Greenville High School Among Those Retained On List Of Association

Greenville High Not Among 47 in State Dropped

ONLY 37 SCHOOLS REMAIN ON LIST

Local High Meets Requirements of Southern Association of Colleges and Schools

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—(AP)—47 North Carolina high schools were dropped from membership this week by the southern association of colleges and secondary schools.

Dr. J. Henry Highsmith, chairman of the association, said there were now 34 high schools in the state which were members of the association, 14 of them being privately conducted.

"No school in the state has to be long to the association," Dr. Highsmith said "but the fact that our schools cannot meet the standard met by schools of other states, I think, shows that we lack something."

Graduates of the 47 schools dropped from membership in the Southern Association will be faced with taking entrance examinations if they try to enter college outside the state, but they will not have to take examinations to enter colleges in North Carolina if the high school from which they are graduated is state-approved.

The eight months school term which falls short of the association standard of 175 days was the primary reason the schools were dropped. Other reasons were excessive pupil loads, salary schedules for the teachers below the $900 minimum set by the association and lack of proper library facilities.

Schools dropped from membership include: Beaufort, Dunn, Edenton, Elizabeth City, Fayetteville, Gastonia, Henderson, Hickory, High Point, Kinston, Raleigh, High Point, Kinston, Raleigh, Scotland Neck, Selma, Smithfield, Washington, Wilmington, New Hanover, Wilson, Charles L. Coon high.

Schools retaining membership included Greenville, Morehead City, and New Bern.

Georgia Governor Said Willing Not to Name Delegates

Source Says Governor Will Allow Holding of Presidential Preference Primary

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Confident of their grounds, friends of Governor Eugene Talmadge indicated today they are willing to test his strength against that of President Roosevelt at the ballot box.

A source closely associated with the governor indicated Talmadgeites in the State Democratic Executive committee have about decided on holding a presidential preference primary early in the year.

If this plan is carried out, it means the governor is so certain of his stand with the voters of Georgia that he won't attempt to have the Georgia delegates to the convention selected by the committee.

During the year the governor had the committee purge off those described as "lukewarm" Talmadge supporters, and observers concede he has sufficient backing in the committee to have it name the delegates.

Owners of Vehicles To Save Big Sums In Cost Of License

New Tags Will Go on Sale December 15, Cars Must Have New Licenses First of Year

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Automobile owners of North Carolina will save more than 1,500,000 yearly beginning with the sale of 1936 automobile license tags, through the reduction made by the 1935 legislature for the plates.

The new tags will go on sale at 49 branch offices and the State Department of Revenue here on December 15th.

The 1936 tags are going to be light chrome on black, which means light green on black.

Under the state law a car cannot be operated on the highways after the first day of the calendar year unless it has a tag for that year, and motor vehicle bureau officials say strict enforcement will be carried out after January 1.

ASK FARMERS FOR OPINION

Meeting of Farmers Called for Next Tuesday Night

A meeting of Pitt county farmers has been called by E. F. Arnold, county agent, for next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the courthouse at which time the agriculturalists' opinions will be sought on President Roosevelt's long-term farm programs.

Mr. Arnold said local opinions are needed immediately on certain questions to assist in the formulation of national adjustment programs.

A committee of the farmers will be named to set up a working plan to assemble data on the farming situation and prospects in the county. Following the gathering of such information by the committee, farmers of the county will be called to consider the findings of the body and when finally approved the information will be forwarded to the Federal Agricultural Administration.

It was pointed out that the farm administration desires the opinion of the farmers themselves before any definite program is outlined for long-time farming.

The administration is asking the farmers of each county to answer three questions in regard to farming activities. They are:

1. Probable production of the various farm products in 1936, assuming normal weather conditions, present farming practices, prospective prices, and 1936 production and marketing control programs.

2. Probable production of the various farm products in 1936, under the same assumptions as in 1, but without either production or marketing control programs.

3. Probable production of the various farm products in 1936, assuming normal weather and prospective prices, but without either production or marketing control, and if farm practices had been adjusted to maintain soil fertility and control erosion.

Personal Canvass To Start Tuesday For Sale Of Seals

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, Local Chairman for Annual Drive, Makes Announcement to Seal Workers

Mrs. J. H. B. Moore, local chairman of the annual Tuberculosis Christmas seal sale, announced today that canvassers would take the field Tuesday and make an individual canvass.

The decision to start workers out Tuesday was made at a meeting for all workers called by Mrs. Moore. The annual drive was discussed and details for the work put in final shape.

It was also announced today that booths for the sale of the seals will be placed in "key" positions within the city in a few days. The booths will be placed at the postoffice, banks and business houses.

Business firms already have been given the opportunity to purchase the seals. Efforts are being made to reach the homes of the city through the churches, schools and various women's clubs.

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, county chairman of the sale, addressed the Kiwanis club last night, speaking on the tuberculosis problem in Pitt County.

Magistrate Rowlett also heard a charge of carrying a concealed weapon against Sam Parker, also colored. The man was bound over to County court under $200 bond, which was furnished.

CHIANG GIVEN FULL POWERS OF DICTATOR

Chinese Military Overlord Succeeds Wang Ching-Wei

Future Course Sino-Japanese Relations Placed on Shoulders of Generalissimo

Nanking, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The central Chinese government executive committee announced today the election of generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek as chairman of the executive Yuan giving him the full responsibility of a virtually dictatorship.

General Chiang, military overlord of central China, succeeds former Premier Wang Ching-Wei, who was wounded recently by an assassin, to the post which is tantamount to the premiership.

In view of Chiang's dominance of the most important department of the Government become more than ever a one-man regime. He continues to hold the chairmanship of the military affairs commission.

General Chiang, speaking for the Japanese military Major General Isagai, said Chiang's assumption of National control in name as well as in reality was a logical move.

General Isagai asserted "this places the responsibility for the further course of Sino-Japanese relations squarely on his shoulders."

The election following by only a day the declaration by a government spokesman that the crisis arising from demands for separation of north China from the central government had grown worse.

KIDNAP CASE CLAIMS MADE

Hauptmann Defender Given Chance During Trial

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Ellis H. Parker, the Burlington county detective who believes Bruno Hauptmann innocent, told the state during the Hauptmann trial at Flemington that he had "nothing of any value" on the case, it was learned today from a high official.

Parker made the statement, the Associated Press source said, at a conference attended by Assistant Attorney General Robert Peacock of the Flemington trial staff, Lieut. Arthur Keaton of the state police who worked on the Lindbergh investigation and other members of the prosecution and police staff.

The conference was arranged, the official said, because "we were tired of hearing about Parker and all the important information he was supposed to have on the case" and a showdown was decided upon.

Complete detail of the conference were not divulged but the official said that during its course Parker was asked point blank if he had any evidence or clues of value on the case.

Parker's answer, the official said, was that he had nothing of any value on the case.

Local Men Attend Home Loan Meeting

Salisbury, Dec. 7.—Plans were completed here this week for the servicing of approximately 12,000 loans which have been made in North Carolina by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. At a meeting of all District Service Supervisors and their field men with representatives of the executive staff of the State Office here and the Regional Office at Atlanta, the new operations of the corporation were thoroughly discussed and the men who will do the work instructed as to the procedure.

Present for the meeting were Robert B. Davis of Greenville, District Supervisor, and William C. Whedbee, John Creedon and R. L. Deal of Greenville, field representatives.

JAPS DEMAND NAVAL PARITY

Will Demand Navy Equal To Those of Other Nations

London, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Japanese delegations to the forthcoming international naval conference advised the British Admiralty today that Japan demands balanced parity with the United States and Great Britain in reality and not merely in name.

Further, the Japanese told the British that no other questions can be discussed at the parley, opening next Monday, until Japanese demands for parity are met.

This means that the Japanese are standing solidly for a navy equal in size and strength to that of Great Britain and the United States, the stand which threatened long preliminaries by bilateral conversations this year and to Japan's denunciation of the Washington and London naval treaties.

Today's conference was arranged at the request of the Japanese in order that they might officially advise the British of their stands.

Speech Made by Premier in Chamber of Deputies

RECEIVED WITH MUCH APPLAUSE

Says Peace Negotiations Do Not Signify Happy and Rapid Conclusions

Rome, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy, defied the 52 nations which have imposed sanctions against Italy in a speech amid stormy applause in the chamber of deputies today.

"When we have reached the 365th day of the siege," he proclaimed, "we will have the same will, the same courage, the same determination as on the first day."

He referred to a "peace appeal" made to him this morning by Sir Eric Drummond, the British Ambassador by saying:

"In these last few hours there has appeared a slight improvement in the atmosphere, but I must put you on your guard against premature or excessive optimism."

The Premier told his followers that the conference in Paris between Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare "do not signify negotiations."

Then he added significantly, "and when ever negotiations may be started it is not certain they will reach a happy and rapid conclusion."

"We have been asked to make known our unshakable demands. This request is out of order because on October 16 we made them known to the French government."

But instead of concrete concessions, sanction have come against the aggressor."

SEIZE OFFICE IN ROAD WAR

License Bureau Taken Over By Johnson's Forces

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 7.—(AP)—Company P. National Guardsmen seized a disputed highway license office at Charleston today under orders of Governor Olin Johnston and the military command the governor set up over the highway department, saying similar action would be taken elsewhere in state if necessary.

Major Frank H. Barnwell, military commander of the road board, said that the Governor took over in a coup October 28, said Captain Joe Bates, Lieut. O. W. Harmon and eight enlisted men of the Olinburg machine company had assumed control at Charleston "on instructions of the governor."

The military commander added that in case similar episodes happened in other parts of the state, "we would have to retain the offices of the highway department" with troops.

With both state highway and federal funds for roads cut off, Johnson apparently faced a desperate crisis in his fight against the 14-man highway commission which the court reinstated Thursday after he had ousted it.

Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declined an invitation by John L. Lewis today to quit his present post and head an industrial union committee.

Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, had proposed that Green take his place as chairman of the committee formed with the American Federation of Labor recently to bring millions of mass production workers into industrial rather than craft unions.

"To respond to the suggestion of President Lewis would mean that I would lend my assistance to the development of dissension in the American Federation of Labor, and that I cannot do," Green told reporters.

"Little Rains" Starting Soon, To Test Trucks

Rainy Season Starting in Ethiopia in January Big Problem Facing Italy's Warriors

By ANDREW BEEDING
ASMARA, Eritrea, Dec. 7.—(AP)—

What will happen to Italy's big army in Ethiopia when the rainy season comes and sky torrents turn roads into quagmires where men sink to the hip and animals founder and die?

This is a question preoccupying foreign journalists here who have had military experience. Those experts range from an English general to a French lieutenant.

Some 110,000 men now are lined up on Italy's northern front. More are constantly arriving. They are 50 miles beyond the old border.

In January comes the season of the "little rains," the unimportant one lasting until March. This should not bother them much.

But the real rainy season starts the end of May and lasts until September, blotting out the face of the earth with a sheet of water.

When that evil day comes, the roads constructed so laboriously the last few weeks to enable trucks to carry up provisions and ammunition will be wiped out. Officers make no secret of it.

"Only roads with a strong stone foundation will stand up," said an engineering major. "And less than ten per cent of our roads beyond the old frontier are of that nature."

Most of the roads built by the Italians since they crossed the border follow the old caravan routes. Those trails have been widened, straightened, banked, reinforced with gravel—but in the main they are dirt roads.

Trucks in dry weather grind them into powder six inches deep inside a week. Road crews constantly are at work on them.

In the rainy season the caravan trails themselves were impassable, even for mules and camels. The roads will be little better.

What, therefore, will happen to the big Italian army? Supplies cannot be brought up in trucks. There is not enough in the countryside to support the troops. The trucks, even now, are having all they can do to bring up sufficient supplies, so no surplus can be laid by.

Perhaps, it is suggested, the majority of the troops, after having occupied that part of Ethiopia that Italy desires, will return to Eritrea, leaving strong garrisons in the strategic points.

Another suggestion is that air transport will be used. Airplanes could take off from Asmara and easily at Asmara or Makale.

However, the pay load that a plane can carry in the mountainous war theatre is comparatively small.

Air transport, therefore, even taking into account its rapidity and the frequency of round trips, would feed and munition only a small portion of the troops.

One thing is certain—all the fighting that is to be done must be completed before the "big rains." What the Italian high command will do then with its huge body of soldiers will form an interesting chapter of modern warfare.

DOZEN PERSONS DIE FROM RAID

Spot Bombed Where Fascists Thought Emperor Selassie Was Located

(By Associated Press)

Great Britain made another appeal today to Premier Mussolini of Italy to stop the war with Ethiopia.

An official London source announced that the British ambassador to Rome, Sir Eric Drummond, had conveyed the new appeal to Il Duce himself in a conference.

The fascist "rain of death" bombs from roaring Italian airplanes smote the field headquarters of the Ethiopian King of Kings for a second time today.

Casualties were not announced. Hard on the heels of Friday's air attack on Dessye, which destroyed the palace of Emperor Haile Selassie and killed a dozen persons today's foray of Italian planes was announced at the Ethiopian capital Addis Ababa and confirmed from Asmara in the Italian colony of Eritrea.

Haile Selassie escaped the bullets and bombing bombs of his enemies yesterday but in addition to those killed, nearly 200 were wounded and the American hospital and Red Cross tent were struck.

The apparent objective of the air raids was described in a dispatch sent by the Associated Press that related that 18 machines, twice the number which participated in yesterday's flight, "bombed the spot where the Italians believed Emperor Haile Selassie was staying."

The Emperor arrived at Dessye about a week ago to direct military operations.

In the Italian capital today the fascist dictator may reply to peace overtures being made jointly by Great Britain and France, the two countries identified with pushing sanctions on Italy through action of the league of nations.

In a word Italian sources hope Il Duce's pronouncement would convince sanctionists countries their attempts to dissuade Italy from its Ethiopian campaign were futile.

Undeterred, however, by Italian belligerency Premier Pierre Laval of France and Sim Manuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, planned a conference in Paris to draft a definite peace program sufficient to both Italy and Ethiopia.

FRIDAY'S CASUALTIES SAID 53 DEAD AND 300 WOUNDED

With Emperor Haile Selassie at Dessye, Ethiopia, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Ethiopian authorities stated tonight that the total casualties from Friday's bomb raid by an Italian air squadron were 53 dead and more than 300 wounded.

Farm Bureau Head To Make Address Here In January

Speech Probably Be Held In Connection With Formal Opening of New Offices of Farm Agent

President O'Neal of the Farm Bureau, national organization of farmers, has tentatively accepted an invitation to make an address in Greenville some time during January, E. F. Arnold, Pitt farm agent announced today.

Mr. O'Neal's address will be made some time after the farm agent's offices are moved to their new quarters in the Tucker home on Third street, and will possibly be held in connection with a formal opening of the new quarters.

It is not known when the offices will be removed from the Edwards building, but the farm agent, said he hoped to move by or around the first of the year.

The County commissioners authorized the purchase of the building at a regular meeting this week. Possibly other offices, besides those of Mr. Arnold, will be located in the building. No announcement has been made, however, as to what offices will be transferred.

Remember that at this season of the year the post offices of the country do a rushing business and if you have Christmas mailing to do, don't put it off until the last minute. Delaying until the last minute to do your Christmas mailing might mean that the gifts you are sending away might not reach their destination until after Christmas is over. Wrap securely, address plainly and mail early is the advice the post offices are giving their patrons at this season of the year.

Beginning the first of next week the individuals of our city will be canvassed to buy Tuberculosis Red Cross Seals. The money derived from the sale of the seals in this community will be used here next year to aid needy tubercular patients and aid in the fight to stamp out the disease. A purchase of these Christmas seals is an investment in the future health of the community. When you are called upon, be sure that you purchase a quantity of seals and then use them on all letters and parcels you mail between now and Christmas.

CZAR: The Roosevelt boys don't dare to express their inner feeling toward Comptroller General McCarl too frankly. If they did, the public might get the strange idea that they were not sympathetic to his chitching at the purse strings. But half the Cabinet has begged FDR at one time or another to permit a legal test of the C. G.'s power to prohibit use of money for New Deal experiments. They still argue that the courts would uphold the administration's superior right to determine whether any proposed expenditure was legal. Attorney General Cummings rendered several opinions that Mr. McCarl was usurping authority.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, resisted these pleas even when some of his pet projects were ruled out. He preferred to remain on friendly terms with the financial czar. But now the time has changed. Certain presidential advisers suggest that the law be modified so that the next Comptroller General will be simply an auditor-external-expense and not a "fourth branch of the government." NEVER MIND THE LADY

SYNOPSIS: Allaire West, helping Terry Willett in a quarrel with Willett, looking boss who is substituting for the missing card for the equipment Terry needs to force to shoot Willett. And now Terry and George Fox, attacked at the American embassy, are doing their best to figure out a way to keep Allaire out of the affair. To complete the situation, the country is on the verge of revolution, and nobody, not even the bystanders, is really safe.

Chapter 11
ON THE CARPET

"She's a swell girl, Terry," said Fox. "They mustn't pick up her trail. God, this is a mess. What are you going to do?"

Willett flicked his cigaret out into the street.

"Me?" he repeated. "I'm sailing on the 'Parajabo' tomorrow. I know plenty about that ship—her crew won't stop me, that's a cinch."

"Oh—" said the attaché uncertainly. He took a brief pull at his cigaret and then threw it away.

"Yes, I guess you'd better. Wouldn't be surprised to see things break wide open any day now. Coastwise trade will be stopped—you'd better cut your stick for your camp." He hesitated. "Only—"

Willett looked at him.

"I have a job to finish." His voice was flatly final. "Can't muck this chance of getting away."

"No," agreed Fox, "you can't—God, this is a mess."

Willett gestured at the car.

"Better park it out of sight for a few days. Somebody might be watching for it. So long, George."

Fox said something. Willett walked away. He looked back over his shoulder and saw the attaché still standing by the car.

Yes, Fox was covering that girl. Hell, wasn't that what the American Foreign Service was for?

Rule One: "Protecting and—"

He suddenly remembered he needed a drink.

THE American Ambassador called his staff to the Embassy study shortly before noon the next day.

"Everyone is to stand by today regardless of previous engagements," he told them. "The latest word from the President's palace is that the new tax bill will be signed in its entirety, not excluding the coffee industry."

He regarded his staff searchingly, eyes moving from face to face. "You know what that means, gentlemen. It is all the Prohibition crowd has been waiting for. I'm afraid we're in for a little trouble."

He paused and looked at George Fox. That young man's mind seemed to be wandering in the highways and byways of something distinctly alien to the President's latest tax on the smouldering coffee country.

His Excellency frowned slightly. A revolution camped down around their ears and a certain attaché clasped his hands on his chest and stared vacantly at the ceiling.

"Mr. Fox," he rumbled, "I should like to see you privately a moment. All right, gentlemen, that is all for the present."

Dent and the others withdrew. Fox stood up and went over before the stevedore's mahogany desk.

"Yes, sir?"

The Old Man thought quite highly of his attaché, but he bent a rather severe glance on him now.

"I understand perfectly that Legation Club parties and like affairs are in the line of your duty," he remarked. "But you really don't have to go to sleep under my nose, Mr. Fox. Tell me—have you been to bed?"

Fox hadn't. And there was a receptacle crammed with cigaret stubs in his room that would have been more in place at an Eik's smoker. But under the Old Man's searching eyes he hastily jumped back on the diplomatic wagon.

"I'm sorry, sir," he apologized rapidly. "I've been thinking. About that polo party."

"So have I," nodded the Ambassador. "They can't sail for a week."

"I've looked up sailing schedules," Fox said eagerly. "They don't have to wait a week. They're a ship sailing for Vera Cruz day after tomorrow and there they can be picked up almost immediately by a cruise ship on her way to New York."

"You seem to have done some tail figuring," The Old Man rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Not a bad idea, either. Better that way than possibly having to send them off on a battleship. The sooner we get all transient Americans out of here the less we'll have to worry about. Sure of your dates, Mr. Fox?"

"Absolutely positive, sir," Fox couldn't have been more emphatic if he'd thumped the desk.

"Well," the Ambassador commented his sponsors speak of it rather wistfully as "our dream farm plan."

Serious research began last spring about the time that the Supreme Court knocked out AAA's legislative twin, the NRA. Ordinarily it would require two or three years to reorganize agricultural land and crops in accord with this long-time program and FDR originally planned to defer action until his second term—if and when.

When the researchers have been told to hurry up. The administration must have a substitute for AAA if processing taxes and benefit payments are held unconstitutional a few months hence. Even though it could not be put into effect for 1936 crops, it would serve as a talking point—and a promise—in the presidential election. The claim the Republican trademark as its own. Undisputed possession of that trademark would be worth plenty.

If industry succeeds in this purpose—thereby shoving western GOP liberals back into the wings—the party will be obliged to take the position, at least indirectly, that the salvation of the country lies primarily in better business and that what's good for business is good for the nation as a whole. This would be in line with Calvin age necessary to raise sufficient amounts of many major crops for the foreign and home markets. Next the government would ascertain what regions were most suitable for growing each particular product.

Here is the stage where the new plan differs widely from the existing system: The AAA was framed to meet an emergency, to increase farm prices and buying power. It served to maintain—the present farm plant by inducing growers to keep on raising the same stuff. It gave more thought to the individual farmer than to the future of agriculture. It made little provision for rotation of crops, soil erosion, land fertility. Under the new program, preservation and more economic use of land would be a major objective along with improvement of the farmer's lot.

To break down the nation's farms in this way, and to negotiate different contracts with each individual farmer, strikes even Wallace as imaginative, though not impossible. Anyway, that's "Squire Roosevelt's" permanent plan."

By JAMES McMULLIN
COMPROMISE: The head of one of the largest utility groups in the country is going to try to start a new train of public thought on the subject of federal utility legislation. His approach will be "Let's be reasonable about this business. Now that everybody has had a chance to blow off steam, let's forget the fireworks and see if it isn't possible to work out some sane formula which will accomplish the reforms the administration has in mind without destroying the foundations of the industry." He intends to hammer away at this idea whenever he gets a chance.

He doesn't expect to get far with it at first. He knows he will meet strong opposition among his own colleagues and admits that a majority of power chiefs are determined to kill off the idea of federal regulation once and for all. And naturally he expects strenuous objections from the political side. But he figures that if public opinion can gradually be mobilized in favor of a "rational compromise" it will only be a question of time before counsels of moderation prevail over extremists at both ends. He is sufficiently influential to assure that his views will get wide circulation.

Insiders who have sounded out their Washington contacts lately report a growing sentiment in Congressional circles for new utility legislation which would eradicate abuses without keeping the courts so busy overtime. But Democratic legislators nearly always hedge their remarks on the subject by adding in effect that "it's up to the Boss—and we don't know whether he would stand for it."

ed dryly, "you don't need to get so all-fired excited about it. I'll talk with Mr. West today and you be on hand if I should want you. And for Heaven's sake, boy, start catching up on your sleep. Every time I look at you I feel like taking a nap."

Fox left the study and returned to his desk. Captain Dent grinned sympathetically.

"What's the matter, George?" he inquired. "Didn't you dance with one of the fat wives of the War Department or something? Well, I guess that's all over for a while. We'll be ducking Washington despatches and hauling errand fellow-citizens out of harm's way from now on."

He sighed.

"I'd planned on going out to Decerno to see Allaire West take off today. Be interesting, that. I imagine flying for the first time after a terrible crack-up is a lot like going swimming right after you nearly drowned."

"And," he mused reflectively, "I know that feeling. Not sure of yourself and your ability to stay up. All you can think of is what will happen if you should get a sudden cramp or swallow too much water."

George Fox heard him rather indistinctly. He'd completely forgotten this was the day when Allaire took the controls and she dreaded it. "You don't think, you don't breathe—you just wait. And last night—"

Stand by, the Ambassador had said. Fox went out of the Embassy and looked around for his car. It dawned on him after several minutes that he had carefully stored it away for the time being. He went to the Alvic in a taxi.

ALLAIRE lived far more exclusively than her parents. Her private suite was high, fronted the harbor, and was accessible only by a flight of steps from the last lift exit. Her maid took him out on the terrace and withdrew.

She was dressed in white and had a corsage of the country's famous wild orchids pinned on her shoulder. The attaché sat down beside her and impulsively took one cool hand in both of his.

"I know everything, Allaire," he said. "Willett told me. I phoned you early this morning, but you couldn't be located."

"I went swimming."

He looked at her uncertainly. "Swimming?"

"Swimming. George. The water was cold as the devil, but the sun was beautiful."

There was something strange about her. She seemed so perfectly composed that he felt it was useless to advise her not to worry, but he did anyhow for want of something better to say.

"I'm not worrying," She smiled at him. "Sat up all night looking at the lights of the harbor and wondering what makes the world go round. I suppose you'll think me absolutely hopped, but for some strange reason I felt as though everything had been taken out of my hands. Nice comfortable feeling like that of somebody taking orders and liking it."

Fox began to feel slightly dizzy. Allaire taking orders?—From whom? Not from her father, that was sure. She would have told him where to head in if he'd dared to try it.

"What made you run off last night?"

She shrugged.

"Oh, one of those things. Somebody was going somewhere and not afraid of anything he might find along the way. I went along for the ride."

"Ride is right," he agreed fervently. "As an engineer Willett is one of the best, but as a companion he's dynamite. He doesn't care what he does or where he does it. Just as well, I guess, that he's cleared the city."

There was a sudden breathless silence. He was astonished to find her looking at him as though he had said something profane.

"What did you say?"

"Say? Why, I said Willett has left the city. He's on the 'Parajabo'."

"Really how do you know?" Her tone was almost imperious.

"He told me last night he was sailing."

The girl leaned back with a strange smile curving her lips.

"So that's it," she commented. "Every man for himself."

Her maid appeared with word that Major Herrera's car was ready to take her to the Decerno flying field. Allaire didn't even look at her and Fox took it upon himself to send a message.

Terry Willett takes a course he had planned, tomorrow.

PLAN: The scheme involves first of all a determination of the acreage necessary to raise sufficient amounts of many major crops for the foreign and home markets. Next the government would ascertain what regions were most suitable for growing each particular product.

Here is the stage where the new plan differs widely from the existing system: The AAA was framed to meet an emergency, to increase farm prices and buying power. It served to maintain—the present farm plant by inducing growers to keep on raising the same stuff. It gave more thought to the individual farmer than to the future of agriculture. It made little provision for rotation of crops, soil erosion, land fertility. Under the new program, preservation and more economic use of land would be a major objective along with improvement of the farmer's lot.

To break down the nation's farms in this way, and to negotiate different contracts with each individual farmer, strikes even Wallace as imaginative, though not impossible. Anyway, that's "Squire Roosevelt's" permanent plan."

By JAMES McMULLIN
COMPROMISE: The head of one of the largest utility groups in the country is going to try to start a new train of public thought on the subject of federal utility legislation. His approach will be "Let's be reasonable about this business. Now that everybody has had a chance to blow off steam, let's forget the fireworks and see if it isn't possible to work out some sane formula which will accomplish the reforms the administration has in mind without destroying the foundations of the industry." He intends to hammer away at this idea whenever he gets a chance.

He doesn't expect to get far with it at first. He knows he will meet strong opposition among his own colleagues and admits that a majority of power chiefs are determined to kill off the idea of federal regulation once and for all. And naturally he expects strenuous objections from the political side. But he figures that if public opinion can gradually be mobilized in favor of a "rational compromise" it will only be a question of time before counsels of moderation prevail over extremists at both ends. He is sufficiently influential to assure that his views will get wide circulation.

Insiders who have sounded out their Washington contacts lately report a growing sentiment in Congressional circles for new utility legislation which would eradicate abuses without keeping the courts so busy overtime. But Democratic legislators nearly always hedge their remarks on the subject by adding in effect that "it's up to the Boss—and we don't know whether he would stand for it."

If industry succeeds in this purpose—thereby shoving western GOP liberals back into the wings—the party will be obliged to take the position, at least indirectly, that the salvation of the country lies primarily in better business and that what's good for business is good for the nation as a whole. This would be in line with Calvin age necessary to raise sufficient amounts of many major crops for the foreign and home markets. Next the government would ascertain what regions were most suitable for growing each particular product.

Coolidge's remark that "the country always favors reform so long as it doesn't interfere with business."

If the Republicans do take this position the issue will be almost as clear as if it were drawn square-ly between the "haves" and the "have nots." Keen New York observers remark that business improvement is no guarantee of Roosevelt's reelection. Improvement of morale resulting from recovery encourages resistance to regimentation and stimulates the appetite of business men to be let alone.

which is possible only under GOP leadership. Insiders predict that the party will name a presidential candidate who loans the furthest to the right that political considerations permit when the convention meets.

PERMANENT: Rentals and benefit payments to farmers amounted to $229,000,000 in the fiscal year 1933-34, $363,000,000 in 35 and are estimated at $445,000,000 for the current fiscal year ending next July. Experts figure that the peak of such payments was reached in 1935. Several factors will then operate to cut them down—including the fact that agricultural surpluses are nearly wiped out, that demand for farm products will be stimulated by industrial recovery and that farm prices haven't much further to rise to reach their theoretical "parity."

Meanwhile revenue from processing taxes was only $51,000,000 for the first four months of the current fiscal year as against $178,000,000 in the same period a year ago—due to the constitutional argument. Informed New Yorkers understand that the President hopes for a sufficient increase of revenue from existing levies to cover farm benefits without the imposition of special new taxes. It's a safe bet that these benefits will not be included in any emergency budget for the simple reason that FDR regards them as permanent.

CHINA: Chiang Kai Shek—virtual head of the Chinese government—is up against a complicated problem. He has to cope not only with the Japanese urge to wolf large chunks of his country but also with constant pressure from Soviet Russia in the form of effective and contagious propaganda of Communist ideas. The latter hasn't had much attention but will-informed New Yorkers say it has reached serious proportions. If Chiang wants to keep the Reds under control he is practically forced to play ball with the Japs.

New York learns that Japan is going to get even harder-boiled with the Chinese government than she has been. She will insist that Nanking cancel such tariffs against Japanese goods as still exist and furthermore take stringent measures to break up unofficial embassies of Japanese imports. These nationalistic boycotts—though not sanctioned openly—have been more or less winked at by the Chinese authorities.

When the river is high this is very unsafe for small children. The Third Street P. T. A. desires to go on record as favoring this safety measure; also as favoring stop and go lights at heavy traffic intersections in the city. The secretary was asked to send this report to the Board of Aldermen.

There is a great and immediate need for heavy coats and sweaters for girls and boys in the school from the ages of eight to twelve; also dresses, shirts, pants, socks and underwear. Anyone having outgrown clothing that these children can use please send them to the Third Street School or telephone, and some member of the P. T. A. will go for them.

The next meeting will be held the first Monday evening in January.—Reported.

URGE DOWELL SEEK OFFICE

Executive Secretary of Merchants Talked For Auditor

Reflector Bureau, Str Walter Hotel
Raleigh, Dec. 7.—Willard L. Dowell, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants' Association, is being mentioned more and more as a possible candidate for the Democratic nomination for State Auditor, against Baxter Durham, present State Auditor. When asked today if he intended to become a candidate, Dowell declined to discuss the matter or to say whether he would or would not run.

It is definitely known here, however, that Dowell is being urged to run for the office by several different groups and has received the offer of some very helpful support in various sections of the state if he should become a candidate. Many observers here are inclined to believe that State Auditor Baxter Durham would be very difficult to defeat in that he has the advantage of having held the office so long and is so well known over the state. It is also pointed out that repeated attempts by other candidates to dislodge him have always failed. But these same observers agree that Dowell would undoubtedly offer the most serious opposition Durham has ever had if he should decide to run.

One of the advantages Dowell would have over other candidates is that he not only knows intimately, but is also known by all of the merchants in the state, who number about 30,000, as a result of his long service as secretary of the state merchants' association. In addition he is well known and highly regarded by almost all the members of the last three general assemblies, during which he served as chief legislative representative for the merchants and the forces opposed to the sales tax. While many of the members of these assemblies differ in their view from Dowell, most of them like him personally and regard him as a man of unusual ability. He is also regarded as having almost uncanny political sense and as good a working knowledge of practical politics as any one in the state. Many of his friends, and some not so friendly, are convinced he could win the nomination for State Auditor if he should become a candidate. But many of his close friends do not think he will run.

On January 13—ten days after the session opens—the house will be called on to dispose of the Patman bill providing for immediate payment of the bonus.

From the administration's standpoint it is vital that it be ready by that time with some sort of an acceptable compromise plan. That some kind of a bonus bill will be passed no one denies.

McAdoo's advice to the veterans is evidence of the pressure that will be exerted on those senators who stood with the President on his veto of the bonus bill passed in the last session of congress.

Although the veterans may not actually descend on the capital in the manner McAdoo suggests, administration leaders have taken cognizance of the seriousness back of the senator's proposal.

Something must be done about the bonus this winter and done quickly.

Are Only Catholics Saved?

By no means!..Such is far from the teachings of the Catholic Church, which leaves the judgment of each and every man to our all-just and all-merciful Heavenly Father.

No man—be he Catholic, Protestant, Jew or Pagan—can be sentenced to eternal punishment except through his own fault—by deliberately disobeying the dictates of his own conscience—by defying God with malice aforethought, knowing full well the consequences thereof.

It is true that the Catholic Church has ever insisted that hers is the one true Church, founded by Christ upon the Rock of Peter with His promise that the gates of Hell would not prevail against her—with His assurance that He would be with her all days even unto the consummation of the world.

But for him without the fold through no fault of his own—be he ignorant savage who has never heard of the Church, or an intellectual Protestant who knows her falsely because of erroneous education or mental inhibition—the Catholic Church teaches that there is certainly salvation if he lives up to his conscience and repents of his sins.

When you hear this salvation propaganda against the Catholic Church, remember it was not she but Martin Luther who condemned the Pagan philosophers because they had no faith in Christ "even though they had been virtuous in their inmost soul."—(Grisar's Luther).

Twice a month one of these articles is prepared to set straight our non-Catholic neighbors on fallacious statements frequently made about Catholic teachings and practices. You would please us greatly if you would write for information on subjects upon which you would like a Catholic explanation.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS ENNETT

Pitt Health Officer Speaks On Tuberculosis

The Kiwanis Club met last night in its regular bi-weekly session with Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, head of the Pitt County Health Department, as speaker.

Dr. Ennett's address dealt with community responsibility for community health, dealing specifically with the problem of treatment and control of tuberculosis. The speaker gave a brief review of the long history of this disease, tracing it back as far as history gives indications of the presence of this scourge.

He pointed out the comparatively brief period during which any effort has been made to control the disease, most of this work having been done in the past twenty-five years. Prior to this, a fatalistic sort of attitude resulted in the acceptance of the presence of the disease, nothing being done either to cure the patient or to protect those with whom he came in contact. It was pointed out that while conditions in North Carolina generally had improved, in Pitt county no improvement had been made in the last four years, with the deaths among white patients about at the same level as four years ago, while cases among the colored people had increased.

Ennett stated that public health could be bought, and that tuberculosis was not primarily a medical problem but a community problem. By using the national and state facilities, co-operating in such movements as the use of Christmas seals, funds were provided which would enable those in charge to make effective efforts to combat the menace of tuberculosis. For every dollar spent in the purchase of seals seventy-five cents remains in the community for community use, and with such returns as are made through the state, even as much as eighty-five cents per dollar would actually be used for community work. There is no overhead expense connected with seal sale.

Guests of the Club were H. L. Andrews, County Tax Collector, and Corporal L. L. Jackson of the State Highway Patrol. The attendance prize was given to Dr. Crisp and was won by George Woodward. Miss Bessie Brown delighted the members and visitors with several selections from popular songs. Miss Brown is always a most welcome guest soloist in any gathering and the Kiwanians thoroughly enjoyed her singing.

suspended 13 politically hostile road commissioners.

Sawyer made his demand for control of the highway offices of Major Frank H. Barnwell, the military commander who the governor placed in charge when the supreme court enjoined a road board he set in a coup October 28.

Sawyer then went to the residence of Adjutant General James C. Dwyer at Camp Jackson to make a demand on him for possession of the highway office while D. W. Robinson of Columbia, counsel for the commissioner, set out to make a similar request of the Governor.

The triple move was considered a legal step to establish in the eyes of the law that the authority recognized by supreme court had been refused control. Further litigation was expected.

Indo-China Race to be French Bid for Air Prestige

Paris, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The French air ministry has invited the world's leading aviators to compete in a round trip race linking France with its remote colony of Indo-China.

By this distance race, from Paris to Saigon and return, France hopes to recover some of the aviation prestige which many Frenchmen feel this nation lost by its non-participation in the London-Melbourne contest of October, 1934.

The air ministry explained at that time that no French planes could meet the specifications for the race sponsored by the Royal Air Force of Great Britain.

To Start October, 1936

The dash to Indo-China is to start October 25, 1936. The air ministry is making efforts to have all the principal nations represented. Aviators of any country with membership in the International Aeronautical Federation are eligible.

Besides the prize trophies to be awarded to the winning aviators the air ministry has set aside 1,200,000 francs (approximately $80,000) for the purchase of the winning plane.

New York, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Stocks rallied today under the leadership of merchandising and metals.

A number of new highs for the past several years were recorded with gains ranging from a fraction to two or more points. Trading, quiet at the start, picked up speed in the final hour. The close was firm, transfers appropriated 1,200,000 shares.

As a market influence the foreign situation appeared to be about a stand off, but the tension of past several days apparently was not so pronounced.

By the domestic economic picture continued to grow brighter.
