Sans Souci Club

Mrs. Charles S. Forbes was hostess to the Sans Souci Book Club Tuesday afternoon, November 3rd, and had as guests Mrs. Spilman, Mrs. Butler, and Mrs. J. L. Fleming.

The house was attractive with potted plants, and a large attendance enjoyed the afternoon.

Mrs. George Woodward presented a most charming program on "Scottish Cities and Castles," and made one feel that they had been permitted a visit to beautiful and regal Edinburgh, Sterling, twin-brother of Edinburgh, both so masculine and so great; to New York, Winchester and Dublin; the famous palace of Rosalyn and of Linlithgow, where Mary Queen of Scots was born and dark tragedy was written, the magnificence and grandeur of these edifices showing that the hardy Scots cared nothing for difficulties.

Mrs. Woodward had a splendid collection of photographs taken recently by her sister while visiting Scotland, and the "Clan Book," showing the varied and exquisite plaids. These were passed and enjoyed while she was giving her delightful picture of these cities and castles.

Mrs. Forbes, assisted by Mrs. Fred J. Forbes and Mrs. Sam White, served a delicious salad course with hot coffee. The Club then adjourned to meet with Mrs. J. B. James—Mrs. Waldrop and Mrs. James, hostesses, December 17th.

"Hello, Everybody, Hello"

One of the most attractive musical comedies of the season is being presented at the Belvoir-Falkland School, Friday evening, December 6, at 7:30 o'clock. A select cast of seventy-five people has been chosen to furnish you an evening's hilarious entertainment. Supporting the ten principals are various choruses doing snappy songs and dances. Special features of the show are: "The Gander Chorus" done by little boys, "A Broom chorus" by Tiny Tots, and tap dancing.

Triple Wedding

The marriage of Miss Evelyn Highsmith and Burney Moye, Miss Lottie Bell Pollard and Elbert Moye, Miss Gertie Lee Mayo and Edgar Allen took place on Sunday morning at nine o'clock at the home of Rev. C. J. Harris in Belvoir with Mr. Harris uniting the couples in marriage.

Mrs. Burney Moye wore a very becoming suit of dark green, trimmed with brown fur and brown and green accessories; Mrs. Allen a suit of brown with brown accessories, and Mrs. Elbert Moye a suit of navy blue with matching accessories. Their flowers were shouderettes of talisman roses.

Mrs. Burney Moye is the daughter of Mrs. Katie Highsmith, and Mr. Moye the son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Moye. Mrs. Elbert Moye is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Pollard and Mr. Moye the son of Mrs. Mary E. Moye. Mrs. Allen is the daughter of F. L. Mayo and Mr. Allen the son of Titus Allen.

After a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., they will make their homes near Greenville.

"Easy Pickin's"

"Easy Pickin's," a comedy in three acts, will be given by the senior class of the college, December 10 and 11, in Austin Auditorium.

Tack Humphrey, Billy Tolson, Joe Hatem, Alvah Page, Clifton Crawford, and Linelle Clark have excellent parts. Linelle Clark is from Grimesland and Clifton Crawford is from Ayden; the other players mentioned are from Greenville or are well known here.

The play is well adapted to the large cast. There are no "stumpy" parts. George (Jack) Humphrey and Margaret Bracton, after 25 years of struggling, have built the home of their dreams. They move into it and decide to give a house party to their friends of college days. The guests include a famous movie actress, a timid clerk (Billy Tolson) who is also a budding playwright, a hypochondriac, a federal agent (Joe Hatem), a man who has been a traitor to his government (Alvah Page), a petty thief, and a pair of lovers. (Clifton Crawford is one of the latter.)

While the play is a comedy it has plenty of dramatic touches to sustain the interest, and there is a vein of patriotism running through it. There are excellent comedy roles in the parts of the Chinese houseboy, Bridget (Linette Clark) and the police officer.

Miss Helen Dortch, of Goldsboro, is coaching the play. Miss Dortch has been active in the Little Theatre movement and is a former Carolina Playmaker.

DR. ENNETT IS SPEAKER FOR KIWANIS MEETING

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, will be the principal speaker at the regular meeting tomorrow night of the Kiwanis club.

Shower for Mr. and Mrs. Adams Bethel, N. C. Dec. 5.—On Tuesday evening, December third, Mr. and Mrs. Willard E. Andrews delightfully entertained at a miscellaneous shower at their home in Bethel, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Adams. Mrs. Adams before her marriage was Miss Clara Martin, of Bethel.

On arrival the guests were served punch, then after several games and contests Mr. and Mrs. Adams displayed their gifts, which were many and very beautiful.

A tempting salad then completed the evening. Out-of-town guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Martin, little Miss Peggy Martin, Mrs. James Earl Dees, Miss Bessie Ruth Martin, and Mr. Linwood Whichard of Greenville.

Marquette Letters Throw New Light On Early Explorer

Chicago, (AP)—Hitherto unpublished correspondence of the famous French explorer-priest of the seventeenth century, Father Jacques Marquette, is being translated here.

The letters, in Latin, were found by the Rev. Gilbert J. Garraghan, S. J., research professor of history at Loyola university, in the archives of the Church of Jesu, Rome.

From those already translated, he says he expects to be able to throw much additional light on Marquette who led the advance of the white man into the interior of America. He says it was the East Indies.

Coming To End Rupture Troubles

Representatives of Wm. S. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice Method for the self treatment of rupture at home, will be at the Proctor Hotel, Greenville, N. C., Saturday, Dec. 7. Also at the Briggs Hotel, Wilson, N. C., Mon. Dec. 9 to give a personal and free trial of his method to all sufferers who want to end rupture troubles and truss wearing.

No matter how bad the rupture, how long you have had it, or how hard to hold no matter how many kinds of trusses you have worn, let nothing prevent you from getting this FREE TRIAL. Whether you are tall and thin, short and stout, have a large abdomen, whether you think you are past help or have a rupture as large as your fists, this marvelous method will so control and keep it up inside as to surprise you. It will so restore the parts where the rupture comes through that soon you will be as free to work at any occupation as though you had never been ruptured.

The trial will be absolutely complete and thorough without a penny of cost. You owe it to your own personal comfort and safety not to miss the great free demonstration. It is a real opportunity to learn how you may be done with chafing trusses and the danger, suffering and trouble your rupture has caused.

The hours are 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m. and evenings 7 to 9. Remember the dates and place, Greenville, N. C., Proctor Hotel.

IT'S Christmas TIME!

AT

This seems as good a time as any to state our stand on Christmas. We'd be silly not to admit we're in the business to sell gifts. But if that were all—it wouldn't be much. Just to sell things at a price—that's no fun. But to have finer, brighter, fresher things that make folks say when they open their boxes Christmas morning, "Ah, that's nice—from Blount-Harvey"—there you have Christmas in a store like this.

As though magic has been wrought, this store has been thoroughly transformed into a treasure land of gifts. Every aisle and shop is literally overflowing with gifts and good cheer. You may be sure of finding gifts for all the people in all the corners of your heart!

This Christmas ad would not be complete unless we mentioned the DOLL SHOP. Shirley Temple in her curly-headed beauty, along with EFFANBEE and Patsy Dolls, reign there. Then, too, there's doll furniture, tea-party sets, blackboards, and even a train—so bring the kiddies—and let them play there while you shop.

"A gift from Blount-Harvey will mean more"

A drive for memberships and financial support of the Eastern North Carolina Association will get under way this city within the next few days and it is to be hoped that our business men, especially, will give their support to the organization. The Eastern North Carolina Association has meant much to this section of the way of savings in freight rates on certain commodities and the association is now waging a fight for the reopening of Tar River to Greenville, which if successful will mean still greater freight rate reductions in the future. The organization certainly deserves the support of this community.

Chief of Police George Clark today urged property owners to clean up their premises at once as a fire prevention measure for the Christmas holiday season. With the shooting of fireworks permitted in this city during the holidays the fire hazard here is greatly increased and the only way to overcome the dangers of serious fires from the fire-tracker is to see to it that every possible piece of inflammable rubbish is removed from your premises. In order to aid in this clean-up campaign the city has added extra trucks to the street cleaning department and these trucks will carry away the rubbish just as soon as the property owners place it in reach of the members of the department. Help prevent fires during the Christmas holidays by cleaning up your premises now.

emergency funds until Republican backers goaded him into it. Then Controller General McCarl and Budget Director Bell consumed another month before they decided whether other funds could be utilized. By that time most of the potatoes had gone to market ungrated and untaxed.

Not until last week did the Treasury get around to authorizing the printing of stamps for tax-exempt and tax-paid goods. It may be coincidence that the only potatoes reaching the market before Congress reaches Washington are a few from Florida and Texas—Democratic states. So the administration will have plenty of time to repeal or modify the law which the GOP planned to pass as an arch-scheme of bureaucracy and federal tyranny. It's just as if the British had disappointed colonial patriots by not trying to land tea at Boston.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Terry Willett is at the docks to see the shipment of equipment which the native government has been delaying for weeks at last gets aboard the boat. But Allaire West, whom he just has met at the Embassy ball, over-takes him and together they continue on what may be a dangerous mission. Terry gives Allaire his automobile, he tells the loss. Allaire, to put the freight aboard instantly. Allaire is delighted with Terry—pure steel, perfectly fearless.

Chapter Nine

HOT SPOT

ONCE long ago, Allaire had known Steve Perry, one of the greatest "Number Twos" in the polo world, whose father's factories made mill-cars while he made goals at Rane lach, Barham, Meadowbrook, Cannes.

She was supposed to be engaged to him—or was she? She remembered denying something or other—somewhere or other.

And George Fox, the attaché, and Ray West, unconcernedly shaking hands with LaMarr right before his wife's eyes.

Other faces jammed through her mind and were gone in the shadows of leaping flares, the dark-skinned faces of men who spoke in queerly soft tones, and looked at her while they worked—all a part of the sudden blind swing she had taken from a gleaming road.

They were bringing out the National Coffee Company freight now. There it was, Terry Willett!

The tall young man surveyed it thoughtfully.

"Perhaps," came Hildez faintly ironic tones, "you would prefer to give the order yourself for their lifting."

Terry released her arm then to run a tentative hand over one of the large crates.

"It may be so, but I don't trust you any further than I can see you, Hildez."

He pushed at the crate, tilted it a little. Hildez watched him as a patient husband watches a flighty wife buying a new hat.

"Huh," muttered Willett. He seized an iron pick from a silently impassive stevedore and pried up a board. "One moment," Hildez grabbing his arm, the noise of the crane suddenly ceasing, "you have already delayed me too long, Señor."

"Get away," Terry told him. "It's my freight and I've waited so long for it I could damn near swallow it. I'm taking a look—"

The other stepped back, smiling. Terry didn't care. This stuff was too all-important. He yanked up another board with a rasping screech and examined the contents, while the light from a nearby flare swept across his face.

A great many crumpled newspapers, a few carelessly wrapped iron bars—a hell of a lot like shining steel dredging blades, wasn't it? Hildez was too affable, and the box too queerly light.

His eyes glanced quickly at the other freight on the dock. He grabbed hold of a huge cumbersome crate that three men would have had trouble lifting and felt it swing under his heave. Light!—all this stuff was so damned strangely light.

Dummy freight! Operations had ceased all around him. Dummy freight to fit the bills of lading for government authorities at Propionaire.

A long moment of silence, and then he nodded casually at the girl. "Ever seen 'em getting a ship ready to do some gun running?" he inquired. "Take a look and imagine George Fox's embarrassment—"

"I think," Hildez said with a sleepy smile, "you should not—have said that—Señor—"

And suddenly he knew he shouldn't have. Not for himself so much as for a girl whom he had adopted into the whole scheme of things.

He scratched his armpit, and then as if to get at it more effectively, slid his hand under his coat. Then, and only then, did he remember he had given her the thing that made all men equal on the docks at Rosina B.

THE smell of the swamp was hot and permeating—like a reptile basked in the sun with the mud and slime of the river bottom encrusting its scales, a dull ever-present scent that stayed with the senses as a shocking scene stays with the mind.

A tall man stood in the doorway at a makeshift little hut, his throat open to the Medean caresses of the night, his lips cracked and dry. There was a heavy revolver hanging on his belt, and one hand rested on its butt.

With the other he slowly, mechanically rubbed the throbbing area beneath his helmet.

selection might react unfavorably on the public. He said, in effect, to friends at Washington:

"This is going to be a campaign of business and industry against the politicians. Everybody knows that we are opposed to the New Deal. Why shouldn't we say so with our money? We have a right to fight theories which we think are a threat to the country. We need money for the fight and we can get it."

What Mr. Strawn means is "Money talks." GOP insiders predict that they can raise from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 if such an

From time to time he blinked away the sweat that stung his eyes, eyes that in the handsome bearded face were suspiciously glaring and bloodshot. He seemed to be listening, waiting, while he watched the last rays of the sun stab a tropical sky with slashes of scarlet and gold, a benediction of beauty after the vicious heat of an interminable day.

Slanting rays fell across a dredging machine that extended from a reinforced bank out into the river on pontoons. It looked like a forlorn and deserted idea that had perished after its conception while the muddy water mocked its futility. And the tall man surveyed it, smiling wryly. "Sunset and evening star," he murmured. "Terry—"

Neither sunset nor evening star, but in the lights of burning flares Terence Willett leaned against a packing case on a tensely waiting dock and felt his impatience beginning to snap into fury.

Hildez was quite comfortable. He hadn't failed to notice how ineffectually the American had dropped his hand from the inside of his coat. He stuck a cigarette between his lips and held it in the very middle of his mouth. He looked like a fat Buddha with a lollipop stick.

"So, Señor?" he breathed.

"What," inquired Allaire, "goes forward? Or am I too young to hear disgraceful language?"

She was quite calm and unconcerned. Willett looked at her briefly. "The minute things start popping," he said in a low tone, "run, kid, and—don't forget your handbag."

It was only then that she remembered the flat deadly weapon she carried. The same queer little child she had received when he'd first given it to her swept swiftly over her now. The qualities of debonaire humor and cheerful recklessness in him that had attracted her were falling away before the same grim hardness of the weapon in her innocuous vanity bag.

Willett never tried to reason out the Fates. In a crisis he acted in the same way he lived—blinding speed backed by whipcord muscles and a semaphoric brain. He didn't wait for Hildez—he reached out and grabbed him by the lapel.

"Listen, you lousy Spig," he said grimly, "you can run guns into Propionaire harbor till kingdom come for all I care, but you're not killing my job any more."

"I'm leaving here now and coming back tomorrow. If my freight is aboard your hide's safe; if it isn't I'll see that this ship is interned plenty fast. Now, have you got that, you tenth son of a bald-headed polecat?"

Hildez' face was purple. The cigarette hung from his lower lip and the pouch under his chin shook like jelly.

Hildez spat out a gasping curse of the waterfront, the dives, the dark places of alley cats and slatterns, hurried with all the venom of which a rudely shaken waterfront dignitary was capable.

And then the girl saw somebody get "socked"—a most terrific piston-like drive from a man with deadly hands and suddenly merciless mouth. The sharp fleshy crack weakened her knees and brought the sound of distant drums to her ears.

Willett looked down at the poked Hildez without a trace of emotion on his face. The shipping boss rose on an elbow, then to a knee. His hand went slowly back to his head as if to clear his brow.

"Say that again," Terry invited, "and I'll break your neck. You're not talking to one of your thick-headed stevedores."

He turned quickly to the girl and found her staring past him with slowly widening eyes. Her evening bag fell opened at her feet and something suddenly roared from her hand, a detonation that rang out over the flare-lit quiet of Rosina B.

He jerked around. Hildez was still on one knee, but he was swaying back and forth as though he were rocking a child to sleep. Then he rolled over like a slow-motion picture of a harpooned whale and something that gleamed metallically fell out of his right sleeve.

"God!" Willett muttered. "Close."

The girl made no effort to move; the breath that caught in her throat was faintly audible. Willett took the weapon from her limp hand and confronted the paralyzed loading gang a moment.

tested. Since Hanna-McKinley days the voters would have voted the same way each year if not a nickel had been spent on their education. Cash never checks cycles of sentiment pro or con.

HEAT: Many Republican bigwigs disagree with Mr. Strawn, although they detest Rooseveltian reforms as warmly as he does. They counsel discretion and moderation. As one said at a recent Washington conclave, "What we've got to do is lift our attack on the administration out of this damned political atmosphere."

Unless they can make it appear that they oppose Mr. Roosevelt because of the New Deal's alleged threat to the "little fellow"—Herbert Hoover tried to do it in his last speech—they know Mr. Roosevelt will be able to depict the 1936 struggle as a clash between "the haves and the have-nots." He has sounded this note whenever the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and the American Liberty League have headed their views.

What they don't realize is that, no matter what strategy they devise, Mr. Roosevelt will continue to picture them in a selfish, unpleasant light. That's to be the Democratic theme song from now on. Mr. Roosevelt's Atlanta speech—a sample of presidential forensics for 1936—was only a warm-up. He hasn't turned on the heat yet.

POLITICS: Although President Roosevelt is still casting around for Jim Farley's successor as Postmaster General, the name of Frank Hague, of New Jersey, figures high in all discussions at the moment. He seems to fit more neatly into the political picture than such prospects as "Joe" Kennedy, Frank Walker, and Frank Murphy of Michigan, now governor general of the Philippines.

Mr. Hague has rich connections where the President hasn't a friend. The Jersey boss can roll up a Democratic vote in his bailiwick that will swamp Republican out-state majorities whenever the spirit moves him. He is about the only leader of the Smith-Ely coalition who has remained on speaking terms with the administration. He might be able to soften Taney's sullen animosity toward Mr. Roosevelt, and how the Tiger behaves next November may determine where New York's 47 electoral votes are busy in Washington—it's a showdown this time, once for all.

It will be seen as a sensational and coldly political move if Hague is chosen. As Al Smith's floor manager at Chicago, he let out a fierce blast predicting the permanent destruction of the Democratic party if FDR were nominated. Maybe Mr. Roosevelt didn't hear about it.

SERVICE: A playwright wouldn't dare strain his audience's credulity by including the scene in a political burlesque, but several reliable witnesses swear it happened.

A certain relief administrator—not Harry Hopkins—who flies about the country in an airplane telephoned the following message to a landing field about 150 miles from the Capital:

"I'll be up there in about two hours. I can't land comfortably over those trees. Have their top branches clipped. And if you can move the hangar back ten or twelve feet, too. It's in the way. I don't care how much of a job it is to clip the trees. Put 1,000 men to work on it if you need to. Oh, yes! I almost forgot. My wife is coming with me and she can't stand the noise of the motor as we land. Have some music playing so as to drown it out."

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN
ENTANGLED: Financial leaders recently returned from abroad report that most Europeans have the impression that the United States is really in full accord with the League of Nations and will co-operate to make its disciplining of Italy effective. Secretary Hull's speech several weeks ago about aggressive action to maintain peace and even more his attempt to impose an oil embargo have convinced them that our neutrality and the League's sanctions amount to the same thing in the end.

Informed sources understand that Secretary Hull has been privately nursing a theory that economic pressure is a more effective weapon than armed force in restraining unruly nations from running amuck. This naturally makes him sympathize personally with the League's efforts to chasten Il Duce—and even the way the League let him down on its proposed oil embargo is understood not to have altered his convictions. His interpretation of neutrality probably will not be acceptable to Congress—and Congress can be expected to declare itself forcefully when it meets.

Other Spending Seen Involved In AAA Ruling

Attorneys See More Than Legality of the AAA Processing Tax Hinging on Supreme Court Ruling

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Many government attorneys see much more than legality of the AAA processing tax hinging on the supreme court's forthcoming ruling on that measure.

Spending of tax money requires, eight southern rice millers to pay grant of power authorized by the constitution; but the only clause of that document they can find which gives the AAA that power is the "general welfare" provision for improving the condition of the entire country.

It was under this clause, the attorneys say, that the Louisiana and Alaska purchases were made, that agricultural extension is carried on, that relief is given the unemployed that the Tennessee valley authority is operating, and that the public health service, Smithsonian institution, and other old-time government agencies, are continued.

One argument
Thus, it is argued, if the supreme court should declare the AAA processing taxes, as such, unconstitutional, rather than merely the method of levying them, some doubt will be cast on the legality of these other activities.

Lawyers for receivers of the Hoosac Mills corporation, plaintiff in the test case asking repayment of processing taxes on cotton, are expected to argue that the levies are unconstitutional because the constitution does not specifically provide for them and also because congress unlawfully delegated its tax rate-making powers to the secretary of agriculture.

The government's petition to the court asking for a hearing of the case declared, on the other hand, that the act "represents the final decision of congress that federal assistance was and is needed to restore the normal functioning of the agricultural life of the nation and that such restoration was and remains vital to the halting of the disastrous period of depression which has threatened the country's very structure."

Millions Affected
It added that congress adopted the law after several years of considering the necessity for farm relief and recently had approved its administration, adding that "the provisions challenged in this case directly affect thousands of taxpayers, indirectly affect millions of consumers, and involve hundreds of millions of dollars of internal revenue."

Approval of the AAA by congress at this session in passing the amendments to the act, which attempted to forbid suits to collect taxes already paid, was questioned, however, in a supreme court ruling of November 25 which directed rich southern rice millers to pay the levy on rice into a special deposit. Instead of the treasury pending a decision on constitutionality of AAA.

Amendment Again
Many government officials have declared privately their belief that a ruling of unconstitutionality on AAA by the court immediately would result in a demand for an amendment to the constitution if the decision were based on irregularity of the taxes as such.

However, if it should hold only that the delegation of the taxing power to the executive branch of the government is unconstitutional, as it did in the case of code-making under NRA, then collection of processing taxes could be continued, they believe, because of the redefinition of tax rates at the last session of congress.

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Less Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diet, or Back-Breaking, Daring and Rolling Exercises.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by giving this gland the substance it lacks—millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way. Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So why not lose fat the easy way—without starvation diets or back-breaking, bending and rolling exercises? Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists.

would show that certain sound effects are conspicuously absent. In their place float great clouds of silence. In fact, the total cubic volume of silence is almost as far out of ordinary as is the noise itself.

Furthermore, an unusual amount of quiet between the thunder crashes promises to persist right through the campaign. The prospective "dead areas" hover over both parties, and vary widely in their characteristics.

Has anyone heard Al Smith talking about what he intends to do in 1936? Or John W. Davis? Or Herbert Hoover, in case the Republican nomination goes left-wing? Or William E. Borah, in case the national convention is dominated by Hoover?

Senators Glass and Byrd of Virginia have announced they are for the Democratic ticket, but does anyone expect either of them to take the lead in noise-making for Roosevelt next year? Has Senator Tydings of Maryland even whispered about the re-election campaign?

What has become of Reed Smoot? And Charles G. Dawes? Where does Charles D. Hilles stand on the question of a party nominee?

What are the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota and the LaFollette Progressive party in Wisconsin saying about national tickets?

All Sky
Amid all the talk about presidential possibilities, the lack of acknowledged candidates is astonishing. A novice at politics might suppose that no one at all intended to run next year.

Mr. Roosevelt says nothing whatever about running. That is the least surprising part of the story, however, because President customarily does not announce their desire to re-elected, and everyone takes it for granted they will run. On the Republican side the noise all can be summed up thus:

Former President Hoover is quoted as saying that sometimes such a thing as running for President "has to be done," but a Hoover aide denies the story. Senator Borah says "I can't say

I won't, when asked whether he will enter the Presidential primaries. Governor Landon of Kansas steadfastly gives the impression he is too busy to think about national politics.

Col. Frank Knox of Chicago makes speeches everywhere, but refuses to discuss candidacies. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan chins away from Presidential talk, hinting he thinks it would not be in good taste.

Representative Hamilton Fish of New York observes that he might "be compelled to run" if certain things happen. And there you are.

Answer Is Silence
Then there is the case of the American Liberty League, which includes in its directorate such considerable figures as John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee during the 1928 campaign.

The league is silent on some subjects only, but on those subjects it is utterly and oppressively silent. The chief one is 1936 candidacies. It attacks the Roosevelt policies often and at length, but it says nothing about its plans for '36.

Some months ago there were those in league circles who thought they saw an opportunity for a coalition ticket. Now some of them are said to be whispering that there may be a great Democratic uprising which will deprive Mr. Roosevelt of re-election. The difficulties in the way of that are obvious. What will the league do if the Republican candidate is Mr. Borah and the Democratic candidate is Mr. Roosevelt? And in any case, will the old-line Democrats who play so large a part in the league affairs go the length of bolting the Democratic ticket, whoever may be nominated by the Republicans? Silence answers.

SAYS EDWIN C. KENT
2616 Buchanan Street, San Francisco, Calif.

"I'll admit I'm keen on getting my money's worth. I have to be," continues Mr. Kent. "And when it comes to whiskey, I play safe by buying Old Drum. It has the flavor and mellowness of whiskeys costing at least 50% more, and yet its price is just right for me."

THAT'S WHY I STICK TO OLD DRUM
Old Drum is a real boon to folks who enjoy and serve good whiskey—yet haven't a barrel of money to spend."

AMAZING! PALATE POLL REVEALS OLD DRUM WORTH 40% MORE!

Old Drum—the taste and value sensation of America! A whiskey that's riper, smoother, more wonderfully mellow—that is distilled from the same top quality grain used for costliest whiskeys—that hundreds in nation-wide poll of palates voted to be worth 40% more than it actually sells for!

Ask for Old Drum. Get this drinkable whiskey that sells at a "cents-ible" price. Compare it with any "straight" or "blend" in its price class. You'll see why Old Drum is creating such a sensation today—why it is winning new thousands everywhere! You can't beat Old Drum!

New York Cotton

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, unchanged to three higher with steady Liverpool cables offset by Southern and foreign selling.

The market held steady at the end of the first hour with active months about one to three points net higher.

The market continued quiet in the morning later when active months were ruling about one to three net higher. Another private crop report placed the indicated yield at 10,792,000 bales compared with a forecast of 11,233,000 last month.

Cotton futures closed steady one to six lower; spot quiet; middling, 12.20.

New York, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Conflicting war news and a renewal of political and economic tension in Europe made for restraint on the stock exchange today.

After a steady opening stock turned although good buying continued in the so-called inflationary group including metals and oils. Utilities likewise, edged forward in contracts to rails.

The late stock tone was firm. Sales approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Duke To Observe Anniversary of Dr. William Few Soon

President Inaugurated as Head of Trinity University, Now Duke, 25 Years Ago

Durham, N. C., Dec. 5.—Twenty-five years of the achievement of Duke university and consideration of the task that lies ahead for the institution and its alumni will be outlined on December 9 at a dinner observing the twenty-fifth anniversary of the inauguration of Dr. William Preston Few as president of Trinity college, which since 1914 has been Duke university and includes Trinity.

The principal speaker at the dinner will be Dr. Bruce R. Payne, president of the George Peabody College for Teachers, at Nashville, Tennessee, a member of the Trinity class of 1896. Col. John F. Bruton, chairman of the university board of trustees, will preside over the dinner.

Those invited to the dinner will represent all groups of the university family, members of the board of trustees, faculty members, officers of the general alumni and alumnae associations, presidents of local alumni groups, and leaders of student organizations.

In addition to the address of Dr. Payne, brief remarks will be made by representatives of the university groups pertaining to the development of the college into full university activity.

Dr. Few came to Trinity college in 1894 as professor of English literature and in 1902 was elected first dean of the college. He was inaugurated president of the college November 9, 1910, succeeding Dr. John C. Kilgo who had resigned to become a bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Remarkable growth of the university has paralleled Dr. Few's administration, both in regard to the physical plant and the inner development. The student enrollment has grown from fewer than 400 students to 3,400. The library has increased from 37,000 volumes to 421,000 volumes, and the staff of faculty and officers from 37 to 397.

BROOMCORN TRAIL LEADS NOWHERE IN THEFT CASE

Oklahoma City (AP)—Farmer Lige Moseley was "just sure" that was his broomcorn.

After the theft of 600 pounds of broomcorn from his Garvin county farm, Moseley testified he and a neighbor followed a trail of broomcorn ears several miles to the home of a farmer accused — and later convicted — of the theft.

Defense attorneys summoned witnesses who testified that more than 100 tons of broomcorn had been hauled over the same road.

Moseley alleged he knew every stalk picked up along the highway was his.

But the state criminal appeal court set aside the conviction on the ground of insufficient evidence.
