Armies of Two Nations Engage in Desultory Fighting

ANOTHER MOVE MADE FOR PEACE

Indicated Scheduled Meeting of Sanctions Committee Will Be Postponed

(By The Associated Press)

The armies of Italy and Ethiopia engaged in desultory fighting today while the possibility cropped up of another move by the league of nations toward peace as a concessions to Premier Mussolini.

Both at Geneva and Paris it was indicated the scheduled meeting of the league sanctions committee of 18, called for Thursday to discuss an oil embargo against Italy, would be postponed.

Peace efforts at Paris however, given a flip by the conversations between Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare, and the British foreign secretary, appeared to be stalemated temporarily by modifications the British cabinet was reported to have asked in the settlement program they drew up.

The nature of the British objection was not known. They were reported to have accepted in the main the proposals advanced by Laval and based on an exchange of territory between Italy and Ethiopia.

Meantime at the war front hard bayonet fighting was reported to Rome by Italian northern forces. War correspondents advised their publications in the Italian capital that both Marshall Badoglio and General Graziani, commanders of the northern and southern fronts, saw possibilities of more serious fighting soon.

The Ethiopian government announced Ras Seyoum's armies on the northern front won two engagements last week, scattering Italian encampments at Kahlable December 2 and at Menagar, the next day.

School Men Return From Meeting

President L. R. Meadows, Dr. H. McGinnis, and Supt. J. H. Rose returned yesterday from Louisville, Kentucky, where they attended the meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

It was at this meeting that the standards of high schools and colleges were evaluated and forty-seven of the high schools of this state lost their rating because of the short length of the school year. Greenville is on the list of the 34 high schools in the state that hold their place in the highest class.

Total of Institutions Amounts to $313,109,115

NATIONAL BANKS NOT INCLUDED

Figures for Industrial Banks Not Among Amount Announced By Commissioner

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. By J. C. BASKERVILLE. Raleigh, Dec. 10.—There is a continued upward trend in the banking business and in all business in North Carolina, as reflected in the last consolidated statement of the 263 state banks, according to Commissioner of Banks Gurney P. Hood who today made public the results of the November 1 bank call, showing total resources of these state banks as amounting to $313,109,115, which is an increase of $32,917,723 over the total as shown in the consolidated statement of October 14, 1934.

These figures do not include figures from the 44 national banks in the state or for the 33 industrial banks, although the figures for the industrial banks are given separately. The most recent figures on the resources of national banks are those of June 29, 1935. But if the figures for the national banks were known, he total combined deposits of state and national banks as of November 1 would at least amount to $360,000,000 and the combined resources to at least $400,000,000. Commissioner Hood estimated.

"If the resources of the state banks in North Carolina continue to increase this coming year as they did last year, they should equal, if not exceed the all-time high of 1929, when the consolidated bank statement of that year showed resources of $341,182,163." Commissioner Hood said. "I cannot understand how any of the banks or bankers can complain about business conditions in the state this year, since they are the best since 1929 and to my way of thinking, getting better all the time.

The aggregate resources of the state banks in North Carolina from 1929 to November 1, 1935, are as follows:

1930,	$313,529,774.
1931,	$253,692,478.
1932,	$207,701,291.
1933,	$194,133,058.
1934,	$260,133,058.
1935,	$313,109,115.

The resources of the 33 industrial banks in the state also show an increase of more than $2,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is in loans and discounts, Hood pointed out. The resources of these industrial banks as of November 1 amounted to $13,142,908 as compared with resources of only $11,197,509 as of October 17, 1934. Of this increase in the resources of the industrial banks, about $1,000,000 is cash on hand and about another $1,000,000 in investments in bonds. These banks are prepared and eager to make additional loans, Commissioner Hood said.

"North Carolina is now well taken care from a banking standpoint and does not need any new banks," Commissioner Hood said. "Accordingly, we want to caution everyone against the possibility of opening additional banks where they are now needed. There is some tendency along this line at the present (Continued on page five)

Court Observers Guessing AAA Opinion Be Divided

Before Arguments Are Concluded Speculation Made Supreme Court Justices to Split On Ruling On AAA Constitutionality

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—With arguments on the constitutionality of AAA still underway before the Supreme Court, many observers were already guessing today that the opinion would be divided.

They based their forecast upon the somewhat slim grounds that questions asked by the justices indicated another split between the "conservatives" and "liberal" wings of the bench.

They found little evidence however indicating which way the majority of the court would go. The two men who have held the balance of power in past decisions of this kind—justices Hughes and Roberts—had kept silent.

They were the subject of chief attention today as arguments continued between George Warton Pepper, former Republican Senator from Pennsylvania, as counsel for the Hoosac Mills Corporation, and Stanley Reed, solicitor general. Pointed and sometimes almost argumentative questions about the delegation of power under the raw deal crop control program came from the conservative justice yesterday.

On the other hand it seemed to at least some spectators that questions asked of Reed by Justices Brandeis and Stone, usually classed as liberals, had been distinctly friendly.

Speculation on the division rivaled that in the gold and NRA cases last year, with much of the New Deal program depending upon the outcome and many politicians ready to concede that the 1936 election might also be at stake.

Concluding arguments were being made today with the court expected to rule some time in January. It could throw out the entire AAA, outlaw the taxes levied on processors to pay benefits to farmers for controlling production or reach several other possible decisions.

FIRMS OFFER COOPERATE

Organized Utility Holding Companies Suggest Plan

Washington, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Organized utilities holding companies today offered to cooperate with the government in reducing the multiplicity of suits under the holding company act.

Phillip K. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utilities executives, said in a statement: "If the Attorney General and the Secretary are anxious to avoid the prosecution of the multiplicity of suits based upon the public utility act of 1935 they can rely on the full cooperation of the utilities."

The offer was the first break in what has been separate fronts of the government and utilities in the holding company act fight.

"We recognize that it is important," Gadsden said, "not only to the electric light, power and gas industries, but in the interest of general business recovery, that the constitutionality of the act be passed upon as soon as possible by the supreme court of the United States."

"The utilities are anxious to avoid lengthy and burdensome litigation based upon a multitude of legal actions."

Hogs on Highways Are Great Menace, Lieut. Jones Says

Highway Patrol Head Declares Something Must Be Done to Curb Threat to Motorists in State

Lieut. Lester Jones, head of the Eastern division of the State Highway patrol, today called attention to a large number of hogs running loose on the highways and declared something must be done to curb the practice.

Lieut. Jones said the highway patrol did not wish to prosecute anyone for allowing their hogs to get on the highways, but added they were a menace to the roads as well as to the drivers. He said that a number of instances of swine on the roads had been reported recently and that unless something was done to keep them off, some action would have to be taken.

"They are a great menace to drivers, especially at night," the patrol head said. If an automobile struck a big hog it would probably be turned over causing heavy damages and possibly loss of life, he said.

SAY GOVERNOR PLEDGED SELF

Hoffman Said to Be Seeking Save Life Of Hauptmann

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The New York Evening Journal said today that Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey "has definitely committed himself to a vigorous fight to save" the life of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby.

The Journal quoted sources far is statement that "the Governor has definitely made up his mind about Bruno—that he will seek to snatch him from the shadow of the electric chair, even in the teeth of the contrary vote by the board of pardons."

The dispatch, the Journal said, threatened one of the greatest political upheavals in New Jersey's history.

Farmers Meeting Set For Tonight By County Agent

Prominent Agriculturists of Pitt to Gather at Courthouse to Discuss Farming Situation

A group of Pitt county farmers will meet in the courthouse tonight to discuss farm policies preparatory to making a report to the Federal Agricultural administration to be used by that organization in planning its long-time farm program.

Similar meetings will be held some time this winter throughout the country, the agricultural administration having requested the county agents to call such sessions.

E. F. Arnold, county agent for Pitt said today a committee probably would be named to make a further study of the farm situation in this section. The committee will report at a later meeting of the farmers and complete data will be sent to the federal organization.

Approximately 100 prominent farmers are expected to attend the meeting tonight. County Agent Arnold will be in charge.

No Opposition Seen For Agriculture Head

Reflector Bureau. Raleigh, Dec. 10.—Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. Graham is not new expected to have any opposition for the renomination for his post, since the most recent reports are that W. Kerr Scott of Alamance county and a high official in the State Grange, has just about decided not to oppose Graham. Some weeks ago Scott was undoubtedly seriously considering becoming a candidate against Graham, his close friends now agree with the result that some observers here were convinced he would run.

Indications now are, however, that Scott has decided that both the time and money required to make a campaign against Graham would not be justified, even if he should win. And many of his supporters seriously doubt if he could win against Graham, conceded to be one of the best campaigners in the state.

Letter Received Here Sent on China Clipper

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Winslow of this city today received a letter sent from Manila, Philippine Islands, brought to the United States by the China Clipper on its initial trans-Pacific air mail flight.

The letter, sent by Mrs. D. R. Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winslow, was postmarked December 2. It was put in the postoffice at San Francisco, Calif., December 6, making a total of eight days in its entire route from Manila to Greenville.

Philippine postage stamps amounting to 150 centavos were attached to the letter.

Advantages Outweigh Losses in Agriculture As Whole

MAKES ADDRESS TO FARM BUREAU

Declares Canadian Trade Treaty Attempts Undo Harm Done by Act

Chicago, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace offered his "considered judgment" today that American gains from the Canadian reciprocal trade treaty "so far outweigh the losses that the net advantage to our agriculture as a whole is very much worthwhile."

"We welcome constructive criticism," he said in an address prepared for delivery at the seventh annual American farm bureau federation convention, but declared:

"The other kind of attack—the bitter, venomous kind—is not inspired by any desire to help the farmers of the country. I believe that such unbridled accusations are inspired by the same interest which have fought every attempt by farmer to gain economic fair play."

"The agreement," he said, "attempts to undo the terrific damage done by the Smoot-Hawley act." Under that act, he said, agricultural exports from the United States to Canada shrank from $100,000,000 annually to $40,000,000.

If America concedes to Canada on any product, he said, that "in none of these cases are imports in prospect that will have materially adverse effect upon American producers."

All Pitt Farmers Invited To Attend Credit Asso. Meet

Production Credit Association to Hold Annual Session January 11 in Courthouse

An invitation has been extended to all farmers of Pitt county to attend the annual meeting of the Greenville Production Credit Association to be held in the courthouse here on January 11. J. C. Galloway, secretary of the association, announced today.

The Greenville association serves Pitt and Greene counties and this year made loans to farmers in these counties totalling $223,515.00. Every farmer who borrowed money through the association is a stockholder and is expected to attend this annual meeting of stockholders which is held for the purpose of hearing a complete report on the work of the organization, the election of officers and the transaction of such other business as may come before the body.

"We will be delighted to have all farmers who are not stockholders also attend the meeting," Mr. Galloway said. "In order that they might learn of the credit service which is offered to the farmers of this section by the association. By means of production credit associations farmers have been able to reduce the cost of making and collecting loans and by keeping the system on a sound basis they can obtain funds at costs as low as those available to any other industry."

"Interest on loans made by the association is payable when loans are due and the borrower pays 5 per cent interest only for the time he actually has the money. Each borrower is required to take out Class B stock in the association in an amount equivalent to 5 per cent of the loan when he gets his initial loan and may obtain new loans without purchasing additional stock."

"Thousands of farmers all over the country are now stockholders in production credit associations, and are thoroughly sold on the idea of cooperative credit. We are anxious that every farmer in this section shall at least have the opportunity of knowing of the credit service that we offer and we cordially invite all to our annual meeting."

The officers of the Greenville association are: Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, president; G. L. Mewborn, vice-president; and J. C. Galloway, secretary-treasurer. The directors are Dr. Paul Fitzgerald, G. L. Mewborn, N. F. Palmer, Jno. R. Carroll and J. P. Davenport. Walter O. Sheppard is Greenville county representative.

The Knights of Columbus, leading Catholic laymen's organization, was founded by the Rev. Mr. M. J. McGivney in 1882 at New Haven, Conn.

Dowell Said Been Asked To Be Campaign Manager

At Least One Candidate for Governor Seeks Services

DECLINES TO COMMENT

Does Not Deny, However, He Has Been Asked to Steer Campaign of Candidate

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, Dec. 9.—Willard L. Dowell, executive secretary of the North Carolina Merchants Association, arch foe of the sales tax and conceded by many to be the ablest and most skillful legislative representative—organizer or lobbyist, if you prefer that name—representing any organization during the last three or four sessions of the general assembly, has been asked to become state campaign manager by at least one of three leading candidates for Governor and possibly by two of them, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

Dowell only laughed and chewed his gum a little harder when asked which candidate it was who had asked him to manage his campaign, but declined to give any indication of which one had offered him the job. He did not deny, however, that he had been asked to steer the campaign of at least one of them.

"All three of the candidates—in fact, all five of them are good friends of mine—it might have been any one of them," was all Dowell would say. "You who know that Dowell has been asked to become the campaign manager for at least one of the candidates, believe that Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Winston-Salem is the one who has sought his services, although some think it was Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham. Hardly any one believes that Clyde R. Howy, John A. McKee or Colonel T. L. Kirkpatrick—if he is still running for Governor—have asked Dowell's assistance, though one or two have expressed the opinion that they could not do better than get Dowell to manage his campaign.

But the prevailing belief is that it was McDonald who first approached Dowell, though some think that Graham and his forces were and perhaps still are trying to get Dowell to take charge of his campaign. The reason for this belief is that McDonald is the only candidate running on a platform pledged to the complete repeal of the sales tax, also that McDonald is the youngest of all the candidates, with less political experience and hence more in need of a manager with a state-wide acquaintance and with a good working knowledge of practical politics. If McDonald could secure Dowell as his campaign manager, he would more than ever be in a position to solidify the support of the 25,000 or more merchants in the state, all of whom Dowell knows intimately, as well as the thousands of personal friends and acquaintances Dowell has throughout the state. For after about eight years as the active head of the merchants and as their principal political strategist, Dowell is conceded to be one of the canniest political generals in the entire state. So if McDonald could have obtained Dowell's services, he would have greatly strengthened his campaign and his chances of being nominated, many observers here agree.

The same considerations which would have made Dowell desirable as a campaign manager for McDonald also made him a desirable manager for Graham—probably even more so—since Dowell undoubtedly could have swung much of their merchant support to Graham now regarded as belonging to McDonald, it is maintained. It is recalled that many of the merchants and even Dowell, did not fight the sales tax nearly as hard in the 1933 session of the general assembly as they had been expected to and that many merchants switched over in favor of keeping the sales tax when McDonald and Lumpkin came out with their substitute tax program, which would have greatly increased the direct taxes on the merchants as a substitute for the sales tax. Even now it is not believed that many of the larger merchants will support McDonald because they are believed to prefer the sales tax and the trouble of collecting it to the payment of heavier franchise and privilege taxes. So it would have been a big boost for the Graham forces if they could have obtained Dowell as his campaign manager. There is a possibility, of course, that either McDonald or Graham may yet be able to persuade Dowell to accept the job, but this is not regarded as likely.

In the first place, few who know what is going on behind the scenes believe the merchants will let Dowell leave the helm of their organization to manage a campaign for any one—not even to run for State Auditor. Too many of the merchants already realize that they would have been sunk much deeper than the sales tax has sunk them and if it had not been for Dowell and the night and day watch he kept over their interests in the last four sessions of the general assembly, most observers here agree. Many of these merchants now agree that whoever is elected Governor, that with the increasing demand for more state revenue for schools and all other purposes, they will need Dowell to help them even more than ever in 1937. An in order to be in position in which he may have to fight whatever candidate is elected Governor, Dowell cannot afford to take any sides in the present campaign, it is pointed out.

Accordingly, Dowell is not extended either to become a manager of the campaign of any of the candidates for Governor, nor even to become a candidate for a state office, such as State Auditor, for which he is being mentioned, although

Baldwin Tries Gladstone Record In Fourth Term As Prime Minister

LONDON (AP)—Four times prime minister of Great Britain, short, stocky 68-year-old Stanley Baldwin takes his place beside the immortal Gladstone as the second man in Britain's long parliamentary history to win fourth term in the highest office in the land.

Four others—Derby, Disraeli, Salisbury and Ramsay MacDonald—have held the premiership three times, and nine have held it twice.

Office 'Just Grew'

Until 1905, the office was technically "unknown" to the law, although history cites Sir Robert Walpole (1721-1742) as the first real premier—only 47 years before George Washington became the first President of the United States.

Even Walpole's claim was dubious. Lord Melbourne, in a letter to Queen Victoria, caustically referred to Walpole as having "arrogated to himself an office previously unknown to the Law and Constitution, that of Prime or Sole Minister."

No For Two-Bottle Days.

Melbourne insisted that Walpole only secured the title because the German-speaking George I had "so imperfect a knowledge of the language of the country" that he had to rely on Walpole for the transaction of business.

But the title stuck, until finally, in 1905, it was recognized by law. Today, relations between the prime minister and monarch are considerably more formal than in the past. Melbourne, for example, received the following jovial invitation from William IV:

"The King highly approves the day fixed for the meeting of Parliament, and begs that everybody will dine with him after the Council and drink two bottle of wine a man."

Teetotalers in those "two-bottle" days were rare among the sovereign's upper counsellors—so much so that Disraeli wrote: "All Prime Ministers have the bout."

Baldwin's return to office leaves the number of prime ministers still 39. Twenty-eight have been English, seven Scots, three Irish, and one Welsh.

there are many who would like to see him run and thus eliminate him from any future opposition to the sales tax. For Dowell is a fighter and loves to fight—clean and out in the open. So Dowell is expected to stick with the merchants and to again become the hardest egg which the sales tax forces will have to try to crack in the 1937 general assembly.

Brazil's first program length talkie, "Favela dos Meus Amores," 8,500 feet long, will be distributed with Spanish script for the dialog throughout Latin-America.

Stanley Baldwin, by being re-named prime minister of Great Britain after the recent elections, becomes the second man in history to hold the office four times. This new portrait was taken at his desk in historic "10 Downing street."

Invitations Sent To Take Part In All-Star Contest

Winston-Salem, Dec. 10.—Invitations to spend a week's training period and to participate in the inaugural Tobacco Bowl classic, which is being held here this year between the pick of the state's high school football players, were mailed today to over fifty boys, according to word from the office of the North State Board of High School Football, received today.

Twenty-nine cities and towns were represented on the strong squad, which was selected by a composite vote of seventy-four coaches throughout the state.

The Eastern team is to spend their conditioning period in Greenville, where Doc Mathis, head coach at East Carolina Teachers College will be assisted by several of that section's outstanding high school coaches. The Western team will go to Boone, where they will run through their paces by Kidd Brewer, Appalachian State's "Boy Wonder," also assisted by high school coaches of the western section of the State.

The players are to report to the coaches on December 26, and they will have two workouts daily until they leave for the Twin City on the day of the game.

The complete personnel of the two squads was not announced pending answers to the invitations.

LARGE FARM AREA IN LONDON TERRITORY

London—(AP)—The metropolitan area of London, the largest city in the world, includes 73,867 acres devoted to agriculture.

Of this area, 694 acres regularly are under the plow, producing oats, wheat, potatoes and garden truck. The London County Council, which has compiled this and other figures in a book called "London Statistics," is authority for the statement.

Other revelations of the book are that London numbers 273 agricultural workers in its population and has 1,379 pigs and 822 milch cows within its borders.

N. C. State Quint Has Early Game Scheduled Sat'day

College Station, Raleigh, Dec. 10.—The first of three pre-season basketball games arranged for North Carolina State's varsity will be played Saturday night when Coach Bud Rose brings his Atlantic Christian College quint here to meet State at 8 o'clock in Frank Thompson Gymnasium.

Coach Rose, captain and star guard of State's 1932 basketball team, has developed a strong quint at the Wilson school. The Christians will be the first to face State and Dr. R. R. Sermon, coach, believes they will give his players a nip and tuck battle.

Dr. Sermon has been working with candidates for the State team for two weeks and is unable to express an opinion at this time as to what kind of team the school will have this winter. The loss of Captain Ray Rex, guard, and Woody Lambeth, guard, by graduation last spring broke up the fine 1935 team.

According to Dr. Sermon, finding men to replace Rex and Lambeth will be difficult. Rex was one of the best high school guards in the game. He also was excellent as a defensive man. Lambeth was a fine shot, and, according to Dr. Sermon, one of the fastest breaking forwards he ever coached.

Charlie Aycock, tall forward and one of the standout players of the 1935 season, will captain this year's team. Aycock's partner at the other forward berth will be either Stuart Flythe, 1935 center, or Connie Mac Berry, center sensation of last winter's freshman team. One of the two will play forward and the other will work at center.

Nell Dalrymple, regular guard, is back and will retain his same position. Rex's old position will be carried for by Don Dixon or Chub Womble. Womble was a regular last season until a broken hand put him on the bench and Dalrymple went in for him.

Following the game Saturday, the State squad will leave Monday for Norfolk where that night it meets the Norfolk all-stars, and Tuesday night, plays the Naval Apprentice school team.

Brazil is not a drinking country, Correio da Manha, morning newspaper here, concluded from statistics of liquor importations last year, amounting to only $1,731,440.

Dress Rehearsal For Senior Play.
A dress rehearsal for the senior play "Easy Pickins," which is to be presented tonight and tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in the Austin Auditorium of the college, was held last night and everything is in readiness for the first performance. The play promises to be one of the most interesting attractions of the year. It is a modern play that would interest a modern audience, with a modern plot of tense, tangled situations, and striking personalities.

Most of those taking part in the play are popular students who are well known, not only on the campus but in the town, and several of them are from Greenville or Pitt county. Miss Dorothy Hooks of Goldsboro, takes the part of Mrs. Braxton, who with her husband (Jack Humphrey, of Beaufort) has just completed the home of her dreams and has asked a group of their friends of college days to a housewarming in their new home. These guests include a famous movie actress (Miss Die Turlington of Clinton), a timid clerk (Billy Tolson, of Greenville) who is also a budding playwright; his wife, a hypochondriac (Miss Elizabeth Faison, of Turkey), a federal agent (Joe Halem, of Greenville) and his wife (Miss Rachael Stone, of Nashville), a traitor of his government (Alva Page, of Greenville), a petty thief (Miss Jean Thomas, of Farmville), and a pair of lovers—the maid (Miss Carolyn Brinkley, of Colerain), and the son of the hypochondriac (Clifton Crawford, of Greenville). Excellent comedy roles are played by Miss Linelle Clark of Grimesland, who takes the part of Bridget, the Irish cook, and by R. H. Rouse of Stokes, who takes the part of the Chinese houseboy, Ching Lee. Floyd Hinton, of Rocky Mount, gives a good burlesque portrayal of the police officer, Johnson.

The chaos resulting from the gathering of these different people into one home can be easily imagined. There are tense moments as well as exceedingly comic situations.

The two performances are given so that there will be room in the auditorium for the public. One half of the students attend the first night and the other half the second night.

Literature Department Meets.

At the last meeting of the Literature Department of the Woman's Club, Mrs. W. C. Harris read her manuscript on "Contemporary American Poets." Her paper was of vital interest to the members, evincing a thorough and extensive knowledge of her subject. Mrs. Harris opened her paper with a quotation from Whitman: "I hear America singing, the varied carols I hear... each singing what belongs to her and none else... Singing with open mouths, their strong melodious songs." Upon the word "varied" Mrs. Harris based her opening remarks. Whitman exemplified the varied spirit of American poets since 1900. Whitman's verse "blew like a stinging wind, bringing the salt of tossing seas, the dark tang of the earth," into the preceding mostly American poetry. Emerson also brought new life. The poet was set free from old conventions and what for? "For a clear look at himself and the age in which he lives—for the purpose of seeking beauty everywhere in life, of writing of the homely things of earth, and if he be a mystic, of the unseen world." Emily Dickinson "was also a forerunner of the new spirit of 20th century verse—free in expression, unhampered in choice of subject, penetrative in psychology." Aside from the new forms and ideas of poetry, America has its "legends" and even epics. "The modern singer has turned to celebrate his own locality, his indigenous folk tales." Mrs. Harris predicted "with this awakened vigor and energy, we are living in what will be for all time, one of the few great poetic periods in American literature."

The body of the paper was presented in the form of a pageant of "Contemporary American Poets" posing "before your mental eyes, flying their banners, and marching to their own music." The main characters in this celebrated procession were poets from North Carolina, from the South in general, and finally the nation as a whole. Many outstanding figures were recognized; the shade of John Charles McNeill, Don Placid, followed by a host of North Carolinians whom the author carefully tabulated; a representative poet or poets from each southern state, the spirits of Amy Lowell, Rachel Lindsay, Sara Teasdale and Henry VanDyke; the more substantial figures of Edna St. Vincent Millay, Edwin Markham, Carl Sandburg, Robinson Jeffers, Edwin Arlington Robinson, Robert Frost followed by a representative from the "Traditionalists," the "Imagists," the "Rhapsodists," the "Lyricists," and "Expressionists." Numerous other splendid figures crowded the thrilling throng. A group of colored poets, "Africans," led by Paul Lawrence Dunbar, concluded the soul-stirring pageant.

Mrs. Harris thoroughly believes in American poetry and its promise for the future. "For the greater poetry is a flowering in of light from the source of all light, from that King from whom comes our knowledge of the Kingdom, in whose wisdom we advance... and in whose beauty we may come to dwell."

This brilliantly composed paper gives assurance of further works from her talented pen. Mrs. Harris is having several verses "Cinquain," "Dawn and Dusk," and "Detachment" published in an "Anthology of Contemporary American Women Poets," published by The Spinners, editors of a bi-monthly magazine of women's verse.—Reported.

Dr. Spilman Speaks To A.A.U.W.

Whence came all the delightful things that have been added to Christmas—things not suggested by the story of the birth of the Prince of Peace? Whence came the Yule-log, the holly wreath, the family gathering, the Christmas tree, the stockings at the fireside, the lights in the window, the reign of the Lord of Misrule, and Santa Claus?

Such questions as these were answered attractively and adequately by Dr. B. W. Spilman in his talk to the A.A.U.W. on Monday evening. The speaker began with a brief summary of the original Christmas story and then gave a vivid account, interspersed with humorous and personal touches, of the gradual adding to the celebration of beautiful, appropriate customs from Italy, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Holland, England and America. Dr. Spilman reminded his audience that, for five centuries after Christ, his followers were so concerned about his second coming and about carrying out the Great Commission that they took no interest in celebrating his first coming. When the observance of Christmas started, use was made of joyous days and customs already significant and familiar to the people, and from time to time additions have been made—additions that tend to make the celebration truly international.

An important part of this pleasing Christmas program was the music furnished by the College Ensemble, under the direction of Miss Gorrell, and by three singers, Mrs. J. A. McIver, Miss Molly Langston, and Miss Edna Earle Perry. The Ensemble lauded gave "Welsh Melody," then they accompanied Misses Langston and Perry in "Under the Stars." Just before Dr. Spilman's talk, the Ensemble played very softly "Holy Night." After the lecture, Mr. McIver sang "Sleep, Holy Babe," accompanied by the Ensemble. Every number was artistically given.

All in all, Dr. Spilman, the musicians, and the hostesses made the occasion most enjoyable.

Chevrolet Dealers Attend Meeting

The Chevrolet Motor Company is conducting a series of ten meetings throughout the Carolinas for the purpose of re-contracting and outlining the sales program for the year 1936. Today's meeting, which is being held at Sheppard Memorial Library, is presided over by T. D. Hunter, Chevrolet Zone Manager, with headquarters in Charlotte.

In his opening talk to the dealers, Mr. Hunter expressed his appreciation of the outstanding sales record made by the Charlotte Zone dealers during the year 1935 and is very optimistic over the increased sales possibilities for 1936. He stated that the acceptance and reaction of the public of the new product has been by far the most favorable ever experienced in Chevrolet, pointing out that the dealers in the Charlotte Zone delivered 3,492 passenger cars and trucks during the month of November. This, he asserted, has surpassed by a good margin any previous sales figure for the Charlotte Zone in the month of November, and predicted that with the improved economic conditions prevailing throughout the country, a most prosperous era is facing the Chevrolet dealer organization.

Mr. Hunter was assisted in these meetings by Latham Davis, Assistant Zone Manager, J. E. Foote, Zone Truck Manager, E. C. Atkinson, Manager Retail Selling, R. W. Burnett, Business Manager, M. E. Patterson, Parts and Accessory Manager, and W. R. Snapp, Service Manager, who outlined the 1936 program for their respective departments, and T. J. McCarty, District Manager with headquarters at Greenville.

Jud Smith, G. M. A. C. Branch Manager of Raleigh, N. C., is accompanying Mr. Hunter, and his staff on these meetings and thanked the dealers for the fine volume of business given G. M. A. C. during the year. Mr. Smith expressed the extreme confidence of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation for all Chevrolet dealers in the coming year.

The Chevrolet dealers from Greenville and the surrounding territory were in attendance at today's meeting.

Corn Crop Increased By 4-H Club Member

Snow Hill, N. C., Dec. 9. — By adding 100 pounds of nitrate of soda to the regular fertilizer used under corn, Stuart Suggs, a 4-H Club member of the Snow Hill community in Greene County, increased his corn yield by 10.5 bushels at a cost of only $1.65, reports County Agent E. V. Vestal. A fertilizer test was run by Stuart and his father with each acre being fertilized with 200 pounds acid phosphate, 200 pounds kainit, 50 pounds of fish meal and 200 pounds nitrate of soda. An extra 100 pounds of soda was added to the acre planted by Stuart. Measured yields from both plots show that 68.25 bushels were harvested from the plot having extra soda as compared to 57.75 bushels from the plot with the regular fertilizer. Vestal says.

Tourists Find Stalactite Cave.

Urach, Germany.—(AP)—Tourists discovered a new stalactite cave close to the Bruebach waterfalls near here in the Suabian mountains. Scientists found the cave extends 600 feet into the heart of the mountain.

ENNETT TALKS TO ROTARIANS

Health Officer Talks On Tuberculosis Situation

By WYATT BROWN

"Tuberculosis is all around us and in its advanced stages it is contagious; so unless we do something about it, we ourselves are in danger," Dr. N. T. Ennett, Pitt County Health Officer and Chairman of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale campaign to the Rotarians last night in calling to the attention of the Rotarians the need for their cooperation in the purchase of the seals with the proceeds from which Tuberculosis is controlled in Pitt County.

Dr. Ennett further said that most of the deaths of people between the ages of 15 and 45 were caused by tuberculosis. He declared that in Pitt County there is a serious situation in the increase of tuberculosis which is demanding attention and control. He urged everyone to purchase Seals and help in the control of the disease.

Plans for the Christmas program at the Rotary Club were outlined last night by Kinchen Cobb who with Wyatt Brown is in charge of this special program. He assured the members that a very interesting program was planned including remarks by Gilbert R. Combs and Rev. Gus Fleischman, readings by the Club's favorite reader, Mrs. Gus Fleischman, and special music. But further more each Rotarian is to bring a Christmas basket, he said, which is to be distributed among the needy families of Greenville by Gus Fleischman and Gilbert Combs. Also the Youth Committee is to bring six boys and six girls between the ages of 8 and 17 who anticipate spending Christmas without any parents and whom the Rotarians would like to share their good time with.

As part of the entertainment last night a technical expert demonstrated with a delco engine the relative merits of straight gasoline and treated gasoline. By means of a quartz window the Rotarians were permitted to see the action of the gasoline in the combustion chamber itself.

John Bragaw of Washington, North Carolina was a visiting Rotarian guest of the club and Luby Tyndal was also a guest of the club. Lyman Ormond won the attendance prize given by Alfred Schultz, Bill Lee, president of the club presided. Johnny Overton, of the Attendance Committee was in charge of the program.

College Station, Raleigh, Dec. 9. —Data gathered in the 1935 agricultural census will be a guide to North Carolina farmers in developing the county agricultural program planning projects.

These projects, said E. W. Gaither, district farm agent at State College, are designed to encourage farmers in planning agricultural programs suited to local conditions. By studying the agricultural situation in their respective counties, he explained, the farmers will be in a better position to balance their farming schedules in accordance with the crops most adapted to their farms.

The Federal census bureau has been issuing preliminary reports on grains, livestock, cotton, tobacco, hay, pasture and the like. Reports for all counties should be completed in January, Gaither said. But the figures on fruits, veget-

"The spine was snapped clean, bent at an acute angle, and the bare end protruded from a rent in the skin like the stump of a horrible, bony tail.

"Thanks to the doctors that man is still alive. He has been operated on 25 times. He is always in acute pain and paralyzed from the waist down."

Too horrible, too nauseating for print? Perhaps it is—but it's the truth. And it doesn't describe an isolated example. Thousands of people have emerged from automobile accidents to become helpless, pain-ridden cripples all their lives. They live on to remind us of the awful price we pay for speed, for recklessness, for incompetence at the wheel. Yet their agonies will not be entirely in vain if they teach the lessons that will save us from becoming members of that tragic legion who would be "Better Off Dead."

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

may reach $800,000,000. That's the surprise which FDR hopes to spring a few months before election.

RISEING: Jim Farley has returned from his western prowl with a holy—or unholy—dread of the explosive power of the Townsend old age pension plan. He doesn't like to talk about it except among friends.

What Mr. Roosevelt's political canner prays for is that the $200-a-month endowment program can be kept down to a local issue until after 1936. He discovered that many Democratic and Republican Congressional candidates will have to make some sort of peace with the Townsendites to be elected. But the National Chairman expects that members committed to the doctrine will content themselves with meaningless speeches at the next session. He doesn't want it to come to a vote in any form.

Political sharks in both parties believe the Townsendites can be shunted aside during the next session. They base this belief on their experience with the bonus and the Eighteenth Amendment. It took several years for these movements to undermine the stamina of the lads on Capitol Hill. But the next President may have to deal with the old folks.

PROVING: Some "big Americans" at Washington complain that FDR's foreign policies may head him into deep water. What they mean is that his trade, neutrality and monetary policies may play into the hands of such made-at-home antagonists as George Peek, Publisher Hearst and Father Coughlin.

The mild Cordell Hull is the target of this sub-rosa criticism. So far they have not dared to attack him directly because he seems to be the fair-haired boy with the President. But the mutterings will become more vocal unless events at London and Geneva bear out and back up the Secretary of State's moves to maintain world peace. The least slip in his well laid plans or even pressure on Italy may jeopardize Mr. Hull's prestige.

FDR, however, has two ways of escape from the charge that he is an "internationalist." If the London naval conference fails—and almost everybody expects that it will—he will build at least one battleship immediately. He will serve notice that he has given Europe its last disarmament chance. He has also assigned his experts to prepare monthly reports designed to demonstrate that Mr. Hull's reciprocal tariffs mean money in American pockets, not foreigners'.

BULL: Some Democratic wire-acres are beginning to suspect that W. Forbes Morgan will never shine as a political roid-digger. A'though he makes a vast-to-do over his job, the shekels are not pouring in to the National Committee.

Treasurer Morgan's unfamiliarity with practical politics and political plunges him into many amusing though embarrassing dilemmas. For instance, Utah Democrats came through with their quota some time ago. But the national committee—who raised the money—was ousted by the state committee because he chose to live and lobby at the Capital. Though Chairman Farley refused to recognize the local substitute, Mr. Forbes promptly asked him to contribute to the national chest. He got a curt reply to the effect that Utah had done its duty.

Meeting the ousted politician on the street, Mr. Forbes explained his troubles and asked for information on Utah politics. What he wanted

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: In a desperate effort to get much needed equipment aboard steamer for his up-river engineering job, Terry Willitt has gone to the dock and caught the loading boat in crooked work. They have quarreled, and the man is shot by Allaire West just as he aims at Terry. To protect Allaire, Terry has "taken the rap" with the native police. But Allaire, who is more than half in love with Terry, believes he has landed ship for his job, and left her name in love about to be torn with revolution.

Chapter 13
FOX SPEAKS OUT

ACTION: The city was charged with it and so were the Legations.

Back at his Embassy Fox learned that Ray West had accepted the Old Man's advice and the American polo party would sail for New York via Vera Cruz.

Nor did the Ambassador's advisory powers stop there. He gave the attaché to understand that his next brainstorm would draw more than a rebuke—it would entail a transfer to Zanzibar or some other place, if not a dismissal from the Foreign Service.

The Old Man would have said more, but he had to take time out to get purple over a Washington dispatch and Fox returned to a desk full of cables and messages to be decoded. He felt singularly unimpressed about the threats to his career. What he had done was worth it. He didn't fall in love every day. All night long he worked. Dent was swearing at the consul who was much mystified over the disappearance of two American seamen and had reported an "overt act" to the Embassy.

The house of the Ministry of Finance had been picketed by police guards against a threatening crowd. The President and his Cabinet were conferring behind locked doors at the Palace. Everybody was looking toward Propionaire. The atmosphere was lovely for a rest cure.

And the next day the streets and parks were thronged with people. Fox prayed for the hours to pass. The Vera Cruz ship was to sail at ten that night. And night, he thought, would never come.

At half-past eight the Ambassador took his nose out of a sheaf of reports long enough to order him as an official representative of the Embassy to bid the party Godspeed. Proprietries and amenities must be observed at all times. Rule something-or-other of the efficient Foreign Officer.

The attaché didn't reach the Alvia until shortly after nine. Traffic congestion in the streets was terrible. He scarcely knew whether he'd find Allaire there or not, but finally located her on one of the hotel balconies viewing the lighted panorama of the capital.

The Avenida Georgian stretched across the city from the great hotel, straight as an arrow, toward the Capitol building with its brilliantly lighted fountains throwing leaping sprays of changing color to the dark velvet sky.

"Allaire!" he said.

She turned slowly, almost reluctantly.

"Oh—George. Cheerio, son. Beautiful, isn't it?"

"Your boat, Allaire. We'd better go—"

"I don't know whether I will or not."

Her voice was low and measured. A quick stab of panic went through him.

"Allaire—please—"

A moment her eyes dwelt on his strained face, then she smiled.

"I have an idea that you're somewhere behind the Ambassador's urgent proposal. Oh, well, don't worry, George. I won't embarrass you. I suppose I might as well tag along."

A last minute she lingered, assimilating the vista of dancing lights, the strains of music from a nearby cafe, the pulse of swirling traffic, then his arm in hers they left the balcony and went out into the street.

In the taxi he lit a cigaret and smoked furiously.

"I'm going to ask to be transferred. Or resign or something. Anyway I'm going back to the States as soon as I see this rotten mess through."

"You wax emphatic," she drawled lazily. "And your brow is somewhat fevered," she added, passing a hand over his forehead. "Mr. Fox, are you in love, perchance?"

"Mr. Fox," he admitted grimly, "is plenty in love."

"And what is Mr. Fox in love with, pray? His art?"

He said it quite calmly.

"With you, sainted wench."

Allaire glanced at him keenly, lounging sideways against the cushions, her hands clasped against one hip.

"Darling, this is a hell of a time to tell me a thing like that, don't you think?"

a particular target. This store is said to push its employees so hard that they have inadequate time for rest and practically none at all for recreation.

The general manager of the chain in question has had the matter brought to his attention. His attitude is that he does not approve of overworking clerks and does not believe that many of his store managers pursue this practice—but so far he has not indicated that he intends to check his comfortable beliefs. Keen observers comment that this sort of thing is a first for those who insist that business must be more strictly regulated.

SPITE: The banks grabbed off the Treasury's latest offering without so much as a peep of protest, but bitter-end opponents of the New Deal among them are still trying to figure out some way short of Orval Adams' impractical boycott suggestion to impress on the administration their profound disapproval of the mounting federal debt. One suggestion—which has been seriously discussed in right wing financial circles—would amount to a partial boycott. The idea would be for the banks to demand payment of the short-term government securities they hold at maturity instead of accepting refunding offers.

The effect of this would be to drive the Treasury into the open market for funds. This would make marketing more difficult and expensive and would undoubtedly compel the payment of a higher interest rate. It would also focus public attention on the federal debt much more sharply than hitherto and would probably arouse apprehension about the fundamental soundness of federal credit. The theory is that this would compel the administration to take drastic measures to curtail expenditures and balance the budget.

It's an ingenious thought—but dispassionate conservatives comment that it's as full of holes as a sieve. They say it's all very well to make people nervous about the Treasury's credit—but that would that nervousness do to the value of the huge portfolios of federal securities which the banks themselves still hold? Also what would it do to the bond market in general and to the confidence of depositors who know that their banks have large holdings in governments? These sources are positive that nothing will come of it and that the banks will continue to buy Treasury securities—because even the average banker can't be dumb enough to blow up his own house just to spite the contractor who supplied most of the bricks.

GRILL: New York learns that Senator Black's lobby committee is nearly ready to begin open hearings. The committee's agents have unearthed a lot of new material in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. This is now being whipped into shape for use in a series of disclosures designed to recapture public attention.

The committee evidently intends to time its disclosures so they will have a maximum effect on the utility fight as it travels toward the Supreme Court. A majority of the committee is strongly favorable to the holding company act.

Informed sources learn that Howard C. Hopson—boss of Associated Gas and Electric even though he has divested himself of official titles—is in for another grilling as a result of his company's unexpected suit attacking the holding company law.

FAVORED: Utility insiders do not expect any decisive developments in their grapple with the law for many months to come. They prophesy that both sides will gain minor victories in the numerous clashes to be staged in the lower courts. These will presumably give all concerned a chance to do some public gloating from time to time—but they won't prove anything.

Utilities which filed suit to enjoin the Securities Exchange Commission from enforcing the act are delighted at the enthusiastic applause they have been getting from stockholders for their action. The head of one big group says he has never before experienced such a large and favorable response from stockholders as his announcement of suit evoked.

STALL: Over a year ago President Mendieta of Cuba promised his people an election before December 15th, 1935. Recently president Harold W. Dodds of Princeton—one of the world's outstanding authorities on elections—went to Cuba to draft detailed plans for the balloting.

But it will be a case of love's labor lost. Mendieta has decided he doesn't want an election right now and is using the activity of the sugar-grinding season as an excuse for postponing it until next spring or summer. He still holds out the hope of an eventual return to democratic processes.

Opposition groups are accepting his stall quite gracefully because they aren't ready to do anything else. But if he pulls the same stunt in 1936, look out for another explosion.

Hoey Agrees For Vote On State-Wide Liquor Plan

Candidate Also To Favor Exemptions In Sales Tax

NO CHANGE IN PERSONAL VIEWS

Indicates He Remains Political and Personal Dry But Agrees to Referendum

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—Clyde R. Hoey, of Shelby, one of the five candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, while still a personal and political "dry" will agree to a state-wide referendum on the repeal of the state prohibition law and the substitution of state liquor control and state liquor stores, if the 1937 general assembly desires to submit the question to a vote of the people, it was learned here today from persons who have recently talked with the Shelby orator.

Mr. Hoey will not advocate the repeal or removal of the sales tax, but will advocate exempting basic foods from it, likewise a reduction in the rate if at all possible, it was learned from the same source.

Mr. Hoey indicated that he had in no sense changed his personal views with regard to state prohibition and the liquor question, having been a life-long "dry" and ardent prohibitionist, when questioned a week or two ago by several who asked him to give them some indication of what his position would be with regard to prohibition and liquor control, one of those present informed this correspondent today. But he further indicated that being a Democrat and thus in favor of majority rule, he would not oppose submitting the question of liquor control and state liquor stores to a vote of the people in a state-wide referendum, if the 1937 general assembly should decide on such a course.

With regard to the sales tax, Mr. Hoey is reported to have said that while he had no love for the tax, he did not see how the state could get along without it for the time being, but that he would advocate the restoration of the basic food exemptions, which existed prior to the 1935 law, and that he would also favor a reduction in the rate of the tax, but without specifying the exact rate. The sales tax is now 3 percent on all retail sales except sweet milk, up to a $10 maximum.

While Mr. Hoey has so far refrained from making any public statement of the position he will take in the campaign with regard to liquor or the sales tax, the prevailing opinion in many circles has been that he would eventually take about the same position he is now reported to have outlined privately to several visitors within the last few weeks.

Three of the other four candidates have already outlined their positions on the sales tax, and two of them on the liquor question, as follows:

Lieut.-Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham—favors state liquor control and state liquor stores on a county-wide vote basis, so that those counties which want liquor stores may have them. Favors removal of the sales tax on food and meals and a reduction in rate, and would make up loss in revenue from revenue on liquor sales.

Dr. Ralph W. McDonald—would have a state-wide referendum on liquor control and liquor stores if 1937 general assembly wants to submit question to a vote. Favors complete repeal of the sales tax but has not indicated what form of tax or taxes he would substitute for sales tax.

John A. McRae—opposed to principle of sales tax, but sees no possibility of repealing it at this time, so would reduce it and take it off goods until it can be repealed. No statement as yet on liquor question.

Col. T. L. Kilpatrick—has made no public statement yet on either the sales tax or liquor question. Now that Hoey has at least outlined his position privately to some of those who have asked what stand he will take on these two questions, it is pointed out that Hoey and McDonald stand together in their position with regard to liquor, both favoring a state-wide referendum if the 1937 general assembly decides to submit the question to a vote of all the people, thus by inference being opposed to county liquor control or a county-by-county vote on liquor stores and liquor control, but at opposite ends of the sales tax argument.

With regard to the sales tax, Hoey, Graham and McRae are in almost complete agreement, in that they all three hold the tax is distasteful to them personally, but that conditions at present do not make it possible to remove it entirely. They all agree that the exemptions on essential foods should be restored and the rate reduced. Graham, however, is the only one who advances a definite proposal for recapturing any of the three to five million dollars a year that would be lost from reducing the sales tax and exempting basic foods, in that he would use the revenue from the sale of liquor, under state control from state or county liquor stores, to replace some of this sales tax revenue.

It is also pointed out by some that both Hoey and McDonald, if not on the verge of pussy-footing on the liquor question, are at least passing the buck to the 1937 general assembly.

eral assembly, in that all they are doing is merely agreeing not to object if the 1937 general assembly wants to submit the liquor question to a state-wide referendum. Others point out that by favoring or agreeing to a state-wide referendum only, they are really siding with the bone-dry prohibitionists who are also insisting that if prohibition is to be repealed it must first be submitted to a state-wide vote, instead of to a county option vote. For while it is agreed that if the liquor control question should be voted on county by county that a majority of the counties would undoubtedly vote for it, many still doubt if liquor control would carry in a state-wide election, since it is contended that many of the Republicans would again vote with the "drys" as they did in the 1933 repeal vote. Hence a good many contend that both Hoey and McDonald are straddling on the liquor question, evidently in the hope of attracting both "wet" and "dry" votes to their banner.

G. O. P. Will Fire First 1936 Salvo in Session At Capital

Republicans to Start Fireworks in Washington, December 16 When Committee Meets

By HERBERT PLUMMER Washington, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The opening salvo of the 1936 presidential campaign, heretofore confined to sporadic firing on widely-scattered fronts, will be touched off in Washington on December 16 when the Republican national committee holds its first big war council.

Echoes of the G. O. P. big guns hardly will have died away when the Democrats will gather in the national capital—early in January, according to present plans—for a similar purpose.

Important decisions, including the choice of the national convention site, ways and means of financing the campaign, and other details, will be made at the two party gatherings.

From all outward indications, internal discord among the Republicans over whether Henry R. Fletcher shall remain as chairman of the national committee, which flared up a while back, has been stilled.

Judging from his activity Fletcher is confident he will remain in command until the Republican national convention. What will happen to him then depends entirely upon who gets the G. O. P. nomination.

Some Democrats express the view privately that "Big Jim" Farley, who serves in the dual capacity of postmaster general and chairman of the national committee, will make the long-awaited announcement of his retirement from the President's cabinet on the occasion of the meeting of the party leadership in January.

Policitians and observers have noticed during the last few weeks that Farley has been absent from Washington and the post office department more often and for longer times than has been true in the past.

While the postmaster general is very meticulous in keeping separate his expense accounts while on business for the department and the Democratic national committee, and contacts his assistant postmaster generals by long distance telephone every morning he is absent from Washington, there can be little doubt that he has been getting in some good political licks on his most recent excursions.

Policitians attach significance to the fact that the Democrats waited until Chairman Fletcher had issued his formal call for the meeting of the Republican national committee before they chose their date.

Meeting after the Republicans will give them the decided advantage of being able to choose the date for their national convention at their pleasure.

If Democratic tradition is followed, this date will be later than that chosen by the Republicans. This means the Democrats will be able to take the offense from the start and not find themselves in the position of defending the "new deal." They will have before them in convention campaign plans and platform of the Republicans.

SANTA and the IRON QUEEN

BY SIGRID ARNE

TWO HUGE DOORS WERE SWINGING OPEN

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious gray arm reaches into toylard and snatches Santa Claus and the 12 singing spoons he has just carved to amuse the dolls.

Chapter II
THE IRON QUEEN

Poor Santa Claus was quite dazed when he was snatched from the toylard door and whizzed through the dark night sky. He didn't even have his red coat. The wind whistled through his white beard. All he could see was the great, gray arm which had stolen the spoons, and the arm circled his own waist tightly.

"Wait, wait—this has to stop," he spluttered. "Don't you know who I am?"

"Phoo-oo-ey!" said a deep voice somewhere near him in the dark. "Well, do you?" asked Santa.

"Phoo-oo-ey!" said the voice. "Well, if that's all the language you know," said Santa, "I might as well save my breath."

They passed several stars as they flew. But after awhile, they dropped to the ground. Santa felt his feet touch. The arm was gone. He was standing next to a big white horse with a crimson saddle.

"Humph!" he said, "might as well ride as walk." And he climbed on.

to the horse's back. Immediately the horse galloped off as if he knew where he was going. And he did. He raced straight for a great stone castle with a huge iron gate.

"Worse, and worse," said Santa. "I know this place from my Christmas trips. It's where the Iron Queen lives. There hasn't been a laugh here in 50 years and she always throws out the gifts I leave before anyone can see them. What can she want?"

The horse thundered through the entrance. Then he disappeared and Santa felt something in his hand, and there were the singing spoons.

"I declare," he said. But he clutched them gratefully. Two huge stores swung open. As he stepped through the doors he felt something pushing him along, and he walked through a great stone corridor until he entered a huge court. There the Iron Queen was pacing back and forth while a hundred men and women stood silently watching. Poor Santa's knees knocked together as he looked at him.

"Come here," she commanded, and Santa walked toward her.

LARGE MILLS OBSERVE NRA

Big Textile Companies Holding to Old Code Hours

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel

Raleigh, Dec. 7.—All the larger textile mills in the state seem to be holding to the old 40 hour week, set up under the NRA, since the only reports of any increase in working hours has been from a few small mills. Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher said today. More definite reports will be available next week, when inspectors row in the field send in their findings, he said. But so far no increase in working hours has been reported from any of the larger mills.

"A week or so ago, when we first started hearing rumors to the effect that the textile industry in the state was planning to increase hours and perhaps reduce wages, we were pretty much disturbed," Fletcher said. "But so far, this rumored lengthening of hours and reducing of wages has not materialized except in five or six small mills. As a result, we are greatly encouraged and are hoping that the textile industry has decided to continue on the 40 hour week basis."

Since the Department of Labor has no authority to check up on wages, since the state has no minimum wage law, it will have no means of finding out any definite information with regard to wages in the textile mills, Fletcher said. Neither does the State have any law governing working hours for men. But it does have a law limiting the working hours for women to 55 hours and not to exceed 11 hours in any one day.

Of the six small mills in which reports have been received with regard to longer working hours, one increased the hours of work to 50 a week, four to 45, while the other has gone on a four day week of 10 hours each, Fletcher said. He hopes to have reports on additional cases of hour stretching, if any, early next week.

xious to meet any credit demands that may be made upon them." Hood said. "We feel sure that the total resources of the commercial banks in the state will reach a new high within the next year, and thus surpass the 1929 figures."

In 1929 there were 478 state commercial banks, including 71 branches in North Carolina. At the present time there are only 255 state commercial banks, including 84 branches. In 1929 there were 36 industrial banks, including two branches. The resources of the industrial banks are now approximately the same as in 1927, or $13,142,008 now as compared with $13,451,928 in 1927. The resources of the state commercial banks in 1927 amounted to $335,414,728 as compared with $313,109,105 at present.

Old Relief Clients Cause Much Worry To State Officials

Approximately 30,000 People Left Without Support When Relief Organization Ceased Activities

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Fletcher, Dec. 10.—What are the various counties, cities and towns going to do with the 30,000 or more "unemployables" and unemployed who have not yet been provided with WPA jobs who have now been cut off relief?

This question is not only worrying the officials of the cities, towns and counties, especially those which have no funds with which to provide for these people formerly on relief and now face with want and destitution, but is worrying state officials and even those at the head of the Works Progress Administration in the state. They know there is going to be a tremendous kick-back after these thousands of penniless, helpless people are forced to go a few weeks longer without any help whatever. For while it is expected that an effort will be made to expand the WPA works program to take care of as many as possible of the still unemployed relief cases who are unable to work, no one at the present time sees any indication of any outside help for the thousands of unemployables who are not eligible for WPA employment.

An intimation was heard here today that a division might be set up within the Works Progress Administration to help take care of the unemployables, such as the ERA has been helping provide for them in the past. But an official of the WPA, when asked about the possibility of this, pointed out that the WPA organization in the state is rapidly exhausting the funds allocated to it both for administration and for works projects, with the result that it could not possibly extend any aid to unemployables without additional large grants of money from Washington. It is estimated that a minimum of $100,000 a month would be required to even supply the most necessary needs of the 10,000 families now cut off relief, totaling about 30,000 persons, and which are not eligible for employment. Some are fearing that this problem may make a special session of the general assembly necessary unless the Government again come to the aid of these people.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—A sharp decline in silver minus issues in the stock exchange today brought unnecessary selling elsewhere in the equities market.

United States smelting dropped about nine points at one time. Others down one to around three included international nickel Cerrita de Pasco, Hows, South American Smelting Anaconda, U. S. Steel, consolidated Gas, General Motors and western union. A few special ties such as Montgomery Ward, Omnibus, Alkman, Chickasaw oil and Baldwin bucked the trend for gains up to two points.

The late tone was heavy, transfers approximately 2,300,000 shares.
