Seven Men Rob $956 From Erie Baggage Car At Nutley, N. J., Station

Robbers Escape With Huge Sum in Currency and Bills

CLERK IS FORCED SURRENDER GUN

Four of Men Carrying Guns, Confront Clerk and Threaten Him with Death

Nutley, N. J., April 17.—(AP)—Seven men held up an Erie railroad train at Walnut street station today and escaped with a sum of money in silver and bills, being carried from a Patterson bank to the federal reserve bank in New York, police reported.

First reports obtained from detectives set the amount of the loot at $956.00 but subsequent official information was that the gunmen obtained only $956.55 for their trouble.

The money was in the safe in the baggage car and was in the care of the American Railway Express company.

Newark detectives said the clerk in charge of the money surrendered his revolver when four of the robbers, carrying guns, suddenly confronted him and threatened to kill him unless he opened the safe.

The engineer of the train told policemen he saw the seven men board the train and thought they were passengers.

But in the baggage car the first hint that anything was wrong came when the four men suddenly shoved their way into the place with drawn guns.

The robbery was over in a few minutes. The men jumped from the car and leaped into a waiting automobile, which police said afterward, had been reported stolen March 27.

SOME BALLOTS ARE RECEIVED

Dr. McDonald Takes Lead in First Votes Sent in

Ralph McDonald scored first in the ballots mailed by this paper yesterday in co-operation with 19 other newspapers of this state conducting a statewide poll on the gubernatorial race. While the first quota of ballots was mailed by this paper late yesterday, this morning's mail brought back six of the ballots voted three for McDonald, two for Hoye and one for Graham. The receipt of these few votes is just the beginning of what in the end should be the most accurate poll of any kind ever conducted on a statewide basis in this state.

The ballots mailed into the various counties of the state go to one out of every 12 Democratic voters representing a cross section of the registered voters chosen with mathematical precision from the registration books. With 30,000 Democratic voters in the combined counties of Pitt, Martin, Bertie, Beaufort and Hyde, being covered by The Reflector, 2,500 ballots are to be used by The Reflector in polling its quota of counties. Five hundred of these ballots were mailed out yesterday to one-fifth of the voters to be polled in the various townships of the five counties and an additional 500 will be mailed by The Reflector each Thursday for the next four weeks. Simultaneously with the mailings here the other newspapers co-operating in the poll are making similar mailings into the counties being covered by them and by the end of the period of polling between 40,000 and 50,000 of the Democratic voters in this state will have had the privilege of taking part in the poll by voting for his or her choice for governor.

From day to day The Reflector will give the news of the progress of the poll in the five counties being covered by the paper and on Thursday, May 7 the paper will carry the first tabulation on the results of the poll to that date in the 100 counties.

Every person who receives one of the ballots has been urged to vote in order that the poll might accurately represent the trend in the gubernatorial race.

DR. J. J. MURRAY TO BE IN CITY

Noted Minister To Conduct Presbyterian Revival

The special services to be held in the First Presbyterian church this year will begin May 4, closing the following Sunday night, May 10. For these services the officers of the local Presbyterian Church count themselves most fortunate in bringing to the community one of the outstanding and successful leaders and preachers in the ministry of the Southern Presbyterian Church.

The visiting minister will be the Rev. J. J. Murray, D. D., of the Lexington Presbyterian Church, Lexington, Virginia. Upon graduation from Davidson College and Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, in each institution having made an enviable record, he spent a year of study at United Free Church College (Glasgow) and New College (Edinburgh). In recent years Dr. Murray again went abroad for a period of study, this time at Mansfield College, University of Oxford, England. He holds membership in Phi Beta Kappa, national scholastic society.

A native of this section of the state, Dr. Murray spent most of his ministry in eastern North Carolina prior to his going to Virginia and except for a period during the World War when he served as Chaplain with the 12th Infantry. Upon entering the ministry he served as assistant pastor in the First Presbyterian Church of Fayetteville, later going to St. Pauls, then serving a year as stated supply in Smithfield before going to Wilmington where he served as Superintendent of Home Missions. He has been pastor of the Lexington, Virginia Presbyterian Church since 1924. Washington and Lee University in Lexington conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity upon him in 1926.

PEACE OFFERS OF MUSSOLINI ARE REJECTED

Ethiopian Delegation Refuses to Accept Italian Proposal

PEACE EFFORTS COLLAPSED

Message to League from Addis Ababa Reports Capital Attacked by Planes

(Copyright by Associated Press) Geneva, April 17.—(AP)—A new and more serious crisis developed in the Italo-Ethiopian conflict today when the League of Nations committee of 13 decided that efforts of conciliation had failed. Ethiopia flatly refused to accept Premier Mussolini's peace program, even with its modifications, and the committee agreed it was impossible at present to bridge the chasm dividing the two belligerents.

The situation was regarded as so critical that the council was ordered convoked Monday to examine it in its entirety.

The British were reported as hoping that a strong resolution would be adopted at the council meeting showing that the League is standing firm and even is ready to go ahead with the full meaning of its duty as peace maker.

The rejection by Ethiopia of the modified proposals submitted by Premier Mussolini was described as "complete."

The Ethiopian action followed an Italian offer to let the league have the right to keep constantly in touch with direct negotiations between the Italian high command and the Ethiopian government for a settlement of the war in east Africa.

Early in the day France had accepted the proposal.

DEAVER TRIAL BE POSTPONED

Kidnaping Charge Not to Be Aired at Present Term

Unless there is a change in announced plans, Donald Deaver, arrested Tuesday night on charges of kidnaping the two children of S. V. Morton, will not be tried until the August term of court.

Solicitor D. M. Clark said today the grand jury, which has been excused for the remainder of the present term, would not be called back into session to consider the case.

Deaver is in Pitt county jail in default of $1,000 bond.

As the first week of a two weeks' term of criminal court neared here, the docket today had been cleared of a large number of cases which had been on the calendar for some time.

Additional cases were disposed of today when Solicitor Clark ordered a nol pros in each of these charging Lottie Floyd with breaking and entering and Melvin Daniel with a similar charge.

Bruce Boyd entered a plea of guilty and was given a six-months' road sentence and his driver's license was revoked for 12 months.

Jesse Baker was acquitted of a charge of blocking the highway. Heber Ross entered pleas of guilty to carrying a concealed weapon and also to drunk and disorderly. On the former charge he was given a three-months' road term, suspended upon good behavior and on the latter judgment was suspended.

Italy Prepares Proceed; Ethiopia Ministers Meet

Fascist to Go Ahead with African Campaign Regardless

Rome, April 17.—(AP)—The Italian high command, source close to the government disclosed today, intended to proceed resolutely to taking Addis Ababa and smashing Haile Selassie's empire, prepared to face any international consequences.

Fascists rejoiced at reports that their East African armies were at last "actually on the road to Addis Ababa" while warning Great Britain not to "provoke Italy" too far. Persistent rumors circulated in well informed quarters that General Rudolfo Graziani's southern army had launched a movement on Harar, second city of Ethiopia, accompanying a daring drive by Marshal Pietro Badoglio's northern forces, on the capital.

Military sources said all signs pointed toward a transfer of peace negotiations from Geneva, where Italy was eying Britain jealously on the eve of its anticipated final triumph, to the field headquarters of Marshal Badoglio, fascist commander-in-chief.

Reliable sources asserted drafts of an Italian plan for ruling a conquered Ethiopia already were being studied by the ministry of colonies to dispose the present dynasty and formally establish Italian dominion over the last unconquered African empire.

STORES CLOSE STRIKE AREAS MADRID, SPAIN

Transportation and Construction Are Affected

NORMAL LIFE PARALYZED

Street Cars and Taxi Cabs Disappear from Streets and Workers Go Home

Madrid, April 17.—(AP)—Madrid workers declared an unofficial general strike affecting transportation and construction today in protest against "fascist provocations."

The strike followed an open threat by socialists and communists to take reprisals against "fascist terror" as a result of a fresh conflict late yesterday in which at least three persons were killed and 40 wounded. The capital was guarded heavily.

Although socialists headquarters said there would be no general strike, the workers left their jobs apparently of their own accord. Street cars and taxi cabs disappeared from the streets and workers who had reported on their jobs went home.

Stores began to close gradually, chiefly in the workers' district. The basic services such as water, light, gas, telephone, and railroads, were not affected.

By noon normal life in Madrid was paralyzed.

APPEALS CASE HIGHER COURT

Seek Deny Public Funds for Buzzard Roost Plant

Washington, April 17.—(AP)—Another new deal case involving the right of the federal government to provide PWA funds for publicly owned hydro electric projects was appealed today the supreme court.

The Duke Power Company and Southern Public Utilities Company appealed from a ruling of the circuit court of appeals at Charlotte, N. C., upholding the action of the government in providing funds for a hydro electric plant at Buzzard Roost, S. C.

The appeal was filed by a group of lawyers, headed by Newton Baker, secretary of war in the Wilson administration.

It contended that the decree of the circuit court of appeals should be reversed.

Morgan Is Named Association Prexy Of Liquor Boards

Friction Over Question of State or County Control of Liquor Given as Reason for Change

Kinston, N. C., April 17.—(AP)—M. F. Morgan of Bailey was elected president of the state association of alcoholic beverage control, succeeding B. J. Williams of Wilson at a session of the association here last night.

Sm. friction over the question of state or county control of liquor was reported unofficially to be the reason for the change in president. The meeting attended by representatives of 14 boards, was in session almost until midnight.

Morgan had been secretary of the association, and T. T. Thomas of Tarboro was elected to succeed him.

Morgan is an advocate of county control. "We believe control by the counties offers less opportunity for graft and for political corruption," he said. "We think reasonable profits should be retained in the counties for revenue and law enforcement. The business of the association is to promote uniformity in the legalized liquor business, promote temperance and promote law enforcement."

Judge Ritter Convicted Of Impeachment Charge By Senate Vote Of 56-28

Both North Carolina Senators Vote For Conviction

REMOVED FROM JUDGE'S OFFICE

Vote Is Immediately Challenged by Sen. Austin Who Is Ruled Out of Order

Washington, April 17.—(AP)—Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter of Florida, was convicted by the Senate today on a House impeachment charge that he bought his court into "scandal and a disrepute."

The verdict automatically removed the 65-year-old jurist from the bench.

The conviction came on the seventh and last ballot when the vote was 56 for conviction and 28 against, exactly two-thirds of those voting, which was required under the constitution for a conviction.

On the first six articles, Ritter was acquitted, although on the first charge—that Ritter allowed an excessive fee of $75,000 to A. L. Rankin, former law partner, in a receivership case and "corruptly accepted $4,500 from Rankin afterward"—the vote was 55 to 29, needing only a single switch to change the result.

The last article combined all the previous charges in one and charged the action complained of had brought Ritter's court into a scandal and disrepute.

Senator Austin (R. Va.) immediately challenged the final vote, making a point of order that Ritter could not, under the law, be convicted on an "omnibus" count when he had been declared innocent of the charges separately.

Austin contended such conviction, if upheld, would be "monstrous."

Senator Robinson, the democratic leader held Austin was not in order when he began a legal argument and Senator Pittman (D. Nev.), who was presiding upheld Robinson.

Pittman, then ruled Austin's point was not well-taken and Austin sat down. Pittman said the last article charged "general misbehavior" and was a separate count in itself.

Ritter who sat throughout the voting near the vice president's rostrum, apparently was unmoved by the decision.

Afterwards he walked slowly from the chamber and said to reporters: "I have nothing to say. God, you can see why I have nothing to say. I am going back to Florida."

He shook his head wearily as he made this comment to reporters.

North Carolina's Senators Bailey and Reynolds voted for conviction.

TREK LEADERS MAPPING PLAN

Special Committee in Raleigh Today Arranging for Meet

A special committee to make arrangements for the march on Raleigh by farmers to urge Governor Sherrinhaus to call an immediate special session of the legislature to consider tobacco compact legislation was in the state capital today laying plans for the meeting there next Tuesday morning.

Meanwhile W. H. Dail, Jr., head of the local transportation committee, was urging farmers to make plans to go to join the trek to Raleigh next week.

He urged every farmer who has a car to make plans to take other farmers to the meeting. He especially asked that everyone driving a car get a load as there would be plenty of farmers without automobiles who would like to go.

Farmers have been asked to meet Tuesday morning and leave from that place for Raleigh at 9 o'clock. It was explained that anyone having a car and not already having a load engaged had been asked to meet at the designated place so he could pick up farmers not having a way.

J. E. Winslow, president of the Pitt County Farm Bureau, reiterated today he and other officials were receiving a fine response from the public at large. He said that a number of business men had pledged their cooperation and promised to attend the meeting.

He added a number of farmers who did not attend the meeting here, when it was decided to make the trip, had expressed their intention of going, many of them furnishing an automobile to take those without means of transportation.

THE NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

News Behind The News

Washington By RAY TUCKER

REPRISALS: The inside story of the Johnson Hagood episode is that Congressional and military leaders of the explosive South Carolina set out to lift his soldierly scalp without first consulting President Roosevelt.

Staff Chief Craig held the fort for eight days against spanking his old friend publicly. But swiftness of action was not the point. General Hagood harassed the pair by filing an immediate demand for retirement, refusing to "await orders for three months." That produced action. Mr. Roosevelt invited him to come aboard his vacation train and then instructed the general to "see me as soon as I get back to Washington."

Hagood's appointment to the Chicago area was waiting for him when he walked into the White House. And walking papers or rebukes for certain (Continued on page four)

SPORT SLANTS

Arky Vaughan did a pretty good job of spread-eagling the rest of the field in winning the National league batting championship last season. His mark of .385 was not close to the record average but in comparison to the marks of other sharpshooters of the senior circuit it was mighty good.

For the greater part of the season Arky's average hovered around the .400 mark to make it look like a runaway race, and even a string of bad breaks late in the season could not haul him back to the pack.

Vaughan's rise to the top was sudden and at the same time based on sound hitting form. Arky is a hard, deliberate swinger. He looks over every pitch carefully. He has made a thorough study of his own particular form as well as the leading hitters in the game.

Careful About Stance
An example of how well he has it all figured out is well illustrated by the manner in which he takes his position in the batters' box. He carefully selects the spot to place his left foot in the extreme back edge of the batters' box, and then digs in. Often he is dangerously close to the outer edge and draws a complaint from the opposing catcher. Many times the umpire has been called in to settle the dispute, but Arky rarely gives ground.

The veteran Hans Wagner, now a coach on the Pirate staff, is credited with polishing off a few rough spots in Vaughan's style and making him the "perfect" hitter. He taught his protegee the secret of place hitting, an art which Arky quickly learned and which was responsible for the rapid rise of his average.

Until some of the other National league sluggers master the fine art of placing their punches Vaughan is likely to remain at the head of the parade. Fellow sluggers like Medwick of the Cardinals, a powerful batter whose weakness seems to be going after bad pitches, and Hank Leiber, the Giants' slashing hitter, have the equipment to challenge Arky's reign but until they concentrate a little more on hitting safely instead of knocking the cover off the ball with every swing, the Pirate shortstop has no great cause for alarm.

Medwick Puzzles Fielders
Medwick hit .353 last season, and because of his penchant for going after all sorts of pitches, is one of the most difficult batters to play for. Outfielders well know that Medwick, normally a slashing left fielder, is likely to take a cut at a wide pitch and push a double down the right field foul line. He hits to all fields and in every direction but it is largely by accident rather than a studied effort that he "hits 'em where they ain't," as the late Willie Keeler colorfully described his place hitting.

Hank Leiber did not help his own cause by his stubborn bid to get more money from the Giant owners. He reported late after he did sign and missed the early conditioning and practice that would have put him off to an even start with the other sluggers. Hank really powers the ball and should be one of the batting stars of the National league.

Most of the Giants may crowd into the picture before the race has been under way long. Wally Berger, the Boston Red Sox slugger who led the National league in hitting home runs last year as well as in driving runs in, hit well enough in training to move Manager Bill McKechnie to predict that his big outfielder would hit around .350 this year. Austin Galan, the fleet Cub outfielder, gave some indication last year of being a contender for the batting honors and may live up to that promise.

LAWYER ARRIVES AFTER CLIENT DRAWS $50 FINE
Richmond, Va.—(AP)—An attorney dashed into court just in time to hear his client drawing down a $50 fine for possessing a slot machine.

Judge Folkes commented: "Too bad, but your client didn't really need a lawyer. When a policeman puts five cents into a machine and draws out 20 nickels there's not much to argue about."

The Sportsman

By LARRY BAUER

Fish hatcheries, hard pressed in normal years to meet restocking needs, had an additional burden placed upon them by the severe winter.

Great numbers of game fish perish in shallow lakes and streams. Many of these places, with help from the hatcheries, will be ready for fishing again within a year or two.

Man has disturbed the balance maintained by nature but he is doing his best to rectify the damage. Without hatcheries and their crews there would be very little fishing in some sections of this country.

Maine Is A Leader
Hatcheries where fish are artificially propagated are scattered from coast to coast under federal, state and private direction. For instance, Maine has more than 30 hatcheries and rearing stations and releases approximately 17,000,000 fish each year.
Not all devotees of the rod and reel realize there would be less sport for them along our waterways if it were not for fish culture experts and the hatchery trucks. A part of each license fee goes for this work.

More plants are built each year yet the demand exceeds the supply. There is no depression in the game fish hatchery business! Not only did the weather affect fishing adversely, but it took heavy toll of game birds and started sportsmen and conservationists to talking about reduced bag limits. Much depends, however, upon later surveys and the breeding season.

Replenishing Alaska

Sportsmen plan to take more birds and animals to Alaska, already famous for its wild life.

The recently organized Tana Valley Sportsmen's Association has announced attempts would be made to introduce new species into the northern part of the territory.

Jack Warren, president, said the club would investigate the feasibility of stocking the region with giant Scandinavian woodcock, pheasants from Northern Asia and elk and white-tail deer from Canada and the United States.

Short Shots

That cocky little game bird the Hungarian partridge, is drifting into northwestern states from the Canadian provinces, and sportsmen hope he'll take up a home site where efforts to "plant" him failed.

Always wet the hands before taking an under-size fish off the hook. Unless the hands are wet a fun infection starts and the fish usually dies. Barbed hooks are easy on the little fellows.

A tiny spinner attached to the wet fly often works wonders. Let it sink several feet and retrieve slowly. When using the spinner you won't need a split shot on the leader.

Gigantic Spectacle Coming.

A most unusual and sensational event is scheduled for Greenville. It is something new and different and cannot be compared with anything that has been produced in the city in the past. It is a production of the biggest and most pretentious production that has ever been scheduled for this city. Miss Grace Hoffman, representing the American Educational Company, is in Greenville arranging for the staging of the gigantic spectacle entitled "The First Commandment."

"The First Commandment" is a Biblical dramatization in which the most prominent people in this community are taking part. The production is staged with a large number of authentic costumes; unusual and special lighting equipment; and a great amount of other special property, such as armor, beads, etc. It combines the finest in drama, lightning, music and costume, to give Greenville the most unusual and sensational type of entertainment it has ever had. "The First Commandment" is a dramatization of the most important events leading up to and connected with the giving of the Ten Commandments. It can only be compared to such productions as the motion picture "The Ten Commandments" and the well known "Passion Play." When "The First Commandment" was produced in Keokuk, Iowa, Dale Carroll, editor and owner of the newspaper, stated: "Two packed houses saw the production, and the audience sat entranced with what they saw and heard. It is necessary to actually see the production to appreciate the intense dramatic situations and its sensational entertainment."

Miss Hoffman has already started work on the staging of this gigantic production, and has already started making selections among the prominent local people for the cast of the production. Wherever this production has been staged, in other communities, it has drawn packed houses and enthusiastic comments from prominent people. "The First Commandment" is not only spectacular and sensational entertainment, but it also is of high educational value. It is something that is particularly adapted and suitable for the adult people, and it also teaches a marvelous lesson and is of great educational value to the young people. It is the first time that any type of community production has probably ever been staged in Greenville that combines entertainment, drama, music, and educational features. The most unusual thing about this production is the fact that the local people taking part, instead of carrying the ordinary burlesque, comedy type, will actually play very important dramatic roles that carry the audience along with a great

Efficient Beauty Flies The Skies As Air Hostesses Make Tradition

These young women, who can discuss politics with politicians, or babies with fond papas and mamas, await the call to duty at Omaha, Neb., where all are hostesses for an airline company. Left to right: Irene Morgan, Clara Hagg, Josephine Crider.

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
New York, April 18.—(U.P.)—Requirements are strict, yet thousands of young women are seeking the comparatively few hostess jobs available on passenger ships of the nation's air lines.

Six years ago the first major transport line announced it was adding women to its regular crews. Since then the beauty, charm and bravery of the hostesses who cruise the nation's skies have become traditional—and applications from young women have crammed the file of the major companies. One line has 2,000 applications, but insists there is a shortage of qualified women.

Generally stated, the air-minded young women must fulfill these requirements if she would don the uniform of the stewardess.

She must be a graduate registered nurse.

Her height must not be more than five feet four, nor may she weigh more than 120 pounds. She must not be more than 28 years old.

She must have engaging personality, be solicitous of the comfort of others and capable of performing a variety of tasks, from explaining the fundamentals of aerial navigation to helping change a diaper.

They Go To School.

One of the air lines operates a school to polish its stewardesses, classes going into such things as passenger psychology, how to make air travelers comfortable, serving lunches and answering questions about the geography of the routes flown.

The stewardess must be a registered nurse, explains an air line representative, "because the institutionally trained girl has an understanding of discipline and a knowledge of how to deal with the public that is required in the job of stewardess."

The stewardess may not be "beautiful but dumb."

Conversationalists Flavored.

She must have sense enough to be able to carry her end of almost any conversation. She must have poise in the presence of the great and near great, for many in these classifications travel by air—politicians and movie stars, opera singers and captains of industry.

The ranks of these aerial Jaques-lines-of-all-trades are constantly being depleted by that quick bank-and-turn which lands women in front of altars. Says an air line official:

"A majority of the stewardesses who have given up their work to become housewives have married pilots, while several others have married passengers."

YOUNG LADY'S Painful Condition Relieved by Cardui

For over fifty years, Cardui has been recommended by mothers to their daughters for the relief of functional pains at certain times and as a tonic to improve nutrition.

"I was very weak and nervous when a young girl at home," writes Mrs. J. H. Daniel of Biloxi, Miss. "My mother was so uneasy about me, she did not ask me to help with the work. My mother decided to give me Cardui and she didn't want me to miss a dose, after she found it was helping me. I gained and it was splendid how I responded to the treatment. After six bottles of Cardui, I was regular and the pain and trouble stopped. I grew strong."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician. (Adv.)

Announce Prog'm Of College Event For High Schools

Seniors of High Schools To Be Honored by E. C. T. C. Students at Affair at College on Tuesday

The program for the first high school seniors that attend the first High School Day to be celebrated at East Carolina Teachers College will begin at ten o'clock next Tuesday morning. On their arrival at the Robert H. Wright building, formerly known as the Campus Building, they will be met by a reception committee.

Led by guides, the guests will make a tour of the campus and inspect the buildings so as to get acquainted with the place before they re-assemble for a program of music by the Greenville High School band and the E. C. T. C. Glee club. President L. R. Meadows will at that time welcome them and they will hear the announcements for the events of the day.

Representatives from each department of instruction and from the registrar's office will be at designated places ready to give advice, answer any questions about courses, or give any information the girls and boys or their teachers or parents may call for.

A barbecue dinner will be served on the campus at one o'clock. Until two-thirty the girls and boys will have the freedom of the campus or can join in the dancing. In the afternoon they may have their choice of seeing a moving picture in the Austin Auditorium or watching a match game of baseball on the athletic field.

The college students will continue their regular routine work and campus activities so the high school people will see the college in operation and catch glimpses of student life.

A steering committee composed of five members of the staff, Dr. C. L. Adams, Misses Grigby and Cassidy, R. C. Deal, and Dr. H. J. McGinnis, will be assisted by a number of sub-committees. Everything will be done to make the high school students feel at home on a college campus.

Principals of high schools from most of the counties within easy reach of Greenville have sent in lists of students who will accept the invitations sent out. With the regrets received from those at a distance have come expressions of approval of the plan.

Dr. E. L. Henderson, chairman of leadership training for the Boy Scouts, announced that the men who took the minimum required hours of training in the First Aid and Leathercraft courses, given by the Greenville district of the Boy Scouts and instructed by Lieutenant Lester Jones, of the State Highway Patrol and the professional leadership of the East Carolina Council, would go on an overnight experience to Camp Charles at which time a review will be made and many demonstrations will be given.

While this county has not reached the final goal of $2,500 Red Cross relief funds, the contributions to date are above the $2,000 mark which we think speaks well for the generosity of our people. There are probably some who intend to make contributions but have not gotten around to it yet, and we urge them to do so at once in order that final report might be made. There is still a need for funds for the storm sufferers and whatever you feel you can give, whether it be much or little, it will be a help in relieving suffering in the storm torn areas.

Let us again urge all these persons who receive one of The Reflector gubernatorial poll ballots to vote them as quickly as possible. The larger percentage of the votes cast the more accurate the poll will be and certainly accuracy is what is wanted by the newspapers who are co-operating in this undertaking. The ballot is strictly a secret one and no one will know how you vote. If you have received one of these ballots or if you receive one of them later, do not lay it aside but vote it at once. By so doing you will enable us to present a true picture of the political situation as it pertains to the governor's race to our readers.

TOURIST: Despite an apparent upsurge in President Roosevelt's popularity, his keenest political scouts privately admit some apprehension over scarcely discernible symptoms of setbacks.

The White House has received word that agricultural areas are not so undivided in their devotion to Mr. Roosevelt as they used to be. Private polls reveal that he has lost some strength—not enough to be fatal—in the farming areas. The farmer seems inclined to return to old political moorings, now that the fiercest distress is over. The down-below demand for Air Landon as the G. O. P. nominee suggests to thoughtful New Dealers that the same sort of ground swell may develop in the election campaign itself if the Kansan is named.

That's the under-cover reason for FDR's acceptance of so many speaking invitations. It explains why, as Whirligig first reported, he will tour the political circuit instead of staging the dignified, front-porch campaign which President in office usually affect. FDR fears over-confidence among his political cabinet and under-confidence among the voters.

DELIVER: The overnight shift in the political setup in Maine furnishes the tipoff on these Rooseveltian fears. The new strategy is significant because Maine votes first and there is still psychological advantage in the slogan that "as Maine goes, so goes the nation." For two years Rep. Ed Moran has been the political favorite of the Roosevelt-Parley forces. He was, by his vote and voice, a New Deal-

Golden Rain

by Margaret Widdemer

SYNOPSIS: Iris Lanning's great success with the Park Avenue-Land Island set is menaced. Her enemy, Georgia Blair, just as Iris is about to appear in the divorcee Mrs. Morgan's famous charity revue, accuses Iris of having falsified her mother's ancestry. Iris has taken her Aunt Phina's word to certain facts since she had been kept ignorant of the whole matter by her Aunt Ella until recently. To maintain her position, Iris must prove this to Mrs. Morgan. She is telephoning Morgan Black, at home in Pennsylvania.

Chapter 37.

MORGAN'S SHARE

MORGAN'S voice, deep, beautiful, a little roughened, came over the wire like a remembrance of everything peaceful and safe and lost.

"Well, Iris, my dear, how's every thing?"

"To begin with, you were right and I was wrong. I wasn't wise enough for the game I was playing. Morgan—is it a private wire?"

"Safe as churches."

"Morgan—Phina and my mother. It seems, were immigrant girls from Ireland. Don't misunderstand. I'm prouder of Mother than if she'd been a queen, making good as she did. I'm proud of Phina, too; but she made up a crazy story about being a Southerner with an aristocratic Civil War background. I'd never lived with anybody who made up things for their own advantage. I can see now I was dumber than twenty rabbits."

There was a little affectionate laugh at the other end of the wire.

"I was singing in a concert that was all tied up with social stuff and getting into the Junior League. And one of the girls made things seem so that I'd been lying right through."

"You poor baby, I want to come over and kill her?"

"I want you to come over and tell Mrs. Morgan that I honestly didn't know anything about Mother and Phina."

There was a long silence at the other end of the telephone. Then: "Tell whom, did you say?"

"Mrs. Morgan—Mrs. James Ogden Morgan. She's been so good to me, and I like her so. Come to the Community House here—"

"Iris's voice, grew sharp with terror, "for if you don't, before seven tonight—"

"I know, I understand. You're asking a good deal more of me than you can tell, Iris. But I won't fail you. Good-bye." He hung up.

Camilla touched her. "Come, you can't stay here, Iris. Shall I drive you home?"

"No, no—I couldn't go home. I don't want to see Aunt Phina or anybody till it's over. And Allan might go there to find me. Let me stay here."

"No. Get hold of yourself." Camilla put a heavy coat around her.

"I'll drive you back to my place; there's nobody there but the servants. Mother's away, you know."

She put her arm through Iris's and drew her out through a basement door and to her own runabout.

"Camilla, be honest with me. What did people think?"

"Everybody always knew Phina was climbing. Of course, Owen could go anywhere—a twitch of pain came over Camilla's face—but he never would. It has all seemed like a game of paper dolls to me. And then, when you made good with Mrs. Morgan and Allan began rushing you, people began to take you seriously, and Georgia, being what she is, had to strike. Not that it matters. I think it will all pull straight."

"Camilla, you're being so splendid to me!"

Camilla spoke through the rushing twilight, not turning her face from the road, harshly:

"Oh, I had my ax to grind, too, at first. You were Owen's sister. Owen's nothing to do with it now; you've been splendid to me—I love you. Iris, you have to tell me the truth. Is what Georgia said about Owen caring for the Silverheels girl—true?"

"It's true that Owen did love Sigrid Swenson, but it's broken off and she's gone abroad. Oh, you're so splendid, Camilla, Owen must love you."

Camilla made no answer to that. After a silence, she said: "Did you ever hear of my father, old Johnny Wendell?"

They said he was made of iron. I've always hated being like him—Mother always used it as a reproach. But I'm beginning to think it's not bad. I'm not breaking stuff, I find—and I'm rather glad. I wish I remembered him."

Presently they had arrived, and Camilla left Iris in a distant, silent bedroom. Her own room was next door. Iris thought she heard Camilla believer, and in return he was allowed to handle Maine's Democratic patronage. Governor Louis Brann has been commuting between Augusta and Washington to protest against this arrangement. As a final protest, he threatened not to run again, although he is the Democrat's best vote-getter in this G. O. P. Gibraltar.

A week ago he talked with the President and Boss Farley. He was promised that all future jobs would be turned over to him. What's more, men already in office on Rep. Moran's okay will be fired. So Gov-snobbing. For herself, she lay on her back on the bed and tried not to follow the hours. Morgan was at West Philadelphia. . . . He was near Penn Station.

About that time she turned over and began to cry into Mrs. Wendell's deep soft pillows; tears that, though she did not know it, kept her from breaking down. She cried and she prayed.

At seven a maid brought a tray of food. She sat up and made herself eat something. By the time she was dressed and made up again, Camilla's knock sounded at the door. She would be on around eight—perhaps eight-thirty, amateur things were always late.

Morgan would be in New York by now. She must stop thinking of Morgan. It was like Sheridan's Ride. She made herself laugh shakily, and went out and met tall, steady Camilla.

Morgan Black, having been told at the Community House by a terrified maid that Mrs. Morgan was resting at her own home, drove there. He compressed his lips, then walked straight through the garden and in at a half-hidden side door, and up the stairs to the half-shut door of a book-lined room. Mrs. Morgan was sitting, as he had thought she would be, behind the old-fashioned ornate walnut kneehole desk.

"GRANDMOTHER," he said. He was shocked to see her throw up her head, turn white and half collapse in her chair. He ran over and put his arms around her.

"Dear, what is it? Why are you so upset? I ought to have explained, but I thought it was easier to come—"

"Jim, we thought you were dead. You pretended you were dead—"

"Granny, I'm terribly sorry. I never pretended to be dead. I wrote you I was going abroad for a couple of years, and that I wouldn't write again for a long time. By an impulse I landed in Persia, a little place near Philadelphia, and stayed there because I was happy there, for the first time in a good many years—"

"Are you the man named Black Iris Lanning sent for?" Then she reverted to the more pressing thing.

"They found a body—with an envelope addressed to you inside the bill-fold pocket—"

"Good heavens! What a coward you must have thought me. Wait, I remember . . . a poor devil who begged me for money to save him from suicide. I thought he was laying it on thick. I gave him some, and the telephone number of the Yale Club on the back of an envelope. . . . Well, evidently it didn't save him."

His grandmother, who had both arms around him as if he might melt away from her, said practically:

"But didn't you see anything in the papers? And what about your bank account?"

"I'd drawn it in cash. I have it in the Persia bank. I didn't want anything I owned except just that. No, I didn't see any papers, and I didn't want to. I'd seen enough papers."

"I know, darling. The sharp clear voice was gentle and understanding. "We thought you'd given away every cent, and then . . ."

She stopped and put him back, to look at him. "Oh, darling, how well and strong you look. How glad your mother would have been. Darling, you must come back now, and stay. We've rented Woodlands—Allan and I—to the Ross woman for a year. But you'll come back, you'll stay here with me till the lease is up."

He shook his head. "I'm not far off, dear, and perhaps you might stay with me part of the time. But I've found my niche. I'm practicing law at a Pennsylvania county seat—doing it darn well, if you ask me. Living with the old Lannings, Iris's aunt and uncle—the finest people, except my Granny, the Lord ever made. In partnership with Uncle Will Lanning."

He was talking on enthusiastically. He interrupted himself. "But, Granny, let's get at what I came over about." He pulled up a chair.

"Iris telephoned me in a great state. It seems Georgia has been doing some dirty work at the crossroads." He summed up what Iris had said. "So I came straight over to see about it."

His grandmother could not help saying, "You'd do for Iris what you wouldn't do for me."

He nodded shamefacedly. "I'd have come, not very long from now, anyhow. I didn't want to—yet—don't ask me to go into it. But I'm not very lucky about girls. I guess, I—wanted Iris."

Triumph, tomorrow, is a little hollow for Iris.

ernor Brann has agreed to run for the Senate against Wallace White, although down-easters say that Mr. Brann is fully as conservative as the Republican Old Dealer. But the Democrats need Maine and they think that the Governor can deliver it. I. O. O.

BAITING: Europe's bad luck—the specter of war—may mean money in the pocket for Uncle Sam, even though cautious State Departmenters deny it diplomatically.

Continental nations are again cultivating American good will.

Their best posted observers in diplomatic circles have warned them that old-fashioned propaganda—news stories of atrocities, radio appeals and magazine heroes—won't start another save-democracy brainstorm in the United States.

They have also reported that Americans sorest grudge against Europe springs from defaults on war debts. Smart ambassadors have formed their foreign offices that a few dollars on account would restore foreign prestige—and credit.

Ex-Premier Herriot of France is running for reelection on that dangerous issue. He spilled the story that FDR begged him late in 1933 to persuade Paris to resume payments. FDR has made the same plea to other diplomats. And one nation which top State Department experts think will pony up is Great Britain, for there have been private conversations already. If England forks over some cash, France and Italy won't be far behind.

AMBITION: Herbert Hoover recently revealed his secret hopes and heartaches to a Washington friend who spent a week-end with the former President.

Mr. Hoover does not today want or expect to be the R-publicans' presidential nominee. But he does seek to block the nomination of a man or the writing of a platform which will amount to a repudiation of the social and economic theories he expounded while in the White House. His knowledge of Borah and his suspicions of Landon convince him that they would toss his ideas out the White House window if they free-rented 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue for four years.

But Mr. Hoover's supreme ambition is to engage Franklin D. Roosevelt in a personal and political controversy. The Palo Alto man figures that a direct debate would permit him to save his 1932 victory. But FDR's advisers have warned him to save his fire for bigger political game.

SOCIALIZED: New Yorkers with Mexican interests are sorely jittery about the outlook for foreign properties. President Cardenas' large tax shortages on the part of banishment of General Calles was seem to leave well enough alone. No sooner had John Hamilton patched up a peace with leaders of the New York G. O. P. state committee after his unannounced invasion of their territory than he spilled the beans again. This time it was by announcing that Landon could be nominated without the support of New York and Pennsylvania anyhow. That irritated local politicians plenty. They also resent the widespread inference that their delegation is a sure bet to vote for the Kansan.

However, new overtures towards peace and good will have been made from the Landon side. John Hamilton's New York office is to be re-titled Eastern Regional Headquarters—thus dispelling the impression that it is trying to poach on the state committee's territory.

Actually leaders of the New York G. O. P. delegation are on the force. They do plan to swing to Landon if he looks like the winning horse. But they won't finally make up their minds until they are on the ground at Cleveland and can appraise for themselves the effect of Hearst complications on other delegations. New York Republican chiefs will be watching the California primaries closely.

PAY: Another current hot spot for foreign capital is Venezuela. The late dictator Gomez was supposed to be a vigilant collector of levies on foreign concessions—even though a neat share of the funds taken in was diverted to his personal pocket.

But the new Venezuelan government claims to have discovered large tax shortages on the part of foreign oil companies and is planning to sue them in its own courts to "recover" a sum which insiders estimate will run to about $20,000,000.

The oil companies cannot argue the matter. One peep out of them and their valuable properties are liable to confiscation. There's nothing they can do but grin and pay. American oil concerns will not be alone in their grief if this happens. Royal Dutch Shell would probably be the hardest hit of all.

CONTENTED: This year's election of New York Stock Exchange officials will be in marked contrast to last year's free-for-all. All is peace and serenity. Mr. Charles R. Gay will be returned to the presidency without an audible dissent.

The only surprise in the recommendations of the nominating committee was the dropping of Allan Lindley as a governor. Mr. Lindley has held that office for many years and was generally regarded as Richard Whitney's crown prince before the 1935 explosion toppled Whitney from his throne. Insiders intimate that he didn't work too harmoniously with the new dispensation.

Most Exchange members regard Mr. Gay as a satisfactory if unexciting chief. There's a good deal of kidding about his "good-will tours" around the country and critics frankly doubt that he has made much progress in his mission of selling Wall Street to Main Street. But nobody is worrying about that. It's wonderful how contented brokers can be when they are making a little money.

since you or your friends bought refrigerators

Visible COLD

The controls of the 1936 Kelvinator keep food compartment temperatures ideal, regardless of how hot it is in the kitchen. And you can see what the temperature is, because a Built-In Thermometer tells you that food is being kept surely, safely, dependably cold.

Visible ECONOMY

Today, for the first time in the history of the industry, Kelvinator provides you with a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation. The 1936 Kelvinator uses one-half or one-third as much current as many refrigerators now in use. This saving alone may justify replacing your old refrigerator.

Visible PROTECTION

You may know today, beyond a shadow of doubt, that the refrigerator you buy will give you long years of service. Because the 1936 Kelvinator is backed by a 5-year Protection Plan, written and signed by the oldest company in the electric refrigeration industry.

IN EVERY CITY and town in America—in clubs and homes and on the streets—people are talking about Kelvinator—the new refrigerator.

Those who have put off buying any electric refrigerator—who have waited for new developments—have found in the 1936 Kelvinator the answer to every question a conservative buyer could ask.

Owners of automatic refrigerators are replacing them with new Kelvinators, not because the old ones are worn out, but because new developments, new discoveries, new inventions now offered for the first time have, by comparison, made former refrigerators obsolete, wasteful and old-fashioned.

The 1936 Kelvinator gives you Visible Cold. It maintains low temperatures in the food compartment to a new and amazing point of accuracy. And, for the first time, a Built-In Thermometer tells you in unmistakable figures how cold it is. You know food is being properly preserved, health properly protected.

It gives you Visible Economy. Many refrigerators now must be considered wasteful of electric current, for Kelvinator uses a half or even a third as much current as many now in use. And there can be no doubt about economy, for every Kelvinator is sold with a Certificate of Low Cost of Operation.

And it gives you Visible Protection. Every Kelvinator is backed by a 5-year Protection Plan signed by the oldest company in the business.

The 1936 Kelvinator gives a new meaning to the word "convenience." There are flexible rubber grids in every ice tray, automatic defrosting switch, sliding shelves, interior light—everything to lessen the burden of housekeeping.

If you are one of the 7 million owners of automatic refrigerators, or if you have not yet bought, see the 1936 Kelvinator, get all the facts about this new refrigerator, learn how easily you can own one by our liberal Deferred Payment Plan.

New Ruler Of Paraguay Seeks To Remake Nation

By PAUL SANDERS

Buenos Aires, April 17.—(AP)—Colonel Rafael Franco, most audacious of Chaco warriors, carries on his thickest shoulders a mighty burden in attempting to reconstruct a dictator his war-torn little country.

Installed as provisional president after a revolution brought by post-war discontent had deposed President Eusebio Ayala, Franco announced that he planned to reconstruct Paraguay economically and socially.

He announced a totalitarian system, resembling both the fascist and Nazi regimes in Italy and Germany, declared revolutionary party and state a joint entity, ordered other political groups banned for a year, and declared the government supreme arbiter in all social, industrial and labor questions.

The next day he said a "true democracy of workers and peasants" would be his objective, but that "the revolution is not finished and we must govern revolutionary until it is."

Franco may have contradicted himself in some of his declarations, but he made it clear that he wants to give land to the Paraguayan peasants, raise their low living standards, curb the influence of foreign capital, separate church and state, and give relief to war veterans.

Franco has been protesting against the state of affairs in Paraguay most of his life.

Born in Asuncion in 1896 and product of the Paraguayan military school, he entered the army in 1916. His first serious clash came in 1931 when he protested stern police measures against a demonstration of students. He was arrested.

When the Chaco war started in 1932, Franco rejoined the army and became commander of the Ytuto regiment. Leaving his troops, sparing thirst and hunger with his men, he became an idol.

At the same time he broadcast his dissatisfaction with the Ayala government. Paraguayan soldiers went to war inadequately armed, whole regiments fighting only with knives.

Even when Paraguay began to win successes and later marched across the Chaco in a series of victories, Franco's dissatisfaction with the Ayala government, and with General Jose Felix Estigarribia, the commander-in-chief, only increased.

After the war he was given command of the military school. Estigarribia was made a marshal and pensioned for life.

Franco made invidious comparisons between this reward for the commander and what the government ment did for the rank and file of the veterans. He became presidential candidate of a veterans' organization and on February 5 the Ayala regime exiled him on charges of plotting against the government.

Just 12 days later young army officers and students deposed and imprisoned Ayala and called Franco back from Buenos Aires to take charge of the government. He used an airplane for that trip.

WASHINGTON DAY BOOK

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, (AP)—Politicians here are convinced the hearings on the administration's tax bill before the house, restricted as they were, have laid the groundwork for what is expected to be the focal point in the crucial battle over the measure in the senate.

It is whether the proposed bill is intended to be a vehicle for increasing revenue or one of reform. Pressed on this point by Republican members of the house ways and means committee, Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the treasury and credited with being the brains behind the proposal, declared flatly:

"This is not a reform bill; this is a tax bill."

His statement, however, failed to satisfy the Republicans. They attempted to pin him down. They wanted to know if Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, was consulted; if Professor Tugwell was brought into conference; if Professor Felix Frankfurter of the President's Alma Mater and credited with a close administration advisor was consulted.

Oliphant himself, a former professor, was quizzed on his former academic connections.

Termed Regular Proposal
Oliphant steadfastly denied that any of the so-called "brain trusters" figured in the picture; insisted the proposal originated in the regular way in the treasury and bureau of internal revenue.

Opponents of the bill, unconvinced, point to what they call the vagueness and uncertainty among its sponsors as to its revenue-raising possibilities.

They also call attention to the fact that it is estimated around $650,000,000 more will be levied on individuals in the large income brackets under the proposed bill than under the existing law.

And they refer to the claims voiced from the White House down the line that inequalities which now exist will either be removed or ameliorated under the new bill.

Faces Senate Attack

These criticisms are certain to be heard at greater length in the senate. Strict rules of the house imposing limitations on debate prevent representatives from having their full say, but nothing of the kind prevails in the senate.

Charges leveled at administration "brain trusters," however, especially if they come from the Republicans, may prove to be a boomerang in view of the latest move of Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the G. O. P. national committee, in setting up a similar organization.

While Fletcher is careful to point out that his group of professors is a "research staff—not a group of politically ambitious college professors with preconceived ideas," he will have a lot of difficulty in making that label stick.

SCHOOLGIRLS FEAR MILK MAY BE 'FATTENED'

London, (AP)—London schoolgirls are afraid milk will make them fat.

More than 85,000 of them, according to the chief medical officer of the board of education, spurred the special milk price of one cent for a third of a pint during 1935.

ON THE POLITICAL FRONT

Joseph F. Guffey

(By The Associated Press)

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania faces two tasks in the 1936 campaign and their successful execution would mean much to the Democratic party.

He will be expected to deliver his state's 36 electoral votes for Roosevelt. He has said he can do it, and if he does, it will be the first time Pennsylvania has been found in the Democratic camp in a presidential contest.

But then Guffey is the state's first Democratic senator since the Civil war, and he is backed by the state's first Democratic governor in more than 40 years.

As author of the Guffey coal bill he will be expected to explain the mines' "little NRA" in the districts where it is most important. In this task he will have the help of the battler, John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America, who recently pledged his 540,000 followers to Roosevelt and the Democrats.

The Republican pre-convention eggs are beginning to hatch, but the business of chicken-counting is fraught with unusual complications. So many delegates are uninducted, and the methods of inducting delegates of favor for individual presidential candidates are so numerous and ambiguous, that it is difficult for even the campaign managers to determine exactly where they stand.

It appears that in spite of all the state laws which have been passed on the popular assumption that they would simplify the political expression of public sentiment, it still is possible to keep many things concealed.

To one unversed in such matters, it might look easy to tabulate the delegate strength of the various candidates to date, and set forth the situation graphically in parallel columns of figures.

In fact it has been possible to do just that, with a fair degree of accuracy, in some previous years. This year it is virtually impossible.

About 'Stalking Horses'

To tabulate accurately the delegate strength of any leading Republican candidate today would require, not one column of figures, but at least four.

From the statistical point of view the easiest class of delegates to deal with are the "instructed" delegates. Yet even here there are many pitfalls for the mathematician.

Some states instruct their national delegates for one candidate with the expectation that they will stand for that candidate to the bitter end. Others use exactly the same language to instruct for a favorite son or other stalking horse, never really meaning that the instructions are to be followed for more than one or two ballots.

But this complication is nothing compared to the situation with respect to a second class—the "pledged" delegates, such as usually are chosen in state-wide primaries.

In the primary a man runs for delegate on some sort of pledge that he will support a given candidate. Sometimes the candidate's name actually is printed on the primary ballot, along with that of the delegate. Sometimes the latter simply makes a public statement. Sometimes there is nothing more than a "general understanding" that if chosen he will do so and so. The result, mathematically, is hopeless confusion.

Appearances Deceive

Then there is a third class of delegates, chosen by state or district conventions which "endorse" one of the presidential aspirants. In such cases the delegates themselves usually decide in due course how seriously the "endorsement" is to be taken. Even before the first rollcall is taken, they may desert the endorsee entirely.

Finally, there are the uninstructed delegates. Usually it is the custom of campaign managers to claim most of the uninstructed blocs in sight, with the result that the claims overlap outrageously, and all sense of arithmetic is lost. This year the crop of uninstructed delegations is unusually large and confusing.

Flavoring all of this, and making matters even worse, is the circumstance that in politics things so often are not what they seem. A single illustration will suffice to emphasize the point.

In one state, Candidate A and Candidate B each entered a slate of "pledged" delegates in the primary. Candidate C did not enter. When asked why, one of C's managers said privately: "What does it matter who wins? We have personal assurances that half of A's

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington (AP)—It is becoming increasingly evident to political onlookers in Washington that it will be in the Senate finance committee and on the Senate floor that the fate of the administration's tax program will be decided.

The sentiment among House leaders seems to be to rush through a bill as quickly as possible and let the Senate do the worrying.

They will admit privately that the task of translating the President's tax theories into concrete and practical legislation has proven to be a much more difficult task than anyone expected at the outset. Complaints have been heard that the magnitude of the task is simply too great for the time at Congress' disposal.

The House ways and means committee has been at work for more than a month in an effort to write definite tax schedules. The further it went into the subject the more complicated and involved it became.

Because the witnesses before the committee members were restricted in their testimony to the tentative proposals embodied in the rough outline of the report drafted by a subcommittee, many business representatives hesitated to appear and state their views.

They argued that a detailed bill first should have been drafted with ample time for study and analysis. The disposition among many bus-wait until the Senate finance committee executives therefore was to let the subject before making their presentations. At least something resembling a concrete plan would then be available.

Few observers doubt that the President's views ultimately will prevail, despite the contention of some business men that the proposed tax on undistributed corporate earnings would have a retarding effect on recovery and reemployment. It also is argued that the tax would work a severe hardship on corporations with little or no profit, and that it would penalize prudent and thrifty management, and that it would misuse the taxing power to enforce economic changes.

The strategy to be followed by administration leaders is to have the House pass a measure of some kind quickly. House rules are so rigid that passage of almost any sort of a bill can be forced by the majority leaders.

Since under the constitution all revenue measures must originate in the House, this move will provide the Senate with something definite upon which to proceed. The Senate may or may not go along with the House proposals in every respect.

It may and probably will write into the measure ideas of its own arrived at after more mature deliberation.

At any rate it will be in the conference between the two houses that the bill in the last analysis will be written. That is the place where the administration's influence will be exerted to secure enactment of a bill to its own liking.

Chain Letter Psychology Helps Finance Campaign

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel, Raleigh, April 16.—Dr. Ralph W. McDonald and his managers are using the psychology of send-a-dollar-or-a-dime chain letter in raising campaign funds and are having unusually good success with this plan, it was reported here today.

The plan as outlined is as follows:

Dr. McDonald, or one of his workers, holds a meeting of from 12 to 15 of his supporters and in the course of the meeting, after the usual pep speeches and sales talks, tries to get every person present to buy one of the McDonald "baby bonds" at from $1 to $25 each, in order that each may become a paid-up bondholder in the McDonald for Governor Corporation.

Then an effort is made to get each person who has purchased a McDonald "baby bond" to agree to go into his immediate community, get from 12 to 15 of his friends together, form a McDonald-for-Governor club and get each one of these to buy some McDonald bonds and to sell still more bonds.

"So far this plan has been working very effectively, since every person who buys a bond feels that he then has a financial interest in the campaign. It has been working just like the old chain letter plan, in which every person who put out a dime or a dollar wanted to pass the thing along."

SAYS SCHOOLS IN NEED CASH

Bank Commissioner Hood Wants Larger Appropriation

Reflector Bureau.
Sir Walter Hotel.
Raleigh, April 17.—The public schools in North Carolina should have an enlarged appropriation for the next biennium, certainly not less than $25,000,000 a year, Commissioner of Banks Gurney P. Hood said here today.

But he vigorously challenged the contention of some that the general assembly and the state have been contributing less to the support of the schools since the enactment of the schools tax by the 1933 general assembly than they received prior to that time.

"It is true that more was spent on the maintenance of the public schools from 1931 to 1933 than from 1933 to 1935, but the money spent for schools from 1931 to 1933, amounting to $34,251,321.52, did not come from state taxes, but from both state and property taxes, while $12,731,010.41 was borrowed money which will not be repaid for 15 or 20 years yet," Hood said. "Only $14,650,070.10 of this $34,251,321.52 was derived from indirect state taxes, while $7,879,240.98 was derived from the state-wide property tax of 15 cents on the $100 valuation for schools. So actually all the money contributed from indirect state taxes to the support of the schools from 1931 to 1933 was $14,650,070.10, since all of the other revenue came either from the state property tax or was borrowed money."

"In 1933, before the 'New Deal' had time to take effect, it was absolutely necessary for the state to reduce the cost of government. But from 1933 to 1935 the state actually expended $32,549,087 on the public schools, every penny of which was raised by indirect state taxes, including the sales tax, but without a penny of taxes on property. Nor was it necessary to borrow any money to help pay for the maintenance of the schools, as had been the case from 1931 to 1933.

"In 1935, after the 'New Deal' had been in effect for two years and with conditions much better, the general assembly appropriated $40,931,000 for the public schools for the 1935-37 biennium and present indications are that this entire appropriation can be met without any borrowing whatever."

The reason it was not necessary for the state to borrow any money to meet its appropriation for schools and to pay the school teachers from 1933 to 1935 and the reason it will not be necessary to borrow during the present biennium, is because of the enactment of the sales tax which has provided the necessary revenue.

"The reason it was necessary for the state to borrow almost $13,000,000 between 1931 and 1933 to keep the schools open and pay the school teachers, was because the 1931 general assembly failed to pass the sales tax," Hood said.

"The fact that the state spent more from 1931 to 1933 than it contributed in taxes, together with the fact that the 1931 general assembly suspended the executive budget act as it applied to school funds and thus prevented the Governor from reducing appropriations for schools as he did for other agencies, made it necessary for the state to borrow almost $13,000,000 to keep the schools open for those two years," Hood said. "It also means that the people of the state are going to have to 'pay tribute' in additional taxes for at least 15 years now in order to pay off this $13,000,000 which has now been funded, though at the time it was necessary to borrow this money on short term notes and to pay 6 per cent interest."

"After the 'New Deal' came into effect, our banks here in North Carolina were able to buy the state bonds issued to refund the notes, and they sold at an interest rate of 3.53 per cent."

The vast Chapada dos Veadeiros, high mesa nestled in the Goyaz hills, could produce all the wheat Brazil needs and turn out a higher grade product than is now imported from Argentina and Uruguay, experts say.

Boss Artist Of WPA Hails Bronx As New Mural Capital Of World

James Michael Newell 36, is covering 1,200 square feet of walls in a Bronx high school with murals like the one pictured above with the artist. His work is heralded as important enough to move the mural capital to New York.

By CHARLES NORMAN

New York, (AP)—A young artist, James Michael Newell, has in the opinion of at least one reputable critic, moved the mural art capital of the world to New York's Bronx. Holger Cahill, director of the federal art project, who bosses more than 8,000 artists, is the critic. Cahill, criss-crossing the country to observe the work being done under a program which, he says, has made Uncle Sam the greatest art patron in history, spent most of a New York visit in the library of the Evander Childs High school in the Bronx, where Newell is at work on a series of murals entitled "The Evolution of Western Civilization."

Cahill was enthusiastic about the seven panels which cover an area of 1,200 square feet and about the 36-year-old artist who is their creator.

Murals An Ancient Art

"Mural painting is one of the most ancient of the arts," he explained. "At certain stages of its history certain places have been the mural capitals of the world."

"The earliest mural capital of which we know are the paleolithic caves of Altamira, Spain, whose powerful drawing of animals are proof that there is no progress in art, only change in expression—they are great today because they were true and powerful expressions of life when they were made."

"Then there was Pompeii... then one of the cities of ancient America, perhaps a city of the Mayas... then Ajanta in Central India, and many other places in China."

"Padua, Italy, when Giotto was working, was the mural capital of the world."

"Later such masters as Raphael, Piero della Francesca and Michelangelo made whatever places they were working in the mural centers of the world."

Mexico City Prominent

"In the 1920's, when Diego Rivera, Orozco and Siqueiros worked in Mexico City, that place was the capital."

"Today, the mural centers have shifted to the United States, and the capital of mural art shifts from day to day as dozens of fresh young talents are developed."

"At the present moment it is my conviction that the mural capital of the United States is situated in the Bronx—this because of extraordinary talent and power of James Michael Newell."

"Tomorrow the mural capital may be Newark, N. J., Woodside or Astoria, L. I., Chicago, Washington, San Francisco or Saugus or Falmouth, Mass., where excellent work is being done by brilliant young talent."

Newell, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1900, is the winner of the gold medal award for decorative painting in the Architectural League's 50th annual exhibition. He studied in New York and Rome and served with the marine corps during the world war.

Thursday, one of the merchants there, a jeweler came up to him and told him that he and his entire family, comprising eight voters, were for him 100 per cent. This man told him that the sales tax was about to ruin him, since every time there was a wedding in Edenton the people bought their silver and presents in Virginia to avoid paying the sales tax, instead of buying locally."

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 17.—(AP)—It was a two way stock market today with oil and securities pushing ahead, while many of the recent leaders black-tracked. Except in the few favorite issues, trading was extremely light. Optimistic domestic developments were offset somewhat by a cloudy foreign picture. The late tone was firm. Transfers approximated 2,400,000 shares.

DR. J. J. MURRAY TO BE IN CITY

Among his many duties and accomplishments, indicative of the activity and interests of the man himself, are these: member of Executive Committee of Religious Education of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.; member of Board of Trustees, Union Theological Seminary, Richmond; special lecturer on Science and Religion at Mary Baldwin College, Staunton, Virginia. Dr. Murray is also the only southern member on the Board of directors of the National Association of Audubon Societies in New York.

The church he serves in Lexington, Virginia, is the third in size in the Synod of Virginia, with something over 1000 members. Local Presbyterians and the community in general look forward with real anticipation to having Dr. Murray in Greenville the first week of May.

'HUMAN BOMB' KILLS TWO AND INJURES TWO

A bomb held in the hand of Dr. William D. Moriarty (right) exploded with terrific force in a small sedan at Los Angeles and instantly killed the University of Southern California professor and his wife, and injured two others in the car. The wrecked car is shown at left. One of Moriarty's injured companions said the professor, who had suffered heavy financial losses, had threatened suicide several times. (Associated Press Photos)

Two Cousins Deny Any Connection in New York Robbery

Paris, April 17.—(AP)—Two cousins, both of whom said they didn't know what it was all about, were held today by the Paris police on a charge of being connected with the theft of $1,507,938 in securities January 28, 1935 from a New York bank runner.

The cousins gave their names as Bernard Klein, 39, Hungarian; and Jacob Schwartz, 34, Czech. Parisian police officials said they had been trailing the two men for weeks and that they had recovered $440,000 in U. S. treasury certificates from them. Parisian police authorities said they were seeking possible accomplices and that the pair would be held "temporarily, pending a request from the United States for their extradition from France."

Big Crowd Applauds Oxford Singing Class

A large crowd which attended the Oxford orphans' singing class concert in the local high school building last night hailed it as the best group has ever presented in this city.

The concert was presented under the direction of Mrs. Sadie T. Hutchinson. The program was featured by songs, recitations and drills in colorful costumes.

Fourteen boys and girls make up the concert team. They range in ages from about 8 to 16 years. L. W. Alderman is traveling manager.

Senate Committee Excuses Grunwald From Questioning

Witness Who Bluntly Refused to Offer Names in Investigation, Told to Collect Expenses

Washington, April 17.—(AP)—The senate lobby committee today excused from further testimony Kurt Grunwald, one of the farmers independence council, who yesterday refused to answer questions. Grunwald appeared at today's hearing in response to instruction from Chairman Black (D. Ala.). Black called for Grunwald as soon as the session opened and said:

"Mr. Grunwald, you are excused. You can go and get your expenses." Grunwald yesterday bluntly refused to name persons he had contacted for the council in a fight against the New Deals AAA. The committee then had adjourned to consider whether he should be cited to the senate for contempt—a move apparently rejected.

After dismissing Grunwald, Black called to the stand David P. Sibley of Boston, assistant treasurer of the senate of the republic.

PEACE OFFERS OF MUSSOLINI ARE REJECTED

pealed to the Italian government to consent to a cessation of hostilities in order to permit peace negotiations.

Several members of the committee of 13, arriving for that body's meeting, said that in view of Ethiopia's rejection there seemed to be nothing to do except declare that conciliation efforts had collapsed.

The league announced as the commission went into session shortly after 4 p. m. that it had received a cablegram direct from Addis Ababa in which the Ethiopian government declared the capital had been attacked by Italian airplanes who fired on the city with machine guns.

PLANS SURVEY OF SANITATION

Efforts Being Made to Improve School Sanitation

Reflector Bureau, Sir Walter Hotel. Raleigh, April 17.—Every effort is going to be made to improve the sanitary facilities of the public schools of North Carolina, particularly in the rural districts where they have been in a deplorable condition. W. F. Credle, director of the Division of School Planning of the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, announced today.

"We are at present conducting a comprehensive survey of school building conditions throughout the state, and hope soon to be able to announce a program of improvements which will tend largely to eliminate the undesirable features," Credle said.

The survey is being conducted under the supervision of the school planning division, a part of the Department of Public Instruction, of which Clyde R. Erwin is state superintendent. It will probably be eight months or a year before final data will be available on the various schools in all sections, both rural and urban, Credle said, but an effort will be made to remedy the worst conditions as they are revealed. The survey could not have been undertaken had it not been for the WPA appropriation of $52,000 North Carolina is one of ten states selected for such surveys, he said.

"I do not mean to be critical of local authorities, but frequently when a new school building is proposed and a certain amount appropriated for its construction, the general contract absorbs the entire appropriation, leaving nothing whatever for sanitary facilities and other necessities," Credle said. "This is a condition we are attempting to remedy through the survey. In my opinion, it is much better to maintain a smaller school with adequate water and toilet facilities, than to attempt the erection of a large one without those necessities."
