ETHIOPIANS MAKE GAINS IN WAR ZONE

Meanwhile Mussolini
Scores Diplomatic
Victories

SANCTIONS MEET
IS POSTPONED

Semi-Official Dispatches Relate Ethiopians Have Retaken
Town of Gorrahei

By The Associated Press
Premier Mussolini scored a diplomatic victory in his campaign against sanctions today but the Ethiopian government claimed he had lost military engagements in the African northern front.

The League of Nations announced the meeting of the sanctions committee of 18 scheduled for Friday to consider an oil embargo against Italy would be postponed to an undetermined date.

Two victories of the Ethiopian General Dedjazmach Wores within three days were announced by the government at Addis Ababa which asserted the tide of battle was now definitely turning in favor of Ethiopia.

From the Southern front came semi-official dispatches saying the Ethiopians had retaken the town of Gorrahei inflicting heavy losses on the Fascists who had conquered the town early in the campaign.

British observers saw the postponement of the oil sanction discussion at Geneva as placing the United States in leadership on the embargo. The American Secretary of Interior Harold Ickes, had urged American oil exporters not to send their product to Italy while some pressure has been put on oil shippers indebted to the government.

Don't Forget Help Local Boy Scouts In Magazine Drive

Urgent Plea Made to Housewives to Place Old Publications on Front Porch Tuesday Morning

A final plea was issued today to the citizens of Greenville not to forget to place old magazines on their front porch Tuesday morning for Boy Scouts to gather up and distribute to various institutions and individual shut-ins.

Officials of the movement pointed out that the plan provided a means for the housewives of the city to get rid of the old periodicals and at the same time be assured they will go to some worthy person who will appreciate them.

The Boy Scouts will make a canvass of the city Tuesday afternoon and gather the magazines. They will be assembled, assorted and distributed to the various institutions in the county and a large number will go to individuals who will receive much pleasure from the discarded publications. The distribution will be made in cooperation with the Welfare office.

The housewives are asked to place the magazines on their front porch by the door anytime before noon Tuesday. The Scouts will make a complete canvass of the city and gather them for distribution as their Thanksgiving Good Turn.

Tobacco Control Sign-Up About Complete In County

Six of 13 Townships
Have Signed Up
100 Per Cent

ONLY ONE OUT
IN GREENVILLE

Out of 2,785 Tobacco Growers in Pitt Only 10 Have Not Signed Contract

The tobacco control sign-up in Pitt county is less than one-half of one per cent from being complete.
E. F. Arnold, Pitt county farm agent, announced today.

Six of the 13 townships have signed up 100 per cent, he said, and growers in others where the sign-up is nearly complete have indicated in a number of cases they would sign in the near future.

Townships in which the sign-up has been completed 100 per cent are Farmville, Falkland, Carolina, Beaver Dam, Ayden and Chicod.

In Belvoir township, J. B. Bullock signed recently, leaving only the Joint Stock Land bank, The Metropolitan Life Insurance company and Mrs. Rebecca H. Tyson to agree to the contract. Mr. Arnold said the land bank and life insurance company had indicated they would sign the contracts later.

Only one grower remains in Greenville township to apply his signature to the agreement. He is J. I. Allen.

Mrs. J. Marshall Cox, W. Claude
Smith and Luther F. Smith signed recently in Chicod, making the sign-up complete in that township.

The signatures of I. W. Elks and H. C. Clemmons have not been secured in Pacolus.

D. J. Branch of Winterville township has not signed the agreement to date, and D. S. Harper of the Bethel township remains on the outside.

In Fountain township, also, only one grower has not agreed to the agreement. He is Lester E. Barrett.

There are a total of 2,785 tobacco growers in the county, and of this number only 10, or less than one-half of one per cent, have not signed the contracts.

facing Judge Dick James, no court having been held last week.

week due to a term of Superior late, however, to make arrangements for the County term.

Reckless Driving In Various Forms Cause Most Wrecks

Review Shows That Four Forms of Reckless and Careless Driving
Take Biggest Toll on Highways

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Nov. 25.—Reckless and careless driving in its various forms are responsible for more fatal automobile accidents than anything else, according to the automobile accident figures for October just made public by Director R. R. Mc-Laughlin of the motor vehicle bureau of the Department of Revenue.

In addition to showing that 131 persons were killed and 754 injured in 620 accidents in North Carolina in October, the figures compiled from reports of accidents show that a majority of both the fatal and non-fatal accidents were caused by only four forms of reckless driving.

In all, there were 116 fatal accidents and 504 non-fatal crashes.
Of these, 72 and 287 non-fatal accidents all came under the general head of reckless driving and carelessness as follows:

Excessive speed, 33 fatal, 69 non-fatal.

Reckless driving, 21 fatal, 115 non-fatal.

Drunken driving, 10 fatal, 68 non-fatal.

Hit-and-run driving, 8 fatal, 35 non-fatal.

These figures show, according to McLaughlin, that the speeders and reckless drivers cause a much larger number of both fatal and non-fatal accidents than do the drunken drivers, although there are far too many of them. He also pointed out that the hit-and-run drivers caused almost as many fatal and non-fatal accidents in October as did the drunken drivers. If the truth were actually known, most of the hit-and-run drivers would probably be drunken drivers also,
McLaughlin believes.

Pedestrians also suffered heavily in October, with 30 of the 131 killed and 69 of the 754 injured being pedestrians, the figures show. Ten children were killed and 25 injured while playing in or along streets or roadways, while eight were killed and 20 injured while walking on highways.

For out of the 148 drivers involved
in fatal automobile accidents in October, only five were women, the other 143 being men, the figures
compiled from accident reports show, while a majority of the 504 drivers involved in non-fatal accident were also men.

COURT GRANTS AN INJUNCTION

Temporary Order
Granted by U. S.
Supreme Court

Washington, Nov. 25.—(AP)—A ruling on the right of citizens to obtain injunctions against processing taxes—the main crop of the administration farm relief activities—was promised today by the supreme court.

It also granted a request of eight Louisiana rice millers for a temporary injunction against the levies until it could pass on the merits of the controversy.

The court agreed to pass on the action of the federal district court at New Orleans in dismissing the suit by the millers against the AAA.

He had asked the high tribunal for a ruling without waiting for the court of appeals to act.

Replying to their suit the government contended they should "pay first and litigate later."

The cases were set for argument on December 16 the injunction was granted upon condition that the amount of assailed taxes, as they occurred from month to month, shall be paid over to a depository to be appointed by the court.

Justices Brandies, Stone and Cardozo dissented from the action granting the injunction.

Women Drivers Best Wreck Figures Show

Reflector Bureau,

Raleigh, Nov. 25.—The female of the species may be more deadly than the male, but not when they get behind automobile steering wheels, it was pointed out today by Arthur Pulk, director of the Division of Highway Safety of the State Department of Revenue.

For out of the 148 drivers involved
in fatal automobile accidents in October, only five were women, the
other 143 being men, the figures
compiled from accident reports

Potato Control Sign-Up To Begin In Pitt County

Pasquotank Youth
Called For Trial
On Murder Charge

Walter Edwards White, Faces Trial
in Norfolk County Circuit Court in Portsmouth, Virginia

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 25.—(AP)— Walter Edward White, 17-year-old Pasquotank county high school student was called into Norfolk county circuit court today to answer an indictment charging him with the murder of John Tashjian, Elizabeth City, N. C., watchmaker whose body was found besides his abandoned automobile last August.

At the time of his arrest young White told investigating officers he accidentally shot Tashjian in a struggle which followed repulsive proposals of the watchmaker, accompanied he said, by threatening gestures with a pistol.

In the struggle, police quoted the youth as saying, the gun fired.
Tashjian a bullet wound in the back of his head, was found beside his automobile on the lonely long ridge road in Norfolk county early on the morning of August 18.

White was arrested on Labor Day after an intensive investigation and was indicted for murder at the November term of court.

When the sign-up is started committees will be located in the potato-growing areas in the county. He intimated they would be located at Bethel, Pacolus, Grimesland, Gritton and possibly other vicinities.

The applications for allotments require the grower to give the potato history of the farm, description of the land and other information. Allotments will be based on the acreage for the past four years.

When the sign-up is completed, the applications will be taken in consideration. If the application for the county as a whole are considered too high, a reduction for the county will be ordered and each grower will have to take his proportionate reduction in allotment.

In 1934, the latest available figures, the county had 2,007 acres planted in potatoes for commercial use. Those grown for strictly home consumption are not included in the figures. It is estimated by the Farm Agent's office that the average for the county is 135 bushels to the acre.

Mrs. Allen is survived by her husband, one son, James Marshall Allen; two brothers, Mr. Roberts, and Eugene Roberts of Raleigh, and two sisters, Mrs. L. T. Davis of Wilmington and Louise Leathers of Washington, D. C.

Past Week-End Quiet For Sheriff's Office

The Sheriff's office today reported that the past week-end was one in which, so far as they were able to determine, the people of the county observed the laws.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst said the only arrests made by his office during the period were a few drunks.
He said no arrests were made for other violations of the prohibition laws.

Highway Patrolmen Report No Accidents

The Eastern Division of the State Highway Patrol today reported one of the quietest week-ends in months.

The headquarters, located here did not have a single report of an accident during the period, and explained this was an unusual situation.

Corp. L. L. Jackson added that the traffic during the week-end was unusually heavy, making it even more significant that no serious accidents occurred.

ARMY GROUP HOLDS NATAL

Group Said To Be Composed Of Communists

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 25.—(AP)—
President Getulio Vargas asked the Brazil Congress to Declare a two months' state of siege throughout the nation today as alleged communists battled for power in northeast Brazil.

Dispatches to authorities today said the city of Macahyba in the state of Rio Grande do Norte had been seized by revolting soldiers. The dispatch said the revolt, communist directed, has been accompanied by bloodshed.

Fighting was reported to be going on today in Olinda, a suburb of Recife, the capital of the state of Pernambuco.

Olinda was captured yesterday by a number of soldiers under command of their sergeant.

Capt. Walmarino Reis, the secretary of security for the state, got a group of local commissioned officers together and recaptured part of Olinda.

Rio De Janeiro, Nov. 25.—(AP)—
An army group which officials said was composed of communists, held Natal in its power today defying the Brazilian national government.

President Getulio Vargas called his cabinet to an emergency meeting to consider the situation in the great northern area affected by the Natal outbreak.

Federal authorities said the sympathetic uprising in the states of Pernambuco and Alagoas had been stifled yesterday.

It was believed that the rebellion was undertaken by non-commissioned officers of the army in an effort to gain power. Government officials accused the rebels of communist activities.

Land, sea and air forces were dispatched to the northeast to quell the outbreak.

Government officials said the uprising in the northeast appeared to be the opening drive in a socialistic movement which they said had been planned for December 18.

Authoritative sources said the cabinet might declare a nation-wide
"state of siege," under which virtual martial law would be put into effect.

Howard Ennis, released from County Road Gang last week;
Being held on Other Charges

Howard Ennis, negro, who was released from the county roads last Thursday, waited only until nightfall before he resumed his activity of law violations, and as a result was bound over to Superior Court this morning in Mayor's court on a charge of breaking and entering.

The negro is charged with entering the home of Eye Case on Pitt street Thursday night and to have stolen five suits of clothes; and three extra pairs of pants.

Mr. and Mrs. Case had been to the picture show and upon their return found the screen in the back door out. At the time, however, they did not discover anything having been stolen.

Greenville officers arrested Ennis
Saturday and found he had clothes with Mr. Case's name in them, and it was discovered only then that they had been stolen from the man.

Charlie Harris was ordered held on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. He is alleged to have stuck an ice pick into the back of a negro woman, who is described as being critically injured. The negro is being held on the assault charge. If the wounds should prove fatal, the charge will be changed to a more serious one.

Carolina Resumes Preparation For Thanksgiving Filt

Chapel Hill, Nov. 25.—After two days of rest the Carolina gridlers will get back to hard work this afternoon for the final game of the season against Virginia Thanksgiving Day here. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Today and tomorrow are the only days of hard practice remaining for the Tar Heels this season.

If their showing in the scrimmage held last Friday is any indication, the reserves may be in the starting lineup for the Carolina eleven Thanksgiving. In this 30-minute skirmish, the No. 2 team completely outplayed the first-stringers. By actual score they won 19-7.

But one day's showing does not mean that the reserves can shoot the works against the first team every day. The No. 1 players may come back strong in the remaining hard workouts and make a showing which will retain their posts for them.

The Turkey Day classic in Kenan Stadium is one of the most colorful games of the season for the South. The gridiron rivalry between the two college began back in 1892 when the first twice. Virginia won the first 30-18 but the Tar Heels retaliated later in the season with a 28-0 win.

The two have met 3 times, with the Cavaliers holding a big margin in both games won and points scored.

There has been a large advance sale of reserved seats for the Turkey Day classic.

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

With both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Borah talking more and more like presidential candidates, the Republican party obviously is headed toward a conflict of serious proportions.

No one can tell how far it will continue along that pathway. Often in the past the party has been able to compromise serious internal differences, and achieve finally a fairly united front. Volunteer peace-makers, recognizing the present danger, are seeking a solution. Perhaps they will find one.

The only possible way to look at politics intelligently, however, is to consider the fact as they exist at the moment, not on the basis of hypothetical situations which may or may not develop in the future. The facts are quite plain.

Mr. Hoover, whether he runs or not, is determined the party shall not come under the control of that school of thought which is symbolized by Mr. Borah. Whether he runs or not, Mr. Borah is determined that the party leadership of which Mr. Hoover is so conspicuous a part shall be supplanted.

There is a clear-cut issue, entirely aside from any question of possible candidates. It is the sort of issue, furthermore, which has to do with fundamentals, and is difficult to compromise.

There is no mystery why compromise would be most distasteful to Mr. Hoover and the party leaders with whom he has been associated. For man organization viewpoint Mr. Borah's independence of the constituted Republican leadership has been a source of irritation and exasperation for years.

On the side of issues (to take a single example), Mr. Hoover looks on orthodox money as an absolutely indispensable requisite to sound government, while Mr. Borah favors "refutation." How can a basic issue such as that be compromised? Furthermore, Mr. Hoover naturally hopes for some measure of vindication, and he knows that is not any part of the plans of the western independents.

On his side, too, Mr. Borah has his reasons. He has said, in effect, that only by purging itself of the old leadership can the party accomplish its destiny.

More significant still is the fact that Mr. Borah does not believe in compromising. He has said on many occasions that no great issue ever was settled by compromise. His rugged personal independence argues more strongly than any other factor against the likelihood of such a solution.

There is widespread belief that if either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Borah eventually is drawn into an active presidential candidacy, it will be against his better judgment.

It is hardly possible that either minimizes the obstacles which stand between him and the nomination. Against each there exists within the party a considerable body of bitterly adverse opinion which might foment an open break in the national convention.

Considering this, it is entirely credible that both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Borah have set out on their present activities without thought of becoming candidates—Mr. Hoover seeking primarily to have a major part in the selection of some other candidate, Mr. Borah determined that no such thing shall happen.

But can either hope to gather behind him the needed strength, unless he does become a candidate? And whether or not they run, is there any peace-maker sufficiently strong to rock the party to its foundation?

For no one who knows politics speaks lightly of the potential power of either Mr. Hoover or Mr. Borah under the existing circumstances.

Revenge!

Terry Willett was wedded to the South American jungle for one purpose—to get revenge, to tame with locks and dams the stream that had licked his father, an engineer like himself.

Not even Allaire West could make him forget the job he had to do, though romance called above the din of the riveters and the roar of dynamite awakening the jungle echoes.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

David Garth's serial opens in the sweltering coffee port of Propionaire, moves through the gay life of Washington and New York then back again to the jungles and to a happy conclusion. Its people are real, vital, the story itself well told.

Speaks at Vesper Service

Irrvin Morgan, a young business man of Farmville, spoke at the college Y. W. O. A. vesper service last night. He used as his topic "Youth, Its Ideals and Responsibilities," and set certain goals which are the ideals of youth. These are as follows:

"Loyalty," the basis for all human endeavors and the keystone that goes into the building of character; "Service" which can take any form; and "Faith in God," that He will understand all endeavors.

The special music was a duet sung by Miss Edna Earle Perry and Helen Sawyer.

Miss Staples To Dance At College

The dances on the program to be presented by Miss Ramona Staples in the Campus building of the college tonight at 8:15, are exceedingly interesting and attractive and are of different types. Among them are two of the modern school represented by tap dances, a ballet, which is a toe dance, and several character dances which she does in costumes.

One dance she will give is "Devil Dance," and East Indian dance Ted Shawn found in his travels in India, in which a girl is taught the religious dances by a priest. Howie Fisher, under whom Miss Staples studied for two years, is not only a graduate of the Denishawn School but taught there and made concert tours with Ruth St. Denis. He also did solo dancing with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The new school of dancing from Germany will be represented on the program by "Moderne," "Maori" is a noted African ritual dance performed before the tribe by a girl on the day before her wedding. In "Music Visualization," and interpretive dance, a spirit dances the beauty of the world but is overcome by its gloom. While in all of these the basic movements are authentic, they have been modernized so that the audience can follow them with ease and enjoyment.

Miss Staples has appeared in recitals, concerts and in opera, not only during her student days but in the three years since her graduation.

Her accompaniments tonight will be played by Miss Frances Rock. She will be assisted in the program by Brandel James, who will play several piano solos.

All those who hold season tickets for the college entertainments will be admitted tonight by the presentation of these at the door. Note the hour, 8:15.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"Soul and Body" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 24. The golden text was from Lamentations 3:25, "The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. Therefore we are always confident, knowing that, whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord: (For we walk by faith, not by sight.) We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord." (Cor. 5:1-6-8).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Become conscious for a single moment that life and intelligence are purely spiritual—neither in nor of matter—and the body will then utter no complaints. If suffering from a belief in sickness, you will find yourself suddenly well. Sorrow is turned into joy when the body is controlled by spiritual life, truth and love. Dr. Carl L. Adams Kiwanis Speaker At Regular Meet

The Greenville Kiwanis Club met in its regular bi-weekly session Friday night in the Woman's Club. After a fine turkey supper served by the Woman's Club the program was turned over to Billy Ryan, chairman of the program committee, who presented Dr. Carl L. Adams, announcing that Dr. Adams would speak on "Education as a Factor in Community Life." The speaker delivered a most interesting and comprehensive address, dealing with a number of problems involved in the educational program, among others bringing his hearers to face the responsibility of the community in the matter of developing and carrying out any adequate educational program.

He presented his subject-matter under three general heads: I—Aims of a Teachers College in the training of citizens; II—The training of teachers; III—The necessity for keeping the public school problem conscious. Under the first head, Dr. Adams discussed the work of a Teachers College in the training of citizens in the matter of preparation in ability to make a living; the building up of a desire to want to make a living, and the creating of an opportunity to make a living.

In this connection he stressed the undermining tendencies of certain vicious social practices, more or less generally accepted in the community and indulged in by many members of the community, which often undermine the work of the college in its efforts to build up social concepts which would produce useful citizens of the student's under the care of the schools.

The training of teachers was discussed as to the practical preparation for the carrying on of their work, but the speaker deplored the more or less general tendency on the part of the public to set for teachers different standards of conduct and living from those accepted by the community for members of other professions. He stated that if a community accepted certain social practices as being all right for the community generally, then he did not see how the community could demand that the teacher, who is a part of the community, should be segregated and compelled to live by other standards. If certain social habits are bad for those who train our youth, then they must likewise be bad for those who are the parents and leaders of youth in other than educational fields.

One of the most thought-provoking statements of Dr. Adams was that the community was badly in need of a clinic where pupils and prospective pupils could be studied as to their physical, intellectual, and other assets and liabilities. The school, being furnished with the results of such work, could the more intelligently proceed to give to the pupil the sort of training that would tend to overcome his defects and perfect his possibilities. The problem of providing equal educational opportunities, Dr. Adams said, was not solved by providing equal physical equipment, educational standards and so on, but by so training our children that each would be afforded such education as would best adapt him to the social order in which he lives and prepare him to make the most of possibilities as he possesses.

In closing, Dr. Adams emphasized the absolute need for the closest possible cooperation between the community and the school, pointing out that the problem of the educating of a community was not alone the problem of the school, but was shared by both the school and the community of which it is a part.

Guests present last night were: J. Vance Perkins, Wm. E. Hooker, A. B. Stallworth, Clarence L. Russ was inducted into membership in the club by J. C. Galloway, President-elect. The attendance prize was given by Berry Bostic and was won by Dr. Crisp. Club singing was led by Prof. McDougal.

Chapter 44
MUDDY ROAD

"IT WAS then I sent for Miss Farnsworth," said John Neuman, "knowing she was the legal owner of the canneries."
"You might tell Anne how you found the other evidence," suggested Kellogg.
"That was easy," John smiled; "every fisherman on the waters was interested in freeing her. Bit by bit they brought in little things and by piecing them together we built up the true story of what had happened. And of course I cabled for Judge Kellogg as soon as I learned Miss Anne had been charged."
"Why didn't you bring this evidence to me?" the district attorney asked.
John faced the man soberly. "I should have done that," he acknowledged, "but it's an old Finnish custom to trust no one while he's in the enemy's camp. I wanted to wait and let Kellogg tell you. I felt his word would have more weight than a fisherman's."
There was a knock at the door. When the district attorney came back he turned to Anne. "Mrs. Lee Farnsworth wants to talk to you."
Anne hesitated a moment, then squaring her shoulders said, "All right."
Mrs. Farnsworth stepped into the room, smiled at Anne, and with open arms came across to her.
Anne watched Charlotte approach her, and stepped back from the outstretched arms.
"Dear little niece," she began, "you don't know my relief at finding you not guilty of that dastardly deed. Oh, we've grieved so over you."
"Thank you, Mrs. Farnsworth," said Anne.
"Aunt Charlotte, dear."
"You asked me once not to call you that," Anne countered. "I'm the same girl now that I was then."
"I was distraught, the tragic death of those two loved ones and everything at such odds. You'll forgive me, Anne?"
"It doesn't matter," Anne turned away, then after a moment turned back. "And I'm terribly sorry about Uncle Lee. I loved him, truly."
"You're coming home with us now, Anne, right back to your own little rooms and maybe we can find Yvonne."
"That is your home," Anne countered, and turned to Tecla and John. "My home is with my people."
"But my dear girl," Mrs. Farnsworth's sweetness was vanishing, "you can't pretend you can handle everything yourself. You come home with us and we'll take care of you. Rob can go right on taking care of the canneries, because you must admit, Anne, that a mere girl can't handle the business. Don't you think I'm right?" she appealed to the men in the room.

THERE was only silence to answer her question, until at last Anne went to the district attorney's desk, asked for pen and paper, sat down and wrote industriously.
"Will you sign this please, Judge Kellogg?" she asked.
"Gladly," agreed her friend after glancing over it, and scrawled his name on the paper.
Mrs. Farnsworth took the paper and read it aloud:
"To Robert Crocker:
"Your immediate resignation from any and all positions you now hold in the Farnsworth Fisheries, Incorporated, will be acceptable to the present owner."
(Signed) "Anne Farnsworth."
"Owner."
"Why, you young snip," Charlotte Farnsworth's poise had left her. "do you think you can do a thing like this while there are courts of law in this land?"
"I'm depending upon the justice of those courts," Anne answered calmly. Then she turned to the others. "May I go home now?"
She paused and realized the last time she had made that remark was two months ago, before the doors of the jail clanged shut behind her.
"I've my car here," offered Kellogg.
"Then will you drive Tecla home, and give her lots of money? We're going to have a festival and I want everyone in Union Town there. Buy lots of food and coffee, everything they like. And Tecla, tell Lisa she has her job back, and if any of the fishermen reach there before I get brass tack problems."
The utilities remain completely unimpressed by this argument—although power leaders who have had dealings with Chairman Jim Landis invariably express complete faith in his integrity and fairness. But they aren't at all sure that he can control his Commission. Some of its members are known to feel that their chairman is altogether too reasonable and would much prefer to go after the holding companies tooth and nail. The pessimists among the utility men are sweating to hold the others in line.
They urge that even if Landis' views prevail within the Commission, there's no guarantee that the

Chapter 45
ONE MORE NAME

O. H. John was worth fighting for, Anne knew. Perhaps it wasn't the thing to do; perhaps it would take courage to do it. Anne straightened her shoulders and lifted her chin.
"You know, John," she began musily, "I had always thought you a man of your word, until this evening."
"What?" he challenged.
"Last spring you said there could be only one girl you could ever love. And then later you said I was that girl. Didn't you mean it, John?"
He looked down at her, face immobile, only his eyes showing the tight leath he held upon himself. "What of it?" he asked, "you're Anne Farnsworth."
Anne saw an old log, she sat down on it and began to laugh, hysterically. "This is funny," she managed to say.
"What is funny?" he asked.
"Rob Crocker wouldn't marry me because I wasn't Anne Farnsworth."
"Crocker was a cad," John declared emphatically, "you were well rid of him."
"And now," Anne continued, "the man I really love, the only man I've ever actually loved, won't marry me because I am Anne Farnsworth."
John was silent. Wind whispered through the trees; sounds from the town below drifted up to them, high clear voices and the bark of a dog.
"Maybe you're well rid of him too," he declared at last, and grimly.
"I guess you're right," she agreed, "if he isn't man enough to help me shoulder the responsibilities I'll have to carry from now on, he isn't the man I thought him."
"Judge Kellogg is getting old. It won't be long before he'll retire and then what will I do?" Her voice grew hopeless. "I don't know a thing about business, and only a little about fishing. I'll just be prey for the Farleys and Crockers of the world."
"You'll find someone you can hire," returned John, wearily.

SUDDENLY Anne stood up and faced him—"You... you Finn," she snapped, "you selfish thing you. You care more about your silly old pride than you do me. You'd sooner let me go around heartbroken alone, with greedy men preying on my affections trying to win my inheritance, than you would to sacrifice that pride, marry me and protect me. Afraid you can't repay me in money... money, as if ten million dollars could take the place of one moment of true love."
"Oh why," she walked to the window.

They feel it is smarter to work for a rational law than to try to play Canuto to an insistent tide of public and political demand.

6000 banks are still in hock to the RFC—via either direct loans or preferred stock. Their only chance to get back on their own feet lies in a continued security price rise that will sweeten their remaining quota of sour collateral loans. Such a rehabilitation would be a big feather in the administration's cap. Another angle worth noting is that climbing security and commodity quotations offer the best possible insurance against direct monetary inflation. Congress is still full of monetary theorists who ache to try their pet prescriptions—but they can't get a foothold when prices are going up anyway. For instance, bull markets will make it much easier to pay the bonus with a bond issue and defeat the Patman paper money plan.
Insiders say that FDR is definitely set against further monetary experiments—and predict he will feature next year the redemption of his '32 campaign pledge to give the country "a sound and adequate currency." If he can make that claim stick in the popular mind, the GOP might as well kiss another of its favorite issues goodbye.
EFFECTIVENESS: Statistical sharps report that farmers received $323,000,000 more for their products in the first nine months of this year than they did in the same period of '34—and almost $1,000,000,000 more than in the corresponding months of '33. At the same time Uncle Sam also handed them about $100,000,000 more in benefit payments than he did last year.
This increase in farm purchasing power is rated the most important single factor in current industrial recovery. These dollars have gone rapidly and effectively into industrial circulation. Keen analysts contend that all the money shelled out for relief hasn't done one-tenth as much to start business wheels humming.
SENTIMENT: A scout who is out to get the lowdown on the national political situation made it his business to talk to porters, conductors, taxi drivers, telephone girls, traveling salesmen, merchants, farmers and what-have-you in twenty different states. He reports that so far all his informants—Republican, Democrat and Mugwump—agree that Roosevelt will be reelected unless the present trend in business and in confidence receives a marked setback before election.
Another New York traveling in the South sends word that political sentiment in that section seems all for Roosevelt, except in the large towns and industrial centers. He adds that there is talk in Georgia of a new Independent Democratic party headed by Governor Talmadge.

would be. Their antics have been rather amusing since they set down to study the details. National Chairman Fletcher, a former Tariff Commission head, uttered no word of criticism, any reductions on steel and machinery benefit such GOP states as Pennsylvania, Michigan and Ohio.
The Republican Congressional Committee keeps silent before many schedules satisfy members as they seek to reelect next year. It is Harrison Spangler, who has charge of Chicago headquarters, besides the lowering of the gates on state which compete with farm products.
Nevertheless, the GOP figures at Mr. Roosevelt may have tossed to states into its lap—Washington and Oregon. Though normally regarded as New Dealish, the envy of Canadian lumber and fish reduced rates may tip the balance. So says Charles McNary, as a GOP Senate leader but hitherto sympathetic to Mr. Roosevelt's aid program.

RELIEF: Although the Mayor's inference is a non-partisan body incident Roosevelt privately expressed his gratitude for the way they handled several problems which have been bothering him. Inters suspect collusion.
The Mayors, who ought to know popular sentiment, bombarded Washington with a demand for assistance of relief after current funds run out. It is expected that congressmen preaching economy will take their cue from what the Mayor said and vote for additional work-relief appropriations. President Roosevelt seized the chance to proclaim that with or without budget-balancing he would not let anybody starve. In short the cities have dumped the relief job on the federal administration.
Mayor LaGuardia's attack on the anti-union boys did not displease a man in the White House, though it upset Messrs. Hopkins and Ickes. Mr. Roosevelt endorsed LaGuardia criticism and there informed his subordinates indirectly to dispense with "red tape."

PROFITS: "What is whiskey?" Though it seems to be a simple question, finding the answer is giving a headache to Secretary Morgenthau, who must soon arbitrate a 60-year-old problem. President said thought he had settled it with a famous "What is whiskey?" decision, but new processes of making liquor have upset all the old standards. Mr. Morgenthau must now decide whether labels on the bottles should warn that the contents are "straight" or "blended" goods. It costs millions of dollars to the distilling interests.
Distillers maintain that whiskey is its peculiar flavor—and kick—on its age. They own most of the color which meets that definition. In the rectifiers insist that they make whiskey by certain overnight, blending processes. The latter contend that whiskey is whiskey, no matter the age. So Mr. Morgenthau, who doesn't like whiskey in any form, must say whether the label shall proclaim the details of ingredients and manufacture. It's tough assignment for a man who doesn't know rye from scotch. But he has many experts who do—and a Harry Wiley laid down rules twenty years ago which might help day.

SUSPICIOUS: The Securities Exchange Commission—having often nowhere with its attempt to tighten utility holding companies into registering by December 1 by imposing dire penalties for holdouts—has changed its tactics abruptly in the past week. The velvet glove has replaced the mailed fist. In fact the Commission is saying: Don't worry about this trifling matter of registration. It's a mere formality. You'll find us perfectly reasonable when we get down to White House wouldn't step in and demand more ruthless execution of the law. The utilities are still suspicious that FDR's "breathing spell" isn't intended to apply to them.

SMARTER: It has gradually dawned on all parties concerned that the December 1st deadline for holding company registration isn't nearly the Rubicon it has been made to appear. Even though a utility group balks for the present, there is nothing whatever to prevent it from changing its mind and registering at any later date it chooses. If the Supreme Court should uphold the law—or if the

'John Doe' Benefits Indirectly From Recent Risky Flight Into Stratosphere

Washington (AP)—The man in the street stands to gain something more than a vicarious thrill from the fact that a huge balloon carried Capt. Albert W. Stevens and Capt. Orvil Anderson to a new high in a mysterious zone called the stratosphere.

One benefit of stratosphere flying to "John Doe" is the possibility of more definite information on whether to take his umbrella with him to work and whether to put anti-freeze in the auto radiator. Knowledge gathered of winds and air currents at great heights are considered important to more accurate weather forecasting.

New Light On Bacteria.
On the 1934 flight it was found that at one level the wind was blowing at a rate of 70 miles an hour, and other unexpected weather features were discovered. While such peculiarities would have only an indirect effect on weather at the surface of the earth, meteorologists believe that only by studying such phenomena can more accurate weather forecasting be done.

Dr. Lyman Briggs sees in the spore studies a possibility of new light on the lives and distribution of bacteria causing human and plant diseases. A tube with a sticky coating on the inside was dropped from the highest altitude of the flight, collecting spores on the sticky substance. When the tube reached the bottom of the stratosphere it was automatically sealed.

Doctor Briggs is director of the national bureau of standards and chairman of the scientific advisory committee of the National Geographic society-army air corps stratosphere flight.

From this experiment it is hoped to discover if spores live at the rarefied heights and if they are similar to those lower down.

Flying There Impractical
Mr. Doe isn't going to catch the "stratosphere express" for London, though, until a good deal more is added to the sum of flying knowledge.

"At the present time it wouldn't be possible to build planes capable of commercial service in the higher parts of the stratosphere," said Dr. Briggs.

To the man and woman in the street, the stratosphere flight of Capt. Albert W. Stevens, left, and Capt. Orvil Anderson, right, may mean new information on when to get the borrowed umbrella back and when to pull the fur coat out of storage.

"By building a stripped plane just light enough to get up there, aviators have taken the heavier-than-air ships up close to 45,000 feet. But thus far airplanes have not been developed to the point where a large ship, carrying a payload and sufficient fuel for long hops, can be built.

Theoretically Ideal.
"From the standpoint of transportation, the stratosphere is ideal in theory, however. It's thinner air would make for greater speeds."

Airplane designers now have in view the building of planes which will fly normally at about 15,000 feet and one commercial airline has its pilots fly regularly at 10,000 feet.

School Progress Depends Upon Wealth of Citizens

Education Is Governed By Ability To Pay Taxes

LLOYD E. GRIFFIN MAKES ADDRESS

School Commission Secretary Speaks to Convention of State Education Ass'n

By J. C. BASKERVILL
Staff Correspondent
Wilmington, Nov. 23.—The progress of the schools and education in North Carolina has always been linked with the wealth of the people in the state and their ability to pay taxes on this wealth for the support of the schools, Lloyd E. Griffin, executive secretary of the State School Commission this morning told the teachers attending the two-day session of the Southeastern District Convention of the N. C. Education Association.

This is the first time the secretary or any member of the State School Commission ever has been invited to address either a district or state convention of the Education Association and the first time the teachers have heard the question of school support discussed from the taxation angle.

"Regardless of how desirable it may be to provide larger and larger appropriations for the support of the schools in North Carolina, we cannot greatly increase the taxes which produce the revenue for the operation of the schools until we also increase the taxable wealth upon which to levy these taxes," Griffin told the superintendents, principals and teachers. "So obviously, the problem of tomorrow and of the schools tomorrow, is to increase the taxable wealth of the average citizen of the state so that he will be both able and willing to pay more taxes for better school support. For at the present time and for many years in the past, North Carolina has stood almost at the bottom of the list of states in per capita wealth."

In the early part of his address, Griffin went back to 1876, when the county commissioners were charged with the duty of levying taxes for the support of the schools, and which plan prevailed until 1900. He also pointed out that the Constitution of 1876 prohibited the levying of more than 66.6 cents on the $100 of property valuation for all purposes, with the result that some counties were able to maintain 4 months of school, but many others much less. So until 1907, the state had an even and definite tax rate, with a corresponding uneven and indefinite length of school term.

for schools in order to have better schools and longer terms. With the growth of industry and wealth and the construction of good roads, most of the larger communities in the State were able to have an eight months school term, supported by local ad valorem taxes, by 1920. Business and farm values continued to increase from 1920 on to 1929, with the result that taxes for schools also increased since when people are prosperous and have wealth upon which to pay taxes they usually do not object paying them.

"But in 1929, the depression struck the nation and North Carolina. Prices went to the lowest levels and millions of dollars worth of wealth was wiped out. But the cost of interest charges on the bonds sold to build schools, as well as the cost of operating them, remained just as high as in the past. So the 1931 general assembly tried to help the schools with an equalizing fund of $16,000,000 a year. Still the people were unable to pay the greatly decreased ad valorem taxes. So in 1933, to prevent hundreds of schools from being closed entirely and other hundreds from dropping back to a four months school term, the general assembly passed the eight months school law, under which the state took over the cost of operating the eight months school term. As a result, we are today for the first time carrying out the mandate of the 1876 Constitution to provide school facilities for all the children of the state.

"We are now providing school facilities for almost 900,000 children, of which almost 800,000 are in average daily attendance. We have 23,545 teachers and this year we will pay to these teachers $16,600,000 in salaries alone. We are transporting more children to and from school than any state in the nation—some 265,000 children in more than 4,000 school buses.

"But property values and public wealth have not increased enough yet to make it possible to levy any more taxes on property. That was why the 1933 general assembly turned to the sales tax and why the 1935 general assembly retained it, since all of the ad valorem taxes that can be collected are needed to pay off existing debts and for city and county operating expenses."

Until the state's taxable wealth increases to pre-depression levels, the schools must try to get along on less money and practice economy through better business management, Griffin said.

Highway System Does Not Desire School Bus Duty

Waynick Cities Reasons Why Department Should Not Take Over Transportation School Children

Raleigh, Nov. 25.—The State Highway and Public Works Commission does not want the job of transporting some 265,000 school children to and from school every day and the maintenance of more than 4,000 school buses, Chairman Capus M. Waynick of the commission said today when asked if he approved of the editorial suggestion here that the entire school transportation system be transferred to highway department from the School Commission.

There are several reasons why I do not favor this transfer of the school transportation system to the highway department," Waynick said. "One of the foremost is that the School Commission has built up such an excellent safety record that it would be impossible to improve on it. For not a single school child was killed in a school bus accident last year. So I am convinced that the School Commission can operate these buses more safely with student drivers than the highway commission could operate them with adult drivers.

"A second reason against this transfer of school transportation to the highway department is the tremendous expense it would entail—for 1936 assuming that the cost of operating and maintaining these buses, as well as the cost of new buses for replacements, would also be transferred to us. As I understand it, the transportation system is now costing the School Commission about $1,500,000 a year for operating costs and about $400,000 a year for replacements and that at least $1,000,000,000 worth of new school buses are needed right now. The school commission pays its student drivers only $48.50 a month. While we would probably have to pay from $25 to $50 a month for adult drivers, thus greatly increasing the cost of operating the buses. So on a conservative estimate, it would place an expense of at least $2,500,000 a year on the highway department. I seriously doubt if such an expenditure from highway funds would be legal, even if the general assembly should pass a law making the transfer.

Land Patent Probe Involves Officials

The Mississippi legislature has ordered an investigation into the issuance of numerous state land patents by R. D. Moore (top), state land commissioner, while Gov. Connor was out of the state on a visit. The patents were signed by Acting Gov. Dennis Murphree (bottom), legislators charged. (Associated Press Photos)

More Power BY GRAHAM

Candidate for Governor Showing More Strength

Raleigh, Nov. 25.—Lieut. Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham is beginning to show more strength than for several weeks, his supporters maintain and predict that before many more weeks pass his opponents will realize that he is really to be reckoned with in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

His friends intimate that "Sandy" is purposely keeping quiet and doing most of his work with as little noise as possible in order to encourage his opponents, especially Dr. R. W. McDonald and Clyde R. Hoey, to claim as much as possible. For the more confident his opponents become, the better off "Sandy" will be, his followers believe.

There are two things which Graham can do and which his supporters believe he will do before very long, which they think will help him greatly. The first is to emphasize his position on liquor control and to come out as strongly as possible for state or county liquor stores to be set up after county referendum, instead of a state referendum, under which any county which votes to have liquor stores may have them. The second move which many of his supporters think he should make is to definitely sever any connection he may have left with the present state administration and dispel the illusion that he is in any way the candidate of the Ehringhaus regime. Graham's more enthusiastic supporters maintain that the state administration, with the exception of one or two elective officials, is already regarded as supporting Hoey, evidently in the expectation that they will keep their jobs if Hoey is nominated and elected.
