Soviet Sources Declare Russo-Japanese Conflict Is Threatened By Battle

Manchoukuo A n Outer Mongolia Engage in Fighting

SCENE OF BATTLE DISPUTED QUERY

Spokesman Says Serious Responsibility Would Dissolve If Fighting Continues

(Copyright by Associated Press)
A 24-hour battle which informed Soviet sources asserted contained the danger of another Russo-Japanese war was reported in Moscow to have ended today.

The battle was fought on the border between Manchoukuo, the Japanese created empire, and outer Mongolia, the Soviet asserted state which the Chinese government claims is a part of China.

Russian sources said the battle was fought in Mongolia; the Japanese general headquarters in Hsinking claimed it was fought in Manchoukuo.

Each party to the dispute claimed the other had used airplanes and one Japanese source implied that the Mongols used poison gas.

Official advice received in Moscow from Mongolia and the Manchoukuo and Japanese had been forced to retreat from Mongolian territory.

Mongolia recently concluded a mutual assistance pact with Russia, under which the Red army is pledged to go to the assistance of Mongolia in case of unprovoked aggression.

A Soviet spokesman said "serious responsibility" would devolve on the Japanese government if the fighting in Mongolia continued.

Competent authorities close to the war and foreign offices in Tokyo said that if the Mongol claim of an invasion was correct they were inclined to believe that the troops on the border had acted without Tokyo orders.

Higher Lighthouse Off Cape Hatteras Is Worthy Project

Area Described as Most Dangerous Point Along Coast Line and Referred to as Graveyard

Washington, April 1.—Two of the five state parks in North Carolina, which are being developed by the National Park Service, Arno B. Cammerer, director, in cooperation with that state, are of national significance.

The lighthouse at Cape Hatteras Park is the highest brick structure of its kind in the United States, being completed in 1870. Standing 193 feet above the surf, its 80,000 candle power beam is thrown 20 miles to the sea. The sentinel itself is spirally painted black and white.

All the skippers call Cape Hatteras the most dangerous point along the coast line on either side the Atlantic or Pacific. It has been alluded to as the Atlantic's graveyard within several yards of the base of the lighthouse, which was more than a mile inshore when it was erected. Plans have been made to replace it with a skeleton tower on higher ground inland.

HITLER OFFERS NEW PROPOSAL REPLACE PACT

Commission Would Control All Border Frontiers

VON RIBBENTROP DELIVERS TERMS

Under Proposals Both Sides Would Refrain From Casting Aspersions

(Copyright by Associated Press)
Berlin, April 1. — (AP)—Adolf Hitler in a memorandum to Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, proposed today negotiations covering a period of four months for what might be termed a new Locarno pact replacing the pact broken by Germany.

During these negotiations Der Fuehrer suggested Germany, France and Belgium should accept control of their frontiers by a commission of one representative each from Great Britain, Italy and one neutral power.

Both sides—Germany, which remilitarized the Rhineland in violation of the Locarno pact, and France and Belgium, which protested this action—should refrain from casting aspersions on each other, either in publications, public utterance or teachings.

A plebiscite of the three peoples involved was proposed by Hitler to give solemn sanctions to the work of the statesmen, once the negotiations were concluded successfully.

These negotiations, with neither side to increase its military forces along the border zone, would be followed by a general conference for limitation of armaments.

The terms offering Hitler's way out of the Rhineland impasse were disclosed today after Joachim von Ribbentrop, Der Fuehrer's ambassador at large, carried them to London to be presented today to Eden.

TO CRACK DOWN ON SCHOOL LAW

Welfare Officer Declares He Will Take Stern Measures

K. T. Futrell, public welfare officer, stated emphatically today that if parents continued to permit their children to remain out of school in violation of the state school law, he would start criminal proceedings against them.

He announced that prosecution seems to be pending in a number of cases throughout the county, adding that had weather during the first months of the year kept several families in the habit of keeping their children out of school. He said that now, since the weather has cleared up, parents were slow in getting their children back in their respective schools in several communities in the county.

Principals of the various schools involved have notified the welfare officer and the families have been advised to comply with the school law.

Mr. Futrell said a great deal of patience has been given these families and that the welfare officer had cooperated in the way of meeting needs in indigent families. "But from this date on, stern measures will be used for the families who are indifferent and appear not to have the interest of their children at heart to cooperate with school officials in keeping their children in school," he added.

He added, however, that he hoped the citizen would cooperate and such action would not be necessary.

The North Carolina school law provides that every parent or guardian of a child between the ages of seven and fourteen years shall cause such child to attend school continuously for a period equal to the time which the public school in the district in which the child resides shall be in session.

The welfare officer is charged with the enforcement of the law.

FAST JUSTICE IS METED OUT

Crime Committed, Defendants Sentenced in Few Hours

A case of speedy justice was effected here last night and today, four negroes convicted of larceny and receiving 14 chickens having been convicted and sentenced in County court at the morning session.

Ray Harper, Charlie Mabry and Annie Carr were convicted of having stolen the chickens from the farm of Jim King, three miles from the city on the old Stantonburg road, last night.

The chickens were of the game variety and the owner said he paid as much as $15 for one of them.

Local police officers were informed of the theft about sun-up today and they immediately went into action and a short while later had found the fowls at the homes of the negroes.

White was given four months and the other defendants six months each on the roads. One of the largest dockets in some time was disposed of at this week's session of the court, which extended until this morning.

Prayer for judgment was continued in the case charging Frank Watson of near Black Jack with assault with a deadly weapon. He was ordered to pay the costs of court and also ordered to appear at each term of the court to show that he had refrained from drinking whiskey and had been of good behavior.

G. E. Cherry, Jr., was acquitted of a charge of giving a worthless check. Lizzy Green was ordered to pay $25, the costs to be deducted, on a charge of selling whiskey. If she fails to pay she was ordered to jail for 90 days.

Willie Jones was given four months on the roads, suspended upon good behavior, on a charge of having liquor for sale.

CASUALTIES BIG, REPORT SAYS

7,000 Ethiopians Reported Slain with More Than Thousands Italians Dead

Rome, April 1.—(AP)—Italy's northern army smashed through to its first major victory over the troops of Haile Selassie—led by the Emperor himself—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, reported today in an official communique.

Badoglio announced that 7,000 Ethiopians were killed and that the Italian forces had suffered more than 1,000 casualties.

The fascist commander-in-chief said the Ethiopian King of Kings fought personally in the battle yesterday in the Lake Ashangi sector 30 miles south of the former principal Italian front lines at Amba Alaja.

Marshal Badoglio's communique said:

"Yesterday the negus (emperor) started a great battle with his best troops in the Lake Ashangi zone.

"The battle, which was extremely violent in certain phases, concluded with a victory for our troops."

EXPERT URGES INVESTIGATION

Wants Governor To Probe Origin Wood Used in Ladder

Washington, April 1.—(AP)—Arch W. Loney, PWA materials expert said today he had urged Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey to investigate the origin of the board from which part of the Lindbergh kidnap ladder reportedly was made.

Loney said a carpenter named Boyer had told him that a 20-foot board was bought from the national lumber company—the Bronx firm which had sold lumber to Bruno Richard Hauptmann—a week after Hauptmann's arrest.

"It looks like somebody bought the board and put it in Hauptmann's home," Loney, who last week accompanied the Governor on an inspection trip of the Hauptmann home, told newsmen.

Loney said Hoffman telephoned here about 4:30 yesterday afternoon to ask if he had additional suggestions beyond his previous report.

"I told the Governor," Loney said, "the ought to investigate whether a 20-foot board, one by six inches, was bought from the National Lumber Company. He said he would."

Quote Townsend as Saying Might be Millions in Plan

Indictments Returned Against Townsend Old-Age Pension Manager Submitted to Committee

Washington, April 1.—(AP)—A written statement by Dr. F. E. Townsend that "it looks to me as if there might be millions in it" was submitted today to the House committee investigating the Townsend old age pension plan.

Previously three indictments returned against Edward J. Margrett, San Francisco area manager of the Townsend old age pension organization, were submitted to the committee by James R. Sullivan, its counsel.

Sullivan said two indictments charged grand larceny and the other, in Kings county, Washington, charged him with accepting the earnings of a common "prostitute."

Crippled Persons Throughout Pitt are Given Training

Representative of State Rehabilitation Bureau Completes Interview With Aided Cripples

Horace E. Springer, representative of the State Rehabilitation Bureau, has just completed interviewing a number of crippled and otherwise disabled persons in Pitt County that come under the State Rehabilitation Bureau. This work is done in cooperation with the Department of Public Welfare of the County.

Mr. Springer said he was highly pleased with the cases in Pitt county that he has in training in various places.

The Rehabilitation Bureau takes people who have been injured and who have become incapacitated through disease but are capable of being trained for other vocations and place them in training. The Department has several in training in Pitt County at the present time and several hundred in the state.

There has been, since the department opened, approximately one hundred cases in Pitt County who have been trained for useful employment. This service is available to any persons sixteen years of age who have become incapacitated through disease or accident.

Crippled persons who have been forced to change their vocation through loss of limb or sight by disease or accident may get application blanks at the County Welfare Office to apply for this service.

His respite was for "at least 48 hours" and it came from an unexpected source—the Mercer county grand jury which convened unexpectedly yesterday to consider charges that another man, the mid-die-aged Paul H. Wendel was the kidnap-killer of the infant son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

The possibility of Hauptmann's escaping the death chair beyond tomorrow night grew as the grand jury delayed until tomorrow morning further consideration of the Wendel alleged confessions of the crime.

It was Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, prison warden, "acting entirely on my own responsibility," cancelled the execution at 8:05 p. m. — five minutes after the hour set.

"The Mercer county grand jury," Col. Kimberling said, "has asked me to hold off the execution for 48 hours. There are some interesting new angles in the case they wish to investigate."

"The delay in the execution is for at least 48 hours. It may be Thursday or Friday. I am making a further statement later."

Trenton, N. J., April 1.—(AP)—Col. Mark O. Kimberling, warden of the New Jersey state prison, announced this afternoon that Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution has been set for Friday night at 8 o'clock.

Kimberling said though, that is the Mercer county grand jury at whose request Hauptmann's execution was delayed last night, is still in session he would probably again defer execution.

Trenton, N. J., April 1.—(AP)—The sensational Lindbergh case, till reeling from the literally last minute halting of Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution last night, was threatened with further startling developments today.

The new break, the nature of which was not disclosed, promised to come from the Mercer county grand jury's investigation of charges that the murder of the Lindbergh baby was done by Paul H. Wendel, now held under a formal charge in the county jail here.

The Mercer county prosecutor, Erwin Marshall, announced that the jury's investigation, scheduled to have been resumed this afternoon, had been deferred until tomorrow morning to permit him to inquire into circumstances surrounding Wendel's "detention" at Mercer.

Holly in February by the nationally known Burlington county detective chief, Ellis Parker.

Parker conducting his own unofficial investigation of the Lindbergh murder in the firm belief that Hauptmann was not guilty of the crime, these "confessions" which Wendel subsequently repudiated, but which were largely the basis on which the grand jury won the delay in Hauptmann's execution plans last night.

The exact nature of the developments could not be made public immediately, a high source said, but it was indicated it would be sensational.

John Kafes, Wendel's attorney, announced today that Wendel asked the grand jury for permission to appear before it today and that he believed he could show the alleged "confessions" were untrue and that there had been a "conspiracy to obstruct justice."

An associate in the defense of Wendel said Department of Justice operatives had started an investigation of Wendel's claim he was kidnapped in New York, tortured and detained against his will before he made the "confessions" to the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Trenton, N. J., April 1.—(AP)—Once more Bruno Richard Hauptmann has dodged his date with death, this time—most dramatically—of all—an unprecedented action which today gave him new chances for life.

While his executioner awaited his coming in the little room of last hopes in the state prison last night, the man, thrice sentenced to die for the Lindbergh baby murder, was almost literally snatched from the electric chair.

TESTING: You can grasp the key to President Roosevelt's reemployment strategy only when you realize that Donald Richberg is now the administration's industrial prime minister.

The erstwhile Blue Eagle chieftain framed the relief message which warned industry that it must furnish more jobs or face new policies and heavier expenditures. He inspired the belated restudy of the benefits of NRA codes, and he is furnishing ideas for Secretary Rogers' unemployment advice to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Richberg's basic theory is that government and industry can solve the unemployment problem if they will tackle it together and forget their private grouches.

President Roosevelt's unadvertised plan contemplates a hands-off policy for one year—until after the election. During that period he will quietly spike pending measures for further regulation of industry, including the 30-hour bill and the proposal to apply NRA standards to government contractors. But if industry has not expanded and provided jobs by that time, he will demand a showdown. He will sponsor a program for federal regulation, shorter hours and higher wages.

The finishing touches are being put on the traffic light system now preparatory to placing it in operation within the near future. The system of traffic lights is being put in here to make our city streets safer for pedestrians and motorists. If this end is to be gained our people must obey the traffic signals. The best and only way to impress upon our people the necessity of obeying the traffic signals is court punishment for those who run through intersections against the red lights. If our people pay no more attention to the traffic lights than they have heretofore paid to the stop signs at various city intersections the lights will be worthless.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, alleged kidnap-murderer of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was literally snatched from the electric chair last night when his execution was stayed 48 hours as he was beginning his last walk to the death chamber. If there is any possibility of Hauptmann's innocence, of course no one wants him to die for the crime, but it is our belief that the public generally will be glad when this case is settled and whatever is going to be done about it is done.

In a number of liquor cases appearing before him yesterday, Judge Dink James meted out road sentences ranging up to 12 months, but in other cases the offenders were let off with small fines. It seems to us that road sentences would be appropriate for all the bootleggers for so long as they can get off with small fines they will continue their bootlegging, hoping between arrests to make enough to pay their fines and then show a profit on their illicit operations. Knowing that road sentences awaited them if they were caught would make a lot of would-be bootleggers wait and count the cost before going into the liquor selling business.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning is at Georgia Blair's "glamorous" cocktail party, the first affair of the sort Iris ever has attended in New York. Iris has been taken up by her wealthy Aunt Phina, who has made a dressmaking shop into a national institution. Her new clothes and friends have taken her mind temporarily off her Aunt Ella and Uncle Will, at home in Persia, Pa. She is talking to awkward Camilla Wendell, who is in love with Iris' brother Owen, and hasn't the art to hide it.

Chapter 23

ENCOUNTER

BUT before Iris could open her letter the light caught the silver of her jacket, and Owen danced near her; he had in his arms someone she did not know, who was caught from him. He stopped beside her.

"Having a good time?" he asked affectionately. Before she could reply, Camilla saw him. Iris could feel the quiver of excitement which ran over all her body.

Camilla, taking the speech as meant for her, answered, "It's—it's wonderful. I'm crazy about parties. I'm—Owen, where were you this morning? I wanted to see you and Miss Phina wouldn't let me—"

Owen sat on the floor in the dusk, touching his sister's shoulder. She could feel his shrug of impatience as he answered.

"I was busy. I have work to do, Camilla, though people like you never seem to think so."

"I—Oh, Owen, I didn't mean to say the wrong thing. I always do put my foot in it. Please forgive me—"

Georgia's carrying voice broke in on them. "Camilla, where on earth are you? There's nobody to clear off the glasses, the tables are simply full of them. Take a candle and do it, will you?"

Camilla lumbered to her feet obediently, casting one last despairing look at her lost joys in the person of Owen, as she went.

"I wish she'd leave me alone," Owen said. "Because some day I'll get so discouraged about everything—Sigrd hard as nails about marrying me unless I drop doing what I ought to do, and hating doing it—that I'll marry that woman. And, I suppose, make her life a misery, and she's a decent sort."

He spoke, not irritably, but with a despondent note in his voice.

"Owen, Owen, you mustn't do that! I'm dreadfully sorry for her. I don't see how she can be so open about being in love with you, but I couldn't be with her and not feel that she's honest, and dreadfully unhappy. I'm sorry for her. I don't believe anybody has ever loved her or been kind to her in her life, the way she acts."

"No. That's where I got into trouble. Her mother wanted a beautiful attractive daughter, and has punished Camilla all her life for looking like her father. Old Wendell is the ugliest man you ever saw. Her mother hoped my silly designs could do something for her—if anyone can, Phina can make people look as they should—and I was sorry for her and showed it. Result—as you see. She doesn't mean to be forward she's like a bewildered, bullied child. She has a good brain really."

Iris stood there a moment, thinking, the candle in her hand making her a picturesque illuminated figure in the dusky corner between the tall wooden Madonna and a teak table full of Chinese images and cocktail glasses.

ALLAN BECKLEY took the candle from her, set it down, and was away with her again.

"I heard you talking," he said. "I think you're wonderful. I want to have a dinner-party for you. It's your duty—his voice was a little teasing—"to attend it. I'll get my grandmother to matronize it."

He said the last sentence as if he were offering her a jewel of great price instead of a grandmother; she wondered who the grandmother might be that having her as a chaperon was so wonderful, and then decided that he was simply one of those people who think everything they have is wonderful because it belongs to them. But he was kind!

It was getting late. People were drifting away from the party, some of them speaking to Georgia, some merely piling out as though from a restaurant. There were more lights now disclosing the ash-trayed, devastated place; a couple of the caterer's men Camilla was paying for, bored and obviously hoping everyone else would go, fussed about the ruins of sandwiches and glasses and overturned chairs and rolled-up rugs.

leagues in House and Senate are quietly cooking up a scheme to squelch his lobby inquiry. His aggressiveness has provoked both Capitol Hill and the White House, though nobody dares to admit it for fear he might be accused as a lobbyist.

It's reported Mr. Black has said he will abandon his investigation as soon as an anti-lobby measure becomes law. Even if he didn't, the courts would force him to. Judges have held that Senate investigations, including their subpoenas and third-degree tactics, have legal Georgia, sharp and bright-lipped in her red, lounged up with a couple of men; Camilla trotted heavily behind her.

"Oh, are you going to have a party, Allan? Oh, ask me!" Camilla cried with a heavy gaiety which Iris realized masked desperation.

"Oh, all right," Allan's voice trailed languidly.

Georgia, assuming with cool nonchalance that she too had been asked, said: "Make it a stunt party. Everybody but the host has to do tricks—or bring somebody who does them."

"I know a wonderful fortune teller I can hire," Camilla shrieked.

"I'll dance, of course," Georgia went on. "And I suppose Iris does something wonderful." Her voice was soft and silky.

"I can sing—my grandmother's songs," said Iris. "In costume, if you like." All alight and excited, she smiled up at Georgia.

"That," said Georgia, "will be wonderful. We'll feature you. Beautiful unknown, doing Songs of the Seventies! I can just see you. Remember, you won't be let off. It'll be priceless. And now, darling, I simply have to throw you all out. Or revel on without me. Got to be on my way. Good-by, beautiful unknown! Crazy about having you!"

She was off and up toward the dressing rooms.

The others seemed to see nothing unusual in this. Some of them followed her to the place where wraps were. Others merely turned the radio to a dance orchestra number, and continued to glide among the caterer's men. As Iris turned to follow the others upstairs Camilla put a hot heavy hand on her arm.

"I WANT to tell you something," she said in her schoolgirl whisper. "I like you and I want you to be friends with me. You can, I don't do things to people. But Georgia does. She doesn't go out of her way to, but if people get into it, she's horrid. When she talks in that specially purr way is when you want to watch out, if she is my cousin."

"She and Allan make a sort of game out of everything. They're always had everything; they feel as if the world belonged to them, and other people were—serfs, kind of, and they kings and queens. You don't; you're real and kind, and you'll get hurt."

"All right, I'll be careful," Iris said lightly—poor frightened Camilla, with whom Georgia had evidently been severe! Camilla, she thought, had been seeing too many movies. "And I'll see you at Allan Beckley's dinner."

And she ran up the stairs. They did not really feel like stairs. They felt like walking on air.

Allan was close behind her.

"We haven't settled the date of our dinner," he said. "Would Thursday a week—"

"Grand!"

She felt for something to put it down on and pulled out Uncle Will's opened letter. As she took Allan's offered pencil and began to make a note on the margin her eyes were caught by the clear old-fashioned writing, and she read it, absently, while Allan stood tall above her waiting.

"I am not quite as well as formerly," wrote Uncle Will—who never overstated, "and your aunt is in bed with a queer sort of collapse. But Morgan manages everything splendidly, and Molly Williams comes in to work by the day and is a host in herself. We miss our little girl, of course, but we are glad she's having a good time."

"Oh, Allan, I can't come to your party!" All the fairy-tale times were swept away, and it showed in her troubled, but steadfast, pretty face, lifted to him on the stairs in the half light. "Not unless it's years off. I have to go home!"

But it was not possible, she found, so say anything before or at dinner. A burly red-cheeked explosive Frenchman, a representative of Molyneux, was dining, and Iris found herself swept into the conversation in her fluent, Aunt Ella-learned French. M. Grioux seemed to like her.

When the guest had gone she called Phina back from her desk, and spoke to her with resolution, straightening up from the low old mound of silver cloth on one side the strange modernistic fireplace. It was chilly; logs had been brought from some invisible hiding-place and were burning as docilely as most things did for Aunt Phina.

"I'm afraid I must go back to Persia, after all. Uncle Will is ill, and Aunt Ella seems in a curious sort of state, from what he says."

"Go back, you foolish baby? That would upset everything."

But the Senate has passed Black's anti-lobby bill and the House is ready to act on a companion measure introduced by Rep. Smith of Virginia. It is cloakroom talk that both chambers will quickly reconcile differences in the bills and send some sort of measure to the White House for signature. Mr. Roosevelt's okay will be the signal for the Senator from Alabama to close up his and Herbert Hoover must cross swords sooner or later—and yet both are trying to head off Governor Landon. If they should strike a compromise somewhere along the line it would be hard for the Kansan to win. There may not be badges on Hoover delegates, but there will be plenty men in the convention.

ANNOUNCEMENT!
I wish to announce to the Voters of Pitt County that I am a candidate for re-nomination and re-election to the House of Representatives from Pitt County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary, June 6th, 1936. Your vote, confidence and continued support will be appreciated.
JOHN HILL PAYLOR.

A knockdown fight between the Borah and Hoover factions would help Landon, but Republicans who really yearn for success are afraid a Landon victory in those circumstances would hurt the party's chances in November.

Eastern big-money men realize that if they show their hand too openly in backing Landon they will stiffen Borah-Hoover opposition to him. Some of them favor encouraging a compromise before the fires of internal party dissension get too hot to quench.

BREATHES: Congressional inflationists have quietly hauled down their flag. Their roars for nice fresh paper money have died to a whisper and will not be revived at this session.

Congressman Patman—the loud-est lion of them all—remarked the other day that he was satisfied he corporate surplus tax would redistribute wealth as effectively as his pet printing-press measure. Financial insiders understand that most of his inflationary colleagues share this view.

The surplus tax proposal is developing more angles than a centipede has legs. One New York big timer who has recovered from his early trepidation about it remarks that the new levies would be a modest price for business to pay if they give it a breathing spell from the schemes of monetary wild men.

SLIP: Some of the keenest commodity analysts in Wall Street forecast much bigger crops of wheat, corn and rye this year as a result of recent weather conditions. As a corollary they figure grain quotations are due to slip before down. Farmers could quickly for this fall. If this happens it might get past New Deal favors for their turn election calculations upside crops went into a tailspin.

Arrives To Coach Plays. Miss Helen Dorch arrived from Goldsboro yesterday to take charge of the direction of the rehearsals of the one-act plays to be presented by the Senior-Normal class on Tuesday night of next week, April 7.

Miss Dorch guided the class committee in the selection of the plays and spent some time on the campus selecting the cast, getting the actors started with their roles, and outlining the work of the various committees.

The committees and members of the cast have been hard at work during her absence and the results can be seen in the speed with which they are putting things together for the intensive rehearsals under Miss Dorch's skilled direction.

The members of the stage committee have been busy getting the scenery ready for the three plays, which require very different backgrounds.

The bill includes "Agatha," a Carolina Playmakers Play which is a costume play, "The Threshold," and "Leap-Year Bride," a comedy. Miss Catherine Cassidy is the class advisor.

I've read "Uncle Remus" and heard sung "Old Black Joe." I've seen my share of pictures, and many a stage show. I've read books that made me feel buoyant and gay.

My feeling about these—well that's the way I'll feel at Carolina Minstrels—What night? Friday. —(Adv.)

No Presbyterian Prayer Service. Contrary to previous announcement, the mid-week service at the First Presbyterian Church will not be held tonight.

The minister and members of the Christian Church wish not only to avoid any conflict but also to make it possible for all members to hear one of the most gifted preachers in America. Monogram Club To Sell Tickets. The Monogram Club of the Greenville High School is selling tickets for the Carolina Minstrel Show which is sponsored by their fellow athletes, the Varsity Club of the college.

Nine of the old Greenville High School girls and boys are in the show, and the director-author, Miss Lorraine Hunter, at one time taught in the high school.

The Varsity Club is composed of the athletes who make letters in sports and the annual show is for the purpose of buying sweaters for the new members. The leaders in sports are perhaps better known to the townspeople than any other college boys because of the match games which are the campus activities most popular with the public.

Members of the Varsity Club are not the only ones in the show, as they have conscripted "talent" wherever they have found it. About half of the performers are girls.

The Smith twins in the fifth grade at the Training School, Epileptic and the Mamma, are the youngest in the plantation family.

The interactor, a former student, is a veteran on the college stage, well known to Greenville audiences. "Bunt" Bostic.

Miss Nola Walters played for him, Wesley Bankston, Misses Margaret Bank, Marion Wood, and Ione Lane played a violin number accompanied by Clifton Crawford.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. "Reality" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, March 29, 1936.

The Golden Text was from Peter 1:25, "The word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people." (Matt. 9:35).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Health is not a condition of matter, but of Mind; nor can the material senses bear reliable testimony on the subject of health. The Science of Mind-healing shows it to be impossible for aught but Mind to testify truly or to exhibit the real status of man. Therefore, the divine Principle of Science, reversing the testimony of the physical senses, reveals man as harmoniously existent in Truth, which is the only basis of health; and thus Science denies all disease, heals the sick, overthrows false evidence, and refutes materialistic logic." (Page 120).

A. A. U. W. Drama Group Meets. Miss Emma L. Hooper delighted the A. A. U. W. Drama Study Group with the reading of Shaw's Saint Joan at Ragsdale Hall on Monday evening. "There is something about the girl," this Joan—yes, the power that commonsense has over stupidity; the tragedy of a fixed purpose that can recognize no barriers placed by convention; the loneliness of a great and simple spirit finally canonized but never understood by those she helped. For more than five hundred years, the world has seen in this girl "a bit of a miracle."

In 1429 she came, a simple country girl, to Captain Robert de Baudricourt with this startling statement: "Captain, you are to give me a horse and armor and some soldiers, and send me to the Dauphin. Those are your orders from my Lord." When in a dream Charles saw the Maid of 1920—her mission accomplished, her martyrdom suffered, her name called Venerable and Blessed—she exclaimed: "O God that maddest this beautiful earth, when will it be ready to receive Thy saints? How long, O Lord, how long?"

"There is something about this girl," Shaw portrayed it, and Miss Hooper passed it on effectively and beautifully.

Miss Grisby, leader of the Drama Group, announced that the next reading would be First Lady, given by V. M. Mulholland.

CAMP CHARLES DATES STATED

East Carolina Scouts Announce Dates for Summer Camp

Within the past week Scoutmasters of the sixty-five white troops in the East Carolina Council received individual camp bulletins for the Scouts of their unit, announcing Camp Charles will open as a mass camp from June 7th through July 19th. A colored camp for the fourteen colored troops will be held the last week in July on the Pamlico river.

Camp Charles, Council Camp for the 1500 Scouts, is located seventeen miles from Wilson, near Bailey, N. C.

The 60-acre of the camp include a large lake for swimming, boating and canoeing, adequate summer buildings, and one two-story building, plus a large open-air mess hall to house the scout campers.

Scouts are attracted to Camp Charles by the beautiful nature trails, spacious baseball field, the Council campfire circle, recreational building used especially in inclement weather, a craftship, an archery golf course, and a marksmanship range, besides a program of advancement and instruction that practically guarantees to advance a scout one rank during his stay at the Council Camp.

John J. Sigwald, as Scout Executive, is Camp Director. Mr. Sigwald holds a Red Cross Life Saving Examiner's certificate.

The Assistant Camp Directors this year will be Ralph H. Mozo, Assistant Scout Executive, and Needham Bryan, Expert Camper. This staff will be supplemented by one representative from Wilson, Greenville, Kinston, Rocky Mount, and Washington districts.

Leo Johnson, Camping Chairman of the East Carolina Council, has an excellent committee composed of W. H. Taft of Greenville, E. A. Thompson of Kinston, Paul Holcher, Sr., of Rocky Mount, and E. P. Meredith of Washington. Within the next two weeks this group of men, with the professional leadership, will visit Camp Charles for the purpose of making additional improvements for the camp site. Since last year a number of improvements have been made to the site.

As scouts are carrying home their green folders giving all the details of the camp, parents are being urged to give their approval for prompt registration for at least one week.

A flat rate of a dollar a day, which includes eats, housing, supervision, program, medical care at camp, and all the awards earned at camp, is being charged this year, which is in keeping with other camps in the Southeast.

Each period will open Sunday afternoon and close with a 1 o'clock dinner Sunday following the arrival.

A Court of Honor will be held each Saturday evening in connection with a campfire program.

Visitors are welcomed to the camp, but are asked to restrict visits to Wednesday and Sunday afternoons.

From reveille at 6:30 to taps at 9:30 each day will be filled with the scout method of "Learning by Doing."

Leo Johnson, chairman of Camping Committee on the Council, states that a Rural Camp will be held opening May 31st. Permission has been given for a girls' camp under the direction of Dr. Frank Dean the week of July 19th and in additional arrangements have been made whereby Camp Charles will be used by the Girl Scouts the week of August 2nd. At all other times Camp Charles will be available for troop camping.

Parents and others interested in additional information are invited to write the Camp Director, P. O. Box 1179, Wilson, N. C.

I find both good."

RALEIGH WINS OPENING GAME

High School Baseball Team Goes Down in 10-5 Defeat

The baseball nine of the Greenville high school weakened in the sixth inning yesterday afternoon at the Third Street stadium and saw Coach Allen Nelms, Capital City high schoolers win the first home game "A" conference tilt of the season by a score of 10-5.

The Greens held a 4-3 lead until the sixth inning, when the boys from Raleigh broke the ice and obtained first place, which they held. Howard Hodges and L. G. Hamilton did the mound work for the locals, with Hodges allowing 3 hits and Hamilton 4. Hamilton started in the game as catcher, but was assigned to the mound by the locals' coach, Reynolds May, after the pitching arm of Hodges succumbed after five innings of successful pitching.

Those doing outstanding hurling for the visitors were Wiley Bullock, Karl Hudson, and Preacher Weeks. The next home game of the season will be played here on Friday of this week at the Third Street stadium at 3:30 o'clock, at which time the Greens engage the boys from Wilson in another of a series of class "A" conference games which the Greenville high school has on schedule for the present season.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 1.—(AP)—Strength dominated the stock market today with numerous issues tepping up a fraction to three or more points.

Although trading was not especially lively, it was a little faster than that of the previous session and there was rather a large assortment of new five-year highs in evidence. Motors, steel, rails, oils and industrial specialties were in the front of the advance.

The late stock tone was firm. Transfers approximated 1,750,000 shares.

EXECUTION OF HAUPTMANN IS TENTATIVELY SET FOR 8 O'CLOCK FRIDAY NIGHT

ripped the astonishing case wide open to new possibilities. Legal authorities frankly were in a quandary today as to what might happen next.
C. Lloyd Fisher, chief defense counsel, said he had no idea what avenues were opened by the delay in the execution. So far as he knew there was no precedent.
In the case of an indictment being returned against Wendel, Fisher felt that a way would be found to extend the stay of Hauptmann's execution, but whether such a way would be brought a court of law, the offices of the governor or the court of pardons, Fisher did not know.
