Estimate Treasury Deficit Exceeding Billion Dollars

President Quotes Figures In Annual Budget Speech

Without Counting Unestimated New Relief Costs, Roosevelt Predicts Heavy Deficit For Next Fiscal Year; Total Debt at End of 1936-37 Period of $31,351,638,737, An All Time High, Seen.

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A Treasury deficit exceeding one billion dollars—without counting unestimated new relief costs—was forecast to Congress by President Roosevelt today for the next fiscal year.

Unprecedentedly, he withheld a complete budget estimate on how much the government would spend in the 12 months beginning July 1. For the present he listed $6,752,606,370 but said later requests for work-relief money would be forthcoming.

He gave notice that next year's deficit—and the public debt—would mount accordingly.

Just now, Mr. Roosevelt foresaw a debt at the end of the 1936-37 period of $31,351,638,737.

This would be an all time high.

There was not the slightest hint of readiness to meet demands from the opposition for an immediately balanced budget. Pending study of the voluminous document, political leaders in general withheld detailed comment.

From the start, however, dispute was plainly inevitable. Comment varied largely according to the economic views of the legislators rather than along strictly party lines.

"To run all the regular activities of the Government," Mr. Roosevelt said bluntly in the message read from the rostrum to Senate and House, "I will need a total of $5,069,000,000."

This figure, put forward as a new standard for the Government's permanent operating costs at differentiated from "emergency" outlays, exceeded comparative "regular" costs of recent years by about $2,000,000,000.

In a new expression of policy, Mr. Roosevelt moved Federal Public Works, the Civilian Conservation Corps and Agricultural Benefit Payments from the category of "emergency" to "regular" Federal activities.

"Success" justified the change, he said.

Even the new high level of "regular" expenditures, it was said, would leave a $5,000,000 surplus of revenue (before relief costs) as a result of "increased earning power and profits throughout the nation and not from the new taxes imposed" last summer.

In defense of New Deal financial policies, Mr. Roosevelt added:

"The credit of the Government is at its highest."

"The average business men of the nation stand ready to do their share."

"It is to be hoped that the motives and attacks which spring only from the desire for political or financial power on the part of the few will not retard the steady progress we are making."

"Our policy is succeeding. The figures prove it."

"Secure in the knowledge that steadily decreasing deficits will turn in time into steadily increasing surpluses, and that it is the deficit of today which is making possible the surplus of tomorrow, let us pursue the course that we have mapped."

The figures had been explained by him Saturday to more than 100 newsmen in his office. His "Budget School for Reporters," popping with questions and answers, lasted more than two hours.

Secretary Morgenthau, Daniel Bell, acting Budget director, and other aides were at the President's side. Repartee mingled with the business at hand.

In his partial relief budget, Mr. Roosevelt estimated a $1,103,000,000 carry-over from 1935's billions of (Continued on Page Two)

1936 RELIEF PLAN MAPPED

President Announces Plan Without Estimating Cost

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt announced today the shaping of next year's relief program along lines of this year's work progress plan, but made no attempt to estimate its cost.

In leaving blank one of the most important single items in the anxiously awaited budget message, he explained he would be able to estimate new relief needs better later in the session. He forecast they would be less than $2,136,000,000 and far less than this year.

The President told newsmen that projects left over from this year's work progress program would leave a very large reservoir of work for the jobs next year. It was the first official word on the character of the coming relief plan.

The chief executive included in his budget $2,347,171,632 for governmental activities that have heretofore been closed entirely as relief and recovery expenditures.

This included a $405,000,000 federal public works program; $619,347,000 for the AAA; $220,000 for the CCC and $1,102,824,632 for continuing PWA projects already underway.

With the exception of the money for the AAA, these funds will chiefly go to provide work relief next year. The $1,102,824,632 is money already appropriated and allocated. Most of it will be used to continue the work program of former years.

The President included the new public works money and CCC funds in his regular budget, as permanent rather than emergency government activities. He said the public works cash would all go for federal projects and that the loan and grant system of public works would be liquidated except for the PWA's revolving fund.

Explaining the budget to newsmen, the President said he had no idea how much he would eventually ask to continue the WPA.

He emphasized in his message to Congress, however, that to achieve his objective of a smaller deficit in 1937, than in 1936, the WPA fund would have to be less than $2,136,000,000.

"I do not anticipate that the need for additional relief funds will be as great as that sum," he said.

Using less formal words in describing the situation to correspondents, the chief executive said that $2,136,000,000 was a "kitty" or "leeway" for handling the work-relief problem, without increasing the deficit.

In his message, he suggested that one purpose in delaying decision relief funds might be to emphasize to industry that the extent to which the budget was balanced depended upon how well it provided work for the jobless.

Discussing possibilities for a balanced budget, he said final success would depend on "efforts put forth by the employers of the United States greatly to increase the number."

LEAF SIGN-UP IS FORWARDED

Pitt County Contracts Are Sent to Raleigh

County Agent E. F. Arnold said today he had forwarded all new tobacco contracts to the Raleigh offices.

A total of 2,651 contracts have been signed in Pitt under the new contract sign-up. Originally more than 2,700 contracts were in the county, but a number of landowners having more than one farm combined their applications.

There are only 301 tobacco contracts in the county unsigned as yet, and of this number 165 are for tracts owned by land banks or insurance companies, and Mr. Arnold said these would be signed later. The total base acreage in the county is approximately 49,000 acres.

Braver Dam, Carolina, Chicoed and Farmville townships have signed up 100 per cent.

Non-signers left the country by townships follow:

Ayden—Mrs. Eva V. Cannon; Belvoir—Mrs. Rebecca H. Tyson, Mrs. Emily Tripp; seven land bank contracts; Bethel, one contract of land bank; Fountain, Lester Barrett; Paoletti, H. C. O'Connell; two land bank contracts; Greenville, J. I. Allen, tract held by John L. Carr before his death; two land bank contracts and one life insurance.

Swift Creek, Chris P. Moore and two land bank contracts; Winterville, R. P. McLawhorn.

Funeral Rites Held for James McGowan

He is survived by two brothers, S. G. McGowan of Greenville, N. C., and Walter McGowan of Abaco, N. C.; three sisters, Mrs. Henrietta Mills, Mrs. Maggie and Sadie McGowan of Greenville; a half-sister, Mrs. Ben Stepps, Farmville, N. C.

DEFENSE SUM MOST SOUGHT IN PEACE TIME

Roosevelt Asks Congress for Billion Dollars

FIGHTING SHIPS WILL BE ADDED

President Takes Notice of Lack of Progress at London Naval Conference

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—A national defense budget of nearly a billion dollars—the largest peace-time sum ever asked for strictly military and naval purposes—went to Congress today from President Roosevelt.

He estimated $937,791,966 would be required in the 1936-37 fiscal year for both the army and navy. A $193,000,000 increase over estimated 1936 expenditures would be devoted largely to the acquisition of new fighting ships, aircraft and personnel in the year starting July 1.

Taking notice of the lack of progress at the London Naval Conference toward a new limitations agreement, he asked Congress to provide $567,872,400 for the Navy, much of which would be used to build up the fleet to full treaty strength by 1942.

For the Army provision was asked for purchase of 507 new airplanes, more tanks, armored and combat cars, an increase in the number of West Point cadets and in the National Guard.

In connection with Naval outlays a White House analysis said, carry-over and emergency funds would make $621,900,000 available for spending compared with $603,500,000 in 1935.

"These estimates," it said, "represent the minimum amount considered necessary to maintain the Navy as an efficient military unit, and especially to provide for orderliness in the construction of ships, aircraft and shore facilities, and an increase in the number of officers and men toward the strength contemplated for the treaty Navy under the approved Naval policy."

"The increase provided for 1937 is principally for the construction of ships and aircraft and for additional officers and men necessary to man the ships and aircraft that will be in commission during 1937."

Counting unexpended balances, it was estimated that $243,000,000 would be available for 1937 to provide for continuing work on the 94 Naval vessels now under construction and for beginning work on 12 destroyers and six submarines to be laid down at the beginning of the 1937 fiscal year, compared with $233,000,000 for 1936.

Including advance contract authorizations, $27,600,000 was placed in the budget estimate for Naval aircraft purchases, which it was estimated, would provide 377 new airplanes. An additional $3,733,350 was asked for aircraft maintenance and operation, including experimental and research work and instruments.

An increase of $17,000,000 was provided so that 6,500 additional men might be recruited to bring (Continued on Page Six)

Four White Men Are Held For Robbing C. W. Harvey

Greenville Dairyman Held Up Saturday Afternoon

PART OF LOOT RECOVERED

Celeste Bunch, Alton Squires, Stewart Enfield Charged With Robbery with Guns

Three white men are being held in jail here awaiting hearing on charges of robbery with firearms, and a fourth is being held as an accessory before the fact as a result of the robbery Saturday afternoon of C. W. Harvey, Greenville dairyman.

Celeste Bunch, 28, Alton Squires, 18, and Stewart Enfield, 19, are the three facing the major charge, while Barney Squires, about 32, awaits trial on the accessory charge. Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst said this morning that Bunch and Enfield had confessed to the crime and also had incriminated Alton Squires. The sheriff said two witnesses identified Squires as being connected with the robbery. The Squires, however, deny any connection with the holdup.

Harvey said that as he was entering his driveway two men stood in the path and he was forced to stop. He said he recognized one as a man who had applied to him for work some time ago. He said as he stopped his car the two came over to him, one of them asking for a job. Harvey said he told the man that he did not have anything for him to do now and that one of the pair, Bunch, pushed a pistol to his side and told him that he was not looking for a job but wanted his money.

Mr. Harvey had just returned from the city and had his payroll on his person and in addition had about $50 in collections he had made during the day. He said the men told him they "meant business" and he gave them a bag of change. The pair then demanded that they knew he had more money than that. He said the men then took the key out of Mr. Harvey's car and started to search him. Bunch holding the gun and Enfield doing the searching, Sheriff Whitehurst said.

Committee Action on Bonus Payment Is Expected Today

No Indication Given As to When Bill Will Reach Floor; Committee Hears Representative Vinson

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Chairman (D-N. C.) said today the House ways and means committee might approve this afternoon the bonus bill behind which House factions and major veteran organizations have united.

He made that assertion after the committee discussed the measure for an hour and a half.

Simultaneously Speaker Byrnes said there would be every disposition on the part of House leaders to get together in the interest of expediting the measure.

He said he did not know just when it might come to the floor.

The House ways and means committee listened to an explanation message by Rep. Vinson, one of its sponsors, then requested Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator to appear before the committee.

"I don't see any reason for delay," Doughton said.

"There seems to be no good reason why we can't report out the bill this afternoon."

Earlier 218 members who backed the Patman inflation cash payment plan were urged today to throw their wholehearted support to a bill sponsored by the veterans' organization.

LINT PROGRAM STARTED HERE

Committeemen To Aid Applications Are Named

Committeemen to aid farmers in preparing their applications for the new cotton control sign-up have been named for each township in the county, with the exception of Belvoir, where the group will be named Tuesday.

While it is not probable the actual sign-up will get underway before the first of February, plans are going ahead in Pitt county for the new contracts for 1936-39, inclusive.

Meetings were held in each township last week by County Agent E. F. Arnold or his assistants. Contrary to rules of the control plan, two brothers were named on the Belvoir committee and a new election has been set for Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock at Bell's Cross Roads.

The state control committee will start holding meetings in the various cotton growing counties January 13. There are 63 counties in the state where contracts will be offered and no definite date has been set for the Pitt meeting.

Immediately after the meetings in the various counties, the actual control sign-up will get underway. Sessions will be held in two or three counties daily.

The committeemen named to aid farmers in making cotton control applications in the various townships follow:

Farmville—C. A. Tyson, S. T. Lewis, Arch J. Flanagan, John T. Thorne (Alternate).

Falkland—R. B. Tyer, W. S. Newton, J. C. Parker, G. H. Pittman (Alternate).

No Comment Immediately Forthcoming For President and Other New Dealers

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt called Attorney General Cummings and Secretary Wallace to the White House this afternoon to study the Supreme court decision against the AAA.

Silent on the blow Mr. Roosevelt made it known that he will hold other conferences during next three or four days before any announcement is made by him.

Stephen Early, a Secretary to the President issued the following statement:

"The president at 2:30 will go in conference with Attorney General Cummings and the Sec. of Agriculture to begin a preliminary study of the Supreme court decision and the dissenting opinion handed down today in the AAA case."

"I desire to emphasize that it will be a preliminary study because of the general belief that before a final analysis is possible—there being two opinions, majority and minority and many other legal aspects to be opinion—there will be three or four subsequent conference possible within the next three or four days."

Washington, Jan. 6.—(AP)—In a sweeping decision the Supreme court today ruled the entire AAA program was unconstitutional.

In an opinion read by Justice Roberts, the original adjuication act was declared to be "an invasion of state rights" and beyond federal power under the "general welfare" clause.

"If the farm aid legislation were validated," he said, "it would be possible for congress to 'regulate all industry in its most meticulous forms.'"

The ruling appeared likely to doom other farm legislation such as the Bankhead cotton control act, the Kerr-Smith tobacco act and the Warren potato law.

Speculation how the president's camp would be affected stirred interest when the news reached the camp. Legislators turned in private from the business of the moment, examination of the 1936-37 New Deal budget, to mull over the possibilities.

Republican determination of farm plan alternatives had awaited the Supreme court's attitude.

What the New Deal would do was awaited eagerly. Secretary Wallace reserved comment.

It was intimated there would not be any comment immediately from the administration. Councils of war were called.

President Roosevelt learned of the ruling, but had nothing to say. Roberts said the farm plan was "not in essence voluntary."

"It had a compulsory purpose," he declared.

The decision was six to three. Justices Stone, Brandeis and Cardozo dissented.

Presumably the government will seek to finance a way to pay approximately $500,000,000 due on contracts still unpaid.

Federal lawyers had indicated belief these can be considered binding government obligations. It remained to be worked out.

Watching through the door, Secretary Wallace was observed not to have changed expression as he glanced at the fateful message, said it aside and continued his conversations with visitors.

Roberts said the AAA amendments enacted last August made no difference as congress could not ratify something it did not have power to originate.

"Congress might redistribute the entire industrial population of this act were upheld," he said seriously. "The United States government could destroy local self-government."

As soon as he finished, Justice Stone read the dissenting opinion. (Continued on page six)

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

PUZZLING: It's the patriotic fashion for American politicians to denounce Europe as a collection of unregenerate nations scheming to involve Uncle Sam in their selfish struggles. But a checkup on American exports to one breeding place of war suggests why "Europeans sometimes think the kettle is calling the pot black."

In the last six years this country has shipped $6,000,000 worth of airplane engines and parts (they apparently excel foreign makes) to a rearming Germany and friendly nations nearby. The exports leaped tremendously after Hitler was swept into office with a popular mandate to scrap Versailles verbotens against an army, navy and aerial fleet.

Here's how harassed European chancelleries look at this situation: In time of peace the United States sells war materials to a nation apparently storing up for another battlefield test. But when the conflict comes, this country intends to retreat behind a neutrality wall.

LADIES: Mollie Dawson quietly slipped into Washington last week to set up a woman's headquarters for the reelection of her good friend, Franklin D. Roosevelt. A life-long associate of Mrs. Roosevelt, she was drafted for the assignment despite (Continued on Page Four)

AFRICAN PACT NOW DORMANT

Italy and France Been Too Busy to Carry Out Treaty

By CHARLES FOLTZ
PARIS (AP)—Italy has been so busy fighting and France so busy trying to settle the fight that the two nations have never consummated territorial changes agreed on in the Franco-Italian accord of January 6, 1935.

Under the agreement Premier Laval made in Rome, two Franco-Italian commissions were to draw up new boundaries adding 70,000 square miles of territory to Italy's African possessions.

French colonial officials admitted however that the two commissions have never gone to work. The reason, they said, was "too much other business."

British Sea Lane Involved.
Mussolini's cryptic estimate of the value of the new territories was revealed in his reported remark "they must think I'm a collector of deserts".

Actually the territory turned over to Libya—the northern part of French Equatorial Africa—was little more than desert, although important caravan routes leading from north Africa to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

But the little strip of land that France gave Italy which ran from Der Eloba on the Red Sea to Daddoo, where Ethiopia touches French and Italian territory, was another matter.

In that strip Mussolini got a section of the coast facing the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb, where the Red Sea carries world commerce to and from the Suez Canal. Der Eloba faces Perim Island, Britain's miniature Gibraltar commanding the straits and guarding that vital link in Britain's route to India.

Secret Clauses Rumored
French political observers at the time Laval made his trade were simultaneously jubilant and suspicious at the price France paid for Mussolini's friendship.

Some considered that Laval had driven a hard bargain, swapping African deserts and barren Red Sea coastlines for the friendship of a growing European power. Others talked of a "secret agreement," immediately denied at the Quai d'Orsay, by which Laval promised to tolerate Italy's "colonial expedition" in Africa.

Stories grew up like mushrooms of the "real facts" behind the deal. One has it that the deal is off following Laval's decision to cast France's lot with League sanctions against Italy.

Enter—Three Sheikhs
Another, which gained wide circulation in diplomatic circles, was that the French colonial office suddenly discovered there were three cases in the 'desert' given to Libya, each the headquarters of a powerful sheikh. These three sheikhs, the story said, were the most rabid Francophiles in all North Africa and greatly embarrassed Laval by plotting a revolt against Italian administration as soon as they heard they had been given to Italy.

The sheikhs, the story goes, were so powerful that Laval, fearing they would set off a native rebellion throughout North Africa, called Mussolini and asked him to give the three and their bases back to France. Mussolini agreed, but only at the price of getting a free hand in Ethiopia.

Those who tell the story point out that, despite the agreement of January 6, the frontiers have not been delimited.

Speedy action on soldiers' cash bonus legislation was promised by Rep. Robert L. Doughton (seated), chairman of the house ways and means committee, when leading bonus advocates visited him in his office as congress convened. Standing, left to right, are Ray Murphy, national commander of the American Legion; Thomas Kirby, legislative representative of disabled American veterans of the World war, and James E. Van Zandt, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. (Associated Press Photo.)

The task of even so much as examining these measures is tremendous. Anything like a careful study of them by individual members of congress is out of question.

House members make an effort now to study the merits of minor pieces of legislation. The majority and minority leaders each designate certain individuals to wade through the maze of minor and private bills, select the good from the bad, and prepare themselves to go to the floor ready for action.

These groups are known as the "wrecking crews" and the number of pet measures they prevent from being passed makes this description particularly appropos.

At best, however, the activity of the "wrecking crews" is limited and does not touch the really important legislation.

In 50 Plain Words.
A serious attempt better to acquaint individual members with the type of legislation they must consider is to be made at this session. The aid of the library of congress through its legislative reference bureau has been enlisted.

For the past several months a corps of workers has been at work reducing to simple and concise language, in around 50 words, a digest of each of the 6,000 or more pending measures brought over from the last session. On the opening day more than 1,500 such bills had been completed and ready for study by senators and representatives. The digest will appear weekly.

The convenience and time saved to members by this innovation is incalculable. The wonder of it is that something like it had not been in use long before now.

By deducting the estimated $3,234,000,000 surplus representing the difference between income and "regular" expenditures, he arrived at the partial estimate of the 1937 deficit—$1,098,000,000.

This compared with an estimated $3,234,000,000 deficit at the end of the current fiscal year on June 30, —a difference of $2,136,000,000. Mr. Roosevelt's nearest hint of how much future relief requests may be was:

"I do not anticipate that the need for additional relief funds will be as great as that sum ($2,136,000,000)."

To state the case even more precisely, the gross deficit of the Government in 1934 was $3,880,000,000; in 1935 $3,575,000,000; in 1936 (estimated) $3,234,000,000; and in 1937 (estimated) not including any new appropriations for work relief, $1,098,000,000.

"Therefore it is clear that since June 30, 1934, the gross deficit of the Government shows a steady decrease during the last years 1935 and 1936, xxx."

"Therefore it follows that by whatever amount the appropriation for work relief at this session is less than $2,136,000,000, the gross deficit for 1937 will be less than the deficit for 1936 by the same amount."

In withholding final relief figures, Mr. Roosevelt noted that ultimate success in balancing income and outlays "will depend, of course, on the strength of efforts put forward by the employers of the United States greatly to increase the number of persons employed by them."

While the absence of requests for new taxes was stressed, the President included two reservations:

1. He repeated that if processing taxes are invalidated by the Supreme Court, "we will have to face the problem of financing existing contracts for benefit payments out of some form of new taxes."

2. If Congress votes expenditures outside of budget estimates, "I strongly urge that additional taxes be provided to cover such charges."

"It is important as we emerge from the depression that no new activities be added to the Government unless provision is made for

Washington Cab-Drivers Prove Plymouth Costs Less to Run

30% OF CABS OPERATING ON CAPITAL'S PHENOMENALLY LOW RATES ARE PLYMOUTHS

WASHINGTON, D. C., cab-riders find rates extremely low.

DRIVER FRED HOUSE picked Plymouth for economy.

PEOPLE LIKE CABS with the safety, comfort and smart appearance of big 1936 Plymouths.

VISITORS TO WASHINGTON marvel at the splendid taxicab service...and low rates. They see the high percentage of Plymouth cars in Washington's taxicab service. Registrations today show almost every third taxi is a Plymouth...and the number is increasing phenomenally.

Plymouth's economy is the answer... gas and oil economy... low upkeep cost... amazing ability to stand up under the grueling punishment of big-city taxicab service.

General Manager Harry Wechsler, of the City Cab Association—one of Washington's largest—says: "We find Plymouth has the operating economy necessary to give good cab service at Washington's low rates. More than half our cabs are Plymouths."

Garage Superintendent Seigel, who estimates that City Cabs run up a yearly total of fourteen million miles, reports: "Our Plymouth drivers get around 18 miles to the gallon of gas—in city traffic."

PLYMOUTH BUILDS GREAT CARS

Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—(AP)

Members of congress, the press galleries and others on Capitol Hill will find the going a great deal easier during the present congress thanks to a "rider" attached to the legislative appropriation bill last session.

The sum of $10,000 was set aside to provide a digest of the bills of general public interest before congress.

One of the most troublesome and vexing problems which confronts these gentlemen when congress is in session is too keep track of the literally thousands of bills introduced.

It is nothing unusual for upwards of 20,000 bills to be introduced in both houses during a congress. An actual count in two recent sessions shows that in one 17,415 bills and joint resolutions were introduced in the other, 17,769 in the house and 6,007 in the senate, and 6,127 in the senate.

Most of these bills never are heard from again after their introduction. In many cases they have served their purpose without further action. They have advertised the member and the project.

ures, however, are of general public interest. A vast number of these measures are, however, of general public interest. There are, for example, some 6,000 in this category which were brought over from the last session and are now pending. Hundreds of others will be added as the session progresses.

A. was in charge of the program. The opening hymn "Faint of Our Fathers," was led by James Dees. Instead of a text for the Scripture reading, the team saw fit to choose an editorial on "Belief," by Dr. Norris, of Princeton University.

Francis Fairly, a graduate student and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, delivered a message on "The Future of American Women." He began with the early days when women held a very inferior place in life and came up to today, where they are on an equal basis with men. Women, he pointed out, take advantage of educational opportunities more so than men. Since men, he stated, cannot solve alone the problems which confront them today, it is up to the women to make America a truly great nation. He urged that women to take a more definite place in religion and help the country to keep peace.

James Dees rendered two solos, "How Firm a Foundation" and "Crossing the Bar."

She was formerly employed by the "Vanitie Box," ten months, and was transferred to the "Permanent Wave Shop," as manager in September. First Church of Christ, Scientist. "God" was the subject of the lesson-sermon in all churches and societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 5th.

The golden text was from Psalms 86:8-10. "Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord. For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone."

Among the citations which comprised the lesson-sermon was the following from the Bible: "Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob; Which turned the rock into a standing water, the flint into a fountain of waters." (Ps. 114:7-8).

The lesson-sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The history of Christianity furnishes sublime proofs of the supporting influence and protecting power bestowed on man by his heavenly Father, omnipotent Mind, who gives man faith and understanding whereby to defend himself, not only from temptation, but from bodily suffering."

Red Men Install Officers. The newly elected and appointed chiefs of Withlacoochee Tribe Improved Order of Red Men were installed last Friday night. About one hundred men were present, and in the very beginning to the end it looked like there had never been a man that you hear so much talk about as "Old Man Depression."

Business really rushed for about two hours—so rushing that no one had time to inquire "when do we eat?" Retiring Sachem James Hinson was called out on business before closing time, so Brother L. S. Spence briefly reviewed the year's work. He thanked the members for their loyalty to their Sachem and being especially thankful that the membership has held up as well as it has. He announced that he would give a beautiful pot flower to all that had made a perfect attendance for the year. The presentation was made by Rev. D. A. Windham, Brother L. A. Lee and others very feelingly expressed their appreciation for the remembrance.

Following the retiring chiefs the newly elected chiefs took their station, with A. B. Corey as Sachem, who urged that the members stand behind him during the coming six months and help him make this the best Red Men year in the history of the Tribe. He announced his appointed chiefs and declared that he expected all of them to do their part.

Supper was then served, consisting of barbecue and cold drinks.

Drunken Drivers Who Escape Trial To Lose Licenses

New Law Provides That Those Who Forfeit Bonds Automatically Have Licenses Revoked

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Jan. 6.—The several score defendants charged with drunken driving who failed to appear before Superior Court Judge Wilson Warlick in Charlotte in December after he had announced he was going to give road sentences for a period of one year anyway, since it now appears that Judge W. F. Harding, now holding court in Charlotte, is going to compel the bondsmen for these drunken driving defendants to pay the bonds they made. For under the 1935 driver's license law, the forfeiture of bond in any charge of drunken or reckless driving is equivalent to conviction, with the result that those who forfeit this bond will automatically have their driving permits revoked for a period of one year.

The revocation of a driver's license is mandatory following one conviction (or forfeiture of bond) for drunken driving and after two convictions for reckless driving. Records of all convictions must be sent to the Division of Highway Safety here, where they are checked against the card indexed records of all holders of drivers' licenses.

"While those charged with drunken driving or reckless driving may be able to escape jail or road sentences by failing to appear for trial when their cases are called and thus get off with the forfeiture of their bond, they cannot escape having their driver's licenses revoked by this procedure, since they will be revoked just the same, provided their bond is forfeited," Director Arthur Fulk of the Highway Safety Division said today. "And we are glad to say that the judges are showing better and better cooperation in forfeiting bond in these cases. So those who do not want to get fined, serve jail sentences, forfeit their bond or lose the right to drive their cars had better decide not to try to mix liquor and gasoline."

LESSONS IN LAW-MAKING

8. WHO CAN BE A MEMBER

Strictly speaking, a member of either the Senate or House of Representatives is a congressman. However, in general practice, a member of the Senate is referred to as a senator and a member of the House as a congressman, although the official title of the latter is a representative.

There are 96 senators, two from each of the 48 states, and 435 members of the House, population being the determining factor in each state.

A member of the House, under the constitution, must have attained the age of 25, have been a citizen of the United States for seven years, and be a resident of the state in which he was elected.

A senator must be 30 years old, have been a citizen of the United States for 9 years, and be a resident of the state which elects him.

The oath of office taken by members of the House is administered by the Speaker, and by the Vice-President to senators. It is:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that I take this obligation freely without any mental reservations or purpose of evasion; and that I will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which I am about to enter. So help me God."

SURE PUNISHMENT WOULD MEAN LESS CRIME

That was a daring broad daylight hold-up near this city Saturday and if the men now held in custody are found guilty of the crime the judge who tries the case should see that they get the limit of the penalty. A person who will use firearms and threaten to kill in order to rob, is at heart a murderer and should be given such a long term in prison that the next person inclined to seek easy money by the robbery route will stop and consider the penalty before embarking upon his career of crime.

UP TO FARMERS

Whether or not today's ruling of the Supreme Court that the entire AAA program will affect the present tobacco control program recently signed by the farmers beyond eliminating benefit payments to the signers, we do not know, but the remedy for the situation is in the hands of the farmers if they will all stick together as a unit.

During the past few years of the AAA the growers have seen that a crop curtailed to the needs of the tobacco companies will bring a fair price and certainly a fair price should be the aim of every grower when he produces a crop.

If the growers will stick to the production of only enough to supply the demands of the trade they will always get a fair price for what they have to sell. Of course under a voluntary plan there will always be some who will want to step beyond the bounds of reason and try to plant a big crop to profit at the expense of the fellow who keeps his crop at a minimum, but if the farmers exercise a sensible attitude toward this thing such chiselers will be in a small minority and their production will not be enough to cause a great over production. If on the other hand, the growers give up all hope of controlling acreage and endeavor each to outdo his neighbor there is going to be such an over-production that before long the growers will find themselves in worse financial difficulties than ever before in history.

The growers do not need benefit payments from the government so long as they receive fair prices for their crops and the way to receive fair prices is to keep the acreage down whether or not there is a federal program to this end.

NEVER MIND THE LADY
by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Allaire West just has refused George Fox's proposal of marriage, because she frankly tells him, she cannot forget Terry Willett, hard-fighting engineer now on his way back to South America and one of the most difficult jobs on the continent. And then Ray West, Allaire's father, tells her that Terry, as he has with him, has a reputation for being a hard-fighting engineer, and that she has deserted the form of a man, and is now a free woman to do.

Chapter 26 MORNING FLIGHT

AND Allaire could have sworn Terry Willett really loved her. He'd fought for her and she'd been so proud of it. Proud! She nearly laughed. He'd fought for Puff too, and gone to "light Court."

A mouthful of fog. Yes, her father had warned her. Steering an impossible course amid parties, and horse shows, and bachelor cotillions, toward the glow of rivers to cross and battles to win. And now Ray was laughing.

She yanked off her silver satin slipper and buried it savagely out the window.

"That's for you, Willett!" she said furiously.

The gesture seemed to snap something in her. She sank back as if exhausted. The gesture had been silly, inane, and she hated to make silly inane gestures.

She'd made one before when she sent Terry away when she knew she loved him. Sent him away in his hour of need, the Carteret minister had said.

Hour of need! It seemed a spar, that phrase, in the floating wreckage. A spar that any woman would seize. A strong man had needed her, one of the greatest honors vouchsafed to woman. And she'd sent him away, relinquished all claim to him, sent him to Puff on the rebound. She'd driven him to Puff Harrington.

"It was my fault," she repeated stultifyingly. "Mine."

But he had come back to fight a battle for her, to sweat and be hurt and run the gauntlet of an armed and desperate snake. Allaire clung to that. Terry. She had sent him away, but he had come back.

She went to the phone and called Shorty Hasbrouck at the Washington landing field.

"Shorty," she said clearly, "this is Allaire West. My bus is still in the shop. Can you fly me down to Miami tomorrow morning?"

"Sure," said Shorty. "How early?"

"With the sun," said Allaire.

She hung up and stood lost in thought. There'd be a big argument around here: might as well get it over. She picked up the house phone and called the butler's pantry.

"Blythe, see if you can find my father. I want to see him right away."

Contact! A group of three people stood on a landing field and watched a little red and black Stinson rising into the early morning sun. Rayburn West, Neil West, and George Fox.

"What got into her?" Ray sounded dazed. "After what she knows about him."

Fox turned and faced them.

"It's very simple," he told them steadily. "You starved her for affection when she was young and she's grown up with all that affection stored and accumulating and waiting to get out. And she's made it over lock, stock, and barrel to Terry Willett."

He took a deep breath. "And if you ever prayed in your lives before, you'll pray that her courage and love and fight won't go to waste, but will see her through. Because," and his voice shook, "she's putting all her chips on one turn of the wheel and the odds are against her."

He turned away from them. What did they know of battle?

PROPRIONOIRE! And the coffee chutes were humming again. Coffee! Thousands of bags of it. The Great God Coffee! Half to Coffee! It had broken the grip of the revolution. The last mines were being taken up out of the harbor so that the freighters of twenty nations could get in to resume their profitable trade.

Dark-skinned men in white ducks came into Proprietary and filled the hotels and bars. They had been marooned outside by the revolution. They met their friends, embracing with alternate hugs which reminded one of a French general conventionally saluting a decorated politician. The coffee brokers in their little cabins on the narrow streets were once more at work, and so were the steamship agencies, and freight solicitors. Life begins in Proprietary.

But of course the revolution had never stopped those days of sodden rain and days of blinding heat. They'd always been there in a place where anything could happen.

Terry Willett and Bucky Corrigan had moved in on the river job. They'd shoved into town the day the armistice was signed. They had things going in two weeks and in two weeks they also knew what they were up against.

Corrigan came down the river to get some more men and ran into difficulties. It was going to be a long job and a lot of the women didn't want either to accompany their men or let them go up to their unhealthy spot in the river.

The padre had influence, but Corrigan wasn't much good in talking to padres, so he sent for Willett. Willett came down impatiently, while Corrigan ended up in Drake's office, looking as though he'd been through a war.

"By golly," he said, lounging in a chair with one puttee leg thrown over the arm, "it's a stinker if I ever saw one. You can't get a hold on the thing—it's like grabbing a handful of ooze."

"It's a tough one," agreed Drake, the Coffee Company agent, "but Willett almost licked it before—and if that river can be opened to commerce it will be a great thing."

"Yeah, sure. Willett doesn't give a damn about opening the river to commerce, but the job beat his old man and he's death on beating it. You know what he's figuring on doing?—putting in a system of locks. Why, he hasn't got a chance. Rainy season will be on him before the work's half done, and everything will go blooey."

HE shoved his sun helmet back on his head and rolled a cigaret with deft powerful fingers.

"Willett's come back from the States funny. He doesn't say much. Doesn't laugh much either. All he wants to do is pull this job through and he's putting his whole life into it."

No, nobody with any sense would have tackled that job. Drake had always felt that. But it was everything to Terry Willett. It was a Debt of Honor.

LIBERAL: Robert V. Fleming

new head of the American Bankers' Association — is doing a smart public relations job. His diplomacy has gone far to heal the internal breach that developed out of the bitter New Orleans fight over the second vice presidency.

What's more, he has repeatedly urged the banks to cultivate a more alert and progressive outlook on credit problems if they want the government to quit something with them. This has helped dispel the popular impression that bankers are so set in their ways they have to be kicked into doing their share in promoting recovery.

The main object of the series of regional banking conferences Mr. Fleming has planned will be to restore bankers to the public's good graces. Every effort will be made to show that the banks are all set to be more liberal about extending credit if sound borrowers will only cooperate by asking for it.

Lady Took Cardui During Middle Life

Women who are entering middle life will be interested in the experience of Mrs. L. C. McDonald, of Paragould, Ark., who writes: "I cannot say anything but good about Cardui. I think it is a grand medicine. I took Cardui during change of life. I was so weak, so nervous, I could hardly go. I just dragged around. I had fainting spells, and would just give down. My back and head hurt. I knew I had to take something to give me strength. I read of Cardui. I took about seven bottles. It gave me relief and strength. I am now 60 years past, and can do a pretty good day's work in the house and garden."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)

BAILEY MAY GO FORSYTH

Senator May Address Winston - Salem Democrats

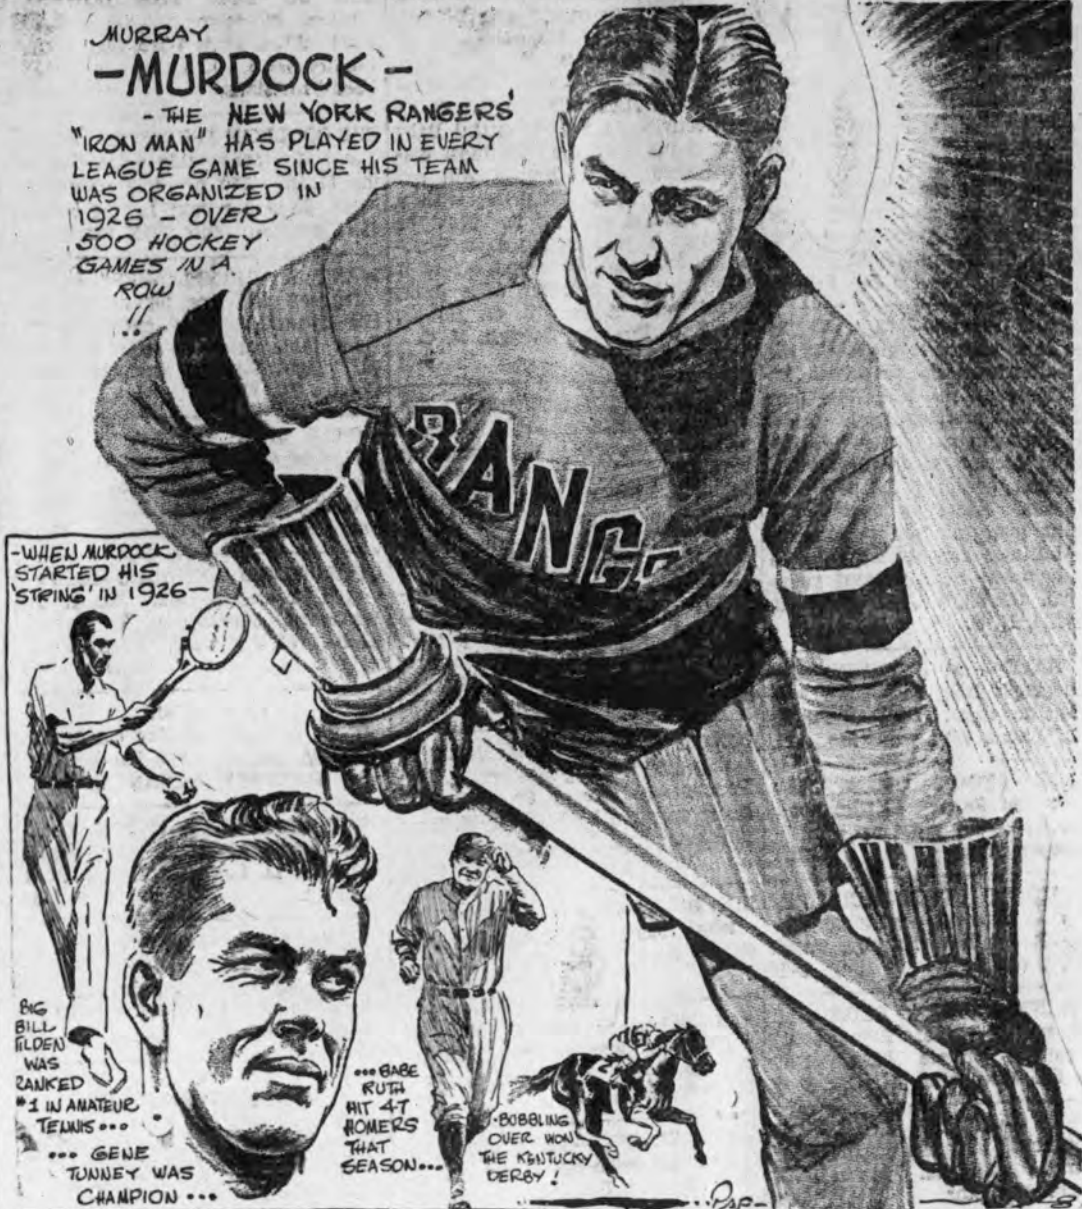

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
By J. C. BASKERVILL
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—Senator Josiah W. Bailey is believed more likely to accept the invitation extended him by the Winston-Salem Democrats Club of Winston-Salem to address the Jackson Day Dinner Wednesday night, than any other, especially since many still think that Congressman Frank Hancock of the Fifth District, which includes Forsyth county, may become a candidate for the senate against Bailey. The Durham county Young Democratic Club invited Senator Bailey to be the principal speaker at the Jackson Day dinner there, but the Senator declined, on the grounds that he would not be able to leave his duties in Washington at that time. It is also understood that he indicated he might not be able to be in Winston-Salem for the reason.

But political observers here are inclined to believe that if it is at all possible, Senator Bailey will find a way to be present at the Jackson Day Dinner in Winston-Salem. For if Congressman Hancock does decide to become a candidate for the Senate, Senator Bailey will have need of all the good will and all the votes he can get from the counties in the Fifth District—and Forsyth is the most populous county in the district. The fact that Senator Bailey was not asked to speak at the Jackson Day Dinner in Wake county—his home county—or in Guilford county, regarded as the seat of his political organization with LeRoy Shuping as one of his principal lieutenants, is regarded by some as indicating that Senator Bailey will be more inclined than ever to accept the Winston-Salem invitation. Others, however, think that since he was more or less snubbed by the Wake and Guilford county Young Democrats, he will probably not attend any of the Jackson Day dinners here in the state.

The recent announcement by Solicitor Allen T. Gwynn, of Reidsville, that he will be a candidate for Congress from the Fifth district, the one which Congressman Hancock now represents, is regarded by a good many as indicating Hancock will be a candidate against Senator Bailey. For many here who know both Congressman Hancock and Solicitor Gwynn regard them both as liberals and both as strongly pro-New Deal. Accordingly, it is difficult for many here to believe that Gwynn would announce as a candidate for the seat in Congress now held by Hancock unless he felt pretty sure Hancock was going to run for some other post, presumably the Senate seat now held by Senator Bailey. There are those, however, who maintain that Gwynn and Hancock are not as close as some think and that Gwynn is out for the Fifth district seat in Congress regardless of what Hancock does. The smell of tobacco is clearly scented by some observers, who point out Gwynn comes from Reidsville, home of some of the large American Tobacco Company factories, also that Winston-Salem is in the Fifth district. It is an open secret that Hancock has not been and is not now popular with any of the tobacco companies, because of his advocacy of the Flanagan tobacco grading bill in the last session of Congress.

There are some here who seem the entry of Gwynn into the race for Congress as a move friendly to Hancock and to split the field against him and thus lessen the chances of Allison James, Winston-Salem man who is already an announced candidate, of winning the nomination. For which both James and Gwynn are opposing him. Congressman Hancock could easily win the nomination, some observers here maintain. But this is admitted to be the purest sort of political speculation. At any rate, most observers here believe that whether Hancock decides to run against Senator Bailey or not, the Senator needs all the support he can get from any section he can get it these days, and that he would not make a mistake if he should find it possible to attend and address the Jackson Day Dinner in Winston-Salem Wednesday night.

ployed who are registered with the Reemployment Service, as well as former relief cases." Coan said. "They maintain that since these people have not ever been on relief they deserve even more consideration than those who were on relief. And Administrator Hopkins and others in Washington have agreed that there is merit in this argument. Yet under the present law they have been compelled to give preference to the former relief clients, so that none of the unemployed who have never been on relief can be employed until all of the relief lists have been exhausted. "However, I feel sure that the present Congress will change the law and probably make it possible for the WPA, also for highway contractors, PWA contractors and other Federal employing agencies to employ an equal number from both groups. Thus if a project called for 100 workers, 50 would be drawn from the former relief clients and 50 from the registered unemployed who had never been on relief. "It is no secret here that the highway contractors who have been forced to use relief labor would like to see this new system since they maintain they can get much better work from non-relief workers. This would make it possible for the WPA to develop projects for sections which have very little relief labor but plenty of unemployed workers available. Coan agreed.

WPA CHANGES ARE EXPECTED

Administrator Coan Sees New Employment Rules

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—This session of Congress will undoubtedly change the regulations governing employment for WPA projects so that whenever the relief rolls are exhausted in any community, work can be given to any who are unemployed, regardless of whether they were formerly on relief or not. State Works Progress Administrator said here today. Under present regulations, the only persons who can be given jobs on WPA projects are those who were actually on relief up to November 1, 1935, he pointed out. Preference must also be given to former relief cases in the employment of workers on Federal highway building projects, farm-to-market road projects, even PWA projects. "Many have contended for several months, especially highway and PWA contractors, that they should be permitted to employ any unem-

FEDERAL PLAN AIDS FARMERS

Resettlement Administration to Expand Activities

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Jan. 6.—With 6,995 farm families already being assisted by its farm rehabilitation program in North Carolina, the Resettlement Administration plans to extend its rehabilitation activities to 8,304 additional farm families between now and May 1, 1936, and funds for this expansion of the farm rehabilitation are already available, it was learned today from the regional and state offices of the Resettlement Administration here. Of the 8,304 additional farm families which the rehabilitation division expects to take over within the next four months, to bring the total to the state's full quota of 15,300 families to be assisted by the rehabilitation program, 3,503 of the families will be standard rehabilitation cases with farm and home plans provided, while 4,801 will be emergency cases taken over from relief rolls. The farm families being assisted by the rehabilitation division are those which because of unfortunate circumstances such as illness, poor management, worn out land, lack of training and so forth, are not financially solvent but nevertheless are industrious, willing to work and deserving. It was pointed out by Homer H. B. Mask, regional director of Resettlement of Region Four which includes North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, of which Vance E. Swift is state director, is extending aid to these families by providing trained agricultural supervisors to advise them. It is also extending loans to rehabilitation families to enable them to purchase food supplies, seed, fertilizer, tools, mules and other needed livestock. If these families have mortgages on their farms, they are also assisted by the farm debt adjustment service which helps these farmers refinance their loans in such a way as to enable them to retire them by small payment. These farm families are also being given an opportunity to work together with other families in ac-

Claims Her Mother Had Her Sterilized

San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21, heiress to millions, filed a $500,000 damage suit today charging her mother, Mrs. Marion Hewitt McCarter, had had her sterilized so Mrs. McCarter never would lose the benefits of a $10,000,000 trust fund.

AAA UNCONSTITUTIONAL

(Continued from page one) and strongly expressed differences of opinion of the agricultural adjustment act make it important in the interest of clear-thinking and sound result to emphasize at the outset certain propositions which would have continued influence in determining the validity of the act.

They include the power of courts to declare a statute unconstitutional is subject to two guiding principles which ought never to be absent from judicial consciousness.

"One is that courts are concerned only with power to enact statutes, not with their wisdom.

"The other is that while unconstitutional exercise of power by the executive and legislative branches of the government is subject to judicial restraint, the only check upon our exercise of power is our sense of self-restraint.

"For the removal of unwise laws from the statute books, appeal lies not to the court, but to the ballot and to the processors of democratic government.

"Second, the continual power of congress to levy an excise tax upon the processors of agricultural produce is not questioned."

Two months from now, he will be in a better position to estimate relief needs for next year. But he indicated he would wait as long as he could without extending the session of Congress.

His suggestion of two months was based upon an estimate that a month would be necessary for action. He assumed Congress would still be here April 1.

There was no mention of new appropriations for low cost housing, despite Secretary Ickes support of the billion dollar program advanced by Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.). Only enough funds were included to complete this year's $100,000,000 program.

The $405,000,000 new public works fund was divided specifically among the various agencies.

The War Department received $129,000,000 for rivers and harbors development and the Reclamation Bureau, with $64,710,000.

In addition, $4,600,000 would go to additional work on Boulder Dam, $6,500,000 for the All-American Canal, $3,500,000 for roads on Indian reservations, and $6,300,000 for roads and trails in national parks.

Appropriations asked for other public works. Agriculture Department $68,000,000, including $60,000,000 for the Bureau of Public Roads and $8,000,000 for forest roads and trails; Tennessee Valley Authority, $43,000,000; hospitals and domiciliary facilities for the Veterans Administration $4,000,000; jail buildings and equipment, Justice Department $4,500,000; State Department (for the International Boundary Commission's activities in improving the Rio Grande), $3,800,000; Treasury $6,050,000 for government building, including $7,700,000 for construction within the District of Columbia.

The Marine corps was allowed a $1,664,000 increase to boost its enlisted strength from 16,000 to 17,000 add 20 new second lieutenants, and more aviation cadets and officers and men to the marine reserve.

Approximately $1,500,000 was added to the Naval Reserve Budget to provide for additions to bring that branch up to 4,450 and 17,200 men, including aviation cadets.

For the Army's military functions $369,919,566 was asked, a sum comparing with $46,084,872 actually appropriated in 1935.

The increase, it was explained, was due primarily to enlarged requirements for the air corps, authorized increases in enlisted and cadet personnel, the promotion act and to a general rise in the price of Army food rations.

Although a previous act of Congress authorized an enlisted strength of 165,000 the budget provided sufficient funds only for an average strength of 147,000 during the fiscal year 1937.

Mr. Roosevelt explained this was "with the purpose in view of providing in the 1938 budget the funds necessary to recruit the Army" to full strength by 1939.

He felt, "this is as fast as the Government should proceed in the matter in the light of the present forecast of fiscal affairs."

The Army's enlisted strength now is 140,000.

The Army budget, provided $62,000,000 for the air corps, representing $17,000,000 increase over the sum provided for in 1936. Officers explained that approximately $31,000,000 of this, or exactly half, would be utilized in procuring new planes in 1937.

This would purchase 442 planes for the regular army, 50 for the National Guard and 15 for the organized reserve.

Although they did not disclose full details of proposed allowances for new equipment, army officers said the five-year program for mechanization was "proceeding satisfactorily" and its continuation was provided for.

Plans included the mechanization of two regiments of cavalry with supporting artillery, modern tanks for two tank regiments and eight separate divisional tank companies.

Provision was made for an increase from 1,374 to 1,960 in the number of Cadets at West Point, for an addition of 5,000 to the present 190,000 officers and enlisted strength of the National Guard and for the training of 27,500 at citizens military training camps.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—The adverse decision of the Supreme Court on the AAA processing taxes sent food shares higher on the exchange today.

The ticker tape fell behind as the buying fever in the market following the decision. The bulk of the transactions were in the food divisions, immediately following the news from Washington.

President Roosevelt's budget message left Wall Street feeling that the matter of budget balancing and its effect on the market were still nebulous for assessment.

Financial experts found the deficit of something more than a billion dollars about in line with expectations.

The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 3,300,000 shares.

FOUR WHITE MEN ARE HELD FOR ROBBERING C. W. HARVEY

(Continued from Page One) way with a truck he had repaired for the dairyman and had to stop as the Harvey car was parked in the driveway. Mr. Harvey said the men told him if he said anything they would kill him as well as Allen. Allen, not being able to see the gun, thought the three men were engaged in conversation and did not get suspicious.

About that time Alton Squires drove up the road and Enfield and Bunch got in the automobile and the three fled. Allen gave chase in the truck, but lost the three when they turned down a side road near Winterville. He did not get close enough to get the license, but said he recognized the car.

Officers were informed and after checking on the car from Allen's information found that it belonged to Barney Squires.

Bunch and Allen said Alton Squires borrowed the car from his brother and was to pay him $12 for its use. Alton Squires, however, continued to deny any implication in the case.

A portion of the money was recovered, Bunch giving officers most of his part of the loot. Enfield said he would produce his portion also.

Alton Squires, Enfield and Bunch are scheduled to be tried for robbery with firearms, convictions upon which carries a minimum sentence of 20 years in prison.
