PROSPECT FOR SAVING BRUNO THOUGHT SLIM

Sole Chance Now Rests with Court of Pardons

GOV. HOFFMAN IS SAID LOST HOPE

Sees Chance, However,
If Confession of Enough Significance
Is Made by Prisoner

Trenton, March 26.—(AP)—With little prospect of executive intervention Bruno Hauptmann's chances of escaping execution next Tuesday night rested today with the court of pardons and the judge who sentenced him to death.

Governor Harold G. Hoffman, a member of the court, planned to consult Chancellor Luther A. Campbell today on the advisability of a hearing on the convicted slayer's new plea for clemency.

Failure in the court of pardons to convince Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, trial judge, they have enough new evidence to ask for a new trial means Hauptmann will probably die. The Governor was asked if this is so and replied:

"It looks much that way."

Again when he was asked if his decision not to grant Hauptmann another reprieve was "final" he replied:

"Yes." Nevertheless, he said, he had faith the attorney general would agree with him a judicial stay of execution in order should there be a "confession of such a nature as would make it necessary to continue a man's life to prove the state's case," or should there be other important developments.

Hauptmann fixed his signature to the pardons' court appeal in the death house yesterday in the presence of his counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher, and his wife, Anna.

Fisher said he told him the date of execution had been fixed but that he said nothing and Hauptmann's face revealed no emotion.

GOV. HOFFMAN INSPECTS THE BRONX HOME OF HAUPTMANN

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Governor Harold G. Hoffman spent almost five hours in the Hauptmann Bronx home today reviewing evidence connecting the condemned kidnaper with the kidnap ladder. The explanation was not concluded, the governor said.

"We have been looking at the wood and no conclusion can be drawn until we make further tests," he declared as he left the house.

The governor, with his aide and Attorney General David T. Wilentz and prosecution officials had been busy in the Hauptmann house from 9 a. m. until 1:40 p. m.

The primary reason for the governor's visit to the two-family house in the Bronx was to check on the prosecution testimony at the Hauptmann trial that the four nail holes found in rail 16 of the kidnap ladder fitted exactly with nail holes in the Hauptmann attic joists, where the state claims that rail was originally nailed down.

Attorney General Wilentz had little to say on the examination made in the house.

"The prosecution staff," he said, "felt they had no part in today's investigation but had a fear because of the improper questioning of at least one of the state's police officers by a person or agency without authority, and unknown to us."

CAVE DWELLERS' RETREAT
FOUNDED BY SPANISH PRIEST

Alicante, Spain, March 25.—(AP)—A huge prehistoric cavern, apparently once inhabited by primitive men, has been discovered near here by Father Jose Belda, noted as an archeologist.

The cavern contains extensive galleries at a depth of about 300 feet at the end of which is an enormous chamber with many signs of habitation. In the cavern is a precipice estimated to be several hundred feet deep in which there is a large lake.

Light filters to every part of the galleries and cavern through crevices.

In the cavern were found rude huts and quantities of ashes. Hundreds of bell shaped vases indicated the site of an ancient pottery.

WET COUNTIES ORGANIZE FOR KEEPING FUND

Roy T. Cox, of Pitt, Is Named Secretary of Association

SALES IN PITT
TOTAL $175,124

Details of Organization
Worked Out At Meeting Held Here
Yesterday.

Wilson, March 26.—(AP)—Representatives of the 17 counties operating liquor stores under the Pasquotank act have formed an organization to work for retention of the county liquor control system and retention of liquor profits for the counties.

Details of the organization were worked out yesterday at a meeting in Greenville.

Thomas H. Woodard, chairman of the Wilson county board of commissioners, was elected chairman of the organization and Roy T. Cox of Pitt county was named secretary. Named to an advisory board to work with the officers were Leo Harvey, Lenoir county; W. C. Hargrove, Edgecombe county, and J. W. Whitaker, Halifax county.

The North Carolina Association of Alcohol Beverage Control Board reported to the meeting that from the date of opening of the stores until February 29, last, the liquor sales aggregated $2,168,698.58 with the counties receiving $473,392 in profits and the state $62,485.32 in sales tax.

Wilson led in sales with $342,321.66 and Edgecombe was second with $236,197.75. Sales in Pitt were $175,124.86; Lenoir, $170,018.73; Beaufort, $90,718.96; Greene, $24,247.

COMMUNISTS GET WARNING

Red Army Campaigning in China and Inner Mongolia

Peiping, March 26.—(AP)—A sudden unexpected appearance of the vanguard of the communist army campaigning in China and the frontier of Inner Mongolia evoked sharp words of warning from Japanese militarists today of possible intervention.

Major Takeo Imai, Japanese military attaché in Peiping, announced "the Japanese army will take the most effective steps necessary to deal with the situation if the communists menace the peace of Hopei and Chahar provinces."

Major Imai declined to elaborate on his statement, but declared:

"It is most difficult to understand how the communists continue to advance against the combined Shansi province and Chinese national government armies."

The communist invasion of Chahar province in North China proper had brought troops of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, virtual dictator of the Central Government, into the area of the Chahar militarists Yen Shi-Shan.

Further Japanese concern over the situation as reflected by an earlier statement of a Japanese embassy spokesman at Nanking that "we have not yet moved in the Chahar situation, but we would take the most grave view of any Chinese military activity calculated to disturb the balance of power and peace in North China."

McRae To Deliver Speech Friday In Pitt Court House

Candidate For Governor to Bring Campaign to This County

John A. McRae of Charlotte, candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, will speak at the Pitt county courthouse here at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Although he has not waged a campaign as active as the other three candidates for the chief executive's office, Mr. McRae was one of the first candidates to announce his candidacy for the position.

Mr. McRae is an ex-legislator, having represented his county several years ago. For the past few years, however, he has not been in the political spotlight as much as the other candidates.

Recently the Charlotte man has been waging an active campaign and is covering much of the state in his attempts to win the democratic nomination.

He will be the first candidate for governor to make a public address in this city, although Dr. R. W. McDonald has visited the city on numerous occasions and it is understood he is planning a speaking engagement in the city shortly.

RELIEF FUNDS TOTAL $323.35

Announcement Made
That Canvass Be Made for Funds

With a total of $323.35 already having been raised through voluntary contributions, announcement was made today by Rev. W. A. Ryan, chairman of the special committee of the local Red Cross to raise funds to aid flood sufferers, that a solicitation campaign would be started today.

Contributions reported today amounted to $82.25, an increase over the amount raised yesterday.

Rev. Mr. Ryan pointed out that no direct, personal appeal had been made to citizens of the community to contribute funds and that the amount already raised was absolutely voluntary. He added, however, that efforts would be made to visit the various business houses in the city and make a request for funds.

The local chapter was first asked to contribute $750, but as it was discovered that there was a great deal more suffering and damage than was at first thought, the national organization asked the community to double its quota.

A contribution of $20 by R. L. and W. H. Smith and another of $15 by Z. V. Murphy helped to increase today's fund.

All contributions will be acknowledged in The Daily Reflector.

THREE POWERS HOLD SESSION

United States, Great Britain and Japan
Confer

London, March 26.—(AP)—The United States and Great Britain followed up today the signing of the new London naval treaty, spokesmen said, with diplomatic conversations with Japan concerning fortifications and naval bases in the Far East.

The new pact failed to renew article 19 of the Washington naval limitations treaty, by which the three powers agreed that no new fortifications or naval bases should be established in designated Far Eastern territories and possessions.

The British naval spokesman said the negotiations were undertaken in answer to a Japanese request for information as to the future intentions of the other great sea powers toward the Far East.

Japan did not sign the new treaty having quit the naval conference after its demands for full fleet equality were opposed by the United States and Britain.

American, British and French delegates, however, after signing yesterday the accord to replace the Washington treaty of 1922 and the London pact of 1930, expressed hope that Japan, as well as Italy, would enter the fold later.

PROJECT SEEN AS HEALTH AID

Malaria is Especially Prevalent in Swift
Creek Section

Declaring that malaria is especially prevalent in the Swift Creek area, County Health Doctor N. Thomas Ennett today said the drainage project for that section of the county would, no doubt, do much to curb the disease.

As evidence of the prevalence of malaria in the Swift Creek area, the health officer cited figures showing that physicians who practice in the area disclosed that around 25 per cent of their practice is made up of malaria patients. In a survey made last spring among 500 citizens of the section 58.8 per cent gave a history of malaria.

It was pointed out that possibly no single effort would improve the health in the community as much as the drainage project now underway. The project is primarily a health project, the national government having appropriated funds for the drainage solely for the purpose of improving health.

The plan involves an expenditure of $104,000 by the Federal government, with landowners in the section contributing $50,000.

In addition to the county officials, local organizations and committees that were active in promoting the project were a committee from the county health board, composed of Dr. Ennett, Dr. M. T. Friselle of Greenville; a committee from the county farm board, composed of J. E. Winslow of Greenville, J. T. Thorne of Farmville, M. O. Blount of Bethel, J. P. Davenport of Pacolus, A. L. Woolard of Stokes, F. M. Kilpatrick of Ayden; a committee from the Rotary club of Ayden, composed of J. R. Turnage, J. B. Pierce, G. W. Prescott, J. H. Coward; and officers of the district drainage association, Judge F. M. Wooten of Greenville, J. R. Harvey of Grifton, J. R. Turnage of Ayden, Alton Gardner of Grifton, Hugh T. Stokes of Ayden and F. M. Kilpatrick of Ayden.

Little Shelly Beard is Injured In Accident

Shelly Beard, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Beard of Fourth and Elm street, was slightly hurt yesterday afternoon when the car which his father was driving and another driven by a Mr. Buck collided.

The wreck occurred at the home of the little boy, and he was the only one injured. Several teeth were knocked out and his lip was cut a little, his father reported today.

Foreign Secretary Intrusted with Duties
Defending Pact

London, March 26.—(AP)—The House of Commons debating the European crisis for the first time since Germany's march across the Rhine, sought government assurances today that Britain contemplated no further continental commitments.

Parliamentary sources said Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin hoped the debate would "considerably allay" public anxiety over the London negotiations in the Rhineland controversy and stamp out disquieting rumors of secret continental military alliances.

The Prime Minister entrusted to foreign secretary Anthony Eden and Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain the task of defending the Locarno power proposals for settlement of the crisis against labor and other opposition attacks.

Unmoved by the fiery speeches of Adolf Hitler or bitter recriminations from the French press, members of parliament looked to Eden to assure the that Britain intended to avoid being involved in the dispute beyond the problem of the Locarno pact, guaranteeing aid to France or Belgium against any unprovoked attack.

River men said the new crest would be from 10 to 20 feet below the old which was sweeping past Louisville, Ky., forcing lowland residents to flee, though much of its force was spent. Cincinnati and Portsmouth, Ohio, not seriously affected, anticipated a prolongation of high water from the new rise.

Pennsylvania and New England, which suffered huge property losses during a week of floods which claimed 200 lives in the nation were restoring their industrial and community life to normal.

British Isle Considers Defense

DROP EFFORTS OF VOLUNTARY WEED SIGN-UP

Decide to Concentrate on Soil Conservation Plan

STEERING GROUP
REACHES ACTION

Decision Comes After Scheduled Meeting of Advisory Group Collapses

Raleigh, March 26.—(AP)—Decision to concentrate on using the federal soil conservation program to control 1936 tobacco production in North Carolina and to shelve, at least temporarily, a proposal to have farmers sign voluntary control contracts was reached this afternoon by the state central steering committee. Governor Ethinghaus and agriculture commissioner W. A. Graham.

The committee, with Senator Benjamin Muse of Petersburg, Va., setting in unofficial, met with the Governor after a scheduled meeting of the interstate tobacco advisory committee of the Carolinas and Virginia collapsed.

The action was set forth in the following resolutions:

"Whereas, it is manifest that at the present time the other states growing flue cured tobacco desire to concentrate action to secure compliance with the terms of the soil conservation act, and

"Whereas, the committee feels that the best interests of the growers will be served by concerted action in the several states;

"Therefore be it resolved that this committee earnestly recommends that all tobacco growers plant not more than 70 per cent of the base as previously determined in order that they may qualify for the maximum payments of approximately $40 per acre for acres taken out of tobacco cultivation.

"That for the present, we concentrate on the soil conservation drive, together with state contracts and take up the voluntary contract drive later."

Dean I. O. Schaub of North Carolina State College who invited South Carolina and Virginia tobacco committee members to the meeting, said he was informed there was no movement for voluntary crop reduction contracts in South Carolina, and Virginia was not interested in being represented at the meeting unless South Carolina had such a movement under way.

State Federation
Of Students Meet
At Local College

Delegates From Various Colleges
Converge at Training School for Three-Day Convention

The North Carolina Federation of Students is holding a three-day convention here beginning tonight, with E. C. T. C. Student Government organization acting as host.

The delegates, who have been arriving this afternoon from the various colleges and universities, have been registering and meeting informally. There will perhaps be fifty in attendance at the meeting. There will be an informal tea at the "Y" Hut this afternoon with the members of the S. G. A. Council of the College and the faculty advisers acting as hostesses.

The formal opening will be tonight. There will be both morning and afternoon sessions through tomorrow and Saturday, with special speakers and discussion groups. Jack Poole, of the North Carolina University, is the president.

Tomorrow evening there will be a formal dinner in the College dining hall in honor of the visitors, with students as hostesses at each guest table. A dance will be given in their honor tomorrow night in the Robert H. Wright building, which has been known as the Campus Building. A theatre party is one of the social events planned for the delegates. A banquet at the Proctor Hotel on Saturday night will be the closing event of the convention.

The general theme of the convention will be "True Self Government." Among the important practical questions to be discussed are these: "Special Problems in Men's Colleges," "Special Problems in Women's Colleges," and "Campus Interest in Public Affairs."

Public Invited Attend
High School Debates

Tomorrow is the date for the annual state-wide High School Triangular debate. Greenville will debate Roanoke Rapids in Wilson, and while debate Wilson in Roanoke Rapids, while debate Roanoke Rapids in Greenville. The hours for the debate in Greenville is one-thirty.

The query for the debate is "Resolved that the several states should adopt a program of socialized medicine." The Greenville negative team composed of Misses Geraldine Harris and Louis Gaylord will uphold the negative in Roanoke Rapids, while the Greenville affirmative team composed of Miss Frances Spillman and Jeter Oakley will uphold the affirmative side in Wilson. T. C. Bryan of the High School faculty is the debating coach.

The public is not only invited to attend the debate in Greenville but is urged to come out and support the young debaters in their worthy work. The debate will be held in the High school auditorium beginning promptly at one-thirty.

HOEY, GRAHAM TO FIGHT FOE

Two Candidates Expected to Open Up On McDonald

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, March 26.—Indications are that before many days now the campaign managers of Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby and of Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham of Hillsboro are going to change their political tactics and start "opening up" against Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Winston-Salem, who is admittedly causing them more worry than anything else right now.

There are even indications that Candidates Hoey and Graham may personally start replying to some of the McDonald statements and speeches and that some very hot campaigning is about to get under way. It is generally conceded that both of these candidates and their campaign managers have decided to abandon the policy followed so far of practically ignoring McDonald and his candidacy and have virtually decided that a new line of attack must be developed.

There is no doubt that the opposition to McDonald at first believed that if they ignored him, let him talk all he wanted to and gave him enough rope, that he would hang himself in his own political rope before the campaign was over.

But instead of getting tangled up in his own rope, McDonald has proved most adept at escaping its coils so far, although it is agreed that it is proving increasingly dangerous to his opponents and may trip them up eventually. It is also agreed that some way or other, McDonald seems to be forging ahead and to be convincing more and more voters that he can cut off $10,000,000 a year in taxes and increase expenditures for schools and social security by from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year at the same time.

For while McDonald is promising to repeal the sales tax, which is bringing in more than $10,000,000 a year, he is advocating a school program and a social security program which will require about $15,000,000 a year more than the state is now collecting, even with the sales tax. So in order to do what McDonald is advocating, the next general assembly will have to find at least $25,000,000 in new taxes, those who know the facts agree.

But indications are that most of McDonald's followers are interested only in his promise to repeal the sales tax.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, March 26.—(AP)—The senate hardly had voted to confirm the appointment of Judge Edwin Holmes of Mississippi to the circuit court of appeals, over the protest of Senator Bilbo, before an announcement was made in that state of real political interest and perhaps significance.

It was that former Governor Bennett Connor would be a candidate for the United States senate against Pat Harrison this year.

The feud between Mississippi's two senators, smoldering for a long time, definitely was brought into the open by that announcement. It promises to provide one of the most colorful shows of all this election year.

Both are veteran campaigners. Harrison, who has served three terms in the senate and before that a spell in the house, is one of the main cogs in the administration's machine. Bilbo, serving his first term in the senate, is one of the most colorful political personalities on the national scene.

Starts Political Show
The elevation of Judge Holmes on the federal bench afforded political bystanders in Washington opportunity to witness a rare display of skill between two master strategists of politics. Whether Holmes would be promoted was a minor point.

The real issue was whether Bilbo would outsmart Harrison.

The Holmes appointment was sponsored and backed by Harrison to the limit. Bilbo, once jailed by Holmes on a contempt charge, was determined that in so far as he was concerned the senate would not confirm the appointment.

He realized early that nothing he could do would keep Holmes from being given senate approval. He turned the whole affair, therefore, into a grand political show, at Harrison's expense.

He broke his self-imposed silence, dating from the day he entered the senate, to speak against confirmation of Holmes. Before that he had tirelessly prosecuted his case before a subcommittee of the senate's judiciary committee.

He made no secret of his intentions. He was out to get Harrison's political scalp, told him so openly.

Bilbo Collects Ammunition
Only four senators, including Bilbo himself, voted against Holmes' confirmation. He was satisfied, however, he had gathered a lot of political ammunition he could use later in a forum he knows best—the stumps in Mississippi.

Few here believe that Harrison's reelection for a fourth term in the senate is in serious danger.

This much, however, appears certain. Harrison will be forced to make a campaign, the like of which he hasn't had to make for years. Bilbo, always a powerful political factor in Mississippi, will compete him to take the stump from the delta to the gulf.

That's important, because the Democrats will have need of a man like Harrison in the national campaign.

M'NEILL RACE GAINS GROUND

Candidate For Lieut. Governor Shows Strength

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, March 26.—Former State Senator George McNeill of Fayetteville is making considerable progress in his campaign for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor and already has more strength than either of his opponents seem to realize, according to reports heard this week.

McNeill has been here for several days and yesterday was much in evidence at the state convention of the North Carolina Ice Manufacturers Association at the Carolina Hotel here. McNeill is a member of the association, being engaged in the ice and coal business in Fayetteville. It is already conceded that he is assured of the support of most of the ice and coal dealers in the state and that he also has a strong following among the firemen in the various cities and towns having fire departments.

But McNeill is not expecting to be nominated Lieutenant Governor by the ice and coal dealers and the firemen. He has been busy for the past two or three weeks in the Piedmont and has visited some 15 or 20 counties, reports indicate, and has found much support in that section. He has a brother living in Davie County who is United States District Attorney in the middle district, who has a wide acquaintance in that section and who is helping McNeill materially in the counties in the middle district, according to reports.

McNeill is running for Lieutenant Governor on a conservative platform, favoring a sound business administration of the state's affairs. He was a member of the 1933 senate when the sales tax was adopted and does not believe the state can find enough money to operate the state government and the schools without the sales tax, although he thinks it should be removed from the essential foods and meals. He is close friend and admirer of Governor Ehringhaus and a strong supporter of his administration.

ANOTHER MEET ON SITUATION

Tobacco Plans Remain Muddled Despite Conferences

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, March 26.—The tobacco situation both in North Carolina and in Congress, seemed to be as muddled as ever today, if not more so.

Another meeting of the tobacco advisory committee or steering committee named by a named by a meeting of growers last week when it was decided to launch a voluntary tobacco acreage reduction sign-up campaign Thursday of this week, is expected to meet with Governor

J. C. B. Ehringhaus here again today.

The committee met with the Governor for a long session yesterday, at which exactly nothing appeared to have been accomplished. The Governor seems determined in his stand that nothing but a voluntary sign-up campaign will be able to accomplish anything at this time.

Another meeting has been called here for Thursday morning, to which all the members of the Interstate Tobacco Committee, composed of tobacco men from Virginia, North and South Carolina, have been invited. The committee will meet in the office of Dean I. O. Schaub of State College and another effort is expected to be made to get all these three states to agree to the same plan or procedure, although this is expected to be difficult.

The greatest blow to the voluntary sign-up plan is agreed to be the defection of Virginia and the announcement by Governor George C. Peery of Virginia that the tobacco farmers there are not interested in the voluntary sign-up plan proposed by Governor Ehringhaus.

but are going ahead with the Federal government soil conservation sign up plan, under the soil conservation bill. South Carolina seems to be showing very little interest in the Ehringhaus voluntary sign up plan. Reports from Washington also are not so bright for the interstate pact plan, indicating that Congress is proceeding very slowly with its bill to validate state compacts for reducing tobacco acreage.

So altogether, the outlook for anything definite to be accomplished towards controlling the 1933 tobacco crop is not regarded as very bright.

a better-balanced FERTILIZER

3-8-8 FERTILIZER is not the particular brand of one fertilizer company. All leading fertilizer companies have 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER and 3-8-8 COTTON FERTILIZER on sale. Ask your fertilizer man about the very small extra cost of this better-balanced fertilizer. 3-8-8 contains 35% more actual plant food than 3-8-3 yet its extra cost is so small it will surprise you.

Mr. Beal, whose statement appears at right, is just one of many leading farmers who have found that it pays to use two to three times as much potash as the average fertilizer contains. They know that potash is the quality-producing element in tobacco fertilizer—that tobacco is a potash-loving crop, removing from the soil more potash than both nitrogen and phosphoric acid combined.

3-8-8

YOUR fertilizer man knows the importance of plenty of potash in tobacco fertilizer. That is why he has 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER on sale. Tell him you want to produce "high-dollar" tobacco in 1936. Tell him you want 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER, the fertilizer that contains so much extra-profit-producing plant food at such low cost.

The best fertilizer you can get for your tobacco is usually the most economical in the long run. An extra hundred pounds of tobacco per acre and a two-cent difference in the average price can make a tremendous difference in profits. 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER contains the extra potash that produces extra yields of extra quality.

3-8-8

EXTRA POTASH FOR COTTON

3-8-8 COTTON FERTILIZER is just as fine a mixture for cotton as 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER is for tobacco. 3-8-8 COTTON FERTILIZER contains the extra potash needed to help your cotton prevent rust, control wilt and produce vigorous, healthy plants with less shedding, larger bolls that are easier to pick and better yields of uniform, high-quality lint. 3-8-8 is a better fertilizer for better times. Use it for both tobacco and cotton. IT PAYS!

"3-8-8 makes a mighty fine grade of tobacco"

—says J. C. BEAL

"Last year I used 800 pounds of 3-8-8 under my tobacco and 200 pounds around it at the first plowing," says J. C. BEAL of Nashville, N. C. "My neighbors said it was the best tobacco ever produced on this land. The buyers on the floor liked it too and noted a difference in the quality. It was silky and a mighty fine grade for the land. I think enough of 3-8-8 to use it again this year."

Round Table Meets.
At the home of Mrs. Paul Fitzgerald, Mrs. H. L. Carr was hostess to the Round Table Tuesday afternoon. In the absence of the president, Mrs. C. T. Munford presided. After reading of collect, seventeen members responded to roll call. The minutes were read and approved, business transacted and the meeting was then turned over to Mrs. T. A. Person, who in her own charming way, beguiled us with rambles and rides around the city of Brotherly Love. We visited City Hall, University of Pennsylvania, Independence Hall, the home of Betsy Ross and residences of famous scientists, painters and writers. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Darden, served delicious cream and cake with salted nuts.

Stage Settings for Minstrel
The boys on the stage committee have been busy building the log cabin which was specially designed for their Carolina Minstrel show on next Friday night and they have it ready for the rehearsal tonight. It will be the central piece of the stage setting, as the theme of the show is plantation life, a very clever comedy with minstrel features which was written and is being directed by Miss Loraine Hunter.

E. M. Eadie, of Winston-Salem, is the artist who designed the cabin and has directed its construction. He also painted the drop scene for the stage of the auditorium in the Robert H. Wright Building.

Birthday Party.
Stokes, March 26—Mrs. Bert Whitehurst was hostess Friday when she entertained the First Grade in honor of her little daughter, Jarrell on her seventh birthday.

A lovely birthday cake with seven yellow candles graced a small table in the front of the room. The class sang "Happy Birthday" and wished the little honoree many more happy birthdays.

Each child was generously served with pink and yellow ice cream and cake. For favors they received tiny cellophane bags filled with pink and yellow Easter eggs and tied with yellow ribbon.

The invited guests were: Gloria Whitehurst, Virgil Barnhill, her music teacher, Miss Staton and her aunt Louise Whichard.

The little honoree received many useful gifts.

R. T. FOUNTAIN BAILEY FLAYS

Declares Senator Had Served Great Power Interests

R. T. Fountain, candidate for the U. S. senate to succeed Senator J. W. Bailey, made an early morning visit to this city today and during the short while he was here took time to score the record of his opponent and set forth some of the things for which he, himself, stood.

Asked how his candidacy was progressing, Mr. Fountain said that he was receiving all the encouragement that a candidate could hope for. He added that he had just returned from a trip through Wayne, Sampson, Pender, New Hanover, Columbia, Bladen, Cumberland and Harnett counties and that he found friends in every place.

Condemning Senator Bailey, he said that the people were generally informed as to the senator's record. "They have found out that he had not supported the president and congress in trying to overcome the depression," he declared.

Mr. Fountain said that Senator Bailey's record had been barren and that he had opposed the farmer in voting against every farm measure that he had opposed every measure that had been passed to help labor, and had opposed the soldiers' bonus.

He declared that Senator Bailey's service had been "solely in the interest of the great power trusts and the great shipping trusts."

"No longer than last week he stated in the senate that he had been charged with representing the great shipping interest of this country, an accusation which he did not deny," the Rocky Mount man said. Mr. Fountain charged that Mr. Bailey urged lower tolls for the great shipping interests of this country than are allowed foreign, "but when it comes to the farmer, he was unwilling to do for him what that which he was doing for the industrial business and the shipping trust."

"I am going to let the people of North Carolina know his record and if they know it I am sure that they will not return him to the senate."

"He was the spokesman of the power trust and offered 41 amendments to the anti-holding bill."

"There can be no permanent recovery until agriculture is rehabilitated and if elected to the senate it will be my purpose to work with the president and congress in trying to do something to give stability to agriculture."

ENGINEER SAYS LOW SPEED LAWS ARE DANGEROUS

Chicago, (AP)—More than 94 per cent of Chicago's motorists are breaking the city's speed laws, says the Chicago Motor club—and adds that it's the fault of the laws. The club bases its statement that only six out of every 100 drivers keep within the posted speed regulations on the basis of a recent traffic survey.

"The posted speed limits are out of step with motoring conditions," says Z. A. Faulkner, club engineer. "The excessively low posted limits have not curbed recklessness and have not reduced the average travel pace."

On the city's south side outer drive Faulkner asserts a limit of 40 miles an hour is too slow. Of all the cars clocked he says only 25 were keeping within that limit and that most of them were a menace to other traffic.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

DO IT NOW.

With the growing need in the flood stricken areas the citizens of this county through the Red Cross have been asked for above $1,000 to aid in the relief work. While the response so far to the appeals has been good on the part of some, less than a third of the total amount has been raised and again we urge our citizens not to delay in this matter. We are sure you are desirous of helping to relieve the suffering in the stricken areas but the longer you delay in making your contributions the greater the need will be. Don't put this matter off any longer. Send in your donation now in order that it might be put to immediate use in helping to relieve suffering humanity.

PRICES DEPEND ON PRODUCTION.

There is still some apparent difficulty in the way of a definite plan for control of the bright leaf tobacco crop for this year but growers and everyone else can rest assured that if a large crop is produced the prices will be low and the growers and the tobacco growing sections will suffer financially as a result. As we have said many, many times before the price situation in the last analysis depends upon the supply. If the crop is down to the demand prices will be good but if the crop is larger than that needed by the manufacturers the prices will be low. While action by the state and national governments might be necessary to make the growers fall in line and reduce their crops to the required supply, in the end it all rests with the growers for legislating prices is but a temporary boost to prices and such prices cannot continue indefinitely if the growers persist in an overproduction year after year. Our advice is to keep production down to the demand year in and year out and there will be no need to worry about the prices.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Widdemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning finds herself in the fairland of her Aunt Phina's Park Avenue apartment meeting the conventionally beautiful Sigrid with whom her brother Owen is in love. Aunt Phina is America's most famous couturiere; Owen designs for her. And the strange thing is that Iris did not even know whether either Phina or Owen was living three days ago. Morgan Black, Iris' best friend, found both of them for her, and then of once snatched Iris from the old-fashioned home of her Uncle Will and Aunt Ella.

Chapter 18
GAY PARADISE

IRIS never had seen a platinum blonde before, except in a movie. Sigrid's naturally yellow hair had been made almost silver; her brows and lashes had been done with the conventional mascara. Aunt Ella would have called her "actressy," except for her quick forthrightness of gesture and manner.

Phina introduced them formally. "Where is Mrs. Russell?" Iris asked to break the moment's tension. "Oh, she isn't staying," Phina said.

"I do not think she will ever be worth the trouble Miss Phina put upon her," Sigrid said. She had no foreign accent, but a slight inaccuracy about the proper valuation of words and the right elisions. Her intonations were a little flat and vaguely wrong, also—but it was so intangible that Iris could only feel that it was a pity one flaw marred the girl's perfection. She was so beautiful, and so obviously intelligent and charming. She looked no more than sixteen.

"I suppose it is a part of the work, but when fat women cry on me I want to give them a kick in the pants."

Her doll-like childish beauty and high cool childish voice made her rough words irresistibly funny. Owen laughed out with a look of proprietorship and pride.

"Mrs. Russell is my very good friend," Phina said, at which Sigrid lifted a black line of eyebrow mockingly. Fortunately dinner was announced.

To plainly reared Iris it looked like a party. The four tall candlesticks, with yellow candles matching yellow roses in a low translucent bowl, the lace runners, the low glass on dishes matching the bowl for the roses. But it was, she knew, Phina's normal state. What might seem casual charm was careful correctness. Iris loved beauty and order, and it soothed and delighted her.

The little dining room had deep silver-cloth draperies, hiding the windows and making all one wall; it had odd geometric silver lights, triangular silver chairs. You felt as if you were living in a pattern, not a real, tossed-about place. You wanted to step and speak like a girl in a pageant.

The courses followed ceremoniously: clear tomato soup, a mousse of fish, peas and broccoli passed in a silver dish with two compartments. Then endive with something curly which proved to be chervil and a tingling Roquefort dressing.

Finally for dessert a dish of fruit Iris had thought was, it was so beautiful, which had been standing on the odd-planned side-table; and a choice of cheese and biscuits, passed on a big silver dish of a sort Iris recalled put away at home, and a mystery till now. Coffee in small golden cups.

"Tired, Iris?" Phina asked when dinner was two-thirds over. "Or do you want to go to a show?"

Theaters, as casually as that? "I'd love it!"

"Get the paper, Honora—" and Phina read down the list, discarding this one and that. She settled on a revue. Finally, that Iris "must see." Honora telephoned an agency; it was all arranged in five minutes.

"IRIS will have to use my black velvet cape and the bag with it. I haven't her evening wraps yet," Phina said, with more seriousness than she had used on all the rest together. Her voice implied the deep importance of evening wraps and the bags which matched them.

Sigrid, too, looked serious. Iris thought it was because of their business, but she discovered later that most women felt that way.

Honora came with Phina's gold and fur coat and bag and long gloves. She herself was given the black velvet cape, a short thing with long ties. Sigrid slipped into something that had been lying across a chair. Owen was given his overcoat, folding silk hat, gloves and cane.

They entered the mysterious door to the elevator, and were off. It was all pure enchantment to Iris—her first New York theater. When she told Phina, her aunt was shocked.

"Owen, you must see to that. Make out a list of revivals she must see, and buy her seats to plays she should know about."

gambler who apparently doesn't care whether he wins or loses—a fortune. That's the happy-go-lucky political spirit.

In the cloakrooms Congressional Republicans are betting that he will be the G. O. P. nominee. He has the friendship of all factions, for one thing. Senator Borah prefers him to any other rival, and he is No. 1 on Herbert Hoover's list. He is entering no primaries except possibly Michigan's and making no die-hard enemies. He happens to be a moderate liberal, although his anti-New Deal voting record is the highest of all Senate Republicans—a consideration which few have taken the pains to check.

Should the Hoover-Borah-Landon forces meet with such force that they will explode, the choice must be Vandenberg, Knox or Dickinson, in the settled opinion of smart Republicans. And among the three the Senator from Michigan looks like the man to place your money on.

"All right." They were settling themselves in the taxi, by a known routine: the girls one each side of Phina. Owen on the folding seat in front.

"I can't get over the casual way you use taxis," Iris couldn't help saying.

"The limousine's no good for the theater district," said Owen, above his cupped hands, manipulating his lighter. "In fact, no private car is."

"Well, I like the feeling that if you have your car down there the taxi people have to wait," said Sigrid partly.

"You could have the runabout," said Owen hastily, as if to check something Phina was going to say. Iris felt dimly that Owen was nervous when the two women were talking. And yet they worked together.

And the vague feeling of antagonism was dimmed by the fairy tale inference; two cars, evidently, Owen's runabout and Phina's limousine. Was she a greedy pig to like it that taxis were a commonplace, and limousines and runabouts a casual possession?

And then they entered the warm white and gold brilliance of the theater lobby; there were little ushers in gay costumes like French cadets; the party swept forward down the aisle to orchestra seats; the orchestra began playing heavenly merry dancing music; the curtain presently rose on a stage full of slim beautiful girls in long rose-colored gowns, leaping and laughing with exquisite precision.

The long lovely curves of the dance, the light and color and music, so moved Iris that her eyes filled with tears. She hoped they didn't see her, and presently she was laughing with the rest. She did not know that the others watch her with amused pleasure at her frank rapture.

"I'm dying for a cigarette," Sigrid said, at the end of the first act. "Come on out in the lobby."

"YES, you go, Iris, I'll stay here," said Phina, who looked a little tired after her trip. After all, she was human. So the young ones, Iris, in her black and rose, alight and excited, small Sigrid with her silvery head, Owen, slow and casual, climbed over three stout sulky immovable women and down the aisle to the gorgeous lobby. The smoke was thick. Somebody finally opened the front doors, letting in a gust of spring air.

"Oh, that's good," Iris said thankfully, supposing she was next Owen. "You bet, baby!" said the man beside her, and she found she was looking at the red-headed Dicky who had tried to make friends with her on the chair car that afternoon. His party had evidently also decided to end the evening at this, the most popular of the revues.

"We meet again!" said he, with a hand on his shirt front. "Who's the platinum blonde? You kept her from me."

"Sigrid Swenson. The name is Swedish, so you needn't wisecrack, beautiful," said Sigrid for herself behind Iris. "And you, young stranger?"

"Dicky Hamilton. The name is Czechoslovakian. Cigarette?"

"Sure, I'm nonchalant. Seen you somewhere lately. No, I'm not trying to make you. I did."

"Yep, that's right, I remember the silver wheels. But I don't know where. Where I saw the other one was on the train coming over from Philly this p. m. from the game. I was just getting her sold on the gang when Allan pulled me off her—crab he is. Hey, I know, Phina Weatherley's. Georgia Blair dragged me in there last week."

"That's right, I'm the junior partner," said Sigrid, which impressed Dicky, or at least he stopped talking long enough for her to continue.

"Iris is her niece, Owen's her nephew—Phina's."

Owen was beside the two girls, listening to Sigrid's quick patter of talk with something of Uncle Will's detached serenity. The handsome nutcracker face, black-eyed, bright-painted, black-haired, of the girl called Georgia pushed in beside Dicky's. Her red dress, her spatter of glittering earrings and necklace and clips and buckles all focused on Owen.

"We saw you both," she said with emphatic friendliness. "You never waked all the way across. Do you always sleep like that?" She had a sharp possessive charm when she smiled.

"Curtain's going up," said the cool voice of the tall man Allan from behind the rest. He and Iris smiled at each other like friends. Georgia pulled from the other groups as they widened apart, putting a thin glittering hand on Owen's arm.

CANDIDATES CARDS

ANNOUNCEMENT

I hereby announce myself a candidate for re-election as Sheriff of Pitt County subject to the action of the Democratic Primary of June 6, 1936.

If nominated and elected, I will continue to discharge the duties of the office as I have in the past. Your support will be appreciated.

S. A. WHITEHURST.

from the mind of "Brain Trust" Tugwell or old-fashioned political economists.

Administration enemies blame it on Dr. Tugwell. They quote from his book, "Industrial Discipline," in which he advocated federal control and distribution of corporate surpluses. FDR's foes have discovered that the surest means of discrediting his experiments is to attribute them to the Columbia professor. In some cases they have held him responsible for policies he never heard about until he saw them in the headlines.

Treasury strategists sniff at this propaganda. At Secretary Morgenthau's first tax conference with the press he and Counsel Herman Oliphant emphasized that the original idea was born on Capitol Hill twenty years ago. They slipped the thought to White House Secretary Early and he passed it on to the newspapermen he meets. The Oliphant-Early school scoffs at the idea of Tugwellian parentage and pray that their scoffings will impress Congress.

FUNDS: President Roosevelt got a pessimistic picture of party finances at his recent luncheon with Publicist Michelson and Party Treasurer Forbes Moran. Many checkdrawers who backed FDR in 1932 are now contributing to the Republican National Committee or the American Liberty League.

So the Democrats propose to make a virtue of necessity. They will raise their campaign funds from chains of nationwide dinners and contributions by the "little fellows." On a smaller scale the Jefferson Day banquets are expected to supplement the $300,000-odd collected from the high-priced dinners staged in honor of the unostentatious Andrew Jackson. The Democrats' only regret is that there are not more Democratic anniversaries between now and November to cash in on. They're making another check of political saints whose birth days fall in the summer or early fall months.

Here's a bird's-eye view of Democratic finances at this writing: They have paid off all creditors, including John Raskob, and show a balance of about $200,000 as a result of the Jackson Day collection and Philadelphia's underwriting of the national convention. But they need at least $2,000,000 for campaign costs. Where to raise the balance of $1,800,000 puzzles everybody from the President down.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin

HOURS: New York conservatives are alarmed about one phase of the President's outwardly gentle relief message. It's figured his reference to industrial cooperation for the solution of unemployment foreshadows new legislation to regulate hours and wages if he is reelected.

Some astute analysts call these fears archaic. They cannot see any possible solution of the jobless problem except shorter hours and prophesy that unless industry applies this remedy on its own initiative the government will be obliged to step in. Otherwise consuming can never become adjusted to production's capacity and large scale federal relief will develop into a permanent institution.

From 1898 to 1918 the average industrial work week was reduced by 10 hours—half an hour a year. This kept employment roughly in balance with increasing population and improvements in production technique. If this rate of reduction had been continued from 1918 to the present work week would now be 35 hours—and a lot more people would have jobs with private employers.

ECONOMIC: Keen observers predict that Roosevelt's shattering of political lines—a process that began under Hoover when the dropped the Coolidge grassroots connections—will turn out to be one of the most important developments of this regime in terms of long-range consequences.

They figure it will result in a major realignment of parties by 1940—with the new parties standing for definite economic principles instead of meaningless political traditions. Growth of the LaFollette nucleus for a left wing party composed of Progressives, Farm Laborites, Socialists and perhaps a large section of organized labor is being watched by New Yorkers in this connection.

Careful surveys of public sentiment all over the country give evidence of a strong undercurrent headed to the left. If this trend continues those who seek to preserve the status quo by old-fashioned political methods—ignoring basic changes in economic problems—are forecast now as likely to end up out of luck.

TROUBLE: Whether or not the Hopkins relief machine is to be investigated by Congress, the public is to have a lot of information. Senators belonging to both parties are determined to ventilate some of the political phases of relief. Their sources of information include several great business organizations with first class local branches everywhere.

Raw work by Hopkins' underlings in the states is responsible for much of the trouble that's coming. The over the rate to the rail terminal. A shipper who prefers to arrange his own local haulage would be allowed a rebate of only five cents a hundred pounds—considerably less than the cost of trucking. The net result would be to kill off most of the local truckmen, as they cannot possibly compete with the railroads on that basis.

There's an unusual angle behind the scenes. New York truck owners are privately encouraging their own employees to strike if this "horrible injustice" is consummated. The strike would have two objectives—to dramatize the truckers' plight and to cripple the railroad's local delivery. Such a walkout would be plenty rough. As one truck owner privately puts it: "Our boys would cover the waterfront and how!"

I may be an "old timer" yet I keep in touch with new things. And when any new thing is better, that's what I want.

Ever since I learned the Department of Agriculture and Immigration of Virginia reported that contained extra nitrogen over the guaranteed 16% with an extra cash value as high as 88¢ per ton, I have used no other.

I know the value of extra nitrogen and I make sure to get that extra value.

C. A. UPCHURCH IS PRESS AIDE

Raleigh Newspaper Man to Aid in McDonald's Race.

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, March 25.—Campaign headquarters for Dr. Ralph W. McDonald, the anti-sales tax candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, will be opened on the seventh floor of the Sir Walter Hotel here Thursday. It was announced today by W. L. Lumpkin of Louisburg, his campaign manager. It was also announced that McDonald has appointed C. A. Upchurch, Jr., as his publicity manager. Upchurch was for many years a reporter on the staff of the News and Observer here, has covered several sessions of the general assembly and has a broad knowledge of the workings of the state government and the general political background.

McDonald formally filed as a candidate Tuesday and paid over the filing fee of $105 to R. C. Maxwell, secretary of the State Board of Elections. This act has served to set at rest rumors which have been current for some time that McDonald might never actually file and pay the filing fee required of all candidates for Governor.

McDonald is now on a speaking tour in the western part of the state and is not expected to return to his headquarters here until some time next week, Lumpkin said. There are three other candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, as follows: Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby; Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham of Hillsboro and John A. McRae of Charlotte. Two of these, Hoey and Graham, already have state campaign headquarters open here, state campaign managers and publicity directors.

The Graham headquarters, on the tenth floor of the Sir Walter Hotel, is presided over by Campaign Manager Lon Folger of Mount Airy and Ronald Wilson as publicity director. The Hoey headquarters, on the ninth floor of the Sir Walter, is presided over by Hubert Olive of Lexington as campaign manager and with Robert L. Thompson as publicity man.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood—The scrape of steel is heard from one end of Hollywood to the other. Rapier and daggers flash and clash. Romantic heroes cry "En Garde"—and thrust. And villains die by the sword.

It is another era of prosperity for Fred Cavens, fencing master, actor, director. Costume romances mean more work at his favorite sport for this Belgian-born son of French parents, a fencer since the age of 12, and fencing instructor to Hollywood since 1921.

Cavens lists most of the great swashbucklers of the films among his pupils. He taught Douglas Fairbanks, John Barrymore, Ian Keith, Rod LaRocque, the late John Gilbert and Milton Sills, and Errol Flynn of "Captain Blood," to cite a few.

Teaching a Barrymore

Now he is concluding work with Leslie Howard, Basil Rathbone, Reginald Denny, Ralph Forbes and again John Barrymore, for "Romeo and Juliet."

Feminine movie stars also have been taught to thrust and parry by Cavens. Jean Muir, Norma and Constance Talmadge, and Bebe Daniels were pupils. Although women learn quickly, Cavens insists fencing is "too strenuous" for a girl's sport.

Many fans believe that the thrilling duels they see on the screen are "faked" by doubles. Cavens says he would rather instruct an actor in fencing than to use skillful fencers in these scenes. And that is what he does, if he is granted time to train the actors. Lacking time, he is willing to do the scene himself—but he is an actor, and a director, and he knows how movie fencing should be done.

Skilled Fencers Banned.

If skilled fencers fight for the camera, referees, result of long training, that must be overcome. Their work is too fast, also, to register. Actors are not burdened by these reflexes, and they remember to act, which is important.

Cavens had eight weeks to prepare Howard, Barrymore, et al, for many duels of "Romeo and Juliet." He found all of them good pupils—and all of them are doing their own duelling.

A movie duel, under Cavens' direction, is "broader" than a real encounter, but technically correct as to all the fine points. The "broadness" permits the opponents to register dramatic reactions.

CHAIN LETTERS REVIVED TO HELP RELIEF CLIENTS

arboro, N. C. (AP)—Discontinuance of federal relief funds created a problem for the county welfare department, so Mrs. E. L. Forbes, welfare officer, thought of last year's chain letter craze. She placed a box in a local drug store to receive subscriptions, then called five women over the telephone, asking them to donate a dollar each and to write letters to five other women, asking them to do the same. First day's result: $15 in the till.

FAVORS AUTOS FOR OFFICERS

Director of Patrol Force Would Like More Cars

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, March 26.—Fewer patrolmen would be killed and injured and the state highway patrol could undoubtedly function more effectively, if it had more patrol cars and fewer motorcycles, so that patrolmen could use patrol cars exclusively in wet weather and on night patrol duty, Assistant Commissioner of Revenue M. C. S. Noble Jr., said here today. Not only would more patrol cars serve to reduce the hazards of patrolmen by providing greater safety for them, but would in the long run save money for the state by reducing the number of patrolmen injured and killed each year in accidents, he believes. But the highway patrol cannot spend any more money for patrol cars unless the Budget Bureau approves such an expenditure and finds that the money is available.

So far this year one patrolman has been killed and about 15 injured in accidents, and one of which occurred while patrolmen were riding motorcycles. Within the past week one patrolman was killed and hardly a week passes that one is not injured. Patrolman C. L. Fidler of Davidson was killed last week when a truck made a left hand turn in his path and he swerved into a telephone pole in order to keep from colliding with the truck.

Whenever a patrolman is killed while on active duty, it costs the state $6,300 in workmen's compensation and funeral expenses. This is enough to buy eleven patrol cars at $570 each, it is pointed out. The state has already paid out thousands of dollars in doctor and hospital bills for injured patrolmen, which would buy still more cars. In the course of a year, it is believed that enough is paid out in compensation, hospital and doctor bills to equip the patrol with enough cars and that these cars would prevent many accidents and injuries.

There are indications that Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus and the Budget Bureau are giving serious consideration to the purchase of more patrol cars.

MARKET REPORT

New York Cotton

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, three higher to four lower with near months steady on trade price fixing and new crop positions lower under foreign selling and hedging.

The market was steady at the end of the first hour, with old crop positions two to three points net higher and new crops one to three lower.

May sold up to 11.16 with old crop months generally showing net advances of five to nine points at midday while the new crop was one higher to two lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, March 26.—(AP)—Leading stock market industrial brushed a new five year ceiling today with gains ranging from fractions to a point for the majority and four or more in scattered issues.

Even the rails, discouragingly backward recently, rallied in the wake of the motors and favored specialties. The activity on the advances was inclined to enlarge moderately.

The late tone was steady. Transfers approximately 2,000,000 shares.
