Washington, April 20.—(AP)—The Senate committee recommended in a majority report today the nationalization of enough industrial plants to produce warships, guns and powder for the peacetime needs of the army and navy.

It was a split committee that handed in the report, however, for a minority protested the nationalization was not desirable.

"The committee majority," the report said, "recommends government ownership of facilities adequate for the construction of all warships by the navy department, also all gun forgings, projectiles and armor plates and of facilities adequate for the production of powder, rifles, pistols and machine guns necessary for the war department."

The majority believes that the war and navy departments can produce from their own ranks or employ sufficiently able technicians to operate these plants successfully.

The minority said that if large government plants are erected "there will be inevitable local political pressure to maintain these plants at full capacity production, regardless of actual defense needs and the result will be to encourage armament rather than disarmament."

Accompanying the recommendations was a lengthy condemnation of the methods of the munitions industry in supporting a foreign market for its output. In this both majority and minority groups united.

Annual Luncheon
Held in New York

Two Noted Newspapersmen, Henry L. Mencken and Sir Willmott Lewis, Address Organization

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Two noted newspapersmen, Henry L. Mencken and Sir Willmott Lewis, addressed the annual luncheon of the Associated Press today with Mencken urging a greater emphasis on editorial pages and Sir Willmott calling news "the chief source of opinion by which governments in democratic countries must proceed."

Sir Willmott, Washington correspondent of the London Times, in stressing the importance of a free press said:

"The newspapers of today are not in all lands free but where they still are, and defend it—against enemies without and within—where they stand for discussion and agreement setting themselves unbreakably against the regiments of custom and obedience by goose-step, even the cynic may find a place for hope."

Mencken, of the Baltimore Sun papers, said the newspaper "is not only a news monger, it is also a critic."

"That it may be a bad one is beside the point, nine-tenths of all critics are bad ones," the editor and writer said. "The essential thing is that it is the only critical agency of genuine confidence and influence that is left in the American scheme of things."

Drunken Drivers Get Trials Present Term

As the regular April term of Pitt county Superior court entered its second week today, a number of charges of drunken driving had been disposed of.

J. T. Timberlake was acquitted of a charge of driving while drunk at this morning's session.

A nol pros with leave was ordered in the case charging Henry Oliver with assault with a deadly weapon.

At the previous session of court M. J. Moore and Preston Langley were convicted of driving drunk, but judgment was deferred in each case.

Dave Creech was sentenced to six months on the roads for driving drunk and G. W. Reed entered a plea to a similar charge and was fined $50 and costs and had his license revoked for 12 months. Van Johnson was acquitted on a like charge.

Large Balance Seen For New Deal's Relief Fund

Treasury Report Dis-closes Over $2,000,- 000,000 Remain

Washington, April 20.—(AP)—A treasury report disclosed today that more than $2,000,000,000 remained in the $4,880,000,000 works relief funds at the end of the third quarter of this fiscal year, March 31.

Total expenditures up to that time were $2,515,082,158. During the first three months of this calendar year $843,000,000 of the relief money was spent.

The same rate of expenditure for the next three months would leave a balance of $2,218,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year, or considerably more than estimated by President Roosevelt in his message asking for next year's appropriation.

In asking for $1,500,000,000 for next year the chief executive estimated that $1,000,000,000 would be left from this year's fund.

A house appropriations subcommittee gathered today to study a deficiency bill carrying the $1,500,000,000 asked by the President. As 500,000,000 asked by the President. As 500,000,000 asked by the President. As 500,000,000 asked by the President.

It said in a statement that the government should make relief grants to states on a 50-50 basis and "stop pouring out federal funds for costly and cumbersome works relief programs centered in Washington."

State Merchants In
34th Annual Meeting

Raleigh, April 20.—(AP)—President J. G. Harrison of Mount Airy, today urged merchants of North Carolina to vote for candidates in elections this year who are opposed to the state sales tax, as the 34th annual convention of the state merchants organization opened here.

Several hundred delegates had arrived this afternoon.

"North Carolina's merchants can't take off the sales tax except through the ballot box," Harrison warned in his annual address.

He told of problems faced by the state association during the past year and reviewed discord which at one time threatened to curtail its work as member groups withdrew. All differences have now been ironed out, he said, and the organization is reunited and ready to work for continued progress.

Geneva, April 20.—(AP)—Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, bluntly attacked Italy's alleged use of poison gas today after Premier Mussolini had informed the League of Nations council that the fascist nation demanded virtually all of Ethiopia as the price of peace.

In an emphatic speech, Eden declared the question of the use of gas "cannot be passed over in silence."

He spoke in direct answer to Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Premier Mussolini's envoy, who declared the anti-gas treaty of 1925 "does not abolish the right of reprisal against atrocities such as our troops have suffered."

Aloisi attacked Ethiopia's delegation vehemently, accusing its members of having decided ever before they reached Geneva to refuse to negotiate for peace.

"Under these circumstances," exclaimed Aloisi, "I wonder why I have been invited here."

After the Italian diplomats had finished, Eden declared:

"Not only the two belligerents, but nearly all the nations of the world are parties to the anti-gas protocol of 1925."

"Is there one nation here, one nation anywhere on the earth's surface, which is not interested in its observance? This protocol concerns the inhabitants of every great city of the world."

Referring to the failure of conciliation efforts and the sanctions as present in effect against Italy, Eden said Great Britain was ready to continue its support of existing sanctions and ready to join the other members of the league in applying additional economic and financial measures if such are deemed necessary.

Funeral services for little Bernice Haddock, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Haddock of the Shelburne section, who was instantly killed yesterday when his automobile was struck by an automobile, were conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the home, Rev. W. J. Ennis, Free Will Baptist minister, was in charge. Burial was in the family graveyard near the home.

The little boy was killed when an automobile driven by Arthur Ormand, 43-year-old Grimesland man, struck him as he was crossing the road near his home. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. Ormand is being held under $500 bond pending a hearing on charges of manslaughter and reckless driving.

Besides his parents, the little boy is survived by one brother, Alton Haddock of the home place.

Rome, April 20.—(AP)—Orders went out today to all fascist organizations to hold themselves in readiness for what was believed to be a national mobilization.

The great general meeting would be similar to that which marked the beginning of the Italo-Ethiopian war and an authoritative source indicated that the mobilization would mark the entrance of Italian troops into Addis Ababa.

They're off! The first Democratic primary is already underway in spite of the fact that the official election will not be held until Saturday, June 6. For last Thursday thousands of ballots were placed in the mails, addressed to voters in every nook and cranny of North Carolina, asking their opinion on the four candidates for the governorship. Twenty per cent of the total number of ballots to be mailed were sent out Thursday. Next Thursday another 20 per cent will go in the mails, with 20 per cent following on their heels each Thursday until all the ballots are in the hands of the voters.

Is it true that the "Raleigh Ring" will junk Shelby's Clyde Hooty, take aboard Lieut. Gov. "Sandy" Graham instead in order to insure the defeat of Ralph W. McDonald? Or is it a fact that Graham supporters are changing their minds and switching to McDonald and Hoy in order to prevent the nomination of any one candidate in the first primary? Is it a fact that west of Asheville Graham has everything in the bag? And how will John A. McRae stack up in the Scotch counties of the state?

Politics Injected In Tobacco Meet At Raleigh Tuesday

Raleigh Writer Says Session Likely to Become Pep Meeting for Candidate Ralph McDonald

Reflector Bureau,
Sir Walter Hotel,
By J. C. BASKERVILLE

Raleigh, April 20.—The mass meeting of tobacco farmers to be held here tomorrow and which is expected to be attended by at least 5,000 tobacco farmers, is expected to resolve itself into little more than an anti-Ehringhaus and an anti-administration demonstration, because of the refusal of Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus to call a special session of the general assembly to enact tobacco crop control legislation and a state compact law similar to that enacted in Virginia and under consideration in South Carolina.

It is also expected to result in a mass demonstration in favor of the candidacy of Dr. Ralph W. McDonald for the Democratic nomination for Governor, unless Governor Ehringhaus should yield to the demand of the farmers and agree to call a special session of the general assembly.

The prevailing belief in most circles here today is to the effect, that Governor Ehringhaus is more determined than ever not to call a special session of the general assembly and that the mass meeting of tobacco farmers, even if there should be 25,000 instead of only 5,000, will not have the slightest influence on his conviction that a special session is not necessary and could not accomplish anything for the farmers even if it should be called.

The further fact that a great many of these farmers have already turned away from Governor Ehringhaus and the present administration to support Dr. McDonald, is regarded as merely solidifying the Governor in his opposition to a special session.

While Governor Ehringhaus has been invited to address the tobacco farmers tomorrow and present his reasons for not calling a special session, the belief is that many will remain unconvinced. A good many here frankly believe that the entire mass meeting will result in a big demonstration for Dr. McDonald.

Both City and County

Indications today were that Greenville and all of Pitt county would observe at least a partial holiday tomorrow, with many business houses, public and private offices closing so business men, employees and office workers could join farmers in their "march on Raleigh" to request Governor Ehringhaus to call an immediate session of the legislature to consider tobacco compacts.

Proclamations calling on the citizens to observe a holiday have been issued by both Mayor M. K. Blount and Roy T. Cox, chairman of the county commissioners. John Coward, county auditor, said today all county offices had been ordered closed for the day. Mayor Blount said final action on what, if any city offices, would be closed, would be decided tonight.

Raleigh, April 20.—(AP)—Governor Ehringhaus said today he would "tell the truth" about the whole tobacco business here tomorrow when farmers come to ask the chief executive to call a special session of the legislature to consider tobacco control measures.

Members of the council of state, who must approve a special session under the constitution before the governor can call it, received telegraphic invitations to attend the meeting at N. C. State football stadium.

"I shall try the case like I would a lawsuit and the truth about it will be told," the chief executive said. He added he would speak extemporaneously.

Judge J. Paul Frizzelle, presiding over a term of Pitt Superior court, announced today the court would be in recess tomorrow so as not to prevent anyone wishing to go from doing so.

The A. B. C. Board in session today, expressing a desire to co-operate with the farmers on the tobacco control situation, have ordered the A. B. C. stores in Pitt County to be closed, Tuesday.

L. A. Stroud, president of the Chamber of Commerce, requested R. L. Powell, secretary, to circulate a petition today asking the stores and business houses to sign the petition if they wished to close their places of business on Tuesday between the hours of nine a. m. and 3:00 p. m. At 2:00 p. m. the majority of firms had signed the petition in favor of closing. Names appearing on the petition shows that all the banks, furniture stores, time feed and supply stores, clothing stores have agreed to close.

Several insurance agencies and the leading garages' names appeared on the list. After checking the list the officials of the Chamber of Commerce were well pleased with the many names appearing on the list as well as the enthusiasm manifested by the merchants and business houses in the interest of the farmers and a large number will join the farmers on the march to the Capital City.

The State Merchants Association is holding its annual state convention in Raleigh Tuesday and after the farm meeting the merchants are invited to attend the State Merchants convention at the Sir Walter Hotel.

J. E. Winslow, president of both the state and county organizations of the Farm Bureau and leader of the trek on Raleigh, said today the meeting, which will be held in the N. C. State college stadium, beginning at 11 o'clock would be "absolutely non-partisan and non-political."

He declared that no gubernatorial candidate would be allowed to appear on the program and that the sole purpose of the meeting was to "show the governor there is a demand for a special session to enact tobacco legislation."

In reference to printed reports that "there was a division of sentiment with regard to compact legislation," Mr. Winslow said "in as much as Pitt county had voted unanimously in favor of this legislation, if there was any opposition, it was by the employers of Mr. Lanier." (J. Con Lanier, secretary of the warehousemen's association.)

He added: "However, there has been no public indication coming from the warehousemen in opposition to the compact legislation."

'ON TO RALEIGH'

"On To Raleigh" is the slogan of Pitt county farmers and business men as they make preparations today to visit Raleigh tomorrow to place before the Governor their plea for the calling of a special session of the legislature to enact tobacco production control legislation. With the county and city governments having declared a holiday for tomorrow and many of the business houses joining in Pitt County's representation at tomorrow's gathering in Raleigh will probably be the biggest in the history of any gathering. Pitt County is vitally interested in good tobacco prices this year and in the years to come, and if legislation at this time will insure these prices, certainly it is up to our people to give their support to the demands that a special session be called.

HAVE YOU VOTED?

If you received one of The Reflector ballots in the statewide poll on the gubernatorial race, we urge you to vote it at once. The ballot is absolutely a secret one and no one will know how you vote. The poll is being taken by the co-operating newspapers purely to find out the true sentiment in this state regardless of who the leading candidate may be. Help us to present a true picture of the situation by voting the ballot if you receive one.

In addition to the gubernatorial poll The Reflector will start a poll on the county ticket in this county just as soon as the period for filing for the county offices closes. These polls are expensive to take under the systematic system we are following, but it is with a view of giving the news to our readers that we are undertaking them and your co-operation in the way of voting the ballot you receive will help us to do a better job.

Chapter 33
DEFIANCE

"I'm going home, Aunt Phina, and to stay," Iris said quietly.
Her aunt made two steps and faced her, towering over her. "Are you crazy? Or is it you that's had a tiff with Beckley?"

"No, Aunt Josephine, please answer me a question. Were you and our mother immigrant girls who came over a generation ago? Or did you have old Southern ancestry and convent rearing, as you told me?"

"My darling child—"
"I can tell you," Owen's voice broke in. "Mother and Phina and Honora were three pretty, clever Irish girls who came to America in their teens and worked their way up. Personally I've always been proud of it."

"Then why did Phina lie about it?"

"My dear, you're very rude, and your values are silly. My publicity woman thought it up at a time when it seemed better for the business, and for me."

"Your publicity woman should have remembered that you worked for Georgia Blair's cousins the Dorriens when you first came over."

Iris quietly repeated all that had happened between herself and Georgia and Mrs. Morgan that day.

"But, my dear little tired-out girl, don't you see it's ended beautifully? Don't give another thought to it; Mrs. Bloomington and I will work out a plan."

"You can't work out a plan that will ever make me any use to you again," Iris said fiercely. "You have everything now that your use of me can give you. I'm going home."

"You romantic, hysterical baby! Back, I suppose, to the sulky young man named Black?"

"No. He's going to marry somebody else."

"You're walking out on the brother you pretend to love so much, just because of a little humiliation?"

"You'll see a good deal of me," said Owen. "I'm checking out, Iris. You've freed me, too."

"You talk like a couple of young Bolsheviks. What about Allan? What about Camilla Wendell, who worships the ground you walk on? I suppose, now you have Camilla's money behind you—"

"Camilla broke her engagement with me just before you came," Owen said.

"And as for Allan," added Iris stonily, "he did not want to marry me."

Phina laughed out with the temper Iris had always suspected beneath her smooth countenance.

"You insulting, ungrateful children! You selfish, lazy, good-for-nothing boys! I've worked and slaved and planned for you and Iris. And Iris talks to me as she has, and you treat Camilla so she breaks with you. You could have stood her—"

"I WAS never so near loving Camilla as tonight," Owen said stonily. He did not rise from his chair; he lit a cigarette and went on talking. "As for the rest, I see now you've always had your pay as you went along. So that's that as far as you and I are concerned." He went on smoking.

"Owen, Owen darling, what are you going to do?" Phina changed suddenly from anger to real fear, dropped on her knees beside her nephew and threw her arms around him. "You've been my little boy ever since Jean died. Stay with me, dear, do what you like. You're all I have."

"If I stayed with you I'd be back in the traces in two days." He rose leisurely, and added: "Better get your things packed, Iris, if you're leaving tonight. I'll drive you to the apartment, and you can get a train to Persia tomorrow morning."

He turned to go upstairs. Iris made a last move toward Phina, but Phina did not see or hear. Her head buried in her arms on the broad arm of Owen's chair, she was sobbing broken-heartedly.

As Iris, still mood, stopped a moment at the foot of the great tapestry hung stairs, she saw Honora come in in her maid's black and kneel down by Phina, who flung herself on her cousin's shoulder and went on sobbing. And that was the last of the picture, sharp in Iris's mind.

"I'm sorry about Camilla," Owen said abruptly after a long silence. The brother and sister were driving down the long lighted miles of the Merrick Road. "She was finer than I was, and I laughed at her."

When she works next day in the apartment it was nearly noon, and Owen had gone, leaving her a note:

In testimony before executive sessions of the House Appropriations Committee Mr. Hopkins conceded reluctantly that he could not disavow field forces and details. He admitted that politics crept into the administration of relief jobs and funds because of the system of remote control from Washington. Then he proved his opponents point by firing several officials on the spot would "police" the

"I hated to wake you, you were so worn out. I put a hundred in your handbag. Telephone me when you get to Persia, and tell them I'll be coming over for a visit soon. I love you, Iris, and as Camilla said, I know my road now. Thank you."

"MY darling little girl, My darling—" He was crying, nearly surely she could cry a little. "I've come home to stay," she said. Uncle Will, like Owen, took things quietly. He did not even ask her why.

"My darling child, nothing could make me as happy," he said. "But you mustn't decide in a hurry."

She said no more, then. She let him take her suitcases upstairs, following herself with the second load so that he wouldn't have to.

"Morgan is out driving your Aunt Ella home from the museum," he said. "They'll be glad to see you."

Presently, still in the old gay affectionate way, she sent him downstairs and dressed herself in an old pink cotton hanging in the closet freshly ironed and followed him down.

Morgan was helping Miss Ella out of the Ford. He turned pale, as Iris came to meet him, saying rather tremulously, "I've come back, you see."

"Iris—" Before he could do more than hold her hand tight, unable, it seemed, to say anything at all for the moment, Miss Ella came forward and greeted her in a matter-of-course fashion.

"It's nice to have you back, child," she said a little reprovingly, "you've made quite a long enough visit. I'm glad we have strawberry shortcake—" She trotted off in the direction of the kitchen.

"You mustn't mind Ella," said her uncle, who could not seem to let her out of his sight for a moment. "She has what she has always wanted, though not exactly as she planned it. She has been given a room at the town historical museum to use as a permanent exhibit of your father's paintings. I'm afraid Morgan made some arrangement. I wish you could have married the boy, dear; but that's selfish, young people have to choose their own husbands and wives."

Then Miss Ella, always with that serene air of having attained all happiness, came in.

"Take the child into the parlors, William. I want to set the table here for supper. We won't ask her to help the first night."

It was like one of those dreams where you go into a known place and yet everything is different. Her father's paintings were gone—of course, they were in the museum! All the old beautiful furniture was back out of the attic. The white paneling was uncovered; the whole room was what she had always wanted to be.

"Morgan coaxed your aunt to put this place in shape," said Uncle Will.

She did not know how she got through supper; Morgan, more at home than she was, facing her across the table. But she managed to get through, and later she slipped out the back door, still to avoid Morgan, and made her way around to the garden.

An old twine hammock swung as it always had, between two trees. She dropped into it, and let herself relax. And then, tall and striding in his old blue sweater and loose gray slacks, Morgan was upon her. . . . Well, as well face it first as last. He was direct.

"Why didn't you stay? You had everything you'd wanted."

"You know why. I was a little fool who thought she was equal to handling anybody. I wasn't."

"You were innocent and good and honorable," said Morgan hotly.

"I was unbelievably stupid," Iris said. It was so good, so wonderful, to be there with Morgan—Morgan talking to her in the old angry, tender way. It was too good, too wonderful.

"I haven't congratulated you on your engagement," she said, holding herself very still and not looking at him.

"What do you mean? There's no engagement!"

Her heart turned over, then quietly. It might be true and yet they mightn't want it talked about.

"Aunt Ella wrote me you were engaged to Kay Oliver. And when you left me that night in Park Avenue when you brought the music book, you said, 'Kay mayn't be brilliant and talented, but you know where to find her.'"

"Well?"

"Well, backed up by Aunt Ella's letter, what else did that mean but marrying Kay?"

ties on the most impoverished land in the United States would be a task for a Solomon. Now it turns out that the supposed owners of wanted property simply moved in years ago and settled. They wouldn't know a deed from a dodo. In other cases the land was so wretched that the original occupants moved away without notifying the postmaster of their future address.

Attorney General Cummings and Controller General McCarl, for some strange reason, insist upon legal documents and purchases. So the net of all the excitement over the remaking America's map is this: More than 10,000,000 acres have been placed under option but only 1,500,000 have been actually bought.

LOGGERHEADS: House-Senate animosity flares so fiercely that leaders fear it may char such major administration measures as taxes and relief. The House refusal to approve the $10,000 resolution for anti-Hearst counsel fees was simply symptomatic of backstage quarrels.

House members resent the Senate's air and aura of superiority, as disclosed in a minor incident involving large AAA payments. Though Rep. John Taber "broke" the story on the floor weeks ago, it attracted scant notice until Senator Vandenberg rode it into the headlines. Senate committees have a habit of timing witnesses and revelations so as to bulldoze the "lower body" into action. And members of the larger-and-louder chamber don't want to be treated as poor cousins.

Less dramatic but more serious differences have developed over appropriations. Wherever the House has sliced funds, the Senate has restored them, and vice versa. If it continues, conference committee sessions will be calling for pistols and tea—and they can do without the tea.

New York

By JAMES McMULLIN

BLOW: Landonites in the East are making much of the Illinois primary results as clinching the nomination for their candidate. They argue that the close contest between Knox and Borah shows that neither commands an outstanding following among the party rank-and-file. This is adduced as further evidence that the Kansas is the only man behind whom the party can unite.

But astute New York Republicans call this reasoning strictly the bunk and draw an exactly opposite deduction. They were startled and disturbed by the size of the vote Borah rolled up without money or organization—and especially by its location. They rate it a clear indication that the Idahoan has "unsuspected strength among midwestern farmers—a class of voters whose support is an absolute essential to Republican victory this fall. A big timer in the New York G. O. P. delegation puts it this way:

"Borah doesn't need to have many delegates at Cleveland to exert plenty of influence. All he has to do is to show that he has a substantial popular following—particularly in the agricultural areas. He's done that now in Wisconsin and Illinois. If he does it a few more times it won't make him the nominee but we will certainly have to listen to his ideas."

"We know that Borah won't stand for Landon if he can help it. So the Illinois outcome is more of a blow that a boost to the Kansas's chances."

PAINFUL: Other aspects of the Illinois primaries as seen by political sharps: It's curtains for Frank Knox. He lost a lot of prestige by screeching such a meager victory in his home state with the full support of the state organization.

The huge vote rolled up for FDR in the uncontested Democratic primary accentuated the atmosphere of defeatism which is lately so noticeable in financial New York.

Anti-New Dealers were painfully impressed by Roosevelt's striking showing in Chicago—normally a Republican city and probably the center of the hottest and most constant newspaper opposition in the country.

CONFIDENT: After three years the government has finally gotten around to prosecuting the ten New York Clearing House banks which have never paid their share of the losses sustained by Harriman Bank depositors. They failed to carry out promises of support to the Harriman made by the Clearing House Committee at the time of the '33 banking crisis.

But even now the government shows no great enthusiasm for going through with the case and is continuing last minute pressure to persuade the banks to settle out of court. One of the ten defendant institutions may yet pay up rather than fight. One of its officers was a member of the committee that made the unfulfilled pledge—which weakens its position compared with the others. It was because of similar personal association with the pledge that most of the banks which have settled did so.

The other nine defendants will stand pat, serenely confident that no court will make them disgorge to fulfill an obligation about which they were never directly consulted. Clearing House prestige has never recovered from the Harriman collapse—and probably never will.

HARMONY: Revamping of the New York Republican State Committee will make for greater smoothness and efficiency. The new setup shears state chairman Mel Eaton of all real authority and places it in the hands of an executive committee reduced in membership.

Y. W. C. A. Candle Light Service.

At a beautiful and impressive candle light service, the new cabinet of the College Y. W. C. A., who will serve next year, was installed at the regular vesper hour last night.

Singing "Just As I Am," the members of the old and new cabinets marched down opposite aisles of the Austin Auditorium, and met on the stage.

Miss Hattie Pearl Mallard, the outgoing president, who was in charge of the service, gave the purpose of the organization as spreading abroad the light of Jesus Christ, and impressed upon the new cabinet the care taken selecting them and the responsibilities that would be theirs. The members of the old cabinet stood on the stage with lighted candles, and as each new member was introduced, her candle was lighted by the person whom she was succeeding. The last person to be installed was Miss Catherine Wallace, the incoming president. As she took the light of the old president, Miss Wallace pledged her trust in the One who said, "I am the Light of the World."

With the Y. W. C. A. song "Follow the Glean," the old and new cabinets filed out of the auditorium.

The newly installed officers are: Misses Catherine Wallace, president; Margaret Norman, vice-president; Juanita Davis, treasurer; Mildred McDonald, secretary; Elizabeth D. Johnston, student government representative; Marie Gregory, social service; Marie Dawson, social; Frances Curren, religious education; Nettie Brett Sewell, publicity; Frances Edgerton, world fellowship; Edna Earle Perry, music; Naomi Newell, morning watch; and Elizabeth Copeland, Teco Echo reporter.

Expect More Than Thousand Visitors For College Event

First High School Day to Be Observed at East Carolina Teachers College Here Tomorrow

More than a thousand visitors, including high school girls and boys, teachers, and parents, from a number of counties and about half a hundred high schools will spend tomorrow on the E. C. T. C. campus getting a peep into the inside of college life.

By the end of last week, that many acceptances had been received from those invited to participate in the first High School Day of East Carolina Teachers College, which will be celebrated tomorrow. If the weather is good, a hundred or more will probably come who did not send in their names ahead, so arrangements have been made to entertain at least 1,200, but if more than this number come, they can be taken care of.

The program is as follows:
10:00 a. m.—Arrival of guests at Robert H. Wright Building (Campus Building).

10:15—Tour of grounds and buildings starts.

11:45—Programs in the Robert H. Wright Auditorium.

1:00 p. m.—Barbecue on back campus.

1:30—2:30—Free for enjoyment of campus or dancing.

2:30—Picture show in Austin Auditorium.

2:30—Baseball game on Athletic Field.

The general committee on High School Senior Day is composed of Dr. C. L. Adams, chairman, Misses Grigsby and Cassidy; R. C. Deal, and Dr. H. J. McGinnis. The committees from the staff assisting these are as follows:

Invitations: Miss Lois Grigsby and Dr. H. J. McGinnis.
Seating: P. W. Pickelsimer, Miss Kate Lewis, and Dr. H. C. Haynes.

Stage and Dance: Misses Meade, Charlton and Williams.
Parking and Traffic: E. C. Hollar and P. T. Ricks.

Reception: J. B. Cummings, Misses Wadlington, McKey and Turner.
Tour: Misses Mack and Hooper, and Mr. Browning.

Picture: Misses Cassidy and Newell, and H. I. West.
Campus activities: R. C. Deal and Miss Norton.

Dinner: Pres. L. R. Meadows, A. C. Fornes, A. A. Henderson and J. L. Williams.
Advisers: Dr. H. J. McGinnis.

'SNIFFERS' PROBE BENEATH BUILDINGS FOR GAS LEAKS

Dallas, Tex.—(AP)—Science has found no substitute for the human nose as a detector of leaking gas, says a Dallas family.

Gas sniffers, known as members of the bar gang, constantly probe under Dallas streets and buildings for leaking gas.

They drive a bar down to a gas main, withdraw it, put their noses to the outlet and take a lusty whiff. They can tell instantly if all is well.

The professional sniffer has perfected his art to the point where he can distinguish between natural or artificial gas, they say.

tion to the compact legislation, other than that made by Mr. Lanier.

He further stated that a number of warehousemen have privately expressed their approval for a special call of the legislature for the purpose of passing compact legislation.

Following a telephonic conversation with Mr. Lanier, the following was stated:

NOTICE OF ANNUAL SHAREHOLDERS MEETING

The annual share holders meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association will be held in Sheppard Memorial Library on May 5th, 1936, at 8 p. m.

tion with Carl Goersch, publisher and news commentator, this morning. Mr. Winslow announced that he had granted a request for a broadcast of the program.

In his proclamation calling on the city of Greenville to observe a holiday tomorrow, Mayor Blount set forth that Pitt county is the largest fine-cured tobacco producing county in the world and over-production would result in low prices and disaster to the citizens of this section and the business interests of Greenville.

He further set forth that the farmers of this section have been definitely assured that compact legislation very shortly will be enacted by Congress, and that South Carolina will likewise fall in line and enact a law limiting the production of tobacco for the year 1936, and that the state of North Carolina, the largest tobacco-producing state in the tobacco area, should take the lead and cooperate in calling a special session for the purpose of meeting requirements of the act of Congress.

Chairman Cox of the Pitt commissioners will deliver the keynote address at the rally, which will be presided over by Mr. Winslow. In addition to Mr. Cox and the governor, a number of prominent farmers from various sections of the state will make brief talks.

Officials insisted it would be a farmers' meeting strictly and that all politics would be removed from the rally.

If fair weather is in evidence, local leaders reiterated they expected nearly 5,000 from this county to attend. Reports from other counties pointed to large delegations.

Mayor Blount's full proclamation follows:

"Whereas, the Town of Greenville is located in the heart of the tobacco belt of Eastern North Carolina and almost all of the farmers and business men residing in this section are dependent upon tobacco production and feel that State Compact Legislation should be immediately enacted in order that control of the 1936 tobacco production may be obtained; and

"Whereas, Pitt County is the largest fine-cured tobacco producing county in the world, and over-production would result in low prices and disaster to the citizens of this section and the business interests of Greenville; and

"Whereas, the farmers of this section have been definitely assured that Compact Legislation will be very shortly enacted by Congress, and that South Carolina will likewise fall in line and enact a law limiting the production of tobacco for the year 1936, and that the State of North Carolina, the largest tobacco-growing state in the tobacco area, should take the lead and co-operate in calling a special session for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the act of Congress; and

"Whereas, Tuesday, April 21, at eleven o'clock A. M. all farmers have been requested to assemble in the Stadium at North Carolina State College in the City of Raleigh to discuss the urgency of the situation and request our State Officials to take the necessary action toward the adoption of State Compact Legislation;

"I, the undersigned Mayor of Greenville, do hereby proclaim and declare that it is to the interest of all the business concerns of the Town of Greenville and the farmers residing in this section, to make April 21 a holiday to the end that all persons, business concerns and their employees may join in this movement and close their business establishments for the purpose of attending this meeting."

VOTE REVEALS LATEST TREND

the gubernatorial ward is blowing. This is the most exhaustive, most extensive, most scientific straw vote ever attempted anywhere, at any time. For the first time in history the conductors of a straw vote are revealing just how names of voters were secured for purposes of the poll. Here's how it was done:

The 20 papers participating in the poll went directly to the registration books. There they copied the names of every twelfth Democrat. To these Democrats postcard ballots were addressed. The ballots are in the form of double postcards. One card carries a message to the voter; the other card is a ballot. All that the receiver of the ballot does is to tear apart the cards, mark the ballot just like he would mark a ballot on election day, drop it in the nearest mail slot. The ballot bears a return stamp. No signature is required. The ballots are secret and no one will know how any individual votes.

In securing the names clock-like precision was used—the twelfth name was selected in each and every case, without regard for the identity of the voter. City slums, exclusive residential districts, cotton mill villages, remote rural areas and every spot in North Carolina alike received ballots in direct proportion to registration.

By employing such scientific methods, The Daily Reflector and the other 19 papers will be able to forecast accurately the trend of public opinion toward all four Democratic candidates for the governorship. In addition to the names of the four candidates the ballots also bear spaces for the voter to indicate his or her sex, whether the voter lives in the country or in town, and the voter's occupation. Thus the poll will indicate clearly, definitely, from what sources each candidate is getting support.

The expense of conducting a poll of such tremendous proportions is naturally very great and it is only through the combined efforts of the participating newspapers that a scientific poll of such magnitude is possible. Always ready to serve its readers, The Daily Reflector is sure that its readers will be deeply interested in this poll and will want to follow closely all developments. The first statewide story containing results of the balloting throughout the entire state will be carried in The Daily Reflector on Thursday, May 7. State-wide results will be published on every Thursday thereafter until the final survey published on Thursday, June 4, just two days before the actual primary.

In the meantime, The Daily Reflector will publish almost daily results of the poll in its own allotted area. For convenience in conduct-

BILIOUS SPELLS

In bilious spells, one of the first things to do is to take a dose of Black-Draught to relieve the attending constipation. You can rely on Black-Draught whenever a laxative is needed.

Mr. T. L. Austin, of McAdenville, N. C., tells of having used Black-Draught for a long time. "There is a box full on my mantle now," he writes. "I take it for biliousness. If I did not take it, the dullness and headache would put me out of business. It is the quickest medicine to relieve me."

Black-Draught is purely vegetable. It is one of the most economical laxatives. Sold in 25-cent packages containing 25 doses.

Local College Breaks Even on Invasion In Virginia

The E. C. T. C. base ball team played two road games last Friday and Saturday in Newport News and Norfolk. The Friday game with the strong Naval Apprentice School resulted in a 2 to 2 tie. Wells pitched a fine game. The locals should have won, a fact that is shown by the thirteen men left on bases.

The game Saturday with the Norfolk branch of William and Mary-V. P. I. resulted in a 12 to 4 victory for the teachers. Holland pitched a creditable game for the win. This big left hander is just getting into condition, and fine work is expected of him the rest of the season. The Hinton brothers hit timely, each getting three hits, one a home run by Floyd.

Rocky Mount Red Sox To Play College Here

The Rocky Mount Red Sox of the Piedmont League will play the E. C. T. C. team on the local diamond tomorrow, Tuesday, at three o'clock. The game is a part of the program for the high school day that is being held by the college. It gives local fans a splendid opportunity to see a fine ball team in action. The parent Boston club has furnished Rocky Mount a club that is expected to finish high up in the Piedmont.

Warn State Bankers To Watch for Forger

Raleigh, April 20. — Bankers in North Carolina, especially in the western part of the state, are warned to be on the lookout for a clever forger who specializes in the passing of bogus cashier's checks and who poses as a farmer and wears overalls, by Commissioner of Banks Gurney P. Hood.

Commissioner Hood has been warned of this forger by the chief bank examiner of South Carolina. This forger victimized a South Carolina bank for $100 by using a forged cashier's check last Thursday, April 16, and it is now believed that he is heading into Western North Carolina.

The forger has been appearing at a bank to deposit a large cashier's check, and then asks to have $100 or so of it in cash, and disappears, after which it is found that the entire check has been forged.

New York Cotton

New York, April 20.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, 2 lower to 2 higher with disappointing Liverpool cables offset by absence of rain in the western cotton belt.

There was continued trade selling in the near months and prices worked off three or four points from Saturday's closing quotations.

At midday May was selling around 11.47 and December 11.02 or net one point higher to four points lower.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 20.—(AP)—The stock market today renewed its allegiance to some of the steels, motors and specialties.

Gains ranged from fractions, to around a point or so among the favorites but transactions were again on the quiet side. There were also soft spots to be found here and there.

The late tone of the market was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'
 Max Reinhardt's super screen production of William Shakespeare's comedy 'A Midsummer Night's Dream' will be presented at the Pitt Theatre, Friday, April 24th. There will be only two performances, matinee at 3 and in the evening at 8 o'clock. All seats will be reserved and tickets will be on sale at the box office Wednesday.

Reinhardt, long acknowledged to be Europe's greatest stage producer, consented to present his spectacle in film form after it had met with tremendous success at the Hollywood Bowl and in San Francisco.

It is said to be the ultimate in spectacular grandeur, while at the same time its comedy and romance are as hilarious and as human as the mortal race.

James Cagney heads the all star cast with Joe E. Brown, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh, Otis Harlan, Dewey Robinson and Arthur Treacher playing with him as the artisan mummies who present a play before the Duke of Athens on the occasion of his wedding to the Queen of the Amazons.

ROBINSON CRUSOE ADAPTED FROM THE BOOK BY DANIEL DEFOE

FOLLOWING MY INSTRUCTIONS XURY GATHERS UP THE REMAINDER OF THE LIANE WHICH I HAD COLLECTED IN ORDER TO RELEASE ME FROM THE LEDGE.

IT SEEMED A LONG TIME BEFORE XURY CLIMBED DOWN THE EDGE OF THE PIT CLIMBING DOWN THE LIANE TOWARD THE WIDE LEDGE WHERE THE REAL CAVE APPARENTLY BEGINS.

SOON XURY DROPS THE LIANE TO ME.

MANY THINGS HAD PASSED THROUGH MY MIND WHILE I WAITED. I AM NOW BEING SAVED FROM THE PIT BY ONE WHOM I THOUGHT DEAD.
