the defense of our commerce, there are only 50 cruises, of which, 14, by the same date, will be over-age. Through lack of naval strength, we can no longer be sure either of keeping the peace or defending ourselves in war."

MacDonald Joins Chorus
Earl Jellicoe, world war fleet commander, at the Trafalgar Day dinner said:

"The British empire is absolutely dependent upon the sea for existence. Now, to a very large extent, it is defenseless."

And MacDonald, the apostle of peace who suffered years of Coventry rather than yield to the 1914 war fervor, said:

"For some years this nation, under whatever party has been in power, has been reducing armaments. The government now has concluded that we have gone too far and has decided that our defense equipment must be made good."

Lancaster, N. M. Lancaster, M. L. Basnight, J. B. Brown, S. Stephens, R. Lancaster, M. B. Simpkins, and Misses Ruth Carr, Marjorie Lewis and Julia Griffin.

"Sir Walter Raleigh House."

The "Sir Walter Raleigh House" visited by the senior class in Household Management from the college yesterday afternoon is not only a model house in its general plan and furnishings, but according to their report, is actually a "model home" ready for some lucky family to move into and enjoy.

The modern equipment and the facilities for recreation especially impressed the girls. The recreation room in the basement, decorated in bright colors, with a large brick fireplace in the center, and tables and comfortable chairs grouped around, perhaps delighted them most of all. A radio gave the finishing touch.

The center of interest for many of these future housekeepers and prospective teachers of Household Management was the kitchen, with its electrical devices and other modern equipment.

There have been 25,000 visitors to the house in the two weeks it has been open to the public. Last Sunday 2,000 called between the hours of two and six. The floors showed no signs whatever of having been tramped on by the visitors.

The house will be closed after tomorrow and will be offered for sale.

The class of twenty and Mr. Holtzclaw, the teacher of the class, with Paul Ricks in charge of the bus, left for Raleigh at 12:30 o'clock and returned at 9:30 last night.

A. A. U. W. To Meet Monday.

The first meeting of the year of the Greenville branch of the American Association of University Women will be a supper meeting at the parish house.

"Places of Historic Interest in North Carolina" is the subject to be presented by Miss Sallie Joyner Davis, an authority on North Carolina history.

This lecture is the first of the series of varied, stimulating programs planned for the year. At the November meeting, Dr. Palmer Hudson, of the English department of the University of North Carolina, will be the guest speaker. Dr. B. W. Spillman's talk on "Whence Came Christmas?" and music by the College Ensemble will constitute the Christmas program. For the second supper meeting, which comes in January, the topic is "Today's Challenge in Hobbies." James S. Ficklen will talk at the February meeting on "International Business Relations." Another vital contemporary question, "Social Security Legislation" will be studied at a panel discussion directed by Miss Laura Rose at the next monthly meeting.

In April the education committee will have charge of the annual rally at which "Problems of Education in North Carolina" will be considered. Business and reports from those who attend the state convention will be in order at the last meeting of the college year.

In addition to these programs for the general meetings, other activities of a recreational and cultural nature sure to be of interest to the members and to the community will be provided for. All in all, the indications are that the year's work and play in the Greenville branch of the A. A. U. W. will be varied, stimulating and valuable. Some of the meetings will be open to the public.

COMPLAINTS ABOUT POLICE CRUELTY

There have been several complaints lately regarding alleged unmerciful beatings administered by police officers to violators of the law who showed an unwillingness to accompany the officers to the city jail. While the writer has witnessed none of these beatings, on two occasions he has arrived on the scene in time to see negro women, who apparently had been beaten over the head, being carried to the lock-up by policemen and in each instance the police were reported to have administered the injuries.

Yesterday afternoon an officer was called to First street where a negro woman, apparently drunk, was raising a disturbance. According to the report, before the officer arrived someone had used a brick-bat to subdue the woman and it was necessary that she be carried to a doctor's office to have her wound dressed before she was carried to the police station. After the woman left the doctor's office in company of the officer she was said to have refused to continue her trip to the city jail and the officer forthwith administered a severe beating over her head with his black jack and she fell to the sidewalk with blood dripping from head wounds and from her mouth. Of course the officers must be respected and naturally must be armed to protect themselves and carry out their duties, but it seems in this case as in others that their methods of subduing unruly defendants, especially negroes, are beyond reason and is taking advantage of the opportunity to be unduly cruel to persons who in the courts will have no comeback.

There are of course times when an officer being alone might have to use force in self defense, but in most of the cases as in that yesterday there were plenty of bystanders that the officer could have deputized to aid him in taking the woman to jail without having to injure her. It is our opinion that asking for outside help should be preferable to beating somebody unmercifully.

Our officers are expected to do their duty and no one should criticize them for doing so, but there have been enough complaints of cruelty on the parts of officers to warrant the city authorities investigating the matter. If the officers have been and

HIGH COURAGE

SYNOPSIS: Now that Anne Farnsworth has found refuge in the home of her old friend, Tecla Sorb, near Astoria, she feels safe from her "relatives." These last are apparently the heirs of Luke and Lucinda Farnsworth; Anne has learned that she is not their daughter after all, and that she was not even adopted. Instead, she is the daughter of a man named John Neuman, who told her that she was his daughter.

Chapter 18 NEW PLAN

ANNE looked at the man standing before her and surprised something in his eyes she had never seen in Rob's during the weeks of her bereavement, a tender compassion without pity.

"I'd like to tell him," she agreed, wondering at the sudden trust she was placing in this stranger.

"Always, we tell John," Tecla declared.

Anne remembered Tom Farley's ridicule of the fishermen's trust in John Neuman. She realized now that it was not because he was a college man and spoke both the language of the fisherman and of the cannery owner, but because there was a sympathetic wisdom about him which invited confidence and trust.

"You need food, first," interposed Tecla, and ladled the fish stew into heavy crockery bowls, cut thick slices of home made bread, disappeared into a dark closet to return with a jar of huckle-berry jam.

Anne surveyed her bowl with apprehension, as she sat down at the table in response to Tecla's order. She dipped a spoon into the savory mess, toyed with cubes of red salmon, onions and potatoes which floated about in the creamy liquid, then tasted it.

"Why... it's good," she exclaimed with such surprise that both Tecla and Anne laughed aloud.

"You think Tecla, give you something not good?"

Heartened by the food, Anne turned to the fresh ordeal of retelling her story. But somehow, with the attentive John as listener, her troubles seemed of less and less importance.

"And so," she concluded, "now that I know that I'm neither the daughter nor the heir of Luke Farnsworth, I want to hide away until I can decide what I'll do with my future."

"And this man, this Rob Crocker, what will he think of your running away?"

"Mr. Crocker understands," Anne said tonelessly, "he... that is, we are not going to be married."

"But... Newman was interrupted by Tecla, who spat out a word.

Weeks later, Anne was to find that phrase in the little English-Finnish dictionary she was studying, but by then some of the heartache had been numbed by time and she knew Tecla had been right when she classified Robert Crocker as a "gold-digger."

"But of course Farley and the Farnsworths are going to want to know where you are," observed Neuman, after a pause. "They'll probably start a search for you if you don't tell them something."

"I hope not," Anne said, "and I don't believe they will. They're going to be so glad to be rid of me with out my demanding any more of their worldly goods that they'll leave me alone."

"I DON'T agree with you," he countered, frankly. "I believe they are going to want to know where you are so they can watch you. You don't know the entire contents of the will of course they believe they can cut you off from a daughter's share, providing you haven't been adopted as a daughter."

"What do you mean?" queried Tecla with interest.

"When people adopt a child, they go before a judge, and papers are drawn up."

"You see, Tecla," Anne explained further, "Tom Farley says there are no papers and none can be found, so it can't be proved that I'm legally adopted. Of course that won't matter for five years, and within that time I may be able to learn something more about my parents."

"So," murmured Tecla.

"Not that I care for the money," Anne hastened to say, "and if I have to fight for it, I don't want any of it. Now all I want to do is rest and get about everything that's been needed. But if you think they'll trouble me here I'd better go away."

"No," Neuman answered, too hotly.

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

"I don't want to go away," Anne said, "I want to stay here."

riedly, "No, you're going to be safer here than almost anywhere else. Tecla you had a brother south, or east or somewhere, didn't you?"

"Yes," answered Tecla, "he is far away, why?"

"Couldn't you intimate that Anne, here, was his daughter? Our people would probably know it wasn't true, but should anyone ask questions, they'd identify Anne that way."

"We're clanish people," he explained, apologetically, "but if you'll study our history you'll understand. From earliest times we were so surrounded by enemies we learned to trust only our own people and to build up fortifications of silence against outsiders. They'll protect you with these."

"Now the Lee Farnsworths, I understand, have moved to Portland and I imagine the Tom Farleys will spend their time there, also. Do you know many Astoria people?"

"No, I've scarcely been here since I was a child."

"Then we have only your car to consider. Of course they could trace that. The woman at the service station had an inkling of who you were when you got here. She'd gladly tell everything with elaborations. He thought a moment."

"How does this sound? You say you were born in Crescent City. Wouldn't it be the natural thing for you to go there in an effort to trace your parents? Then suppose I drive your car down there right away, to night, or rather this morning, as it's past midnight now. I have a friend in the garage business there. He can either leave it in his garage, or drive it back to Portland over the inland route."

"In this way, if the car has been traced they will believe you drove along the coast road to Crescent City, and disappeared from there."

ANNE didn't need words to express her belief in the plan. She leaned back in her chair, suddenly tired. This man who had saved her from the river by his quick thinking, would handle this new dilemma with equal skill. She need worry about nothing for a time.

"Better you go to bed," observed the watchful Tecla, and hurried away to prepare her room.

"I don't know how I'll ever thank you," Anne ventured, as she accompanied John to the door, "and I do so need to be free of those people."

"You can thank me by not worrying while I'm away," cautioned John. Then he smiled, caught her hand in a firm clasp, and hurried down the stairs.

Anne stood at the door a moment, looking down on Union Town, scattered lights blinking in the darkness. A far away clock chimed the hour of two. At two o'clock last night she had been lying in her bed, reading to fill the empty hours.

But she had not been altogether unhappy. Rob and security lay ahead. Now she had nothing, and despite Tecla, she was nobody, just Nikki. But Tecla had said she was never to say that again, and surely with John Neuman willing to spend the night driving south for her she wasn't without friends.

Without friends? She turned as Tecla came into the room, a hot water bottle in her hand. She filled this at the stove then motioned Anne to follow.

Wearily Anne obeyed, climbing steep wooden stairs, turning down a hallway and into a cubicle-like room where Milna, smiling sleepily, was spreading the bed with fresh linen.

Anne couldn't help noticing the linen, hand woven, the edges of the pillow case and sheet fringed with hand made lace, inches wide.

As soon as she had slipped into her night robe, she found Tecla waiting, hot water bottle disguised in a knitted wool bag. This was arranged and rearranged until the nurse was satisfied.

She turned off the light, dropped the lone window of the room, sitting in a gust of rain-washed air, then with a pat on Anne's shoulder and a "sleep well," she slipped out as though her charge had already obeyed her command.

"Sleep well," echoed Anne, to her self. As if she could ever again sleep at all. Bits of sentences spoken that day lay over her like the previous days' upon her own consciousness. The loyalty and love of the servants, the tremor of Charlotte and poor, troubled Lee, who had died his wife, probably for the first time in his life, to safely convey Anne out of her home.

Rob! For she must not think of him. Gaily, now could she help it? He had been shocked by what she had told him.

SALTY: A political hurricane now gathering over Florida may send some administration officials running to shelter. Republicans may welcome it as a friendly breeze.

The row has broken out over construction of the ship canal across the northern section of the state. Northern business and shipping interests have clamored for it as eliminating the long route to the gulf by way of Key West. They got nowhere in past years because of adverse reports by army engineers and geologists. But a handsome allotment of federal money for the scheme was Senator Duncan Fletcher's reward for backing up White House banking bills on Capitol Hill. Engineers and scientists were overruled.

Now fruit growers in the vicinity are organizing in protest. They charge the canal will let salt water saturate underground springs and wells which irrigate their orchards. They insist the state's fruit industry will be destroyed. Pending an impartial geological study, they demand that construction be stopped. But Senator Fletcher refers to geologists as "those bureaucrats at Washington" and the salty work goes ahead.

BATTLE: Although Publicist Mitchell laughs off the "infatigability" of lawyers aligned against the administration, they are giving an exhibition of fast and fancy footwork. Here's how they operate: Recently Mr. Ickes offered to loan and grant funds to the town of Hominy, Okla. for a public power plant. But an anti-New Deal law firm bobbed up from nowhere to oppose the grant pending a final decision in the Supreme Court. Succeeding in this step, the legalists apparently canvassed the countryside for clients. Now they have piled up about twenty similar cases. In some instances, it is understood, the private utilities would not have contested such grants unless urged into it. Thus Hominy may become a hostile battleground between "lawyers" and "liberals."

Dean Acheson, who quit the Treasury in protest against Roosevelt monetary policies, is a member of the law firm. The courtroom was crowded with "minute men" from the American Liberty League and the Edison Electric Institute. And most of them were Democrats.

CHOICE: J. M. Farley had a ray political report waiting for President Roosevelt when they held the first 100-day conference after "the boss" returned. The fish Jim said he will catch next November would make a bigger haul than the President got in southern waters.

Chairman Jim told the President he did not abandoned hope of winning some New England states. The chairman went elaborately public out those who know whisper that his hopes don't extend beyond Rhode Island and Connecticut. It was, he said, the others to the GO, but Jim never counted on anything. He also told the President believe it or not—that a victory in Pennsylvania was not an impossibility.

The two did not discuss Jim's resignation as Postmaster General. Insiders say there will be no decision for some time. This is good politics. Mr. Roosevelt wants to know whether he should name a solid business man to the job for window dressing or a smart politician—a Frank Walker or a Dan Reper. The longer he waits the better answer he'll have to that question. And there's no hurry.

WAIT: There's a private argument going on inside the Securities Exchange Commission—not serious—but pointed enough to show that the Commission hasn't yet solved the problem of how best to control the securities markets to its own satisfaction. Opinion differs principally in how rigorously the law should be enforced.

What might be called the "liberal" faction fears a severe public kickback against the Commission when the expected inflationary stock market hits an eventual recession. Their idea of forestalling this is to be very aggressive now—to "make an example" of some big operator in order to prove to the public that they are on the job. They figure it wouldn't be difficult to dig up a transgressor against securities on special—Wall Street—agrees with them on that. Some liberals would also like to have a Commission representative named to sit in the councils of the new Federal Reserve Board—thus giving it a voice in determining general credit policy—but this ambition is unlikely to be realized.

The "conservative" viewpoint is that now is no time to start bearing down with recovery under way. They aren't worried about eventual criticism because they figure that's inevitable no matter what they do. They prefer a policy of watchful waiting with prosecution only of blatant frauds. Chairman J. M. Landis can be rated conservative in this sense. A recent incident shows that this group is in the saddle. The Commission made a thorough inquiry into the market handling of a certain stock. Evidence was found of "doubtful" practices—although it would have been hard to prove definite violation of the law. After some debate it was decided not to attempt disciplinary action at present—but to wait until the transgression was more specific. A factor in this decision was the desire "not to hurt" the rising market.

RECORD: Many business leaders have declined Major George L. Berry's invitation to conferences on industrial cooperation next month and many others have ignored it entirely. The motor industry—for one—probably won't be represented at all.

But now conservatives are beginning to wonder whether they weren't a little hasty in refusing to participate. If none of them attend the jury will be packed in favor of some anti-trust or NIRA. This world logically facilitates adoption of a new plan which would have dissension on the defensive if they had failed to resist their dissent while the debate was on.

Several tax assessments are trying to get members opposed to renewal of regimentation in any form to go to the meetings to that the opposition will at least be on record.

CONTROL: The new Federal Reserve Board won't be any Supreme Court of Finance as some of those who backed the new law hoped. Its powers have been broadened, but there are still important factors beyond its authority—notably the U. S. Treasury with its control of gold and silver and a two billion dollar stabilization fund. It isn't likely that the Board and the Treasury will cross wires—but if they should the Board would come off second best. For that matter, Congress could pass legislation nullifying the Board's policies any time it felt so inclined.

'Cheat-Wheat' From Gobi May Re-Stock U. S. 'DUST BOWL'

Peiping—(AP)—A hardy little cousin of the wheat-grass family which has been braving the winds of the Gobi desert for thousands of years may be the means of restoring the "dust bowl" of the American middlewest to productivity.

Dr. Nicholas Roerich, head of an expedition sent by the United States Department of Agriculture to scour Inner Mongolia for drought-resisting plants, says he places more reliance on this little forage plant than on any of the other 900 varieties found by his expedition.

This grass, which looks like timothy, goes commonly by the name "cheat-wheat," but it also bears a formidable scientific title—"agropyron pseudogropyron."

It thrives in sandy and gravelly soil and stands up under bitter extremes of temperature. The expedition found it growing lustily in desert wastes where few other forms of life exist.

It ranges in height from eight to eighteen inches and its roots are extraordinarily long. Cattle grow fat on it.

Dr. Roerich says that the Gobi variety of cheat-wheat resembles other members of the same family which are found in the United States and Europe but that it is much harder than its foreign cousins.

Other specimens of forage plants obtained by the Roerich expedition include a type of millet, several varieties of poa grass, wild barley, citra and stipa. The latter, which grows in abundance in Mongolia, bear a close resemblance to Kentucky blue grass, but are superior to the American grass in drought-resisting qualities, Dr. Roerich says.

But the American waste-lands cannot be reclaimed by the transplanting of grasses alone, the plant explorer points out. Other plants essential to the establishment of a "home-like" environment must also be moved. Accordingly, the expedition has brought out of Mongolia numerous shrubs, weeds, legumes, "soil-binders" and samples of soil.

HUNGRY CHILDREN GET WINE IN HUNGARIAN CAVE

Mezőkövesd, Hungary — (AP)—Modern cave dwellers, forced out of their homes by poverty, can be found near the villages of Ostoros, Kistallya, Noszvaj and Tiboldaroc, not far from here, where more than 4,000 persons are living in caves.

Economic depression severely hitting this wine growing district is held responsible. The lack of a wine market forces the cave dwellers to drink wine as a substitute for food, as most of these people are employed in vineyards and receive the greater part of their wages in wine.

The newspaper "Magyarasag" printed a report from the Mezőkövesd district physician saying that the children of Tiboldaroc have wine for breakfast, as their parents are too poor to buy other food.

DARES DEATH TWICE DAILY

If ever you have wondered how a man has the nerve to step into a cage, completely filled with a score of the most treacherous and ferocious, man-eating beasts that breathe—your chance to see it is coming.

For Clyde Beatty, the greatest and most fearless wild animal trainer ever known, will arrive in person, with his newly recruited vanguard of jungle beasts, with the Great Cole Bros.-Clyde Beatty Circus, for performances at 8 and 8 p. m. in Kinston, Monday, October 28, Washington, Oct. 29 and New Bern, Oct. 30.

His act, conceded the most breathtaking and thrilling ever offered the public, will be enacted before your eyes.

Armed only with a whip and a chair as a protection against the snarling creatures, he will put the tigers through their paces in the great circular, all-steel arena, under the big-top at each performance. Clyde Beatty will demonstrate his uncanny power over the "big cats" as he fearlessly dissuades the snarling, clawing beasts into submission, and perform at his command.

The famous Clyde Beatty is but one of over 200 acts, displays and novelty numbers to be seen with the famous Cole Bros. circus this season, which recently concluded a five-year tour of Europe.

No Replies Being Made To McDonald's Charges

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILLE
Raleigh, Oct. 25.—Unless one starts making some reply to the various statements being made by Dr. Ralph W. McDonald in his candidacy for Governor, especially those in which he claims that the bloated bondholders and big bankers were the only ones that profited from a balanced budget and to the extent of about $100,000,000, he is going to be almost impossible to stop, in the opinion of many observers.

The effort McDonald has been making to picture the state government, and especially the present administration, as being conducted by, and for the big bankers and bondholders with the poor people of the state ground down by the sales tax so the bloated plutocrats in the money markets may get their pounds of gold, is creating a deep impression in the minds of his hearers and one which is going to be difficult to erase.

For many of those who go to hear McDonald are of the type who have always believed the state government was gyping them—anyway, and that it was run by a bunch of plutocrats for the benefit of the rich. So when the erstwhile Winston-Salem college professor from Illinois tells them that the only thing the balancing of the budget has done has been to enrich some damyanke bondholders and bankers by $100,000,000, it rolls through their ears like honey over a bear's tongue.

It is just what they have been wanting to hear for years. And now that a candidate for Governor is at last putting it into words and setting it to music, it makes ripples of pleasure run up and down their spines. For most of them do not know enough about governmental finance, state bonds, budgets and the bond market to know that the claims by the astute pedagogue-politician are entirely fallacious and that his estimate that the state's bondholders were enriched by $100,000,000 when the general assembly balanced the state's budget, are based on an entirely fallacious line of reasoning.

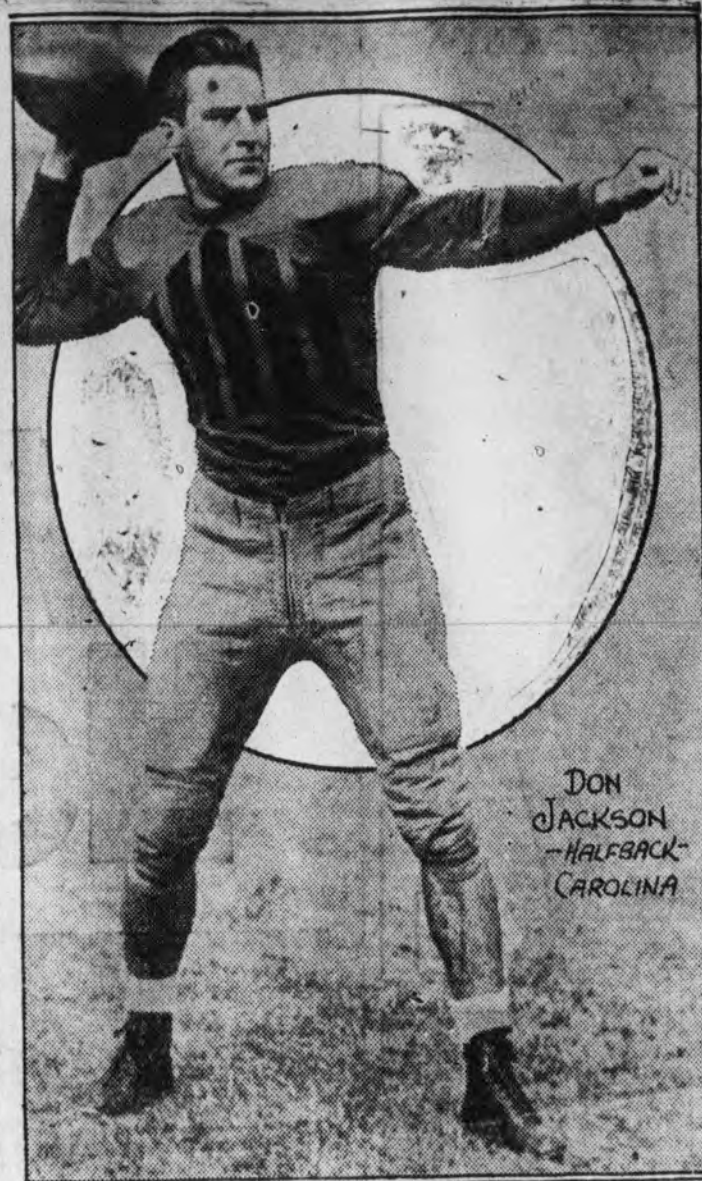

In connection with his claim that the state's bondholders have been enriched by the balancing of the state budget to the amount of $100,000,000, McDonald is also flaying the general assembly and especially Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus, for not refunding these bonds at a lower rate of interest and while they were below par. This is also music to the ears of the anti-sales taxers and the anti-Ehringhausers, of whom there are admittedly many.

The trouble with the McDonald formula is that the bankers and bondholders—and more than $70,000,000 worth of these bonds are owned by people right here in North Carolina—is that these bondholders have not made any profit, but at one time were faced with having to take a loss of about $70,000,000 on these bonds, when they dropped from par down to about 70 in the dark, dreary depression days of 1933 before the general assembly balanced the budget and started them back up towards par. No one here has yet been able to figure out how McDonald has arrived at the figure of $100,000,000, although it is generally surmised that this sum represents his estimate of what the state could have saved if it could have refunded its bonds when they were down to 70 and thereby have compelled the bondholders to take a loss of about $70,000,000, or the difference between what the bonds were selling for in 1933 and what they are selling for now. Some state bonds are now selling as high as $1.10, thus making a difference of 40 cents on the dollar between bonds selling at $1.10 in 1933 and at $1.10 in 1935. He may figure that an addition $30,000,000 could have been saved by reducing the interest rate.

But one thing he does not explain to his hearers, it seems, is that none of the state bonds are callable, and hence could not have been refunded. Nor does he explain that if the state had defaulted, the state would not only have destroyed its own credit, but he credit of the most of the banks in the state which did not close in 1933 and of many individuals who had almost everything they had left invested in North Carolina bonds. In that event the majority of the businesses and industries in the state would have gone bankrupt along with the banks and individuals, and the state would not have been able to borrow a penny. It could not have borrowed the $15,000,000 it had already borrowed on short term notes at 6 per cent to keep the schools open and pay the teachers through 1933, which has since been funded by bonds at an interest rate of only 1.75 per cent instead of 6 per cent. The state could not have refunded these bonds, of course, since it would have had no credit and could not have sold any bonds at any price or any rate of interest. It would not only have stigmatized itself, but every other southern state and every state in the United States. This failure to balance the state budget in 1933 would have been equivalent to complete repudiation of its debts and bonds and would have forced its bondholders to take a loss of from $175,000,000 to $200,000,000. It would have been the same as stealing this amount of money from those who had had faith enough in the state to buy its bonds.

But so far no one is pointing out any of these things, except a few newspaper men who know the facts. Governor Ehringhaus could point them out in a public statement to the newspapers, but has not yet seen fit to do so, although the newspaper correspondents have given him ample opportunity to. But some way or other, the Governor does not seem to have much faith in the newspaper men these days, and continues to hold his peace. Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham could point all these facts out, if he desired, for he served as presiding officer of the State Senate through both the 1933 and 1935 sessions of the general assembly. But he is likewise preserving a most resonant silence, despite the fact that he is a candidate for the nomination for Governor. Or Clyde R. Hoey, another candidate for the nomination which McDonald is also seeking, could point out the fallacies of the pedagogue's reasoning, but so far has not even uttered a squeak. All of which may or may not be the result of an apparent decision by those opposed to McDonald to squelch him with silence and not to reply to any of his campaign talk.

Don Jackson is the man for the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech to watch Saturday when they invade Chapel Hill, home of the North Carolina "Flying Tar Heels." This halfback is the spearhead of the Carolina attack—at running, at passing, at punting and at defense. He is one of the leading prospects for All-American honors. His sparkling play against Tennessee and Maryland gained the highest praise.

But a good many here are becoming convinced that unless the opposition to McDonald becomes more militant and abandons its campaign of silence that he is likely to get so well entrenched that it will be impossible to dislodge him later. Some observers are already convinced that the former college professor has made so much progress and won such a large following that he can't be stopped now, anyway. Almost every one agrees that he has the opposition badly scared.

Ga. Tech Team Arrives At Hill To Meet Carolina

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 25.—The "Rambling Wreck" of Georgia Tech roared into town this morning for the important game with the North Carolina Tar Heels here tomorrow afternoon. The Homecoming Day feature, which starts at 2 o'clock, is expected to attract around 20,000.

This afternoon the Yellow Jackets will work out here and tonight will stay in Durham. Thirty-two strong, led by Coach Bill Alexander and Captain Bob Eubanks, the Jackets appeared ready to go in their attempt to chalk up their second upset in as many weeks.

The Tar Heels will take light drills early this afternoon. Hard work, and plenty of it, has constituted this week's practice for the important inter-conference game. The passing—both offensively and defensively—has received special attention.

Carolina's lineup will remain the same that started the Maryland game two weeks ago. The only possible change is Sophomore Henry Bartos at tackle in the place of John Trimpey, who may be hampered with injuries. Jim Hutchins will be back at his fullback post which Soph Art Ditt held against Davidson much of the time last week.

Tech's offense centers on the flaming sophomore, the entire first string backfield being made up of these variety yearlings. Plenty of all-around ability and lots of fight are possessed by the quartet of Fletcher Sims, Dutch Koneman, Scrappy Edwards, and Harry Appleby.

'ANSCHLUSS' RULES FOR GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS

Vienna.—(AP)—Tension along the Austro-German border continues to worry statesmen, and Vienna newspapers still print stories about the aggressive plans of the "Austrian Legion" of Nazi fugitives from here who found refuge in Germany.

But in faraway lands the interests of Austrian citizens frequently are looked after by German consulates and legations.

If any Austrian citizen should get into trouble in Ethiopia, for instance, he would go for advice to the German legation in Addis Ababa. For the German legation represents Austrian interests there.

In Manchukuo, too, according to the official Austrian Yearbook just published, the Vienna government has conferred the protection of Austrian citizens to the German consulates in Harbin and Mukden.

Likewise, in the Straits Settlements and in British Borneo the Austrian citizen looks to the German consulate general in Singapore for protection. If he finds himself embarrassed in Nicaragua there are four German consulates to which he can appeal: at Managua, Bluefields, Leonard Matagalpa.

In Siam, the German legation in Bangkok is entrusted with the protection of Austrian citizens, and in Venezuela it is the German consulates at Caracas, Ciudad Bolivar, La Guayra, Puerto Cabello and Valencia.

Take First Steps Theatre Project

Chapel Hill, Oct. 24.—Announcing the first step in planning the Federal Theatre Project for Virginia, North and South Carolina, Prof. Frederick H. Koch, Regional Director of these states, said today that a survey is to be conducted to ascertain unemployed actors.

All unemployed persons who have been connected with the theatre in any way—stage hands, scenery painters, circus performers, electricians, and vaudeville actors—will be included in the survey, he said.

Miss Mary Dimberger, State Supervisor of Dramatic Activities for the Youth Administration and the Adult Education Division, has been named to the Federal Theatre Project to conduct the survey.

Wolfpack Eleven Reaches New York For Game Saturd'y

By FRED DIXON
New York, Oct. 25.—Thirty-four members of State College's Wolfpack arrived in the Big City this morning at 9:05 and this afternoon took tusses out to Ebbets Field in Brooklyn where they were sent through a short, but much needed workout.

On this field tomorrow afternoon, the Techs will meet Chick Mehan's green jerseyed Manhattan Jaspers. It is the first time a North Carolina eleven has ever been scheduled for a football game in this place and fans around here are very much interested in what the "Tar Heels" can do.

Football fans up here seem to know a great deal about North Carolina football. They know that Duke University has its home in North Carolina, and that the University of North Carolina also resides there. And they are very much aware of the fact that N. C. State hails from down South.

The Techs didn't see much scenery on the way up as they left Raleigh at night and when they opened their eyes this morning they were in New York and could hardly see the sky for the tall buildings. Herb Kirschner, Louie Marks and several other of the New York boys on the squad, felt right at home and pointed out various spots of interest to the others.

Coach Hunk Anderson also knew his way about the city as he brought three Notre Dame teams here in 1931, 1932 and 1933 for games with Army. And folks here know Hunk too. Especially the sports writers. There were quite a number at the train this morning to talk to him when he got off.

Wolf's closest personal and political friends

The falling off in revenue was particularly good news to the Republicans because of Mr. Roosevelt's revised budget estimate that federal receipts this fiscal year would exceed those of last year by $690,000,000, or more than $56,000,000 a month. Actually, revenue thus far is $1,171,496 less.

Supreme Court Action Vital

The decrease is explained as due to the fact processors are refusing to pay AAA taxes until the supreme court passes on their constitutionality. Should the court uphold AAA processing taxes, the treasury would more than recoup its losses.

On the other hand, if the court invalidates these taxes the treasury not only would lose these taxes due, but also might be compelled to reimburse those processors who already have made permanent, thus making further dents in the total revenue.

Political insiders in Washington profess to see a growing feeling among the more cautious Democrats that their financial program is too vulnerable for safety in 1936 and that the coming session of congress will be asked to take definite steps in drafting the budget for the next fiscal year to scale down expenditures and more hopefully estimate revenues.

Douglas' Attack Severe

Douglas' attack on the administration's spending program was nothing new. The youthful former member of the house and treasurer of the budget long has been outspoken in his demands for a balanced budget.

The importance of Douglas' attack as viewed by politicians lies in the fact that it was more severe than any yet made by the most partisan Republicans.

Incidentally, supporters of Governor Alfred M. London of Kansas for the Republican nomination in 36 didn't have wished for more than the emphasis now being placed on "economy" as the key issue in the coming campaign. Governor London owes his place in the national limelight he now enjoys almost solely to the fact that he has kept his state's budget balanced.

SPEEDY RICKSHAS

PEIPING'S PERIL
Peiping (AP)—Ricksha pullers must run slower, states an order of the Peiping bureau of public safety.

Congestion of rickshas on the streets has become so serious that the order was deemed necessary to reduce the number of collisions.

Passengers must not force pullers to run faster, and the rickshas men themselves are warned not to allow the promises of a little extra pay to get them up beyond the "speed limit," which is described as a "humane pace."

Experiments Show Successful Results In Freezing Fish

Six Thousand Pounds of Spots Frozen and Stored in Huge Compartment at Low Cost

Morehead City, N. C., Oct. 25.—Initial experiments in freezing fish at the North Carolina Fisheries, Incorporated, plant at Morehead City were highly successful this week when six thousand pounds of spots were frozen and stored in the huge cold storage compartment of the plant. The experiment was conducted under the supervision and inspection of Dr. R. H. Pledier, chief of the division of Fishery Industries of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries. Norman D. Jarvis, assistant technologist of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, and J. W. Salter, Federal marketing expert.

What is believed to be a record in costs was established when the six thousand pounds of fish were frozen at less than a tenth of a cent per pound. However, no commercial significance was attached to the experiment as the fish were frozen for the purpose of testing the newly installed equipment.

Federal officials collaborating with North Carolina Fisheries, Inc. in the tests stated that no better results both from the standpoint of economy and efficiency could have been expected.

Up to the present time there has been no necessity to resort to freezing as a means of saving fish. Markets have been brisk both within and out of the state with the result that the entire production of North Carolina seafoods has been absorbed in a fresh state.

Officials of the North Carolina Fisheries, Inc. however, are expecting the huge freezing units to

New York Cotton

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady here today for October and were lower for November and December. The market was quiet with last month's contracts in October and Southern selling of late months.

There was a fair business at the opening, October sold up to 11.03 or 14 1/2 points net higher on covering. Selling against notices issued representing about 1,000 bales supplied the initial demand and the price eased to 11.01. Later deliveries were influenced by a favorable view of the overnight news and there was considerable southern hedging, with active months about two to four points net lower at the end of the first hour.

Late months at midday were ruling net unchanged to two points higher.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Oct. 25.—Bulls on the stock specialties brooked no opposition in today's market and prices of selective issues surged forward to new high levels for the past four years or so.

It was a pick and choose session, however, and many of the rail utilities and other past leaders were not content to hold their heads above water. Motor and merchandising stock retained renewed popularity.

A strong but selective demand kept the market on a firm foundation during the late trading.

Sales approximated 2,300,000 shares.

BLACK-DRAUGHT Relieves One Cause of Distress After Meals

When constipation interferes with the normal working of the digestive system, warning symptoms, such as flatulence or distress after eating, may appear.

Many people, afflicted as described below, take a pinch of Black-Draught after meals. Mr. C. D. McIver, of Panama City, Fla., writes: "I suffered with gas pains. Everything I ate seemed to hurt me. I lost weight from 149 to 114 pounds. Someone told me to try Black-Draught. After taking small doses awhile, I found I was better. I kept it up and began gaining weight until I was back to normal. I would not be without Black-Draught."

Many others would not like to be without Black-Draught after having learned from their own use of it how helpful it is in the relief of constipation troubles. Sold in 25-cent packages.—(Adv.)

YOUR FUTURE and Sound Investments

The "well fixed" people of today are the sound investors of yesterday—

Today is the yesterday of your future—and today is your time to seek out a sound plan of saving or investment.

For more than a hundred years Building & Loan's record of earning and record of safety have placed it foremost among sound investments. This Association has a plan suitable to the requirements of the large or small investor—come in and let's talk it over.
