Tokyo, April 9.—(AP)—The Harbin Manchoukuo correspondent of the Domei (Japanese) news agency reported tonight that a Japanese lieutenant had been killed in a new clash with Russian soldiers near Suifeng.

Five Japanese soldiers were reported missing after the skirmish. The lieutenant with a small company was patrolling the hilly country east of Suifeng, according to Domei, when he encountered 14 Russian soldiers.

It was stated that the Russians were on Manchoukuo territory. The encounter occurred at noon today. Apparently both sides started shooting at approximately the same time.

Plan Clinics For
Dog Vaccinations
Throughout Pitt

Various Township Inspectors and Sheriff Whitehurst Discuss Plans For Carrying Out Plans

A meeting yesterday afternoon of the various rabies inspectors in the county with Sheriff S. A. Whitehurst plans were discussed for conducting the annual clinic to vaccinate dogs against the mad dog.

The sheriff of the county is delegated as the enforcement officer and the clinic is being carried on with the cooperation of the office.

The clinic will be held during the months of April, May and June, the dates to be announced by the various inspectors. A small fee will be charged for each vaccination, with an additional fee for vaccinations on days other than those announced by the inspectors.

Failure to have a dog vaccinated subjects the owner to indictment and the dog to being killed.

In announcing the clinic, Sheriff Whitehurst urged every dog-owner to get in touch with his inspector and make arrangements to have his dog vaccinated.

He recalled that last year the clinic was about 99 per cent successful and not a single dog that had been vaccinated was known to have contracted rabies. He urged cooperation as a safety measure, not only for children, but for grown-ups as well.

Local Dealer in Oil Company Equipment in Critical Condition In Rocky Mount Hospital

C. F. Bland of this city was critically injured yesterday afternoon when a hydraulic automobile lift he was installing at a Rocky Mount filling station fell from the scaffolding and landed on him, inflicting serious internal injuries.

Mr. Bland, who is agent for oil company equipment, was taken to a Rocky Mount hospital, where attaches described his condition as critical. The lift fell across him, but although no bones were broken, he suffered dangerous internal injuries. He was operated on last night.

The scaffolding broke while Mr. Bland was supervising the work. Only meagre details of the accident were available here, but it was understood that Mr. Bland was the only one to suffer injuries.

FRENCH CLAIM
RIGHT TO ACT

Ministers Declare Country Must Meet Situation

(Copyright by Associated Press) Geneva, April 9.—(AP)—French ministers have informed British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden that if Germany, continuing its violation of treaties, erects fortifications along the Rhine France reserves the right to take any action the situation may justify.

The French pointed out that building of fortifications in the Rhineland zone, already remilitarized by the Reich in defiance of the Versailles treaty and Locarno pact, would be another direct violation of the Versailles agreement which ended the World War.

What new steps France might consider were not disclosed, but Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin's attitude made it clear that France attached greatest importance to the question of fortifications.

The French stand was disclosed while the league of nations seeking to avert any Italo-Ethiopian settlement enforced by fascist arms and alleged gas attacks, pressed both belligerents for definite statements of their terms for peace negotiations.

The French indicated that German erection of fortifications on France's eastern frontier would certainly be likely to render extreme difficult the negotiations for any new security system in Europe.

Wolde Mariam, Ethiopian minister to Paris, called on Eden and said Ethiopia was ready to talk peace with Italy, but only under the auspices of the league and within the spirit and the framework of the league covenant.

PLAN DISCUSS
STORM DAMAGE

President to Confer with Federal and Local Officials

Warm Springs, Ga., April 9.—(AP)—President Roosevelt arranged today to confer with federal and local relief officials at Gainesville, Ga., the heart of the tornado disaster, on his way to Washington tonight.

A half hour stop will be made by the President at Gainesville, which will be reached at 10:15 p. m.

Major General Van Horn Moseley, commander of the fourth corps area, which has just completed an inspection of the tornado belt, has been invited to join the President at Atlanta earlier in the night on the journey northward.

Mr. Roosevelt, upon his arrival here, asked representatives of the Red Cross, the works program administration, the civilian conservation corps and local relief officials to board his train at Gainesville for a general discussion of the disaster problem.

Arriving here at 9 o'clock today, the President encountered a driving rain which had swollen the streams along the route to flood stages.

The water which is threatening in the wake of the tornado, had even reached the level of the railroad tracks in many places along the way and the President's special moved slowly.

Rise In Tar River Here
Continues At Rapid Pace

Other Streams in Eastern Carolina Reach High Marks

The Tar river here continued its rise during the last 24 hours, although not as rapid as during the period ending yesterday morning at 8 o'clock.

The stream was standing at 15.5 feet at 8 o'clock this morning, with predictions it would go to 19 feet by Monday morning. Should the river reach the predicted mark, it will be within four feet of the all-time high mark set in July, 1919, when it went to 23 feet.

Numerous highways in the county are covered with water, with probably the worst situation reported between Greenville and Farmville where the Little Content Creek overflowed and water covered the road for some distance. No roads in the county were reported closed, however.

Water also was across the road at Grifton where the highway crosses Big Content Creek, or Moccasin river.

RALEIGH WEATHER OFFICIAL
SAYS CONDITION UNSETTLED

Raleigh, April 9.—(AP)—The Cape Fear river at Fayetteville dropped a foot last night after reaching 54.9 feet, nearly 20 feet in flood, while the remaining North Carolina rivers continued to rise to their middle portions, and closed highways.

Lee A. Denson, in charge of the local weather bureau, said conditions were still unsettled and flood stages in lower portions of the streams might be intensified if further rains of any consequence falls.

The Cape Fear was at 33.4 today at Elizabethtown, expected to reach 35 tonight. The Neuse at Smithfield was at 20.7, due to go to 21. The Tar at Tarboro was 21.1, four in flood, with 25 to 26 feet expected Sunday and at Greenville it was 15.5, two feet out of channel with 19 feet forecast for Monday.

At Weldon the Roanoke was 38.1 and rising slowly with a crest of close to 40 feet, 8.3 feet in flood forecast.

State routes 561 in Halifax county and 581 in Nash and Wilson were closed this morning and warning was issued route 95 near Rocky Mount would be closed during the day.

Geneva, April 9.—(AP)—The committee of 13 of the League of Nations decided today to send a supreme appeal to Italy and Ethiopia to abstain from the use of poison gas in the East African war.

The decision made upon the recommendation of British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden was approved without passing upon allegations that Italy had already used gas in her Ethiopian invasion.

The committee's action urged the two governments to observe the provisions of the anti-gas convention and followed an appeal by Eden to Italy not to use poison gas against Ethiopia.

Committee to Canvass Section Reports $252 First Day

A committee named yesterday afternoon to canvass the tobacco district for Red Cross disaster relief contributions today turned in $252, the largest single group of donations made during the campaign.

The committee is composed of J. S. Ficklin, B. B. Suggs, R. C. Stokes and G. V. Smith. Members of the committee said that they had not completed their canvass and expected to add to the amount already turned in.

Another committee, composed of J. H. Waldrop, H. L. Hodges, L. B. McCormick, E. G. Flanagan, John Mitchell and Mayor M. K. Blount, was named to canvass the business establishments and professional offices for funds. This committee was not ready to make a report today.

The city of Greenville has been asked to appropriate $100 to the fund and it was indicated today the alderman would act favorably on the request. It also was indicated the county officials would take similar action.

In addition to the group contributions, a number of individual citizens donated funds. Rev. W. A. Ryan, chairman of the special committee, urged the people of the city and county not to wait to be approached to make a contribution, but to get in touch with him, Wyatt Brown, chairman of local chapter of the Red Cross, K. T. Futrell, disaster chairman, or The Daily Reflector.

Contributions today totaled $289 and brought the grand total to $1,320. The local chapter has been asked to contribute $2,500.

Committee Agrees On Plan for Debt-Ridden Concerns

BANK DIVIDENDS ALSO RULED ON

Information Given To Newsmen After Another Closed Session of Committee

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—House Ways and Means Committee Democrats reported today that they were in definite agreement on giving special treatment to debt-ridden corporations under the new tax program.

Also, they said, dividends from banks would be subjected to the four per cent normal income tax rate.

This information was given newsmen after another closed session, from which Republican committee members were absent.

While the method of handling the problem of corporations that must use portions of their earnings to retire indebtedness has not been worked out fully, Representative Vinson (D. Ky.) said, the majority of committee members had decided that such firms should be given some sort of favored handling.

Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) said the decision to apply the normal tax to bank dividends, which was left undetermined by the committee which drafted the $799,000,000 tax program, was rematched on the basis that all corporation dividends should be treated alike.

Fewer Automobile
Accidents Provide
Cheaper Insurance

Decrease in Number of Wrecks in North Carolina This Year Point to Lower Rates for State

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 9.—The decrease in the number of automobile accidents since January 1, especially in the reduction in the number of fatal accidents, in North Carolina is a decidedly encouraging and if this decrease continues will eventually bring about a reduction in automobile liability insurance rates. Commissioner of Insurance Dan C. Boney said today.

But no reduction in automobile insurance rates can be expected before 1937, even if the ratio of losses is much less this year than in previous years, Boney pointed out. For the total loss ratio for 1936 must be obtained before the insurance companies can decide if any reduction in rates is warranted. But the loss ratio must fall below the present ratio of 55 per cent before the companies will be likely to consider making any reduction in rates, Boney said. The loss ratio in North Carolina on automobile liability insurance was 59.9 per cent and the average loss ratio during the past five years has been 64.82 per cent, so that it will require a very decided drop in accidents and losses to bring the loss ratio down to a point where the insurance companies will be able to reduce rates.

"An encouraging factor, however, is that insurance companies are doing more business in the state every year and that this larger volume helps to reduce the loss ratio," Boney said. "During 1935 the automobile liability companies doing business in the state showed a premium increase of about $300,000 and should show an even larger increase this year. But the factor that will do more than anything else to reduce automobile accident insurance rates is a marked reduction in the number of automobile accidents."

The insurance companies will undoubtedly sell more liability insurance in North Carolina if they will reduce their rates, Boney is convinced, since many car owners would buy it now if it were not so expensive. At the present time only 18 per cent of the automobile owners in the state have liability insurance, largely because of the high premium charges. But as rates come down, along with accidents, more insurance can and will be sold, Boney thinks.

ASK SESSION

Graham and McDonald Demand Special Legislative Term

Raleigh, April 9.—(AP)—Dr. Ralph H. McDonald and A. H. (Sandy) Graham, two of the four men seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, today issued statements requesting Governor Ervinghaus to issue an immediate call for a special session of the legislature to consider tobacco control and social security legislation.

The governor made no comment on the request nor on the statement in Washington by Congressmen they hoped he would call a special session after the lower house of congress had passed a tobacco compact bill.

"The necessity for (tobacco) control is not arguable," Graham's statement said. "Every other plan suggested has failed. Legal control alone remains, x x already we have delayed to the point of real danger. Mature deliberation should not be confined with inexcusable procrastination."

"North Carolina can wait no longer to hold a special session of its legislature," McDonald said, though such action would handicap his campaign. "The national house has already passed the tobacco act and the senate will inevitably follow the house in all probability within 48 hours."

Chairman Smith (D. S. C.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee, which has already voted a favorable report on the compact bill, predicted early consideration and approval by the Senate.

Among members of the delegation who issued statements asking an immediate session were Representatives Robert L. Doughton of Laurens, Lindsay C. Warren of Washington, J. C. and William B. Umstead of Durham.

"I sincerely trust," Doughton said, "our governor will call the legislature into extraordinary session at the earliest possible date in order that appropriate legislation may be enacted whereby growers of tobacco may realize full benefits of this legislation for their crop this year."

Tar Heel Congressional Delegation Renews Request

ACTION FOLLOWS HOUSE PASSAGE

Representatives Vote 189 to 117 to Approve Authorization of State Compacts.

Washington, April 9.—(AP)—Demands today for a special session of the North Carolina legislature followed House passage of the tobacco compact bill.

Leaders of the Tar Heel delegation in Congress again called upon Governor Ervinghaus to convene a special session to consider state control legislation necessary to enter into compacts with other states.

The compact authorization was approved yesterday by the House and now must be considered by the Senate.

Delighted over the victory in the House, backers of the bill, sanctioning inter-state cooperation to control tobacco production, predicted that it soon would win the approval of the Senate.

Over strong Republican opposition, the bill rolled to victory in the House late yesterday, 189 to 117. A companion bill already has won the endorsement of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Among members of the delegation who issued statements asking an immediate session were Representatives Robert L. Doughton of Laurens, Lindsay C. Warren of Washington, J. C. and William B. Umstead of Durham.

WASHINGTON DAY BOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, (AP)—Informed sources in Washington believe it will be several months yet before investigations now under way and those authorized by congress into the inner workings of "big business" actually will penetrate the surface.

There are three such inquiries: The Federal Communications Commission already has launched its investigation of the corporate structure of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.

A senate committee has been authorized to investigate the railroads, with a view to determining the extent of Wall Street financial control.

And the Federal Trade Commission has been empowered under a senate resolution to look into the question of price control, in an effort to establish the extent of the middleman's profits.

Want More Money
Two factors lead observers to believe that it will be some time as yet before these inquisitorial groups will be able to function as was intended. These are a serious lack of money and the uncertainty of the political situation.

Although $750,000 was voted for the A. T. and T. investigation, already those conducting the inquiry deem the amount insufficient. Described by some authorities as the "largest corporate entity in the history of the world," they say privately millions would be necessary for a proper investigation.

Only $25,000 thus far has been allotted for the railroad investigation. The price control inquiry, authorized at the last session of congress, was given $150,000.

Election Postpones Action
Uncertainty as to elections in November renders the present inaction of congress to vote additional funds at the present very difficult. It is not impossible. A change of administration might put an entirely different complexion on these investigations.

Meanwhile, the investigators are now engaged in what is called "fact-finding expeditions"—merely looking along until the political atmosphere clears. A. T. and T. investigators, for example, are ferreting out that corporation's interest in the production of the movie "Moonlight and Pretzels."

If the present administration is returned in November, however, things may pick up. Needed money probably will be forthcoming and "big business" would be in for a long siege.

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington—(AP)—Despite the numerous agencies flourishing in Washington in the endeavor to "carry on" for the invalidated NRA those on the inside say there's one in particular the White House eyes for yeoman duty in the future.

It's the Council for Industrial Progress, headed by Maj. George L. Berry, the President's industrial coordinator.

Aside from Berry's organization there are now three councils and committees, with varying degrees of authority and interest in the field. The pioneer is Secretary Roger's Business Advisory Council.

Then there is the Committee of Industrial Analysis and the Division of Industrial Economics set up by Mr. Roosevelt just before NRA officially expired on April 1.

Behind the scenes gossip is that the Supreme Court decision on NRA notwithstanding, Mr. Roosevelt still is wedded to the basic philosophy of his first major weapon to combat the depression.

There's a belief in some quarters that if the "new deal" survives the November elections there will be an attempt to enact legislation of similar character.

The new edition would have the government advise and not dictate. And that's where Major Berry and his Council for Industrial Progress fits into the picture.

Berry's organization, which comprises 225 representatives from industry and 50 from labor, has been meeting in Washington every other month since last September. Seven reports have been submitted to the voluntary council, four of which were adopted and immediately transmitted to the White House.

They included:

1. Production control only in emergencies.
2. Maximum hours and minimum wage standards "to increase the purchasing power of wage earners and to make for reemployment in an age of continuous technological improvement."

3. Federal curbs on "unfair" and "destructive" trade practices.
4. Establishment of a permanent industrial council.

The fact that Berry has kept plugging steadily away is said to have attracted the attention of the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt's fondness for activity is well known to all in Washington. Inactivity is something he simply doesn't countenance.

There'll be little said publicly between now and November about future plans of a new NRA. Once the elections are out of the way and if they return to the new deal administration for another four years much will be heard.

And the best bet at the present is that Major Berry will do most of the talking.

of similar character.

Merely increasing the numerical strength of the Democrats in the senate doesn't interest Guffey. The party already has more votes than it needs.

Center Fire on Critics
There are several administration critics in the senate, however, whose departure in November would please Guffey and other Democratic leaders.

The Republican national convention may be of some help. Both Senators Borah of Idaho and Dickinson of Iowa are up for reelection to the senate this year. Choice of either one as a presidential candidate would make Guffey's job just that much easier.

Special targets for Guffey's attack will be Hastings of Delaware and McNary of Oregon. McNary is Republican leader of the senate and Hastings is chairman of the G. O. P. senatorial campaign committee.

Because the Democrats need not worry over losing control of the senate this year they will be able to concentrate on foes like Borah, Dickinson, Hastings and McNary. There are other Republicans up for reelection, but these are the biggest guns.

Democrats Seek To Oust Senate G.O.P. Stalwarts

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Washington, April 9.—Although Democratic control of the senate is democratic future safe. The campaign of 1938, however, will be a different story for the Democrats. Then 27 of them in the senate must run.

However, of these 27 Democratic seats, 11 are virtually not open to successful Republican attack. If the Republicans should gain all the rest, they would still lack a senate majority.

Noting but great political upheavals in the coming campaign, followed by further upheavals against the Democrats in 1938, and again in 1940 will drive the senate Democrats out before January 3, 1941.

Not a few political prophets believe it will be 1943, seven years hence, before the Democrats can be shaken loose from their grip on the senate.

Farmers, Dairymen Invited To Attend Pender Field Day

Program Planned for Tuesday, April 28, at Invershield, Farm of Hugh McRae Near Rocky Point

Raleigh, April 9.—Eastern North Carolina farmers are being invited to attend a field day April 28 at Invershield, the farm of Hugh McRae, outstanding farmer and dairyman, near Rocky Point in Pender.

McRae has developed a system for grazing his 100 or more grade Guernsey milk cows on cultivated crops nine months out of the year that is well worth studying by eastern farmers, said John A. Aray, extension dairy specialist at State College.

During the spring and fall he grazes the cows on cereals such as alfalfa, rye and clover and in the summer he turns them on soybeans and sudan grass, Aray stated.

In this way, he continued, McRae provides his cows with rich, succulent grazing that is both more economical and better for the cattle than harvested feeds which have been kept in storage.

This system is well adapted to the sandy soils of eastern North Carolina, Aray pointed out, though it is not advisable on red clay soils where it is not good for cattle to tramp over tender young crops while the land is moist.

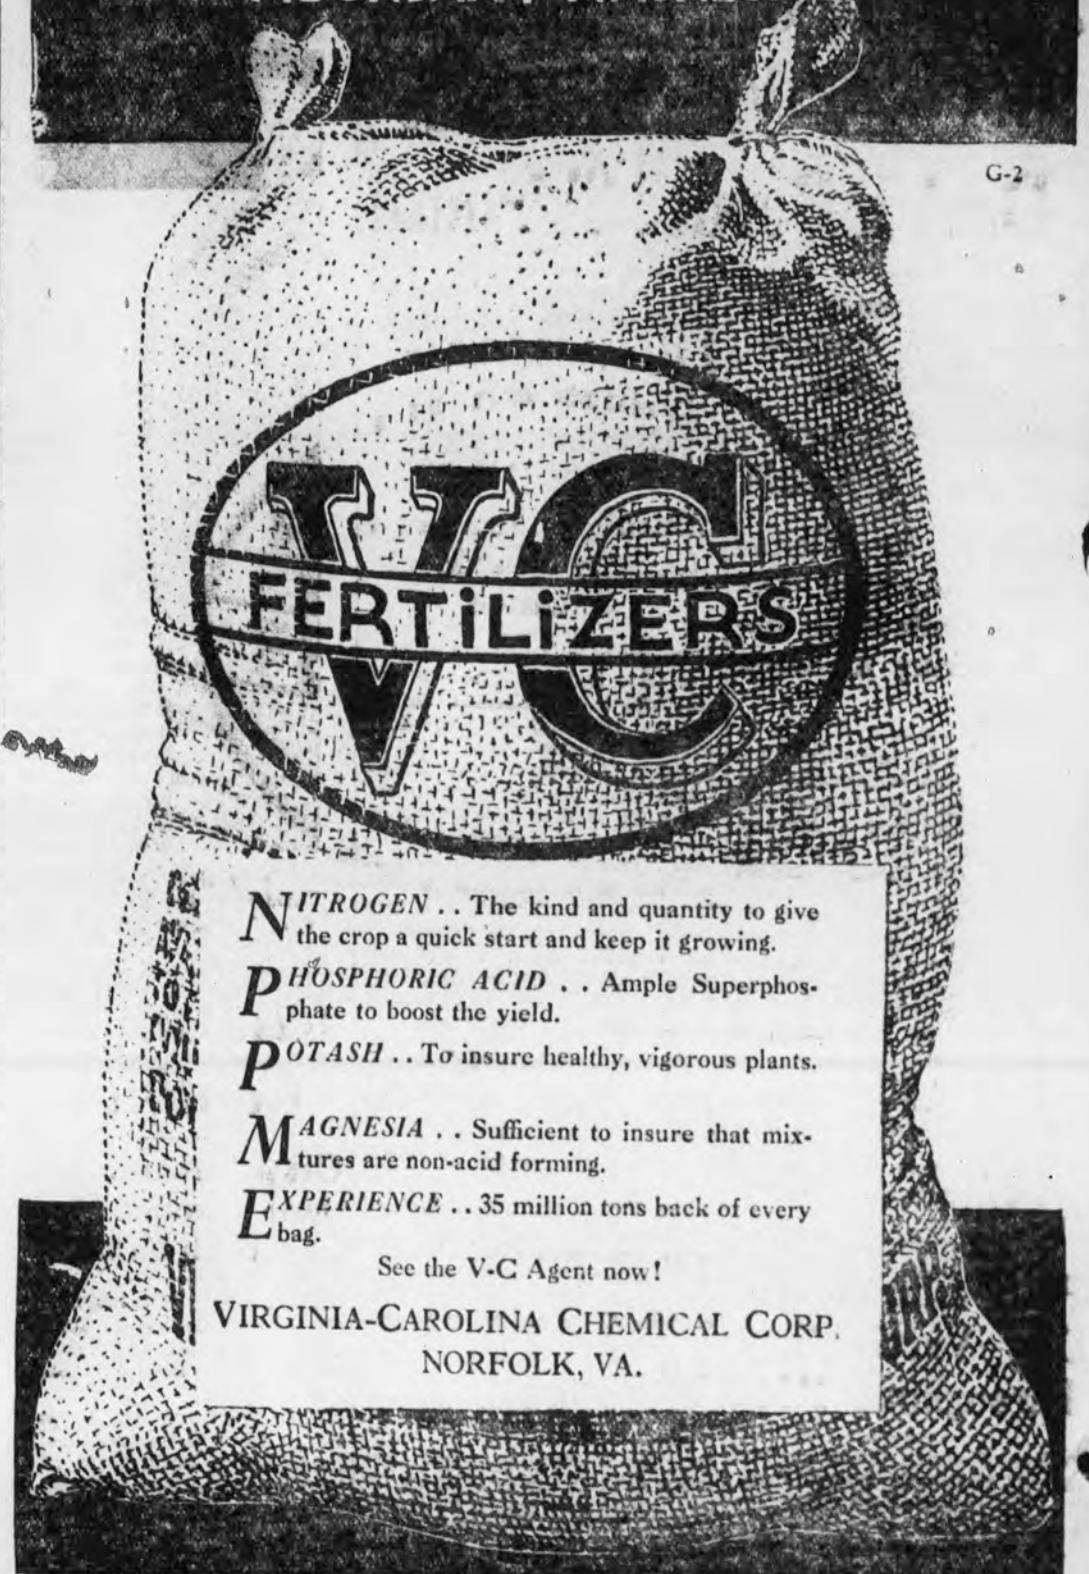

Arrangements are being made for speakers to explain the fine points of McRae's system and give visiting farmers and dairymen information regarding the adoption of a similar system on their own farms.

The field program will begin at 10:30 a. m. and will probably continue until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Aray stated.

Four series of exhibitions from the German museum of hygiene have been sent to all parts of the reich. They are called "nation and race," "fighting cancer," "life and health," and "blood and race."

Aside from being a promising artist (and he already has received recognition in art centers in New York, Washington and Philadelphia) Henry McMillan is an attractive artist. TURKISH CENSUS REQUIRES CITIZENS TO STAY AT HOME
Washington, (AP)—The method of taking the census in Turkey is probably the most accurate of any recorded throughout the world, according to reports here.

On the census day, all the inhabitants of Turkey are required to remain in their homes from 5 a. m. until a signal gun announces the end of the recording. The only exceptions are for foreign diplomats, workers in public utility plants, police, firemen, soldiers on duty and a few others.

Taxicabs are not permitted to operate during the period of enumeration; streetcar service is suspended; places of amusement closed and even doctors are not allowed to leave their homes without special permits.

Romania's Hungarians Complain

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, (AP)—Politicians here say privately that the political aspects of the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case are destined to be sources of bedevilment and embarrassment straight through to the elections in November.

They regard it as significant that most New Jersey Democrats have studiously refrained from openly attacking Governor Hoffman personally for his conduct of the case. Also the members of the New Jersey members of congress in electing clear of the controversy have been a subject of much private conjecture.

Senator Moore, Democratic governor of New Jersey at the time the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and found, has been particularly careful to refrain from comment. Republican Senator Barbour and the 16 Republican members of the house, regardless of their personal opinions, refused to be jockeyed into a position either for or against the stand taken by the New Jersey governor.

Politicians here seem agreed that the lack of Democratic criticism of Governor Hoffman can be attributed to one thing—fear that the governor might actually uncover evidence in the Hauptmann case which would change the whole complexion of things. It isn't difficult to understand what a boomerang that would be.

Despite protestations by Hoffman and others, completely connected with the Hauptmann case that there never has been any political purpose behind their activities, politicians point to the following facts without comment:

The Mercer county, New Jersey, grand jury, which made a last-minute investigation of the alleged connection of Paul H. Wendel, a disbarred attorney, with the Lindbergh kidnaping, is composed of 12 Republicans, nine Democrats and two men with no party affiliations. The foreman is a Republican and a friend of the governor, who is Republican.

The prosecutor, whose leadership the jurors, elected to disregard, is a Democrat, as is the attorney general.

The assistant attorney general, whom the grand jury called upon for legal help, is a Republican. The detective, who obtained the Wendel "confession" is a Republican and a close friend of the governor. The detective who signed the murder complaint on which Wendel was arraigned is a Republican.

The political effects of this bizarre case are of national significance because the state of New Jersey holds a key position in the coming election. President Roosevelt himself made a gesture toward enlisting state support for the Democrats when he stepped off recently at Newark to make a speech.

In 1934 Governor Hoffman was elected chief executive, although the Democrats elected a senator and four members of the house and in 1932 had swept the state for Mr. Roosevelt.

Hoffman's personal political star was in the ascendancy until he entered the Hauptmann case.

Golden Rain

by Margaret Wildemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning has changed the quiet but charming life she has led in old Persia for the giddy whirl of her Aunt Phyllis's New York. She likes the nonsense, now, much to her surprise, she finds herself in the house of old Mrs. Morgan, representative of old New York. This house and its owner are much like the Persia house—except. Allan Buckley, Mrs. Morgan's grandson, Allan is showing Iris his mother's collection. Iris just has enchanted the dinner guests with her singing.

Chapter 30 SITUATION

A FEELING of being something he might collect along with Matisses and lion heads came over Iris for the moment, and then she felt she was being the little girl from the country again. She rose and began looking at the pictures, commenting on them. She was on safe ground here.

"You know an astonishing amount about art," he said. "Do you like the zoo?"

For a moment she was going to be courteous, then she told the truth. "Honestly, I don't. They're too much like putting traitors heads on London Bridge, as they did in the old novels!"

He liked it, he laughed. They were on the low furry couch again. He put a casual arm about her.

"Do you know," he said, "why the room went silent when granny spoke of the benefit for the Anna Lippens fund? It's the accolade."

Iris nodded. She didn't especially like his arm around her but she supposed there was no point to being Victorian. "I'm quite crazy about you," his soft voice, said suddenly; his mouth pressed her bare shoulder. "Be crazy about me too."

It was done lightly, his lips were not on her flesh. Before she could move or speak, she felt something else flung about her shoulders. "Don't move," he said, pressing her gently back against the pillows, and rising for a moment to adjust a mirror. "I want you to have this to remember your first evening in my house by."

Over her shoulders he had thrown a beautiful wide long fur, gray with black rosetted markings. He held her fast, the arm that had thrown the fur over her shoulders still around her, their faces pressed together, as the mirror made the picture of his smooth light head, his smiling face, against her dark hair and startled flushed face.

He had pushed her into a half lying position on the couch, and half knelt, half sat, close to her. She tried to move from him, but he kissed her again. "Crazy over you," he said once more. As she sprang up, startled, pushing the fur away, Georgia's clicking footsteps, her sparkling red frock, her bright angry eyes, seemed to fill the room.

"I thought you promised me that fur," she said with the complete lack of courtesy which was one of her weapons.

"A fur," said Allan, quite unmoved, "not that fur."

"You shoot a snow-leopard once in an age, you told me so!" Iris had pulled it off her shoulders to hand it proudly to Georgia, but the girl's words checked her. "The usual routine," Georgia went on sharply. "The Matisse room, the present from the Lord of the Ham, the couch—"

Allan's usually slow speech hastened a little. "Georgia, you're impossible."

Georgia's face flamed. It was a shrew's face, Iris had always known. She clutched Allan's arm, and did something close to shaking him.

"And you. You dare—after everything—"

A man servant stood in the doorway, quiet and incredibly decorous in the middle of these whirling passions.

"Mr. Buckley, Mrs. Morgan wants to speak to you, sir!"

WITH what Iris could not help thinking was a certain male relief at getting away from scene, Allan spoke a word of apology and left the girls together. Iris braced herself for a continuation of the scene. But instead Georgia changed as suddenly as if someone had turned a key in her. Her face smoothed to sweetness, and she laughed easily.

"Here, put it back," she said, throwing the fur about Iris's bare shoulders again. "What a pig I was!"

"But if you are engaged to Mr. Buckley," said Iris, "you are right. He hasn't any business to give presents to other girls without your knowledge."

Georgia stared at her for a moment, then laughed again, more shrilly. She kissed Iris suddenly. "You cunning thing!" she said. "You and I are going to be great friends." Iris was not a fool. She did not trust Georgia. But she had been reared to a courtesy which had at least to seem to accept such friendliness as the girl offered. But something, she scarce knew what. One thing she did know. If Georgia had had any real rights over Allan, she'd have said so. Iris pulled the fur closer.

"But what I can say to you was that most of the crowd are going," Georgia went smoothly on. "I suppose Mrs. Morgan sent Williams to tell Allan so, as I forgot. But after they're gone some of us are going to drive somewhere and dance and have something to eat; we want you along. And Allan, of course."

"My aunt—" began Iris, but Georgia said, "Oh, your brother and the Silverheels girl are coming, of course. Run along down and say night-night to the old lady, and come back up here to wait."

Iris was glad to escape from Allan's room, and get away from Georgia for a little while. She ran down the narrow winding old stairs to change her dress, and her hostess and say good-by to her.

"Don't forget, I'll write your aunt," was old Mrs. Morgan's last word. She made her final farewell, and slid up the back stairs as Georgia had told her to do. Her brother and Sigrid, Dicky, and a couple of men and a girl she did not know, were sitting, a brightly colored flock with black patches, all over the couch and the floor.

Presently they were all flocking out to the cars. Allan laid the snow-leopard fur about her shoulders. "How does it feel to have furs from the Himalayas drop down the chimney?" he said in her ear as he put her in a low racing car.

They were the symbol of her victory over Georgia. And yet something stung her at his phrase. Someone had said that before. Suddenly she remembered. Morgan.

That first day she had met Morgan. And he, innocently, thinking her a girl of fifteen in her short dresses, had said, "Let me give you money for a dress, say it's dropped down the chimney." And she had been angry, been insulted.

"COMFY?" he asked her, breaking into her thoughts.

She smiled at him brilliantly. "Quite. Where are Owen and Sigrid?"

"Behind in the Andersons' car," he said. She was relieved to find that Georgia was not with them—nobody was in the rumble seat, in deed—and sat happily silent while the car made its clever way through a westbound street and up the west drive to Riverside. She had not, so far, been to any of the Harlem abodes, and she thought that must be where they were going. . . . NO

It must be Arrowhead turning north.

"Where are we headed for?" she demanded finally. "Won't it be late when we get there?"

"It will indeed," said Allan, in his amused soft voice. "We're late now. Does it matter?"

"Why, I suppose not—" She was being a country-mouse again. After all, there were no early engagements tomorrow. She drowsed a little. . . . They were still sliding swiftly along the silver ribbon when she awakened. "Aren't we there yet?" she demanded sleepily.

"Almost," said Allan. "You're a wonderful child. The only girl I ever drove with who could stop talking and enjoy all this in silence." She stared at the trees, the low hills at one side, the meadows stretching out on the other—all silvered and still and beautiful. Suddenly her dreamy delight was broken by a low "damn" from Allan.

She knew enough about cars to know that the jar, and the grinding noise which followed it, was probably the sound of a broken differential.

He was all right in a moment. "Something wrong with the car," he said. "It'll take us as far as the roadhouse, anyway."

That was all right, then. They would get a lift back in one of the other cars. They went carefully after that, finally landing at a queer tattered sort of place, a roadhouse high up on the road.

The warmth and light of the odd little place were comforting. It had none of the ornate luxury Iris expected. She supposed it was like, then, for being "quaint." Allan ordered bacon and eggs, and when Iris came back from checking her wraps, said, "We might as well eat when the food is ready."

ministration bullets. That accounts for the comparative lack of attack which you may have noted within the last month.

Industrialists and business men are fearful that their public antagonism may bring official reprisals. Incidents such as the Black seizure of telegrams, the Hagood crackdown and income tax suits frighten them. They believe that the administration is deliberately spreading a reign of terror among its enemies. And since most of the Roosevelt boys have assets to safeguard, they

New York
By JAMES McMULLIN

END: Recently leaders of the American Liberty League approached big shots in the New York State Republican organization with a proposal for closer liaison between the two groups in their mutual objective of beating Roosevelt. The G. O. P. chiefs responded by making it painfully clear that they wanted no part of the League or its support. If the Leaguers wished to work for the Republican ticket—fine—but please to do so anonymously and kindly refrain from blasting the chances of any G. O. P. candidate by giving him the League's official blessing.

Thus, endeth—for all practical purposes—the du Pont dream of running the anti-Deal show. Keen observers remark that for the Republicans this refusal to associate with the League marks the beginning of wisdom.

MUST: Some business leaders are impatient with Republican Senators and Congressmen for their failure to rip into the New Deal more vigorously. But others—including New Yorkers far up in G. O. P. inner council's—warmly approve their restraint and have in fact recommended it in private contacts with the legislators.

One of these backstagers puts it this way—and his sentiments find a wide response in high financial quarters. "People who vote against Roosevelt will do so for a variety of reasons—some of which are inconsistent with each other. The more we can keep from taking specific positions as a party the more of these 'discontent' votes we'll corral. For instance, we shouldn't yell too loud about economy. Conservatives like it of course, but they are in the bag for us anyway and it's a waste of ammunition to appeal to them. Too much economy talk will land the huge relief vote intact in the Roosevelt column."

"There are three things we must do if we are to have a Chinaman's chance in November. We must avoid blanket condemnation of the New Deal and concede that it has features worth retaining. We must hammer it home that a Republican victory will not mean the end of federal relief. And we must try to keep the du Ponts and Sloans and other indignant industrialists from making asses of themselves any more. Only by following this program have we the remotest hope of capturing the borderline liberal vote we must get to win."

SHY: Protests against the tax on corporate surpluses continue surprisingly feeble in view of the depths of backstage conservative sentiment on the subject. There are several reasons for this mildness. One is that big time business leaders have no yen to go to Washington and be badgered by a hostile committee. Some of them also feel that the best way to assure the measure's passage would be to express their personal opposition to it. Then there is the fact that business lately have heard and read many reports about Roosevelt's gains and the probability of his reelection. So they tend to be timid about courting his disfavor by opposing him publicly—however they may ouss him in private.

The witnesses who have appeared before the Doughton committee to oppose the tax have not been the type whose opinions carry much weight with politicians or the public. But that can't be helped as long as industrial headlines insist on being so shy and retiring.

WEAKNESS: Often in the past two years it has been reported that France was about to abandon the gold standard. The main reason she hasn't is because all French politics are deathly afraid of peasant reactions to another slash in the value of their hoarded francs.

This time it looks like the real thing—and soon. True, the French authorities are trying desperately to stave it off and have evidently been getting some help from the American and British governments. But already the Bank of France—by arbitrarily shifting the gold export point—is drifting dangerously close to an embargo on gold shipments. Once such an embargo is declared France is off gold to stay—no matter what official fiction is preserved to allay unrest among her citizens. Under no circumstances will the French government allow serious depletion of the gold reserves which constitute their war chest.

The war scare only partly accounts for recent weakness of the franc. Prospects for a sweeping victory in the forthcoming elections are having an even greater effect.

CANDIDATE: Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon is getting a lot of attention in New York. Many a conservative is trying to visualize in him the ideal anti-New Deal Moses.

Steiwer has certain definite assets. Political sharpshooter and Pacific Coast states gambler and believe the election might hinge on him. The Steiwer—as a brown-in-the-bottle native son—should make a strong appeal to local pride. He was born and educated in Oregon and has lived there all his life. New Yorkers who know him will rate him as having probably the best mind of any Republican in the Senate. His most effective work has been done in committee—not on the floor.

But Steiwer has never sought the Washington limelight. He has been in the Senate nine years—yet few Easterners know anything about him. A colorless record is no great help at this stage. The Oregonian has been careful to avoid any pre-convention commitments that might later prove embarrassing.

When enrollment at the Model school, near Esterville, Ia., dwindled to four pupils the board of education voted to close it and to arrange their transportation to Esterville schools.

RAINS DAMAGE STATE'S ROADS

Main Highways Closed Due to Recent Heavy Rains

Raleigh, April 8.—The rains of the last few days have done at least $15,000,000 of additional damage to the highways of the state and the flooded creeks and rivers are doing still more damage. Chief Highway Engineer W. Vance Baise of the State Highway and Public Works Commission said today. Some eight or ten roads are already closed as a result of washed out bridges and high water and

Common Sense about HEADACHE

Usually a headache is due to high nerve tension. At such times all you need is a little Capudine. This remedy is very effective because it quickly soothes tense nerves and eases pain.

Of course headache may come from more serious sources. Sometimes it may be an abscessed tooth, or some underlying cause which only your family physician can discover. Meanwhile, avoid suffering as much as you can by using Capudine.

Capudine contains no narcotics. It acts quickly and gently. Ask for either Capudine Liquid or Capudine Brand Tablets.

Full fragrance, fine flavor, real body, have made MINT SPRINGS the value leader in the limited budget whiskey market. No wonder—it's a Glenmore product!

still others are expected to be closed today or tomorrow when the flood waters reach them, Baise said.

"Indications are that the general damage caused by the heavy rains of the last few days and by the high water following them in many places, will run considerably in excess of $10,000,000," Baise said. "When the damage done to the county roads and the bridges on these roads is taken into consideration, the damage will probably be still greater."

"The tough part of it is that what work we have been able to do since the heavy rains and freezes damaged the roads has been just about washed away by these heavy rains and that we will have to go back and start all over again. It certainly looks as if the elements have had a particular grudge against North Carolina and its roads this winter and spring. First it was snow and sleet and below freezing temperatures, and now torrential rains. There just ain't any justice in weather of this sort for the highway maintenance forces."

If and when it stops raining and the roads dry out enough for repair work to start, the highway department is planning to spend at least $1,000,000 a month on repairs and maintenance and about $1,500,000 on new construction on Federal aid roads, Baise said. But so far all this work is being held up by the bad weather.

"If we can only get a break from the weather man, we are prepared to spend just as much money on maintenance and repair work as we can find labor for," Baise said. "There is enough work to be done to warrant the spending of $2,000,000 a month."

More than half a million persons visit Charlotte, S. C. via automobile each year, according to highway statistics.

REVIEWS WORK RESETTLEMENT

Option is Secured by Agency on 84,410 Acres N. C. Land

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, April 9.—Options on 84,410 acres of land for land demonstration projects of the Resettlement Administration in North Carolina have been exercised to date, Regional Director Homer H. B. Musk said today.

In addition options are yet to be exercised on approximately 20,000 acres more to round out these projects, and 21,500 acres are under option for farmstead projects on which families from the demonstration areas are to be relocated. "More than 2,500 men are working daily on the construction programs in the demonstration areas," Director Musk said. Hundreds of qualified farm families are being added to the roster of Resettlement's rehabilitation program each week. Farms are also being optioned to purchase as rapidly as possible for a special tenant project which will take care of 100 families in North Carolina.

"These activities and the efforts of the farm debt adjustment and community and co-operative service units of the Resettlement organization, constitute a rounded program which is designed to bring lasting economic benefits to the state and put large numbers of farmers on a self-sustaining basis. The program has already reached a magnitude in North Carolina and the four neighboring states grouped in Region IV which vividly answers the question, 'What is the Resettlement Administration doing?'"

In the five states of Region IV the federal government has already exercised options on 284,670 acres of a total of approximately 400,000 acres allotted for reforestation and recreational demonstration projects and has an additional 75,000 acres optioned for resettlement of clients being removed from the demonstration areas. Approximately 10,000 workers are now employed in the development of the Resettlement projects of the region. "The public is entitled to know what the Resettlement Administration is doing and an accounting of the progress it is making, both locally and nationally," Mr. Musk said. "For the nation as a whole, 9-286,000 acres are being purchased by Resettlement. Most of this land is in problem areas, where wind and water erosion and the cutting of timber have destroyed and impoverished land sections. Resettlement is operating on the theory that these lands are not bad lands but, rather, are being badly used.

These areas are being withdrawn from further attempts at agriculture and returned to forests and recreational uses, for which they are best adapted. "More than 446 farm families are being helped to regain new security and independence of relief through the rehabilitation program of the Resettlement Administration.

EXPLAINS WAY TO THINK OF GOD

(Continued from page one) fused. We are trying tonight to find out what Phillip was trying to find out—what kind of a person God is. Not in terms of dictionary but in terms of personality. "The Bishop took up sin in the light of a Christ-like God. Sin is bad in any form or relation whether breaking of a commandment, precept or rule but sin when considered as turning one's back on a Christ-like God or striking him in the face or stretching on the cross of sin makes a lot more difference. To illustrate the Bishop cited the respect of the boys at Rugby School for the Headmaster Arnold whose personality the respected ahead of rules. "I feel about doing wrong that I would not like to hurt God, cheat or break faith with Him. If we do it has a desperate consequence inside us. "This truth has rare value in relation to prayer. Our praying is rather unsatisfactory to us. We would do it more if we did it better—oh no not more glibly or fluently. "In praying we should listen a good deal more than we talk. It is good deal more important that He speak to us than that we tell him what to do. Prayer is not unreal or vague anymore. "The truth that God is a Christ-like God has its place in our theological and world perplexity. Not every kind of a God can be of any use to us now, certain kinds of Gods are of no use today, but harmful and detrimental. "We need a God of almightiness. We need a God of Character who can afford to be given all kinds of power in His hands. Some of the old mythical gods could not be trusted with unlimited power. But a Christ-like God ought to be given supreme power over our lives. That is the way salvation lies."

TO CONSTRUCT COTTON ROADS

State Highway Department Plans To Make Experiment

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walker Hotel, Raleigh, April 9.—At least 100 miles of "cotton roads" will be built in North Carolina if the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads grants the request of the State Highway and Public Works Commission for cotton fabric to use in the surface treatment of that many miles of highways, Chief Engineer W. Vance Baise said today.

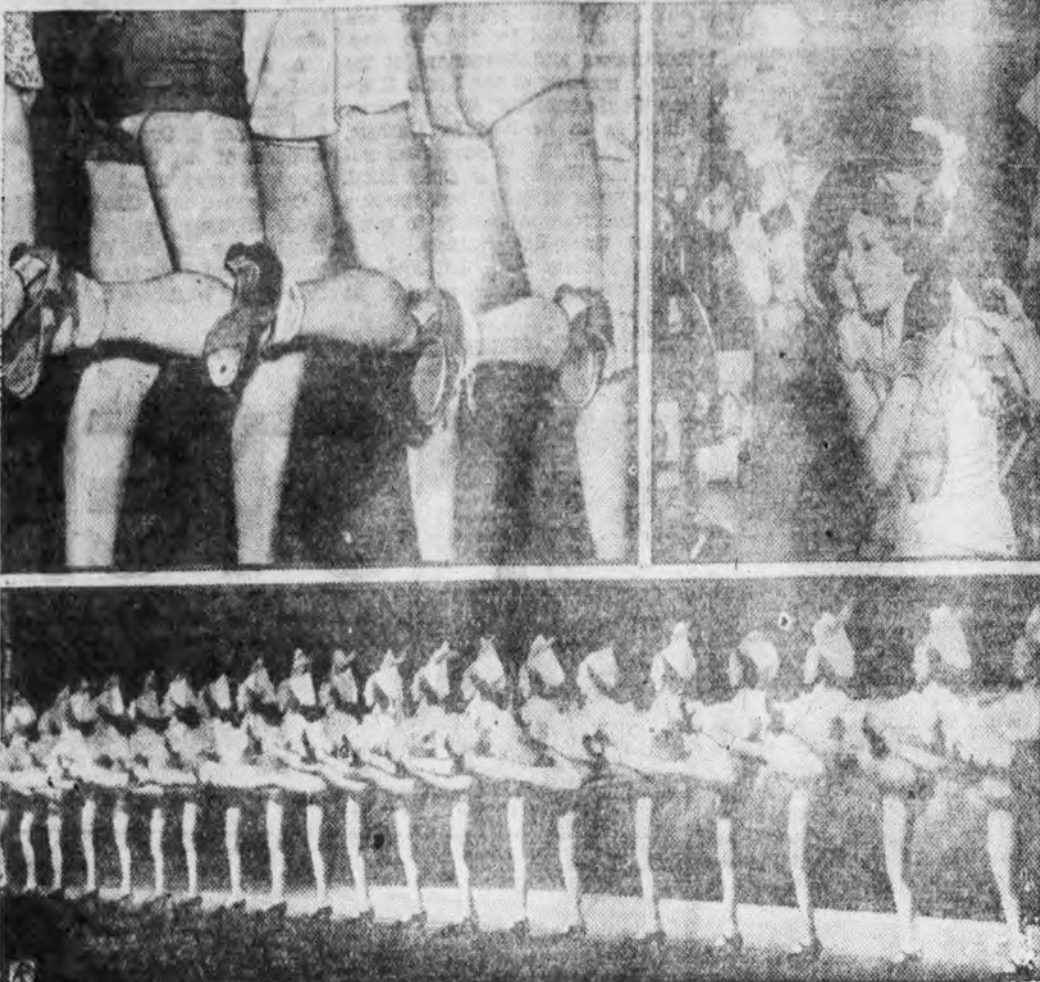

The Federal government has already appropriated funds to provide enough cotton fabric for at least 1,000 miles of roads, to be distributed to the various states and North Carolina has asked for a sufficient amount to use on 100 miles of new work and reconstruction work.

"We have every reason to believe that the Bureau of Public Roads will grant our request for enough cotton fabric for 100 miles of road surfacing, since the plan is to allot all this fabric to the various states to be used by them in building experimental roads in order to test thoroughly the use of cotton fabric as a binder between the base and the bituminous surfacing of roads," Baise said.

It is planned to use this cotton fabric in the construction of several new roads in Gaston, Sampson, Duplin, Wake and Warren counties and in the reconstruction of 63 miles of present roads, Baise said. If Route 277 in Gaston county can be completed this summer, it is planned to surface it and use the cotton fabric binder, Baise said. This strip of road is about six miles long. It is also planned to construct about three miles of experimental road here in Wake county, near Raleigh, and another strip of road in Warren county on Route 43. The longest single stretch now contemplated is between Clinton and Paison, the Sampson and Duplin counties, of about 15 miles on which the cotton fabric binder will be used.

Approximately 11,000 yards of fabric per mile are needed in the surface treatment of 18 foot roads and 11,400 yards are needed per mile on 20 foot roads, Baise said. The new roads on which the fabric will be used will be 20 foot roads while the retrofitted roads will for the most part be 18 foot roads, Baise said. If the state had to buy the cotton fabric, the cost would be from $750 to $1,000 a mile when it is not used.

SHOW GIRLS MIX WASH AND GLAMOR—AND THINK OF BOYS "BACK HOME"

New York, (AP)—They may be glamorous show girls to the stage-door Johnnies, but at heart the Rockettes are just young women in the Radio City Music Hall chorus are just housewives.

An aura of domesticity hangs over every dressing room occupied by the "Rockettes", the dancers who make rhythm their business. A clothes-line, strung from radiator pipe to window, and from which dangles an endless array of silk stockings and lace things, features each room.

All the Rockettes, head-liners in their trade, busy themselves between shows. Some write letters, a few paint or go in for charcoal etch-ings, others read, play the radio, or—practice dancing.

Like Pajamas You'll find them lounging around in 47 varieties of pajamas—wide, bell-bottom ones, with flowered prints or startling hours mannequins themselves or wondering whether the boys back home are still piling horseshoes down by the post-office.

Usually they arrive at the Music Hall around 1 p. m. After checking in at the stage door registration booth, they wander upstairs, take some light preliminary exercise, apply make-up, change to the opening costumes, and await their cues. Once they check in they seldom leave until the last show at night. Recreation rooms with pianos and all sorts of games—plus caterers and quick lunch counters, easily accessible in the building, make it unnecessary for them even to don street clothes until the going-home hour arrives.

A Glimpse Of 'Life' Occasionally, however, they seize the rather long interval between the late afternoon and dinner shows to catch a glimpse of "life."

Often it's an exciting glimpse. They go out the stage door, scout around the block, enter through the front door, and settle down for a thrilling movie. They're crazy about the movies,

More than 6,000 air-conditioned cars are now in use in the United States and it is estimated that railroads have ordered about 1,000 more.

Sir Guy Standing, movie actor, holds a commission as a commander in the British navy.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

MARY W. DEWSON

(By The Associated Press)

Mary W. Dewson already has three months' campaigning behind her in the far and middle west, where she upheld "new deal" performance before women's groups.

As director of the Democratic party's women's division she devised the "Reporter Plan" in which women's clubs organize to study governmental business, and in particular, "new deal" measures. Now she has 15,000 members in such clubs.

She will stay on the road talking to them until election day draws near; then she will retire to her New York office to direct her feminine army by phone, telegram and letter.

Miss Dewson—"Molly" to everyone in the party from the President down—was president of the Consumers League when she first met Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt years ago. She enlisted at Democratic headquarters in 1932 and became James A. Farley's aide.

Tomorrow—Chester C. Bolton

Mrs. Florence Curry, 100, of Horton, Kas., has 34 grandchildren, 43 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

Missouri sales tax tokens, issued a year ago in the form of paste-board "milk-bottle caps" are being reduced in size slightly.

Chicago election officials announced a record of 1,644,198 voters in the city, exceeding by 309 names the next highest registration of 1932.

LOCALS TRAIN FOR BIG GAME

Greenies to Meet The Rocky Mount High Tomorrow

The students of the Greenville High school will begin their celebration of the Easter holidays by turning out at the Third street stadium here Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock to see their baseball representatives, the Greenies, engage the Blackbirds of the Rocky Mount high in another class "A" conference tilt.

Tomorrow's clash will mark the fourth game of the season for the high, and for the time being they are aspiring to produce a winner in behalf of the numerous spectators who are expected to witness the event.

It has not been decided as to whom will start the mound work for the "locals." However, the choice rests between Hamilton, Gaylord and Hedges. Gaylord sprang a surprise during the last game in which the Greenies participated, and proved to the fans his competence in handling the "old pill."

Due to the inclement weather which has prevailed during the past few days, the Greenies practice was halted to a certain extent, but that which they have had has proved very advantageous, and it is their opinion that the local baseball public can rest assured of a real game when they see them face the strong nine from Rocky Mount.

Everyone is urged to attend and see the boys of today who will be the men of tomorrow on an easy victory.

Local Boy is Member School's Tennis Team

Rome, Ga., April 9.—The powerful tennis team of the Darlington Schools for Boys is leaving here on its annual North Carolina invasion this week, with three North Carolina boys on its squad and with a Davidson College alumnus as its mentor.

The number one position will be held down by Billy Turner, of Chevy Chase, Maryland, or Wilford Gragg, Memphis, Tenn. Other members of the squad are: Morris McDonald, Bolton, Ga.; Julian Lane, Wilson, N. C.; Martin Swartz, Greenville, N. C.; and Hatcher Williams, Oxford, N. C. (manager). Johnnie Lafferty, former Davidson court star and All-Southern doubles champion at Darlington, is coach.

Darlington meets Davidson College freshmen on Thursday. Needham Broughton High, of Raleigh, on Saturday morning, and the University of North Carolina freshmen on Saturday afternoon.

SPORT SLANTS

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, youngest girl ever chosen to serve on the United States Curtis Cup golf squad, which essays to defend this international challenge against the attack of Britain's best links-women on May 6 at Gleneagles, Scotland, has some very positive ideas about professionalism.

Patty would turn pro, she asserted recently in Coral Gables, Fla., only if so many other women traded glory for gold that the amateur tournament field for women became virtually extinct.

"I don't think this will ever come to pass," said red-haired, freckled Patty, just turned 18. "For one thing, the women aren't going into the pro field on a large scale until something like the same amount of money now available to the men is put up for the women."

Room for a Few
"Endorsing clubs and staging exhibition matches for the sporting goods companies form the main earning field for the women professionals," said Patty. "Obviously, there aren't enough companies to make this line of work profitable to more than a few women professionals."

The philosophy of the midwestern high school lass was that golf's heights are too jittery, victory too uncertain, for a player to pin his livelihood upon the game.

"You can never tell when your game will go sour on you," she observed. "I play a lot of golf because it happens to be my best, as well as my favorite sport. I'd turn pro if that were necessary for me to continue playing in all the best tournament, but I'm not interested in carving out a professional career in the game."

"As for my business career, I'm going to have me a store, I want to run a business. I'll go to college, preferably one where I can try for the school golf team, and study subjects to fit myself for the business world. I want a women's clothing shop, but if I can't make a go of that, well, I'll branch out and sell anything, even groceries."

A Vicious Circle
Patty believed there was one broad step that might be taken toward professionalizing women's golf on a major scale—a Women's National Open tourney, comparable to that prime classic of men's golf.

"This step seems hardly justifiable, though, until there are a lot more women pros," she explained. "and so it's all a vicious circle." The Minneapolis links sensation fared well on her Florida sojourn, winning two of her five tournament efforts, playing in the final of two others and reaching the semi-final of another.

It was in the Palm Beach women's tournament that Patty probably had her greatest satisfaction of the winter, although this wasn't one of the contests she won. It was there that she defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare of Merion, Pa., women's national champion. Mrs. Vare stopped Patty in the final of the national at Interlachen, Minneapolis, last summer and ironically the 3-and-2 licking Patty administered at Palm Beach was in the same proportions as her loss to the Pennsylvania veteran.

Patty won the championship of golf club champions at Punta Gorda and the Miami Biltmore women's invitation at Coral Gables. She reached the final at Palm Beach and Ormond Beach, but lost in the semi-final, victim of the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, at St. Augustine.

Her teammates hoped the stubby-necked Patty would draw England's rising young star, 19-year-old Pam Barton, as her opponent in the Curtis Cup competition.

Visiting cards were introduced in this country by French royalists who settled on Sapelo island to escape the French revolution.

KING of Them All

Foremost Highflyer, 1935 Grand Champion Jersey Bull. Owned by A. H. Goss, The Oaklands, Ann Arbor, Mich.

THERE ARE PLENTY of Jersey bulls in America, but only one among all the thousands, stands out as National Champion. Foremost Highflyer won 1935 honors at the National Dairy Show, St. Louis, Mo.—a magnificent creature to which Nature gave the vital spark, the perfect natural balance of all the elements that go to make a champion. Wonderful top line, great body, fine neck, shoulders, big barreled, good on his legs—Foremost Highflyer had everything!

Most bulls are just bulls, average strong, average good, but just plain ordinary bulls. There is only one Foremost Highflyer. He stands out the King of them all—the champion.

The champion bull is Nature at her best—one of Nature's wonder creations. Favored by Nature, with her priceless gift of perfect natural balance, the champion is almost beyond price, while another bull that may look a little like him—well, he's just bull, that's all.

And here is another wonder-creation of Nature—Natural Chilean Nitrate. Like the champion bull, Natural Chilean is favored by Nature with that priceless gift of natural balance—natural blend of many elements such as boron, calcium, manganese, etc., over and above its nitrogen. Nature gave the vital spark to this nitrogen fertilizer by blending into it these vital impurities. Nature herself aged it, cured it... that's why Natural Chilean is the natural food for your crops.

Natural Chilean contains almost two score of major and minor elements such as boron, magnesium, manganese, iodine, calcium, potassium, etc.—each a vital element in growth and healthy development of plants.

THE SOUND WAS SOFT AND MUFFLED. I COULD NOT JUDGE ITS DEPTH.

ANGUS M'LEAN TAKES TO AIR

To Speak Tonight on School and Tax Situation

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, April 9.—The radio speech which Angus M'Lean is going to make tonight over Station WPTF here from 8:30 to 9 o'clock, is expected to prove a veritable keg of dynamite in the present campaign for the Democratic nomination for Governor and there is almost as much interest in this speech as if it were being delivered by one of the candidates for the nomination.

It is admittedly causing some uneasiness in the headquarters of Dr. Ralph W. McDonald of Winston-Salem, since the word has gotten around today that M'Lean is going to attack a great deal of the McDonald platform, especially those portions dealing with the public school and taxation.

The managers of both Clyde R. Hoy and R. H. (Sandy) Graham are also awaiting the M'Lean speech with great expectation, since they believe it is going to prove one of the most damaging broadsides yet turned loose on McDonald, although Dr. McDonald will probably not be mentioned in the entire speech. M'Lean, who led the fight for the "MacLean Law" in 1931 for state support of the six months school term, and who again in 1933 led the legislative drive for state support of the eight months school term and who is conceded to have done more to better the condition of the schools and school teachers in North Carolina than any other person, is regarded as one of the ablest speakers in the state.

Until recently he was Solicitor General of the United States in Washington, and handled a great deal of the governments most important suits before the U. S. Supreme Court. Mr. M'Lean will speak on the subject "The School and Tax Situation in 1933" but in the course of his speech he is expected to touch on the present school and tax situation and make some rather pointed observations on some of the things being advocated by Dr. McDonald.

In many of his recent speeches Dr. McDonald has charged that the 1933 general assembly deliberately "wrecked the schools" in order to remove or reduce property taxes on the large corporations. He further has maintained that the 1933 general assembly gave the schools less money than it had been giving them in previous years and declared that the leaders in this movement, in which M'Lean was the principal figure, were the tools of the big corporations. It is expected that M'Lean will make a singing reply to these charges.

WORLD'S LARGEST CARPET SPUN ON GLASGOW LOOM

Glasgow, Scotland (AP)—The world's largest one-piece machine-made carpet has been completed here for the Maharajah of Jodhpur, in evidence that the East now is coming West for its carpets. Weighing nearly a ton, the rug is 80 feet long and 27 feet wide. It will be shipped to India in a specially made tin-lined case, hermetically sealed as a precaution against damage in transit. Gold in color with a blue and green border, the mammoth fabric was woven on the widest carpet-weaving loom in the world. Each strand of yarn is composed of nine separately spun threads and each square inch contains 96 tufts or knots, making a total of 30,000,000 tufts in the whole carpet.

TWO MAYORS FUNCTION IN SINGLE TEXAS TOWN

Cuero, Tex. (AP)—This south Texas town has two mayors serving official terms. Here's how it happens: Mayor J. Terry Newman is the duly elected mayor and Z. W. Fowler is mayor of Dickens, Tex., and serving in that capacity although he is a bona fide resident here. Fowler recently was transferred here from Dickens but is carrying out his official duties through the mails and commuting. The coincidence does not end there. Both mayors are connected with lumber companies.
