CLAUDE T. HALL TO REPRESENT WEED GROWERS

Named By Tobacco
Growers Advisory Committee

FARMERS URGED CURB PLANTING

Warned That Over
Production is Liable
To Exceed Demand
Resulting Low Prices

Raleigh, Jan. 16. — (AP) — The North Carolina Tobacco Growers advisory committee meeting today appointed Claude T. Hall of Wooddale, as Washington representative of flue cured tobacco growers of this state who were urged to hold their 1936 plantings to 70 per cent of what would have been the base acreage under the 1936 AAA contracts.

Hall will go to Washington from time to time to consult with the Department of Agriculture and congressmen in regards to the interests of the growers.

As chairman of the state tobacco growers advisory committee Hall has been keeping in close touch with the situation and has made an extensive study of the needs of tobacco growers.

Unless the tobacco crop is held down, Hall warned, production is liable to exceed the demand and to such an extent that prices will fall off materially.

Socialists' Move Forecasts Fall Of Premier's Cabinet

Demand That Members of Their Party Resign Six Portfolios in French Government

Paris, Jan. 16. — (AP) — The fall of Premier Laval's cabinet appeared imminent today as the dominant radical socialists voted to demand that members of their party resign their six portfolios in the government.

The motion was adopted by a vote of 62 to 20 in a session of the radical socialist party representatives in the Chamber of Deputies.

Speaker Is Named For Kiwanis Meet

The Greenville Kiwanis club will observe Anniversary week at its regular meeting tomorrow night at the Woman's club. The dinner-meeting will get underway at 6:30 o'clock.

A feature of the meeting will be an address by Rev. T. C. Johnson, Kinston Baptist minister. Rev. Mr. Johnson is Lieutenant Governor of the seventh division of Carolinas district of the organization. He succeeded Judge Dink James of this city to the post.

Next week is the regular time for observance of the organization's anniversary, but since the local club does not have a meeting then, it was decided to celebrate the event at this week's meeting.

Former Resident Dies In Richmond

News was received here this afternoon announcing the death of H. A. Timberlake of LaGrange, who died last night in a Richmond, Va., hospital.

Funeral services will be held in LaGrange tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Timberlake formerly lived in Greenville and is well known here. Surviving are his wife and a son, J. T. Timberlake, of this city and LaGrange.

Hart Norwood Dies Wednesday Morning

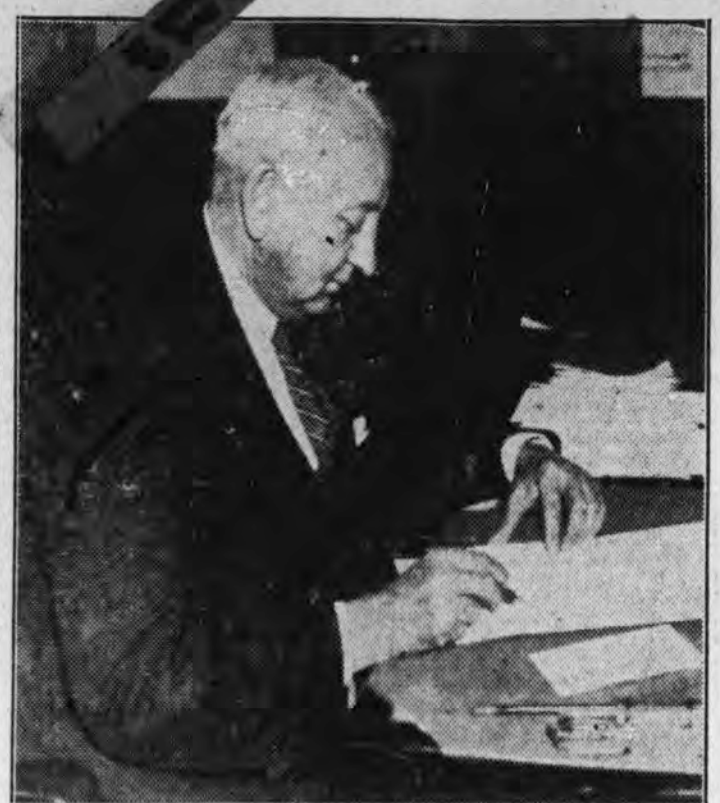

Hart Norwood, member of a prominent Goldsboro family, died Wednesday morning in that city following a heart attack. He was a son of George A. Norwood, and the late Mrs. Norwood, of Goldsboro.

Funeral services were conducted from the home of his father, this afternoon, at three o'clock. Burial was in Willow Dale cemetery.

Mr. Norwood was a brother-in-law of Mrs. David J. Whichear, Jr., of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Whichear attended the funeral this afternoon.

Mrs. Norwood, the former Anna Suther, died in 1934. Fog and sandstorms couldn't keep early day school children of southwestern Oklahoma away from their studies. Their fathers plowed guiding furrows through the prairie sod, straight from home to schoolhouse.

JUDGE REVERES TO AID HAUPTMANN

Bruno Hauptmann moved a step nearer the electric chair when Judge J. Warren Davis of the United States Circuit court at Trenton, N. J., refused the convicted kidnaper-slayer of Baby Lindbergh a habeas corpus and a stay of execution. Judge Davis is seen (above) in his office shortly after he told Hauptmann's lawyers that "to overrule the highest courts of the state and nation would seem to me to be sheer inexcusable judicial egotism on my part." MAKING PLANS AID CRIPPLES

County Health Department Prepares
For Clinic

With the suggestion of using money derived from the President's ball this and last years for such purposes the health department is going ahead with plans to provide a clinic for indigent cripples in the community in the near future.

The department is particularly interested in providing relief for infant paralytic victims of recent paralysis. It is planned, however, to furnish aid for cripples from other causes.

In order that the indigent cripples of the county have available to them orthopedic care, Dr. N. Thomas Emmett, county health officer, is endeavoring to secure a state orthopedic for Greenville.

The health officer has sent to the various doctors in the county a blank to be filled in with the names and data on children needing orthopedic care.

The birthday ball will be held in the Campus building at the college here the night of January 30, President Roosevelt's birthday. A portion of the money raised, after all expense are paid, will be sent to the Warm Springs foundation, and the remaining will be retained here for work in caring for cripples. The portion retained here from the 1935 ball amounted to approximately $500.

FARM TENANCY HIGH IN STATE

North Carolina Heads
List of Southern States

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Jan. 16. — With practically half of its farmers renting their land, North Carolina heads a list of five southern states making up Region IV of the Resettlement Administration in the prevalence of farm tenancy, according to figures from the 1935 Census of Agriculture. It is pointed out by Resettlement officials here.

The figures revealed that 47.2 per cent of all the farmers in the state were tenants last year. Other neighboring states grouped with North Carolina by the Resettlement Administration, showed the following percentages of farm tenants:

Virginia, 29.5 per cent; West Virginia, 25.8 per cent; Tennessee, 46.2 per cent; and Kentucky, 37.1 per cent.

While North Carolina had the largest number of tenants amounting to 142,158, this state showed an increase of only 3.3 per cent in tenancy during the five-year period from 1930 to 1935. Tennessee, with a total of 126,607 tenants, showed a gain of 11.5 per cent; Kentucky, with 103,215 tenants, showed a gain of 16.7 per cent; Virginia, with 58,336 tenants, showed a gain of 16.8 per cent.

Protestations of Pacific Aims Mingle with Martial Declarations of Navy Chief

(Copyright By Associated Press)

London, Jan. 16. — (AP) — Japan disavowed frankly today any intention of participating in costly competition in construction despite its historic self-exclusion from international naval affairs.

While its withdrawal from the Five-power naval conference was being announced officially to the conference, delegates of the other four powers drafted a plan to continue their efforts to achieve fleet limitation. Japan's chief delegate, Osami Nagano, announced:

"Japan has no intention of engaging in a naval race, despite absence of the limitation agreement and I hope no competition of building of war ships will develop between Japanese and the U. S."

William Phillips, the United States understood Secretary of State also decided to leave after today's session of the conference to catch a liner for home and deliver reports on developments to President Roosevelt.

Tokyo, Jan. 16. — (AP) — Cabinet protestation of Pacific aims mingled discordantly today with a martial declaration of a naval chief in Japan's reaction to secession of its delegation from the international naval conference.

Premier Oka declared:

"Whether we have naval limitation treaties or not, Japan will respect the principle of non-menace and non-aggression in the world unaltered."

On the other hand the attitude of naval authorities was expressed differently by Vice-Admiral Sankichi Takahashi, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet:

"If the Japanese navy is called upon to fight the combined power of America and Great Britain" the vice admiral said "I am confident we will win, even if the ratio is 10 to one."

"Japan has its own ideas of methods of fighting and we can build what warships we need without watching other nations," he added.

The newspaper Nichi, published prominently a statement by an unnamed navy spokesman arguing that Japan has nothing to fear in a navy race with America.

The statement argued that America's frequent efforts to restrain Japan naval construction demonstrates the United States distaste for actual Japanese competition.

"The capacity of American shipyards to insufficient to permit any considerable expansion of its present building program. The American navy is short of trained personnel especially of officers and, moreover, the statement added, American naval force are less devoted to service of their country than are the Japanese."

Gasoline consumption in the first six months of 1935 increased 305,942,000 gallons over the quantity used in the same period of 1934.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington
By RAY TUCKER

STRENGTH: Democratic bosses of Congress have quietly framed a program that will turn the legislators out of Washington by May 1 at the latest. The only obstacle to an early adjournment is the Supreme Court.

FDR doesn't want a prolonged session which the GOP can use as a stage for sounding off on 1936 issues. He has impressed upon his henchmen the political necessity for a short and snappy Congressional show. He has agreed to ask for nothing more than passage of a neutrality and appropriation measures, and whatever patchwork legislation future Supreme Court upsets may necessitate. House and Senate leaders have agreed to cooperate.

Politically, Democrats on Capitol Hill are eating out of the President's hand. Despite recent signs that his stock has dropped, they still figure that he is stronger than his party. Barring exceptional demands such as new taxation, he can have almost anything he wants from the legislators at this session.

SECRETS: Most vicious critics of the Wilson-Bryan war policies on the Senate Munitions Committee is Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri. Young Bennett, a true son of his father, is paying old scores against Wilson and Bryan.

At the Baltimore convention in 1912 "Champ Clark" was the leading Democratic candidate for the presidential nomination. But Mr. Bryan in a historic speech branded Clark as the "Tool of Tammany" and other Democratic bosses. It was this address which swung the tide from Clark to Wilson and eventually led to the nomination of the Princeton professor. The Clarks have never forgiven.

MORE BOMBING CLAIMS HEARD

Report Another Red
Cross Unit Destroyed

(By The Associated Press)

Italy's high command today announced its forces made a 40-mile fierce disputed advance along the entire Somali front in Southern Ethiopia, while the Ethiopian government claimed destruction by Italy's bombs of a Red Cross unit headed by a British officer at Waddia on the north.

Authoritative British sources pointing to Monday's meeting of the League of Nations council at Geneva, insisted that "death notices" for oil sanction were premature.

Great Britain sources said it will adhere to whatever action the council takes and they believe there was a possibility of an oil embargo against Italy.

Marshall Pietro Badoglio, the Italian high commander in Ethiopia, announced "complete success in a battle, on the Gafale Dorya river which accompanied the Italian advance."

He said Ethiopian troops were retreating in disorder and that Ethiopian casualties were "considerable."

Nothing was said about Italy's losses in "this most important battle of the war" reportedly involving more than 100,000 warriors.

An official communique from Addis Ababa said seven old men and seven women died in the Waddia bombing Tuesday morning and that 35 others were injured.

Poland Dissolves Market Trusts

Warsaw, (AP) — Out of 283 "cartels," or trusts, operating in Poland the government dissolved 93 and compelled the others to cut prices. All the cartels eliminated were organized to market products. Cartels of producers were allowed to continue, but had to adapt their prices to the government policy of maintaining the gold standard.

TO CONSIDER BONUS ISSUE

Senate Reachers An Agreement in Session Today

Washington, Jan. 16. — (AP) — The senate agreed today to start consideration of the baby bond payment bill tomorrow after Republican leader McNary had urged a day's delay under the rule.

Chairman Harrison (D-Miss) of the finance commissioner sought consideration today. But McNary said "in all fairness" to members who have not read the bill and the committee report, submitted, only late yesterday, the full payment measure should go over until tomorrow. The senate then agreed to Harrison's unanimous request, that senate be in tomorrow.

Senator King (D-Utah) introduced a substitute bill providing for payment now of only the cash surrender or present value of the 20-year adjusted service certificate which he estimated would save $1,000,000,000.

TWO ARRESTED FOR ROBBERY

Local Policemen Hold
Negroes for Tuesday
Robbery

Greenville police arrested two negroes last night for the robbery of the Carolina Cleaners and the H. H. Duncan store on Dickinson avenue Tuesday night.

The negroes, James Clark and Josh Jones, are alleged to have entered the store and cleaning establishment, located next to each other, and to have stolen a quantity of goods from the store and several suits of clothes from the cleaners.

Clark was arrested on Railroad street last night and implicated Jones in the robbery. The negro told officers where they could find the robbery, officers said.

Policemen went to Jones' home on Greene street and located the stolen property, after taking the negro in custody.

A rifle, pistol, and a .38-caliber revolver, were found in the Duncan store, were found, as were a number of suits of clothes. It was thought all of the clothes were found, although no definite check was available at present.

NAT'L GUARD RESUMES WORK

Appointments Made in Local Unit Field
Artillery

Battery A of the 113th Field artillery of the National Guard has resumed its activities with full force following a let up in work during the year-end holidays.

Announcement was made today that W. S. Tyson has been named Second Lieutenant to succeed Lt. R. A. Eason, who has been elevated to the Battery staff. Lieut. Tyson was formerly with the local unit.

Captain Worth Wicker holds the position of Regimental Chaplain, with headquarters in Greenville. The new chaplain's charge includes the entire 113th Field artillery.

In addition to the four officers of the Battery here, Eason of the battery staff and Rev. Mr. Wicker the chaplain, also have headquarters in Greenville, making six officers located in the city.

The unit has a total of 61 men. Chaplain Wicker announced he would conduct a non-commissioned officers school for members of the unit wishing to prepare themselves for possible appointments.

Plans for the erection of an armory here with funds provided under a WPA projects are at a standstill at present, no funds having been received by state headquarters for the building of the proposed armories throughout the state. Local officials said, however, that if it is found no funds will be allotted by the WPA, efforts will be made to erect a building with funds derived otherwise.

MISS EARHART DENIES RUMOR

Says She is Not Contemplating Round-World Flight

"I am not contemplating a solo round the world flight this summer despite the rumors," Miss Amelia Earhart stated here last night, adding, however, that such a flight would be to her liking. "Must every pilot," she said, "have the desire to fly faster, farther and higher?"

When asked her reactions to news reports of yesterday's airplane disaster near Goodwin, Arkansas, she expressed her regret but said that statistics revealed that after all, air travel was the safest of the modern forms of travel.

Despite rain that had its effect in the way of a smaller audience, Miss Earhart with her pleasing personality, thrilled more than 1,500 listeners at East Carolina Teachers College here last night as she related her adventures in the air, covering in detail her flights across the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Traveling by automobile, Miss Earhart arrived in this city late yesterday from Athens, West Virginia, and left early this morning for Rock Hill, South Carolina, where she will fill a speaking engagement.

From Rock Hill her itinerary takes her next to Lexington, Ky.

30-DAY STAY IS GRANTED

Governor Makes Announcement After Conferring with Attorney General;
Points to Other Reprieves as Ample
Precedent for Decision, But Adds That Hauptmann to Secure No Further Reprieves

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 16. — (AP) — Governor Hoffman today announced a reprieve for 30 days for Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The Governor's announcement read:

"The attorney general and I have been in conference on this matter and I have decided to announce a reprieve of 30 days.

"We have agreed that this will not be challenged.

"It is my intention to grant only this reprieve. There will be no further reprieves."

The Governor pointed to 14 previous reprieves as ample precedent for his decision.

The Governor added he was given the reprieve "for divers reasons known to me." He said he considered it an act of executive clemency and that there would be no extension of the reprieve "unless the evidence warranted it."

He said there was no formal request for the reprieve by Hauptmann's attorneys.

The Governor added that he had seen Mrs. Hauptmann today but he declined to comment on what took place.

Mrs. Hauptmann was not immediately informed of the reprieve.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 16. — (AP) — Bruno Hauptmann's 16-months fight for life lost anew in the United States Supreme Court today and while his attorneys fought for him there, independent developments pressage last minute bombshells—even a "confession" by some one other than Hauptmann.

The day's developments were:

1. Two members of Hauptmann's five-man legal staff asked the high court for a writ of habeas corpus and a stay of execution of his death tonight pending action on the writ. Chief Justice Hughes announced at 2:30 p. m. this had been denied.

2. A high source stated that Gov. Harold G. Hoffman possessed a "confession" which he must regard as sufficient reason for a reprieve for the convicted baby killer.

Some quarters doubted that any such confession had merit.

3. The Governor's press aide announced that the Governor "had no knowledge of a confession," and had made no decision concerning a reprieve.

4. Attorney General David T. Wientz, who prosecuted the Hauptmann case at Farmington, said he knew nothing of any new evidence in the case and doubts if there was any. He said that he "had been informed the Governor would grant a reprieve."

5. A petition to the United States Supreme Court made it virtually the same points that were made in a similar appeal in Federal District court here, both were denied on alleged that "important evidence" had been withheld by the prosecutor—in charge which the attorney general denied.

Samuel Small, a New York professional printer presented an affidavit to the Governor stating that in his open Hauptmann "could not" have written 13 ransom notes.

STATE AGENCY PLANS REFUGE IN 39 STATES

Bladen County to Be Scene of Big Development

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Jan. 15.—A wildlife refuge covering some 12,000 of the approximately 22,000-acre submarginal purchase area around Jones and Salter's lakes in Bladen county is one of the plans for the development of the unit by the Resettlement Administration, J. H. Chalk, state game and inland fisheries commissioner said today.

Mr. Chalk has returned from a visit to the area where he recommended a territory for the wildlife refuge. It is the plan of the Resettlement Administration, the commissioner pointed out, to enclose the refuge in a wire fence and to improve the territory as a breeding place and sanctuary for game along lines previously followed by the State Department of Conservation and Development on land set aside for a similar purpose.

"This proposed refuge," Mr. Chalk said, "is located in a territory well adapted to upland game birds and deer and will be of great benefit to the wildlife in that area and a valuable addition to our chain of refuges."

"The Resettlement Administration proposes to designate this area by the required amount of fencing and to follow out a system of food planting for upland birds."

"Salter's Lake has more aquatic vegetation than Jones or Singletary Lake, consequently is more suitable to fish life, but owing to the impoverished condition of the sandy bottom, there is still insufficient under-water foods to support fish in goodly numbers and the U. S. Bureau of Fisheries has agreed to cooperate with us in an effort to increase the aquatic growth in the lake to a point where a larger game fish stock will be supported."

Smooth, evenly fleshed hogs will produce a finer quality of meat and will cut up with less waste than rough, coarse, wrinkled and flabby animals, farm specialists say.

PENSION LAW IN 39 STATES

Only Eight Besides North Carolina Without Statute

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Jan. 15.—There are only eight other states besides North Carolina or nine states in all which do not have some kind of an old age pension or benefits law, with the result that none of these states can share in the Federal Old Age Benefits fund of $49,750,000 now in operation, Commissioner of Labor A. L. Fletcher pointed out today.

Not all of the 39 states which have some sort of state old age pension laws are sharing in the Federal old age benefits, since not all of these laws conform to the requirements set up in the Federal law, Commissioner Fletcher said. But between 25 and 30 of the states are already sharing in the fund, according to the latest information obtained, he indicated.

There seems to be no possibility that North Carolina can get any of this $49,750,000 with which to assist the 30,000 or more old people in the state who would be eligible for benefits unless a special session of the general assembly should be called and a special law passed, Fletcher said. For before any state can share in this fund it must have a uniform old age pensions law and match every dollar of Federal funds with a dollar of state funds.

In order to obtain the maximum of $15 a month from the Federal fund, the state would first have to enact a law paying $15 a month to each pensioner from state funds, so that in all the pensioner would receive $30 a month. Or if the state makes its payment only $10 a month, the government would only pay $10 a month and the pensioner get only $20 a month.

One of the requirements of the federal law is that any pensioners 65 years old or more who own any property, must give a lien on this property to the government in order to get a pension, such property to be sold on the death of the pensioner to reimburse it for the pension paid. If any balance is left.

LAWYER SLAIN IN COURT ROOM BY OPPONENT

This gruesome scene was presented in Chicago circuit court as Coroner Frank Walsh (center with hand on desk) took charge of the body of Attorney Christopher G. Kinney a few minutes after he was shot to death on the spot by John W. Keogh, a rival lawyer. Keogh also shot three times at Judge John Prystalski (right) after the jurist had ruled against him in a mortgage lawsuit, but the bullets missed by inches. Authorities plan to arraign the killer on a murder charge. (Associated Press Photos)

It will be turned over to the heirs, if any. This provision is designed to prevent those with property obtaining pensions unless they are willing to assign their property to the government in return for the pensions received, Fletcher pointed out.

LOCAL HIGHS LOSE TO IMPS

Duke Freshmen Defeat Greensies By 34-19 Score

Durham, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A fighting band of athletes from the Greenville High School fought the highly favored Duke University Freshmen quint on almost even terms for three quarters this afternoon, but finally succumbed 34 to 19, to the overwhelming man power of the Blue Imps in the final canto.

Before the game was five minutes old the lads from down East hopped into an 8-0 lead, as a result of field goals from the hands of Pierce, Lautares and Hatten.

They held a four-point advantage throughout the first period and the half found them on the short end of a 14 to 11 count.

Coch Caldwell kept shifting his men about, sending in first one team and then another, until he had the Greensies completely run down when the fourth period opened.

It was then that the crack forwards of the Blue Imps, O'Mara and Swindell began racking up the points and the game ended 34-19.

Duke's starting five played out two minutes of the game. "Coach May of the Greensies used only seven men as compared with 18 that Coach Caldwell put into the fray."

This afternoon's contest marked the fourth consecutive victory for the Duke Freshmen, who have numbered among their victims, the Wake Forest Freshmen, Raleigh High, and the Newport News High school of Newport News, Va. 37.

The lineup: Greenville: Duke: Pierce, Lautares, Swindell, O'Mara, Kerr, Logan, Wilson, Farman, Bowen, Phillips, Ford, etc.

DEATH ROOM IS TO BE ACTIVE

Execution Slated For Each of Next Three Weeks

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, Jan. 15.—The first execution in the new gas-electric death chamber in the Central Prison here is scheduled for 10:30 Friday morning, January 17, when Robert Dunlop, negro, of Asheville, Buncombe county, is slated to be electrocuted for the poison murder of his sweetheart.

The first execution by gas is slated for Friday morning, January 24, when Allen Foster, negro, of Hoke county is scheduled to die. A second execution by gas is scheduled for Friday, January 31, when Ed Jenkins, white, of Gastonia, for the murder of Paul Collins of Bessemer City, a former friend.

Thus the death chamber will be used for an execution on three successive Fridays, the first for an electrocution, the latter times for "gas" executions unless Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus intervenes with grants clemency.

temporary reprieves or commutations. The prevailing belief in most circles here, however, is that all three of these executions will now proceed as scheduled.

Both Jake Johnson, alias Jake France, negro, of Rockingham, and Ed Hester, white, of Gaston county, were scheduled to die by gas several weeks ago, but were remanded for re-sentencing by the Supreme court, which held that they should have been sentenced to die in the electric chair instead of by gas. Hester was re-sentenced to die by electrocution last week, automatically fixing his execution date for March 20. Jake Johnson has not yet been resented, so that the exact date of his execution is not yet known.

Bright Buffkin, white, of Columbus county, is scheduled to be executed by gas on Friday, February 7, while on February 14, two executions are scheduled, one by electricity and one by gas. Willie McLeod, negro, of Cumberland county, is scheduled to be electrocuted on February 14 while James McNeil, negro, of Hartnet county, is scheduled to die by gas the same day. Arvin Batten, white, Johnston county, is scheduled to die in the gas chamber on March 13. All of these mentioned are prisoners whose appeals have been denied by the Supreme court and who will die as scheduled unless the Governor grants clemency.

Amelia Earhart Captivates Audience

Amelia Earhart last night completely captured her audience who not only listened breathlessly to her thrilling story of her "Aviation Adventures" but fell in love with a charming woman of gracious manners with her keen sense of humor, and a winning smile. She is a very slim, tall, and graceful woman. When she speaks her voice is modulated, her speech delivery with every syllable clear and distinct. At the most dramatic points of her story, her most characteristic and eloquent gesture is holding her hands up with hands spread out.

In her humorous introduction of herself, she said she had to tell people who she was not, as she was so frequently mistaken for others. She has been congratulated for swimming the English Channel, had been taken for Col. Lindbergh's mother, for Mrs. Roosevelt, and other celebrities. Her two most amusing "true stories," as she called them, were when she was mistaken for Gracie Allen and when the wife of a service station proprietor thought it a great joke that she took her for herself and played a joke on her friends by introducing her as Amelia Earhart.

The great flier undoubtedly considers her oceanic flights her chief "Aviation Adventures," as these were the ones she told about in her thrilling account of her experiences as a flier. She described the scenes of the take-offs, gave details of the preparations, enumerated exactly what she took with her and where everything was placed, and made those in the audience feel they were flying with her from the moment she was seated in the cockpit until she landed on the other side.

While she began her story with the first Atlantic flight, and referred to the solo Atlantic flight, much of her story was about the Pacific flight, which contrasted with the Atlantic flight, had many more dramatic details that could be told. The preparations were far more elaborate, the number of people and the agencies helping her were greater and the delay in waiting for appropriate weather was much longer. She spoke especially of the mental hazards caused by criticism. Some of the precautions taken were because some were afraid "the little girl would get her feet wet, a tempest in a teapot," she called it. She said she could endure what they said of her in trying to persuade her not to make the flight, even when they spoke as if she were an inexperienced pilot, but she hated having her airplane maligned. She described the boat, the "size of a hotel bath tub" with its "cute little oars," and dramatized with gestures the inflation of the boat and the belt, the colored balloons used for signals, the radio equipment, the fuel tanks, the food which consisted of tomato juice, hot chocolate, malted milk tablets, beans "out of deference to the navy," and a picnic lunch a naval officer's wife insisted on her taking.

She told of the hours of suspense in watching weather and the winds acting contrary to their habits, hence giving no help. She spoke of the cockpit as a "crazy little cubby-hole" with cupboard for food and tools and such things as pencil and pad strings, wire and fuses. The audience followed her flight, from the time her monoplane with its spread of 42 feet rose against a white cloud, until she looked down on the bay at San Francisco. They went with her while she flew alone with the stars and thrilled with her when she saw a ship. Her experiences with the radio were among the most interesting of all. She did not miss one of her scheduled messages timed to be sent every half hour.

In telling of the hazards of the flights she said in flying over the Atlantic her chances of success were one to ten and over the Pacific about fifty-fifty. The great danger of flying across the Atlantic is ice. It may not be generally known, but Col. Lindbergh turned back for an hour because there was ice on his plane. When he discovered the air was growing warmer he turned again and continued his flight. The shortest distance over the Atlantic is out of the route of the steamers, and on the Pacific it follows the line of the steamers so that one is never more than 24 hours from a ship at any time. The very great difference of the shore line one approaches is another factor. As one

NO APPEAL IN DUNLOP TO DIE PERMIT CASES BY EXECUTION

Driver Cannot Appeal When License Revoked

RALEIGH, Jan. 16.—Any driver of an automobile who has had his driving permit suspended by the department of revenue has the right of appeal to the department which must grant a hearing within 20 days after the request for such hearing is received, according to an opinion just handed down by Attorney General A. F. Seawell, and Assistant Attorney General Wade Bruton, assigned to the department of revenue.

But drivers whose licenses are revoked by the department following conviction of any of the seven charges in Section 12 of the drivers license law, do not have the right of appeal, even to the Superior Courts, the opinion holds.

This means that drivers whose licenses are suspended pending trial or after taking an appeal to a higher court, may demand and get a special hearing from the Department of Revenue, also that this hearing may be held in the home county of the person taking the appeal, according to Director Arthur Fulk of the Highway Safety division which is administering the drivers license law. It also means that whenever a driver is convicted of drunken driving, manslaughter resulting from the operation of an automobile, any felony in the commission of which an automobile was used, or failing to stop and render aid in the event of a motor vehicle accident, or has been twice convicted of reckless driving, and his driver's license has been automatically revoked for one year, that he cannot appeal, not even to the superior courts.

But in all other cases where a driver's license is suspended, cancelled or revoked, the driver shall have the right of appeal first to the Department of Revenue and if not satisfied with the results of this hearing, may then appeal to the Superior court in his district for a review of the case and the findings of the department, as provided for in Section 19 of the driver's license law, the opinion sets forth.

PROSPECTORS SEEK GOLD IN NORTH CAROLINA HILLS

RALEIGH (AP).—"Thar's gold in them thar North Carolina hills," says State Geologist Herman J. Bryson, and prospectors and mining firms in increasing numbers are going after it.

He said $500,000 was spent last year in preparations for gold mining in the state with recovery plants being erected at Charlotte, on the Rocky River, in the Gold Hill area, in Nash county and at other points.

Impetus was given the modern "Days of '49" movement by the substantial rise in the price of metal.

"By the time several hundred more licenses have been revoked for reckless and careless driving, in addition to those revoked for drunk driving, a decided decrease in the number of accidents is going to become evident," Captain Charles D. Farmer of the state highway patrol said today.

"In another six months, largely by means of the drivers license law, we are going to be able to either remove many of the reckless, careless and drunken drivers or else put a big curb in them. The automobile drivers in the state are already beginning to realize that they must drive carefully and obey the laws or they will not be able to drive at all. And when more of them realize this, the number of accidents is going to decrease."

The decrease in accidents from October through December is shown in the following figures:

October, killed, 131; injured, 754; accidents, 620; November, killed 92; injured, 710; accidents, 620; December, 115; injured, 722; accidents, 561.

The number of accidents is almost always greater in December than in other months, due to the heavy traffic during the Christmas holidays, it is pointed out.

FARM TENANCY HIGH IN N. C.

per cent, and West Virginia with 27,021 tenants, showed a gain of 76.1 per cent.

Final results of the 1936 Census of Agriculture have not been tabulated for all states, Resettlement officials stated. Figures for thirty-eight states indicate, however, an increase in the number of farm tenants in most sections of the country. Approximately 43 per cent of all farms in the United States are now operated by tenants. Tenancy has steadily increased since the first count was made in 1880, when 25 per cent of all farmers were listed as tenants. In the past tenancy has been considered a stepping stone to ownership. Steadily increase in the proportion of older tenants, however, indicates that fewer men are moving up the last rung of the ladder to ownerships of farms.

Attempts to check the growth of tenancy have been made chiefly because of the instability of residence associated with a farm tenant system. Although conditions vary greatly throughout the United States, studies show that the tenant farmer moves on an average of every four years.

IT BELONGS TO ALL THE PEOPLE

As a rule when there is money in the public treasury there is a tendency on the part of some to seek to find places to spend the money rather than to seek to cut down on public spending in the interest of the taxpayers. With the revenues from the county controlled liquor stores now reaching a goodly sum there have been varied and sundry suggestions as to how these funds should be spent by the county. Some of these suggestions may have merit, while others may not, but as we see the situation these funds should not be earmarked for spending on any specific project but should go into the general fund of the county and the taxpayers should have the benefit of same in the way of lower tax rates if the county can operate efficiently without using these additional funds. The county commissioners should not let this or any other county money be used to defray the expenses of anyone's pet scheme but should use the money, like all other county money, for the interest of the people of the county as a whole.

STREET SKATING MUST STOP

Chief of Police George Clark this morning issued a warning to all parents of the city to keep their children from skating on the streets, especially in the congested areas and in large numbers. In some sections of the city, Chief Clark said, the children are using the hills for skating coasting and it is most dangerous because they do not even pause before crossing street intersections. There is no desire to rob the children of their pleasure, but when the pleasure endangers their lives it is time to put a halt to it. Chief Clark stated that if parents continued to permit the children to use the streets for skating, he was going to instruct the officers to take the children's skates from them and if necessary make arrests to put a stop to street skating.

THE BOOMERANG CLUE BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

CHAPTER ONE IN THE CHASM

BOBBOY JONES teed up his ball, gave a short preliminary waggle, took the club back slowly, then brought it down and through with the rapidity of lightning.

Did the ball fly down the fairway straight and true, rising as it went and soaring over the bunker to land within an easy mashie shot of the fourteenth green?

No, it did not. Badly topped, it scudded along the ground and embedded itself firmly in the bunker!

There were no eager crowds to groan with dismay. The solitary witness of the shot manifested no surprise. And that is easily explained—for it was not the American-born master of the game who had played the shot but merely the fourth son of the Vicar of March-bolt, a small seaside town on the coast of Wales.

Bobby uttered a decidedly profane ejaculation.

He was an amiable-looking young man of about eight-and-twenty. His best friend could not have said that he was handsome, but his face was an eminently likeable one, and his eyes had the honest brown friendliness of a dog's.

"I get worse every day," he muttered dejectedly.

"You press," said his companion.

Dr. Thomas was a middle-aged man with grey hair and a red, cheerful face. He himself never took a full swing. He played short, straight shots down the middle and usually beat more brilliant but more erratic players.

Bobby attacked his ball fiercely it to earth at last. It was practically unplayable—embedded in a furze bush. He had a couple of hacks at it, then picked it up and called out to his companion that he gave up the hole.

The Doctor came over towards him since the next tee was right on the edge of the cliff.

The seventeenth was Bobby's particular bugbear. At it you had to drive over a chasm. The distance was not actually so great, but the attraction of the depths below was overpowering.

They had crossed the footpath, which now ran inland to their left skirting the very edge of the cliff.

ments to have the body got up. It'll be dark before we know where we are. Will you stay here?"

Bobby nodded. "There's nothing to be done for him, I suppose?" he asked.

The Doctor shook his head. "Nothing. It won't be long—the pulse is weakening fast. He'll last another twenty minutes at most. Just possible he may recover consciousness before the end—but very likely he won't. Still—"

"Rather," said Bobby quickly. "I'll stay. You get along. If he does come to, there's no drug or anything—?" He hesitated.

The Doctor shook his head. "There'll be no pain," he said. "No pain at all."

TURNING away he began rapidly to climb up the cliff again. Bobby watched him till he disappeared over the top with a wave of the hand.

Bobby moved a step or two along the narrow ledge, sat down on a projection in the rock and lit a cigaret. The business had shaken him. Up to now he had never come in contact with illness or death.

What rotten luck there was in the world! A swirl of mist on a fine evening, a false step—and life came to an end. Fine, healthy-looking fellow too—probably never known a day's illness in his life.

The pallor of approaching death couldn't disguise the deep tan of the skin. A man who had lived an out-of-door life—abroad perhaps. Bobby studied him more closely—the crisp curling chestnut hair just touched with a nicker. The third time was successful. The ball lay a short distance from the green which Dr. Thomas had reached with two creditable iron shots.

He was still breathing, though unconscious.

"Your hole," said Bobby.

They proceeded to the next tee. The doctor drove first—a nice straight shot, but with no great distance about it.

Bobby sighed, teed his ball, re-teed it, wagged his club a long time, took back stiffly, shut his eyes, raised his head, depressed his right shoulder, did everything he ought not to have done—and hit a screamer down the middle of the course!

He drew a deep breath of satisfaction. The well-known golfer's gloom passed from his eloquent face to be succeeded by the equally well-known golfer's exultation.

"I know now what I've been doing," said Bobby—quite untruthfully. A perfect iron shot, a little chip with a mashie and Bobby lay dead. He achieved a birdie four, and Dr. Thomas was reduced to one up.

Full of confidence, Bobby stepped onto the sixteenth tee. He again did everything he should not have done and this time no miracle occurred. A terrific, a magnificent, an almost superhuman slice happened! The ball went round at right angles.

"If that had been straight—what!" said Dr. Thomas.

"It—" said Bobby bitterly. "Hullo, I thought I heard a shout! Hope the ball didn't hit anyone!"

He peered out to the right. It was a difficult light. The sun was on the point of setting, and looking straight into it, it was hard to see anything distinctly. Also there was a slight mist rising from the sea. The edge of the cliff was a few hundred yards away.

"THE footpath runs along there," said Bobby. "But the ball can't possibly have travelled as far as that. All the same, I did think I heard a cry. Did you?"

But the Doctor had heard nothing. Bobby went after his ball. He had some difficulty in finding it, but ran

The Doctor took an iron and just landed on the other side.

Bobby took a deep breath and drove. The ball scudded forward and disappeared over the lip of the abyss.

"Every single dashed time," said Bobby bitterly. "I do the same dashed idiotic thing!"

He skirted the chasm, peering over. Far below the sea sparkled, but not every ball was lost in its depths. The drop was sheer at the top, but below it shelved gradually.

Bobby walked slowly along. There was, he knew, one place where one could scramble down fairly easily. Caddies did so, hurling themselves over the edge and reappearing triumphant and panting with the missing ball.

Suddenly Bobby stiffened and called to his companion: "I say, Doctor, come here. What do you make of that?"

Some forty feet below was a dark heap of something that looked like old clothes.

The Doctor caught his breath. "By Jove!" he said. "Somebody's fallen over the cliff. We must get down to him."

Side by side the two men scrambled down the rock, the more athletic Bobby helping the other. At last they reached the ominous dark bundle. It was a man of about forty—and he was still breathing, though unconscious.

The Doctor examined him, touching his limbs, feeling his pulse, drawing down the lids of his eyes. He knelt down beside him and completed his examination. Then he looked up at Bobby, who was standing there feeling rather sick, and slowly shook his head.

"Nothing to be done," he said. "His number's up, poor fellow. His back's broken. Well, well, I suppose he wasn't familiar with the path and when the mist came up he walked over the edge. I've told the council more than once there ought to be a railing just here."

He stood up again. "I'll go off and get help," he said. "Make sure—" with grey at the temples, the big nose, the strong jaw, the white teeth just showing through the parted lips. Then the broad shoulders and the fine sinewy hands.

The legs were twisted at a curious angle. Bobby shuddered and brought his eyes up again to the face. An attractive face, humorous, determined, resourceful. The eyes, he thought, were probably blue—

And just as he reached that point in his thoughts, the eyes suddenly opened.

They were blue, a clear deep blue. They looked straight at Bobby. There was nothing uncertain or hazy about them. They seemed completely conscious. They were watchful and at the same time they seemed to be asking a question.

Bobby got up quickly and came towards the man. Before he got there the other spoke. His voice was not weak—it came out clear and resonant.

"Why didn't they ask Evans?" he said.

And then a queer little shudder passed over him, the eyelids dropped, the jaw fell. . . .

The man was dead.

Bobby knelt down beside him, but there was no doubt. The man was dead. A last moment of consciousness, that sudden question and then—the end.

Rather apologetically Bobby put his hand into the dead man's pocket and drawing out a silk handkerchief he spread it reverently over the dead face. There was nothing more he could do.

Then he noticed that in his action he had jerked something else out of the pocket. It was a photograph, and in the act of replacing it he glanced at the pictured face.

It was a woman's face, strangely haunting in quality. A fair woman with wide-set eyes. She seemed little more than a girl, scarcely under thirty.

A stranger, however, took the Cheers.

HE walked steadily, his head up. Allaire! Look down, look down that lonely road—! His hand was on the door, he closed his eyes a moment, took a grip on himself and his strength, and then, eyes open, he walked in.

Rosa was standing near the bed. She looked up at that tall swaying young man on the threshold, and her teeth jumped out at him in a wide white smile. Willett's heart turned over a couple of times—Rosa wouldn't dare to smile if—

"Allaire!" he said tensely.

The girl's eyes opened. She was pale and drawn and she didn't seem to see him at first. Then her hand fluttered toward him.

"Hello, Terry darling," she murmured. "How'd you make out?"

"All right," Willett's lip trembled. "All right, honey. But you—"

He bent over her anxiously. Rosa was trying to draw his attention to a bundle in her arms, a funny blanket-wrapped bundle with something plump and alive and healthy-looking in it. Willett's face was a study in grimy uncertainty. There was a low laugh from the girl.

Terry sat down. He felt very weak all of a sudden.

"And you're all right?" He couldn't seem to grasp it.

"Of course. Rosa was wonderful. And whenever—things seemed hard and I was frightened, I just reached out for your hand, darling, and—it was there—always."

She closed her eyes and smiled.

"And you put through the job. Oh, Terry, your father must be so proud—"

"No prouder," said Willett a little unsteadily, "than I am of mine—"

"Cheers!" murmured Allaire. "The Willett Construction Company." And she drew the rumpled auburn head down to her.

THE coastwise steamer to the capital lay in her berth at Propionaire with steam up and the gangway rapidly being cleared. It was that moment of departure when the blast of the whistle is imminent in the air, and the bustle and furor of the docks are merged into the whole swift-moving moment of Farewell.

A slim girl in tropical white with polo coat and gay purple scarf about her throat stood near the foot of the gangway. She was talking with a fat, old Indian woman who held a carefully bundled baby in her arms. The plump cheeks of the old woman were wet with tears.

Terry Willett turned to Bucky Corrigan.

"Allaire wants to sail from Rosina B in the capital. She doesn't care what she sails in from there, but that's the place where she wants to start home. Everything started there, she says. She's right."

Corrigan nodded.

"Yeah. I think it's swell."

who turned against Herbert Hoover have soured on the President. It will take a tremendous Roosevelt plurality below to overcome the Republican margin above the Bronx. The Roosevelt-Farley forces control four boroughs, but their domination of Dooling's Manhattan is not certain. A falling-off of the Roosevelt vote in Tammany's lair might easily cost Roosevelt the state's 47 electoral ballots.

That explains why Tammanyite Dooling has been a frequent guest at recent White House dinners and receptions. It accounts for a belated distribution of patronage to Tammany men neglected for more than two years. What FDR is doing is trying to win Mr. Dooling away from Al Smith, who is making as much bad medicine as he can in the Wigwam for the man he once called "old potato." The outcome is still in doubt, for Leader Dooling is a canny politician, cannily advised.

LONGSHOT: Governor Eugene Talmadge of Georgia may have been bragging but on his recent visit to Washington he laid several bets that FDR will not be the Democrats' 1936 presidential nominee. He indicated that the so-called constitutional Democrats intended to "gang up" against the President.

The Governor insists that he will send a hand-picked, unstructured delegation to the Philadelphia convention. He understands that Louisiana will also bob up with an anti-Roosevelt slate. He hears that the Smith-Ely-Ritchie forces will also appear with several delegations pledged to clamor for the nomination of somebody other than Mr. Roosevelt. In fact, he bragged quite profusely of the anti-Roosevelt organization which he and his friends were building up against the President.

But when it came to making bets the Governor contented himself with wagging nothing more valuable than a hat against FDR's re-nomination.

SECURITY: Moves are on to bring about amendments of the Social Security Act, but nothing looms up as immediate. Labor leaders are not satisfied. They want old age and unemployment pension provisions more widely separated, and would like to strike out the provision calling for employee contributions to the enormous fund that will eventually be accumulated. Social security organizations say the

"You'd come along with us, Bucky."

"I'd better be here for the opening of the river next week, Terry. A lot of the National Coffee Company big shots are going to ride through the locks for the first time and I think I'll tag along. That was one fine job of yours, son."

"Your job, Bucky, as much as mine."

"Tough-jawed Bucky Corrigan, with the sinews of a hundred engineering jobs in his powerful sunburnt frame and the spirit of Mars in his nature, shook his head."

"Thanks, fella, but my kind of help grows on trees. It comes out of engineering schools and grows a little valuable with experience, but it isn't in the same class with the kind of help you get from—from," he nodded toward the slim girl in tropical white, "—her."

"I know," said Terry quietly.

There was a blast of the whistle and a last shouted call of departure.

"So long, Bucky," said Willett. "And you know what I think."

"Forget it," said Corrigan. "I'll be working for you steady some day. You're carrying the mail, son."

THEY shook hands. Corrigan turned to Allaire and held out his hand.

"Oh, so you're going to be snooty, are you, Bucky?" the girl commented, smiling. She pushed aside his hand and stepped up close to him. "This may not mean much to you, but it means a lot to me."

She kissed him swiftly and gracefully. Corrigan flushed slightly beneath his tan.

"That's the high point of my life," he grinned. "Damn if it isn't."

Rosa surrendered her healthy glowing burden to Terry. He hoisted it in his arms, a smile of white teeth appearing in the bronze of his face.

Allaire's eyes as they rested on him were more than the eyes of a woman looking upon the man she loves; they were the eyes of a woman with the pride and ideals of a goddess who'd seen them held in strong and gallant hands.

Rosa started to weep. Allaire put her arm around her and said something in her ear which made Rosa smile. They shared a triumph, this lovely American girl and the old Indian woman.

Corrigan watched them go up the gangplank. Yes, Bucky Corrigan, a job that would last, because Man's handiwork was rooted in struggle and the inspirational qualities of courage and achievement and loyalty have always outlasted the building materials of the contractor.

They have existed from time immemorial and they always will; they are everlasting; indestructible.

Rosa was crying again.

"What's the matter with you?" demanded Corrigan. "Some beat the game and some don't. But they did, so what?"

He grinned and patted her on the shoulder. "You're a good Spiz," he said.

THE END

AAA gives inflationists of all breeds a golden opportunity to shout their wares. They know that the Committee for the Nation and other proponents of devaluation are bawling Washington with demands that the gold price be increased to $41.34 at once. They expect plenty of agitation—but no action.

The rea on they are so confident is that one sure result of devaluation would be a rapid run-up in the cost of living. Consumer reaction might be politically fatal. Even existing prices have stirred plenty of protests—as the administration is well aware. They can't figure Mr. Roosevelt taking that chance.

His retention of the authority to devalue is not inconsistent with this. There would be no point to his depriving himself of a flexible weapon that might come in handy in a national or international crisis. Moreover the power to do things to the dollar—even if never used—enables him to dicker for currency stabilization on even terms with the British. If he gave it up, he would be putting a cap pistol against a machine gun.

THORNS: New York learns that a French financial crisis is almost certain as soon as parliament meets again. The French Treasury is empty. A loan is urgently needed within a few weeks. The Bank of France gaps at swallowing any more Treasury bills—the last two billion franc issue of bonds hasn't yet been fully absorbed. This makes gloomy outlook for new financing.

There's a chance that Laval's opponents may again refuse to force him out because they still don't want to take over the government at an acute crisis. In any event his absence is not likely to be permanent. Insiders predict that he will be back—next time with a setup that more nearly approaches Fascism.

Have plenty of strong, vigorous, well-grown plants for early setting. Nothing adds more to prospects for a good crop than uniform, thrifty plants at planting time.

To grow the right kind of plants means much care with your plant bed—carefully made and properly fertilized. The selection of the right sort of Plant Bed Fertilizer is of great importance, and may mean the difference between a fine crop and just an average crop.

V-C Prolific Plant Bed Fertilizer is formulated precisely in accordance with the recommendations of the Committee of Tobacco Specialists of the Agricultural Experiment Stations in the Tobacco Belt, plus our own knowledge and experience in the manufacture of the right sort of Plant Bed Goods. It is non-acid forming and contains the right amount of soluble magnesia recommended to prevent sand down. The Potash is from Sulphate of Potash and Sulphate of Potash Magnesia, and the complete mixture is free from Chlorine. We believe, and thousands of the best Tobacco Growers say, that V-C Plant Bed Fertilizers are made right.

United Front Brings Bonus Issue Nearer Its Final Goal

Payment Means 3,518,191 War Vets Will Avg. $565.17

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Immediate payment of the soldiers' bonus—political storm center since the World War ended 18 years ago—promises to materialize in the present session of congress.

The issue reached its present stage because of the united front presented by major veterans' organizations and because various proponents of bonus legislation in congress "got together."

Final disposition of the bonus problem during this session would mean that within the next few months some 3,518,191 veterans who hold adjusted service certificates would receive an average net payment of $565.17 each.

Outstanding certificates have a maturity value of $3,464,988,330. Against these are liens totaling $1,763,144,548 for loans made by the government and banks to 3,026,190 veterans. Of that sum, the veterans' administration estimates that $1,476,597,148 represents the principle of the loans and $286,547,400 the interest.

Some Not To Be Cashed.

By deducting the principle sum of the loans from the maturity value, the estimated total payment as provided for in the united veterans bill is $1,988,391,182.

If the provision of the united veterans bill are enacted into law, and veterans who have not borrowed on their certificates are permitted to leave them with the government upon an interest bearing basis, it is estimated that 500,000 such certificates with an average value of $1,000 each, or a total value of a half a billion dollars, will not be cashed.

The fewer certificates cashed, the less would be the immediate expenditure.

The measure introduced by Representative Vinson and known as the Vinson-Patman-McCormack bill, authorizes immediate cash payment of the bonus, but offers 3 per cent interest as an additional attraction to veterans not cashing their certificates until 1945.

The "united front" bill provides no way of financing the bonus payments. Representatives Patman of Texas, author of the bill passed in the last session but vetoed by President Hoover, and providing for payment of the full value of the certificates in new United States currency, hopes to get the payment authorized first and then have his "greenback" plan of payment adopted.

Had Early Start.

Settlement of the bonus will remove one of the most troublesome

issues in American politics.

The armistice hardly had been signed on November 11, 1918, when bills began to pour into the receiving baskets of house and senate proposing that something be done for the 4,000,000 men who shortly would return to civilian life. Since then there have been presented to the house 474 bills and to the senate 124 bills dealing with the question of adjusted compensation for World War veterans.

Congress passed a measure within a few days after the end of the war giving each honorably discharged veteran a cash grant of $60 which was paid him as he left the service.

The "Bonus March"

In 1924, over President Coolidge's veto, the adjusted service compensation act, now in effect, was passed by congress. Veterans were given certificates with provisions for payment at death of the holder or 20 years after issuance. The computation was made at the rate of $1 a day for service at home and $1.25 a day for service overseas. The "bonus battle" has been marked by bitterness and even physical violence. In 1932, the now historic "bonus march" was made upon the capitol. Hundreds of World War veterans invaded Washington and bivouacked themselves almost within the shadow of the capitol dome.

On July 28, 1932, President Hoover ordered out United States troops to evict the bonus marchers. They were driven from their improvised huts in the most impressive military demonstration Washington has seen in years.

GOVERNOR HOFFMAN GIVES HAUPTMANN REPRIEVE

Washington said that she had received request by mail to interest herself in the Hauptmann case, but she had not done so considering it strictly "a state matter."
8. Governor Homer of Illinois said he would investigate a story that a prisoner held in a Chicago jail had bought ransom money for 40 cents on the dollar and that he had been offered $22,000 worth of such "hot" money by a person in New York other than Hauptmann.
9. Mrs. Anna Hauptmann visited her husband in his death cell and said there was hope.
10. The electric chair was made ready for the execution set for 8 Friday night.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—(AP)—A Chicago prisoner's story that an "Adolph Blaustein" and a "Fred Menk" whom he met in 1934 claimed they had $22,000 of the Lindbergh baby ransom money was investigated today by representatives of Governor Horner. It was indicated the questioning was asked by New Jersey officials.
Attorney Bernard Finnigan, questioned the prisoner, Stephen Feltz, then announced he would communicate immediately with Governor Hoffman, of New Jersey, asking him to have Governor Horner free Feltz to go to Trenton, N. J.

Feltz, 52-year-old, was sentenced for obtaining money under false pretense, and his term expires at 1 a. m. tomorrow.
Questioned by T. P. Sullivan, state bureau of identification chief, John Landesco, state pardon and parole commission member, and assistant attorney general Emory Smith, Feltz said that in August, 1934, he met "Blaustein" and "Menk" in New York City.
He said he arranged to meet them the next day at a New Jersey hotel. "Adolph" and "Fred" said they had $22,000 of the Lindbergh money," Feltz said, "and would sell me $5,000 of it at 40 cents on the dollar."
He said he gave them $1,800 and without taking any ransom money went to Chicago to seek more funds. When he returned to Newark three days later, he said, he met the pair

He said he demurred and asked for his $1,800 but that after promising to return it they left and he never saw them again.

TWELVE COMMANDMENTS RULE CHINA'S NATIONALISTS

Nanking, (AP)—Going the Old Testament two better in the matter of commandments, the fifth congress of China's nationalist party promulgated 12 ordinances for members of the organization which has been guiding China's political destinies for eight years.

Eight of the commandments have to do with loyalty, bravery, cleanliness, kindness and other virtues with which boy scouts the world over are familiar.

For the other four laws of conduct to be observed by the Kuomintang faithful, the party fathers have gone back to the ancient Chinese philosophers, to resurrect the almost forgotten cult of filial piety (obedience and reverence of one's parents and forebears).
