COURT ACTION IS THREATENED BY SECRETARY

Hull May Take Action On Neutrality Act Violators

MAKES PUBLIC ONES COMPLYING

Secretary Declares a Number of Firms and Individuals Are Not Registering

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Secretary Hull today threatened criminal prosecution of firms and individuals handling arms, ammunition and implements of war who thus far have failed to register with the government as prescribed by the neutrality act.

The secretary of State made public a list of 86 persons and companies which have met the regulation of the law by registering within the 90 day period.

retire. He had contended that his remarks of November 21 about exports to Italy and Ethiopia had been "misunderstood" and that he had asked only of compliance with the administration's efforts to hold up shipments of "munitions."

Hull asserted in a formal statement that a number of firms, presumably coming under the neutrality law, have not registered, expressing the hope that their failure to do so has been due to "inadvertence" and that they will comply with the law within the next few days.

However, should they fail to do so within a prescribed time, I shall find myself obliged to send the names of the companies which are shown to have failed to comply with the law to the attorney general for such action as he may deem appropriate."

All Of Resident Of Entire Town Killed in Slide

Quayavalle, Ecuador, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A landslide buried the village of Verde Cocha early today killing its 50 inhabitants.

Residents of the area around the district heard a deep rumbling at 3:15 a. m. today.

No one was left alive to tell whether any of the inhabitants of the village in the Andes were awakened before the slide hit.

The great mass of rocks and dirt slid over a front of nearly two miles, sweeping everything from the gray and green mountain side.

The Ecuadorian government is sending relief workers, for the Railroad line was not caught by the slide.

Two Killed When Inmates Break Out Mass. State Prison

Boston, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A prisoner and a truck driver—were killed and several guards and prisoners injured today as a gang of convicts from the Massachusetts state prison in the Charlestown district of Boston.

Seven or eight prisoners took part in the break. All were believed to have been recaptured. At least two were injured by shots fired by guards.

Four were recaptured in the Boston and Maine Railroad yards, through which the prisoners attempted to escape.

The prison was thrown into an uproar and details were meagre for some time.

Six Make Escape In Daring Break In Muskogee, Okla.

Muskogee, Okla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Six prisoners including four convicted in the simultaneous robbery of two Okemah, Okla., national banks December 22, 1934, broke from the city federal jail here today after critically wounding Chief of Detectives Ben Bolton.

The four, all members of the "Irish" O'Malley gang, fled in a commandeered motor car after shooting their way out of jail.

A fifth prisoner who joined in the dash was killed by bullets from the gun of Police Chief Marsh Coridan.

General Contract Is Let For PWA School Project

Goode Construction Company, of Charlotte, Low Bidder for General Contracting; Heating and Plumbing Work To Be Contracted For Later

The Goode Construction corporation of Charlotte was awarded the general contract for a Pitt county PWA school project by the County Commissioners and Board of Education in session yesterday afternoon.

The project includes new buildings and additions to old buildings for 12 schools in the county. The Goode company's low bid for the general contracting was approximately $180,000.

The heating and plumbing contract was not signed, some complications having arisen, and the subsidiary contract will be taken before Dr. H. G. Balty, Public Works Administrator for the state with headquarters at Chapel Hill. It is estimated the heating and plumbing contract will involve an expenditure of approximately $23,000.

The federal government has appropriated a total of $106,000. The grant is to represent 45 per cent of the total cost of the project, while the county will put up 55 per cent. Of the cost of the general contract, approximately $81,000 will be supplied as a grant by the PWA.

In addition to the cost of the heating and plumbing, the project includes the purchase of a quantity of furniture and the architect's fee. D. H. Conley, county superintendent of schools, said that it was probable the purchase of furniture would be omitted from the program if the money available is not enough to complete all phases of the project. He said that the schools have enough furniture which can be reconditioned and used. He added that some furniture probably would be provided by public subscription in the school districts affected.

J. H. Coward, county auditor, said that the county would be able to provide its part of the money without issuing any bonds or any short term notes. He said that most of the money needed for the county's portion was available through savings and reserve funds during the last three years. Any additional money is needed is (Continued on Page Six)

Long-Time Contracts Are Sought For Major Crops

Move Made Despite Pending Supreme Court Cases

LATEST STROKE IS FOR COTTON

Four Year Programs Now Launched By AAA for Wheat, Tobacco, Rye, Cotton

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The AAA's determination to push for long-time contracts of major crops despite pending controversy over the farm act's constitutionality, was emphasized by publication of announcement of a new four year cotton program. It aims at production of from 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 bales in 1936.

The AAA now has in rapid succession launched four year, contracts for wheat, tobacco, rye and cotton. Two year contracts have been prepared for the corn-hog program.

Officials predicted some method of continuing crop control would be found regardless of the supreme court ruling on the agriculture adjustment act.

The cotton contract provides for a reduction "base" acreage from 45,500,000 to 44,500,000 acres. Contract signers will reduce acreage from 30 to 45 per cent for 1936, compared to 25 to 35 per cent for 1935 and 35 to 45 per cent for 1934.

Seeking at reduction of the nation's huge cotton surplus, officials have predicted that world consumption of American cotton this season would exceed production. Private sources have estimated the exports for 1935 would hit 6,000,000 bales, an increase of 1,000,000 bales over last season. Domestic consumption was estimated at 6,000,000 bales.

Similar demand next year, it was said, with a crop about the same size would enable a substantial reduction in the surplus.

Federal Services For Former County Commission B Held at Home In Belvoir Tomorrow

Dempsey J. Holland, 78, of Belvoir township, former Pitt county commissioner, died this morning at 10:40 o'clock in Edgemoor General Hospital in Tarboro, after an illness since Sunday.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at the home, with Rev. S. B. Denny, Primitive Baptist minister of Wilson, officiating.

Serving as active pallbearers will be Richard Parker, Julius Parker, Elmo Durree, J. T. Dugree, Garland Riddick and Perry Brewer.

Mr. Holland is survived by four daughters, Mrs. R. H. Parker of this county, Mrs. R. A. Parker, Jr. of Conetoe, Mrs. Mack Hux, and Miss Margaret Holland of the home place; and two sons, John and Robert Holland, both of the county.

Rural parishioners, instead of giving cash, have pledged onion land to the church. The church will have about 200 acres in onions which have been set aside by the members and will be planted, plowed and cultivated by them.

The church will pay for the harvest.

CAROLINA GAS CHAMBER PAINLESS?

Less than a month before North Carolina state prison's new lethal gas chamber was scheduled for its first execution, officials are in controversy as to whether its victims will die without pain. Howie of a dog used in a preliminary test led Prison Chairman Capus M. Waynick to declare "we aren't going to let a human being suffer like that dog obviously did." The death chamber, which also is equipped with an electric chair, is shown above. (Associated Press Photo)

CONVICT TWO AUTO DRUNKS

Several Other Cases Disposed Of in Pitt County Court

Getting off to a good start, County court disposed of a number of cases at the Tuesday morning session, including two defendants charged with driving drunk.

Roy Rollins and Clarence Vinson, each charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of whiskey, were fined $50 and costs each, had their license revoked for 12 months and were given suspended road sentences.

Garland Stancill was sentenced to 12 months on the roads upon conviction of illegally manufacturing whiskey for sale. The defendant appealed to Superior court and bond was set at $500.

John Ed Frank entered a plea of guilty to a charge of larceny and judgment was suspended upon payment of costs.

Ralph Ward was fined $25, the costs to be deducted, upon a plea of guilty to possessing liquor for sale. Willie Jones was convicted on a similar charge and was also fined $25. Each was given a suspended road sentence.

Samuel F. Harper, 53, Dies At Ayden Home

Ayden, Dec. 3.—Samuel F. Harper, 53, a prominent Pitt county farmer, who died at his home in Centerville, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, following a stroke of paralysis, was buried at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Ayden cemetery.

The funeral service was conducted from the late home, by his rector, Rev. A. C. D. Noe, of Ayden, assisted by Rev. R. F. Pittman, of Ayden. The Masonic lodges of Ayden and Grifton took part in the service at the grave and members of the fraternity acted as pallbearers.

Mr. Harper was a valued citizen of his community and a vestryman of old St. John's Church, near Grifton.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Mae Hart of Ayden; four children, Earl, Margaret, Claudia and Billy, all of the home community; four sisters, Mrs. R. H. Broom, Mrs. J. C. Griffin, Mrs. Mollie Robinson, of Ayden, and Mrs. W. O. Rollins of Winterville.

Prison Doctor Not To Enter Chamber

Raleigh, Dec. 3.—Dr. George S. Coleman, prison physician, does not intend to go into the lethal gas chamber after executions to determine whether the prisoner being executed is dead, for the simple reason that it will not be necessary.

For a stethoscope has already been worked out through which Dr. Coleman may listen to the prisoner's heart beats—as long as there are any—from outside the death chamber. The stethoscope will be strapped to the prisoner's chest over his heart, and a rubber tube will extend from it outside the chamber. It has already been tested out, Dr. Coleman said.

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

LIFELINE: Dan Roper's famous Business Advisory Council foregather again this week in milder mood than when they last cooled their heels on the White House doorstep.

Ten have quit during the summer. But "Uncle Dan" smoothed down grumbling hangers-on with promises that Mr. Roosevelt intended to "use" them more freely, improving economic conditions have improved during the summer truce and certain indiscreet colleagues—"Ed" Hutton and Orval Adams—have incurred public wrath by counseling a banker-swipe vendetta against FDR. Mr. Roper's wise boys don't want to lay themselves open to the charge of rocking the row-boat of recovery.

Some flare-ups and resignations are anticipated. But an alibi has been arranged. It will be given out that hereafter members will "rotate" so that larger groups may be brought within this supposed inner circle. Instead of resigning, the quitters will simply "rotate" off the council. Gerard Swope slipped the idea to Mr. Roper, who recognizes a lifeline when he sees it.

TACTICS: Behind the scenes of the holding company battle rival counsel are playing catch-as-catch-can with the courts. This excites lawyers more keenly than does the utility issue itself.

Another Bid For Peace Made By Haile Selassie

Meanwhile Mussolini Creates "Brain Trust" To Remodel Italian Diet Along War Time Lines To Combat Economic Barriers

(By Associated Press) Emperor Haile Selassie of war-torn Ethiopia has made another bid for peace with Italy, an authoritative religious source in Cairo divulged today.

While Premier Mussolini created a "brain trust" to remodel the Italian diet along war-time lines and the British treasury opened two gigantic loans—part of which may be used for defense—it was learned the King of Kings has appealed to the supreme authority of the Coptic Christian church for armistice.

The Ethiopian ruler would have the Patharch Johannes intervene with the Italian government to establish a basis for peace conversations with the fascist minister to Cairo about the middle of the month.

Previously the Emperor had appeared to the league of nations to intervene in behalf of peace.

Authoritative sources in London predicted an oil embargo against Italy would be added to the league of nations, under British pressure, to the present arms, financial and economic and selected key products embargoes.

The Italian government was not caught napping. Premier Mussolini's cabinet met the threat of an oil embargo with plans for increasing its supplies of oil and reducing use of the fuel.

His "brain trust" was announced by Achille Starace, secretary of the fascist party. A commission of imminent, people will instruct Italians how to keep healthy on home grown foods, behind the economic barrier raised by the league of nations.

The Ethiopian government said 500 Italian soldiers were caught in a mountain gorge in Tembien province by Ethiopian troops November 30 and defeated them after a battle of several hours' fighting.

The Italians said the Ethiopians retreated in a panic leaving 50 dead, arms and provisions behind. The Ethiopian losses said that government were 15 dead.

AAA Announces Increase In Payments to Tenants

Announcement Made Local Tobacco Mart To Close Soon

Announcement was made this afternoon by K. W. Cobb, sales supervisor for the Greenville tobacco market, that the local tobacco market would close Friday, December 13.

Today's offerings on the Greenville tobacco market pushed the total for the season to the 60,000,000 pound mark, the figure set by early season estimates.

At the close of business yesterday, the first since Wednesday of last week because of the Thanksgiving holidays, $9,965,952 pounds had been sold.

A total of $12,639,363.17 had been growers selling their tobacco on the local market. The average continued above parity despite the fact practically only scraps had been offered during the past few weeks. The official average thru Monday was $21.09 per hundredweight.

Offerings Monday totaled $6,314 pounds for $8,692.95. The average for the day was $15.44 per hundred pounds.

Rural Electricity Throughout Pitt Talked at Meeting

Pitt Citizens Ather Here to Discuss Possibility of Furnishing Power To County Farms

A group of Pitt county citizens interested in rural electrification met at the courthouse today to discuss the possibilities of extending power lines through the county.

D. S. Weaver, extension expert of the electrification authority, attended the meeting and discussed the various phases of the extensions.

A total of 19 preliminary surveys have been made in the county to determine the practicability of stringing up lines through the rural areas.

E. F. Arnold, county agent who had charge of the meeting, said it was not determined what, if any, lines would be placed in the rural sections, but added that it appeared some of the surveys showed lines would pay in some sections.

BRITAIN KING ASKS SUPPORT OF ITS FORCE

Declares It's Urgently Necessary No Deficiencies in Defense

WARNING MADE TO PARLIAMENT

Foreign Policy Outlined by King George As Announcement Made of Two Loans

London, Dec. 3.—(AP)—King George told parliament today it is "urgently necessary that the deficiencies in the defense forces" of the British empire be "made good."

The king's warning came as the ninth parliament of his regime convened. The king, in mourning for the death of his sister, Princess Victoria, was not present in person, but his words were read.

A few hours before parliament met, the British treasury announced the government has floated two loans totalling $300,000,000 pounds—about $1,458,000,000. The king conveyed to parliament his government point of view.

"The government's foreign policies," he declared "will as heretofore be based on the firm support of the league of nations. They remain prepared to fulfill cooperation with the other members of the league the obligation of the covenant."

"Particularly, they are determined to use at all times the full weight of their influence for the purpose of peace."

"In pursuance of these obligations the government feels compelled to adopt, in cooperation with some 50 other members of the League, certain measures of an economic and financial nature in regards to Italy."

"The fulfillment of our international obligations under the covenant, no less than the safeguard of the empire, makes it urgently necessary that deficiencies in the defense forces be made good."

Charges Hurlled AAA Program By Adversaries

Charges of Unconstitutionality Are Filled in United States Supreme Court Against Laws

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Charges that the Agricultural Adjustment act is unconstitutional, nullified the division of power, between state and nation and extends almost unlimited federal power over local affairs were contained in a brief filed today in supreme court by National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The association acted as a friend of the court filing its analysis of the AAA with the Supreme Court in the Hoosac Mills case in which the court at Boston had ruled the processing taxes invalid.

Oral arguments scheduled for December 9.

Summarizing the brief asked: "It is too much to say that the issue in this case involved the final right of the states to control their internal affairs and to determine whether or not the constitution gives congress power virtually to destroy their authority."

FRESH ATTACK MADE ON AAA COTTON PROGRAM LAW

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A fresh attack was directed in Supreme Court today at the cotton control plan under which the New Deal has just projected a four year production program.

Lee More, Texas planter, told the high tribunal in a brief that if the Bankhead cotton law is held valid "constitutional nullification" can be accomplished a mere act of Congress.

PERSIAN MINISTER 'INSULTED' BY ARREST IN U.S.

When American officers arrested Ghaffar Djalal (right), Persian minister to the United States, for speeding at Elkton, Md., and then placed handcuffs on him when they said he resisted arrest, they created an international incident. Djalal demanded that the State Department punish Constable Clayton Ellison (left), holding the manacles he snapped on the minister, and Officer Jacob Biddle, for "insulting" him and his wife. Utilities Commission At Bat In Phone Case

Southern Bell Telephone Co. Used Five Weeks

JUDGE COWPER IS PRESIDING

Case Hinges Around Valuation of Company's Properties in North Carolina

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILLE.

Raleigh, Dec. 3.—The other side of the telephone rate picture—the side favoring a reduction of $300,000 a year in telephone charges to users of Southern Bell Telephone Company facilities in North Carolina—is now being unfolded before Superior Court Judge G. Vernon Cowper in the trial of the rate case in Superior court here.

The sixth week of the trial started yesterday, five weeks having been consumed in the hearing of the voluminous testimony offered by the telephone company and its battery of high-priced engineers and experts.

The case hinges around the valuation of the telephone company's properties in North Carolina, on which the rates are based. The company claims a valuation of between $1,700,000 and $18,000,000 on its properties used entirely in intrastate business, while the State Utilities Commission, after careful investigation, fixed the rate-making valuation at slightly less than $13,000,000 almost a year ago when it issued its order for the company to reduce its rates and average of 15 per cent. The telephone company refused to abide by the rate reduction order, obtained a writ of supercedeas, and the present trial is to determine whether this writ shall be made permanent. If the court sustains the Utilities Commission, the telephone company will have to refund the $300,000 or more it has collected from its 77,000 subscribers this year and put the low rates into effect. If the court rules in favor of the telephone company, the public will just be out $300,000 and the company assured of this much additional profit indefinitely.

One of the first witnesses for the state, P. L. Holland, chief engineer of the Maryland Utilities Commission, loaned to the North Carolina Commission to study and appraise the Bell Telephone Company properties, testified that in his opinion, from the studies he has made, the Bell company has made an excessive charge for depreciation and replacements. For the past five years the Bell company has charged off 442 per cent of its income for depreciation and replacements. Holland testified. But according to his figures, 298 per cent would have been more than sufficient to take care of all of the actual depreciation in this period, including all replacements, he declared.

Other witnesses which will be put on the stand this week are expected to give facts and figures which will effectively refute the claims of the telephone company with regard to both valuations and depreciation. Numerous charts and graphs have been prepared showing the expenditures of the telephone company in their relation to the number of telephone subscribers and other data. One of the graphs shows that when the number of telephone users started to decrease that instead of decreasing expenditures for new equipment and replacement, these expenditures continued at the same rate although revenue from subscribers was decreasing.

"We have no way of knowing, of course, what the outcome of the trial will be, but we do feel that we have some very strong evidence to sustain the reduction in valuations and hence the reduction in rates which the commission ordered to become effective January 1, 1935," Utilities commissioner Stanley Winborne said today. "We are still convinced that the valuations used by the telephone company as a basis for their rates in North Carolina were and are too high and that the 77,000 telephone subscribers served by this company are entitled to a substantial reduction in rates. We are hoping, of course, that the ultimate findings of the court will agree with our findings."

While the state is going to proceed as rapidly as possible in the presentation of its evidence, it is believed that at least one more week and perhaps two will be required before the trial can be completed. The case for the state is being handled by Attorney General A. F. Sewell, Assistant Attorney General John Aiken and Major L. P. McLendon of Greensboro, as special counsel.

Rotary Program Is One of Music For This Week

By WYATT BROWN

When it comes to "slickin'" the "city slickers," Hayward Dail can do that, for he just tells them he is Major Bowes, according to the way he told it in filling in his part of the program last night at the Rotary Club. The program last night was mostly music—vocal and instrumental.

R. H. Midyette led off with a tenor solo using the favorite "Smilin' Through" as the vehicle to entertain his hearers with his voice of unusual quality and tone control. As an encore he did another favorite "Remember."

Next on the program was Helen Phelps who did two popular songs in her fetching style. At this point music was the means through which Johnny Overton in singing a popular "torch" song got "revenge" for having once been used as the foil for a girl's singing of a torch song in a Rotary program recently. It afforded his hearers plenty of amusement.

Then, in keeping with the approaching Christmas season, Mrs. Glenn Scott played a medley of Christmas carols and songs associated with the Christmas season. By her own original interpretation of the melodic line the tunes were refreshed.

The program was presented by Phil Goodson, chairman, and his fellow members of the fellowship and attendance committee. Ollie VanNortwick won the attendance prize given by Herbert ReBarker, Bill Lee, president, presided.

answered "then and there" by some one of comparable rank in the Democratic party.

Charles Michelson, director of publicity for the Democratic national committee, keeps a weekly flow of comment from national headquarters in the mails. "Dismissing the Fog," he calls it.

Don't be surprised if Michelson's office staff, before the campaign of '36 gets under way seriously, is augmented—with his names.

The Eccles Statement

The statement of Governor Eccles of the federal reserve board that Washington will not apply the "brakes" to the current boom in stocks caused a flurry in Washington political circles.

It promises to bring comment or action from Carter Glass of Virginia, the "father of the federal reserve system."

Eccles and the senator, insofar as banking legislation is concerned, are about as far apart as two individuals could be. In the last session of congress the senate became accustomed to hearing the diminutive Virginian deliver blistering attacks on the monetary views held by Eccles.

Glass had nothing to say publicly about the Eccles statement. Privately he said and thought plenty.

The important thing is that Eccles has yet to have his job confirmed by the senate. Designated by the President in September to be chairman of the newly organized federal reserve system, Eccles must run the senate gauntlet during the coming session of congress.

Senator Glass absented himself from the meeting of the banking and currency committee when Eccles was confirmed as governor of the federal reserve system.

What he'll do when Eccles is up for confirmation as chairman of the board—a four-year tenure of office—may be another proposition.

Townsendite Strength

Politicians here, especially those intimately concerned with personal fortunes in '36, eyed with real concern the congressional primary in Michigan just held to fill a Republican vacancy in the house.

Out of the five contestants, the candidate who was an avowed advocate of the Townsend old-age pension plan not only captured the nomination but amassed a vote equal to that of the other four. The only candidate who came out openly against the Townsend plan ran fourth. The other three were non-committal.

Townsendites, whose strength heretofore had been considered amassed in the west, sprang a surprise in Michigan. That showing may have real significance on the national scene.

GOOD WILL ON THE ROAD

The holiday season is a peculiarly fitting time to emphasize the obligations of every motorist. It is of more than passive interest that Yuletide closes that quarter of the year when automobile accidents, deaths and injuries are at an annual high. How horrible is the thought that as we approach days when the sentiment "Good Will to All," is glorified throughout the land, the wreckage of wrecks and brok-bodies is strewn more and more over the face of the country. A great deal has been said about the necessity of safety in driving as an accident preventive measure. Driving at speeds reasonable for conditions, sharing the road, passing properly, giving correct hand signals, avoiding all those actions which make driving dangerous and uncomfortable for the other fellow, are the dictates of courtesy and manners. So, too, are they dictates of the principle of the good neighbor. Good driving, with a real desire to regard the lives of those exposed to the consequences of that driving, is practical Christianity. It is a kind of practical Christianity that flowers of all creeds can subscribe to as they join in common rejoicing at this Christmas season.

The first concern of the churches of America is the saving of souls. By entering with whole-hearted activity into the automobile safety movement, they can extend their activity to the saving of lives, without violating their first purpose. The blot on a soul as a result of killing or maiming another through careless or heedless driving is one not easily wiped. The churches have the advantage of being able to appeal to a great section of the drivers of the country on occasions when they are most receptive to the word of good will as a driving maxim. The good neighbor on the road could well serve as a theme for a sermon in every church at this time of the year.

So long as selfishness and reckless driving, so long as death and destruction exist on our streets and highways, the ideal of peace on earth, good will toward men, will command little more than lip service.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: On his way to the capital to what is supposed to be an important ship repair project, Terry Willett stops in Providence and meets a girl named Allaire. She is a Portuguese aristocrat. He is now at the American embassy in the capital demanding to see George Fox, the attaché. And Fox is in conversation with a most charming girl whose name is Allaire.

Chapter Six FATEFUL MEETING

WILLET, all right. "Where is he now?" He was in the billiard room of the Legation Club, waiting for Novas to come back and get his arm broken unless the Señor Fox appeared.

"Is he smiling?" Fox asked surprisingly. Novas looked positively astonished.

"But yes, Señor," he returned. "With the mouth, yes. But with the eyes, ah, no, Señor. Name of a name, Señor Fox, but he would have broken the arm, by damn!"

"Smiling, eh?" Fox muttered, as if starting to solve a geometry problem. "Means he's going into action. He's going to sock somebody."

He turned quickly to Allaire, shaking his head ruefully.

"Feel like a fireman," he commented. "There's a third alarm in the billiard room. There are all kinds of smiles in this world."

"He's going to sock somebody," Allaire was looking at him interestedly. "Not you, by any chance, Ambassador?"

"No, but he mustn't sock anybody," he explained. "He told me that if he ever intended to start any trouble with the coffee company big shots, he'd let me know first. He's just positively keeping his word."

He held out his hand. "May I take you in before I go to wave the lamp of reason in front of a fighting machine?"

There was a queer smile on her lips as she leisurely clasped slim hands behind her head.

"YOU know," she said reflectively. "I didn't come on this Odyssey to see Steve Perry play polo and Ray play the fool. I had ideas, absurd perhaps, of gentlemen with sideburns righting their wrongs and wronging their rights."

"So far I bear away memories of a snake farm, some giraffe-necked women or something, and a mountain in the middle of a harbor. But," he went on with that rare sparkling smile, "if I can also bear away the memory of you waving the lamp of reason in front of a fighting machine who wants to sock somebody, he trips a success."

Fox felt something go chasing up and down his spinal column. He'd felt the same way when a sophomore he'd awaited the kickoff in his first Yale game.

He knew he was on edge. Who wasn't in this country on the brink of revolution?

But he had never lost his aplomb before—it was the sudden crazy sensation he had that this girl was so like the dynamite-charged city all about them.

Both awaited—sparks? The top of a green hill blown off by a hither-to unsuspected volcano—the rise of a tide that had long threatened to sweep past boundaries.

Coolly reckless, cynically defiant—this lovely mocking girl was a fairy in the wilderness from the child who had shown her heart, as a thoroughbred panted in agony before her.

"You want to meet him?" he said a little vaguely.

She lit a cigarette and flicked the match dexterously past Novas's ear. Then she leaned back in the same careless posture he had found her. "Darling, if anything is going to happen around here I'm sitting in. Heaven only knows I've wanted to sock somebody many times myself."

Willett might be drunk—"You've saved your arm, Novas," he told the runner. "Ask the tall red head to come here."

He came swinging down a garden walk, tall, clad in immaculate white tux, bareheaded—sick to death of red tape and inaction, with the lights and music of the Legation Club trying to chase from his mind the thought of a dank river.

"Hello, Fox," he said abruptly, and then paused to stare past the attaché.

"The girl watched him, smoke from the cigarette between her fingers curling up past her cheek. "The Foreign Service," Willett remarked with a brief-appearing grin at Fox. "Is something I'll have to look into."

FOX smiled himself. Ask Terry Willett of some of those other hard-lavied builders down here thou-

But by opening a surprise offensive against non-registering companies the government was able to choose its own battleground. It started action in New York because both district and circuit court members are admittedly more experienced in this kind of litigation. In several major trials they have found for the New Deal. "Brain trust" lawyers also figure that even if they don't win, the New York legal stage will provide an excellent publicity springboard for their vocal arguments. It's a tactical as well as a legal scrimmage.

EMBARGO: Secretary Hull is backing powerful but hidden interests in broadening the neutrality policy to include an embargo on oil, cotton, copper. Shipping, banking and industrial representatives are buzzing around the State Department, the White House and Capitol Hill.

They don't dare to challenge Mr. Hull openly for fear they may be accused of "feeding the flames of war"—the Secretary's passionate phrase. But smart lawyers have rendered the opinion that under

Back to the job, the everlasting Great God Job. Wearily fighting both the Palva and malicious red tape—Lawrence Willett waiting for him, looking eagerly down the river, a 45 in his hand for all the Chalkis to see.

His own hand tentatively touched a slight bulge under his left arm. Good medicine for the docks at Rosina B. A lovely girl in evening gown—poor Fox had perspired blood.

He went out at the side of the Legation Club and hailed an ambling carriage.

As a child she had loved to follow parades, chase a brass band and the tread of marching feet. And when the ring in the air passed she had always felt the surge of a desire to keep alive that note of spirited rhythm—somehow.

The gardens were very quiet, but a note still rang. A thin-lipped young man had come and gone; come hurried by a shaking Embassy runner, and gone with a grin for the welfare of an attaché. She knew she had seen a parade—and the gardens were very quiet.

SHE got up restlessly and went back to the lighted Legation Club, slipping through a door on the terrace into a swirl of music and the scrape of feet, smell of starched shirts, and cocktails, and perfumes. She surveyed the scene estimating a moment, balancing it against thousands of others, and then moved straight through a politely impertuning stag line toward the conservatory.

It was there that Fox found her. Fox with a topcoat buttoned about his throat and a soft black snap brim in his hand.

"Willett?" he began. "He's gone," she told him, sinking into a chair. "Y'know, darling, the lamp of reason kind of backed up on you, didn't it? Why?"

Why? Fox didn't care to tell her the reason. Knowledge like that with Allaire West might be fatal. He recognized a merciless strain of quicksilver in this girl who had learned to ask favors from nobody.

The lamp of reason—he'd never lost it. He only knew that the one thing in the world she recognized was action, quick, spontaneous action.

And sincerity was a keynote to George Fox's character. He knew perfectly well he was falling in love with her.

"I could chase after him," he began. "Don't," she advised briefly. "I don't think he liked the idea of having you tag along."

Her eyes were kind, however. He was nice, he had style and something the rest of this crowd didn't have. A certain boyish earnestness, perhaps. But attached don't risk prowling around docks.

"There's LaMarr dancing with Neil," she said suddenly. "I despise LaMarr; he's followed us from Buenos Aires like a scavenging shark in the wake of a ship. Do go forth to war, George, and unhorse you varlet."

He hesitated a moment. There was yet time for him to dash out into the darkness like a new edition of Svengali at a fifty-cent matinee. Then he took off his coat and slung it into a chair.

Allaire watched him as he went out on the floor to separate her mother from the polished, self-styled globe-trotter, LaMarr.

(Copyright, 1935, by David Garth)

Tomorrow, Allaire swipes a motor car, and takes Novas on an exciting journey.

existing statutes the government cannot block shipments of raw materials, provided the shippers are not in lock to the RFC or some other federal agency. It is predicted the government would lose if such a case got into court.

World business men apparently dread the effect of Mr. Hull's revolutionary theories on trades in times of war. They recently rejected a resolution urging their government to ban commercial aid to belligerents. Framed by Julius Barnes, a close friend of Herbert Hoover, it was presented to the recent convention of the International Chamber of Commerce at Paris. Mr. Hull is proceeding cautiously because he knows his only weapon in the controversy is public opinion.

ECONOMY: You can tag a political "if" to all official and unofficial assurances that curtailment of government expenditures will be the pass word at the White House and on Capitol Hill next year.

Nobody who knows politics questions FDR's desire to reduce ordinary and extraordinary costs in a reelection year. Messrs. Morgenthau and Roosevelt are living up to political performance when they say the legislators must take up new funds for payment of the bonus and emergency outlays beyond budgetary provisions. Their paper plans call for smaller appropriations all around. They are hedging so as to meet the "spending spree" indictment, for it seems to be the GOP's liveliest issue.

But collapse of the present upward movement would prove even more fatal to the administration. A slump starting next spring and lasting through the fall—not an impossibility—might finish the New Deal. It might force the doctors to rely on new financial shots in the arm, including large relief and PWA appropriations and possibly payment of the vets. That's what insiders hint at when they promise economy "if" private business obliges by carrying the unemployment load.

New York By JAMES McMULLIN

CANDIDATE: Influential business circles are quietly working up a serious drive for a new dark horse—General Robert E. Wood of Sears, Roebuck—as the GOP presidential candidate. Nothing will be announced publicly unless and until a long and impressive list of backers is ready to flash. Insiders say such a list is growing rapidly. General Wood himself is taking no part in the campaign—but his friends are actively promoting his cause among business men—both large and small—all over the country.

One point emphasized by his backers is that Wood shouldn't require much of a build-up among farmers. His picture appears in the millions of catalogues distributed every year by Sears Roebuck, so they presumably know who he is already. It is also argued that their relations with the mail order house are generally friendly enough to assure their favorable reaction. Disinterested observers call this reasoning a bit naïve—but it appears to have impressed many recruits for the Wood banner. Wood justifies as a mid-westerner—which many Republican leaders feel is essential. He was born in Missouri and lives in Chicago. His war record can be featured for the benefit of veterans.

Moreover he could be played up as something of a liberal—chiefly on the basis that he supported Roosevelt in '32 and has unorthodox views about money along Committee for the Nation lines. At the same time he fits the conservative bean ideal—a business man President who believes firmly in a balanced budget and no regimentation. He has no practical political background—but it is hoped that this ments to ban commercial aid to belligerents. Framed by Julius Barnes, a close friend of Herbert Hoover, it was presented to the recent convention of the International Chamber of Commerce at Paris. Mr. Hull is proceeding cautiously because he knows his only weapon in the controversy is public opinion.

EGGS: New York insiders admit that the Securities Exchange Commission did a neat job of picking when it chose Electric Bond and Share and its holding company subsidiaries as the target for its suit to enforce the holding company act. Informed sources say that Electric Bond and Share has much the most complicated setup of any group belonging to the Edison Electric Institute and the interstate feature of its operations can be clearly established—so the law should certainly apply to it if it applies constitutionally to anybody.

A group outside the Edison Institute—such as Associated Gas & Electric or Cities Service—wouldn't do. Other utilities could claim it wasn't a fair sample—just as the government claimed the American States Power case in Baltimore wasn't a legitimate test.

Electric Bond and Share officials were taken by surprise but profess to be confident of the outcome. They certainly lost no time in unscrambling their intercorporate interlocks. This may cripple the Commission's case to some extent—but legal experts privately doubt that it will make any fundamental difference. The government's eggs are now in one basket as the utilities' were at Baltimore.

WOMEN: Activity of Democratic women politicians on the economic side supports the widespread conviction of New York spending observers that New Deal spending is hammering hard at housewives—playing up the high cost of living and the threat of higher taxes. The rising tide of spontaneous protests against the fancy climb of unfancy groceries gave them a clue they could hardly ignore.

Extensive inquiries indicate that well-to-do women—enjoying incomes and accustomed to investment—deficit—tax issue, but that, wives of farmers and workers are not going to be so easy to arouse. The latter have felt the benefit of relief work and corn-hog checks.

There will probably be about 40,000 votes cast in 1936. The total vote jumped 7,631,000 in 1930, when women first voted. In 1932 there were 13,284,000 more ballots cast than in Harding's time. Keen New York observers believe the women's vote may be a decisive factor in the 1936 results.

GAINS: Some of the best statisticians in New York have consulted their slide-rules and crystal balls and come up with the prediction that corporate profits in certain categories may average as much as 35 per cent higher, in 1936 than this year. Their figures take diminished deficits into consideration as well as increased earnings.

The industries expected to show the biggest gains are steel, electrical equipment, railroad equipment, farm machinery and machinery for industrial use—durable goods in general. These are still way behind the recovery parade. Consumers good are not likely to show much, if any, improvement over 1935.

POLITICS at random

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

The pastime of juggling figures in the electoral college, of making up and tearing down various possible winning combinations for 1936, gives many anticipatory thrills to the political dreamers as the long winter evenings set in.

It already has been pointed out in these columns how some Democrats calculate that the south and the larger states of the east, helped by one or two border states and leaving the west and mid-west out of it entirely, might re-elect Mr. Roosevelt.

A still more obvious Democratic combination, of course, from the imaginative viewpoint, would be one composed of southern, western and mid-western electoral votes. Wilson achieved that result in 1916, winning without the support of any northern state east of Ohio.

From the Republican angle, there are many mathematical possibilities. Assuming—as most politicians do—that the south with go Democratic in 1936, the Republican problem is to form a winning combination of east and west.

Several imaginary solutions suggest themselves, but all of them start with the east, or most of it, as the cornerstone of any possible Republican victory.

Suppose, for instance, that the Republicans adopted a platform and nominated a candidate with the sole idea of re-winning the west; and that by so doing they sacrificed whatever margin they might otherwise have in the east. How would it figure out on the basis of electoral votes?

The answer is somewhat surprising, considering the vast geographical extent of the western country as shown on the maps.

The party might carry the entire area west of Pennsylvania, including the mid-west, the northwest, the southwest, the far west and all of the border states of Missouri, Kentucky, West Virginia and Maryland, and still lose the election. The total electoral vote of this whole territory, embracing 26 states, is 253. The number needed to elect a president is 266.

To make up the deficit of 13 votes it still would be necessary to carry one large or several small eastern states; and the practical effect would be, necessarily, that the campaign must be on a pitch which would appeal to the east in general.

Which explains why the east is the one essential consideration in all Republican calculations. For the C. O. P. the sun must rise in the east if it ever is to shine at all.

Naturally, then, the Republicans will seek to carry, not merely a part of the east, but all of it. The eastern states have a certain common interest industrially, and a campaign designed for one would be designed equally for all.

In this eastern group, starting with Pennsylvania on the west, are 131 electoral votes. The Republican strategists begin by assuming these votes are capturable, even though the Democrats, by no means concede it. But 115 more are needed to elect.

The next step in Republican calculations usually is to list as the best possibilities the following: Ohio, which recently turned out

"I'm puzzled about this duck business," said old Ten Gauge Smith, sage of the lower Illinois. "Some people want to save 'em and 'others try to rid the earth of 'em fast as possible. It don't make sense."

Knowing we were about to get the lowdown on the situation, we encouraged the old river man. Yep, he'd have "just a mite more to warm my innards," the day being what it was. Past three score and ten, Ten Gauge is spry and shoots now and then with his friends. He still has the big muzzle-loader that carries his nickname, but he doesn't use it any more.

"I hunted for the market here you was born and years after I run a gun club. Twarnt no difference as I could see. The boys paid their money for a day's shooting and got the limit, whether they shot crabs or guns. And they alius wanted greenbacks, too. Bet they'll be glad to get bluebills in a few more years."

Observers See Fight On Control Of Relief Funds

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, Nov. 30.—While President Roosevelt and Relief Administrator Hopkins emphatically assured the conference of mayors that federal relief will not be ended abruptly at any given time, politicians here noted an important omission in their promises.

Neither had anything to say about how future relief funds will be controlled or distributed.

This point promises to stir up a noisy controversy when congress gets around to appropriating relief money for the next fiscal year.

Mayor LaGuardia had this in mind when he criticized PWA before the mayors for insisting on the submission of detailed plans and specifications and for delaying the start of local projects until they could be passed upon and approved by federal officials.

"It is an entirely unnecessary loss of time," said the New York mayor.

Hoover's Viewpoint.

Former President Hoover, as titular head of the Republican party, in his most recent assault on the "new deal," put himself on record that:

"The administration of relief should be turned over to local authorities. Federal expenditures for relief should be confined to cash allowances to these authorities to the extent they are unable to provide their own funds."

Politically, the proposition is an extremely ticklish one. With a national election coming on, the question of how federal relief funds are to be administered after July 1, 1936, becomes one of increasing importance.

Secretary Ickes, in replying to Mayor LaGuardia raised the point that not every city or state, for that matter, is as fortunate as New York in having an able administrative and local staff.

Many contend the same situation holds with WPA.

Louisiana, For Instance.

There have been instances where administration of federal relief was taken out of the hands of local officials because the sections in question did not meet requirements. The state of Louisiana, under the regime of the late Huey P. Long, is one example.

Thus, with former President Hoover openly demanding that federal relief be turned over to local authorities, the Republicans presumably not averse to such a move in an election year, and "new dealers" contending administration of relief from Washington is necessary for efficiency, a merry battle is in prospect.

Center Markings On State Roads Safety Measure

Study Shows Marked Highways Have Fewer and Non-Fatal Accidents Than on Other Stretches

Raleigh, Dec. 3.—The number of automobile accidents, both fatal and non-fatal, has been definitely reduced on those stretches of highway on which continuous center stripes have been painted, according to Captain Charles M. Farmer of the State Highway Patrol, and others. Several years ago the State Highway and Public Works Commission selected several stretches of highways for experimentation in center striping and these experiments have shown definitely that center stripes reduce accidents.

One of the first experiments in continuous center striping, on straight sections as well as on curves and hills, was on Route 21 from Raleigh to Lillington, a distance of 33 miles.

"Before this stretch of highway was center lined, there were accidents on it every few days and a fatal accident every week or so," Captain Farmer said. "But after the continuous center stripe was painted on this road, there was only one fatal accident in two years and very few other accidents."

Captain Farmer also referred to the experimental marking on the highway between Greensboro and High Point, where three traffic lanes are marked off. Before these lanes were marked, there were many accidents on this stretch of highway. But since the traffic lines were put down, accidents on this stretch have almost ceased.

Coroner L. M. Waring of Wake county, said today that in the year before Route 21 was center lined to Lillington he was called upon to investigate six deaths on this road inside the Wake county line, but that in the 13 months after it was center lined, he was not called upon to investigate a single fatal accident.

The highway department at the present time is giving serious consideration to centerlining more of its highways and is investigating a new machine manufactured here by American Highway Markers, Inc., which can put down a continuous center stripe at a speed of ten miles an hour.

GENERAL CONTRACT IS LET FOR FWA SCHOOL PROJECT

will be provided from other sources, probably from the money derived from the operation of Alcoholic Beverage Control stores in the county.

The auditor said that the county had first figured on a $200,000 program and said that if the program had been kept to this figure the county would have been able to supply its part of $110,000 immediately.

It is estimated the total cost of the project will be $225,000. With Federal government granting $106,000, this would leave only $119,000 for the county to provide.

According to terms of the contract, work must be started on the project by December 15. Mr. Conley added, however, that work at that time would be composed chiefly of a preliminary nature such as clearing sites and digging foundations. He estimated actual construction work would be started about the first of the year.

The contract allows 335 days for the completion of the work, and the county superintendent said he expected it would be January, 1937, before all the work was finished. He added, however, he would like to have the buildings and additions completed in time to start the new school year next fall.

The project will hire between 200 and 300 men and will pay salaries ranging from a maximum of $30 a week to a minimum of $7.50. No employee will be allowed to work more than 30 hours a week.

"The project will do much to take up the surplus labor in the county, this labor is to be employed at the prevailing wage scale," said Supt. Conley.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The stock market brushed away some of its fears today and traders bought equities they had dumped overboard in previous sessions.

Reports that the Emperor of Ethio- pia had made moves for peace may have something to do with the re- coveries which ranged from frac- tions to around two points.

The rails were firm along with a number of specialties and other categories joined the rally. After a flurry in the second hour the list again turned quiet.

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.
