CROWN PRINCE ASSUMES HEAD OF ETHIOPIANS

Takes Over Control at Request of Haile Selassie

PRINCE RETURNS FROM WAR FRONT

King of Kings Understood to Be Making Last Stand Against Italians

Addis Ababa, April 22.—(AP)—Crown Prince Asfa Wosan took control of the Ethiopian government today on direct orders from his father, Emperor Haile Selassie.

The prince returned to the capital from the fighting front in the midst of reports that his father's troops had mutilated in the north section.

The crown prince established headquarters here. Meanwhile Haile Selassie was understood to be making his last stand against Italian troops moving southward from Dessye.

Earlier in the day the Emperor was reported to be successful in holding up the advance at Warra Hattu, 70 miles south of Dessye.

It was stated that the King of Kings and his men have taken a position on the 9,000-foot high mountain pass in the region of the capital against the strong Italian column coming from the north.

As a result of the Emperor's operations the fears of the population of Addis Ababa decreased.

Affair Yesterday At Local College Was Huge Success

Seniors From High Schools Throughout State Guests of College For High School Day

Seniors from all Pitt County high schools except one took part in E. C. T. C. High School Day yesterday and several perhaps had a hundred percent of the senior class in attendance.

The Charles L. Coon High School of Wilson brought 75 of their seniors. The Central High School of Pasquotank, which is 100 miles from here, brought 22 of the 24 members of the senior class and Creswell in Washington County, 80 miles from here, brought 18 of the 19 in the class. These two perhaps hold the record for attendance when distance is considered.

Seventy-five parents registered and there were perhaps others in the crowd. One couple from a town not sending a delegation brought their daughter.

There were fifty-seven principals and teachers with the fifty-four groups of seniors. Several superintendents of counties came with their schools.

A number of high schools, especially those in the large towns, did not send delegations because they had had numerous interruptions during the year and felt they could not afford to lose another day from work.

The great success of the first E. C. T. C. High School Day was evident until the end of the day and the influence will doubtless be far reaching. Hundreds of high school girls and boys had a day of campus life, and many will probably be inspired to go to college, who were undecided beforehand.

Every detail of the day had been so carefully planned ahead by the efficient committees from the staff and so well carried out by them and their student assistants that there seems not to have been a hitch in the day.

The two entertainment features of the afternoon, the movie and the baseball game, both proved to be popular. The moving picture committee composed of M. L. Wright, H. I. West, Misses Cassidy and Newell moved up the hour for the show so the guests could attend the baseball game also, and had a second showing of the picture so as to give the college students a chance to see it. They also considerably made the Austin Auditorium dark for the occasion.

The dinner committee took no chances about the barbecue, but prepared for a few hundred beyond the estimated number expected, so the several hundred extras who came were well fed. The weather was fine. When some one commented on the fact that the wind was blowing, the response of President Meadows was "It keeps the flies away," thus proving himself what one of his staff called the "prime optimist."

The publicity committee for the occasion was composed of Misses Jenkins and Grigsby.

'BATH TUB' SLAYING SOLVED

The mysterious slaying of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton in the bathtub of her New York apartment was pronounced solved with the announcement by police that John Fiorenza, an upholsterer's helper, had confessed the killing. He is shown in an automobile en route to police station for questioning. Below, is the cord with which Mrs. Titterton's hands were bound. Using it as their only clue, police traced the twine to its manufacturer and thence to Fiorenza's employer.—(Associated Press Photos).

Admitted Slayer Guarded Against Possible Suicide

Joe C. Fiorenza Nervous After Confession of Crime

New York, April 22.—(AP)—A 21-year-old former convict, who police said, confessed he assaulted and killed Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton, was guarded closely in a jail cell today against the possibility of a suicide attempt.

Tied to the crime by a piece of cord used in the slaying, the accused man, Joe C. Fiorenza, a small, stout, nervous condition, and guards were ordered to take every precaution lest he take his own life.

For hours last night he paced his cell, muttering unintelligibly while two policemen stood at the door under orders never to let their gaze wander from him.

Lights turned upon him showed he was suffering a reaction from the bravado he displayed yesterday when he showed police, at the scene of the crime, how he attacked and killed the attractive young writer.

Fiorenza was booked on a homicide charge yesterday after an announcement by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine that he had confessed the 11-day-old crime. The authorities planned to arraign him today and take his case to the county grand jury tomorrow.

Magistrates In Pitt Urged Attend Meet

An urgent plea for all magistrates in this section to attend the second annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Magistrates in Salisbury Friday was sent out today by local leaders.

Speakers of state-wide reputation have been secured for the meeting. J. M. Broughton of Raleigh, president of the State Bar Association, will deliver the principal address. Among important matters to be disposed of at the meeting will be election of officers for the ensuing year. H. A. Bland is the retiring president.

RESCUE FORCE LOWERED INTO MINING SHAFT

Health Minister Enters Mine to Aid Entombed Men

PAIR IMPRISONED EASTER SUNDAY

Authorities Order Inquest Into Death of One of Miners; Others Are Reached

Moose River, N. C., April 22.—(AP)—After nine days unremitting labor, rescuers today penetrated the last rock barrier blocking their entrance to the underground mine where three men were buried alive Easter Sunday night.

Nova Scotia's Minister of Health, Dr. P. R. Davis, went down the newly mined shaft at 2 p. m. local time, (1 p. m. EST) to administer first aid and hypodermic injections to the two trapped men still living. Dr. D. E. Robertson, noted Toronto surgeon, and part owner of the Moose River gold mine, and his time keeper, Charles Alfred Scadding, at the same time authorities ordered an inquest into the death of Herman Magill, Toronto lawyer, and the other co-owner of the mine who died early Monday of exposure.

Dr. Davis was followed into the shaft by stretcher bearers who were expected to bring up the living men and the body of their companion, but doctors at the mine said it would be "some time" before the men could be removed.

Moose River, N. S., April 22.—(AP)—Rescue workers reported this morning they were able to talk to Dr. D. E. Robertson, entrapped in the Moose River gold mine.

The rescue of the noted Toronto surgeon and his companion, Charles Alfred Scadding, who have been imprisoned underground more than nine days was believed to be only a short time away.

The rescuers' reports came a few minutes after Dr. Robertson had reported to the surface over his one-way telephone that he was able to hear the voices of the rescue party.

The hundreds of rescue workers and spectators on the surface, 141 feet above the spot where Robertson, Scadding and Herman Magill, Toronto attorney, were caught by a rock slide Easter Sunday night, were electrified by the welcome news from underground.

Magill they knew was dead of exposure and nothing had been heard from Scadding since last night, but they believe Robertson and Scadding had been kept alive by the skill of the physician.

The estimate of the time required for rescue was considerably shortened at 10:58 a. m. when the rescue force reported back on its telephone that they expected to break through "any minute now."

News Behind The News

CUE: Although Supreme Court members lower all legal curtains after they hear argument, side-line observers pass out word that they have not yet started to draft the overdue opinion on the Guffey Coal Act. It was the most indigestible dish on the judicial menu at Saturday's executive session.

This inside evidence of painful and prolonged controversy puzzles those volunteer advisers who predicted long ago that the law would be promptly dumped on the NRA rubbish heap. Most lawyers still look for an adverse ruling, but the sign of cleavage in the court has revived a rereading of the act.

AS WORKERS NEARED BURIED TRIO

Waiting faithfully at the mine's entrance, Mrs. D. E. Robertson (left in top picture) talked with Mrs. Herman Magill while rescuers worked frantically to reach their husbands and a third man trapped 141 feet underground in the Moose River, Nova Scotia, gold mine. Below, two workmen tap and listen for messages from the entombed men—messages which reported that Dr. Robertson and Alfred Scadding were alive and Magill was dead.—(Associated Press Photos).

GIVE HISTORY PEACE ACTION

Members Local Committee Reveal Aims of Plan

The local Peace Board committee, composed of Rev. R. C. Grady, Mrs. J. H. B. Moore and Mrs. Wm. H. Taft, today issued a statement setting forth information regarding the National Council for Prevention of War which is sponsoring the nation-wide drive to raise money for effective peace activities.

The Greenville Council for Peace Action, as the Lumberton Council for Peace Action, in undertaking the local campaign, takes its lead from the N. C. P. W.

This organization, organized in 1921 as a clearing house for peace organizations, has its headquarters in Washington, opposite the War Department. It is supported wholly by contributions of individual Americans, supplemented occasionally by contributions from churches and the council's 31 affiliated organizations.

It maintains in Washington a staff of experts in the fields of education, legislation, political action, agriculture, labor, motion pictures, field lecturing and publicity. Branch offices are located in Springfield, Mass.; Des Moines, Iowa; Portland, Ore.; and San Francisco. It seeks to unite the great rank and file of Americans around a three-plank platform: Progressive world organization; world-wide reduction of armaments by international agreement.

Reward Is Offered For Alvin Karpis, 'Enemy Number 1'

Attorney General Places Price on Head of Dr. Cerdazo and Limping Pal in Crime, Harry Campbell

Washington, April 22.—(AP)—Attorney General Cummings today placed a price on the head of Alvin Karpis, "public enemy number one," and his limping pal, Harry Campbell.

The attorney general offered $5,000 "for information furnished to a representative of the federal bureau of investigation which results in the apprehension of Alvin Karpis," and $2,500 for similar information leading to the arrest of Campbell.

Karpis was named Saturday as one of the plotters in the kidnapping of William A. Hamm, Jr., St. Paul, Minn., brewer in June, 1935.

DOUBTFUL COMPACT CAN BE EFFECTIVE IN CURBING 1936 CROP

Gov. Says Speech South Carolina Bill Had Fine Response Is Dependent Upon Georgia Law

CONGRESS PASSES CONTROL ACT

In Spite of Congressional Action, However, Little Hopes Held for Plan

(By Associated Press)

Although congress has just approved the Kerr bill permitting tobacco states to enter into compacts among themselves to control acreage, doubts arose today whether it could be put into operation to curb this year's crop.

Four states—Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—produce the world's supply of flue cured tobacco and of these, only Virginia has passed the necessary legislation. The situation in the Carolinas, which produce the bulk of the crop, was unsettled.

Governor Ehringhaus of North Carolina remained non-committal after a mass meeting of 6,000 growers who "marched" on the capital and urged him to call a special session of the legislature. The governor contends the "model" Virginia bill would not control the crop.

A control bill in the South Carolina legislature received a set back last night when the senate adopted an amendment which, its sponsors said, would prevent it from applying to this year's crop.

The amendment would make acreage reduction in South Carolina state dependent upon legislative action in Georgia, where a political situation gave farm leaders little hope that Governor Talmadge would be persuaded to summon the legislature into special session.

In Georgia, a voluntary control campaign is underway, but Harry L. Brown, director of Georgia agricultural extension service, said only about 50 per cent of the acreage had been signed up so far.

"If North Carolina acts favorably on the tobacco compact," Brown said, it is practically assured that a sufficient number of Georgia growers will be in line so far as acreage and production are concerned to insure success of the program."

Group Commends New Revenue Bill to House Members

Tax Bill Suggested As Means of Correcting Defects in Present System of Taxation

Washington, April 22.—(AP)—Estimating the revenue yield at $90,000,000, the ways and means committee formally recommended its new tax bill to the house today as a means of correcting "the greatest defects in our present system of taxation."

The Republican minority already had called the tax plan, drafted in President Roosevelt's suggestion, "a vicious" threat to "the stability of business and employment."

The opposing views foretold the heated controversy into which the 249-page bill headed as leaders set aside tomorrow for opening debate.

The Democratic committee majority, filing its report on the bill, said the new plan of taxing corporations with rates fixed according to the proportion of earnings undistributed would provide the remedy for the major defects in the existing tax system by which "surtaxes on individuals are avoided by impounding incomes in corporate surpluses."

The committee majority conceded that its tax program would not come up to the revenue requirement outlined by President Roosevelt for the next three years. Mr. Roosevelt's suggestion that processing taxes be included was omitted entirely.

The report said the new corporation tax system "is estimated to produce an average of at least $630,000,000 in additional revenue annually when it comes into full operation." In that respect, the report said, the bill meets the President's request for permanent taxes to finance the new farm program and the additional cost of prepayment of the bonus.

But the report showed that instead of producing $517,000,000 temporarily over the next three years, as requested by Mr. Roosevelt, it would bring only $183,000,000 in the 1937 fiscal year.

Rocky Mount Bucs Win From College 8-3 Yesterday

By R. O. MOYER

The Rocky Mount Bucs of the Piedmont League defeated East Carolina Teachers College baseball nine, 8-3, here today in the only pre-season exhibition on the Bucs' schedule.

The Teachers held their own with the pros in quite a few departments, but a pair of costly errors and a number of walks figured in the sizeable score by the winners.

Each team made six hits. Wells, who started on the mound for Coach Bo Farley's locals, yielded only two hits in his four innings of duty. However, the safeties were mixed with a quarter of walks to produce four runs. Holland, who replaced Wells, gave four hits, four runs and four walks in

Common Sense about HEADACHE

Usually a headache is due to high nerve tension. At such times all you need is a little Capudine. This remedy is very effective because it quickly soothes tense nerves and eases pain.

Of course headache may come from more serious sources. Sometimes it may be an abscessed tooth, or some underlying cause which only your family physician can discover. Meanwhile, avoid suffering as much as you can by using Capudine.

Capudine contains no narcotics. It acts quickly and gently. Ask for either Capudine Liquid or Capudine Brand Tablets.

GREENIES' COP ANOTHER GAME

Locals Defeat Rocky Mount by Score of Five to One

Coach Reynolds Mays' Greenville's high school proteges defeated the Blackbirds of the Rocky Mount high there yesterday afternoon by a score of 5-1. This was the third consecutive win of the season and the second defeat of the year for Rocky Mount in the hands of the Greenies.

The pitching arm of Howard Hodges was in top shape yesterday afternoon and their opponents were unable to make more than one earned run. This run was made by William Patterson, who led with the stick here in Monday's game with Rocky Mount.

The high school crowd today that he was "exceeding" proud of the fine performance Hodges exhibited to the mound and expressed the opinion that Howard as he is known in his many school changes, would come out in the big league ball world after having made such an excellent beginning.

Harold Forbes and John Wells led the attack with the stick for the locals yesterday by setting the old ball to earn a double each. Neither of the two teams made more than five hits, but for each hit made by one of the locals, a run was earned for it.

Things began to look somewhat precarious in the seventh inning when the bases were loaded by Rocky Mount players due to two successive hits and one walk.

George Clark thwarted their hopes for scoring, however, and sent a sizzling peg into home cutting off what might ordinarily been a run. Yesterday's clash was considered one of the best of the season. The Greenies are meeting the Kinston Eagles of the Kinston high there this afternoon, and if the game is won it will mark the fourth consecutive win of the season for the locals.

End of The Century Club
Mrs. B. W. Mosely at her hospitable home on Fifth street, was charming hostess to the members of the Century Club and to many visitors Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mrs. A. D. Frank, president of the club, presided, and after the reports from the different officers, the business of the afternoon was discussed. A donation was given to the library and voted upon to buy books for the Bowen shelf. Mrs. J. L. Hassell brought a very favorable report in regard to preserving the trees on Dickinson avenue.

Mrs. Picklen Arthur gave a most interesting paper on "Colonial Homes of the South." The description was so vivid, so interesting and so beautiful you could almost imagine that you had just been there. She stated the subject was so broad she could hardly tell which ones she must talk about in a limited time. She selected first the Nelson Home at Yorktown—Stratford Hall, the famous home of the Lees, Monticello, the indescribable home of Thomas Jefferson; the Adams and Paul Revere home in New England; the Mott House in Charleston, S. C.; and then a few in our own State such as the old March Home in Bath, the Cupola House in Edenton, Tyrone's Palace in New Bern, also the Stanly Wright home in New Bern, Orton in Wilmington, whose gorgeous garden have been visited recently by so many of our people.

Misses Bessie Brown and Mary Harding gave us several very lovely vocal numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Tolson.

At the conclusion of the program we were invited into the dining room and served bountifully with all kinds of delicate refreshments.

The following visitors were present: Messrs. Harvey Clayton, T. A. Person, W. B. Tighman, R. C. Grady, Wyatt Brown, E. Tolson and Miss Bessie Brown.

Monthly Supper Club.
The monthly Supper Club of the Eighth Street Christian Church held its regular meeting Tuesday night at 6:30. After a very delicious supper the meeting was called to order and the minutes were read. For our May meeting we decided to entertain our mothers. After the report of the committees, "The House with Nobody in It," a poem by Joyce Kilmer, was very impressively quoted by Nannie Rowlett. Following, Mrs. Ryan gave a most interesting talk on "Getting Married." In order to make this great center of life happiest, one must first set up standards of high ideals; second, let God work through the whole thing; third, have good social background; and fourth, be able to use your mind wisely.

First Church of Christ, Scientist

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 19, 1936.

The Golden Text was from 1 Corinthians 1:18. "The preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God."

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The Lord hath made bare His holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. Behold, my servant shall deal prudently, he shall be exalted and extolled, and be very high." (Isaiah 52:10, 13).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Way-shower; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life, and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death." Art Festival Ends.

At 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon the Fine Arts Festival for 1936 sponsored by the Woman's Club, the Junior Woman's Club and the Greenville Chamber of Commerce came to a close. The event which had continued since two o'clock Saturday was widely acclaimed a brilliant success.

On every side praise of Mrs. J. H. B. Moore was heard for her splendid, almost Herculean effort to give each year to the community a free of charge so fine a thing as this Festival has proved itself to be. She brings to Greenville many superior professional exhibits of paintings, distinguished artists themselves and choice speakers on various phases of handicraft and art.

The event this year attracted many visitors from all over the state and in comparison with the festival last year the exhibits were considered not only greater in number but finer and more varied. The objective of the festival just closed was the featuring of work of North Carolina artists and to foster the production of art in our own community.

Outstanding among the exhibits was Henry Jay MacMillan's 1936 exhibition of twelve paintings which have been shown in many important art centers in the United States.

From Kinston came paintings of Effie Mae Calhoun, Mrs. S. H. Malone, Lucy Sanders Hood, Rachel Hatcher and Mrs. J. T. Hughes. From Raleigh came work of Mrs. James A. McLean, Mr. Dumont, Elena Mix, Cantley Venable Sutton and Caroline Estelle Harris. From Scotland Neck, Mary Thelma; from high Point, Louis Vorhees; from Chapel Hill, Mary deB. Graves; from New Bern, Mrs. R. D. V. Jones, J. P. Cropsey of New York, E. Liri, an Italian painter, and E. Andrews, an Alaskan painter, were represented also and a very fine exhibit of portraits and other work of Greenville's own Georgia Pearl Hall Hearn held an important place among the professional exhibits.

These came work from the Durham city schools; from the Kinston schools; a miscellaneous personal exhibit from Mrs. J. A. Jones, Kinston; exclusive designs of furniture from Hubert J. Rockwell, High Point; a miscellaneous exhibit from the craft department of the Caswell Training School, Kinston; forty admirable photographs of scenes in North Carolina, from the mountains to the coast; Mrs. Bayard Wooten, Chapel Hill, and thirteen water colors of the Middle Belt tobacco industry, Charles C. Daniel.

Among the local exhibits was a fine exhibition from the art department of the Training School; a collection of things from Bermuda; two handsome oil paintings done by Alfred T. Bullock; "Mood-ettes," a collection of thirty-four clear pen-and-ink sketches and water colors done by William Harris; five exquisite colored-pencil and lead-pencil drawings by Pauline Faust; delicate flower and portrait work (two pieces), by Marian Carroll. Shown also was the nice work of Ethel Gaston and some interesting drawings of little Jimmy Turner.

Most attractive and interesting, too, were the programs which were featured by such personages as Mr. Diment, artist, of Washington, D. C., who is now directing the work in North Carolina of collecting original art designs to be reported to the federal government and later to be kept in the Congressional Library; Elena Mix (Mrs. Alexander Johnson), Raleigh, a Mexican artist whose foreign accent was very charming; Mrs. Louis Sutton, chairman, art department of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. R. L. McMillan, president of the Raleigh Garden Club, who on Tuesday gave a demonstration of the making of pot pourri (fragrance) jars, and Mrs. Perrin Gower of Raleigh, who on the same day gave a demonstration of the artistic arrangement of flowers.

The closely related fine arts poetry and music were not forgotten. The local poets reading some of their verse, were: Miss Lucy Cherry Crisp of Falkland, Mrs. W. L. Hall, Mrs. B. McK. Johnson and Mrs. W. C. Harris. The prize poem (1936 convention) "Let There Be Light," written by Mrs. Pearl Council Hyatt of Pilot Mountain, was read by Miss Elizabeth Hyman.

Local soloists who featured programs were: Mrs. John Karsnak, Miss Bessie Brown, Mrs. Knott, Proctor and Lewis Bullock, district choral director of Eastern Carolina. Piano solos were played by Mrs. H. C. Hayes and Dr. Claude M. Simpson of East Carolina Teachers College, whose numbers were modern in character.

On Sunday afternoon, incidental piano music was played by students of East Carolina Teachers College, and a vocal trio composed of Mrs. Knott, Proctor, Miss Agnes Fullilove and Mrs. Dink James was very much enjoyed. Music by the high school glee club, directed by Miss Ona Shindler and accompanied by Miss Eva Hodges, was a feature of the program Monday evening.

Solo dances of Miss Ramona Staples, accompanied by Miss Frances Rock, a waltz number by Marie Smith and the program of dance numbers given Saturday evening by the pupils of Miss Carolyn Hamric were delightful rhythmic spots in several of the programs.

Mrs. C. W. Parsons, dramatic reader, on Saturday evening gave, in her fine interpretative manner, a musical reading "There Are Fairies in Our Garden," a humorous monologue, "For the Honor of the Family," and an Italian dialect number, "His Two Loves."

Birthday Dinner.

Farmville, N. C., April 22. — On Sunday, April 19th, the children of Mrs. Arcene Joyner gave her a surprise birthday dinner at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. D. Jones, celebrating her 68th birthday.

They all gathered about 12 o'clock and had dinner in the yard, after which Mrs. Joyner opened her gifts. They spent a most enjoyable afternoon together.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Erwin and sons, John, Julius and Billy; Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Joyner and daughter, Jennie C.; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Joyner and children, J. A. Jr., Lou Nichols and Clinton C.; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Joyner and sons, Carlton, Beverly Tucker; and J. B.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Jones; Mrs. Cornelia Hemby and Mrs. F.

M. Smith. Several friends called during the afternoon.

Billroy's Show Here Saturday.
An old familiar name, "Billroy's Comedians," is enlivening the billboards around Greenville, but when the show arrives here for its performance on Saturday, April 25 the old, the saying of "everything new and all different," will truly be carried out, as notices from cities where the attraction has played this season say that Billroy's this year is in every respect, an entirely new offering, regarded by most critics as the best of the whole twelve series manager Billy Wehle has offered.

Daphne, "Queen of Fan Dancers" is the featured attraction this year, and that alone is enough to show the seasoned theatre-goer that Billroy's have something new and something different—and that Manager Wehle is, as usual, keeping abreast of the times. Daphne has been the sensation of Florida winter resorts the past season and it was only by competing with metropolitan producers of stage attractions that she was persuaded to sign a contract for appearance exclusively with Billroy's. She is described by reviewers as "youthful, beautiful, graceful and exotic."

KEEP PRODUCTION DOWN

With the action of the South Carolina Senate yesterday virtually killing chances for any relief for the tobacco growers through state compact laws this year, the next best step for the growers in this state is to keep their production down to 70 per cent and take what they can get from the government in the way of soil erosion benefits. If all hope of legal control of the crop this year is lost, and apparently it is at this time, there is still no reason why the growers should commit financial suicide by producing a tremendous tobacco crop this year. It is true that there will be some who will increase their acreage, but every one that increases will just help that much to cut down the price, with the result that those who produce the most will be the biggest losers because a big crop this year certainly means below cost of production prices.

Law or no law, this year is a time that the tobacco growers should use their good common sense and certainly keeping the production down is the only sensible course.

MANTEL: SEC Chairman Landis will stay on to boss the bulls and bears of Wall Street if President Roosevelt requests it. But the young lawyer's next step-up may be such a feather in both their caps that the White House will offer no objection.

Washington hears that this extremely important member of the administration's "brain trust" has been offered the prize post of dean of the Harvard Law School—and only to a Supreme Court appointment in the minds of the legal fraternity. The deal is still in the conversational stage, but it is understood that Mr. Landis was recommended by the retiring Dean Roscoe Pound, who once dubbed Landis as his "most brilliant graduate."

Mr. Roosevelt would never miss this chance to have the laugh on his critics. For fair but conservative Harvard to honor so illustriously the author of revised regulatory legislation would be to know the New Deal with respectability. It might conceivably reconcile some holders-out to political professors and their legislative handiwork. Most important, it would enable the liberal Landis to exercise a great influence on young men leaving law school for business and politics—the same influence not to rub it in, which Felix Frankfurter exercised on him.

OVERSIGHT: House members are staging an under-cover mutiny against the do-nothing tactics of the committee assigned to investigate the Townsend movement. Speaker Byrns has been bombarded with pitiful pleas that he name some two-faced, fighting men to the committee.

The sleuths staged a few hearings and headlined evidence of large profits for Doctor Townsend and Second Lieutenant Clements. Then the investigators left Washington to pursue their inquiries afield. Meanwhile, Doctor Townsend reorganized his outfit and sliced his share of the cut from

MYSTERY'S END

"GOOD Lord!" said Allan, jumping out of his wicker chair. He stared at Morgan's tall, sergeant-clad figure, broad shouldered, loose-jointed, lounging behind the older man.

"Good afternoon, Allan," said Morgan placidly. "How is Granny?"

"So that's the answer," Allan said with his little amused laugh. It sounded harmless enough except for the amazing fact that Morgan and Allan knew each other. But Morgan's face was at its blackest.

"How dare you go on misjudging Iris!" Then he got hold of his temper with an effort and spoke gravely. "After all, suspicion's a family trait. We'd neither of us got hardened to honesty."

Allan still looked blankly shocked and a little pale; but he snatched with fair success at his usual manner.

"Behold," said he, "the long-lost heir. My Lord, Jim, I may have fallen below the romantic ideal, but at least I never let an old woman break her heart because I pretended to be drowned."

"Granny knows I'm alive," Morgan said. "She has ever since the night you went back on Iris."

Iris stood struck, gaping and silent. She held to the wicker table to steady herself. Jim, Morgan, her Morgan was the dead grandson Jim she had heard of from Camilla and Allan and everyone. What a fool she'd been, not to put two and two together, not to see.

"I wrote Granny I was going round the world, going to stay away a couple of years, it's no more than you've done a half dozen times."

"And then you were found in the Hudson, all nice and dead, complete with identification."

And Morgan, explaining crossly. "I gave a poor devil some clothes and cash—left things in the pockets, never was a neat little boy like you."

And Allan: "Don't apologize. You wanted to be loved for yourself alone. I hope you keep your illusions this time!"

And then Uncle Will, forgotten in the background, quieting the two men on the edge of a new quarrel. There was a moment of polite conversation, and then Allan, poised and amiable, made his polite departure. He got hold of himself—he made a gallant exit. "I'm glad you're alive, old boy—you know that," he said as he went.

"I do know it, Al," Morgan said, and the two shook hands.

"Granny's waiting inside there," Allan added over his shoulder as he passed out of the garden. "Tell her her surprise party was a wonderful success, and that I'm going back to New York. You'll find her in the living room, probably with a fatted calf in her handbag."

BUT Granny was outside. She had stepped out of the French window. Aunt Ella behind her.

"I was getting a little impatient, Jim," she said. "I'm sorry not to have said more to you the night of the concert, Iris, but—for a consideration—I gave Jim my word." She beckoned Iris closer, and Iris ran into her arms and kissed her. "I'm getting what I wanted, you're marrying my grandson," she said. "We needed sound stock in the strain. You're a good child, Iris."

Iris clung to her a moment. Then she said, a little shyly. "And—and Aunt Phina?"

"You're a loyal little soul. Well, she's ridden into glory for what's glory for her on your skirts. Nobody's going to stop her, and she'll have enough trouble," said Granny dryly. "getting into the ultimate social Hox of Hoxes to keep her amused for some years yet. People like her aren't happy unless they're storming redoubts."

"She is a wonderful woman, Phina," said Uncle Will gently.

"You are wonderful people, you Lannings," said Granny, smiling, yet as if she meant it too. "Well, Mr. James Morgan Jameson, I know you have a good deal to discuss with Iris, and as I'm staying the night I'll see you children again."

The sunset was like a doorway opening into Paradise. But Iris, slim and ivory-colored and flashing-eyed in her rosy ruffled dress, turned on Morgan Jameson, angry with him as she had never been in her life. "I suppose you've been having a wonderful time with your pretty romance, haven't you? As your cousin would say, toying with the village maid!"

"Iris!"

"I think I've had enough to do with your family. Why didn't you tell me then that you loved me, that you were you, instead of driving over to Long Island and back, the Mysterious Stranger? You've behaved horribly. You talk so much about honesty—you haven't any. I never want to see you again."

It was Morgan, the quick-tempered, who remained quiet this time. He stood quite still. He even smiled a little.

"I'm not completely intelligent," he said simply, "any more than anybody else. But as for willfully deceiving you, I hadn't an idea of it. I couldn't foresee that you were going to be dropped into a nest of my friends and relatives."

"When you knew, you could have told me."

"When I knew, you seemed just one more girl like the rest, like Georgia. A girl who wanted Phina Weatherley's sort of thing. I do owe you apologies there, Iris. But there's one thing there's no apology coming on. I've never stopped loving you, the very best way I knew how. And I thought you loved Allan. There wasn't anything to do but take it and like it. I never meant to leave this place."

"And if I marry you, what will everybody think now? That I tried to marry Allan for what he could give me. And then when I found out you could give me as much—"

"It happens to be more," said Morgan quietly.

"I turn—just like Georgia—and snatch for you. How do I know you wouldn't think I was Georgia, any time at all, all over again? And even if you didn't, to have everyone in the world think it of me?"

"Does that matter to you," asked Morgan, "more than my love?"

She was silent. She realized, suddenly, that she was still tangled in her fears and terrors. What people thought, what they said, had no right to matter. "No, Morgan. Beside the fact that you and I love and believe in each other, it doesn't matter at all," she said. She felt something suddenly dropping from her like a heavy cloak. What the world said would never be the principal thing to her again.

HE took her in his arms. After a little while:

"I had your promise, anyway," he said. "No matter what happened, you wouldn't break your engagement. I'm glad your promise is as unbreakable as I know it to be; because there's a little more to come."

She sat down with him, his arm still around her. "Go on," she said lazily.

"When I came over, night before last, before I could get Granny's promise to let me go back and say nothing, I had to give mine to come back and live where she is part of the time. After all, it was a pretty cowardly thing to walk out on an old lady, when I was about all she had left. Uncle Will's made me see that this afternoon driving back from work, I should have stood up to the whole thing, Georgia and all, instead of running away and being the Young Misanthrope. Well, I'm going to. Only I've got to ask you to take your share too."

All the things she had turned her back on—and Morgan's love.

"Most people would say it was the gold at the end of the rainbow you were offering me, instead of the burden your voice makes it out to be," she said thoughtfully.

"Don't you know where the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow really is, Iris?" he asked. He drew her to her feet. The two young figures stood close in each other's arms, in the sunset light. "My mother told me," he said in her ear. "She said that after the adventures were all tired with seeking it all over the world, they found it, buried under the hearthstone of their home."

"It is that—for me," she said.

"And for me—always—so long as we are together."

Uncle Will came pattering out, looking for his children. "Supper's ready," he said, smiling at them. He was happy, more or less, always, but at what he saw in their faces he was especially happy. Just now. They followed him hand-in-hand.

ing with G. O. P. leaders in Southern states. Their proposition is that Landon will agree to leave TVA alone if elected in return for Southern support at the convention. The point is not only that TVA is popular in the South but that it offers prospects of patronage, gravy to hungry Southern Republican politicians in the event of victory this fall. This is alluring bait, as they never have any hope of worthwhile pickings out of state and local elections. Dixie Republicans win no electoral votes—but their backing at conventions is an asset well worth courting.

If Mr. Landon should be elected and should wish to abandon TVA he could kiss it gently to death without violating his implied agreement. All he would have to do would be to omit appropriations for its work—or make them too small for anything but skeleton maintenance.

FUTURE: The best evidence of financial New York's conviction that Mr. Roosevelt is sure of reelection is the cessation of private conferences among banking and business leaders to discuss ways and means of stopping him.

Two months ago hardly a day passed but what groups of big timers got together for this purpose. Many were the feverish exhortations that now was the time for all good men to come to the aid of the (Republican or conservative Democratic) party. And many were the plans concocted to confound the New Dealers and rout them at the polls.

But this stage is all over now. No longer do New York lunch clubs resound to the earnest pounding of tables by embattled industrialists. Leaders who were in the thick of the daily strategic brainwaves frankly say they would consider it the height of futility to waste more time and thought in trying to achieve impossible.

IMPRESSED: New York is still keeping a close eye on Senator Vandenberg despite the vigorous claims of Landonites that the battle is over and won.

Mr. Vandenberg is reliably reported to have received more than 10,000 letters from all over the country in the past few weeks commending him for carrying the anti-New Deal flag in the Senate. New York political observers are impressed.

Sources who make it their business to keep a sensitive finger on the party pulse call it better than an even money bet—unless Landon is nominated on the first or second ballot—that the Michigan Senator will be the candidate when the shooting is over.

WORSE: Several weeks ago we reported there was a good chance that Al Smith would not show up at the Philadelphia convention at all. Now you could stake 10 to 1 on this and find no takers among the informed.

Smith's friends confide that he has been angling around to find kindred spirits among the delegates willing to share his promenade. Al has no wish to look ridiculous—and he suspects a solo walkout would have that appearance. Joe Ely of Massachusetts is staying away from the party for the same reason. But Smith can find no volunteers.

None, that is, except maybe Gene Talmadge if the latter is allowed to sit as a delegate. And from Smith's viewpoint it would be worse to have Talmadge—tarnished with the Ku Klux brush—as a companion than no one at all.

The North Carolina 4-H Club member who grows and exhibits the best baby beef calf in 1936 will receive a one-year scholarship to State college.

N. Y. Stock Market

New York, April 2.—(AP)—The stock market got back on the recovery route today with widely scattered gains of fractions to two or more points. Industrial specialties led the upturn, although the motors, steel, rails, mines, oils and rubbers were not slow in following. The only fly in the bullish ointment was that, after a fast opening, trading turned extremely dull. The late tone was firm. Transactions approximately 1,500,000 shares.

EAST SECTION FOR McDONALD

mendous expense of conducting this poll.

Getting back to the returns received so far by The Reflector, many of the ballots were not marked as to the sex or occupation of the voters so of course they cannot be classified but of the marked ones, Hoy seems to have the best of the women's votes. One woman's vote cast for McDonald, lists her occupation as "Dodging the sales tax." McDonald seems to have the best of it among the merchants and farmers while Graham's votes have come about equally from the various classifications including the women's votes.

Here's how the candidates stand at this time:

	McDonald	Hoy	Graham	McRae
Pitt	17	12	6	1
Beaufort	6	5	6	0
Bertie	6	5	0	0
Martin	8	1	6	0
Hyde	4	4	1	0
	41	27	19	1
