Senate Passes Bonus Bill To Pay Cashable Bonds By Vote Of 74 Against 16

Rejects Plan To Pay Certificates in New Currency

PLAN VETOED LAST SESSION

Borah Says He Would Prefer New Currency Mode, But Realized it Had No Chance

Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The Senate today passed the coalition bill to pay the soldiers' bonus in full cashable "baby" bonds.

The vote was 74 to 16. For the second time the senators voted down a proposal to pay the bonus in new currency offered by Senator C. Neely, (D-W. Va.) the amend would have provided the same method of pay as the vetoed Patman bill and in—no interest bearing U. S. notes. It was rejected 65 to 23. A similar proposal by Senator Thomas (D. Okla) was bet Saturday 64 to 27.

Neely said the bond bill would cost the tax payers more than a billion dollars additional interest. Thomas supported it saying the pending bill merely authorized the immediate funds and another bill would be necessary later appropriating the money.

Senator Borah (R. Idaho) said the preferred payments in new currency but opposed the amendment because he realized it had no chance of becoming law while the bond bill did.

Also rejected was the King amendment to provide for pay of only the persons surrender value of the adjusted service certificates. The amendment according to its author, Senator King (D-Utah) would have cost the government more than one billion dollars less than the coalition bill estimated cost of $2,491,000,000.

GIVES WARNING TO COMMITTEE

Secretary Hull Issues Statement on Confidential Files

Washington, Jan. 20.—(AP)—An implied warning was given the Senate munitions committee by Secretary Hull today that the State Department may discontinue asking its confidence files available unless the committee respects confidence imposed in them.

Without reference to the committee by name the secretary read the statement at his press conference.

H emphasized the files of the department contained confidential communications from other governments and that this government could not make public purely confidential matters without their permission.

"The department had scrupulously kept faith with foreign governments in its connection with the congressional committee and has necessarily treated and relied on the committee in turn pay fair to the department."

COUNTY PLAN HERE TO STAY

Local Units to Insist on Getting Liquor Revenue

Reflector Bureau. Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Jan. 20.—The state lost its one and only chance to get the profit from the sale of liquor in North Carolina when the 1935 general assembly refused to pass a state-wide liquor control and liquor stores law, it is now conceded by observers here.

The county liquor stores are proving so profitable to the 18 counties which now are operating liquor stores under the 1935 county liquor store acts, that the prevailing belief in most circles is that it will now be impossible to pass any state-wide liquor control act that will not give at least 50 per cent of the revenue from such stores to the counties in which they are located.

Other believe that from now on the counties will insist upon getting all the revenue from the stores, even though they might submit to ABC board.

If the 1935 general assembly had enacted a state-wide liquor control and liquor stores bill, providing that the profits from the sale of liquor in the state stores go into the general fund of the state, it could have assured itself of at least $3,500,000 a year of additional revenue after the first year, it is now generally conceded. For the 60 or so county liquor stores in 18 counties are now selling about $250,000 to $300,000 worth of liquor a month. On this basis, if liquor stores should be established in only 75 of the 100 counties—and it is estimated that not more than 75 counties would vote for the establishment of stores—indications are that total sales would amount to about $15,000,000 a year and that the state's profit on the volume of sales, after reducing all expenses, would be about $3,500,000 a year. These figures coincide almost exactly with the estimates made by Senator John Sprunt Hill of Durham during the 1935 general assembly when he introduced his liquor control bill but which the general assembly refused to enact.

If the 1937 legislature should enact a state-wide liquor stores law under which half the revenue would go to the counties, the state could not hope to get more than $1,500,000 a year from it.

U. S. REQUESTS CLARIFICATION COURT RULING

Seeks Clear Up Ruling on Processing Taxes

CITES REASON FOR REQUEST

Bases Plea on the Pay First and Litigate Later Principal, Rejected by Court

Washington, Jan. 29.—(AP)—The supreme court today ordered into effect that its decision that the AAA act was unconstitutional and that $200,000,000 of processing taxes impounded in Federal courts must be returned to taxpayers.

This action overruled a request of the government that it be granted the usual 25 days for filing requests for a reconsideration of its ruling.

The court also denied the government's request for a rehearing on the decision in the rice millers case ordering impounded processing taxes returned.

The announcement said the order for the release of the funds already had been signed.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed told the court earlier in the day that the ruling on processing tax refunds "destroy essential safeguards to the orderly and uninterrupted collection of all federal taxes and imperil the normal functioning of government."

The petition for rehearing was presented in court a few minutes after noon. The court's action taken with unprecedented speed apparently (Continued on Page Six)

LEAGUE GROUP IS INSTRUCTED

Asked to Stand Ready to Consider Any Suggestions

(By Associated Press)

World diplomats gathered around the League of Nations council table to discuss the East African war today as Ethiopian government sources predicted a drive to repossess the cities of Makale and Aksum.

The war simmers at Geneva were handed over to a committee of 13 instructed to organize and hold itself ready to consider any suggestions for settlement.

An atmosphere of tranquility pervaded the league halls, predictions freely circulating that not only no new sanctions would be voted against it but peace probably might be forthcoming.

Reports from Addis Ababa, yet unconfirmed, told of congregation of thousands of Ethiopians around the northern frontier cities and partial recapture of the Holy City of Aksum.

The forces of Ras Ayal, a former bandit, were said to be only 30 miles from Aksum.

France and Great Britain moved to strengthen their African defense. A reliable source at London disclosed a gigantic concentration of military and naval strength around the Egyptian area.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON By Ray Tucker

WATCHFUL: Nationally known Progressives have concluded a series of secret powwows on whether to support FDR next fall or organize a third party. Majority of the conferees plumped for the President against Herbert Hoover in 1932, and they still prefer Mr. Roosevelt to any other figure on the horizon.

But some strategists think the insurgents face a disastrous loss of prestige if they place all their eggs in the Democratic basket. In the event that Mr. Roosevelt should sit on the reform lid during a second term with their help, they fear they could lay no claim to liberal leadership in 1940. On the other hand, they don't care to contribute to the election of a conservative Republican by running a presidential candidate of their own next fall.

FORM COUNCIL DUE CONDITION KING GEORGE, V

Condition of British King Growing Worse

COUNCIL STATE ASSUMES DUTIES

Propped Up in Bed, British King, Signs Document Establishing Governing Board

Sandringham, England, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Oxygen was administered to the sick King George today and his physicians announced that his strength was "diminishing."

Persons in close touch with court circles described the king's slow weakening as "a general slowing up of the bodily machine."

This is at least the second time oxygen is known to have been given since Friday.

Every effort was being made to preserve the monarch's strength. The visits of Queen Mary and other members of the family has been kept as short as possible.

Royal duties were taken over sometime before physicians announced his weakening condition by a council of state appointed with King George's knowledge. Queen Mary and the four royal sons comprise the council.

A bulletin announced at 5:30 p. m., said: "The condition of the king shows diminishing strength."

The disquieting bulletin followed a more hopeful outlook which had been held throughout the day because of indications from the last bedside report that the monarch's condition was unchanged and that he apparently was maintaining his strength.

(Copyright By Associated Press)

Sandringham, Eng. Jan. 20.—(AP)—King George, V, propped up in bed, signed today a document setting up a council of state to assume most of the royal duties due to his military's grave illness and heart weakening.

The sovereign privy council, summoned from London, met in an apartment adjoining the royal sick room and appointed members of the council of state while the 80-year-old king entered a possible decisive stage of his sickness.

It was officially stated that the council of state consisted of Queen Mary and four royal sons, Prince of Wales and the Dukes of York, Gloucester and Kent.

In accordance with constitutional procedure, the door between the sitting room and the sick room was opened with a member of the council standing at the portal so that the monarch was able to hear the voices of the conferees in the next room.

An official bulletin timed 9:45 a. m. (4:45 a. m. est) said:

"The king has had a more restful night. There is no substantial change to record in his majesty's condition."

STRONG WINDS CAUSE DAMAGE

Store Fronts Blown Down and Other Damage Done

Strong winds, accompanied by heavy rains, Sunday afternoon did damage to a number of stores and houses in the city and power and telephone lines in the section were blown down, but no material damage was reported.

State highway patrolmen reported that a number of power and telephone poles were felled throughout this and surrounding counties. They also reported one car blown from the road near Griffin, but no one was hurt.

Branches and in some instances trees were blown down in the city proper as well as in the county.

A garage at the home of Roy Harris, just this side of the cemetery on the Washington road, was moved from its concrete base, and the roof of a negro's house on Greene street was unslated.

Glass window fronts were broken at J. A. Watson's store on Fifth street and at the Ormond Wholesale Company on Dickinson avenue. The front of the pool room by the Pitt Theatre also was broken as was a transom at an Atlantic and Pacific store on Hixson street.

Yards and streets throughout the city were cluttered up with branches and debris as a result of the strong winds. No personal injury was reported, however.

START SALE OF BALL TICKETS

To Publish Names of Persons Purchasing $5 Tickets

Plans for the President's Birthday Ball to be held in the Campus building at East Carolina Teachers College here, went forward today with the ticket committee offering the first batch of tickets to those persons who wish to aid the worthy cause by paying a premium for their tickets.

The regular price for the ball will be $1.50 per couple for dancers and 50 cents each for spectators, but prior to the sale of the regular tickets the committee hopes to place 100 of the advance tickets at $5 each. Ticket number one was purchased this morning by J. J. White for $5. The names of all purchasers of the $5 tickets will be published locally and in addition will be sent to national headquarters to be placed upon the honor roll of the national organization. Following its solicitation here today, the committee composed of W. T. Lipscomb, A. E. Hobgood, L. J. Smith and Jack Spain, will visit the other towns in the county to aid in securing local ticket committees in each community for selling tickets in those areas.

The third annual Birthday Ball promises to be the best of its kind ever held here and those in charge express the belief that the proceeds from the ball will be great enough to be of real benefit to infantile paralysis sufferers of this county. All the money derived from the first ball was turned over to the national foundation but since that time the major part of all funds received from the balls is retained in the community for local work.

Already a good orchestra has been engaged to furnish music for the ball here and work on the floor show is well under way under the direction of Miss Ramona Staples, head of the Ramona School of Dancing. Billy Nesbit of Blount-Harvey Company, has again consented to give his services in decorating the hall for the ball.

"We are going to make every effort to see to it that this ball is an enjoyable occasion for all those in attendance," Chairman W. V. Lee said this morning, "and we sincerely hope that the people of this county will support the worthy cause for which the ball is held."

ESCAPED MAN WANTS RETURN

Writes Intentions To Superintendent of Prison Camp

Reflector Bureau.

Raleigh, Jan. 20.—If you were an escaped convict, would you get "homesick" for the prison you had escaped from and on the night before Christmas, sit down and write a letter to the superintendent of the camp you escaped from, tell him you wished you were there and that you were coming back soon to finish out your term?

Yet that is what John Lowery, who escaped from the Camp Polk prison farm here in April, 1935, did. He sat down in his hotel room, in one of the "swankiest" hotels in Houston, Texas, on Christmas Eve and wrote a long letter to Captain P. A. Hodges, superintendent of the Camp Polk prison farm, told him he wished he could be back there Christmas day and that he hoped he had not caused them to lose confidence in him because he escaped.

Lowery also told Capt. Hodges that he had a good job, had plenty of money, and that as soon as he had made some more money buying old gold in Mexico and selling it in Canada, that he was coming back to prison and complete serving his term, of which only eight or nine months more remain.

Lowery was sentenced to serve from 10 to 15 years in prison in 1924 from Elizabeth City for burglary. He was paroled in 1927 and out on parole almost five years, when his parole was revoked in 1932. He had a perfect prison record until he escaped in April, 1935. He had not been heard of until Capt. Hodges received this letter from him a few days ago from (Continued on Page Three)

Coast Guard Stations on Carolina Coast Await Word

SHIP REPORTED TAKING BEATING

Traffic Generally Impeded as Snow, Ice and Sleet Blanket Much of Nation

Chicago, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The country counted at least 161 dead today in the wake of a furious assault by tornadoes and lesser disturbances.

The eastern states were buried in this winter's deepest snowdrifts after a blistering week-end. The south west prepared damage of week-end tornadoes. In the northwest temperatures were as low as 15 below zero in a sudden cold wave.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Tornadoes swept eastern states, while blizzards lashed the northern tier of states from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic coast as the nation today counted at least 115 dead, including 58 in traffic accidents.

The majority of the reported automobile fatalities were chargeable to slippery streets and obscured vision of drivers.

Snow, ice and sleet blanketed most of the upper half of the nation and the forecast called for more snow and colder weather.

Traffic generally was impeded seriously. Many airports were closed and planes grounded. Railway ran far behind schedules.

Heavy snow and rain in some southern states brought a new menace from floods and rivers and streams rose sharply.

Several ships were in distress. The S. S. City of Camden went aground near Pensacola, N. J., but its 70 passengers were brought ashore safely. Another vessel, the S. S. Ipswich aground near Panama City, Fla., was reported in no immediate danger.

Meanwhile coast guard stations among the North Carolina coast awaited word from the S. S. Amoco which yesterday wireless "he" was taking a very severe beating 60 miles of Cape Hatteras.

It was reported a large vessel was ashore off Point Mout, Vassal. In addition to those reported missing in ships, searching parties were out for an aviator unreported in Wyoming and for a child in Massachusetts. In New Jersey an automobile carrying six youths plunged into a river when the driver was blinded by snow.

Tornadoes claimed 17 lives in Florida, Ga., and Alabama; six persons were frozen to death; seven died from over exertion; three were burned to death; two died from carbon monoxide fumes, and 19 others from unreported causes.

FLOOD STAGES IN RIVERS PREDICTED BY OFFICIAL

Raleigh, Jan. 20.—(AP)—A "heavy flood" in the Roanoke river at Welton with the stream going to 45 feet or 14 feet above bank level was forecast today as a result of yesterday's heavy rains.

Lee A. Denson, in charge of the of the weather bureau here, said little damage was expected from the high water with the crest due tomorrow or Wednesday.

Hedgerow Players Here Saturday.

The most popular comedy in the repertoire of 113 plays in the list of those produced by Hedgerow Players, is "The Romantic Age," by A. A. Milne, the play they will present at East Carolina Teachers College on next Saturday night, January 25.

It has been performed well over a hundred times. Fred Nofer will appear here in the leading role, which he created in the original Hedgerow production. This play is a big hit when it was first presented in London when Leslie Howard played the lead. Its production by Jasper Weeter and his Hedgerow Company has set a record for long runs of British plays in America which has yet to be beaten.

On the surface the play is a light and airy comedy with a lot of fluff and jostling, but there are inner depths that are a happy surprise for those who like to get at meanings in plays.

The Philadelphia Inquirer summed up the play in a paragraph as follows:

"Its charm lies in the sympathetic survey of the imaginative emotions of romantic girlhood, of the inevitable process of getting down to reality, and of becoming reconciled to that reality. All of this is shown, with no violence of melodrama, but with considerable poetic persuasiveness in a young English girl's quest for a glamorous knight, and in her ultimate acceptance of that knight when first she saw him in fancy dress ball costume in the enchanted wood near her home. Her scheming mother, her Romeo, her sane cousin and chum, her placid father, and a couple of woodland vagabonds are all essential and deftly drawn."

Tickets will be placed on sale day after tomorrow.

King Cotton Bids For Spot In Southern Fashion Sun

Miami, Fla. (AP)—King Cotton has put in his bid to regain part, at least, of his domain in the fashion world here.

Winter resort wardrobes feature cotton in many of the smarter daytime ensembles, as well as for formal evening wear.

A tricky cotton frock in dusty pink, ornamented with rows of buttons cut from native palmetto, was one of the high spots of recent private showings.

Taffeta in Sport Frocks.

Stylists assert, however, that the monarch of the south will have to continue giving place to such other favored materials as chiffons, laces and velvets, particularly for late afternoon and evening wear.

Taffeta, usually swishing in grandeur at balls, is being smartly tailored in sports frocks, some of them in the military manner.

Skirts are slightly shorter in this season's sports frocks, the silhouette slim to the knees and distinguished by flares and gores.

Shorter Evening Gowns.

All daytime frock are farther from the floor, though lengths may be governed by individual taste. Shorter evening gowns are also forecast.

Top-ranking colors include imperial blue, aurora, formosa blue, spinner's red, the zinnia shades, petunia and Devon green.

Low-heeled sandals, especially in gold and silver kid, remain in favor for evening wear.

This frock in dusty pink cotton with palmetto buttons appeared at a Miami, Fla., style show.

He deplored the time, energy, interest and money spent on purely denominational affairs while there were the needy to be fed, clothed and sheltered and millions who have not heard the story of Divine Grace.

Christian Pastor Delivers Sermon At Union Service

Second Joint Service of Presbyterian and Christian Congregations Held Sunday Night

The second of the Union Evening Services being sponsored by the Christian and Presbyterian congregations was held last night, and in spite of threatening weather, was marked by a good attendance.

Rev. W. A. Ryan, the minister of the Christian church, delivered the sermon, the subject being, "The Church In Action." The speaker pointed out the harm done by the church and the many ways in which the growth of the Kingdom of God had been retarded by the more or less general assumption that the church is a defense organization whose business it is to defend itself against the world, the flesh and the devil.

Some of the results of this attitude pointed out were: that the church often failed to do more than merely hold its own, making no appreciable progress in the acquiring of new fields for God. There is also the danger, so often evident in the church, of a willingness merely to conserve certain values in doctrine and policy, producing a static church which is in danger of degenerating into a conservation corps when it was intended to be a church militant, not defending itself against the gates of Hell but storming the gates in the name of God.

For the church in action it was suggested that it would survey the world in which men live and ascertain where the abundant life which Christ craved for his followers "as lacking, and then give itself to the meeting of man's needs. It was pointed out that there was a time when hospitals, schools, and relief were all under the ownership and direction of the church. The speaker stated that he was not advocating that these and other activities be taken over by the church but what he was claiming was that it is the business of the church to know whether hospitals adequately meet the needs of men, whether schools provide the best possible education, and whether relief work is intelligently and sympathetically administered. Where these conditions do not prevail it is the business of the church to see that they do serve their appointed purposes. He described as sheer tommy rot much of the current talk about the church "attending to its own business," asserting that whatever retards or advances man's living and whatever builds or tears down the work of the Kingdom of God is the business of the church, whether these are found in low wages, long hours, bad working conditions or any of the many ways in which human life is deprived of its chance to live adequately.

In closing, the speaker stated that it was obvious that a divided church could not hope to do the things demanded of a church in action, hence it would become increasingly necessary for the many Protestant groups to find common grounds on which they could together do the work of the Kingdom.

Memorial Service Held Here Sunday For J. B. Spilman

Students of East Carolina College Join in Tribute to Late Official of Institution

The students of the College, under the leadership of the Y. W. C. A., held a beautiful and appropriate memorial service for J. B. Spilman, last night. The service was marked by simplicity and sincerity, showing deep feeling.

The opening hymn was "How Firm A Foundation" and later his favorite hymn, "Com All Ye Faithful," was played as a violin solo, by Miss Irene Lane with Miss Nola Walters at the piano.

At the close, after a silent prayer, the choir sang a very appropriate hymn as a prayer-benediction. Miss Catherine Wallace, a member of the Y. W. C. A., Cabinet, had charge of the services. She said that, instead of having one person to make a talk on the life and character of Mr. Spilman, the students preferred to have several people who knew him well present different phases of his life, as they felt that no one person could know all of the many sides of a man like Mr. Spilman.

The students were represented by George Willard—a member of the Senior class; the administrative staff, by Dr. H. J. McGinnis, registrar; who had worked with him as man to man as well as a fellow officer for nearly ten years; the faculty by Miss Sallie Joyner Davis, one of the charter members of the faculty, who had been associated with him for nearly a quarter of a century; and his pastor, Rev. A. W. Fleischmann, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church.

A few of the tributes from newspapers and letters were read by Miss Frances Currin.

The editorial from the Reflector which showed how the people of the community felt towards him, was read first an extract from Senator Josiah Bailey, a classmate of Mr. Spilman's, revealed the warm friendship that had existed between the two. A letter from the president of Draughon's Business College, in which he had once taught, gave some idea of how his business associates elsewhere felt towards him. A tribune from Dr. Gilmore, publicity director of the Baptist Sunday School Board in Nashville, Tenn., gave some idea of what he meant to the alumni of Wake Forest College who had known him as students. The last one read, from Mrs. J. H. Rose, gave a beautiful bit of symbolism.

George Willard told of an incident not many months ago, when he went to Mr. Spilman's office to ask him a question about photography, which he knew was one of Mr. Spilman's hobbies. When he asked him if he was never too busy to serve you students; that is what I am here for. That reply was the keynote of Mr. Spilman's attitude toward the students. He was always working, usually behind the scenes, for their welfare, and, while they did not come in direct contact with him, he touched the lives of all, and as a friend, few students failed to pass the treasurer's office, which stood open, and they would always see him behind his desk, at work for the College.

"As Man to Man" was the subject Dr. McGinnis gave to his tribute. He spoke of his association with him, as one of the treasures of his life, which during the ten years was not marred by a single word or act. In bringing out the qualities that distinguished him from the crowd and marked him as a good citizen, neighbor, and friend, he said: "He was a calm, steadfast, energetic worker whose works were positive and not negative; they were constructive and not destructive; they were always planned and not the outcome of caprice. Methodical, careful, exact, painstaking he was, but he was not bound by modes of acting or thinking so fixed that he was prevented from adjusting himself intelligently to every significant element that might have a bearing on the problem in hand."

He brought out the keen sense of humor that was so refreshing to his associates when after a hard day, he would tell a good joke that would relieve tense nerves. In both the opening and the closing of his talk Dr. McGinnis gave beautiful poetic symbols.

Miss Davis gave a glimpse of his outlook on life when he was a young man that seemed like a message to young people in college now. She read parts from an oration he delivered when a student at Wake Forest College on Anniversary Day, which is famous in the traditions of that college even to this day. A number of the letters have had references to that oration. She told of several people that she had heard refer to it, among them ex-Governor Bickett and Dr. Parrott. The subject of the oration was "Israel's Political Redeemer." Judas Macabaeus. The first part was a brilliant exposition of the political situation and the part that the redeemer had in bringing about better conditions, and the latter part was a challenge to the youth of his day to take their part in life and help solve the difficult political problems of that day. It rings out today as a challenge to the youth of this year.

ESCAPED MAN WANTS TO RETURN

Houston, Texas. While Lowery wrote the letter the night before Christmas, he left it with a friend who mailed it about January 12, more than two weeks after Lowery had left Houston—just in case the prison department might try to check up on him. The prison division is sending a description of Lowery to the Houston police department, but prison officials do not expect anything to come of it. They believe Lowery is too smart to show up there again and thus run the risk of being captured.

"I saw Honorable Josephus Daniels from Raleigh in Mexico city several weeks ago," Lowery told Capt. Hodges. "I also saw one of the boys from Carey (the prison farm) not long ago, who told me all the happenings since I left. Poor fellow was broke, so I helped him. Gee, he was scared to death. I picked him up on the highway."

In telling of his work, Lowery said: "I am buying old gold in Mexico for a German-Canadian and working for myself part of the time. I sold ten ounces a few days ago for $35. There is plenty of money in old gold. I have my acid and stone. It is hard to fool the 'old man' on gold. Lots of folks are begging on the streets here and in other cities, many of them women and children. Sure makes my heart and soul ache. I do more than my part helping."

On the last page of his letter, Lowery sends a message to his former fellow prisoners at Camp Polk and in the Central Prison here as follows:

"Captain Hodges, tell all the boys there not to run away, because God in Heaven knows that thousands and thousands of people are suffering with nothing to eat or wear and with no place to sleep. The highways are full of people, many of them women and children. They (the prisoners) will get caught very soon if they leave. The only thing that keeps me away is because I have money and a job. When those poor fellows leave they have nothing. They should be thankful where they are. God knows I would be if I wasn't working. Captain Hodges, after I buy up a few thousand dollars worth more of old gold, I am coming back to Carey to finish up."

One prison official, after reading the letter, remarked that the North Carolina prison system must not be so bad if the escaped prisoners get homesick for the prison and their old friends in it and want to come back, even after getting a good job.

way fatality rate in North Carolina was higher than in any other state in the Union.

Recalling that one-third of the deaths were among pedestrians,

Judge Spears said city and state officials should inaugurate moves to reduce these accidents.

The jurist suggested more playground facilities in the various cities and provision of walkways along the highways of the state.

The morning session of the court was taken up chiefly in instructions to the Grand Jury and other preliminaries, no cases having been completed.

Despite the recent warning by Chief of Police George Clark there are still a number of children using the city streets as skating rinks. The city has ordered that the practice be stopped because it is a danger to the children and others on the streets, and if it doesn't stop somebody is going to be ar-

it that their children do not

One thing Greenville

sound automobiles and

It seems to us that Post-

that took a crack at Presi-

the stamps went a long way
in ridiculing the President,
but it is our belief that there is little that the Republicans can do to hurt Mr. Roose-reaction from this low form of campaigning on the part of the Republicans would probably have done Mr.

would have been to ignore their underhand methods of

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: While Bobby Jones
and Dr. Thomas are playing golf near their home in Wales, they find a man dying at the foot of a cliff.
But Bobby is haunted almost as much by the woman's face he saw on a photograph in the man's pocket as by the occurrence itself.
He has been in London for a few days, and on the train home he meets his friend Lady Frances Dermott, a childhood friend whom he has not seen for some time.
Frankie is loved with London and not too thrilled with the prospect of going home either.

Chapter Four ABOUT BADGER

Bobby's relationship with Frankie was a peculiar one. As children he and his brothers had played with the children at the Castle. Now that they were all grown up, they seldom came across each other. When they did, they still used Christian names.

"I'm so tired of everything," said Frankie in a weary voice. "Aren't you?"

Bobby considered. "No. I don't think I am."

"My dear, how wonderful!" said
Frankie.

"I don't mean I'm hearty," said
Bobby, anxious not to create a painful impression. "I just can't stand people who are hearty."

Frankie shuddered at the mere

"Do it!"

"Of course you do. You must remember good old Badger. He squints."

Frankie wrinkled her brows.

"He's got an awfully silly kind of laugh—Haw, haw, haw—like that,"

STILL Frankie wrinkled her brows.

"Fell off his pony when we were kids," continued Bobby.

"Stuck in the mud head-down, and we had to pull him out by the legs."

"Oh!" said Frankie in a flood of recollection. "I know now. He stampered."

"He still does," said Bobby proudly.

"Didn't he run a chicken farm and it went bust?" inquired Frankie.

"That's right."

"And then he went into a stockbroker's office and they fired him
after a month?"

"That's it."

"And then they sent him to Australia and he came back?"

"Yes."

"Bobby," said Frankie, "you're not putting any money into this business venture, I hope?"

"I haven't got any money to put,"
said Bobby.

"That's just as well," said
Frankie.

"Naturally," went on Bobby.

Bobby had played at the castle.

mention of the word "I know," she murmured. "They're dreadful."

They looked at each other sympathetically.

"By the way," said Frankie suddenly. "What's all this about a man falling over the cliffs?"

"Dr. Thomas and I found him," said Bobby. "How did you know about it, Frankie?"

"Saw 't in the paper. Look."

SHE indicated with her finger a small paragraph headed "Fatal Accident in Sea Mist."

The victim of the tragedy at Marchbolt was identified late last night by means of a photograph which he was carrying. The photograph proved to be that of Mrs. Leo Payman.

Mrs. Payman was communicated with and journeyed at once to Marchbolt where she identified the deceased as her brother, Alex Pretchard. Mrs. Pretchard had recently returned from St. Leon. He had been out of England for ten years and was just starting upon a walking tour. The inquest will be held at Marchbolt tomorrow.

Bobby's thoughts flew back to the strangely haunting face of the photograph. "I believe I shall have to give evidence at the inquest," he said.

"How thrilling! I shall come and hear you."

"I don't suppose there will be any thing thrilling about it," said Bobby.
"We just found him, you know."

"Was he dead?"

"No. Not then. He died about a quarter of an hour later. I was alone with him." He paused.

"Rather grim," said Frankie with that immediate understanding that Bobby's father had lacked.

"Of course he didn't feel any thing."

"No."

"But all the same, well, you see,
he looked awfully alive that sort of person rather a rotten way to finish—just stepping off a cliff in a silly bit of mist."

"I get you, Steve," said Frankie and again the queer phrase represented sympathy and understanding. "Did you see the sister?" she asked presently.

"No. I've been up in town two days. Had to see a friend of mine about a garage business we're going in for. You remember him, Badger Beadon."

"No."

That promises to be a major 1936
issue, with the GOP attributing all honor and glory to the Supreme Court and business itself.

They will be lucky if they complete their investigation by July of 1937.
Any hope of utilizing disclosures as the basis of new legislation has vanished. That was the original idea.

PREVENTION: The final assault
which may topple the late Huey Long's dynasty will be delivered tomorrow (Tuesday, January 21) when Louisiana holds a senatorial primary to choose a successor to the deceased "Kingfish." Rep. John N.
Sandlin carries the administration's colors against Speaker Allen J. Ellender, who was presiding over the Louisiana House on the right his political boss was shot down.

The White House has thrown the support of its patronage and prestige to Sandlin. A special congressional committee has guaranteed him an honest court. Scores of federal investigators have been dispatched to parishes where the Long forces have been suspected of weighing and weighting the vote in the past. If there are signs of fraud the congressional overseers are set to promote a Senate inquiry.

Federal operators have moved quietly for fear of affording the Long machine a chance to raise the cry of "carpet-bagging government."
But not since reconstruction days has Uncle Sam been so agitated over a state contest. He seeks to rip in the bud Democratic defection which may be blooming in the Louisiana-Georgia area.

COAST: Democratic fitfulness with Epic-ers have complicated California politics to the point where the White House has been asked to intervene.

Although the Farleyes disavowed Epic Chief Upton Sinclair in 1934, the latter's campaign manager
—Cubert Olson—captured the state committee and made himself chairman. Jim Farley immediately moved to patch up a truce with the in-terloper and a handsome legal appointment was thrown to his law
by Attorney General Cummings.

But Olson persisted in promotion of the "production for use" scheme.
He hopes to commit the state committee to that doctrine and to select national convention delegates pledged to it. Senator McKenna flew to the White House in desperation
after California House members rejected his plea for aid in the quarrel.

Both Senator and President described the situation as "stressing." With Olson kicking again, El-Johnson still neutral, and Townsenties spreading their gospel party topnotchers are keeping a weather eye on the western coast.

TEL. & TEL.: Reports leaking back to Washington depict the investigation of the $750,000,000 American Telephone & Telegraph Company as the most stupendous undertaking of its kind. Though lacking sensations during the behind-the-doors stage, it dwells in size the Morgan, Teapot Dome, railroad and public utility inquiries of recent years.

Federal Communication Commission's accountants and investigators number 140. They occupy a whole floor of the company's skyscraper in New York. Requests for information include twenty general orders by the commission, seventy-five formal letters and 2,200 verbal requests by agents on the scene. In answering one series of inquiries, the company had to provide 156 volumes of material totalling 70,000 pages. Another questionnaire required a reply of 220 volumes.

President Roosevelt has requested the commission to lay its report on his desk by July 1 of this year.

Privately the commissioners admit

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN

DESTROYED: New York conservatives ruefully concede that the Democratic Congressional chiefs who decided it was their duty to make public the details of large corporate salaries hit a political bonanza.

Trusted scouts report an astonishing kickback. Widespread resentment is expressed by average citizens in all sections of the country
—not so much at the size of the salaries as at the fact that their recipients are the leaders of the an-nihil chorus about Roosevelt's ruination of business. Comment is particularly bitter about William Randolph Hearst and his $500,000.

The reaction is especially marked in small cities where a few local leaders who have been crying wolf are revealed as having done very well for themselves compared to their fellow citizens. The effect is virtually to destroy all respect for their political opinions. An astute New Yorker remarks: "Congress made more votes for Roosevelt by that apparently casual move than he could win for himself with twenty speeches about 'the forces of greed.'"

BALANCE: Two weeks ago the President painted a rosy picture of the federal budget, indicating that a slight further gain in recovery and reemployment would put Uncle Sam back in the black. Last week Secretary Morgenthau went to the opposite extreme and splashed gloom all over the canvas as he told a Senate Committee that the Treasury will have to borrow $11-300,000,000 by June 30, 1937. It looks like a case of crossed wires—
but it wasn't.

New York sharps note that Mr.
Morgenthau's maneuver serves five useful purposes:

1. Hangs the full bonus on Congress for the increase in the deficit due to payment of the bonus and strengthens the case for payment in bonds, which is the least objectionable method to the White House.

2. Emasculates a major anti-New Deal issue. When G. O. P. head-shakers harp on the ghastly figures this summer Mr. Morgenthau can say he told the country about them first.

3. The Treasury is on record as favoring financial conservatism.

4. Over half of the staggering eleven billion is routine refunding,
which will cause no difficulties

whatever. Estimates of two billion each for relief and the bonus are maximum. Probably neither will be approached. The realities as they develop will be so much less appalling than the preview that the nation is bound to feel relieved.

5. By playing El Penseroso to the President's L'Allegro, Mr. Morgenthau preserves the double-ended balance that has been characteristic of New Deal policy—which its opponents admit with exasperation
is no cinch to upset in the public mind.

ADVISERS: FDR's decision to be rough with big business doesn't mean he has dropped Jack Garner
from his privy council. On the contrary, sources who should know say the brightest spot in his winter was when Jack returned from the Orient.

It's true that Jack isn't strong for what New York calls the class-conscious stuff. But he figures its just politics, so why worry about it. He will be very much on deck as chief counsellor on legislative strategy as well as helping to chart
the course of the campaign.

Secretary Morgenthau, whose influence—like Garner's—is decidedly on the conservative side, remains personally closer to the President than any other member of his administration. They both realize that continued recovery is Mr. Roosevelt's biggest political asset. With such advisers still on the inside track New York is confident that FDR will act "right" no matter
how "left" he talks.

INROADS: Shrewd political observers see indications that Republicans in the Senate are keen to have one of their own in the White House. The solons recall the palmy days of Harding and yearn to re-establish their sphere of influence at the executive end. Especially do they crave to assert what they consider their rightful prerogatives in the framing of foreign policy. They swing enough weight in party councils to make their wishes an important factor in the convention.

This exchanges the prospects of Vandenberg, McNary or Dickinson
as against Landon or Knox. It won't help Borah. He doesn't belong to the "club."

The informed believe that a smart nomination could lend to substantial inroads on the Democratic side of the Senate.

DENT: The Treasury pulled an unusual stunt last week in calling on commercial banks to repay $61-000,000 of the funds it had on deposit, with them. The odd feature is that it had $460,000,000 available on deposit in the Reserve Banks and it ordinarily draws on those balances first.

Cardui Helps When Nerves Seem On Edge Every Month

Women who find themselves in a painful, nervous fix, suffering every month, may have some functional trouble which Cardui should benefit.

"At times, I felt like I must scream if a door slammed or there was an unusual noise," writes Mrs.
P. A. Odum, of Haines City, Fla. "I did not feel like doing my housework, and as I had other work besides, I felt more like lying down.
A friend of mine asked me to try Cardui which I did. After my first bottle, I felt much better. I continued taking it until I had taken six or seven bottles. By this time I was so much improved I was able to leave it off."

If not benefited by Cardui, consult a physician.—(Adv.)

Death Splits Political Team But Mrs. Schall Carries On

DEATH SPLITS
I know Tom would like it, says Mrs. Margaret Schall as she plans her campaign to succeed blind Thomas D. Schall as Republican senator from Minnesota. Schall died after being struck by an automobile.

By SIGRID ARNE
Washington (AP)—Mrs. Margaret Schall is "pushing 60" and she's never made a speech. But she has decided to run for the senate seat left vacant by the recent death of her husband, Sen. Thomas D. Schall, Republican, of Minnesota.

"I know Tom would like it," she explains. "And congress has been my life for 20 years. I want to go on with it."

"She figures she'll campaign just about the way her husband did, provided she gets the nomination in the Minnesota Republican primaries. She will stay in Washington, however, till the primaries are over."

Then—"If they want me, I'll come. If they don't, no hard feelings."

She accompanied Schall on every campaign since his first one in 1916. She did the driving and put up cards in country store windows. When she saw a crowd she would step up and say in her soft voice: "Tom Schall's speaking down the street. Come on along and hear him. And they'd come."

They're 'Land Poor'
Now, if nominated, she'll do all of it; drive, put up cards and speak.

"I'm land poor," she says. "But I'd rather have the memory of those years with Tom Schall than all the money he could have left me. We went places, knew people, and took part in public life."

"At night we'd come home and surround Tom—the three children, too—and argue out public issues. We'd talk at once, all of us trying to convince the others, and of course, not succeeding."

Her eyes shine as she recalls incidents about her husband, the blind senator who was a bitter critic of the present administration. She is small but soft gray hair fluffing about her face. Her features show the signs of strain since her husband died. But the weeping is over, and she seems glad to have set her hand to the political plow.

'I Went with Tom'
"If I am elected I'll go on with the issues he championed. I want old-fashioned American patriotism. I don't think we need an amendment to the constitution, for instance. That document seems sacred to me. The time may come when the public will want it, and when they do I'll act as Tom did—as a representative of the people. I'll vote for it."

"I will probably make a wide campaign among women's groups. I have a great faith in women as voters. They don't seem so easily misled by promises."

Mrs. Schall feels that if she reaches the senate there will be times when she'll want to speak her mind. The only woman member at present is Hattie Caraway of Arkansas, noted for her silence.

"After all," she says, "I campaigned in the early days when plenty of meetings were held in saloons, and you know, no 'nice lady' went in a saloon in those days. But I did. I went with Tom. And I never had an unpleasant experience. Political life isn't half bad."

Morgan Finds Arms Probers Are 'Tough'

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, Jan. 17—(AP)—If J. P. Morgan expected to receive the same kind of treatment at the hands of the senate munitions committee that he did when he appeared before that body's banking and currency group in 1933, he was greatly disappointed.

The manner in which Senators Nye, Clark and Vandenberg handled the Wall Street financier was in marked contrast to the treatment accorded him on the previous occasion.

The attitude of Morgan himself was different from that he displayed on his first personal appearance before a congressional investigation committee. Then he was genial and deferential in his manner toward everyone who asked him a question. If any one gave him a smile, he beamed with pleasure.

The celebrated incident of holding the circus midjet in his lap was typical of his good humor.

The members of the investigating committee were so friendly they must have surprised Morgan. The conservative Republican senator on the banking and currency committee, traditionally the champion of Wall Street financiers, were left with nothing to do by way of defense of Morgan.

It was a different story, however, when the senate munitions investigators began questioning him concerning his firm's connection with World War loans.

against a "tougher" bunch of senators in the munitions investigation than they were in the banking inquiry.

Young Senator Clark comes from Missouri, the state which produced one of the most hardboiled investigators the senate has ever had—Jim Reed. Clark reminds one of a great deal of Reed by the way he goes after a witness.

Senator Nye of North Dakota is a progressive Republican and, as such, hardly could be expected to have any sympathy on Wall Street's great and most legendary figure.

Only Senator Barbour, conservative Republican of New Jersey, of all the members of the committee, might reasonably be expected to give aid and comfort to Morgan. The only other Republican member is Vandenberg of Michigan and he was one of the most relentless inquisitors.

COLLEGE TEAM TO PLAY HERE

To Engage Williamston All-Stars Here Tonight

With two consecutive wins to their credit in three starts this season, the East Carolina Teachers College Pirates will take on the Williamston "All Stars" tonight as their fourth adversary. The past two games with Rocky Mount and Washington were won easily by Coach "Doc" Mathis' proteges, but tonight's contest promises to be far closer in every detail.

Jimmie Brown, Captain of the Williamston team and former N. C. State College athlete, was an All Southern selection several years ago. He is expected to turn in a fine performance tonight along with Dick Cherry, Coastal Plain border during the past season. Martin, manager of the "All Stars," is a brother of Louise Martin, center and high scorer of the E. C. T. C. Ramblers.

The E. C. T. C. boys looked considerably better during Saturday's scrimmage than at any other time this season, and it is possible their playing may reach a peak tonight. The Pirate starting lineup probably will include: Stowe and Ridenhour, forwards; Holloman, guards; Johnson and Ferebee, center; Hinton and Ayers, of Rocky Mount; Proctor and Flemming of Grimesland; Cunningham of Hopewell; Virginia; and Ed. Wells, former Greenville High School star, will most likely also see action tonight.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Jan. 20.—(AP)—Stocks found the going a little difficult in today's market.
A few of the aircraft rallied but the majority of the leaders were unable to display any bullish fervor. Losses of fractions to a point predominated in the exceptionally quiet dealings.
The late tone was easy. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

MAYOR BLOUNT DECLARES MAJOR BOWES DAY

Next Wednesday will be Major Bowes Day in Greenville and vicinity. Mayor M. K. Blount made it official today when he issued a proclamation commending Major Bowes for giving the amateurs an opportunity to get a real start in their chosen profession and urging the people of Greenville and vicinity to give them a hearty welcome during their stay in the city.
The amateurs, sixteen strong, will appear for one day only on Wednesday at the Pitt Theatre, and judging from reports from other North Carolina cities radio fans from far and wide will be in Greenville on that day.
Without benefit of outside assistance, save the friendly guidance of Major Bowes, these prize-winning entertainers made their way to Radio City in New York and competed for the favors of listeners the country over.
Facing the "mike" is task enough but to be ever mindful of that fatal gong, which tolls the inevitable death knell to aspirations, marked each of these youngsters with the hallmark of courage and talent.
Now with months of experience in the leading showplaces of the southeast, this aggregation of real performers come to Greenville to meet in person those who heretofore have known them only as phantoms of the air, and who have made it possible for them to get a start in life.
Among those to appear are: Paris Lee, bass baritone from Atlanta, Ga., heard on "Atlanta Night"; Bryl King, vibraphonist; Normal and Marilyn, harmony singers and tap dancers, head on January 5 broadcast; James Erickson, accordionist; George Lee, Chinese crooner; The Harmonica Kings; Margaret Coleman, Iowa farmer's wife and blues singer.

Speaking of ODD JOBS-

Cry Baby
Sallie Belle Cox is an attractive girl—but she is a cry baby despite her 20-some years. Until four years ago she cried for fun, entertaining company. Now she cries for money. Sometimes her imitation is so successful that mothers will write in and berate a broadcasting company for "sticking pins in the baby to make it cry." Miss Cox cries into a pillow. That seems to be the only way she can do her imitation properly. She takes her profession as a "joke," but not the money she earns. Brown haired and slender she was born in Parkersburg, W. Va., but dropped her southern accent for dramatic reasons in a Cleveland orphanage, and still assists at a New England girls' camp during the summer. She lives in New York.

government asked the Supreme court today for a rehearing on its decision given to processors the $200,000,000 impounded by injunctions, ruled on last Monday, the impounded taxes were ordered returned on the grounds they were unconstitutional in the first place.
In the case of Louisiana rice mill suits against AAA taxes.
The request for a new hearing was based on the "pay first and litigate later" principal which the court had apparently rejected in its decision. Taxes in question had never reached the treasury. The Government's brief did not attack the court's opinion but asked for a clarification. It was contended the ruling contradicted an earlier one in a similar case.
The court had held that injunctions to stop collection of process in taxes were valid despite a federal law against such injunctions because these collections were not legal taxes but "exactions" improperly called taxes.

BUYS LAND FOR STATE FOREST
Tract in Johnston County to Be Used For Nursery
Raleigh, Jan. 20.—Purchase of a tract of land totaling 63 acres with an option and an additional 33 acres to provide for a greatly needed expansion of the State Forest Nursery on Highway 70 two miles west of Clayton in Johnston county was announced today by R. Bruce Etheridge, director of the Department of Conservation and Development.
The property, known as the Horne farm, is immediately across the highway from the State Forest Nursery and will be developed in conjunction with the present plant under the immediate supervision of State Forester J. S. Holmes.
Although the largest crop of planting stock some $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 seedlings, was produced last year at the nursery, Mr. Etheridge said.

ridge explaine dthat preparations are being made to meet an anticipated tremendously expanded reforestation program for the future in North Carolina.
According to plans submitted by State Forester Holmes, possession of the facilities for expansion of the nursery is particularly advantageous at this time because of the availability of assistance in development from the emergency conservation work program. A side Civilian Conservation Camp is already established at the nursery and it is the plan of the conservation officials to request the continuation and enlargement of this unit for expanding operations to the new property.
