LEADERS LOOK TO ROOSEVELT TALK TONIGHT

President to Address Baltimore Democrats Tonight

PLANS ARE MADE FOR BROADCAST

Political Interest Increased by Illinois and Nebraska Primaries Tomorrow

Washington, April 13.—(AP)—Plunging into the campaign wars after his rest at sea, President Roosevelt made final preparations today for his speech at a democratic rally in Baltimore tonight.

New Deal supporters looked to the chief executive to indicate further the line the administration will follow in the big drive toward the November elections.

From this address, which will be made before the state young democrats club after an old time torch light procession, the party leaders are expected to take their cues for the campaign struggle.

The address will be broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up at 10:30 p. m. E. S. T.

Topping political interests tomorrow are the primaries of Illinois and Nebraska.

Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, and Senator Borah of Idaho, contest in Illinois in the first out-and-out struggle between candidates for the Republican presidential nomination. Supporters of both claim victory.

In the democratic primary in Illinois, President Roosevelt is unopposed.

In Nebraska Borah's name is alone on the republican primary ballot. A poll of candidates for delegates showed, however, that the Idahoan is not at present assured of the state's delegation.

President Roosevelt is unopposed in the Nebraska democratic primary.

State Plans For Conducting Clinic For Tuberculosis

Examinations To Be Given Free of Charge by Clinician of State Sanatorium Field Service

Dr. N. Thomas Ennett, Pitt county health officer, today announced arrangements had been made for conducting an adult tuberculosis clinic in the county during the week beginning May 11.

While a definite schedule has not been worked out as yet, Dr. Ennett said the clinic would be conducted in Farmville and Ayden one day each, with the other three days to be in Greenville.

Approximately 25 persons can be examined daily. A field extension service clinician of the North Carolina Sanatorium will give the examinations. Dr. Ennett urged all physicians to send in patients, either for diagnosis or a check-up. All persons must come through their respective physicians.

The examinations will be conducted without cost to those examined. If an X-ray is necessary, however, persons other than indigents will be expected to pay for this service. Arrangements have been made whereby the X-ray can be made at reduced cost. A portion of the Tuberculosis Seal sale will be used to provide X-rays for persons needing the service and unable to pay for it themselves, it was explained.

The health officer said that all persons who have lived in a home with a tuberculosis patient should be examined as a precautionary measure.

The clinic will be for both white and colored people and no age limit is set, the service being for both grown-ups and children.

THRONG HEARS SIX OFFICIALS R. W. McDONALD ARE ARRESTED

Candidate Opposes Levying of Land Tax By State

Dr. Ralph McDonald, anti-sales tax candidate for Governor, brought his campaign into the heart of the East this morning in an address in the Pitt county court house here.

Declaring that he had always opposed every effort to bring about the levying of a tax on land by the state, Dr. McDonald made it clear that he would "under no circumstances or conditions permit any part of the tax burden to be placed back on land. The state land tax should never have been enacted in North Carolina; certainly we should never again levy such a tax."

Referring to the present tobacco situation, Dr. McDonald urged an immediate session of the state legislature to pass legislation relating to the proposed tobacco compact. "No man in North Carolina is less desirous of going through the pains of a special session than I am," he said. "I need every bit of my time and energy in connection with my campaign. But the farm situation for the tobacco grower is acute; it cannot wait."

Reviewing the course of tobacco control legislation since 1933, Dr. McDonald prophesied "utter collapse of the tobacco markets this fall unless something is done." He declared that such a collapse would not only injure the tobacco farmer, but that in addition general business throughout the state would be very seriously impaired.

"The effectiveness of President Roosevelt's New Deal for the United States is due largely to the fact that he has put into practice the age-old principle that to have good business in any line it is necessary first of all to insure the farmer a fair return on his project. His purchasing power will make the wheels of business go round; nothing else will be effective unless this purchasing power is in the hands of the farmer."

Improving Farming Major Objective of Shelby Candidate

Gubernatorial Candidate Favors Close Cooperation Between State and Federal Forces

Winston, N. C., April 13.—(AP)—Clyde R. Hoey, candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, predicted a close cooperation between state and federal agricultural forces as one of the major objectives of his proposed administration in a speech in the court house early this afternoon.

"It shall be my constant purpose to strive to improve the farming industry," he said. "In cooperation with the Roosevelt administration the best friend the farmer ever had, this can be done."

FASCIST PUSH ALONG SHORES OF LAKE TANA

Italians Draw Near to Center of British Interests

PLANES FLYING OVER CAPITAL

Battle Continues On Diplomatic Fronts With Both Sides Hurling Charges

(By The Associated Press)
N. rinal Pietro Badoglio, Italian commander in East Africa, telegraphed from the northern front today that his troops, pushing in the western area of the northern front are pushing down along the shores of Lake Tana, center of British interests in Ethiopia.

From Addis Ababa came word that once more the populace felt the city at the approach of Italian airplanes, but again the fascist planes failed to bomb the Ethiopian capital.

The Italian commander reported an engagement on the southern Ethiopian front where a small body of Italian troops defeated a relatively large body of native defenders saying the Ethiopian losses were "considerable."

Emperor Haile Selassie, meanwhile, was reported from Addis Ababa to be leading an army of fresh warriors totalling 300,000 men to battle the fascist in the north.

The battle between the belligerents continued on the diplomatic front, both Italy and Ethiopia hurling fresh charges against each other of non-observation of the rules of war on the very eve of peace negotiations.

The Italian telegram to the League of Nations said they would observe the rules of war, but would retaliate against any infringement by the Ethiopians.

Emperor Haile Selassie charged the Italians with using gas in his daily attacks upon the defenders.

Sales Supervisor Says Weed Plants Be Ready Shortly

K. W. Cobb Reports That Blue Mold in Evidence and That Some Tobacco Beds Drowned

K. W. Cobb, supervisor of the Greenville tobacco market reported today that he talked with a number of farmers over the week-end and that a good percent of the tobacco plants would be ready to set out next week.

"The plants are pushing the top of the cover," in many beds, Mr. Cobb said.

Mr. Cobb said he had observed some blue mold, but not as much as had been feared. He also said that "quite a few beds had been drowned" by the heavy rains of last week.

The supervisor expressed the opinion that the tobacco farmers generally were going to confine their plantings to 70 per cent of their base acreage. Farmers have been urged to hold their acreage to this figure so they will be qualified to participate in any benefits provided by the government.

He added that practically all the farmers he had talked to were going to hold their tobacco plantings down this spring.

News Behind The News

FOGUS: Uncle Sam's most far-sighted diplomatic and military trouble-shooters still train their sharpest spy glasses on Ethiopia. Experts so high up their names can not be hinted regard the Italo-British clash as more menacing to world peace than the Rhineland or Mongolian conflicts.

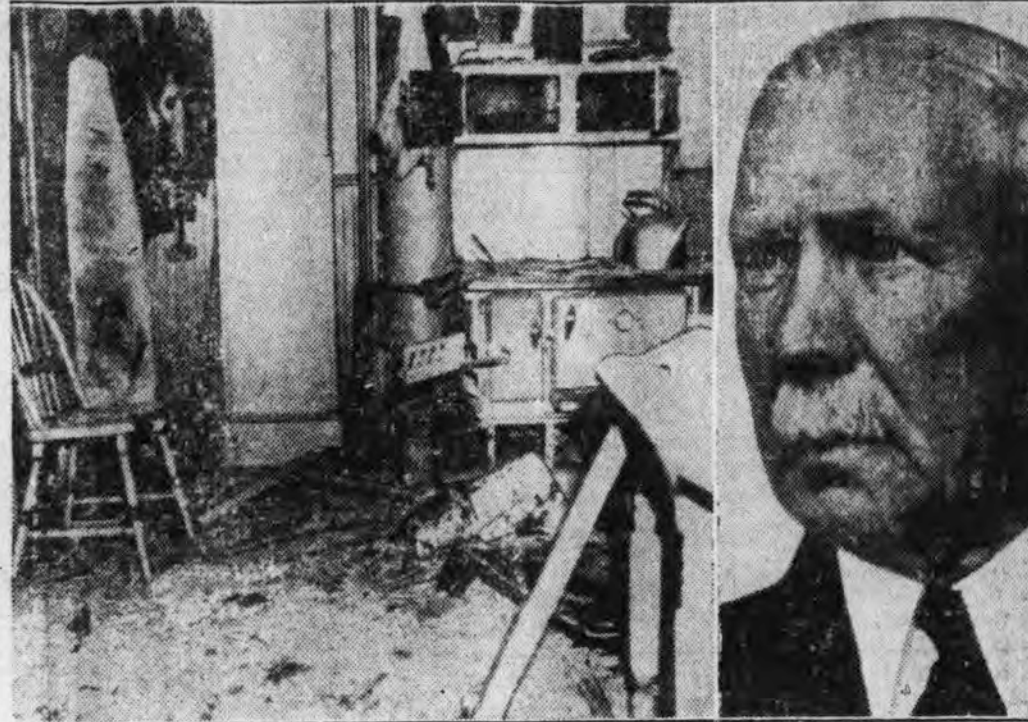

Britain will strive to stave off a continental outbreak until she learns what Mussolini aims at in the event of a smashing victory over Haile Selassie. The Mediterranean, the Suez Canal and the Red Sea form the lifeline to Egypt, India, British China, Australia and New Zealand—the empire's most precious possessions. They are in-initely more important than maintaining friendship with France or checkmating Hitler. That "Little Caesar" senses the Eden-Baldwin weakness is evidenced by his purely diplomatic diversion of troops toward the headwaters of the Blue Nile.

Therefore England will back a French war against Germany only as a desperate means of sidestepping Italy. And if nobody touches the match to the bonfire piled up in Central Europe, Japan will refrain from tackling the Russian Bear.

CHAS. SKINNER FUNERAL HELD

Last Rites Conducted This Afternoon from Sister's Home

Funeral services for Charles O. Skinner, 53, were conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the home of his sister, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen on West Fifth street. Rev. Worth Wicker, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, assisted by Rev. Reginald Eastman, rector of Galilee Episcopal chapel of Virginia Beach, Va., conducted the services. Burial followed in the Episcopal churchyard.

The funeral cortege arrived in this city about 1 o'clock from Virginia Beach, where Mr. Skinner was found dead in the surf early Saturday morning.

A knife wound was found on Mr. Skinner's throat, but the coroner said death was caused by drowning. No evidence of foul play was discovered, the coroner announced.

Mr. Skinner was a native of this city and was well-known in tobacco circles. The son of Mrs. Hattie Skinner and the late Charles Skinner, he was born April 13, 1883.

In 1904 he was married to Miss Nina James of this city, who died in April, 1918. Of this union three sons, Charles C. Jr., James and Louis Skinner, survive.

In 1927 he was married to Miss Mary Scott of St. Louis, who with one son, Oron Scott Skinner, survive. Other survivors include his mother, Mrs. Hattie Skinner, two brothers, Dr. L. C. Skinner of Tarpon Springs, Fla., and four sisters, Mrs. E. B. Ficklen, Mrs. E. B. Ferguson of this city, Mrs. C. S. Carr of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. H. H. Phillips of Tarboro.

Mr. Skinner entered the tobacco business in this city at an early age, later being transferred to New York and then back to this city where he was made manager of the American Tobacco company's plant. He was later transferred to Greece, where he was in charge of a department of his company's offices there.

In 1925 he resigned from the company and accepted a position with the Standard Commercial Trading corporation. He later entered the tobacco brokerage business. He had recently completed arrangements for entering the tobacco warehouse business in Greenville the coming season.

Funeralbearers were: Burkes Withers, Charles Carr, F. W. Brown, E. G. Flanagan, H. H. Phillips, Tarboro; J. B. James, W. T. Lipscomb. (Continued on Page Four)

SEEKING WAYS REFUND BONDS

Virginia Wants To Know How State Manages

Raleigh, April 13.—The Virginia Real Estate Association wants to know how 28 cities and towns and 18 counties in North Carolina have managed to refund their bonded indebtedness during the past two years so as to save a total of $36,422,086 in interest charges. State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson revealed today. He has just received a letter from Otto Holloman, secretary of the Virginia Real Estate Association, asking how these refunding operations were managed and what steps Virginia would have to take in order to follow North Carolina's example.

"The reason North Carolina has been able to secure these refunding agreements is first, because it has a central agency—the Local Government Commission—as a clearing house to handle all this work, and the necessary laws under which the Local Government Commission may proceed and deal with bondholders," Johnson said.

"A second reason is that the Local Government Commission for more than eighty years now has been studying the fiscal affairs and conditions of the 100 counties and 364 cities and towns, so that it already has a thorough knowledge of the fiscal ability of all the subdivisions and hence knows whether they can pay off their present bonded indebtedness or whether it will have to be refunded. Still a third factor is the long experience the commission has had in handling all kinds of refunding plans, so that it now knows just how to proceed—experience that the counties and towns individually lack and have no way to gain."

If Virginia desires to carry on refunding operations for its cities and towns, as North Carolina has, it must first set up a commission or agency similar to the North Carolina Local Government Commission, Johnson said. It must then make a thorough study of the fiscal condition and ability of every subdivision, then secure the legislation required to empower this commission to act as the agent for the various subdivisions. It must then contact the bondholders and secure their cooperation in the refunding plans.

ARMY GENERAL IS REINSTATED BY ROOSEVELT

General Hagood Sent to The Sixth Corps Area in Chicago

TO BE STATIONED LAST THIS MONTH

To Have Command of Second Army Embracing 5th and 6th Corps Area

Washington, April 13.—(AP)—Major General Johnson Hagood was ordered restored to active duty today in command of the sixth Corps Area at Chicago.

Hagood was removed from command of the 8th Corps Area after he had criticized paper money as "stage money." The disciplined officer conferred twice with President Roosevelt.

A Chicago he will replace Major General Frank R. McCoy. The assignment is effective May 2.

The decision to restore Hagood to active duty was made personally by President Roosevelt after a second conference with Hagood at the White House Saturday evening.

In army quarters it was understood that Hagood, who is the third highest ranking general officer in the army, urged President Roosevelt to send him to the Second Corps Area which is considered the most desirable command post in the United States.

But it was reported that this was opposed both by high administration officials and by General Mallin Craig, chief-of-staff.

At Chicago Hagood will have command of the second army embracing troops within both the fifth and sixth corps area.

Chairman McSwain (D. S. C.) of the house military committee and a friend of the officer, and Rep. Blanton (D. Texas) praised the president's actions in restoring Hagood. They led the fight on Capitol Hill for his reinstatement.

Expect President Insist On Measure With Enough Cash

Presidential Insistence on Tax Bill Providing Sufficient Revenue Is Forecast

Washington, April 13.—(AP)—Presidential insistence upon a tax bill providing sufficient revenue to meet Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of federal money requirements was forecast today by Speaker Byrnes.

Just what form the President's insistence might take, the Speaker did not say, nor did he make any mention of what might be the tax bill up to the House to bring the tax bill up to the total sought by Mr. Roosevelt—$722,000,000 over each of the first three years and $620,000,000 thereafter.

"I think the President is going to insist on having enough revenue," he said. "I don't know that the bill will fall short. I look on that with some doubt."

His remarks were in reply to questions at his press conference on the possibility that the bill, being drafted by the ways and means committee, might produce $345,000,000 less over the first three years than the administration wants. The committee had rejected the President's suggestion that processing taxes might be levied.

The Speaker said he did not expect the bill to come before the House earlier than a week from Wednesday and that it should take no more than a week to pass. He predicted it would go through "precisely" as reported out by the ways and means committee.

Cleveland Looks Forward To Fireworks As Republicans Prepare For Convention

Political leaders predict a boisterous Republican convention next June in Cleveland's public hall, (above), where Calvin Coolidge was named G. O. P. standard bearer 12 years ago. The map shows the location of the auditorium with respect to various points of interest near the convention site.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Public Hall, in recent years the setting for colorful pageants, noisy circuses and the splendor of grand opera, will echo beginning June 9 with what may be the most interesting Republican political show in many years.

The Republican party in choosing Cleveland for the nomination of its 1936 presidential candidate, selected a city and state where political contests are bitterly fought and widely appreciated.

The hall itself has political background. Calvin Coolidge was nominated there in 1924 amid cries of "Keep cool with Coolidge." The economy platform which Coolidge took into the White House was approved there.

Expectations of national G. O. P. leaders who hope the convention will generate power for a sweeping concerted drive against the "new deal," are matched by those of Ohio Republican leaders. They expect the convention to provide the stimulus for a successful attack on the Democratic regime in Ohio government.

Expect "Fighting" Meeting
A spirited, boisterous gathering generally is expected. Lafayette B. Gleason, temporary secretary of the Republican national convention, expects the convention will be a "fighting one for the first time since 1912."

The 1924 convention was a moderately quiet affair. Coolidge was nominated on the first ballot, 1065 to 44.

Republicans who attended that convention will find changes when they come to Cleveland this year. Arriving by train they will find a new Union Station. There are more hotel accommodations. If they arrived by plane, they will see a larger airport.

The hall itself has been enlarged so that it will now seat 14,200 persons. The lack of smaller halls where delegates might hold private conferences has been corrected. There are now 15 such rooms.

The main arena, 120 feet wide and 248 feet long, affords an unobstructed view from any part of the hall. A glass ceiling, 110 feet high, conceals the lighting system.

Ohio's Political History
In 1928, one of the crucial battles in the pre-convention campaign was fought in Ohio with Col. Carmi A. Thompson of Cleveland aligned with the then secretary of commerce, Herbert Hoover, against a "favorite son," Senator Frank B. Willis. In the background, directing the primary and pre-convention campaign was another Ohioan, Walter F. Brown of Toledo, who became postmaster general.

Former Senator Simeon D. Fess, another Ohioan and former national Republican chairman, co-operated with Thompson and Brown in obtaining the 1924 convention for Cleveland.

Five major party conventions have been held in Ohio. The Democratic convention of 1856 was held in Cincinnati as were the Republican convention of 1876 and the Democratic convention of 1880. The Liberal Republican convention of 1872 was held in Columbus. The last was the 1924 convention here.

Six Ohioans have been elected to the presidency, William H. Harrison, Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, William McKinley, William Howard Taft and Warren G. Harding.

Three Ohio nominees were defeated: Harrison, in 1836; Taft, in 1912, when a split occurred in the Republican party, and James M. Cox, in 1920, when as Democratic nominee he was defeated by a fellow Ohioan, Harding.

PEACE ACTION

"Every nation talks peace," says Bruce Barton in one of his magazine articles, "but spends all its money for war. In this world of ours there is a law which is as unchanging as the law of the Medes and Persians. You do not get something for nothing." And so long as we assume that world peace will come without effort and without cost, we shall have war.

Mr. Barton goes on to point out in his article that we must advertise the virtues of and step toward peace, on one hand, and the horrors of war, on the other—just as a business man advertises over and over even the commodities that people already know they want.

As an advertising man Mr. Barton proposes a campaign of publicity that will be world-wide and increasing. He suggests taking 5 per cent of the total appropriation for national defense to finance a full page advertisement in every issue of all our leading magazines, 4 each month in daily papers and 4 in weekly papers, 4 half-hour radio programs monthly, and 4 full pages each month in leading papers abroad.

As one part of the campaign he would educate Americans to understand and sympathize with the problems of foreign nations—to see, for example, that our expecting Germany to give up her rights in the Polish Corridor and quit squabbling with Poland would be like Europe thinking that we might well cede California to Mexico. Americans must come to realize how complicated European problems are and be ready to give "not one long-distance advice but more understanding."

Mr. Barton is obviously right when he reminds us that our nation has been willing to spend billions for arms for defense—past, present, and future—and yet has been expecting to "sell" the idea of permanent peace (a greater defense than armies and navies) through occasional treaties, or as Mr. Barton puts it, "through a few kindly old gentlemen, a piece of paper, a blotter, and a fountain pen."

People who want World Peace must help in some such advertising campaign to show the cost of war in money, agony, and human life, as well as its absolute futility; and to bring repeatedly to public notice possible ways of attaining the happiness of peace.

Signed: Greenville Council for Peace Action.

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

For reasons well hidden under the surface, the launching of the pro-Roosevelt "labor non-partisan league" has aspects and possibilities usually lacking in similar ventures.

It always has been a disputed point whether the "labor vote" can be lined up with any semblance of solidarity for any Democratic or Republican presidential candidate at any time.

Some labor leaders have felt, however, that if ever such a thing were possible, it would be in a year like 1936, when class distinctions are much emphasized and party lines badly tangled.

Therefore the advent of the new league was certain to attract wide attention. Is it the beginning of a cohesive political action, at last, on the part of labor? The question cannot be answered at this writing, but one generally-overlooked fact presents itself.

While outwardly the league is dedicated to harmonizing labor support behind the President, certain elements exist which hint, instead, at a possible transference to the political theater of organized labor's big family feud.

Strife Is Acute

For years, two factions within the American Federation of Labor have been at odds. Recently the quarrel has become acute.

Coe faction wants all workers in each big industry organized into one big union. The other wants individual unions based on occupation.

Those who want to organize by industry alone include George L. Berry, head of the printing pressmen; John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers; and Sidney Hillman, president of the clothing workers. A principal in the other group is Daniel J. Tobin, head of the teamsters.

Berry was chairman of the Democratic national committee's labor division in 1928. Tobin held the same position in 1932. For some months now it has appeared that Tobin, not Berry, would have the job in 1936.

In this situation, Hillman came to Berry with a problem. Hillman is a member of the socialist party, and so are many members of his union. How could these socialists be lined up for Roosevelt without the necessity of joining the Democratic party?

The two of them put their heads together. The league resulted. They called Lewis, a Republican, by telephone. He approved the idea.

Fooled William Green

So far as appears, the league was formed without consultation with President Roosevelt or the Democratic national committee. Nor is there any indication that William Green, head of the A. F. of L., knew anything about it until he read the newspapers.

Now where does this leave everyone concerned? If Roosevelt is re-elected, will credit for his labor support go to Berry, Lewis and Hillman, instead of Tobin? And if so, will that faction have first say at the White House about labor policy and labor legislation?

Will the league tail wag the A. F. of L. dog, not only in matters of politics, but with respect to internal affairs of organized labor as well?

Berry's friends deny that the league was formed as a nucleus for a labor party in 1940. Yet in these troubled times, it is impossible for anyone to be sure what may come of such group movements as this.

Certainly it is interesting to consider the three possibilities—that the league actually will succeed in harmonizing labor support behind the President, that it will succeed in nothing and will go the way of many another "non-partisan" political venture, or finally that it will lead to one grand and costly political row in the ranks of organized labor.

SAYS FARMERS APPROVE PLAN

Much Interest Being Shown in Soil Con- servation Act

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel.

Raleigh, April 13.—Completing the third week of explaining the new farm conservation program at county seat meetings held in the various counties of North Carolina, the State College agricultural extension specialists and district agents who have had the meetings in charge report heavy attendance and much interest shown by farmers.

"It has not been uncommon to have from 300 to 1,000 and more farmers at each of our meetings, and the farm agents who then take the message to community gatherings report continued interest there," said Dean I. O. Schaub, yesterday. "At one of the meetings which I attended last week, the men present kept busy for two hours after the explanatory talk answering questions relating to their particular problems. There seems to be no doubt that a big majority of our landowners will co-operate in the new soil building program and will obtain grants for performance."

Asked what was one of the most common questions, the Dean said the farmers wanted to know first if they could sell all the cash crop produced on a given area after co-operating to increase their acreage of soil conserving and building crops. When satisfied that this was true, they next wanted to know what forms they would have to sign.

"It is well, therefore, for all to keep in mind that on contracts are to be signed," said Mr. Schaub. "The first thing is to prepare a work sheet showing how the entire farm is cropped and this will be used in establishing the farm bases. After this work sheet is properly filled out, the cooperating farmer next signs an application for a grant showing the use of his land in 1936. After this application has been passed for payment and the farmer has planted 20 per cent of his base acreage in soil conserving crops and has accomplished certain soil improving practices on his farm, his grant will be paid. This payment probably will not be received before next fall."

State Departments Take Easter Holiday

Raleigh, April 13.—All state departments and offices are closed here today as a result of the usual Easter Monday holiday granted to all state employees. Many of those living elsewhere took advantage of the long week-end and left here Saturday afternoon for their homes in order to spend Easter Sunday there.

Those who live too far from Raleigh to go to their homes either remained here or took week-end trips to places nearer by.

Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus left here Sunday afternoon for Washington, and planned to board a plane there today to fly to Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he will make an address tonight under the auspices of the National Democratic Committee.

SPECIAL WEATHER REPORTS GIVEN ON BERLIN PHONES

Berlin—(AP)—With little more effort than dialing two figures on the telephone, Berlin residents now can get any kind of specialized information about the weather.

The service is particularly designed for tradesmen, sportsmen who want to know what kind of weather to expect the following day at some resort, and hotel keepers who thus are informed whether to expect large or small crowds.

The cost for such calls to a division of the postal department is about 14 cents. The subscriber simply dials "K-4," makes his wants known, and is shortly called back with the required prediction.

FRENCH SCIENTIST TELLS WORLD OF NEW SUN RAY

Paris—(AP)—The discovery of a new ray in the sun's halo, hitherto unknown, is claimed by a French astronomer, Bernard Lyot.

The ray—or it may even be a series of rays—is held to indicate that there is something, perhaps a chemical element, which so far has escaped the attention of observers. My Lyot, who has been analyzing the sun's light for the last year at the observatory on the Pic du Midi mountain in the Pyrenees, described his discovery in a report to the French Academy of Sciences.

He used a special apparatus, the coronagraph, which he said permitted exploration of the sun's halo at all times and not, as previously, only during eclipses. The coronagraph divides the halo into the bands of the spectrum and it was while examining the red band, M. Lyot said, that he came across the new ray.

WADE THOUGHT OUT IN FRONT

Present Secretary of State Regarded As Leading Foe

Reflector Bureau, Raleigh, April 13.—Stacey W. Wade, present Secretary of State, is now regarded as being definitely in the lead for the nomination to succeed himself in the June primary, according to reports from different sections of the state. Six months ago the prevailing belief in most political circles here and elsewhere was that Wade did not have a chance to win the nomination again and that Thad Eure of Raleigh and Winton would undoubtedly be nominated.

But these reports did not greatly alarm Wade, who kept on quietly working in his own behalf among his friends throughout the state. The result has been that a majority of the more experienced political observers are now of the opinion that Wade is well out in front of both Eure and M. R. Dunnagan, the strong candidate who is making a strong bid for the western vote.

There is a possibility, of course, that either Eure or Dunnagan may be able to overtake Wade between now and the date of the primary on June 6. But Wade's long experience in state politics and the large following he is conceded to have in all sections are regarded as being distinctly to his advantage.

Both Eure and Dunnagan are busy at work, according to reports, with Dunnagan making a specially strong bid for the votes of the Democrats in the Piedmont and west, pointing out that both Wade and Eure are from the extreme east and that the east has more than its share of state offices and has had for years. It is now conceded that Dunnagan will get a great many more votes than many at first thought.

While Eure is active and getting around the state more than either Wade or Dunnagan, the belief is growing that he has been depending too much upon the help he has expected from members and former members of the general assembly and from county officials. Experienced observers point out that members of the general assembly who are trying to be renominated have their hands full with their own campaigns, that the others do not have much influence and that the county officials are likewise too busy trying to be renominated to have any time left to work for any one else.

BRITISH EXPLORE FOR ORE AT WORLD'S HIGHEST LAKE

Cambridge, England—(AP)—Lake Titicaca in South America in which legend says, was dumped $250,000,000 of Inca treasure to save it from Spanish invaders, is to be the objective of a British scientific expedition next year.

Search for mineral deposits, and not treasure hunting, will be the purpose, however, of the British scientists.

They will also seek ways and means of bringing a measure of prosperity to what is considered one of the poorest areas in the world.

Lake Titicaca, said to be the highest lake in the world, and one of the largest, lies partly in Peru and partly in Northern Bolivia, probably was formed by a shift in the formation of the Andes and feeds into an immense area of desolate marsh land.

More than 1,000 acres will be planted to popcorn in Colorado county, Tex., this year.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Charles D. Hilles

(By The Associated Press)

Political periscopes have been trained for many years on quiet Charles D. Hilles, national Republican committeeman from New York.

This year he may be more of a storm center than ever. Younger Republicans in his own state, led by Representative Hamilton Fish, are pointing out that, despite Hilles, the state has a Democratic governor and two Democratic senators.

From Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, come demands for "liberalizing" the party, and by that Borah means, first, the sending of untried state delegations to the party's convention at Cleveland.

New York delegation, led by Hilles, is traditionally untried. The tug-of-war over Republican politics, if it occurs at Cleveland, is expected to see Hilles' troops on one side and Borah's on the other.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—(AP)—The simple, short-voiced statement made by Senator Wheeler of Montana as chairman of the Senate interstate commerce committee that hearings would be held on S.4174 during the present session of Congress caused everyone around Washington to sit up and take notice.

S.4174 is one of the most important measures affecting labor to come before Congress in a long time. Briefly, it prescribes methods of taking care of those railway employees expected to be displaced by proposed railroad consolidations.

Labor officials estimate that from 150,000 to 250,000 railway employees would be affected.

The House interstate and foreign commerce committee already has begun hearings on a companion bill. The fact that the Senate has decided to go into the matter at this session indicates that apparently a serious effort will be made to secure enactment of the legislation before adjournment.

Known on Capitol Hill as the Wheeler-Crosser bill, S.4174 attempts to compel the railroads to provide for those employees, displaced by proposed consolidations, either comparable employment or compensation.

It is an effort to apply on a nationwide basis principles which heretofore have been tried out in isolated cases.

The railroads are offered four alternatives in dealing with these displaced employees:

1. Provide for them comparable employment under no less favorable conditions.

2. If that is not possible then provide a continuing compensation pending such comparable employment.

3. A fair and just dismissal compensation which shall equal at least the earnings of the worker to be anticipated from one full year of continuing service.

4. An adequate pension for those who are eligible for retirement.

The last two provisions would be at the option of the employees. Despite stubborn opposition, labor leaders are confident if they can get the Wheeler-Crosser bill reported out of both House and Senate committees its passage is assured.

A determined fight is in prospect both against the principles involved and time. Parliamentary maneuvering for the purpose of delaying the measure could quite easily see it lost in the crush of the closing days of the session.

Familiar arguments are being advanced by representatives of railway labor to secure enactment of the bill. They contend that wherever it has been possible to change a process, add a physical facility or consolidate facilities to displace labor, railway managements have made the change.

Mother Advised Ailing Daughter To Take CARDUI

Many, many women have taken Cardui on the advice of their mothers who had been helped by it.

"I would have severe cramping spells," writes Mrs. F. C. Allen, of Smithdale, Miss. "I would get nauseated, and feel faint and would have to go to bed. I would be very nervous for two or three days. I was afraid to go away from home, for fear I would faint and fall. My mother, having used Cardui with good results, advised me to try it. "I am so glad I took Cardui and got relief, for it has done wonders for me."

If you suffer this way, send to the drug store for a bottle of Cardui and begin taking it today. Of course, if Cardui does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.

DOLLARS WASTED ON UPKEEP CAN'T BUY NEW ROADS

Inferior roads seem cheap and easy to build. They stretch a paving fund so that it covers a lot of territory. But after a year or two, the trouble begins! Maintenance costs go up and up. Soon all your paving money is spent on upkeep . . . and no more new roads are built.

That's why it's wise—and economical—to build concrete roads. Concrete lasts! It requires almost no upkeep. Each year, the paving fund builds more miles of concrete until the whole job is done—for keeps.

North Carolina needs more concrete roads

Concrete's smooth, non-skid surface is safe and satisfactory to drive on. It speeds up traffic . . . reduces accidents . . . saves motorists up to two cents a mile in gas, tires and repairs, as compared with driving on inferior roads.

Get concrete. Insist on it—for safety, comfort and economy.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

Confidential advices from abroad
report that his "recovery shot"
came just in time to spare him an outbreak at home and mutiny in
the field.

It Duce's first Ethiopian generalissimo was Emilio De Bono. His appointment was personal and political,
and it suggests that the Italian
ruler expected a much easier time
in conquering Judah's lion. The old man had "covered" stories with Mussolini in their Socialist newspaper days and participated in the march on Rome. As a soldier, De Bono was a failure. His cautious
creeping caused campfire muttering.
The publicity he showered on Mussolini's nephews—army aviators
—angered home folks whose sons
were toting rifles.

During the peak of discontent Il
Duce called a midnight council.
Several hardy spirits told him the truth. Pietro Badoglio, a regular army man, summarily supplanted
De Bono. He hauled the army out of the trenches and steady advance
crushed the cradle of Bessie's guerrillas. But Badoglio's first order
was to keep the names and exploits
of the nephews off the front pages.
That unkind command helped to save the fascist dictatorship.

WINNER: Smart headwork likes
behind the drive for delegates
which has already netted Governor
Al Landon approximately 350 votes
—some guess as high as 400—in the Republican national convention.

The Kansan's friends will not decline support from any state, and his undercover strength in the East
and South will surprise even the professionals. But Campaign Manager John Hamilton will concentrate on territory west of the Mississippi from now until June. He hopes to corral every state except Idaho, Washington and Oregon (which are generally conceded to Landon).

The explanation for this strategy
is found in eastern G. O. P.-ers'
repeated declarations that the nomination must go to a western
man, but that the West must first agree on its favorite. That's the attitude of Old Guarders known to be toke-warms to the Kansan. They won't have an anti-Landon leg to stand on if the Governor succeeds
in "winning the West."

CHARGE: No decision since the NRA upset has exasperated New Deal legalites so much as the Supreme Court's ruling in the Securities Exchange case. Privately
they regard it as extra-legal evidence that the land's highest tribunal considers itself the citizen's only citadel of protection against government interference.

Legally, they resent the court's
criticism of "fishing expeditions"
and "star chamber" methods. They reply that every issue involved in the suit before the court was specific and definite—the charge, the subpoena and the evidence. Politically, they raise a point which most people miss—and one which casts
a new light on the philosophy of the majority.

It is generally agreed that the court set out to condemn such things as the Black committee's seizure of telegrams. But lawyers
not that suits involving the committee's search-and-seizure methods were pending in lower courts
when the higher court passed judgment. At the same time the committee's request for $10,000 additional funds was before the Senate.
The "brain trusters" charge—of the record—that the "nine old
men" tried to influence both judicial and legislative processes not within their jurisdiction. And, of course, they don't like it.

New York

CONVERTS: Governor Landon's
backers are taking a new tack to head off the rising tide of opposition to the Kansan on the basis
that his nomination might split the party and ruin its chances of victory. They have used their new argument in New York with promised success and several big time eastern politicians are now trying to help them sell it to a group
of G. O. P. Senators and ex-Sena-

Golden Rain

by Margaret Widdemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning has been taken into her Aunt Phina's rather speedy set in New York. She enjoys the change from genteel
poverty in a small Pennsylvania
town; she enjoys also the triumph
of having Alton Reckley desert Georgia Blue for her. Alton being the entirely eligible young man he
is. But Iris was a little perturbed
when Alton ran away with her the night before, landing finally at a slightly tawdry roadside for up
the Hudson.

Chapter 33. LECTURE.

THE brother and sister dined
alone that night; Phina was in bed, after the excitement of lease-
signing.

"Oh, I love New York! It's a
magic city!" Iris said. She crossed the room and leaned out the window. "The tall buildings, the sky-
line with all those starred gay
heights against it, and the dull-ro-
gish glow in the sky below."

"I know," said Owen gently. "I hope it will never look like just Park Avenue to you."

"Oh, you talk like Uncle Will.
You ought to be back in our hermit
age, I believe you'd like that," Iris
said, half teasing, half annoyed.
"We were cast wrong. You don't really like the pleasures and pal-
aces; you would have been happier
than I with Uncle Will and Father
and Aunt Ella. Maybe you'd have been a real artist."

"Well, I had Mother till I was twelve, you know. She was the sweetest thing—gay and impulsive
and affectionate; not a bit like Phina."

"I wonder what she'd have thought
about this exciting world of yours."

"Yours, my child," said Owen,
a little cynically. "You happen to be
the family passport to smart society.
Oh, any unmarried man not too ill-
mannered can spend his night in all the best stag-lines; but, you see, I was selfish enough (or Phina considered it selfish) to prefer Sigrid.
You like the roadhouses and the
dinner-parties and the victories
over such as Georgia."

"I do like going places and seeing things. So would you if you had been brought up without money,
and under a system of obedience
and seclusion which dated from Aunt Ella's girlhood."

"So far, so good. But I wouldn't stay so late at the Chateau next time. Georgia can get away with that sort of thing better than you can. And, little sister, watch your step—Georgia is a clever girl—"

He was not looking at her as he spoke.

"Oh, Owen—" she poured out her explanation. "And I found Phina
had done it. I'll find Phina and Camilla thought I did!"

"Georgia's line was, of course,
that you had," said her brother.
She thought he looked relieved.
"She ought to know, it was her own
habit last winter. There's nothing Georgia doesn't do, understand
but you have to be her kind to do it."

"Was it very serious?"

He patted her. "Nothing's serious
these days."

"But, oh, how gorgeous."

BUT Iris reflected that Mrs. Morgan understood, or Phina
wouldn't be leasing the Woodlands.
Mrs. Morgan was her kind of per-
son. And when she was driving down in Allan's completely repaired
low-slung gleaming dark-blue car,
with Allan as easy and amused and casual as ever by her side, life was
all exciting.

"We'll take the grounds first," he said, as they finally drove through a pair of wrought-iron gates. "Little girls from mid-Victoria always prefer the simple pleasures of a garden, don't they?"

"If you keep on teasing me about being from mid-Victoria I'll be driven to a terrible effort to be modern. And I'll do it badly. And then you won't like me any more,"
she said, laughing.

"Then I'll certainly stop, for you do this superlatively well. And here's the first garden. Beautiful."

He stopped the car and they got
out, moving through a tall barrier
of forsythia bushes. They turned down through a briarpath. It wound
through parklike green for perhaps a quarter of a mile, went through a delicate small woodland, and
ended at another wrought-iron gate,
single and low.

Allan opened it for her and stood
back as she passed between the high hedges. She stood, slim and tall and starchy eyed with the excitement of what she saw about her,
her coat blown back by the spring
wind, her face flushed and rapt.

Tall flowering trees stood about
as in an orchard close. But crocuses
and snowdrops thrust up along the borders of the paths; masses of tulips would be covered with red and pink flowers later. There were beds of tulips and hyacinths.

Bridal wreath and a dozen other
lovely old-fashioned and new-fashioned blossoming bushes crowded
the grass.

Scarcely knowing what she did,
she threw out both hands and
caught Allan's with them, drawing him closer to her. He had made all this heaven possible. He had given her a chance to have the freedom
of it's hidden, exquisite garden,
high-hedged and dreaming and beautiful.

"Allan, Allan, how shall I thank you? You've brought me to live in Paradise!" she breathed. "It's the place I've dreamed of all my life!"
Happy, rapt, innocently as a child
would, she pulled his head down
and kissed him.

He did not release her at once. She had forgotten that he would
kiss her, too. When he did, he said
breathlessly, not at all like the casual Allan of every day:

"Good heavens, what sort of a girl are you? A witch, or a devil, or an ingenue, or an old-world lady,
or all of them together?"

"All of them together," Iris said,
laughing, a little frightened at what
she had done, but still so enrapt-
ured over the garden that she could think of little else. "Aren't
you used to impulsive gratitude?"

"Not that kind, but I like it."
"Allan, what really did happen
here? I'd rather hear the story from you."

ALLAN looked a little annoyed.

as if he'd rather not think of it.

"Yes, I suppose you've heard all sorts of lies. It was simple enough.
Uncle Frank was a bit of a boulder
along with his dynamism. It goes with the type, I suppose. And his business methods got old-fashioned.
They'd been all right for ten years
ago, but they were a little slippery
for these times."

"So an annoyed and mentally un-
sound depositor, who felt Uncle
Frank had ruined him in the nineteen-twenty-nine crisis, shot him
one fine day, about year and a half
ago. My aunt, fortunately, had died some years before. My cousin had just become engaged to Georgia Blair. He was a quixotic sort of fellow. He insisted on giving back everything his father had obtained
dishonestly, according to a lot of fool professional expositors. You can imagine how that irritated Georgia.
She broke with him, and he disappeared. He was found drowned a few weeks later. It's about a year
now. Left everything to Granny."

"Oh, how could Georgia?"

"I don't blame her, exactly. As
she said, Jim's name was clouded.
That and no money together were
a lot to ask her to stand."

"I don't think so at all!" Iris said
hotly. "Even if she hadn't loved him,
she owed him loyalty and honesty.
I think she was hard and greedy,
and ill-bred."

"Well, you two never did like
each other," said Allan gayly. "You should have been Jim's girl, not Georgia. But, as he's dead, you'll have to put up with me."

He caught her ungloved slim hand
and swung it. "Now let's stop being and go visit the stables. Frank had this place constructed on the plan of an Elizabethan manor house,
stables and all. The house rambles off into a few Spanish spots and Louis Fifteenth bedrooms, but in the main it's all for good Queen Bess. Showplace, really."

"The grounds are big enough for a township. But they're wonderful,
I never saw anything like them."
Iris said with her usual frankness.
They finally returned, through the very impressive front doors. They could have driven in with a motor
bus. Honora was directing a man-servant to lay a picnic lunch on an Elizabethan refectory table. A fire
roared in a fireplace, where a coat
of arms, all red and gold and lions
and unicorns, stood out from the
paneled wall above the mantelshelf.

Two Titians, a Madonna and a Descend, flanked the enormous fireplace. Iris gasped, then laughed in-repressibly.

"If you don't mind my criticizing
your uncle and my aunt, it's a cross
between a hotel and a movie palace,
only all real," she said.

"Showplace," Allan said coolly,
but he laughed too. And then Phina
was entering from another door, marshaling
a bored Owen, filling the place with the whirlwind of her driving intu-
itions—upkeep, renewals, necessities for setting the estate going again. Phina treated Allan with what was for her docility. When he finally rose to leave, she went with him to continue discussions of ways
and means.

Iris takes an important step, tomorrow.

present wearers of the toga are pretty well sold on this idea. A few more converts of this type would more pretty close to assuring an efficient Landon steamroller at Cleveland.

WISE: New York sharps figure
the support of the Senatorial clique
is the most important political asset any G. O. P. aspirant can have.
They have potent strings they can pull and they know the fine points
of convention technique backwards
and forwards.

Up to now there has been no dis-

position on the part of Republican Senators as a group to unite behind
any particular candidate. Nevertheless they have been a stout potential barrier to Landon's triumph.
Several members of their own crowd have hopes and normally
they would prefer to rally to a pal-
than to a stranger. Senator Dickinson's promoters especially have counted on this as their ace-in-the-hole.

Insiders are confident that Hoover and Borah could protest, their heads off in vain if most of the Senators decide to join the Landon
parade. So the governor's adherents are wise in focussing their heaviest
current fire on "the most exclusive club in the world."

CONFIDENCE: Financial New York's reactions to the Supreme Court's decision against the Securities Exchange Commission in the J. Edward Jones case are strangely mixed. Jones is no popular favorite in the banking and brokerage community. They frankly do not approve of his selling methods. Conservative rejoicing in the judicial slap at "bureaucratic tyranny" is tempered with regret that the oil
royalty king was the beneficiary thereof.

Still more surprising, investment
bankers as a group express considerable sympathy with Justice Cardozo's dissenting opinion — which strongly approved the Commission's action in the Jones matter.
Here's why.

The investment banking business
was flat on its back in the pre-Commission era—chiefly because
the public had lost all faith in securities. Now it's booming again—
and the bankers privately concede
that the restoration of public confidence by New Deal laws is mainly responsible. They don't like to see the Supreme Court or anybody else
take action which might weaken
that faith.

PROFIT: As recently as two years ago, partners in many investment banking firms felt they
were next door to the poorhouse.
Now they are making money on a scale which leaves corporate executives whose published salaries
have caused so much furor looking like pikers.

Several times lately issues of new corporate securities have run to $500,000,000 and more in a single month. The average banker's commission is a little over 2 per cent.

As a rule, the distributing houses
get a little less than half of this
and the few houses that underwrite get the rest. Call it 1 per cent
to be conservative. Every half billion dollar month means a million
of $5,000,000 to be divided among the partners of a mere handful of investment firms in the same short period.

Is there any sane reason why
they should want to kick the Securities Exchange Commission into
the nearest gutter?

SAUCE: The utilities haven't given
up hope of forcing a judicial
showdown on the holding company
act some time before the twenty-
first century despite the Securities
Exchange Commission's slow motion reluctance to move to a test.

Some of the keenest legal minds
in New York collaborated in the joint appeal by North American
and American Water Works from the lower court decision in the District of Columbia which stopped
them from suing to prevent the Commission from enforcing the holding company law.

They charge the Commission with
a "monopoly of litigation" for seeking to establish its suit against Electric Bond and Share as the sole test of the law's validity. The Supreme Court itself encouraged them
to this action by an apparently adverse ruling. Two weeks ago it refused to review the Bureau case—
instigated by the utilities—obviously
because it felt that the question
of constitutionality should not rest upon such a restricted base. The issue there was narrowed to a single company in receivership. The utilities reason that if it's wrong
to limit the test to one case chosen by them the same sauce should apply to the Commission.

LOCALS READY DURHAM GAME

Two Nines to Meet Tomorrow Afternoon at 3 o'Clock

Tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the nine of the Greenville high school will face the boys from the Bull city, Durham, at the Third Street Stadium here in another class "A" conference clash in baseball. This will be the second game of the season for the locals with the visitors, having lost the first by a score of 6-4.

The last game which was scheduled with the Blackbirds of Rocky Mount for Friday of last week was rained out, and had to be postponed until a later date. The Greenville hope that tomorrow's game can be played, because they are in fine trim for a good game, as they are undergoing a routine of workouts each day.

More than likely, the twirler for tomorrow's tilt rests between Downey, Hodges or Hamilton. Gaylord did the mound work for the Greenville when they met Wilson there on Thursday of last week and will probably be granted a rest by the high school coach, Reynolds May. All baseball fans are urged to attend tomorrow's game and see the Greenville on to victory.

FILIPINO HOMESTEAD PLAN OPENS LAND TO SETTLERS

Manila.—(AP)—Acting under a new homesteading law, President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth has opened two reservations embracing 22,230 acres in Lanao and Davao to settlement. Poor people in the cities are being urged to take up homesteads in this rich farming belt. Another program has been started in Mindanao where $500,000 is being spent on roads and bridges so as to open up other lands. The Department of Public Works is handling the bridges and roads while the Department of Labor is trying to persuade city dwellers to become pioneer farmers.

SPORT SLANTS

Connie Mack isn't as greatly concerned about the howling of the Philadelphia fans as he is about the cries of the other club owners when they get a glimpse of their share of the receipts for games played in Shibe Park. For years the American league owners have been howling about the poor attendance at the Browns' games in St. Louis. This year the Athletics seem destined to give them an even greater headache.

Connie Mack's only chance of collecting any revenue through the gate seems to be on the road, and even there it isn't very likely that the lowly A's will prove much of a drawing card.

The dean of baseball managers added something like $300,000 to his till by transferring Jimmy Fox, Johnny Marcum, Roger Craner and Eric McNair to the Boston Red Sox. That's a lot of money—more, perhaps, than Connie could draw through the gate at Shibe Park in years.

Customers Stay Away
Mack's 52 years of baseball experience isn't much help when it comes to learning exactly what the Philadelphia fans want in the way of a ball team—if anything. He broke up his greatest ball clubs, his 1914 and 1929 championship teams, because the club win, last season, with a team that occupied the cellar, the clicking of the turnstiles died down to a whisper. Having further weakened his Athletics by the sales to Boston, Connie may well expect to have the ball park all to himself.

At 73, Mack insists he is starting to build another pennant winner. It took him 15 years to get back to the top of the pile after he wrecked his 1914 champions. Add 15 onto his 73 and that would give Connie another winner at 88! Mack may still be managing the club at 88 but the odds are against him.

It would be interesting to know Connie's thoughts as he sits back in the shade of the dugout watching teams like Boston and Detroit fighting it out for the pennant, teams that have been bolstered by the every man who won championships for him a few years ago. Of course he has the money—or had it.

THE STARS OF
CONNIE MACK'S GREAT 1929 WORLD
CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM ARE STILL PLAYING GREAT BALL—BUT NOT FOR CONNIE!

at least—but he wouldn't be human if his thoughts didn't go back to the good old days, back in 1929 when his Athletics beat the Chicago Cubs for the world title.

They're Still Around

It is interesting to note that all but three of the regulars of the 1929 world champion Athletics are still starring in the big leagues. Bishop, Boxy and Miller have passed out of the big show as far as regular playing is concerned. But the others, Mickey Cochrane, Lefty Grove, Jimmy Dykes, Mule Haas, Al Simmons, Jimmy Fox, George Earnshaw and Rube Walberg are still going strong. There is proof enough that the 1929 combination really was a great ball club.

Connie may put together another pennant winner, but if he does it will not be by developing young players along the lines he is working at present. He will have to spend money just as he did in the past when he was building a winner. He paid something like $100,000 to Baltimore for Lefty Grove, Al Simmons cost him a pretty penny, and so did George Earnshaw and Mickey Cochrane. Even in baseball, you have to spend money to make money, as Connie well knows.

WASHINGTON DAY BOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington.—(AP)—Publication of the agenda for the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington April 27-30 significantly reveals that the topic of how to increase employment is given the No. 1 position.

This means, apparently, that the Chamber intends to answer the challenge issued by President Roosevelt in his message to Congress on relief appropriations for the coming fiscal year. The President said:

"Those who believe that government may be compelled to assume greater responsibilities in the operation of our industrial system can make no valid objection to a renewed effort on the part of private enterprise to insure a livelihood to all willing workers. Those, on the other hand, who believe in complete freedom of private control without any government participation should earnestly undertake to demonstrate their effectiveness by increasing employment."

There has been no indication that the gulf which separates the administration and business on this question of reemployment has been bridged. The differences probably will continue until after the elections in November.

Industry apparently still is convinced it has done or is doing all it can to bring about a return of national recovery and that government policies are responsible at least in part for the unsatisfactory result of those efforts thus far.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has gone so far as to inaugurate a pamphlet campaign asserting that "political obstacles" stand in the way of recovery.

The subject is certain to be gone into in great detail at the forthcoming sessions of the Chamber. Both the immediate and long range problems and the extent of unemployment will be considered. Current accomplishments of trade and industry in increasing work and the possibilities of further extending employment will be explored thoroughly.

Administration leaders in Congress are not overlooking that at about the same time the Chamber gathers in Washington for its annual meeting committees of Congress will be settling down to the task of providing for relief needs during the coming fiscal year.

The pending tax bill is certain to be out of the hands of the House ways and means committee by that time, if not already acted upon by the House itself. Once that is out of the way, relief is the remaining major item on the ways and means committee slate for this session.

The ears of committee members will be attuned to what is said and done by the Chamber of Commerce on the question of increasing employment. It probably wouldn't be far wrong to say that the committee might be moved to compose its list of witnesses on the relief bill after the four-day meeting of the Chamber has been concluded.

COLLEGE NINE TO PLAY HERE

E. C. T. C. to Meet
High Point Aggregation Tuesday

The local college team will oppose the High Point College nine on the local diamond Tuesday afternoon.

The E. C. T. C. team broke even in a two-game series with Guilford College last week. High Point usually has one of the best teams in the North State Conference, an organization that ranks next to the Big Five in North Carolina.

The local college has a number of fine players on its squad, and should have the best team in its history. The game will be called at 3 p. m.

DESERTS PLAN TO TOUR STATE

McDonald to Take to Air Last Two Weeks
of Campaign

Reflector Bureau.

Sir Walter Hotel.

By J. C. BASKERVILL

Raleigh, April 13.—Dr. Ralph W. McDonald has apparently abandoned his plan for a whirlwind campaign of the state with a sound truck in favor of an intensive radio speaking campaign the last two weeks before the primary, since he has already made contracts with Station WPTF here for 13 radio speeches to be delivered between May 22 and June 6. It was learned from an authoritative source here today and verified by the radio station. These 13 speeches will not only be broadcast from WPTF but from as many of the other radio stations as are available. It was learned.

Twelve of the 13 radio speeches will be delivered on successive nights from May 22 to June 5, with the exception of Sunday nights, from 10 to 10:15 p. m., and the thirteenth speech will be delivered the night before the primary, from 10 to 10:30.

The cost of these speeches will be approximately $350 for each fifteen minute period and about $600 for the 39 minutes the night before the primary, but may run even more depending upon the number of stations in the state-wide hook-up according to those familiar with cost of radio time and hook-ups in the state, although the radio station declined to reveal just how much was being paid for this time. Accordingly, it is estimated that these 13 radio speeches will cost Dr. McDonald not less than $4,800 and possibly more than $5,000, in covered short-term notes. The addition to the $600 to $650 cost per hour of five billion dollars of his Winston-Salem speech of the Reichsbank, "Rums" that might ocratic nomination for Governor who is going to use the radio for campaigning, however, though he is going to use it far more extensively than any of the others. Lieutenant Governor Graham is planning to make another state-wide radio speech about April 30, it was learned today, and has already contracted for the final period on the air the night of June 5, from 10:30 to 11 p. m., on a state-wide hook-up immediately after Dr. McDonald.

Clyde R. Hoey of Shelby will make at least one more state-wide radio speech, having contracted for a 30 minute period from 7:30 to 8 o'clock the night of June 4. It is understood that he may make some other radio speeches before this date, but so far has not made any contracts for any other dates.

Der Fuehrer's Plans Penetrate Southern
Central Europe

By FREDERIC SONDERN

A series of conversations with British political and economic leaders recently revealed the forceful directing John Bull's continental moves. Hitler's immediate plan, they know, is the peaceful economic penetration of southern Central Europe. The fortification of the Rhineland was a step towards detouring France's political power in Central Europe by making it impossible for the French army to come to the aid of the Little Entente countries. Hitler has already been very successful in Jugoslavia, the greatest of the Little Entente countries.

That affects no British interests directly. And if France should feel driven to wage a preventive war because of it, Britain doesn't intend to be drawn in against her will. Britain is aiming to be able to hold the balance of power — and peace — between France and Germany in the future. A pact with either of them would destroy that position.

An overwhelming majority of the German people are behind the Fuehrer. No doubts remained with any observer who mingled with the crowds that came to hear Hitler's "campaign speeches" in the Rhineland, in Bavaria, Munich, in North German Hamburg — everywhere the same frenzied enthusiasm and adoration for "Germany's liberator." The Locarno powers and the London conference made his campaign easy for him. When news came of the London plan to "police" a twelve-mile zone of the Rhineland, your correspondent, in Cologne at the time, gathered some sentiments from the man on the street: "Our troops are in the Rhineland a stay... Just let the French try to put the out... If they want a war, we'll give them one... Always the same attitude. Some deep-dyed communist friends of the went for the first time to hear Hitler speak — and they returned with the determination to vote for him, also for the first time. Germany has never been so completely united.

The present wave of enthusiasm is sorely needed to dull the edge of Dr. Schacht's inescapable financial measures. The Rhine forts and a planned increase of the army to 40 divisions will cost money. And the unique phenomenon of Schacht's huge credit inflation has reached a height too dizzy for even the adventurous financial dictator. He has forced the German banks to lend their depositors' money to the government against practically unlimited short-term notes. The situation of the $600 to $650 cost per hour of five billion dollars of his Winston-Salem speech of the Reichsbank, "Rums" that might Britain is aiming to be able to hold the balance of power — and peace — between France and Germany in the future. A pact with either of them would destroy that position.

An overwhelming majority of the German people are behind the Fuehrer. No doubts remained with any observer who mingled with the crowds that came to hear Hitler's "campaign speeches" in the Rhineland, in Bavaria, Munich, in North German Hamburg — everywhere the same frenzied enthusiasm and adoration for "Germany's liberator." The Locarno powers and the London conference made his campaign easy for him. The situation of the $600 to $650 cost per hour of five billion dollars of his Winston-Salem speech of the Reichsbank, "Rums" that might pation started a monetary panic. Schacht merely ordered the banks to pay no more than $10 to any one depositor. But the limit has been reached, and the most grinding taxes in Europe will now be imposed on people who already pay from 40 per cent to 70 per cent of their incomes to the government.

All in all, the Nazi hierarchy looks to the future with great optimism. The "fiery vengeance" of the Locarno powers has fizzled out completely. The British government refuses to take sanction or even "unofficial" reprisals against Germany, no matter what the infuriated Frenchmen say or do. And even the possibility of an Anglo-French military treaty doesn't upset Berlin particularly. My German Foreign Ministry informant shrugged it off with, "Such a pact would only come into effect if we should attack France. We haven't the faintest intention of doing that. We're heading for the East — not the West." And nobody can stop them.

French Generalissimo Gamelin paid a visit to the Maginot Line to lay plans for the new system of barracks that will house most of the French army on the eastern frontier from now on. The steely eyes of the little, ginger-haired Marshal showed a lot of bad humor that is shared at present by most of the General Staff. By all the rules of the game, they say, Foreign Minister Flandin should have grabbed the opportunity that Hitler offered and declared war on March 11th, forcing England and Russia to join him. Now it's too late. France alone is politically and militarily unable to attack the Germans. The French people could only be moved to a war of defense, and the occupation and fortification of the Rhineland no longer seems enough of a threat to stir the nation. "Now all we can do is sit behind our Maginot Line, watch Germany build her defenses, and gradually disintegrate our allies in the East. In five years Russia will be all that is left to us." So writes General Duval.

There is a good chance of Socialist Blum and the "popular front" dominating French politics after the coming general elections. They want peace with Germany at almost any price and are willing to believe in Hitler's pacific intentions.

The political leaders of the Dominions, too, are exerting strong pressure on the London Cabinet to avoid any entanglement with the French. Putting Mussolini in his place in the interest of the Empire was one thing. But they will not be involved in a European war for the sake of helping France to impose her will on Hitler. Let Baldwin and Eden concentrate on Empire problems and close cooperation with the United States, and keep a free hand in Europe to move as the occasion demands. The opinion of the Dominion High Commissioners plays a very important, if unannounced, part in London's decisions.

While the Ethiopian rumormongers and the Locarno crisis have crowded the news off the front pages of newspapers, the Far Eastern danger is no less acute than it has been. A Near Eastern bloc, comprising Iraq, Iran, Afghanistan, Turkey and Arabia, is nearing completion. While all of these countries except Turkey are under British protectorate, official or unofficial, their cooperation will mean new problems for England in the Near East. Ibn Saud of Arabia is setting up a broadcasting station in Mecca to bring the Moslem world closer together and to disseminate propaganda for pan-Islam. The Egyptian negotiations are not doing well, and the British authorities have rushed completion of a strategic railroad from Alexandria to the Italian-Libyan border.

Harassed Anthony Eden is still working 18 hours a day to figure out a possible entente with France and Germany. But the hopes for a new Locarno including the Third Reich and a world conference that is to discuss all outstanding problems, including colonies, are very slim.

Court Defers Decision On Guffey Coal Act

Washington, April 13.—(AP)—The Supreme Court deferred today for two weeks its decision on constitutionality of the Guffey coal act.

While many in the government, Congress and labor circles waited for the court's view of the legislation the justices deferred until April 27.

No decisions were handed down, but the court did announce whether it would review a number of cases appealed from lower courts.

Arthur Loach, southwestern outlaw, sentenced to death under the Lindbergh kidnap act, lost his claim that the law was unconstitutional.

UNDAUNTED PIGEONS FOSTER HEN'S EGG

Enid, Okla., (AP)—One of Ernie Berg's white Wyandotte hens flew into a temporarily deserted pigeon box and laid an egg.

The pigeons adopted the strange egg. A pigeon egg usually hatches in 13 days, but the Berg pigeons took turns on the big egg for the necessary three weeks and hatched a chick.

The foster parents had some difficulty feeding the arrival, but Berg says they "appeared very happy" over the offspring.

Hawks and Crows Valuable

Lampasas, Texas.—(AP)—Dead hawks and crows are competing with spring fryers in value in the Adamsville community near here. The recently organized hawk and crow club posted bounties of 50 cents each for dead grown hawks; 25 cents for dead crows, and 10 cents for nest birds or eggs of either.
