Washington, April 2.—(AP)—The rules committee today gave right-of-way of the House floor to the Kerr bill authorizing states to enter into compact controlling tobacco production and commerce.

Leaders hoped for early consideration to make the program applicable to this year's crop.

The measure involves compact in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia on flue cured tobacco by North Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky on Burley and Kentucky, and Tennessee on fire cured.

The bill also authorizes the Secretary of State to spend up to $300,000 for administrative expenses.

Plan Inauguration
Of Traffic System
In City Tomorrow

Lights Expected To Be Cut On; Warning Issued to Motorists, Bicycle Riders, and Skaters

Greenville's traffic lights will be turned on tomorrow, according to an announcement today by city officials, who at the same time warned motorists, bicycle riders and skaters that they would be required to observe the city's new traffic regulations.

Chief George Clark said preparations were going forward today for cutting in the traffic system tomorrow morning, but that due to the rains this morning, during which time work was delayed, it might be in the afternoon before the lights were ready for their initial test.

Chief Clark called special attention to bicycle riders and said they would be required to observe the traffic lights. He added that if they continued to "crash" the red light, they would be brought into court and prosecuted.

The police chief also called attention of skaters to the new system and warned them to be careful for their own safety and to prevent arrest. He advised pedestrians against jay walking, pointing out that the motorists would be paying attention to the lights and not watching the streets so closely.

Chief Clark emphasized that his force would not allow cars and trucks to stop in the middle of the street. He said that unless they could find a place to park at the curb, they would have to move on. He said this practice had increased lately and all of his men would be instructed to stop the unlawful habit.

With the inauguration of the traffic system, patrolmen will be instructed to keep on the alert for any violator. An officer will be stationed at Five Points at all times, and another will be located on Evans street, between Third and Fourth, so he can keep a close watch on traffic.

Judge Collins Denies Stretz Defense Motion

New York, April 2.—(AP)—Judge Cornelius F. Collins today denied a defense motion in the murder trial of Vera Stretz, 32-year-old university graduate, to dismiss the first degree murder charge against her.

His ruling will make possible a verdict of death in the electric chair, a prison sentence or an acquittal.

The judge announced his decision on the opening of court. He had under advisement yesterday arguments for and against the motion by defense and prosecution attorneys.

ROOSEVELT HOOKS 'MYSTERY' FISH

President Roosevelt, shown on the White House yacht Potomac anchored at Nassau, didn't magnify his fish story when the cameraman asked him how big a fish he caught. The President merely held up two fingers to tell the story. But, he did catch a 27-pound "mystery" fish which he has not been able to classify. (Associated Press Photo)

At Least Forty Persons
Dead Of Southern StormAWAIT SPEECH
BY M'DONALDCandidate to Take to Air Over Statewide Hook-up

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, April 2.—The speech which Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Winston-Salem will make Thursday night over a state-wide radio hook-up in which he is expected to outline his program and platform in greater detail than he has so far, is being keenly awaited in all political circles here. McDonald's supporters are confident he will ride the opposition with the oral machine gun barrage he is expected to turn loose and that the speech will put him out still farther in the lead for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Those opposed to McDonald, however, are just as much interested in the forthcoming speech as are McDonald's own followers and the managers of Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby and of Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Sandy) Graham and their assistants, are going to have ringside seats by radios Thursday night, since they are interested to know two things, as follows:

1. Will McDonald tell how he expects to raise the $25,000,000 in new taxes needed to provide the additional revenue needed to put his program into operation?

2. Will McDonald state his position with regard to the liquor question and say definitely whether he favors a state-wide liquor control plan, with state liquor stores, instead of county liquor stores, with all the revenue going into the state treasury?

Virtually all of those who know anything about the cost of the state government and the amount of revenue needed by the state, agree that the 1937 general assembly will be asked to appropriate at least $15,000,000 more per year for the general fund than the 1935 assembly did, in order to provide for only two of the activities favored by Dr. McDonald—schools and old age benefits. It is agreed that the school forces are going to ask for an increase of about $10,000,000 a year in the school appropriation and try to get it boosted from $21,000,000 a year to $31,000,000 a year, and that under no circumstances will they accept an increase of less than $6,000,000 or a total of $27,000,000. Most observers who have computed the cost of the various educational changes by McDonald are convinced it will take nearer $10,000,000 than $6,000,000 to put his school program into effect. In addition, it is pointed out that he is recommending changing the present laws so that the counties, cities and towns will be forced to levy about $10,000,000 a year in supplementary taxes on property without submitting these supplements to a vote of the people as is required at present.

Tornado Winds Strike
Parts of Georgia and Alabama

Cordele, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—Spring winds and rain storms killed 40 persons in the south-east today. City Manager John Brown reported and did more than one million dollar property damage, with the major loss centered at this Southern Georgia city.

At least 33 were killed in Cordele, Brown said. Eight white persons and 25 negroes.

Seven storm deaths were reported elsewhere in Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina.

Cordele, Ga., April 2.—(AP)—Tornado winds killed at least eight persons in Georgia and Alabama, and inflicted uncounted property damage today in the wake of a storm which struck in west Alabama and the cotton county of south central Georgia.

Six bodies were removed from the wreckage of Cordele homes and business houses and rescue workers said they expected to find others in the heaps of debris.

National guardsmen took up patrol duty.

City Manager John Brown informed Governor Eugene Talmadge "about 12 persons were killed and 70 homes were destroyed."

All available ambulances and hearses were pressed into service to care for the dead and injured. Physicians said "about 50 were injured."

Concord, N. C., April 2.—(AP)—Cyclone winds unroofed houses, uprooted trees, broke windows, disrupted communication lines and caused damages which will run into millions of dollars here early today. No one was reported seriously hurt.

Plans Are Announced For Construction Of ArmoryProposed Building To Be Located on Courthouse Square, By Edwards Building; City and County Joining WPA in Building

Plans for the erection of an Armory for the city of Greenville were announced today by Mayor M. K. Blount, the building to be located on the courthouse square, just beyond the Edwards building on the corner of Evans and Second streets.

The armory will be constructed with the city, county and Works Progress administration cooperating in the project.

After plans practically had been abandoned for the erection of such a building here, J. H. Waldrop, commanding officer of the local unit of the National Guard, took a proposal before the city aldermen and county officials whereby the units could help erect the building and collect rent from the state for the use of the building.

The city and county will provide the location for the armory and will pay for all skilled labor to be used in its construction. It was pointed out that there is not enough such labor on the relief rolls in the county to do the work and the PWA does not employ skilled laborers unless they are on relief.

Plans had been practically completed some time, but details were withheld until the deed had been signed by the owners.

J. H. Coward, county auditor, who has been active in securing the armory, said he knew that other persons would like to have the site at a price higher than the $3,000 paid by the county and city.

The only detail holding up action, work on the building is allocation of funds by the WPA, and officials said they thought this was merely a matter of form and the funds would be appropriated any day.

Original plans called for the construction of the building near Third Street school, but when it was found that the city and county would have to help pay for the construction, a more suitable place for a community building was sought and officials decided on the site near the courthouse.

It is estimated that local funds to be put up for the construction of the building will be liquidated in about 10 or 12 years through rent collected from the State for use by the National Guard.

Mayor Blount said that there was only one possible hitch and he felt sure this could be ironed out satisfactorily. Specifications for the armory call for a lot 117 feet by 138 feet. The proposed site falls a little short of this requirement, it being only 110 feet by 132 feet.

It is hoped the armory can be completed by the end of the fiscal year, June 30. The auditorium will be 58 feet by 100 feet, according to the standard specifications. The building will be 110 feet by 132 feet. Located close to the courthouse, it can be used for various public meetings.

The auditorium may be used by Boy Scouts and for any other purpose the city and county may see fit. In addition to a regular meeting place for members of the National Guard, compartments for locating their equipment will be provided.

The building will be steam heated and Mayor Blount said the architectural design would be a tribute to the city.

The deed for the building will be retained locally and neither the federal nor state governments will have any authority over it. With assurance that rent would be paid by the state for use by the National Guard, Mayor Blount figured that the city and county would soon get their money out of the project. The deed would continue, however, to remain here, despite the fact the federal government will put up part of the labor for construction and all of the material.

JOB: Technological threats to solution of the unemployment problem have at last aroused the government to action. Even though industry tempers hostility toward White House policies with an offer of cooperation, President Roosevelt has evidence that machines are steadily replacing men in the factories.

Industrial Commissioner Lubin has been instructed to inaugurate a thorough-going study of the problem. But industries which were plagued by foolish but costly NRA questionnaires are reluctant to open their books and doors to his investigators. The shadow of the Blue Eagle falls across their scientific studies. Industry, with some justification, is withholding its secrets.

Administration scouts have heard disturbing reports on the installation of labor-saving devices. They get word that the coal industry has bought $60,000,000 worth of machinery which will replace man-power. They hear that the steel industry has invested $100,000,000 in the period.

Manufacturers Associat'n Opposed To New Tax PlanProgram Referred to
As a New Share-the-Wealth Plan

Washington, April 2.—(AP)—American business as represented by the national association of manufacturers assailed the new $799,000,000 tax program before the House Ways and Means committee today as "a new share-the-wealth proposal in disguise."

Noel Sargent, secretary of the organization, suggested that congress postpone action on a "completely unsound" tax plan that would stimulate speculation, penalize group thrift and cause many bankruptcies and in the meantime create a special commission to determine what changes are needed in existing tax policies.

"We submit," Sargent said, "that a tax program which penalizes and discourages the retention of adequate funds for working capital is completely unsound, that not only would this tend to reduce working capital, as well as reserves, but it would tend to prevent accumulation of increased working capital needed to provide for increased work and employment."

As agreed the new tax plan would tend to force distribution of corporate earnings in dividends but asserted the results would be "harmful instead of beneficial."

City's Club Women
To Protest Cutting
Down Shade Trees

To Appear Before Aldermen Tonight to Object to Destroying Trees to Widen Street

Sponsored by the End of the Century Club, representatives of a number of women's clubs will attend tonight's meeting of the Board of Aldermen to protest the removal of trees on Dickinson avenue for the purpose of widening the street and also to ask for the protection of trees in general.

Mayor M. K. Blount announced some time ago that the State Highway and Public Works Commission had agreed to widen the street from Serv-U filling station to the Atlantic Coast Line railroad station at no cost at all to the city.

It would be necessary, however, for the city to furnish the right-of-way, free of cost, to the commission. This would necessitate property owners giving up part of their frontage in some instances.

The proposed widening also would include the line of trees and it would be necessary for them to be cut down to carry out the project.

The women announced that they would contend to the aldermen that the tree were an asset to the city and should not be destroyed.

Raleigh, April 2.—(AP)—Col. Luke Lea, former Tennessee Senator and financier, walked out from the North Carolina state prison a free man today, paroled after serving nearly two years of a six to ten years' sentence for violation of the banking laws.

Smiling a good-bye to Warden H. H. Honeycutt, the former Nashville publisher and banker left the prison at 11:05 a. m. with his son Luke Lea, Jr., and Mrs. Lea.

"I am sorry to leave you," he told Honeycutt, with a farewell handshake.

Col. Lea's parole, announced last night by Governor Ehringhaus, was effective at 10 a. m.

But he delayed leaving the prison in order to complete a report on March activities of the prison hospital.

(Copyright by Associated Press)
A-mara, Eritrea, April 2.—(AP)—(By wireless to Rome)—Italy's northern army and the personal troops of Emperor Haile Selassie maneuvered carefully today toward what was considered the impending death struggle of the war in Ethiopia.

The little rainy season, which had already begun locally in various sections of the northern front, finally set in with characteristic African viciousness, but military authorities asserted the heavy downpour would fail to retard the operations.

The Ethiopian emperor withdrew his forces to await the second phase of the decisive encounter—expected to be an attack by the army of Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

IS UNCERTAINHauptmann's Hopes

of Chair See-SawLIVES ANOTHER
"LAST FULL DAY"Another Stay Expected
if Grand Jury Is Still Deliberating
Tomorrow Night

Trenton, N. J., April 2.—(AP)—Colonel Mark O. Kimberling, prison warden, said today that if the Mercer county grand jury delayed action in the Wendel case beyond the end of this week he would seek "legal advice" as to whether to stay the execution of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

"I'll cross that bridge when I come to it," he added.

Trenton, N. J., April 2.—(AP)—The Mercer county grand jury, so deeply into an investigation of the Lindbergh baby murder that it may bring another death hour execution today for Bruno Richard Hauptmann tomorrow night, heard Governor Harold G. Hoffman and Attorney General David Wilentz today.

It appeared likely the jury would carry its inquiry into tomorrow. There were unconfirmed rumors that Dr. John F. Condon, the Lindbergh intermediary, also would be called before the jury.

The grand jury plunged into its renewed consideration of the Wendel case while charges were popping on the caretaker at the Lindbergh abandoned Hopewell estate—the place of the Lindbergh baby kidnapping—yesterday.

Anton M. Houck, Jr., the Hunterdon county prosecutor, who was the chief assistant to Wilentz in the Hauptmann prosecution at Flemington early last year, charged at the state house that Governor Hoffman was blocking his efforts to learn who committed an alleged assault and battery yesterday upon Joseph Lyons, the caretaker at the Lindbergh estate.

Hauk said five men visited the estate yesterday and in defiance of demands by Lyons that they get out. When they left Hauk said they drove their car so that the caretaker was forced to leap from its path on the road or be run down.

Trenton, N. J., April 2.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's hopes for a further escape tomorrow from the electric chair see-sawed more uncertainly than ever today, pumped to nerve-numbing speed by unprecipitated events.

While the convicted kidnapper of the Lindbergh baby began another "last full day" of life in cell number nine of the death house, Mercer county grand jury renewed debate over whether to indict another man—Paul H. Wendel—for the same crime.

The Mercer county prosecutor's office announced that Governor Harold G. Hoffman would be called before the grand jury's consideration of Wendel's repudiated "confession," that he kidnapped the Lindbergh baby.

The prosecution office said Governor Hoffman would come immediately.

A high state official said that an arrest was expected shortly of a member of the alleged abduction gang which wrung the "confession" from Wendel.

And while the jury debated, other agencies of the law tried to circumvent the Wendel's secret arrest, into the manner into which "his confessions" were obtained by the nationally known detective, Ellis Parker, and into new stories concerning the Lindbergh ransom money which was paid over to an extortionist exactly four years ago tonight.

The jury, at whose request the Hauptmann execution was halted Tuesday night by Warden Mark O. Kimberling, is expected to decide on an indictment before the 8:00 (Continued on page six)

GREENIES SEEK GAIN VICTORY

High School Baseball Team to Meet Wil- son Tomorrow

The Greenville baseball team will meet the Wilson high school nine tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Third Street stadium.

This will mark the third game of the season for the Greenies. The first was dropped to the nine of the Bull City, Durham, and the second to the Raleigh high on Tuesday of this week. The Wilson game holds more promises of victory, however, owing to the fact that the local nine not only profited by their experience in the games, but because they are receiving practice each day which is proving to be very beneficial to them.

Reynolds May, coach of the high school today he was hopeful that the losses recently experienced by his team were not causing any unnecessary alarm among local baseball fans. He added that the season is quite young, and that before it ends some enjoyable baseball games will have been witnessed by those attending.

All citizens who enjoy baseball games are urged to attend the game with Wilson tomorrow afternoon and give the local team all the support that can be afforded. The team's spirit is built on the support of these attending the games.

a better-balanced FERTILIZER

"High-grade, well-balanced fertilizers will usually cost a little more per ton than will low-grade, poorly-proportioned goods, but with tobacco of all crops, costing so much more per acre to produce, ill-proportioning of the essential plant nutrients from the best suited materials can be least afforded... With anything like normal prices, one of the best investments that can be made is that of the proper kinds and amounts of fertilizer."

The above quotation is from TOBACCO FERTILIZER RECOMMENDATIONS FOR 1936, Agronomy Information Circular No. 95 of the North Carolina Experiment Station. The circular recommends well-balanced fertilizer containing 6 to 10% potash for bright tobacco.

THE BEST FERTILIZER you can get for your tobacco is usually the most economical in the long run. An extra hundred pounds of tobacco per acre and a two-cent difference in the average sales price per pound of tobacco can make a tremendous difference in profits.

But even when you buy fertilizer the high-grade, well-balanced mixture is often more economical in cost per unit of plant food than the low-grade, poorly-balanced mixture.

3-8-8 FERTILIZER contains 19 units of plant food. 3-8-3 fertilizer contains only 14 units of plant food. When you buy 3-8-8 instead of 3-8-3 you get 35% more actual plant food. Ask your fertilizer man how little you have to pay for this large amount of valuable extra plant food.

The 35% extra plant food in the 3-8-8 makes it a much better-balanced fertilizer. When you consider all of the work, worry and expense that go into producing a crop of tobacco, the extra cost of 3-8-8 is a small price to pay to be sure you are using a well-balanced fertilizer.

3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER has proved its value throughout the entire bright tobacco belt. Many leading farmers in this section use 3-8-8 or increase the potash in their regular fertilizer to 8% or even more by using extra applications of potash.

Your fertilizer man knows the importance of plenty of potash in tobacco fertilizer. That is why he has 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER on sale. Tell him you want to produce "high-dollar" tobacco in 1936. Tell him you want 3-8-8 TOBACCO FERTILIZER, the fertilizer that contains so much extra-profit-producing plant food at such low cost.

Minstrel At College. The variety of characters and the happy choice of these in the cast, the realistic cabin scene, and the program of catchy songs—both modern and old favorites—of dances and of minstrel howl—cracks, all go to make the third Carolina Minstrel Show, to be given in the Auditorium of the college tomorrow night at eight o'clock, the best ever given at the college.

Sharp contrasts are shown throughout the show. The old home to which the sophisticated sons and daughters return from the city world, is an old-timey cabin with the old darkeys "befe" de wah" types. It is a study in black and white, also, as white people, the plantation owner, his family, and their guests, visit the cabin and form an audience for the black-face show.

Those who have seen the rehearsals have said there is not a dull moment in the show.

'A Peco Heco.' An exceedingly clever April Fool issue of the Teco Echo, the college newspaper, printed in green and orange, appeared under the title "A Peco Heco." The editors and contributors must have had a glorious time getting up the "copy," knowing it would create what they would call a "heat" or a "wow" on the campus. Keen eyes did the peeking and clever hands the heckling, making good their title. Big front page news stories, the sports page, columnist squibs, personals, advertisements, even to the mast-head and editorial columns are in the satirical, fooling vein. There is a lot of good-natured "joshing" of the faculty and fellow students, with perhaps some paying off of old scores slipped in, but all taken with good humored sportsmanship by the victims. While an outsider can see a lot of the fun, most of it is for the initiated on the campus, but the public enjoys seeing the college youth enjoy themselves.

'Victory Divine.' The Easter service of music to be presented in the Eighth Street Christian Church on next Sunday morning, April 5th, promises to be one of unusual interest and beauty. At that time the choir of the Christian Church will render J. Christopher Marks' composition, "Victory Divine." The arrangement is in three major parts entitled "In the Garden," "The Earthquake," and "At the Tomb." There are fourteen sub-divisions under the three general heads and each makes its contribution to the building up of the story of the Crucifixion and Resurrection. Under the direction of Miss Eugenia Thomas, organist and choir director, the choir of the Christian Church has presented some most gratifying programs. Those attending the service Sunday morning are assured an excellent presentation of the Easter story.

Three One-Act Plays. The three one-act plays to be presented by the Senior-Normal Class of the College on next Tuesday night, make an excellent bill-of-fare for an evening's entertainment. The cast of each is well selected.

Two of the actors, Paul Fitzgerald and Billy Tolson, are Greenville boys who have been starring in dramatics in Greenville for several years, beginning with high school plays, continuing through the lower classes in College plays, and taking the courses last year, under Miss Mary Dimberger, in play-production. They are not only taking parts in two of the plays, but are helping with the scenery.

The first of the plays, "Asa's," a delightful costume play with the action just after the Civil War and the place in North Carolina, was written and produced by the Carolina Playmakers.

The second, "The Threshold," is a kind of romantic tragedy, with the present and the past brought together. The last is a modern up-to-date comedy, "A Leap Year Bride."

The Law of the Lone Cub is "The Cub follows Akela; the Cub Helps; the Lone Cub Helps the Cub grow; the Lone Cub Gives good-will."

Kent Alexander has the honor of being the first registered Lone Cub. He lives on Route 3, Columbia, N. C., and is 10 years and 8 months old.

Each Lone Cub is required to have a friend and counselor. Kent Alexander has chosen as his friend and counselor Daniel K. Sawyer of Tyrell county, a farmer. Mr. Sawyer will act as examiner of this Cub in his advancement tests and to encourage this Cub to live the ideas of Cubing.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT

(By The Associated Press)

Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has referred to himself as a national "quarterback," must do most of the actual ball carrying both now and in November—with the aid, of course, of a well-practiced interference.

In the election he meets a team of unpredictable strength; in the warm-up engagement at the Philadelphia convention he faces the possibility of disaffection within his own squad.

In one sense, his eleven is on the offensive, for a President must make positive decisions—and run the risk of a fumble or a tactical error. A series of losses could be disastrous to both quarterback and team; the opposition, broadly speaking, has less to lose.

As President and Democratic nominee-presumptive, he is spared the hardest party work and worry—his is the more difficult task of calling the signals.

Wild Life Program Is Being Launched By Tar Heel Clubs

Plan to Awaken Greater Interest in Small Game Inaugurated by North Carolina 4-H Clubs

College Station, Raleigh, April 2.—A wild life and conservation program, to awaken in rural youths a greater interest in small game, birds and wild plants, is being launched by North Carolina 4-H Clubs.

The wild life, both plant and animal, once so abundant has been greatly depleted, said L. R. Harrill, state 4-H club leader at State College, and something must be done to preserve it.

Boys and girls living in the country have a good opportunity to conserve and restore wild life, he continued, and it is the object of the clubs to encourage them in this program as much as possible.

To stimulate more interest in the work, arrangements have been made to give the club members from each of the four extension districts of the State a week's training at a state wild life and conservation camp with all expenses paid.

The week at camp will be an award to 4-H boys and girls who submit the best reports on their activities between now and August 1, Harrill stated. Any club boy or girl from 10 to 20 years of age is eligible to compete.

One of the requirements will be in the making of a map showing the location on the farm of fields, cultivated crops, forests, pasture, meadows, eroded areas, fences, buildings, springs, streams, and the size, kind, and location of feed crops for game and birds. At the end of the contest, a similar survey will be made to show improvements that will have been carried out.

These maps will also be an aid to club members' parents in the new soil-improvement program, Harrill pointed out.

The club members will also make surveys of birds and animals, study trees, plant wild flowers, build fish ponds, and bird houses, feed birds and game in winter, collect and mount specimens of trees and shrubs, Harrill stated.

FLUSH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste, poisonous matter may develop, causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills at your druggist.

Dean Schaub Says Cotton Production Ought Be Reduced

Says Over-Planting Would Probably Cause Slump in Lint From Present 10 or 11 Cent Level

Raleigh, April 2.—Unless cotton growers hold their production in check this year, prices will very probably slump lower than the 10 and 11 cent level of recent months, warns Dean I. O. Schaub of State College.

If all growers limit their plantings to an average of 75 per cent of their base acreage, he added, they will be in line to receive diversion payments under the soil-improvement program and at the same time they will prevent the production of a price-ruining surplus.

The diversion payments will average around $12.50 an acre in North Carolina. The maximum cotton acreage on which an individual grower may receive a diversion payment is 35 per cent of his base. However, the maximum for a county as a whole is 25 per cent.

In addition, growers may secure soil-improvement payments of $1 an acre by planting soil-building crops on the land taken out of cotton, or other soil-depleting crops, the dean pointed out. Cautioning against the dangers of overproduction, he said, that the carry-over at the end of this crop year will probably be around 9,000,000 bales.

Under the AAA, American cotton production last year, 10,250,000 bales was only slightly under consumption, which was 11,493,000 bales. If all growers should raise cotton on the full amount of their base acreage this year, the dean continued a 15,000,000 bale crop might be produced.

What would happen if such a crop, added to the carry-over, would be thrown on the market? he asked.

same sort of man-saving devices.
But FDR intends to get to the bottom of the problem, if possible.
The question of unemployment has become an obsession with him.

SPONSORS: Those ancient feudists — General Hugh Johnson and Donald J. Richberg — are fighting again.

Although it isn't generally known,
Columbian Johnson makes his headquarters at the capital. He is the moving spirit behind George Berry's industrial committee, which was to disappear on April 1 unless Congress gave it a few months' reprieve.
Gen. Johnson supplies most of the ideas sponsored by the Berry group.
Mr. Richberg, on the other hand, has tied to the more conservative Roper outfit. The Roper-Richberg plans for industry, accidentally or not, always seem to differ from those advanced by the Berry-Johnson group. At the present moment Messrs. Roper and Richberg seem to be sitting on the presidential knee.

TARGET: They won't admit it, but wiser heads in the American Liberty League agree that the organization has become FDR's strongest asset. Such good Republicans as National Chairman Henry Fletcher will echo "amen" to that.

In fact, some Democrats predict a fast fadeout for the duPont-Raskob-Smith organization. They note that in the last quarter the Wilmington brothers switched their contributions from the League to the Republican National Committee. The theory prevails that the duPonts recognize that their League has lost its usefulness.

Further evidence appears in the fact that Washington headquarters has released only one broadcast, or analysis, no newspaper stories for the last two weeks. Fact of the matter is that, rightly or wrongly, the League has been tarred as the organ of the "interests." It is helping Roosevelt and hurting the G. O. P.

TARDY: The tragedy of William Edgar Borah's crusade to reform the Republican party was vividly portrayed in a recent Capitol Hill discussion involving political finances. And even a Borah needs money when he becomes a presidential candidate.

In 1924, when Calvin Coolidge was riding high, Millionaire Jim Couzens fought the Coolidge - Mellon-Hoover policies. He offered to put up a $1,000,000 if Mr. Borah would oppose Mr. Coolidge for the nomination. The Idahoan sidestepped and never thanked the Senator from Michigan for his generous offer. A few weeks ago Mr.
Borah's backers approached Mr.
Couzens, suggesting that they could use some of his cash. He politely declined. He prefers Roosevelt to any G. O. P. candidate now in sight, including Mr. Borah.

The Senator from Idaho may perform a great service in clarifying issues in the 1936 campaign—that's what he hopes to do. He may even force a realignment of political forces. But he has delayed so long that he won't have the backing of his ancient pals—Couzens, Norris, La Follette, Johnson. He's making a one-man fight whereas, ten years ago, he would have had a mighty army on his side. He simply waited too long.

WORDS: The AAA-ers chuckled inwardly when Henry Ford assailed them as apostles of "scarcity," and advanced an agricultural New Deal based on "plenty." Their somewhat treacherous answer was that the automobile wizard hadn't been reading the newspapers.

The Wallaces have even revamped their vocabulary in accord with the Supreme Court's decision on the original AAA and political enemies' distributives. They never speak of "contracts" now, using the more mellifluous phrase of "grants" and "agreements." They eschew all words which suggest that farmers are "compelled" or "bribed" to reduce their production. And there is no longer such a goal as "scarcity"
—simply "soil conservation."

Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildmer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning is being shown the golden side of New York by her influential Aunt Phina
and her weak but charming brother, Owen. Quite by accident, she is taken up by Allan Beckley who is "somebody" and obviously fond of Iris. But now Iris learns that the wonder and excitement in Paris, Pa., almost forgotten in the whirl of events, are both ill. She tells Phina she must go home, and Phina is furious that she is willing to lose so good an opportunity to "break in."

Chapter 24

UNCLE WILL

Owen says Allan Beckley is planning to give a dinner for you. Phina went on. "You can't miss that."

"He was just going to set the date when I told him I had to go."

Phina spoke with controlled annoyance.

"Iris, do you realize just who and what Allan Beckley is? So far as there is any genuine society left in New York, he is at the very heart and powerhouse of it. You have the incredible luck to run into him practically as you come into the city, and to have him immediately plan to give you a dinner-party; and you say, 'I'm sorry, sir, but my uncle has the grippe, and I have to go home!'"

"I am sorry! But he has, and I do!"
Phina, reaching a long capable arm to a nearly invisible depression in the silvery mantle said, "I'll have Honora get him."

Who or what she meant Iris did not know until Honora's violet taffeta and wise smiling Irish face appeared.

"Get me Persia five-o-two-J. Hon-ora, please."

When Honora returned with the news that she had the number, Phina rose and sauntered to the soundproof telephone in the next room.

Shortly she came back. "I have Will on the wire. He says he is perfectly well, and he thinks it would be foolish for you to break up your engagements and all our plans by coming back now. But you'd better tell him yours."

"My dear little girl," said her uncle's kind, precise voice when the first exclamations were over, "you mustn't think of returning and disturb your educational advantages."

"We shouldn't waste Josie's money," he went on. "Only tell me, are you well and happy and having a good time? And how is Owen? Owen's a fine boy."

"Yes, yes, darling. And Owen is a fine boy. He's as like you as he can be. It's all wonderful. I'm awfully happy. Are you sure I'm not selfish? And are you really not very ill? Your letter frightened me."

"It was little more than a bad cold. I must insist on your staying.
Dear Persia will still be here in the spring. Tell Josie I'll send the music books as soon as I can find them."

"Oh, I will! And I'll be over long before that for a visit, whether you want me or not."

"Staying, like a wise child," said Phina when Iris returned. Iris popped. "I thought Will would persuade you." She added with sudden intensity: "He's too good for this world! There's such a thing as being a fool for goodness, and that's what Will's always been!"

THE flash of youthful violence Iris had once before seen again
came over Phina's massaged smoothed face.

"If I married him I suppose I'd be a high-minded idealistic unhappy idiot this minute," she said harshly.
"Well, better as it is. Our ideas were too unlike. Ella doubtless did me a good turn, Iris, by the way, I want you to call Allan Beckley and tell him you aren't going away. Do it lightly, but have him put the dinner on again."

"Oh, Aunt Phina, I'd rather not."
"You old-fashioned little thing!"
Again Honora was ordered to get a number and Phina, laughing, sent Iris to the wire. She went, feeling a little ashamed of being ashamed.

But the clipped servant-voice that answered said neutrally that Mr.
Beckley had gone out to town. He might be gone for some weeks. If Madame would leave her number?

Partly with relief, partly with disappointment, Iris returned and reported to Phina, who lifted a resigned eyebrow and suggested bed.
The autumn went on, and slipped into winter. The days seemed very short, they were so packed and tense. There were classes in social work, where she met Camilla again, and once or twice Georgia, and through which she made some pleasant acquaintances.

The charge of income tax evasion which has hung over Watson's head like the sword of Damocles has been removed, Jim is all pepped up

Everything touched and went away again here in New York; nothing came very close. There were all the theaters in the world, it seemed to her. There were luncheons at smart hotels with some of the friends
she made, or with Phina or Owen.
The riding lessons were fun; so was the tap dancing.

Iris thought on the whole she was enjoying herself, but the days were so full she had scarcely time to think about it. The day was engineered, dovetailed relentlessly.

She saw Dicky Hamilton a good deal. He gave her, indeed, a sort of little-brotherly relationship which she found was his with most girls; a small-boy-privileged air.

Camilla Wendell, oddly enough, came to be Iris's most frequently met friend. Iris had the house to herself, with occasionally Owen, in the afternoons she was not riding or at dancing class. It was delightful and incredibly effortless.

A little group got into the habit of making it a rendezvous: Dicky
and a handful of his friends; Camilla, one or two other girls. "Coming in for tea. Do have those little toasted things," a voice would say over the telephone; or, "Bringing a crowd. Tell Honora not to stint the baccardi."

"As if it was a clubhouse!" Camilla said angrily to Iris one day.

"I adore it!" Iris said. "It's like the stories I was brought up on, of how the Lannings used to keep open house. If anybody interesting or famous came to Persia, there they were always people in for dinner—and coming and going." She laughed.
"I suppose it was on reason we lost some of the money we did lose."

"It isn't at all like that," Camilla said, her brows knitting. She looked almost distinguished, still and straight in the half light. Iris thought, but why need she be cross about it? And then a wild cry rose from the other end of the room.

"Iris, hey, Iris! Some of these dumbbells want to go to the movies to see Mae West, and we want to go on over to Tony's. Make
'em see reason."

"I couldn't make anybody in this room see reason!" she said, laughing. "And I have to dine at home, anyhow. Fight it out the best you can."

Presently they were gone, and Honora returned to air the room and collect the glasses. The two girls drifted up to Iris's own room.

"Maybe I can get a little painting done before it's time to go out with Phina," Iris said. She knew Camilla wasn't when she didn't focus on her. She went over to the window and began to paint. It was a miniature of Phina partly from a photograph and partly from moments snatched from Phina's busy life.

"About this gang," Camilla began
again.

"Oh, please don't, Camilla."

"All right. Who taught you to do all the things you can do?"

"My father and aunt and uncle lived with it. I see people who hadn't much to amuse them except giving me lessons."

Camilla relaxed into the soft chair for a minute, then straightened her shoulders in the perfectly fitting dark crepe that, when she sat properly, triumphed over her awkward ness.

"Think of doing what you like to do," she said passionately. "I can't ever remember doing anything I really enjoyed since I was born. Except one thing—" She colored a dark red and stopped short.

Iris supposed it was going to be Owen, but it was not. "I—I like writing poems," she said in a ashamed low voice.

To Iris, brought up in the faith that any expression of art was more sacred than money, food, shelter, almost than life, this was simple enough.

"I'd love to see some," she said.

"You're wonderful," Camilla said.
"People either giggle or get embarrased, usually, about poetry. And my mother hates it, because I won't read to people in parlors and bore them. I know I bore them. But I love to write, or I wouldn't. She was alive and natural for the first time since Iris had met her. She clicked her handbag open and shyly gave Iris some clearly written sheets to read.

Iris, expecting to be kind, to be encouraging—Iris, who had been reared on poetry, as on music and art, since she could remember—read, reread, and looked up, amazed.

This girl she had thought a stupid
good-hearted fool had written poems which, if not great, were certainly acid, exquisite, and technically fine.

of the political trade.

GENTLE: New York ears well attuned to the Washington ground are confident the corporate surplus tax will be enacted in a form very close to the recommendations of Congressman Sam Hill's subcommittee.

Many conservatives admit they will have no real kick coming if it works out that way. The net result would be that corporations could hold out up to 30 per cent of their adjusted net income for surplus without paying any more in taxes than they do now. The problems of individual companies vary, but in general experts rate a 30 per cent cushion as reasonably ample.
Of course there's nothing to prevent corporations from paying out more than 70 per cent of their income in dividends if they choose—in order to cut their own taxes below present levels. This might conceivably lead to dangerous situations. But directors who authorized recklessly large distributions could hardly pass the buck to Uncle Sam.

One reason passage of the measure is expected with comparative little argument is because the pressure against it from business sources will remain gentle. Also there is a minimum of Congressional wrangling in an election year. Too many fences are waiting to be mended at home.

TANGLED: New York political sharpshooters learn that Governor Homer of Illinois is making a strong fight for renomination. The Kelly-Nash machine—headed by the mayor of Chicago—which is backing Herman Bundesen thought Homer would quit when the battle got hot.

The fact that he didn't is causing a serious split in the Chicago Democratic organization. Many of the no indication that differences will be ironed out in time to pass any bill.

The same situation exists in regard to anti-lobby bills, with the House and Senate at loggerheads.
It's mighty hard to draft a lobby registration measure that doesn't infringe with the right of petition.
It won't hurt New York's feelings if Congress doesn't find any solution.

The east is bidding again for a

the early "flickers" were made is now housing a full production unit.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 2.—(AP)—The stock market resumed its recovery push today with industrials pointing the way upward for gains of a fraction to three or more points.

Many issues including General Motors and U. S. Steel reached new highs for the past five years. After a fast opening the pace slowed and profit taking shaded or chained some of the advance. "In the afternoon the list again hardened with out and principal pickup in volume."

The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,100,000 shares.

DR. PARROTT IS HONORED

Board of Health Employees Arrange Memorial

Raleigh, April 1.—The memory of the late Dr. James M. Parrott, for almost five years executive secretary and directing head of the State Board of Health, has been honored in a unique manner by his former co-workers in Board of Health.

No monument of cold stone nor tablet of inanimate bronze pays tribute to the respect and affection in which he was held by officials and employees of the health department. Instead, the reception room of the main building occupied by the department has been repaired, renovated and decorated as a tribute to Dr. Parrott, whose death occurred in November, 1934. Until a short time ago, the reception room was nothing to boast of, but now it has assumed the aspect of a living room or library of a comfortably fixed and home-loving family.

Highly polished hardwood floors add to the beauty of the general scheme. Easy chairs of inviting comfort, as well as a large lounge, give waiting visitors a sense of peace to allay any irritation which may arise from having to wait a few minutes for an appointment. Bookcases line one end of the room, and attractive magazine racks are to be added in the near future.

Each Puff
Less Acid

A LIGHT SMOKE OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Although the constituents of cigarette paper are, in themselves, unsurpassed in purity and wholesomeness, it may, if crudely fabricated, contribute a marked degree of irritation to cigarette smoke. Cigarette paper not only envelops the tobacco in forming a cigarette, but through its physical properties may exercise a favorable or detrimental influence upon the products of combustion. Paper for Lucky Strike Cigarettes is made under our own supervision. Samples of each lot of cigarette paper manufactured are subjected to the most rigid analysis before it is used in making Lucky Strike Cigarettes.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

* RESULTS VERIFIED BY INDEPENDENT CHEMICAL LABORATORIES AND RESEARCH GROUPS

Luckies — "IT'S TOASTED"

Your throat protection — against irritation — against cough
