German Dictator Behind Italo-German Exchanges

AGENTS CONFER ON SITUATION

German Ambassador to Italy Visits Hitler and Returns to Italy with Report

Rome, Feb. 20.—(Copyright by The Associated Press)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler rather than Premier Mussolini is taking the initiative in the Italo-German diplomatic exchanges, authoritative German circles said today, in an effort to bring about a complete rapprochement.

Ulrich Von Hassell, German Ambassador to Italy, went to Munich last week, had a long conversation with Hitler and then returned to Rome and requested an audience with ulgio Suviich, Italian under-secretary for foreign affairs, these sources disclosed.

Suviich returned to Rome today to report to Premier Mussolini personally on the progress of the negotiations.

Spokesmen for German quarters said Hitler had realized the Reich was isolated in Europe by the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance military conversations.

He realized that Italy also was isolated by operations of sanctions being applied by the League of Nations as punishment for the Fascist warfare in Ethiopia, the source said.

Consequently, it was asserted the two dictators are now exchanging views on fundamental questions such as the League of Nations, the Franco-Soviet pact and Austria.

Rome diplomatic sources said they regarded proposals for an Italo-German accord as a particularly effective weapon against the sanctions being imposed on Italy by the League of Nations.

Members of Crew Die When Boat in Which They Were Returning to Their Ship Capsizes

Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Four members of the crew of the American freighter Chippewa, were drowned early this morning when a small boat in which they were returning to their ship from Southport capsized.

A fifth person in the boat was rescued by the Captain of the crew of the yacht Altair, anchored in Southport harbor.

The bodies of the dead had not been recovered late this morning.

An overloaded boat was described as the cause of the accident.

Angier Officers To Go On Trial On
Charge of Murder

Lillington, Feb. 20.—(AP)—A special venire of 50 talesmen was summoned for Harnett County Superior court here this afternoon when the trial of Oris M. Pollard and C. F. Deans, former Angier policemen, charged with murder in connection with the death of P. G. Collins, wealthy farmer, was scheduled to start.

Solicitor C. C. Cannady has announced that he will seek a verdict of second degree murder.

N. C. STILL HAS APPLICATIONS
FOR $30,000,000 IN PWA WORK

Chapel Hill, Feb. 20.—Despite the fact that all appropriations allotted to PWA have been exhausted, according to announcement from Washington, North Carolina's state and local governments still have applications pending for projects which would cost at total of $29,855,733. Dr. Herman G. Baily, State PWA Director, revealed today after making a survey.

"While none of these unallotted projects may ever reach realization because of lack of appropriations, every one is being examined so that in event further funds are made available, construction could begin promptly," Dr. Baily said.

Steel equal to the total United States tonnage for the first five months of 1935 is required in the construction of the Colorado river aqueduct, the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California has announced.

UNDERGROUND GAS EXPLOSIONS TERRIFY UTICA

Here's where the gas explosions started in downtown Utica, N. Y., that caused complete evacuation of the business section as the underground flames spread. The arrow points to a manhole cover which was blown at least five stories into the air. Police and firemen risked their lives removing covers from other manholes to relieve the pressure. Two persons were hurt and several large plate glass windows were shattered by the explosions. A truck is seen plowing through a cloud of gas smoke pouring from a manhole. (Associated Press Photo)

NOTED LAWYER
DESERTS CASE

Leibowitz Indicates Thinks Hauptmann is Guilty

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20.—(Copyright by The Associated Press)—A dramatic announcement by Attorney Samuel S. Leibowitz strongly indicating he believed Bruno Richard Hauptmann is guilty of the Lindbergh baby kidnap-slaying appeared today to have virtually blasted the convicted man's hope of escaping death in the electric chair.

"Hauptmann," Leibowitz said, "understands very clearly that his last card has been played and he has lost."

Hauptmann's date of execution was set yesterday for the week of March 30.

The New York attorney, who had consented to aid Hauptmann, if the convicted kidnap-slayer would "tell the whole truth," withdrew from the case last night.

In the eight days that Leibowitz had investigated the case, he had subjected Hauptmann to several periods of questioning so intensive that at least once the convicted man broke into tears.

But, although Hauptmann steadfastly refused to confess any part in the crime, Leibowitz, severing his connection with the case, asserted:

"His only salvation as matters stand now, lies in his making a clean breast of whatever guilty part he may have had in the crime."

"He understands that at the present moment there is not available that newly discovered evidence which the law demands before any court of this state will grant him a new trial."

Apprentice Seamen
Quota Now Enlisted

Information has been received from the Main Station at Raleigh that the February quota of Apprentice Seamen have been enlisted and the New Bern station furnished the following named men:

Paul C. Stroud, Linwood E. Huntington, James E. Warner of Washington; Zebulon V. Wheaton, Jr., Mesic; Robert D. Taylor, Walstonburg.

This station is furnishing on an average of six men a month for the Navy as Apprentice Seamen.

Greenville Schools
To Change Schedule

With more bad weather predicted for several days, J. H. Rose, superintendent of Greenville schools, announced today the various units would return to the bad weather schedule.

The schedule was put in operation some time ago during extremely bad weather and reports from parents of school children indicated the plan was a popular one. As the weather cleared up, however, the new schedule was abandoned.

Under the bad weather schedule all students are required to carry their lunch to school and the noon recess is only long enough for them to eat it and get a little relaxation from their studies. Children are kept indoors until parents come for them.

Ousted Highway Commissioner Returns to Office, Presumably to Reclaim His Lost Post

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Ben M. Sawyer, chief state highway commissioner and principal target of Governor Olin Johnston's fight, returned to his office shortly after 9 a. m. today.

He went to the highway office, presumably to reclaim his office, after a circuit court order last week declared Governor Johnston's suspension of him invalid and restrained the governor from further efforts to oust him.

The chief commissioner made his appearance only a few hours after a temporary road administration set up by the legislature at an extra session in December had passed out of existence.

Japan Suggestion
Of Border Group
Denied By Soviets

Announcement of Refusal Made Known by Official Russian Government News Organ

Moscow, Feb. 20.—Japanese suggestions for establishment of a mixed commission to fix the Soviet-Manchukuan frontier, were rejected today in an official announcement made public by Izvestia, the Russian government's organ.

The announcement said the boundary between the Soviet Far-Eastern territory and the Japanese-sponsored state of Manchukuo was already fixed by treaty.

He suggested in turn that Manchukuo and Japanese military authorities withdraw White Russian agents allegedly sent into Soviet territory as spies and terrorists.

The recent campaigns of some of the agents, the announcement said, established proof that they received arms and money from Manchukuo and Japanese military authorities in Manchukuo.

Public Cooperates
With Highway Patrol

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Feb. 20.—The public is continuing to cooperate with the State Highway Patrol in its efforts to reduce careless and reckless driving by reporting the license numbers of cars observed violating some of the motor vehicle laws, Captain Charles D. Farmer said today.

Hardly a day passes that he does not receive letters from drivers reporting the license number of cars whose drivers have violated some laws, especially reckless and careless driving, Captain Farmer said.

None of this information is used in making arrests, but a letter is written to the owner of each car observed and reported, telling him that he was reported and describing the offense and the place where it occurred and asking him to be more careful in the future.

Hauptmann Said To Have Shivered And Lost His Voice, But No Tears Shed

(Copyright by Associated Press) Trenton, N. J., Feb. 20.—(AP)—The electric chair in which Bruno Richard Hauptmann has been condemned to die the week of March 30 was shown to him in a dramatic episode in the death house yesterday, it was learned today.

Hauptmann peered into the death chamber during the interview with Samuel S. Leibowitz, New York attorney, and C. Lloyd Fisher, chief counsel.

"Hauptmann was like a caged animal," said a person who was present at the interview.

"During the interview Leibowitz insisted that the wire screen be removed from behind Hauptmann's cell. When this was done Hauptmann could reach through the bars and touch the screen door leading into the execution chamber, and by extending his hand could touch the little peephole in the door."

"Leibowitz opened the peephole and Hauptmann looked through it. He stared at the electric chair for a minute and blanched. He shivered and sighed and lost his voice temporarily, but no tears came to his eyes."

CHIEFS TO GO
TOBACCO MEET

Governor Ehringhaus and Others to Attend Conference

Raleigh, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus today telegraphed Gov. George C. Peery of Virginia, that he and Attorney General A. F. Seawell will attend a conference on tobacco control state compacts in Washington Tuesday.

"I will be happy to attend the conference as suggested and give thoughtful consideration to such suggestions as are made, Governor Ehringhaus said.

"I am tremendously interested in the present situation of the tobacco farmers and anxious to see some immediate steps taken to protect them against unfair prices."

Governor Ehringhaus said there probably would be some legislative representatives from North Carolina at the conference.

These 500 new school busses and bodies will cost between $400,000 and $500,000, depending upon the types purchased, Gaddy said, which is the amount the legislature appropriated for school bus replacements for next year. Since these 500 busses will be ready for delivery in July, they can be distributed to the various counties where they will be sent before the school term opens. A survey will be made at the close of the school year this spring to determine the needs of the various counties and to help the commission decide where the 500 new busses will be sent.

When CHORES ARE DONE BROTHERS DIG FOR GOLD

Lincolnton, Ga., Feb. 20.—(AP)—Earl and Alex Norman believe in diversification of farming interests so they turned to gold mining as a sideline—profitably.

When the usual chores of agriculture do not demand their energies, they dig gold, right on the edge of the farmplace.

Tar River Here Reaches
Highest Mark In Years

Temperatures Remain Below Normal with More Snow Here

The Tar river here probably will reach 18 feet either late today or tomorrow, the stream standing at 17.5 feet this morning and still rising.

Should the stream reach 18 feet a new record will be set for several years. The highest mark the river has reached this winter was 17.7 feet. This mark, a record at the time for several years, was reached several weeks ago.

H. T. Clark, in charge of the local weather bureau here, said the river was still rising in Tarboro and that a rise was assured here for 24 hours after it reached its crest there.

Although the stream has gone out of its banks here, no material damage has resulted from the overflow.

The temperature here remains below normal, the mercury standing at 31 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning. The lowest mark reached during the 24 hours ending at that time was 24 degrees.

With another snow starting early this morning, the record number for this section for any one winter was increased. The snowfall was preceded by fine sleet mixed with some snow.

Mount Mitchell Road
Now Believed Assured

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, Feb. 20.—A free road up Mt. Mitchell is believed assured as a result of the action taken by the State Highway and Public Works Commission Wednesday, which authorized the appointment of a committee with full power to act to acquire either one of the present toll roads up the mountain or to build a new one.

A representative of the National Park Service is expected here either today or tomorrow to confer with this committee and to outline the type of plan which will be acceptable to the National Park Service, and the War Department, in order to insure the location of a Civilian Conservation Corps camp near Siepp's Gap.

Stock Issues Hit
Highest Levels in Past Five Years

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—A fresh buying scramble lifted many leading issues one dollar to $5.00 a share in the New York stock exchange today to the highest prices in five years.

Rails, motors and industrial specialties were in urgent demand. Utilities cast off their hesitancy which followed the TVA decision Monday and rose substantially.

Buying reached such proportions in the last hour that the ticker tape fell in arrears.

CLAIMS MADE
PAUL REDFERN
IS FOUND ALIVE

Newspaper Man Reports Finding Long Missing Aviator

SAYS SAVAGES HOLDING HIM

Father of Lost Aviator Says "We Are Ready to Bring Him Back at Any Cost"

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Alfred Harrod, reporter of the newspaper "Banner" of Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, claimed today that he had seen and talked to Paul Redfern, long-lost American flier, but Harrod's account was denied by Art Williams, former army flier who was reported to have piloted Harrod into the jungle.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Alfred Harrod, newspaper man of Paramaribo, declared today that he and Art Williams, American pilot, had found the long-missing Paul Redfern alive in Western Guiana.

The fliers said they were forced to leave Redfern in the hands of an Indian tribe which will not permit him to escape.

Harrod said Redfern was crippled as a result of the crash which on August 26, 1927, ended his attempt to make a solo flight from Brunswick, Ga., to Rio de Janeiro.

Harrod and Williams returned to civilization after a flight into the back country in an effort to locate the American. Their story tends to corroborate one told months ago by Tom Roth, German-American explorer.

Redfern, all three said, is the captain of a wild Indian tribe which holds him in awe because he came out of the skies, but who still not let him escape.

Harrod said Redfern's arms and legs were broken in the crash of his plane, but that medicine men had set the bone. He said Redfern walked with crutches.

ELDER REDFERN TURNS
PLANS TO RETURN HIS SON

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 20.—(AP)—A dry professorial "that's very fine," the first comment of Dr. Frederick Redfern on the reported finding of his missing aviator son, Paul, was quickly turned to plans to urge the government for his return.

Redfern, a professor at Benedict college here, said he had "never given up hope" and had received such reports that caused him to expect his son to be found, "since early this month."

Told the flier was safe, though crippled by a crash near the end of his Georgia to Brazil flight, the elder Redfern concentrated his thoughts and conversation on immediate means of freeing him from a savage Indian tribe reported to be holding him captive.

"We are ready to have him back at any cost," he said.

"We have the permission of the Brazilian government to go ahead now if he is on Brazilian territory. I don't know whether they would send troops to free him, but the Brazilian boundary commission now is working in that territory and we have been assured of its cooperation."

L. K. Rhinelanders,
Who Wed Negress,
Dies In New York

Death Claims Prominent Socialite Who Was Involved in Sensational Divorce in 1929

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—Leonard Kip Rhinelanders, member of a socially prominent family, involved in a sensational divorce case in 1929, died today of pneumonia at Long Beach, L. I.

He was 36 years old.

In 1929 Rhinelanders was granted a divorce decree in Las Vegas, Nev., from Alice Jones, whose testimony showed, was the daughter of a negro cab driver.

He was startled by the marriage, October 14, 1924. Rhinelanders, who had come into a fortune, then was 22 and his bride 23.

Two weeks after his marriage, Rhinelanders filed suit for annulment, charging his wife had concealed from him that she had some Negro blood.

A jury at White Plains, N. Y., in December, 1925, refused an acknowledgment on the ground that she had not deceived him.

Rhinelanders was reported to have offered his wife up to $250,000 if she would not contest the divorce action.

LOCALS ENTER BETHEL MEET

Basketball All-Star Tourney to Start Tonight

By R. O. MOYE

Four new all-star teams will make their appearance at the second invitational basketball tournament to be held in Bethel beginning tonight, and ending next Monday night. These teams are Edenton, Louisburg, New Bern and Goldsboro. The four other teams making the total of eight teams entered in the tournament will be teams who competed in Bethel's first invitational tournament last year.

Bethel, the winner of last year's tournament, will enter the tournament with almost the same team which it entered last year. Greenville, the finals runner-up will also enter with a strong team and has been considerably strengthened by the addition of Bo Farley and Reynolds May, former Duke stars.

In last year's tournament play Bethel earned the championship by defeating Washington all-stars 57-22 in the opening play, then defeating Williamson all-stars by the score of 41-40 and then defeating Greenville 37-36 in one of the most exciting games ever seen in this part of the state.

Greenville earned the right to play in last year's finals by reason of its victory over Belhaven in opening play 35-28, and in the semi-finals play against Aurora 40-38.

Due to the wide range of teams represented at this year's tournament, much interest is being shown as the time for play begins. Greenville in the opening play of the tournament will meet a team which it has not faced this season, and the same is true of the other pairings.

four commissions now dealing with some angle of textbook adoption or distribution. After many hearings of many textbook representatives, the committee will then draw up a multiple list of texts which it considers equally good for high school use. The Board of Education will then call for bids on all these texts, but is not required to award the contract to the highest bidder. It usually adopts the book of books which are most strongly recommended by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, who was formerly chairman of the State Textbook Commission and who now usually meets with the High School Textbook Committee and who is the only member of the State Board of Education who knows anything about textbooks.

Although it is conceded that the textbook publishers do not like the new system whereby the state adopts high school text books, and that they also do not like some features of the state rental textbook system, because they sell fewer books under both these plans, competition seems keen for these new adoptions. The textbook publishers formerly sold the high school textbooks direct to county and city school systems, with county and city superintendents selecting the books they wanted. This resulted in a lack of uniformity and in the sale of more books. Under this new system, the same books will be used in every high school in the state.

Athletic Council of State College Has Hands Tied

Effect of Graham Plan Already Felt, But Officials Agree Outlook Is Better for Next Year

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Feb. 20.—The effect of the "Graham Plan" for purifying athletics is already being felt here at State College and is already serving to retard progress, it was learned here today.

The athletic council met one day this week for the purpose of selecting one or two assistant coaches and an assistant manager. But after talking the situation over for several hours, the members of the council agreed that the outlook for next year was so uncertain that it would be better to postpone taking any action. So no action was taken.

"Since several of the members of the council pointed out that under the 'Graham Plan' State College has no way of knowing how many men it will have out for football next year or even whether it will have any football team at all, there was no use in employing any more coaches," one of those who attended the meeting remarked afterwards. "As a result, the council decided to take no action at all for the time being."

While the State College faculty voted to uphold President Frank P. Graham and the 'Graham Plan' largely through courtesy, it is understood that the athletic council has not been and is not now in favor of some of its stringent regulations, designed to prohibit subsidization of athletes. Many of the members of the council are reported to be convinced that the 'Graham Plan' goes too far in its efforts to purify college sports and that some of its provisions should be modified.

The conviction is growing both in State College circles and among alumni of both State College and of the Chapel Hill unit that the board of trustees of the Consolidated University is eventually going to have to take a hand in the situation, probably in its June meeting. Some feel that the only reason the board of trustees failed to act on the 'Graham Plan' in its recent meeting here was in the hope that if it passed the plan back to President Graham and the faculties of Carolina and State, they would modify it somewhat. But since they failed to modify the plan any, a good many are now convinced that the board of trustees will take charge of the situation.

I'VE LOST 40 POUNDS

They made me tired—all those slender women who were telling me not to eat potatoes and pastry and ice-cream! They ate the same things I did—yet they never gained a pound! But I fooled them! Knew something was wrong with my body, so I took 4 tablets a day containing a simple corrective for abnormal obesity prescribed by doctors the world over. Results were amazing. I didn't diet, exercise, or drain my system by taking drastic purgatives. But gradually excess fat disappeared. Today I'm trim and slender.

That, in brief, is what thousands of women who have reduced the Marmola way might well tell you if they had the chance. Would you like to learn their secret? Then buy a package of Marmola, read the simple directions, and start at once to get rid of that burdensome fat! Marmola is put up by one of the best known medical laboratories in America. Since 1907 men and women have purchased more than 20 million packages. Could any better recommendation be had? Start today! You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous reducing agent! Marmola is on sale by all dealers—from coast to coast!

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Wilfred Lawson, the actor, doesn't think much of American taxis, so he hops around on a bicycle, just as he does in his native London. The bicycle, which he kicks around considerably, is named after an English actress, but he declines to define her further than to say she is known both here and on Broadway.

Recently, after one of his expert performances in "Libel," Lawson accepted an invitation to a smart Mayfair party and, as usual, peddled happily out on his wheel.

Thinking him a stranger who had no business whizzing into her drive at that time of night, the hostess almost had him thrown out. She was somewhat bewildered to recognize her guest of honor.

Too, there is this situation which puzzles Burgess Meredith. More and more frequently he is reported this place and that after theater hours, leading the gay life and wending his way from one night spot to another.

Actually, says he, the moment he clears grease paint from his face he departs for his place in the country where he remains until curtain call next day. Someone, he thinks, may be trying to "build up" his reputation and then again he may have a double who unknown to him, likes to loiter in the lights. Meredith doesn't know which, but it's a trifle baffling.

This is how Caruso died, or what comes of teaching your cats to be smart.

Recently during the holidays a lady novelist arrived in Manhattan with a trained cat which was her constant companion. She called him Caruso because he sang so divinely. Caruso because he sang so divinely. One of Caruso's pet stunts was to leap through hoops. The novelist taught him, as a kitten, to leap through the ring of her arms. Later she got him some wooden hoops and let him jump every day.

After she arrived in Manhattan the novelist invited some friends to dinner. Caruso, of course, practically monopolized the conversation—until his mistress chanced to open their 28th story window. There was, unfortunately, a holly wreath in the window, but to Caruso it seemed merely another hoop. With a magnificent spring, he plunged through it and downward for 28 stories of space. To spectators on the street it was just an unfortunate incident, but in that room on the 28th floor it was a major Christmas tragedy.

The adolescent tendencies of adult actors are costing the Group Theatre some money. In the drama "Paradise Lost," Walter Coy plays an ex-Olympic champion reduced to selling mechanical toys. These toys are no trivial knick-knacks, each being a costly prize.

But between performances the actors fight over them so that half a dozen are destroyed weekly. That's why you don't see members of the cast rushing out into the street after matinee performances. They're all back stage playing with electric trains and jumping jacks.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine are two stars who have no regard for time while rehearsing new plays. I know they sometimes rehearse 10 hours at a stretch and, after the rest is dismissed, keep on for several hours more. Both are tireless workers.

WAGE FIGHTS FOR CONTRACT

Textbook Publishers Argue Before Commission

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, Feb. 20.—The scramble on the part of the textbook publishers to get their books adopted by the State High School Textbook committee, so as to be in line to get the state contract for high school English texts, is now under way here.

More than a score of high priced high pressure textbook salesmen, officers of publishing companies and special representatives have been here for several days waiting for the meeting of the High School Textbook Committee, which finally met yesterday to hear the merits of the various English texts lauded by the representatives of various publishers. Additional meetings will be held later.

This is the first step in the long, expensive and involved process of getting textbooks adopted in North Carolina. The publishers and their representatives first argue the merits of their books before the High School Textbook Committee—one of

Social and Personal

A. S. Ramby and Mrs. L. R. Meadows spent today at Atlantic Beach. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Brown and Miss Bessie Brown have returned from Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Flanagan and N. O. Warren left yesterday for a trip to Florida.

Sans Souci Club
Tuesday afternoon, February 18, the Sans Souci Book Club held a very enjoyable meeting at the home of Mrs. J. B. Kittrell, with Mrs. Kittrell and Mrs. L. C. Skinner joint hostesses.

After the general routine of business, Mrs. W. L. Hall gave a most enjoyable paper on "The Circus, a Miniature World." All had a feeling they had returned to the earl childhood days, gone to the circus, seen all the animals perform, the ladies in their spangled costumes, and ready to go home and tell every one about the circus.

Lively current events followed. A frozen salad course was served.

Leaves for Wake Forest
Mrs. Thurman Kitchin of Wake Forest, who was here yesterday to see her son, Thurman Kitchin, Jr., who has been ill in Pitt General Hospital, has returned home. Mr. Kitchin accompanied his mother to Wake Forest to spend several days.

Junior Woman's Club
The Junior Woman's Club will meet at 3:30 Friday afternoon at the Club House. Mrs. David Evans and Mrs. William Tyson will be hostesses. Mrs. Blotson of East Carolina Teachers College will give a talk on "Developing Children's Personalities."

Here For Funeral.
Among those here yesterday for the funeral of Miss Peggy Johnson were: J. I. Johnson, B. J. Johnson, Edwin Johnson and Julian Johnson, Timmons, S. C.; Mrs. Dolly Johnson, Lynchburg, S. C.; Quinton Lassiter, New Bern; Mrs. R. H. Strong and children, Vivian and Willie, Hamlet; Ira Godwin and B. L. Godwin, Lake City, S. C.; Blaney D. Johnson, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Bestie Improving.
Friends will be glad to learn that Mrs. Bestie is improving after several days illness at her home on Ninth street.

Miss Bridgers Improving.
Friends of little Miss Elizabeth Bridgers will be glad to know that she is improving after several days illness.

Miss Nellie Denny Hostess
On Tuesday afternoon, February 18th, the Round Table enjoyed one of the most delightful meetings of the year, when Miss Nellie Denny entertained at the home of Mrs. H. E. Austin.

The home was attractively decorated with pink roses and blooming pot plants.

Following greetings, the president, Mrs. Austin, presided over a short business session.

Mrs. J. E. Winslow read a list of books from which the library committee will select the club's annual gift to the Sheppard Memorial Library.

Mrs. T. A. Person and Mrs. W. B. Tighman gave interesting accounts of their recent trip to Florida.

Mrs. S. J. Everett read a brief outline of two courses of study for next year, on which the club will take action at the next meeting.

The program for the afternoon was most acceptably given by Mrs. C. T. Munford. Her subject, "Patriotic Shrines in New Jersey," took us through many thrilling and colorful scenes with Washington and his continental troops. Among the many shrines only a few may be mentioned here: Washington's headquarters at Morristown; Hospital Hut, Arnold's Tavern. The Campbell House where Alexander Hamilton courted Betty Schuyler; the Temple Wickes House, where she hid her favorite saddle horse for three days in her bed room; the Liddell Mill, where the meal for soldiers was ground; and Campbell Church, where the preacher preached with his pistol on the pulpit and a guard stationed at the door to give warning; and Nassau Hall at Princeton, perhaps the most outstanding of all.

Guests adding pleasure to the occasion were Mrs. G. F. Smith of Littleton, N. C.; Mrs. Wyatt Brown and Mrs. J. R. Gullidge.

The hostess, assisted by her little great-niece, Mary Elizabeth Austin and Mrs. L. L. Rives served a most delectable salad course with coffee and hot roasted nuts.

Social Calendar

THURSDAY
7:30 p. m.—The Presbyterian choir will meet for rehearsal at the home of Mrs. Lindsay Savage.

7:30 p. m.—St. Mary's Auxiliary will meet in the Parish House.

Troop 30 To Meet.
Troop No. 30 Boy Scouts will meet Friday at 7:30 p. m., at the Rotary Club. Corporal Jackson, highway patrolman, will speak on "Safety."

Improving.
Friends of Hoyt Minges will be glad to know that he is able to leave the hospital and is now at his home on Dickinson avenue.

Mrs. Vincent Ill
Friends of Mrs. W. C. Vincent will be sorry to learn that she is ill.

W. E. Tripp Hurt
William Earl Tripp, brother of Harvey Tripp, of this city, was painfully hurt about the face and head yesterday when a large pigeon house that he and others were endeavoring to load on a wagon at his farm on the north side of the river, fell and pinned Mr. Tripp's head and shoulders between it and the wagon. Those helping Mr. Tripp freed him and rushed him to the hospital here for medical attention. At the hospital his injuries were described as painful but probably not critical.

Baby Contest Ends Monday
The Eastern Star baby popularity contest will close Monday afternoon, February 24 at five o'clock. All votes must be placed by that time to be counted for the contestants. Members of the Eastern Star will be at Hill Horne's drug store from 4 until 5 o'clock Monday afternoon to place the final votes. The names of the winners and the final standings will be published later. The baby parade will form at the Methodist Church, going up Evans street to the court house, Thursday, February 27, at 3:30, the weather permitting. If the weather is bad a later date will be announced for the parade.

Male Chorus Here Friday
Tomorrow night the famous Russian male chorus, the Siberian Singers, will give at the College their concert which has been looked forward to for so long as the chief musical event of the season. Tickets were placed on sale this morning and will be on sale again tonight and tomorrow afternoon, so that season ticket-holders may get their seats marked off on the box sheet ahead of time, and others may secure tickets so they will not have to go early tomorrow night.

In addition to the folk and gypsy songs and religious music outlined yesterday and day before, their program will contain a "Song of India," "The Song of the Flea," and an impressive choral work from Rubinstein's opera "Demon."

"Night."

Ballard's X Road

Miss Laura Jane Allan of Greene county, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Austin Briley and Miss Mary Ross. Misses Mary Emma and Verna Joyner accompanied by Messrs. D. J. and Ralph Holloway, had supper with Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Bateman Sunday night.

Mrs. Ben Tripp and family, of near Kinston, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Nichols.

Friends of Mrs. George Crawford will be glad to learn that she is recovering nicely from an operation.

Mrs. I. U. Joyner and daughter, Verna, entertained a group of friends at a quilting party Monday afternoon.

Miss Maggie Tucker who is in Pitt General Hospital, is recovering nicely and is expected to come home Thursday.

Miss Lillie Tucker of Washington, D. C., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Nan Tucker.

Friends of little Eunice Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Little, will regret to learn that she is ill in Pitt General Hospital.

HOME SPECIALIST

PAULINE GORDON

Raleigh, Feb. 20.—Miss Pauline Gordon, extension specialist in home management at State College, has had a wide experience in teaching and social work.

Her 12 years of teaching include three years work in South Carolina mill homes. She organized the first classes in home economics for the adult schools of that state.

For five years she was head of the home economics department of Tennessee Polytechnic Institute at Cookeville, Tenn. Dr. Q. M. Smith, president of the institute, said to her: "She has rendered exceptional service in building up the department. She is an efficient teacher, a good disciplinarian and a satisfactory administrator."

A native of Kingstree, S. C., Miss Gordon first attended Winthrop college, then Iowa State College, where she majored in home economics education, and received her M. S. degree in 1927.

She came to N. C. State College on January 1, 1936, to take over the duties of Miss Helen Estabrook, who had resigned to become regional director of women's work with the Resettlement Administration.

Sophomore Class Entertains
The members of the Sophomore Class of the College were very gracious hostesses last night at a complimentary moving picture show when all other classes, and members of the staff were their guests. "Top Hat," with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, came to Greenville during the holidays when all College students, faculty and staff who do not live here, were out of town. They were doubtless disappointed in missing this picture that has the modern features that appeal to all young people of the day and the Sophomores decided they could not please their fellow students better than to give them the opportunity to see it. The crowded house was proof that they were happy in their choice of entertainment.

The officers of the class, the managers and the ushers, who were chosen from the class, were in evening dress, adding the party touch to the occasion.

The officers are as follows: President, Miss Margaret Bank, of Wilmington; Vice-President, Miss Mildred Edwards, of Hamlet; Secretary, Miss Mary Lyon Shotwell of Stovall; Treasurer, Miss Bertha J. Lang, of Farmville; Council Representative, Miss Elizabeth Cope-land, of Ahoskie.

The following girls were marshals: Misses Grace Freeman, Jimmie Cullens, Doris Memborn, Fannie Brewer, Sudie Williamson, Corabob Smith, Mae Johnson Eure, Eleanor Hardy, Margaret Pruette and Nita Lee Townsend.

The boys who were ushers were: Joe Braxton, Roy Barrow, Wesley Bankston, Chauncey Calfe, Frank Wooten and Francis Ferebee.

Will Rats Have a Monument?
The Science Club of East Carolina Teachers College met Tuesday night. Current topics were presented by Miss Margaret Martin as follows:

Ten tons of dahlia sugar can be grown to the acre; this yield is as good as that of sugar beets, besides it is nearly twice as sweet as cane sugar. A double profit can be found here—that of the flowers and the sugar.

A fly market? Yes! Flies which hover mushroom beds are row being marketed. A suction fan causing them to pass over refrigerating coils in such a way as to chill them dormant, then drop into large cans and shipped to frog raisers where they are immersed in a brine solution which chills the flies and again renders them dormant. In that condition they are fed to the frogs. The mushroom grower's sale of flies amounts to as much as mushrooms.

Usually people think of rats as never having been an aid to man. Being subject to many diseases to those of man, particularly diseases caused by dietary deficiencies, rats have been put to good use during the past 25 years. The fact that they'll eat anything any other animal will, has made them especially valuable for research in diet and disease. Possibly the service rendered by rats through control of human diseases will eventually pay for all the damages they've done in the past. Who knows but what a monument to rats might some day be erected?

Hyatt Forrest gave an interesting talk on "Heat in Everyday Life." It included a good definition of heat, methods of measuring and transmitting heat. Sun, fuels, food and electricity are the sources; conservation of heat takes place in the insulation of heat; clothing and prevention of loss of heat from pipes are examples. Another way to conserve it is to prevent spent gases in industry from wasting heat.

LET'S DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT NOW

A report published in this morning's News and Observer, quoting Homer B.
Mask, regional director of the Resettlement Administration, as saying that there are approximately 150 Pitt County families living in tobacco barns and similar hovels, should prompt our people to a full investigation of the matter and speedy steps to remedy any conditions of this kind existing in this county. While County Welfare Officer K.
T. Futrelle today expressed the belief that the figures
were greatly exaggerated,
he did state that to his knowledge some such cases existed in this county and expressed the opinion that the number of such cases might reach nearly half the 150 reported in this morn-ing's news story. Even the known number of cases are just that many more than should exist, and a county as well off as a whole as Pitt County is at this time,
should not let such conditions continue.

The burden of relief, we believe, should rest with each individual community
and if these conditions exist in Pitt County at this time it is certainly up to the people of our county to do something about them now.
To permit such conditions
as these to exist is a blot on this or any other community.

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: Although Roger Bassington-French has cleared himself in the murder of Alan Cavill, Dr. Nicholson has not.
Now Roger's brother, Henry Bas-sington-French, has consented to go to Dr. Nicholson's drug store for treatment and Roger and Frankie have tried to persuade Henry's wife Sylvia that this would not be quite the thing, without explaining their suspicion. And she has refused to change the plan, and left them, obviously in a huff.

Chapter 31.

ROGER looked at Frankie. "This is a bit awkward," he said.

"Very awkward indeed."

"Once Sylvia has made her mind up she can be obstinate as the devil."

"What are we going to do?"

They sat down again on the garden seat and went into the matter carefully. Roger agreed with Frankie that to tell the whole story to Sylvia would be a mistake. The best plan, in his opinion, would be to tackle
the Doctor.

"But what are you going to say exactly?"

"I don't know that I shall say much —but I shall hint a good deal. At any rate, I agree with you about one and Dr. Nicholson came hurrying along the terrace.

"Here's the Doctor," said Sylvia.

"He's just come. Has—has anything happened to Henry?"

Then she saw the sprawling figure
and uttered a cry.

Rogers stepped quickly out again through the window, and Dr. Nicholson thrust Sylvia into his arms.

"Take her away," he said briefly.

"Look after her. Give her some brandy if she'll take it. Don't let her see more than you can help."

He himself stepped through the window and joined Frankie.

He shook his head slowly. "This is a tragic business," he said. "Poor fellow. So he felt he couldn't face the music. Too bad. Too bad."

He bent over the body, then straightened himself up again.

"Nothing to be done. Death must have been instantaneous. I wonder if he wrote something first. They usually do."

Frankie advanced till she stood beside them. A piece of paper with a few scrawled words on it, evidently freshly written, lay at Bas-sington-French's elbow. Their purport was clear enough.

I feel this is the best way out (Henry Bassington-French had written). This fatal habit has taken too great a hold on me for me to fight it now. Want to do the best I

Roger struck the glass a heavy blow.

thing—Henry mustn't go to the Grange. Even if we come right out in the open, we've got to stop that."

"We give the whole show away if we do," Frankie reminded him.

"I know. That's why we've got to try everything else first. Curse Sylvia, why must she turn obstinate just at this minute?"

"It shows the power of the man,"
Frankie said.

"Yes. You know, it inclines me to believe that, evidence or no evidence, you may be right about him
after all. What's that?"

They both sprang up.

"It sounded like a shot," said
Frankie. "From the house."

They looked at each other, then raced towards the building. They went in by the French window of the drawing-room and passed through into the hall. Sylvia Bassington-French was standing there, her face
white as paper.

"Did you hear?" she said. "It was a shot—from Henry's study."

She swayed, and Roger put an arm around her to steady her.
Frankie went to the study door and turned the handle.

"It's locked," she said.

"The window," said Roger.

He deposited Sylvia, who was in a half-fainting condition, on a convenient settee and raced out again
through the drawing-room, Frankie on his heels.

They went round the house till
they came to the study window.
It was closed but they put their faces close to the glass and peered in. The sun was setting and there was not much light—but they could see plainly enough.

HENRY BASSINGTON-
FRENCH was lying sprawled out across his desk. There was a bullet wound plainly visible in his temple, and a revolver lay on the floor where it had dropped from his hand.

"He's shot himself," said Frankie.
How ghastly.

"Stand back a little," said Roger.
"I'm going to break the window."

He wrapped his hand in his coat and struck the pane of glass a heavy blow that shattered it. Roger picked up the pieces carefully, then he and Frankie stepped into the room. As they did so, Mrs. Bassington-French underwrite the 1932 campaign and all they got in dividends was a New Deal they detest. It took them almost three years to get their bait back.

So GOP men in the money are holding off. They have agreed to finance Henry Fletcher's organization until June but they won't advance a nickel for political expedi-encies beyond that period. First they want to look over the candidate and the platform. Moreover, if they hold back, they will have more influence in naming the man and writing the planks. As a result the funds aren't flowing into the Barr building in the amount generally publicized.

The unexpressed reason for the filibuster is Senator Borah's candidacy. They're not going to dig deep and then discover that their investment was sour. That's the explanation for the insiders' hostility to the Senator from Idaho right
now. He's making it hard to collect.

sharp reaction has set in after the peak attack by Al Smith late in January. Future shifts of public sentiment may force a modification of the present program but it is un-

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

POINTED: Settlement of the New York garment workers' dispute last week without a strike was one of the most remarkable achievements of recent years in the field of labor relations. The unions were all set for a walkout and if either side had been stubborn about reaching an agreement there would have been a clash of major proportions.

But the manufacturers were reasonable because the industry is effectively unionized and a strike now would have paralyzed them at the height of their most profitable season. The labor leaders were reasonable because they found they could get most of what they wanted without a fight. The net result of the settlement—balled down—is that the workers will earn more and retail customers will absorb the difference.

So the permanence of the solution depends largely on the willingness of women to pay more for dresses. If they balk the whole argument will be repented. The relation between labor's interest and the consumer's interest has seldom been more clearly pointed.

IMPETUS: Here's another important angle. The settlement was a big feather in the cap of president David Dubinsky of the International Ladies' Garment
Workers Union. Dubinsky is a

He has now given a striking demonstration of the power of a well integrated industrial union in ac-

his victory is likely to have a pro-

other industries.

Coming on the heels of the Uni-

give impetus to the final collision between the Federation old guard and the industrial union promoters.

FORMULA: The food processing industry wishes to pite the administration and Congress would make up their minds about the reenactment of processing taxes in a new form. They cannot plan for the future until this matter is settled. The taxes themselves were bad enough but the uncertainty is worse.

The food makers especially resented one aspect of the AAA legislation which they felt was entirely unjust—although they never mentioned it out loud. The privately claimed that the money they were shelling out without any return to themselves was being transmuted through farm benefit payments into handsome profits for mail order stores and agricultural equipment manufacturers. Their complaint was that the latter industries should have shared the burdens from which they were reaping the impense. But of course it would never have done to give the impression of ill-feeling between industries when a conservative business was trying to unite in a common cause.

You rarely hear of labor wrangles
in the food industry. Federation of Labor organizers have been unable to make much headway among such companies—not that they haven't tried. Leaders in the industry figure they have the right formula to prevent closed shop agitation. They contend that by paying wages well above the union scale they eliminate the inducement to their workers to pay union dues.

SURGE: New York got a chuckle
out of Herbert Hoover's appearance in a California court on behalf of Stanford University's application for permission to buy stocks for investment. But behind the amusement is recognition of an important investment trend—exemplified by Stanford's problems. Endowed educational, religious and charitable institutions are all up against the same grief—persistent depletion of income. For years such institutions have figured on a definite yield from their capital and have been able to get it—along with reasonable safety of principal—in high grade federal, state, municipal and industrial bonds.

The administration's cheap money policy has changed all that.
Bond issue after bond issue—both private and public—has been refunded at lower rates. Consequently the yield from bond investments is continuously shrinking and there is no reversal of this tendency in sight.

Most institutions had to scrape to make ends meet before the shrinkage set in. Naturally they cast a yearning eye on seasoned stocks, which offer a chance of capital appreciation as well as a higher rate of return. This means sacrificing traditional standards of investment conservatism—but informed sources predict the pressure to do so will gradually become irresistible. Then there will be one more important capital element joining in the surge of stock buying and accentuating the trend we have mentioned here for the demand for stocks to outrun supply.

DISSENSION: The argument between Governor Lehman and the New York State legislature about the governor's anti-crime program cuts deep. Many Democrats as well as Republicans are sore at Lehman's intimations that "sinister influences" blocked enactment of his bills. Anti-Roosevelt Democrats will seize the opportunity to foment bitterness against Roosevelt-Lehman-Farley hookup that controls the party organization in the state.

On the other hand, many Republicans are critical of their party's representatives in the legislature for laying themselves open to the charge of leaving criminals too good a break. Seeds of strenuous inter-party dissension are likely to sprout
in both parties.

the private Lucky Strike process, "IT'S higher temperatures consists of four main

then, this method of preheating at higher temperatures constitutes a completion or ful-

REGARD HOEY LEADING MAN

Raleigh Circles Give Shelby Candidate First Place

By J. C. BASKERVILL.
Raleigh, Feb. 20.—Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby is still regarded as the leading candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor in many political circles here, where it is contended that neither "Sandy" Graham, "Doc" McDonald nor John A. McRae can possibly garner enough votes to force ahead of the long-haired, frock-coated orator from Cleveland county who has been going up and down the state for 25 years or more preaching the gospel of Democracy and holding the "brethren" in line for the Democratic party.

It is also pointed out that in primaries, many more Democratic votes are cast in the close Piedmont and Western North Carolina counties than in the almost solidly Democratic eastern counties, with the result that the Piedmont and Western counties are ones which nominate and elect Governors and Senators, and not the eastern ones.

"Graham and McDonald can carry almost every county in the east and Hoey can still win the nomination," one observer pointed out here today. "For there are single precincts in Charlotte, Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Durham and even Asheville containing more Democratic votes than some of the eastern counties. It is also true that in the middle and western counties, the Democrats enter on one candidate and stick with him, while in the eastern counties they are usually split up between the various candidates, with the result that the Democratic votes in the Piedmont and western part of the state are more effective. The western counties were the ones which nominated Morrison, McLean and Ehringhaus and now they will in all probability nominate Hoey."

A large number of the old-time politicians here are in almost complete agreement with this point of view and maintain that with the field split between four candidates, and with the strength which Hoey is said to have already in the Piedmont and West, there is nothing that can keep him from being first man in the first primary. These same forecasters point out that if Hoey is the leading candidate in the first primary, he will continue to hold that position in the second, since the very fact that he was high man in the first will attract the band-wagon jumpers who always want to be on the winning side. Accordingly this group maintains that if Hoey is high man in the first primary he will also be certain to be high man in the second primary and thus win the nomination. Furthermore, the opinion prevails that the "Democratic Machine," that mythical piece of political mechanism referred to in every political campaign, is supporting Hoey and that the "machine" has never been defeated, although the more candid political observers here are convinced that if such a thing as a "Democratic Machine" ever existed, it certainly does not exist now.

The Graham and McDonald supporters, however, do not agree at all with this reasoning on the part of Hoey backers, except that they do admit that in most primaries, the Piedmont and western Democrats out-vote the Democrats in the solid eastern counties. But both the Graham and McDonald backers maintain that the biggest fairy tale of the campaign so far is that the Democrats in the middle and western counties are going to vote solidly for Hoey. The Graham forces already maintain that in numerous western and Piedmont counties Graham will get more votes than Hoey, while the McDonald followers also maintain that the Winston-Salem college professor from Illinois is also going to garner more votes in the west. Both of these groups point out that when Morrison and McLean are nominated, the powerful Aus Watts "machine" was functioning in the west, also that the factor that carried the west for Ehringhaus was the powerful influence of O. Max Gardner, that at the present time the Gardner-Ehringhaus influence is more mythical than real and will be unable to swing the Piedmont and west into line behind Hoey.

And even if Hoey should be in first place in the first primary—and many of the Graham, McDonald and McRae followers privately admit he probably will be high man in the first go-round—this does not mean Hoey will win in the second primary, it is maintained. The Graham supporters are confident that if he can win second place and hence fight it out with Hoey in the second primary, that Graham will win the nomination. For they believe the McDonald supporters will vote for Graham rather than Hoey because of the extremes of political thought they represent. The McDonald backers likewise believe that if Graham is eliminated, as they think he will be, and the second race between the ex-college professor and the Shelby orator, that McDonald will win.

Group Makes Plea for Free Highway to Mount Mitchell

Raleigh, Feb. 19.—Another request for the immediate construction of a free state highway to the top of Mount Mitchell so that the people of western North Carolina and the hundreds of thousands of tourists visiting that section may drive to the top of this highest peak in eastern America without having to pay exorbitant tolls to travel over poorly maintained and privately-owned toll roads, was presented by the State Highway and Public Works Commission here today.

The request was presented by a special committee of the Board of Conservation and Development composed of Director R. Bruce Etheridge of the department and J. A. Horne, Jr., of Rocky Mount; Joseph P. Rawley of High Point; J. Q. Gilkey of Marion and by a special delegation from Asheville.

The Department of Conservation and Development is interested in having this free road built for two reasons, it was pointed out. First, because it believes the state should provide free access by a free, state-maintained highway to the top of the highest mountain east of the Rocky Mountains, so that the hundreds of thousands of visitors which now go to western North Carolina every year, may visit this most famed of North Carolina's peaks. Second, because the state owns 1,200 acres on the summit of Mount Mitchell, which has been designated as Mt. Mitchell State Park and placed under the administration of the Department of Conservation.

Number Of Cattle on Farms in State Shown on Increase

Number of Swine on Tar Heel Farms Also Show Increase at Present Compared with 1930

Raleigh, Feb. 20.—A 25 per cent increase in the number of cattle on North Carolina farms from April 1, 1930, to January 1, 1935, was reported here today.

The increase was from 532,631 to 664,266 head of cattle, according to figures supplied Earl H. Hostetler, in charge of animal husbandry research at State College, by the federal bureau of the census.

The number of swine increased from 838,994 to 947,143, he said, but the number of sheep fell off from 146,285 to 77,044 or almost 50 per cent.

Cattle was reported on 210,537 North Carolina farms last year as compared with 161,432 farms in '30. The number of farms on which there were cattle jumped from 57.7 to 70 per cent of all farms in the State.

Due to a lower value per head, the value of all cattle last year was $14,435,056, while in 1930, despite the fewer number, the value of cattle over three months old was $23,483,726.

Hogs were found on 198,980 farms last year as compared with 174,911 in 1930. But in spite of the increase in numbers, the total value of hogs dropped from $7,325,446 to $6,535,287.

The decrease in sheep was accounted for more by a decrease in herd size rather than in the number of farms on which sheep were being raised. Sheep were listed on 5,770 farms last year and on 6,288 farms five years before.

The drop from $1,022,860 to $288,915 in the value of all sheep was attributed both to the great decrease in number and to the lower value per head, Hostetler stated.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, Feb. 20.—(AP)—The stock market lost the best part of its punch today and turned irregular following a brief spell when rail shares braced the entire list.

Carriers were firm for the most part and higher prices stood out here and there among the steels, motors and a fairly representative group of industrial specialties.

Power company shares were steady but gains were limited. There were, however, enough losses here and elsewhere to stamp the market as irregular.

The late tone was firm. Sales aggregated 3,300,000 shares.

Talks To Parents

TRUTH AS A HABIT
By Brooke Peters Church

"What is truth?" It seems a simple enough word to define. One might think it one of the absolute virtues of life. And yet, if everyone reviewed his statements of only one day, he probably would find half a dozen occasions where he himself had not been strictly accurate, and might have been accused by a captious listener of at least distorting facts.

The after dinner speaker who emboldens his story to make it more telling, the habitual exaggerator who says dozens or hundreds where he means 12 or 100, the tired woman who needs a rest and leaves no word with the maid that she is out, the polite hostess who pretends to a cordiality which she does not feel, none of these is strictly truthful. No one, however, would accuse them of lying. These are the accepted evasions of life.

Let a little child, however, make a false statement, however innocent, and at once these same adults probably will get stirred up over his "lying" and try to make him see where his inaccuracy is bound to lead to disaster.

Such indiscriminating condemnation of a child's misstatements is both unjust and unwise. Honesty

Mother in Battle For 'Own Thinking'

Denied custody of her small son and daughter because of her alleged atheistic and communistic beliefs, Mrs. Mabel Eaton, 37, of Bloomfield, N. J., hopes to make a high court test of "a mother's right to do her own thinking." (Associated Press Photo)

SALLY BY THE SAD, SAD SEA

Musically the waves lap the sand, the little birds sing and Sally Rand, the fan dancer, sans fan and with no more theatrical attire than a bathing suit and a veil, lets loose with a little non-professional dance exuberance on the beach at St. Petersburg, Fla. (Associated Press Photo) in word is not natural to mankind but must be taught, like all good habits. The child starts with no inborn desire to tell things just as they are. He too wants to tell a good story, to avoid hurting others, to attract attention by his statements. Some times his imagination is so vivid that he actually cannot distinguish between fact and fiction.

Only slowly and patiently can he be brought to see what truth is. For the evil of lies is not in the lie itself, but in the intention behind it, and in the habit of inaccuracy which chronic misstatement and over-statement produce.

Such indiscriminating condemnation of a child's misstatements is both unjust and unwise. Honesty

NUTRITION FUNDAMENTALS
The modern diet, while usually adequate as far as caloric intake is concerned, is deficient in the protective foods, or those rich in minerals and vitamins. It is difficult to estimate how much mankind would gain in well-being and freedom from disease by eating an adequate diet.

Among the so-called protective foods, the most important are milk and milk products, eggs and glandular tissues. The latter include liver, kidney, brain, sweetbread and fry. Green leafy vegetables, fruit, fat fish and meat are also to be included among the protective foods. Sugar and milled cereals which bulk too large in the American dietary have little or no protective power and are essentially energy-bearing foods.

The protective foods listed above contain calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamins A, B1, B2, C and D. Milk, whole or skimmed, is a rich source of calcium salts and phosphates, and of vitamins B1 and B2. Milk fat is an excellent source of vitamin A. Eggs contain vitamins A, B1, B2 and D and are rich in iron.

Our ordinary diets are usually in-
