BUILDINGS IN NEW YORK CITY HIT BY STRIKE

Elevator Men, Janitors and Other Employees Are Out

HOTEL WORKERS MAY WALK OUT

City Officials Called Into Conference By LaGuardia To Discuss Emergency

New York, March 2.—(AP)—Mayor LaGuardia today proclaimed an emergency existed in the building employees strike which spread rapidly throughout Manhattan residential and business sections.

New York, March 2.—(AP)—The paralyzing sweep of the New York Building Employees' strike spread throughout most of the city today although James J. Bambrick, strike leader, announced agreements rapidly were being signed with building owners for restoration of workers.

Elevator men, janitors and other employees were ordered out of all buildings north of Fourteenth street by Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employees Union. Shortly afterward, however, he announced that the Metropolitan Association of Building Owners, representing 110 apartment houses on Swan Park avenue and the upper West Side, had agreed to the union terms.

Men in those buildings went back to work at once, promised a two-dollar weekly increase, a closed shop and a 48 hour week.

By tonight, Bambrick declared, the strike would be extended to the Wall Street financial district, the only portion untouched by the morning walkout.

There was a sharp disagreement over the number of men who actually had left their jobs.

Bambrick asserted that before the end of the day 5,000 buildings would be affected with 75,000 men idle.

Department stores, as well as apartments and office buildings, he declared, would be without service.

William D. Rawlins, secretary of the realty advisory board, said a police estimate of 270 buildings affected on the upper West Side was "tremendously exaggerated" and that Bambrick's claim of 1,400 buildings already closed was "too impossible to mention."

Possibility of hotel workers joining the strike threatened.

City officials were called into conference by Mayor LaGuardia to discuss emergency measures for insuring health and safety of citizens.

John F. Crawford Claimed By Death at Home in County

GERMANY MAY PARTICIPATE

Ready to Negotiate Anglo-German Bi-Lateral Treaty

London, March 2.—(AP)—The Foreign office announced today that Germany has informed Great Britain she is prepared to negotiate an Anglo-German bi-lateral treaty on the basis of any agreement reached at the present four power naval conference.

The question of Germany's participation in the treaty sought by the United States-Great Britain, France and Italy has been one of the main bones of contention in the conference.

France consistently has opposed German participation while Great Britain has contended that for a naval treaty to be international in character Germany must be represented.

O. G. Rucker Named Weed Sales Manager

Mr. Rucker was an auctioneer in this city during the season of 1934, and during his stay here, accumulated numerous friends in Pitt and surrounding counties. His ability on tobacco culture has enabled him to progress each year in this field, and he has always been known to help the farmers who patronized the firm he was connected with in every possible manner.

Mr. Rucker urged all of his farmer friends to pay him a visit before the season opens as well as afterwards.

BUREAU HEADS HOLD SESSION

May Petition Governor to Call Extra Session

The executive committee of the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation met here this afternoon to discuss several matters including a resolution petitioning Governor E. B. Tamm to call a special session of the legislature to consider tobacco production control.

The meeting did not get underway until after three o'clock and the resolution was not taken up immediately.

County Agent, E. P. Arnold said today farmers in Eastern North Carolina were not "resolved to give their 1936 tobacco crop away regardless of what the state of Georgia does." Georgia spokesmen have said Governor Eugene Talmadge would not call a special session of the legislature to consider tobacco production control legislation. The proposed compact act is being blocked because of the action in that state, it is understood.

CLAIMS ITALY TO NEGOTIATE

Spokesman Says Domestic Economic Situation Worse

(Copyright By The Associated Press) Geneva, March 2.—(AP)—A Little Entente spokesman announced today receipt of information that Italy's domestic economic situation was growing increasingly worse under sanctions and that Premier Mussolini probably would be disposed to negotiate peace.

A necessity for exerting every effort to halt the Italian-Ethiopian war was dominating question of private conversations as the League of Nations sanctions committee of 18 assembled to take action on proposals for an extension of sanctions on Italy.

The spokesman for the Little Entente said information to Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania indicated pressure of the present arms, financial and economic sanctions on Italy made it likely that a peace "giving Italy satisfaction" would be accepted by Il Duce.

Pitt Farm Bureau Adds Members During Past Week

Membership For County Organization Boosted 450 Following Township Meeting Last Friday

With 500 members already having paid their dues, officials of the Pitt County Farm Bureau predicted today the membership would reach 1,000 by the middle of the month.

The new members were secured at various township meetings held throughout the county last Friday. In addition to the 450 who paid their fees, an additional several hundred pledged to join the Federation and pay their two dollars during the next 30 days.

The Pitt Bureau is one of the most active in the state. It was the first to organize, following the action of a state committee in deciding to organize farmers in the state under the Federation. Pitt farmers also have been instrumental in getting the state organization started. Headquarters for the North Carolina Federation are located in this city.

ORDER DENIES TELEGRAMS TO INVESTIGATORS

Restraining Order Forbids Western Union Reveal

LAWYR CHARGES ILLEGAL METH'DS

Attorney Acts as Committee Resumes Investigation Lobbying Activities

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—A court order temporarily restraining the Western Union Telegraph Company from supplying the Senate lobby committee with messages sent by his law firm was issued today after Silas H. Strawn charged the investigators with "illegal and unconstitutional methods."

The Chicago attorney is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and a member of the Republican finance committee.

He said a blanket order for his firm's telegrams amounted to a "fishing expedition." Jesse C. Adkins of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, granted the temporary injunction sought and set the case for hearing Tuesday. The enjoinder order will expire Monday.

Strawn acted as the committee resumed its investigations of activities directed last session against passage of the New Deal utility holding companies law.

Strawn said in a statement the firm had nothing to conceal but that he objected "to having our private affairs and those of our clients subjected to such unreasonable and unconstitutional search and seizure."

The statement said the Senate committee issued a subpoena on February 18 demanding copies of all telegrams sent and received by Strawn's firm from February 1, 1935 to December 1, 1935.

It said both the subpoena and the resolution setting up the committee were unconstitutional because they attempted to make "a general inquisitorial investigation and fishing expedition into the private affairs of business firms in the United States."

Upon re-opening his investigation Chairman Black (D-Ala.) of the lobby committee read a memorandum from the Western Union Company which said the Dominion Natural Gas Company, an Ontario corporation, spent $2,164 on telegrams against the utility bill.

NOTHING NEW DOUBLE CRIME

County and City Officers Continue Investigations

County and city officers reported today they had been unsuccessful so far in their efforts to identify the negro who fatally shot Alexander Warren and criminally attacked his companion, Miss Helen Phelps late Friday night.

Miss Phelps was released from Pitt General hospital Saturday afternoon after having undergone treatment for shock, nervousness and bruises.

Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst said today he had only a few meagre clues upon which to base his investigation. Miss Phelps was unable to give a comprehensive description of the negro.

Despite printed reports that posers were searching swamp lands for the negro, Sheriff Whitehurst said this was not the case and the investigations were being carried on quietly in an effort to link the double crime with the guilty person. No trace of the negro has been found since he was traced into town early Saturday morning. The crime took place about 11:45 Friday night.

Funeral services for Mr. Warren, 22, were held yesterday afternoon from Bethel Methodist church, followed by burial in Bethel cemetery.

LEADERS SEEK SELECT CHIEF

Japan Returning To Normalcy Following Rebellion

Tokyo, March 2.—(AP)—Three distinguished men, near victims of assassinations in Tokyo's short-lived army insurrection, met at the Imperial Palace today, with other leaders of the empire seeking a man brave and powerful enough to head the government.

Premier Keisuke Okada, whose place was taken by his brother-in-law, Prince Saionji, veteran elder statesman, who fled safely from an attack, and Count Makino, former lordkeeper of the privy seal whose escape unhurt from an attack on his villa, attended the council of state.

The Metropolitan Police Board announced that five policemen were killed and one wounded in the rebel attacks last Wednesday, four dying at the Premier's residence and one at Yuijwara, where he held the assassins at bay and permitted Count Makino to escape.

In addition to the five policemen who were killed in performance of their duty three rebels committed suicide. The wife of one rebel died with her husband.

The fate of the 21 surviving alleged leaders of the rebellion, understood to be held in a military prison, was still to be decided. They faced trial for murder and rebellion with special court under the present martial law empowered to act swiftly and decisively.

Banks and commodity exchanges reopened as the capital gradually returned to normal but the stock exchange in Tokyo and Osaka were still closed.

REFUSE RECONSIDER TVA

Washington, March 2.—(AP)—The Supreme Court today refused to reconsider its recent TVA decision.

Announcement was made in a list of "orders" handed newspaper men after delivery of opinions was complete. No reason was given.

Two Candidates Score Advocating Extra Session

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, March 2.—Two of the four candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor—Dr. McDonald and Lieutenant Governor Graham have scored a bull's eye hit within the last few days by advocating a special session of the general assembly to enact tobacco control legislation with a view to limiting the 1936 crop, also to enact social security legislation, according to many observers here.

This action by both Graham and McDonald is already meeting with strong approval in tobacco growing sections as well as in those sections largely dependent upon the spending power of the tobacco growers.

It is also being pointed out that so far Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby has had nothing to say whatever about the tobacco situation or a special session. The reason for the apparent unwillingness of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus to call a special session either for tobacco control legislation or social security is ascribed by many to the belief that such session might injure the chances of Hoey to win the nomination and that it might give an advantage to either Graham or Hoey.

ALERT: Amidst the oriental confusion which blankets the bloody work at Tokyo, one vivid fact of vast importance to the western world headlines confidential diplomatic advices from Nippon. The military are slowly losing the ascendancy which drove brown-skinned troops into Northern China and Japanese delegates from the disarmament debates at London.

The Selyukai (military) faction has lots of face with the Emperor and the people. His Majesty has secretly revealed his dislike for army-navy excesses which have embittered world sentiment and drained the treasury. In the elections preceding the assassinations the moderates (Minseito) overturned the Selyukai's control of the diet. Sea-S. Warren.

rational gains in industrial centers—burdened by taxation—broke the five-year grip of the siberianer. The "pudge" was their desperate resort. No matter what the immediate trend may be, the ultimate effect will be to lessen Japan's influence and threat in world affairs. Not a diplomat anywhere in the world was aware of the extent of underlying discontent, despite premonitory reports brought back by junketeering Congressmen and reported in Whirligig weeks ago. The "murder party" surprised and shocked our State Department and European chancelleries. But now their eyes—and ears—are open.

off that they will smother his investigation into alleged banker-looting of railroads unless he comes across with "the goods."

Though no crony of bankers or railroaders, Senator Couzens is the principal objector. He bluntly asked Mr. Wheeler what he had turned up during his preliminary inquiry.
The Montana Senator pleaded ignorance because of his absence from the country but volunteered to produce Max Lowenthal, chief investigator, for a quiz. Mr. Lowenthal was equally reticent, explaining that to publicize his findings would warn prospective victims. He said he had been blocked by destruction of evidence in several instances. The explanation did not satisfy Mr. Couzens.

Few days later Mr. Wheeler's hawks descended on the offices of railroad associations at Washington and Chicago. They demanded production of documents and correspondence but met defiance at both places. The incident has aroused senatorial suspicion that a "fishing expedition" is in the making.
It's up to Mr. Wheeler to make good in a hurry.

POTENT: Table talk at the famous Borah - Roosevelt luncheon which cracked political home-fires into a blue flame didn't touch on domestic issues, though both participants are content to let the impression get abroad that it did.
Mr. Borah requested and received an opportunity to discuss his parental pet question—European affairs in general and British intrigue in particular. The Senator has been seriously disturbed by signs of a gradual rapprochement between Washington and London.
He submitted evidence designed to show that Great Britain was using the U. S. as a continental cat's paw. Recalling his inside information of the near-war with Japan over Stimson's Manchukuo policy, and how 10 Downing Street ran out that time, the world's No. 1 isolationist counseled a hands-off attitude in Europe and the Orient.

Mr. Borah may not realize it—or care—but unwittingly he supplied the lockdown on the foreign policy issues he would raise if the ballot headlines a Borah-vs-Roosevelt act next fall. Nevertheless, his warning undoubtedly accounts for the administration's coolness toward 10 Downing Street's whisper of an Anglo - German - American naval "understanding."

INTRICATE: Bluff, breezy Jesse Jones can mesmerize the most hard boiled committee on Capitol Hill.
His frankness and story-telling disarm Republican critics.

GOP farm experts scented a dark plot in his bill to increase the capitalization of the Credit Commodity Corporation from 3 to 100 million dollars. But Mr. Jones explained that he simply wanted to preserve his reputation as a smart businessman inside or outside the government. It seems that his RFC supplied funds for the corporation's purchase of commodities it wanted to remove from the market. Current losses on cotton purchases amount to $32,000,000. Under the present bookkeeping system that would be charged to Mr. Jones. But an increase in capitalization would enable the CCC to square its debts to the Texan. Congress passed the bill.

Now some suspicious members are scratching their heads. They find that the CCC occurred almost $300,000,000 in debts on its three million capitalization. They suspect the new money will be used to booster the revised AAA program by storing up surpluses as the Hoover administration did under the defunct Federal Farm Board. And they don't want a repetition of that sort of investment, even to save Jesse's reputation.

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS: At last Bobby Jones and Frankie Bassington-French have solved the mystery of the murder of Roger Bassington-French. And they have him securely bound on the floor of his cottage in Chipping Soverton. But they do not know where Moira Nicholson is, and they do not have proof that will convict Roger before a jury. Roger is quietly leaping out of them from his uncomfortable position on the floor.

Chapter 40

MOIRA

Nobody had as yet evolved any plans. Bobby rather doubtfully murmured something about police.

"Much the best thing to do," said Roger cheerfully, "Ring them up and hand me over to them. The charge will be abduction, I suppose. I can't very well deny that." He looked at Frankie. "I shall plead a guilty passion."

Frankie reddened. "What about murder?" she asked.

"My dear, you haven't any evidence. Positively none. Think it over and you'll see you haven't."

"Badger," said Bobby, "you'd better stay here and keep an eye on him.
I'll go down and ring up the police."

"You'd better be careful," said Frankie. "We don't know how many of them there may be in the house."
"No one but me," said Roger. "I was carrying this through single-handed."

Bobby bent over and tested the knots.

"He's all right," he said. "Safe as houses. We'd better all go down together. We can lock the door."

"Terribly distrustful, aren't you, my dear chap?" said Roger. "There's a pistol in my pocket if you'd like it.
It may make you feel happier, and it's certainly no good to me in my present position."

Bobby bent down and extracted the weapon.

"Kind of you to mention it," he said. "If you want to know, it does make me feel happier."

Bobby took the candle and they filed out of the attic, leaving Roger lying on the floor. Bobby locked the door and put the key in his pocket.
He held the pistol in his hand.

"I'll go first," he said. "We've got to be quite sure and not make a mess of things now."

A rather rickety flight of steps led down to the main landing. Everything was quiet. Bobby looked over the banisters. The telephone was in the hall below.

"We'd better look into these rooms first," he said. "We don't want to be taken in the rear."

Badger hung open each door in turn. Of the four bedrooms, three were empty. In the fourth a slender

"It's Moira," cried Frankie.

The others crowded in. Moira was lying like one dead except that her scent moved up and down ever-so-slightly.

"She's drugged, I think," said Bobby.

She looked round. A hypodermic needle lay on a little enamel tray on a table near the window.

"She'll be all right, I think," she said. "But we ought to get a doctor."

"Let's go down and telephone," said Bobby.

They adjourned to the hall below.
They got through to the police station quite easily, but found a good deal of difficulty in explaining matters. The local police were highly disposed to regard the summons as a practical joke.

However, they were convinced at last, and Bobby replaced the receiver with a sigh. He had explained that they also wanted a doctor, and the police constable promised to bring one along.

TEN minutes later a car arrived with an inspector, a constable, and an elderly man who had his profession stamped all over him.

Bobby led the way to the attic—then stood dumbfounded in the doorway. In the middle of the floor was a heap of severed ropes. Underneath the broken skylight a chair had been placed on the bed which had been dragged out till it was under the skylight.

Of Roger Bassington-French there was no sign.

"He must have had a knife in his pocket," said Frankie.

"Even then, how could he get at it? Both hands were bound together behind his back."

The inspector coughed. All his former doubts had returned. He was more strongly disposed than ever to regard the whole thing as a hoax.

The doctor was their salvation. He declared at once that Moira had been drugged with morphia or some preparation of opium. He did not consider her condition serious and though she would awake naturally in four or five hours' time.

will be dirtier than even Farley expects. The General Hagood dismissal will be the foundation."

Informed political quarters hints that the removal of General Hagood is one move that will be hard for the Democrats to overcome.

This because it is believed that all military bodies—Army, Navy and Marines—will rally to the cause of the fighting general. "With military organizations lined up against the Roosevelt group it shouldn't be hard to beat him this year."

REBELS: The American Liberty League—by virtue of its name—is out to rally all military and public patriotic bodies to its support. A series of letters will be mailed to heads of such organizations. They will declare that the administration is a dictatorship. They will show that the War Department in letters signed by Chief of Staff General Craig and Secretary of War Dern—authorized General Hagood to talk as he pleased and since he did he was thrown out. The letters will also show how the administration—through Cabinet members—is fighting the Constitution.

He suggested taking her off then and there to a good nursing home in the neighborhood.

To this Bobby and Frankie agreed, not seeing what else could be done.
Having given their own names and addresses to the inspector, who appeared to disbelieve utterly in Frankie's, they themselves were allowed to leave Tudor Cottage, and with the assistance of the inspector, succeeded in gaining admission to the "Seven Stars" in the village.

Here, still feeling that they were regarded as criminals, they were only too thankful to go to their rooms, a double one for Bobby and Badger, and a very minute single one for Frankie.

A few minutes after they had all retired, a knock came on Bobby's door. It was Frankie.

"I've thought of something," she said. "If that fool of a police inspector persists in thinking that we made all this up at any rate I've got evidence that I was chloroformed."

"Have you? Where?"

"In the coal-bucket," said Frankie with decision.

EXHAUSTED by all her adventures, Frankie slept late the next morning. It was half-past ten when she came down to the small coffee-room to find Bobby waiting for her.

"Hallo, Frankie, here you are at last."

"Don't be so horribly vigorous, my dear," Frankie subsided onto a chair.

"It must be the sandbagging," said Bobby. "It's probably broken up ad-hesions in the brain. I feel absolutely full of pep and vim and bright ideas and a longing to dash out and do things."

"Well, why not dash?" said Frankie languidly.

"I have dashed. I've been with Inspector Hammond for the last half hour. We'll have to let it go as a practical joke. Frankie, for the moment."

"Oh, hat, Bobby—"

"I said for the moment. We've got to get to the bottom of this, Frankie.
We're on the right spot and all we've got to do is to get down to it. We don't want Roger Bassington-French for abduction. We want him for murder."

"And we'll get him," said Frankie with a revival of spirit.

"That's more like it," said Bobby approvingly. "Drink some more tea."

"How's Moira?"

"Pretty bad. She came round in the most awful state of nerves. Scared stiff apparently. She's gone up to London—to a nursing home place in Queen's Gate. She says she'll feel safe there."

"She never did have much nerve," said Frankie.

"Well, anyone might be scared stiff with a queer cold-blooded murderer like Roger Bassington-French loose in the neighborhood."

"He doesn't want to murder her.
We're the ones he's after."

"He's probably too busy taking care of himself to worry about us for the moment," said Bobby. "Now, Frankie, the start of the whole thing must be John Savage's death and will. Either that will was forged or Savage was murdered or something."

"It's quite likely the will was forged if Bassington-French was concerned," said Frankie thoughtfully.

"It may have been forged and murder. We've got to find out."

Frankie nodded. "I've got the notes I made after looking at the will. The witnesses were Rose Chudleigh, cook, and Albert Mere, gardener. They ought to be quite easy to find. Then there are the lawyers who drew it up—Elford & Leigh—a very respectable firm, as Mr. Sprague said."

"Right, we'll start from there. I think you'd better take the lawyers.
You'll get more out of them than I would. I'll hunt up Rose Chudleigh and Albert Mere."

"What about Badger?"

"Badger never gets up till lunch time—you needn't worry about him."

"We must get his affairs straightened out for him some time," said Frankie. "After all, he did save my life."

"They'll soon get tangled again," said Bobby. "Oh, by the way, what do you think of this?"

He held out a dirty piece of cardboard for her inspection. It was a photograph.

"Mr. Cayman," said Frankie immediately. "Where did you get it?"

"Last night. It had slipped down behind the telephone."

"Then it seems pretty clear who
Mr. and Mrs. Fimpleton were. Wait a minute."

All the country is to be whipped into a frenzy on the patriotic theory. It is an American Liberty League idea but it is expected that the Republican party will carry the banner. The battle cry will be:
"Fight to save country and Constitution! Out with the dictatorship rebels!"

NO RUSH: Informed quarters say that thousands of veterans aren't making application for soldier borrow bonds. This is especially true of those who are on the relief rolls.
Indirectly the administration is passing the word around that those veterans who receive bonds will be found independent. As a result their names will be removed from relief lists. Since a man may apply at any future date and since he is obtaining funds from federal relief agencies he isn't asking for bonds and won't until relief payments stop.

The idea of frightening veterans in this way is to stop those who go get their bonds from converting into cash. So it is expected that there will be no rush to obtain soldier bonus bonds.

BULLISH: With government financing in prospect all talk of inflation has been killed. It has happened before. The usual procedure is to revive inflation talk after the financing is completed. It helps bul-lish sentiment in security markets and higher prices result. That is what the administration likes.

The fact that the government is behind the "stop inflation talk" order is confirmed by the news that all inflationary bills which were to be presented to Congress have been withdrawn. To help along the oil-cles. They admit Roosevelt did move a bit towards inflation. But they now see that stock trading losses will be blamed on Hoover who advised fear over the radio and in a California court room. The result is that the Republican Party is "on the spot" for stock market losses should inflation talk fail further to advance security prices.

That is the big reason why the administrators want inflation gossip to stop.
The word in Democratic circles is: "Let there be no inflation talk." That will bring about a decline in security prices. Then tell the suckers that it was Hoover who led them into buying stocks. Stress the point that people lost fortunes from 1930 to 1932 and again in 1936—all because of Hoover's cockeyed opinions."

BELL: Trade organizations are about to raise thunder with Congress. They demand that labor organizations be regulated by strict federal laws. It is generally believed that most unions are headed by racketeers. They feel that only with Department of Justice supervision can these racketeers be forced out.
"The idea is that somebody must tie the bell to the cat. Why not let Congress do it?"

forest, Robin Hood, with the jolly old Friar Tuck, Little John, Will Scarlet, the singing Alan-a-Dale, and others of the merry men, will be presented in some of the most interesting scenes from their adventures, and will encounter their enemy, the sheriff, whose bawky donkey adds to the fun. It is a colorful and exciting production with musical accompaniment.

The Follies is a sophisticated revue of musical and comedy sketches. The illusion of a large stage with life-size characters is one of the wonders of a modern marionette show. It is difficult for the audience to realize that the walking, talking, acting creatures before them are not living creatures but instead of puppets, worked by strings from behind scenes by people who not only make them act but who speak the lines for them, throwing their voices so they seem to come from the lips of the dolls.

Tonight at the close of the program a rehearsal play will be given when the curtain is taken down and the audience will be able to see how a marionette show is operated.

Troop 36 Hike

The Boy Scouts were quick to take advantage of the recent good weather. Troop 36 of the Third Street school took a troop hike on Friday afternoon and held their regular weekly meeting at the over-erlow well. Most of the boys that went, passed off two or more of their tests toward their next advancement. Troop 36 was under the leadership of T. C. Bryan, Scoutmaster and Ralph H. Mozo, Asst. Scout Executive.

Boys from the other Greenville troops have taken the recent opportunity to hike in Patrols if not in Troops. Troop 36 is especially fortunate in having a strong corps of Patrol Leaders that take the boys on regular monthly hikes.

The Greenville Cub pack also took a little hike Saturday afternoon and had a weiner roast and several games at Rock Spring, back of the College woods. Cubmaster Marcellus Heam and his Assistant, Sam Dees, announced that the Den organization of the Cub Pack is to be a vital part of the program and a new group of Scouts have been selected to act as Den Chiefs. The Scout Den Chiefs are Billy Combs, Charlie Briley, Richard Stokes and Edgar Denton.

The next Cub Pack meeting will be at the Episcopal Parish House Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Boys from nine to 12 years of age are welcomed to the Pack meeting and will then be put in the Den in their own neighborhood.

Vesper Service At College. Music furnished by the boys' choir of Presbyterian Junior College and a brief message by R. L. Pugh of New Bern, on "Does It Really Pay to be Good?" made up the vesper services of the college Y. W. C. A. last night.

How Cardui Helps Month After Month

Where there have been severe pains every month, from functional disturbances resulting from poor nourishment, Cardui has helped thousands of women to obtain relief. Their confidence in Cardui makes them eager to recommend it to other women needing such a medicine.

"I suffered a great deal with pain in my side and a weakness in my back," writes Mrs. Walter Page, of Evansville, Ind. "This made me so nervous I couldn't rest. Each month I would suffer all over and would have to go to bed. One of my neighbors told me how Cardui helped her, so I took it and it helped me. After taking eight bottles, I was much better. I surely can recommend Cardui for weakness and pain."

Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

of schools of Craven County, which his vocation; his avocation is preaching. He began his inspiring message by asking "Does living up to the principles of Christ pay or help to uplift civilization?" Mr. Pugh answered three questions that deal with this subject. First: Does it pay physically to be good? Right living leads to lengthen life, he said, it sweetens old age, and is a blessing to your posterity. Second: Does it pay intellectually? The Bible is the book of all books, he pointed out, and contains the secret of knowledge; the possession of Christian religion inspires one to seek knowledge. Third: Does it pay financially to be good? Christianity, he stated, gives men frugality, and frugality increased the earning power of men; financial prosperity is preceded by a revival of spiritual thoughts.

To live carelessly, Mr. Pugh went on to say, is to commit a crime against character, against civilization, and against God.

He cited the Apostle Paul and Robert E. Lee as examples of men who lived good lives, and concluded with the advice that students hear the voice of experience and reason; if they would contribute to civilization then live not for self but to serve; not gold but only men can make a people great men who for truth and honors sake, live and suffer long.

At the close of his message, the choir rendered four songs "Make a Joyful Noise Unto the Lord," "Rejoice in the Lord," "Come Unto Him All Ye Who Labor," and "The Heavens are Telling."

Mr. Harrington Speaks At College. Some exceedingly interesting facts and figures about juvenile delinquency were presented to the students of East Carolina Teachers College at their assembly hour last Friday, by a man who for ten years, has been judge of the juvenile court in Pitt County, Frank Harrington.

In studying the cases that come under his observation, he finds that few of them have been among those who attend Sunday school, church, or whose parents do. He has found no Boy Scouts, he says, and this agrees with reports from other sections, as a study of 20,000 cases in Indiana revealed the fact that not a Boy Scout was in their number. He used this as an illustration to show that keeping boys busy and interested helps to prevent trouble. He advocated providing properly controlled swimming pools and ball fields for boys, for this reason.

From 60 to 75 per cent of the delinquents in Pitt County now are white people, he says, while in the past the colored people were in the majority, running as high as 83 per cent in the past.

Most of the cases come from the homes of the illiterate, so he believes a great step towards prevention of crime will be accomplished by driving out illiteracy, and with that will come higher ideals of citizenship.

He made a plea to the young people who are going into the schools as teachers to remember that it is their task to help shape the lives of children so they will become good citizens. He warned them that they should not feel discouraged even if they save only one of five who have shown signs of delinquency, but experience has shown that 90 per cent of those on probation make good, so the chances are they can keep even more than this number from ever becoming "cases."

Dr. Adams, in introducing Mr. Harrington, spoke of him as a kind of "human engineer," and expressed the idea that there was no need to send off to get some one to present this interesting problem when there was an expert right at home.

In a hard fought contest Greenville defeated the Garner Cagers in the tourney to clinch the championship of the second annual Atlantic Christian College basketball tournament for Eastern Carolina high schools.

The Cagers from Greenville defeated Garner 23-16 Saturday night in concluding event of a three-day meet which attracted 30 teams from 10 counties.

The game was close throughout. At the end of the first quarter the score was tied at 4-4 with Greenville leading at the half with a 14-11 count and still leading 16-15 at the end of the third quarter.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 2.—(AP)—The stock market pulled itself back on firmer ground today with strong support from a group of shares, directly or indirectly, linked to agriculture.

Advances of major fractions up to two points were numerous among farm implements, sugar, merchandising, motor, and specialty shares. While rails and utilities were at no time under pressure, many were unchanged and there were a few losses.

The stock market retained its steady to firm appearance during late trading. Transactions approximated 2,400,000 shares.
